Mr. Win Griffiths: The Government are in the process of deciding the HLCA rates for 1998. My right hon. Friend and I met both Welsh farming unions recently and heard their concerns about hill farming in Wales. I share much of that concern, as I made clear in my speech in the House on 5 November.

It is also important not to raise false expectations. The Government have indicated that they intend to live within public expenditure targets set by the previous Government. That Government provided an extra £60 million for HLCAs in 1997 only.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Health and Social Services

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what reference was made to (a) the Robson statistics on deprivation and (b) geographical rural isolation in the formulation of the capitation system of funding for health and social services boards. [15050]

Mr. Worthington: The Robson statistics on deprivation are not suitable for use in the capitation system of funding health and social services boards as they do not enable finance to be allocated in proportion to the need for health and social care. This is because differences in Robson statistics are not proportionate to differences in deprivation. For example, an area with a Robson score twice that of another area may not necessarily be twice as deprived. In addition, Robson is not the most focused measure of health and social care need. It is a very broad measure of general deprivation, combining a large number of indicators from areas such as environment and education as well as health and social care.

The Capitation Formula Review Group has recommended continued use of the existing rurality adjustment while specifically commissioned research in this area is completed.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list (a) her Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if she will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared with those for 1990; and what estimate she has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15540]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the United Kingdom's Second Report under the UN Framework Convention in Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward what the current programme is expected to achieve to 2020.

Chiropody and Podiatry

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list those health authorities which have notified her Department of (a) reductions or increases in chiropody services in 1996–97 relative to 1995–96 and (b) planned reductions or increases in chiropody services in 1998–99. [15377]

Mr. Worthington: Health and Social Services Boards and Trusts are not required to notify the Department of reductions or increases in particular services. It is for Boards and Trusts to assess the needs of their populations in respect of health and personal social services, including chiropody services, and to provide services accordingly in the light of available resources and local priorities.

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what were the total numbers of (a) face to face contacts and (b) initial contacts, with chiropody and podiatry staff for (i) 1996–97, (ii) 1995–96 and (iii) 1994–95.

Mr. Worthington: The total number of contacts with Chiropody/Podiatry staff in Northern Ireland is shown in the following table. Information on initial contacts is not separately available.

Year	Total contacts
1994–95	262,350
1995–96	297,612
1996–97	312,684

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the guidelines that are issued and health needs assessments that health authorities undertake to ensure the availability of chiropody and podiatry services to meet the needs of their local populations. [15367]

Mr. Worthington: It is a matter for Health and Social Services Boards and Trusts to carry out appropriate needs assessments of their local populations, including their need for chiropody services. In seeking to meet that need they have to take into account the total resources available to them, but Boards and Trusts have been asked to give priority to elderly people, those with disabilities, expectant mothers, schoolchildren and people with diabetes.

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the NHS expenditure on NHS chiropody and podiatry in (a) 1996–97, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1994–95. [15376]

Mr. Worthington: This information is not available in the exact form requested. The following table discloses expenditure on chiropody and podiatry by the Northern Ireland Health and Personal Social Services Boards for 1994–95 and 1995–96. The expenditure on chiropody and podiatry for 1996–97 is not yet available.

This information has been extracted from supplementary statements produced by HPSS Boards and HSS Trusts to provide further analysis of the expenditure disclosed in their annual financial accounts. The format of these statements was revised in 1995–96. Prior to this the information requested was not separately identified on the financial returns and is therefore not available for every HSS Trust/HPSS board.

Chiropody and podiatry expenditure for Northern Ireland 1994–95 to 1995–96

Year	Chiropody and podiatry £
1994–95	3,297,279
1995–96	3,569,148
1996–97	Not available

1. The information for 1994–95 was provided by the Health and Social Services Trusts and Health and Social Services Boards' Directly Managed Units with the exception of North Down and Ards Trust who are unable to provide the information.
2. The information for 1995–96 has been extracted from the analysis of expenditure reported in the Financial Return Statements (FR22) for the Health and Social Services Trusts and Health and Social Services Boards' Directly Managed Units.

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list the budget for each health authority or health board allocated for spending on chiropody and podiatry services in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1996–97 and (c) 1995–96. [15375]

Mr. Worthington: Health and Social Services Boards' general allocations are not hypothecated and it is for individual Boards and general practitioner fundholders to use their funds to best meet the health needs of their local regulations. Spending on specific services can only be determined accurately in retrospect once a Board and Health and Social Security Trust accounts have been completed.

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what are the staffing and personnel figures by all NHS grades and whole-time equivalent staff for chiropody and podiatry for the years (a) 1996–97, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1994–95. [15368]

Mr. Worthington: The information requested is set out in the table.

Chiropody staff in Northern Ireland at September

	1994		1995		1996
	Headcount	WTE	Headcount	WTE	Headcount	WTE
Unit Senior Manager 11	1	1.00	1	1.00	0	0.00
Technical Instructor 3	0	0.00	1	1.00	1	1.00
Area Chiropodist Chf 2	2	2.00	1	1.00	1	1.00
Chief Chiropodist 2	3	3.00	3	3.00	2	2.00
Chief Chiropodist 3	10	10.000	12	12.00	8	7.93
Chief Chiropodist 4	3	3.00	6	6.00	5	5.00
Senior Chiropodist 1	32	30.06	29	26.08	28	24.61
Senior Chiropodist 2	87	76.69	95	84.23	98	86.41
Chiropodist	2	2.00	3	3.00	7	7.00
Foot Care Assistant	2	2.00	6	5.01	5	5.00
Total	142	129.75	157	142.32	155	139.95

Irish Language

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which schools teaching in the medium of the Irish language (a) are and (b) are not under the management of the Council for Catholic Maintained

Mr. Worthington: No schools are managed by the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools. Eight grant-aided Irish-medium schools are managed by Boards of Governors and five registered independent Irish-medium schools are managed by their proprietors. In addition there is one Irish-medium unit in a maintained

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps she is taking to ensure that Irish-medium teacher training courses are not located in venues associated with only one religious denomination. [15614]

Mr. Worthington: There are no plans to use other venues as the one grant-aided provider of Irish-medium teacher training for those intending to teach in Irish-medium schools is sufficient to meet needs.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

"Excellence in Schools"

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many of the responses not submitted on the tear-off slips to the White Paper, "Excellence in schools", came from (a) representative organisations, (b) local education authorities, (c) LEA-maintained schools, (d) grant-maintained schools and (e) individuals. [16375]

Mr. Byers: We received over 8,000 responses to the White Paper of which some 3,500 were written responses to the full version. The remainder were a combination of tear-off slips and other forms of communication.

Of the 3,500, 138 were from Local Education Authorities and about 600, 2,100 and 700 came from representative organisations, schools and individuals respectively. A breakdown between grant-maintained and LEA-maintained schools is not currently available.

Most responses addressed issues from more than one chapter and many ranged beyond the specific questions posed. There was broad support for the contents of the White Paper.

We continue to consider all the responses in detail.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) how many local education authorities, commenting on Chapter 7 of the White Paper "Excellence in schools", expressed (a) support for and (b) opposition to the proposed framework of community, aided and foundation schools; and in each case, how many (i) were and (ii) were not Labour controlled; [16053]

(2) how many responses to the White Paper, "Excellence in schools", expressed (a) support for and (b) opposition to the proposed framework of community, aided and foundation schools; [16374]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The White Paper "Excellence in schools", published in July, has received widespread support from national organisations, LEAs, schools and others. Some 140 local education authorities have commented on Chapter 7 and/or the Technical Consultation Paper on the new framework for schools. Of these, around 30 per cent. either expressed support for the basic framework of community, foundation and aided schools or took it as their starting point, of which around half are Labour-controlled authorities. Some 70 per cent. of LEAs raised concerns about the foundation school category, of

We are currently considering all the responses in detail. The analysis to date indicates that, of some 1,500 responses to the Technical Consultation Paper (in addition to those from LEAs) the great majority did not comment explicitly on the framework. Of the some 300 responses which did comment, some 70 per cent. were content with the proposed foundation category for schools.

Arts Education Task Force

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will assess the benefits of establishing an Arts Education Task Force. [15186]

Ms Estelle Morris: We recognise the benefits that a good aesthetic education can bring to any child's learning and believe all children should be given opportunities to experience the arts as part of a broad and balanced curriculum. However, we are working closely with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to make sure that the benefits that Arts can bring to education are recognised.

Higher Education

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will estimate how many and what proportion of the total number of students studying in higher education expect their post-18 education to last (a) one year, (b) two years, (c) three years, (d) four years, (e) five years, (f) six years, (g) seven years and (h) more than eight years. [16431]

Dr. Howells: The available information, which shows the expected course length of students currently enrolled on higher education courses, is given in the following table. The information covers the current course of students only; it does not cover previous or future courses which students have undertaken or intend to undertake.

Home and overseas higher educations students in higher education institutions in the UK

1996–97

Expected length of course	Postgraduates Numbers	Percentage[1]	Undergraduates Numbers	Percentage[1]
Full-time
1 year or less	76,892	56.8	27,552	2.9
More than 1 year, up to 2 years	20,717	15.3	54,625	5.7
More than 2 years, up to 3 years	29,022	21.4	544,290	56.4
More than 3 years, up to 4 years	6,039	4.5	301,862	31.3
More than 4 years, up to 5 years	1,371	1.0	33,578	3.5
More than 5 years, up to 6 years	421	0.3	2,927	0.3
More than six years	995	0.7	73	0.0
Unknown[2]	2,766	—	22,840	—
Total	138,223	—	987,747	—
Part-time
1 year or less	39,303	22.5	43,657	24.0
More than 1 year, up to 2 years	60,151	34.5	41,784	23.0
More than 2 years, up to 3 years	40,830	23.4	25,802	14.2
More than 3 years, up to 4 years	13,320	7.6	20,869	11.5

Home and overseas higher educations students in higher education institutions in the UK

1996–97

Expected length of course	Postgraduates Numbers	Percentage[1]	Undergraduates Numbers	Percentage[1]
More than 5 years, up to 6 years	6,931	4.0	16,285	9.0
More than 6 years	2,583	1.5	3,515	1.9
Unknown[2]	39,443	—	176,888	—
Total	213,856	—	358,456	—

[1] Based on courses with known length.
[2] Including courses where there is not a defined normal length for the study programme.

Music Teaching

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) if he will increase the level of funding available to promote the teaching of music in schools; [14720]

(2) what is the total projected amount of funding for the teaching of music in schools for the current financial year; [14722]

(3) what was the total annual funding for the teaching of music in schools for each of the last 10 years. [14723]

Ms Estelle Morris: The Department does not provide funding to schools for specific subjects of the National Curriculum. Under Local Management of Schools, it is for LEAs and governing bodies of schools to decide what proportion of their total budget to spend on music provision.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to promote music teaching in schools. [14984]

Ms Estelle Morris: The Department continues to promote music teaching in schools through the provision that is available as part of the National Curriculum for all children aged five to 14 in maintained schools. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport is also exploring ways of promoting musical instrument teaching for school pupils in addition to the National Curriculum requirements.

European Dimension

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what steps he is taking to give greater emphasis to the European dimension in education. [15185]

Ms Estelle Morris: European matters already have considerable coverage in the National Curriculum for schools, mainly through the mandatory study requirements for geography, history and modern foreign languages. To reinforce those and to celebrate the forthcoming United Kingdom Presidency of the European Union we are producing, with the professional help of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and the Central Bureau for Educational Visits and Exchanges, a curriculum pack for schools. It will be entitled "Partners in Europe", and it will emphasise the importance of building a European dimension in the curriculum. We plan to publish the pack in December so that it will be available to schools in January for the start of the Spring term.

Positive Discrimination

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the impact on employees of the recent European Court of Justice ruling to permit positive discrimination in favour of women. [16418]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The judgment does not require an amendment to the Sex Discrimination Act 1975. It would therefore be inappropriate to make a statement.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what guidance he will issue to employers on the recruitment and employment of women following the European Court of Justice's ruling on positive discrimination in favour of women. [16415]

Mr. Andrew Smith: We have no current plans to issue guidance.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what discussions he has held with (a) the Minister for Women and (b) the European Union Social Commissioner on the European Court of Justice's ruling relating to positive discrimination in favour of women. [16416]

Mr. Andrew Smith: I have held no such discussions.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to amend United Kingdom sex discrimination legislation to permit positive discrimination in favour of women following the recent European Court of Justice ruling. [16414]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The issues raised by the judgment in the case of Marschall v. Land NordRhein Westfalen are complex. The implications are still being considered. The European Court of Justice's judgment does not require an amendment to be made to the Sex Discrimination Act 1975, because Article 2(4) of the Equal Treatment Directive (under which the judgment is made) operates as a derogation from the equal treatment principle. It permits Member States to have positive discrimination provisions in certain limited circumstances it does not require them to have such provisions.

Teachers' Pay

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the basic starting salary for a newly graduated teacher (a) inside and (b) outside London; and if he will list the average earnings of teachers (i) inside and (ii) outside London in relation to length of service (1) in cash terms and (2) as a proportion of average earnings. [16430]

Mr. Byers: The basic starting salary at 1 April 1997 for a newly qualified teacher with a good honours degree in inner London was £16,341; in outer London it was £15,636; in the London fringe area it was £14,805; and outside London it was £14,280.

The average earnings of full-time teachers (including secondary and special sector at 31 March 1996 by five-year intervals of length of experience were, in cash terms:

Length of service (years)	Greater London £	England and Wales excluding Greater London £
0 : 1	16,200	14,300
5 : 6	22,500	19,600
10 : 11	25,100	22,100
15 : 16	26,100	22,900
20 : 21	26,900	23,900
25 : 26	28,200	25,100
30 : 31	29,200	26,600
Over 31	30,200	27,800

Average full-time teacher salary as a percentage of average full-time earnings for all employees:

Percentage

Length of service (years)	Greater London	England and Wales excluding Greater London
0 : 1	68	82
5 : 6	95	113
10 : 11	106	128
15 : 16	110	132
20 : 21	114	138
25 : 26	119	145
30 : 31	123	154
Over 31	127	161

Greater London figures are the percentage of the average Greater London earnings for April 1996. England and Wales excluding Greater London figures are the percentage of the average England and Wales excluding Greater London earnings for April 1996.

Welfare to Work

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how the benefits of those aged under 25 years who are unemployed and who refuse to take up any of the options offered by the Welfare-to-Work scheme will be affected. [14655]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Young people who without good cause refuse a New Deal place will lose their Jobseeker's Allowance for two weeks. Every time they refuse a further offer in the following 12 months they will lose JSA for four weeks.

Oxford and Cambridge Universities

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what criteria for Higher Education Funding Council is using to evaluate value for money from college fees in its review of the funding of Oxford and Cambridge universities. [16364]

Dr. Howells: We have not yet received the Funding Council's advice on the mechanisms for setting future funding for universities and colleges at Oxford and Cambridge. It is for the Council to decide what criteria to use in formulating its advice.

Universities

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what measures the Government (a) have taken and (b) are planning to take, to ensure that universities are responsive to the needs of

Dr. Howells: The Government are encouraging and will encourage universities to meet the needs of employers and others in their communities in a number of ways.

We are continuing the Higher Education and Employment Development Programme, which exists to improve responsiveness to the labour market at a national level and to enhance the ability of employers to use the skills and knowledge that graduates bring. The Programme has a budget of £8 million over the next two years, during which we expect to support some 60 projects.

The Higher Education Regional Development Fund came into operation this year. This initiative aims to engage higher education systemically in supporting competitiveness and economic growth at a regional level through close partnerships with employers and employer-led organisations. The 1997–98 budget of £2.7 million is supporting 58 projects. Although funding is due to end in April 1998, the Government are considering a recommendation from the National Committee of Inquiry into Higher Education—the Dearing Committee—to extend it.

My Department is also supporting four feasibility studies on the development of graduate apprenticeships. These will explore the potential for creating opportunities for undergraduates and postgraduates that combine academic study with work-based learning.

For the future, the Government are considering their response to the many other recommendations of the Dearing Committee intended to increase higher education's responsiveness to the needs of its non-academic stakeholders. We will announce our decisions soon.

University Degrees

Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what percentage of university degrees awarded were first class honours in (a) 1967, (b) 1977, (c) 1987 and (d) the latest year for which figures are available. [15316]

Dr. Howells: The available data are given in the table.

First degree graduates[1] in the United Kingdom who were awarded first class honours

Year	Percentage awarded first class honours
1967	[2]6.7
1977	[3]5.8
1987	[3]6.1
1996	[4]7.0

[1] Excluding the Open University.
[2] Former University Funding Council institutions only.
[3] All higher and further education institutions.
[4] All higher education institutions.

Standards in Public Life

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment take account of recommendations contained in the Second Report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life (Cm. 3270). [16362]

Dr. Howells: A summary of the actions taken so far on the Second Report by the Department, its funding and regulating bodies, and by local public spending bodies is contained in Appendices 2 and 9 of the Fourth Report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life "Review of the Standards of Conduct in Executive NDPBs, NHS Trusts and Local Public Spending Bodies".

The Department is considering the observations made in paragraphs 12–14 of the Fourth Report and where further steps can be taken to improve its openness and accountability and that of its executive NDPBs, including funding and regulating bodies, of its local public spending bodies and of its public bodies generally. It will also be reflecting on the Cabinet Office consultation paper, issued this month, entitled "Opening Up Quangos".

HOME DEPARTMENT

Tagging Orders (Norfolk)

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many tagging orders (a) have been issued and (b) are currently in operation in Norfolk. [15760]

Ms Quin: On 12 November 1997, a total of 186 curfew orders, enforced by electronic monitoring, had been imposed by the courts, of which 50 were still in force.

Probation Officers

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time probation officers there were in Wales in each year since 1985; and if he will make a statement. [15729]

Ms Quin: The number of full-time probation officers (Wales: 31 December) is as follows:

1987: 322
1988: 324
1989: 332
1990: 339
1991: 359
1992: 357
1993: 366
1994: 371
1995: 354
1996: 357.

The numbers include probation officers seconded to work in prisons.

Prisons

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many new prisons are under construction; and if he will make a statement. [15744]

Ms Quin: One: Her Majesty's Prison Lowdham Grange in Nottinghamshire. Construction at Her Majesty's Prison Parc, Bridgend, South Wales, which is due to open on 17 November, is scheduled to be completed on 21 November. Construction at Her Majesty's Prison Altcourse, Fazakerley, Merseyside is scheduled to be formally certified as completed on 14 November.

Border Controls

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if, pursuant to his answer of 29 October, Official Report, column 823, concerning border controls, what powers he will possess on activation of the Protocol of the Amsterdam treaty in respect of (a) citizens of the European Union and (b) nationals of member states of the European Economic Area, additional to verification of identity by personal travel documents. [15289]

Ms Quin: Powers for immigration officers to examine identity documents of passengers arriving in the United Kingdom are contained in Schedule 2 to the Immigration Act 1971. Schedule 2 applies to the examination of European Economic Area (EEA) nationals in accordance with Article 20(2)(e) of the Immigration (European Economic Area) Order 1994. Article 3 of that Order provides that (subject to article 15(1) of the Order) an EEA national will be admitted to the United Kingdom on production, on arrival, of a valid national identity card or passport issued by another EEA State and, if required, proof that he is the family member of an EEA national. "EEA nationals" includes all nationals of the European Economic Area, including European Community nationals, except British citizens. No new powers are conferred by the Protocol, which instead confirms the United Kingdom's (and Ireland's) rights to conduct checks on persons at the internal frontiers of the European Union.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set out the detailed procedures in place for processing asylum seekers on their arrival at United Kingdom ports of entry. [15085]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The procedures in place at ports of entry are designed to meet the United Kingdom's obligations under the 1951 United Nations Convention relating to the Status of Refugees while minimising the scope for abuse of the asylum process. These procedures allow for the prompt identification of asylum seekers; information to be provided about the asylum process and the agencies that can offer assistance; and the asylum claim to be forwarded to the Asylum Directorate of the Home Office at the earliest opportunity.

All procedures are kept under review and revised as necessary. More generally, a study of all aspects of the asylum process across Government is currently being carried out.

Sex Offenders

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to allocate additional resources to treatment programmes for sex offenders, with special reference to offenders who are on short sentences and are released from prison without

Ms Quin [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Prison Service has made available in the current financial year an additional £1 million in support of offending behaviour programmes, including sex offender treatment programmes.

There are no plans at present to devote additional Prison Service resources to programmes aimed at sex offenders sentenced to short terms of imprisonment because they would not be in prison for long enough after sentencing for them to complete a meaningful programme.

The Government intend to include provisions in the Crime and Disorder Bill to give the courts power to impose extended periods of post-release supervision on sex-offenders, including those who receive sentences of 12 months or less. The Government acknowledge that these proposals will have resource implications for probation services.

E-Mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the Answer of 10 November from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15878]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 13 November 1997]: No Minister in my Department at present has an e-mail address.

Correspondence sent to the Home Office e-mail address, ho.gen@gtnet.gov.uk, is forward to the appropriate senior officials as necessary. Links to the e-mail addresses of the Research and Statistics Directorate and the Police Research Group are provided from the appropriate areas of the Home Office web site, www.homeoffice.gov.uk, and messages can be marked for the attention of senior officials.

Chief executives of agencies for which my Department is responsible do not have individual e-mail addresses. However, appropriately headed messages sent to the Fire Service College, moreton@campus.bt.com, will be forwarded to the chief executive, and a feedback form on the Forensic Science Service website, www.fss.org.uk, can also be addressed to the chief executive.

Prisons (Healthcare Managers)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he intends to take to ensure that all prisons have a healthcare manager, following the report of HM Chief Inspector of Prisons in 1994; and if he will make a statement. [16368]

Ms Quin: Figures for 1996–97 indicate that health care managers have been appointed in at least 122 Prison Service establishments. Governors are not obliged to follow any particular model in setting up their management teams. However, the issue of health care managers, among others, will be examined by a joint Prison Service/Department of Health Working Group which has been set up in response to the 1996 Report by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons "Patient or Prisoner?", to look at the whole question of the future

Telephone Tapping

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are required to be complied with before (a) the police and (b) M15 can gain access to information generated within the System X telephone system in respect of call origin and destination related information. [15710]

Mr. Straw: Section 45 of the Telecommunications Act 1984, as amended by the Interception of Communications Act 1985, provides that public telecommunications operators commit an offence if they disclose any information concerning the use made of their telecommunications services by any other person except where disclosures are made for the prevention or detection of crime, for the purposes of any criminal proceedings, in the interests of national security or in pursuance of the order of a court. It is for the individual operator to satisfy himself that one or more of those exceptions apply before releasing any such information at the request of the police or the Security Service.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make unauthorised surveillance by electronic devices a criminal offence. [15695]

Mr. Michael: To introduce a general offence outlawing unauthorised surveillance by an electronic device would raise particular technical and definitional problems. Remedies are already available to take action against those who carry out surveillance which transgresses the current criminal law, for example if they commit theft or criminal damage, behave in a threatening or violent way or where there is harassment. Furthermore, the act of simple trespass is a civil tort.

There are also offences under the Interception of Communications Act 1985 and the Wireless Telegraphy Act 1967 to regulate the use of certain techniques and methods. On the other hand, there are legitimate uses of electronic surveillance by other than law enforcement agencies which are of benefit to society and the safety of the public. The use of closed circuit television in shopping centres, car parks, on housing estates and inside offices, banks, shops and public buildings is generally welcomed by the public and accepted as necessary for crime prevention.

The media would argue that cameras and other equipment are an essential component of investigative journalism and that any prohibition on their use would be a form of censorship. To regulate the use of all such equipment would create a massive administrative burden. Existing offences under the criminal and civil law already provide a degree of cover and redress for infringements of privacy by the use of electronic surveillance. Incorporation of the European Convention on Human Rights will also impact upon this issue.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions since 1967 and for how long (a) Category 3 and (b) Category 2 phone numbers have been disconnected; at what locations; and for what reasons. [15778]

Mr. George Howarth: Category 3 disconnections have been made when the public telephone network has been severely damaged (storms, 1987 and 1990), heavily overloaded (Hungerford, 1987), or malfunctioning telephone exchanges (Welford on Avon, Chadford, 1993). The action was taken by the telecommunications operator to ensure that essential users could use the network while restoration of service was being carried out.

Central Government have never invoked the authority to disconnect Category 2 phone numbers.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances MI5 undertakes telephone tapping without first having obtained a warrant. [15718]

Mr. Straw: Under no circumstances are communications intercepted in the course of their transmission by means of a public telecommunications system by, or at the request of, the Security Service without the authority of a warrant.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what sum was paid out of public funds to British Telecom for each year since 1986 in respect of work carried out in telephone tapping services. [15726]

Mr. Straw: Interception of Communications is an important weapon in the fight against serious crime and threats to public safety. It has been the policy of successive governments not to disclose information which might assist criminals, terrorists and hostile foreign powers by revealing the extent of our capabilities in relation to interception.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the warrants authorising telephone taps for each year since 1986 were still in force on 1 November. [15716]

Mr. Straw: The available information is published in the annual reports of the Commissioner appointed under the Interception of Communications Act 1985 which lists the number of warrants issued by the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Scotland in the course of each year, and the numbers of warrants in force at the end of each year. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will make a statement on the discussions and decisions regarding surveillance of telecommunications undertaken within the EU since 23 November 1996; [15682]

(2) what action has been taken since 23 November 1996 in respect of the provision of access for law enforcement agencies to (a) satellite-based communications and (b) other communications; and if he will make a statement. [15683]

Mr. Straw: On 23 November 1995, a Memorandum of Understanding concerning international user requirements for the lawful use of interception by law enforcement agencies was signed by all members of the European Union and Norway. A copy of the Memorandum was placed in the Library on 3 March 1997.

Separately from this, the United Kingdom is working with European Union member states on a draft Convention on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters between the member states of the European Union. This includes draft articles relating to the interception of satellite and terrestrial communications. The Convention is primarily designed to improve existing arrangements for co-operation between judicial authorities in European Union member states under the 1959 Council of Europe Convention on mutual legal assistance. On 28 October, the Government placed before the scrutiny committees of both Houses, and in the Library, copies of the latest draft of the Convention.

Prisons (HIV-AIDS)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he intends to take to ensure that all prison establishments have a multi-disciplinary management group dealing with HIV-AIDS; and if he will make a statement. [16369]

Ms Quin: It is Prison Service policy that every prison should have a multi-disciplinary AIDS Management Team. Teams from 125 establishments have so far attended centrally organised training courses as part of an ongoing programme. The content of the training has now been revised to include other communicable diseases such as Hepatitis B and C, and tuberculosis. The Prison Service recently appointed an outside agency to develop further and deliver the training programme, and every establishment has been invited to send a team.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of prison establishments in England and Wales provide basic awareness training for prisoners in respect of HIV-Aids. [16370]

Ms Quin: All Prison Service establishments are expected to provide basic awareness training for prisoners in HIV as part of their induction programme (usually within the first week of their arrival). In addition, all establishments are expected to have at least two trained HIV counsellors to deal with any concerns inmates may have during their stay in prison.

MI5

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what are the mechanisms for authorising the vetting of an individual by MI5; [15713]

(2) how many persons were vetted by MI5 in the last year for which figures are available; [15714]

(3) if material collected by MI5 as part of vetting operations is always destroyed where those vetted are deemed not to be a security risk. [15715]

Mr. Straw: Security vetting is carried out in accordance with the policy set out by the then Prime Minister in reply to a Question from Sir Anthony Durant (then the Member for Reading, West) on 15 December 1994, Official Report, columns 764–66. It is for Departments to assess which posts, by virtue of their assess to sensitive Government assets, should be subject to security vetting. Before any vetting is carried out, the individual is informed of the processes involved and gives his or her consent to the relevant checks being made.

As the policy makes clear, a check against Security Service records is a standard element of the vetting process. Apart from the checks made on individuals at the request of Departments, the Security Service is responsible only for the vetting of its own staff and contractors. Information obtained during the vetting process is retained for management purposes and to facilitate periodic vetting reviews.

It is not the Government's policy to provide details of the work of the Security Service, including the numbers of persons subject to vetting checks.

Prisons (Pharmacists)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of prison establishments in England and Wales have a pharmacist employed on the premises. [16371]

Ms Quin: Thirty four Prison Service establishments have a resident pharmacist. These establishments generally act as pharmacy cluster centres, providing services to a further 67 prisons or Young Offender Institutions. Thirty one establishments obtain pharmacy drugs or services through a variety of arrangements with the private sector or the National Health Service.

Firearms Surrender (Compensation)

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the proposed timescale for the payment of compensation for the surrender of firearms prohibited by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 to those who surrendered guns before 30 September. [16367]

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has to date been the average period between the surrendering of firearms under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 and the payment of compensation to the former owners of such firearms; to what factors he attributes delays in the making of payments; and what proposals he has to expedite the payment of such compensation. [15886]

Mr. Michael: Claims submitted under options A and B of the compensation scheme are being processed in 12 to 14 weeks. The more complicated option C claims will be processed when the bulk of these have been cleared.

More than 37,800 compensation claims and ex gratia applications under the small calibre pistol scheme have been received since 1 July, and the volume is such that some delays are inevitable. More than 14,200 payments have been made to a value of more than £17 million.

It has always been recognised that the pressure of claims received over a short hand-in period was bound to lead to processing delays, and claimants were advised that they may have to wait several weeks before receiving any payment. Despite that, an additional factor in delay is the burden of telephone enquiries about the progress of claims. A recent survey showed that the Home Office was receiving around 2,000 such calls a week.

As I promised in July, everything possible is being done to process claims in the shortest time possible. For instance, weekend overtime is being worked and staff have been temporarily promoted to boost examiner numbers. I wish to record my thanks to everyone who has contributed to the efforts to date including officials and the police officers involved.

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many firearms have so far been surrendered under the provisions of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997; and how many of those firearms have been (a) melted down, (b) otherwise destroyed, (c) sold in (i) the United Kingdom or (ii) overseas and (d) otherwise handled. [15885]

Mr. Michael: Further to my statement of 3 November, Official Report, column 56, just over 142,000 handguns were surrendered to police forces during the three month period which ended on 30 September.

The vast majority of these firearms are being destroyed under local arrangements in each police force area once the claimant has received compensation from the Home Office Firearms Compensation Section. Some forces have begun destroying firearms where the related claim has already been met, though no central record of actual destructions is being kept. None of the surrendered firearms will be sold either within the United Kingdom or abroad. A small minority of firearms may be retained by police forces for training purposes, and some by museums for public display.

Exports Initiative

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the companies which have benefited from the Home Office Exports Initiative. [16212]

Mr. Michael: During the period of the Exports Initiative, the Home Office Exports Promoter is known to have had dealings with the companies listed. The list is not exhaustive as not all contacts will have been recorded. The Exports Promoter also worked closely with the main trade associations in the policing and security sector who between them have over 500 member companies. It has proved difficult to show what actual export orders have resulted directly from the initiative. It is a matter for the companies concerned to assess what benefits they derived from the Initiative, but I am told that companies proved unwilling to tell officials at the Home Office whether any orders had resulted from trade events etc.

A1 Security and Electrical Ltd.
Aadver International
Adams Electronics
Agema Infrared Systems Ltd.
AIGIS Ltd.
Alexander Manufacturing (UK) Ltd.
Amcomm International Ltd.
AS and E
Aspley Identifying Solutions
Audiotel International Ltd.
Baxall Security Ltd.
Birmingham Gunmakers ltd.
Bleinheim Exhibitions
Bastion (North) Security Ltd.
Bramah Security
Broadcast and Surveillance Systems Ltd.
Camlock Systems PLC
Canford Audio
Cardkey Systems
CDR International
Chameleon Management Systems
Chubb PLC
Corps of Commissionaires Management Ltd.
CQR Security Components Ltd.
Duncan Advanced PLC
EEV Ltd.
Eurosat Distribution (Scotland) Ltd.
Expo Promotions
Foster and Freeman Ltd.
GB Information Management
Geografix Ltd.

Glover Webb Ltd
Grazeby Security
Group 4 Ltd.
Helmet Integrated Systems Ltd.
Hiatt and Company Ltd.
Horn Ltd.
Hourglass Publishing
ICL
IES
Imagebase Technology Ltd.
International Trade and Exhibitions Ltd.
Ion Track Instruments
Island Security Systems
Ivel Developments Ltd.
Jarvis Engineering and Technology Ltd.
K-Tech (UK) Ltd.
Keygrove Marketing Ltd.
Kinetic Group Ltd.
Labelex Exhibitions Ltd.
Latin American Trade and Investment Centre
Latin American Trade Advisory Group
Lightweight Body Armour Ltd.
Litton Data Systems
Martin Ison Associates Ltd.
Maxon Europe Ltd.
Mobile Radio Ltd.
Neal Recording Systems Ltd.
Notifier
NTL Radio Communications
Ogier Electronics
PAC International Ltd
PAFEC Ltd
Photon Security Services Ltd.
PJ Consultancy Services
Police Aviation Services
Probe FX (UK) Ltd
Public Access Terminals Ltd.
Pyronix Ltd.
Racal Acoustics Ltd.
Racal Messenger Ltd.
Racal Radio Ltd.
Racal Recorders
Racal-Comseq Ltd.
Rapiscan Security Products
Recall Ltd.
Redfern Consultancy
Remsdaq
RFR Marketing Ltd.
Rover Group
Scanna MSC Ltd.
SDA Consultants
Security Defence Technologies Ltd.
Selectamark Security Systems PLC
Sensor Electronics Ltd.
Sensormatic
Shepherd Surveillance Solutions
Simoco Telecommunication Ltd.
Sonic Communications (International) Ltd.
Symonds Group
Symonds Travers Morgan
Task International Ltd.
Texecom Ltd.
The Archer Group Ltd.
W. L. Gore and Associates (UK) Ltd.

EU Conventions

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 1 July, Official Report, columns 74–76, concerning the draft convention of the European Community concerning rules applying to the crossing of external common frontiers of the community, when the convention was published by the Commission; what consultation with member states took place prior to its publication; what steps have been taken by Her Majesty's Government to send copies of the draft convention to bodies or persons in the United Kingdom whose duties or obligations will be affected by its operation and requirements; if he will publish a white paper containing the changes which it will require in the existing powers available to the Government or Parliament; and what final powers the convention provides for the European Court. [15573]

Ms Quin: A revised draft External Frontiers Convention was presented to the Council by the Commission on 10 December 1993; a draft Convention had earlier been under consideration by member states of the European Union under the ad hoc arrangements for co-operation on immigration and asylum which preceded the coming into force of the Treaty on European Union (TEU).

The Government are not aware of any specific consultations on the Commission's proposals but it was based on the earlier text of the draft Convention subject to the changes brought about by the TEU. The Commission's proposal for a Convention was deposited in Parliament on 1 February 1994, together with an Explanatory Note; the draft Convention which preceded it was deposited in Parliament in July 1992. The Commission's proposal was published in the Official Journal on 15 January 1994 and is publicly available. The Government did not formally consult on the Convention but the Government's Explanatory Note set out the legal changes which implementation of the External Frontiers Convention would require. It would not be appropriate to publish any more detailed proposals in the absence of final agreement on the text. Jurisdiction for the European Court of Justice remains an unresolved matter.

The draft External Frontiers Convention has been blocked since 1991 because of Spain's objections to its application to Gibraltar, and no discussions of substance have taken place within the European Union since June 1996 during the Italian Presidency. However, arrangements have now been agreed allowing the Schengen countries to pass measures within the European Union framework relating to their external frontiers, while the United Kingdom and Ireland continue to operate the Common Travel Area. Given these changes, secured at the Amsterdam Summit, there is now little impetus behind the draft External Frontiers Convention.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 1 July, Official Report, columns 74–76, in respect of the draft conventions of the European Community concerning (i) matrimonial matters, (ii) co-operation between customs administrations and (iii) information on asylum applicants (a) when each was published, (b) what steps he has taken to forward the proposals to interested bodies or persons, (c) what matters raised by Her Majesty's Government in respect of the earlier consultation have not been incorporated in the draft, (d) when the texts were placed before Parliament, (e) what procedures will take place in Parliament prior to ratification, (f) what major changes in the rights or obligations of United Kingdom citizens are implied by the drafts, (g) what powers will be vested in the European Court in either preliminary or final judgments or rulings and (h) what memoranda he will publish. [15570]

Ms Quin: The information requested is as follows:

(i) Draft Convention on Jurisdiction and Enforcement in Family Matters

This draft European Union Convention, on which my right hon. and learned Friend the Lord Chancellor has the policy lead, has not been published in the Official Journal but was submitted to the House of Lords Select Committee on the European Communities in May, together with an Explanatory Note. The Select Committee consulted a wide range of interested academic and professional individuals and organisations and published the evidence it collected in its report (HL Paper 19, printed on 22 July 1997). The matters raised in the memorandum submitted to the Select Committee by the Lord Chancellor's Department and the Scottish Court Administration are still under negotiation with other member states. The enactment of primary legislation will be needed before the Convention can be ratified.

The draft Convention has the following main purposes; first, to establish grounds of jurisdiction in relation to proceedings for divorce, nullity and judicial separation and orders relating to children made in those proceedings; secondly, to make provision relating to concurrent matrimonial procedings in different jurisdictions; and thirdly, to provide for the recognition and enforcement of the relevant decrees and orders. Whether, and, if so, to what extent, the European Court of Justice should be given jurisdiction in relation to the draft Convention is a matter which is still under consideration and negotiation with other member states. The Lord Chancellor's Department and the Scottish Courts Administration will publish a memorandum on the draft Convention before it is finally agreed; the timing of such publication with depend on the future progress of negotiations.

(ii) Draft Convention on mutual assistance and co-operation between customs authorities (Naples II)

The text of this draft European Union Convention is still under negotiation and has therefore not yet been published in the Official Journal. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer has the policy lead and intends to deposit the latest text and an Explanatory Note with Parliament shortly. It will be for the scrutiny committees to decide whether to call for evidence from interested bodies or persons. The Government have been fully involved in negotiations concerned with the drafting of the convention and, where appropriate, have sought changes to the text.

If agreement is reached on the Convention, it will be tabled in Parliament in accordance with the Ponsonby rule for ratifying international agreements. The draft Convention does not provide for changes in the rights or obligations of United Kingdom citizens. The powers to be invested in the European Court of Justice in respect of the draft Convention are still under consideration.

(iii) Draft Convention regarding the establishment of the EURODAC system for the comparison of fingerprints of asylum applicants

The first version of this draft European Union Convention was brought forward by the Italian Presidency on 14 March 1996. The text, which remains the subject of negotiation under the Third Pillar of the Treaty of European Union, has not been published in the Official Journal but was deposited with Parliament on 6 June 1996, together with an Explanatory Note. The text has so far not been the subject of any wider consultation in the United Kingdom. The Luxembourg Presidency recently forwarded the draft convention to the European Parliament for an opinion.

If adopted by the Council, the draft Convention would be laid before Parliament in the usual way prior to ratification and Parliamentary approval sought for any necessary changes to existing legislation. The inclusion of provisions relating to the European Court of Justice has yet to be determined.

IRA Prisoners (Transfers)

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will indicate the time-frame within which the transfer of IRA prisoners to the Republic of Ireland, to which he has agreed in principle, will take place. [16475]

Ms Quin: Determination of repatriation requests requires detailed consideration by both the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland. Repatriation cannot take place until all parties, including the prisoner, have given their formal consent. It is not possible to specify how long this process may take in any individual case.

Prisoner Tariffs

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department following the letter of 9 July from the Northern Ireland Office to Mr. Martin McGuinness, when he will announce the tariffs for (a) Joe O'Connell, (b) Harry Duggan, (c) Hugh Doherty and (d) Eddie Bolton. [16474]

Ms Quin: The four prisoners in question will be informed of decisions concerning their tariffs as soon as possible.

Fair Trade (Coffee and Tea)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the oral Statement by the Secretary of State for International Development, Official Report, 5 November, column 332, if he will instruct officials to serve coffee and tea furnished by suppliers who adhere to fair trade standards in his Department. [15492]

Mr. Straw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer which my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave on 13 November Official Report, column 617. All procurement decisions in my Department are based on the Government's policy of value for money. However, we are making inquiries across the Office with regard to the implications of offering such "fair trade" products.

Telephone Preference Scheme

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who has the authority to order the disconnection of Category 3 phone numbers under the Telephone Preference Scheme. [15777]

Mr. George Howarth: Central Government have the authority to order the disconnection of Category 3 phone numbers under the Telephone Preference Scheme in response to a situation affecting defence or national security.

Telecommunications operators can also disconnect Category 3 phone numbers to provide assured access to the public network for essential users in the event of a heavy overload or damage to the public network.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the allocation of telephone numbers under Categories 1 to 3 of the Telephone Preference Scheme was last reviewed; and by whom. [15780]

Mr. George Howarth: The allocation of telephone numbers in the three categories was reviewed in 1996 by an Inter-departmental Working Party with representatives from the Home Office, Cabinet Office, Department of Trade and Industry, Ministry of Defence and Public Telecommunication Operators.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the companies and organisations in (a) Category 1 and (b) Category 2 under the Telephone Preference Scheme. [15779]

Mr. George Howarth: The Telephone Preference Scheme Category 1 applies to Central Government emergency services, local authorities, the military and the utilities, all of which have a key role in an emergency. Category 2 applies to all public call boxes and coin operated telephones. It is not possible to provide a full list within the two categories without incurring disproportionate cost.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Cotter: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many copies of the "EMU—Practical Guidelines for Business" (July 1997) have been circulated to date (a) in total and (b) to firms in the small business sector. [14728]

Mrs. Roche: About 50,000 copies of the booklet "EMU—Practical Information for Business", published by HM Treasury, have been distributed.

Small businesses have been targeted in the distribution of this booklet.

Fireworks

Mr. Goggins: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will publish the amount of Government expenditure on firework safety campaigns for each year since 1979. [15532]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: The cost of fireworks safety campaigns between 1979 and 1983 cannot be produced without incurring disproportionate cost. The figures from 1984 are as follows:

	£000
1984	35
1985	40
1986	51
1987	78
1988	57
1989	64
1990	111
1991	74
1992	84
1993	160
1994	191
1995	185
1996	284
1997	[1]350

[1] Latest estimate.

Loan Guarantee Scheme

Mr. Geraint Davies: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what proportion of businesses applying for the DTI Loan Guarantee Scheme have been declared eligible during the last year for which figures are available. [15319]

Mrs. Roche: No figures relating to the proportion of applications declared eligible are available. All applications are made direct to lenders and no national records of approaches to lenders are kept.

Property Sales (Coal Mining Searches)

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what sums were collected by the Coal Authority in respect of coal mining searches on property sales in each of the last three years; and in each year what these were as a percentage of the Authority's total income. [15733]

Mr. Battle: The following table shows the Coal Authority's turnover and operating surplus from the provision of coal mining reports and records for the past three financial years, and their relationship to the Authority's total turnover and operating surplus or deficit.

	Turnover			Operating surplus/(deficit)
	Mining reports and records £ million	Coal Authority £ million	Percentage	Mining reports and records £ million	Coal Authority £ million	Percentage
1994–95	1.749	22.843	7.7	0.538	(3.566)	—
1995–96	4.796	74.834	6.4	1.518	27.187	5.6
1996–97	5.734	55.807	10.3	1.506	22.203	6.8

Note:
The figure for turnover from provision of mining reports and records includes reports provided in respect of house and land purchase, development proposals and infrastructure developments, and for access to geological and other records held by the Coal Authority. The Authority's mining records and reports service is required to cover its costs, and adjustments are made to the cost of the service to reflect this requirement. Following the computerisation of the reports service, fees for each mining report were reduced by 17.5 per cent. on 1 June 1997.
Source:
The Coal Authority Annual Report and Accounts, 1994–95, 1995–96 and 1996–97.

Coal

Caroline Flint: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what action she is taking to expand the markets for United Kingdom coal. [15674]

Mr. Battle: The Government believe that there is scope for expanding the European sales of United Kingdom coal which is by far the lowest cost production in Europe. To this end, the Government are vigorously urging the Commission to block the subsidies to German and Spanish coal producers that create barriers to 1998 sales of United Kingdom steam coal, anthracite and manufactured smokeless fuels in the European Coal and Steel Community.

Other steps we have taken to encourage the continuation of markets for coal include:

Setting up a review of the Electricity Pool.

Encouraging the generators to offer their unwanted coal-powered stations for sale to RJB Mining or other coal producers.

Encouraging the regulator to prevent generators from passing on excessive costs under the early take-or-pay gas contracts to ensure that there is no uneven playing field.

Introducing the Fossil Fuel Levy Bill which will remove the advantage that nuclear and imported electricity from France currently enjoys.

We are also working hard to find ways to support clean coal technology.

Inward Investment

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the United Kingdom maximum limit on the amount of grant that can be offered in an assisted area or development area. [15761]

Mrs. Beckett: The maximum grant ceiling in the UK is 75 per cent. of the discounted fixed capital costs for qualifying projects in areas designated under Article 92(3)a of the Treaty of the EC. This ceiling is currently applicable to the whole of Northern Ireland. The maximum grant in Development Areas under Article 92(3)c is 30 per cent.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what mechanisms have been created to avoid competitive bidding between United Kingdom regions to attract new investment. [15762]

Mrs. Beckett: All three operating departments have subscribed to internal rules designed to avoid bidding up. There are also procedures for central handling of major cases where appropriate—for example, if more than one site is being considered.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade in what circumstances her Department (a) sees the papers, (b) influences decisions and (c) has a veto on inward investment packages offered by Wales and Scotland. [15820]

Mrs. Beckett: The territorial departments consult my Department on a range of matters, for example the market conditions in an industry, when relevant. The territorial departments will also consult my Department when more than one location is being considered because there are arrangements for a co-ordinating approach to dealing with the prospective inward investor. Decisions on inward investment packages offered by Scotland and Wales are matters for my right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Scotland and the Secretary of State for Wales.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what guidelines she has issued to bring investment packages offered by Scotland and Wales into line with England. [15860]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 13 November 1997]: Regional Selective Assistance scheme grants operate to common guidelines applied across Great Britain. In Northern Ireland, grants are available under the Selective Financial Assistance scheme, which operates on similar principles. I am discussing with my colleagues how best to ensure common UK criteria when dealing with the full packages of support offered to inward investors.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if the Secretary of State for Scotland has to submit investment packages to her Department before he is able to confirm them. [15884]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 13 November 1997]: No.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what criteria she will apply to determine the size of grants for regional inward investment. [15882]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 13 November 1997]: Applications for Regional Selective Assistance (RSA) grant are received from both domestic and foreign companies of all sizes, and are assessed against the same strict criteria. Eligible projects must create new or safeguard existing employment in the Assisted Area, be viable and contribute to both the regional and national economy. The project must be additional; that it would not go ahead in the assisted area unless RSA grant is forthcoming. The amount of grant awarded is always judged to be the minimum necessary for the project to go ahead, and is related to the fixed capital costs of a project and on the number of jobs expected to be created or safeguarded.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if the Invest in Britain Bureau has the power to vet regional development body grants and investment packages. [15881]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Invest in Britain Bureau, which is jointly managed by the DTI and the FCO markets the UK abroad as an investment location and co-ordinates a regional delivery infrastructure, providing grant to 10 English Regional Development Organisations for an agreed programme of inward investment promotion activities. It does not have the power to vet Regional Selective Assistance packages since that is not its role but it works closely with Regional Assistance Directorate in the DTI, who are responsible for RSA policy.

Car Boot Sales

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the impact of car boot sales on local businesses. [15690]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: Car boot sales do not compete with other retail outlets, but I am aware that many people, particularly charities and voluntary organisations, benefit from them. Consideration of licensing of this activity is the responsibility of DETR.

Action 2000

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the terms of reference for Action 2000. [16134]

Mrs. Roche: Under the Action 2000 initiative, there will be an Advisory Board to assist the Chairman in providing the advice detailed in the list of his responsibilities, and a separate company to carry out day-to-day operations, including implementation of a programme of activities. The activities should be based on an assessment by the Board of what is needed to minimise the extent of failure with significant consequences by private sector business systems, including both IT systems and electronically controlled equipment using embedded software. In particular, the assessment should assess what external help businesses need, what help is already available from commercial or other sources, and what more needs to be done. It will also identify organisations which can participate in delivering additional help, and indicate where some element of public money is needed to achieve this.

The activities are expected to fall under the following broad headings:

Promotion—activities to promote the importance of the issue and signpost help,

Advice and Guidance—identifying and providing available best practice advice and guidance,

Assessment Schemes—providing self-assessment conformance tools for users, consultants and suppliers,

People and Skills—develop and implement ways to address the current shortage of skilled IT staff,

Tools and Techniques—make available details of tools, techniques, products and services,

Practical help and advice for small and medium sized businesses.

One of the tasks of the Company will be to encourage businesses and other organisations to participate in devising or delivering the activities which are needed.

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if the post of Chairman for Action 2000 was advertised; and how many job applications were received. [16135]

Mrs. Roche: The post was not advertised, because the Government wished to appoint a Chairman as rapidly as possible in view of the urgency of the problem.

Telescopes

Mr. Pound: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which Ministers have visited the Isaac Newton Group of Telescopes since the inauguration in 1985. [16436]

Mr. Battle: My hon. Friend the Minister for Competition and Consumer Affairs visited the telescopes on 31 October. I am not aware of any other Ministerial visits to the telescopes since they were inaugurated.

Mr. Pound: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will estimate the amount of United Kingdom Government expenditure on the Isaac Newton Group of Telescopes at the Instituto de Astrofisica de Canarias. [16421]

Mr. Battle: The Isaac Newton Group of Telescopes is a joint venture between the UK and the Netherlands. In 1997–98, the Joint UK/Netherlands Budget was £2.247 million of which the UK provided 80 per cent. The UK also provided support for staff salaries, new instrumentation and research making the total UK contribution £5.533 million. The total UK contribution over the period from 1992–93 to 1996–97 was £26.134 million. Figures for previous years are not readily available.

Textphones

Mr. Burstow: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will introduce statutory regulations to ensure the greater provision of public textphones for deaf and hard of hearing people. [15929]

Mr. Battle: The number of public textphones is on the increase and BT plans to increase the numbers from the current level of 90 to approximately 400 by the year 2000. Furthermore Oftel plan to launch a public consultation later this year dedicated to finding ways, including licence modifications if necessary, of improving telecommunications services for people with disabilities. The issue of the provision of public textphones will be raised as part of this consultation. My Department therefore has no plans at present to introduce such statutory regulations to ensure that public textphones are more widely available.

Energy Efficiency

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will take steps to enable the gas and electricity regulators to authorise the introduction of a levy on all consumers' bills to fund energy efficiency programmes; and if she will make a statement. [16171]

Mr. Battle: This issue falls within the remit of the Review of Utility Regulation, which is considering whether changes are required to the existing systems of regulation in telecommunications, electricity, gas and water, and which will report to Ministers by the end of the year. If we conclude that change should be contemplated, a consultation paper setting out the options will be published early next year.

Travel Trade Monopoly Inquiry

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when she plans to publish the findings from the Monopolies and Mergers Commission's travel trade monopoly inquiry. [16216]

Mrs. Beckett: The Monopolies and Mergers Commission (MMC) report on the travel trade will be published as quickly as is practicable. I cannot comment on the likely publication date of the MMC report or its contents. This information is market sensitive and must remain confidential. Copies of the report will be laid before Parliament at the same time as it is published.

European Legislation

Mr. Howard: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she has asked the European Commission for full impact statements on the proposed items of European Union Legislation relating to (a) intellectual property rights, (b) financial services (distance contracts), (c) electronic waste, (d) air quality, (e) national emissions ceilings and (f) electric sockets, plugs and bases for 16 amp-250 volts for domestic uses. [14201]

Mrs. Roche [holding answer 3 November 1997]: The Government encourage the Commission to prepare impact assessments where there may be a significant impact on business. We are working with the Commission and other Member States to improve the system of impact assessment at European levels.

There are, among the policy areas cited, current legislative proposals in the areas of intellectual property and emissions and air quality, where the Commission has prepared impact assessments. In intellectual property rights, the UK opposes the draft directive on artists' re-sale rights and is pressing the Commission to consider more fully the impact upon business. In the area of air quality and vehicle emissions, the Commission has produced impact assessment work for the proposals currently being negotiated. In the other areas cited, electronic waste, distance selling of financial services and the domestic usage of electrical plugs and sockets, there are not published Commission legislative proposals at present. However, we understand that the Commission is preparing a draft Directive on the distance selling of financial services, which features in the Action Plan for completion of the Single Market. The Commission has not included any proposals for electronic waste or for domestic plugs and sockets in its 1997 Work Programme.

Post Office (Scottish Powercards)

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the impact on the business of small rural-post offices of the withdrawal of Scottish Powercard sales. [15355]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 12 November 1997]: Assessments of the viability of sub-post offices are a matter for individual subpostmasters and Post Office Counters Limited.

Working Time Directive

Mr. Dawson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress is being made in implementing the EU Working Time Directive (1993). [15767]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 13 November 1997]: We are currently finalising our proposals for implementation of the Directive.

Manufacturing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what measures are being taken to ensure that future growth in the United Kingdom manufacturing sector does not lag behind that of the rest of the economy. [15475]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 13 November 1997]: Our prosperity depends on creating a modern economy—strong in manufacturing and services. To help build a modern economy the Department of Trade and Industry is promoting competition and consumer protection; seeking high standards and fairness at work; and looking to the long-term in science and technology. This agenda is being advanced in partnership with firms in all sectors.

Industrial Underperformance

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what criteria she used to determine which industries underperformed in the United Kingdom. [16147]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: I have made no such determination.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what rate of return on capital she uses to enable her to distinguish between competitive companies and companies in need of improvement. [16144]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: I do not distinguish between competitive companies and companies in need of improvement on the basis of rate of return on capital.

New Taxes (Advice)

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what advice she gave to the Chancellor in respect of the effects of new taxes on businesses, on cash flow and investment levels. [16145]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: I maintain regular contact with the Chancellor about the impact on business, including on cash flow and investment, so that this can be taken into account in decisions on taxation and other aspects of economic policy.

Coal Industry

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has to meet miners' representatives to discuss (a) the coal industry and (b) proposed pit closures. [16140]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: Ministers have had a number of meetings with miners' representatives to discuss the present position in the coal industry.

Euro

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate she has made of the costs to British business of converting to using the euro (i) as a second domestic currency in the transitional period and (ii) as the sole legal currency in the United Kingdom. [16146]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to the reply my hon. Friend the Economic Secretary to the Treasury gave to the right hon. Member for Wells (Mr. Heathcoat-Amory) on 11 November, Official Report, column 512.

Sports Sponsorship

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which tobacco companies have requested a meeting with ministers to discuss sports sponsorship; and which have been granted such a meeting. [16141]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: None.

Know-how Fund

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the President of the Board of Trade in the last two financial years, how many know-how fund projects were awarded to (a) companies, (b) large partnerships or institutions and (c) individuals or small partnerships; in each case how many were based in Scotland; and what was the total value in categories (a) to (c). [13978]

Mr. Foulkes: I have been asked to reply.

Information on know-how consultancy contracts is not recorded in the categories sought and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Information can be provided in two categories: corporate (companies, partnerships and institutions—small and large) and non-corporate (self-employed individuals) contracts. This is set out below:

Year	Number	Value (£) of contracts awarded	Total value (£)
1995–96
Corporate	333	45,644,200	—
Non-corporate	49	3,678,126	49,322,326
1996–97
Corporate	488	81,757,274	—
Non-corporate	81	3,315,631	85,072,905

Contracts awarded to companies with headquarters in Scotland are not recorded separately.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what was the total budget allocated to the know-how fund for each of the last two years; and how much of that budget was spent on administration. [13972]

Mr. Foulkes: I have been asked to reply.

Know-how fund expenditure in the last two financial years was as follows:

1995–96: £86.26 million

1996–97: £90.70 million

In addition, DFID and FCO provided a total of £3 million each year from their running cost budgets to administer the fund.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Conditional Fees

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the academic research into the use of conditional fees referred to in his answer of 10 November, Official Report, column 575; and what research underlay his assessment of the success rate of conditional fees. [16432]

Mr. Hoon: I was referring to the research carried out by the Policy Studies Institute. Of the 837 cases entered into by the solicitors who responded to their survey they examined 197 cases in detail. The research was conducted between November 1996 and January 1997 and referred to agreements made no later than September 1996. PSI estimated that some 10,500 agreements had been made in a little over the first year that conditional fees were available and acknowledged that they had become an established method of funding personal injury litigation. I understand that something in the region of 1,500 agreements are now being entered into each month. By the time I spoke at the PSI conference on 23 September some 28,000 cases had been entered into. I do believe that 28,000 agreements in a little over three years is a remarkable success and I am keen that more of our citizens should have the access to justice that these agreements provide.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department pursuant to the answer of 10 November from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15877]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Department and the Agencies and Associated Departments which report to the Lord Chancellor have established the following principal e-mail addresses.

LCD HQ

Enquiries: enquiries.lcdhq@gtnet.gov.uk

Court Service

Enquiries and Chief Executive: cust.ser.cs.@gtnet.gov.uk

Public Trust Office

Enquiries: enquiries@publictrust.gov.uk

Chief Executive: chiefexec@publictrust.gov.uk

Land Registry

Enquiries: hlmr@dial.pipex.com

Chief Land Registrar: shclr@dial.pipex.com

Public Record Office

Enquiries: enquiry.pro.rsd.kew@gtnet.gov.uk

Chief Executive: styacke.pro.kew@gtnet.gov.uk

Northern Ireland Court Service

Enquiries: info.nicourts@nics.gov.uk

In addition, some of the Lord Chancellor's Departments and Agencies have established e-mail addresses for senior management and other officials and for enquiries on specific topics. Full details are available on the World Wide Web sites for each organisation.

External e-mail access to a larger number of officials is being considered as part of the development of the Government Secure Intranet.

EU Conventions

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to the answer of 1 July, Official Report, columns 74-76, relating to the convention concerning serving of legal and court documents in civil and commercial matters, when and by what means this convention was ratified; what changes are required in the Rules of Court; what consultation was undertaken by Ministers with affected bodies or persons prior to the ratification; and if he will make a statement concerning future steps he expects to take in respect of this convention. [15569]

Mr. Hoon: The Convention was signed on 26 May 1997 but has not been ratified. Public consultation on the draft Convention and how it might be implemented was carried out in March and April 1997. We shall ratify the Convention once proposals for implementation are finalised. Until then it is not known what changes to Rules of Court might be required.

HEALTH

Per Capita Spending

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the per capita spending on health services in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [14919]

Mr. Milburn: Total gross expenditure on the National Health Service in England in 1996–97 was £706 per capita.

Speech Therapists

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many speech therapists are currently employed within the NHS; how many vacancies exist for speech therapists within the NHS; and what steps the Government are taking to recruit more speech therapists. [14732]

Mr. Milburn: There were 3,580 whole-time equivalent speech and language therapists, excluding assistants and trainees, employed by the National Health Service Hospital and Community Health Services at 30 September 1996—the latest year for which figures are available. Information on the number of vacancies is not available centrally. The Government are ensuring that effective recruitment and retention policies are in place to make the best use of trained staff and that training levels are sufficiently high to match supply and demand.

Home Care Service

Gillian Merron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has for the introduction of regulation of the home care service, indicating the likely scope and timetable for introduction. [15734]

Mr. Boateng: The Government are committed to improving standards in domiciliary care and intend to publish a White Paper in the spring of 1998 outlining proposals for the regulation of such provision.

NHS Trusts (Non-executive Appointments)

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trust non-executive appointments were due on 1 November; how many individuals concerned had been informed of the outcome by that date; how many appointments were outstanding on 7 November; when he anticipates all such appointments to be announced; if he is following the guidelines on NHS appointments established in line with the recommendations of the Nolan Committee; and if he will make a statement on delays in the NHS appointment process. [15442]

Mr. Milburn: A total of 570 trust board vacancies were due to be filled on 1 November; 261 of these appointments had been made by that date and a further 105 had been made by 7 November. This left 204 of these appointments still to be confirmed. We expect virtually all of them to have been made by the end of November. All appointments are made in accordance with the guidance issued by the Commissioner of Public Appointments and the principles established by the Nolan Committee. The slight delays that have occurred have been due to the introduction of new procedures designed to make boards more representative of the communities they serve.

NHS Budget

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the real terms change against the previous year in the NHS current budget in England in each year from 1993–94 to 1998–99. [15312]

Mr. Milburn: The information requested is set out in the table.

National Health Service current expenditure 1993–94 to 1998–99

	Gross expenditure		Net expenditure
Year[1]	Real growth[2] £ million 1996–97 prices	Percentage real growth[2]	Real growth[2] £ million 1996–97 prices	Percentage real growth[2]
1993–94	304	1.0	395	1.4
1994–95	932	3.0	998	3.4
1995–96	754	2.4	749	2.5
1996–97	593	1.8	626	2.0
1997–98[3]	727	2.2	692	2.2
1998–99[4]	644	1.9	677	2.1

[1] 1978–79 to 1996–97 are outturn figures, 1997–98 is forecast outturn and 1998–99 is planned expenditure.

[2] Using GDP deflator of 2 July 1997.

[3] Forecast outturn for 1997–98 includes the extra resources announced for this winter on 14 October.

[4] Planned expenditure for 1998–99 includes the extra £1 billion announced at the 2 July Budget.

Climate Change

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the impact of climate change on (a) health risks and disease control and (b) hygiene and public health standards; and if he will make a statement. [15588]

Ms Jowell: We know of no representations made to the Department on health impacts of climate change.

Independent Review Panels

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list, by date of issue, each national and statutory set of guidelines governing the conduct of independent review panels. [15631]

Mr. Milburn: The documents listed were all issued on 12 March 1996 under cover of EL(96)19. They form the statutory framework for the operation of the National Health Service complaints procedures.

- Directions to NHS trusts, health authorities and special health authorities for special hospitals on hospital complaints procedures;
- Directions to health authorities on dealing with complaints about family health services practitioners;
- Miscellaneous Directions to health authorities for dealing with complaints.

A further document, "Complaints . . . Listening . . . Acting . . . Improving: Guidance on implementation of the NHS Complaints Procedure", giving guidance to the NHS on these matters, was issued at the same time.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list for each health authority the membership of the independent review panel appointed to hear complaints about NHS hospital services and general practitioner services. [15629]

Mr. Milburn: Neither health authorities nor National Health Service trust hospitals have a standing independent review panel with fixed membership. Where it is decided that a panel investigation of a complaint is appropriate, a three person panel with an independent lay chairman is set up specifically to consider that complaint.

Mr. Etherington: to ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list for each health authority the number of complaints about (a) NHS hospital services and (b) general practitioner services and the number of independent review panels (i) requested, (ii) refused and (iii) held since 1 April 1996, indicating the average time between request for a panel hearing and the hearing date. [15630]

Mr. Milburn: Statistics on the first year of the new National Health Service complaints procedures are not yet available. The Government expect to publish them early in the New Year.

Nursing and Residential Homes

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to commission research into the overuse of sedatives in nursing and residential homes. [15772]

Mr. Milburn: We have no plans to commission specific research into the use of sedatives in nursing and residential homes. The responsibility for prescribing, including repeat prescribing and the prescribing of sedatives, rests with the doctor who has clinical responsibility for that particular aspect of a patient's care.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to review the guidelines published by his Department for the administration of medication in nursing and residential homes. [15740]

Mr. Boateng: We have no such plans at this time. The Department has worked with other organisations with an interest in residential care and nursing homes and there are various sources of available guidance on the administration of medication. Under the Registered Homes Act 1984 local and health authorities are responsible for regulating homes and should ensure that homes have proper arrangements for the administration of medicines.

The Medicines Act 1968 governs the prescribing, supply and administration of medication in residential care homes and nursing homes. Dr. June Crown is currently chairing a wide-ranging Review of Prescribing, Supply and Administration of Medicines, which will include issues of prescribing, supply and administration of medicines in nursing and residential care homes. Dr. Crown is due to report to Ministers next year.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to review the arrangements by which general practitioners are remunerated for care of patients in nursing and residential homes. [15736]

Mr. Milburn: All arrangements for remunerating general practitioners are kept under review, and Ministers and officials consult with the representatives of the profession regularly.

Prescribing

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve the quality of prescribing through the greater use of information technology, with specific reference to ensuring the greater transfer of information regarding older patients between primary and secondary care. [15739]

Mr. Milburn: Much has gone into improving the quality of prescribing through information technology including piloting the Prescribing Rationally with Decision support in General Practice Study—PRODIGY—a computer-aided prescribing decision support system for general practitioners. The aim of this system is to improve the quality of GP prescribing decisions using evidence-based recommendations and faster dissemination of information about new drugs, safety alerts and other research evidence which could affect prescribing choice. PRODIGY is being trialed in some 180 general practices and is in its second phase.

In addition, there has been significant progress towards the development of an NHS network which would allow National Health Service information about patients to pass between primary and secondary care. There has also been development in standards for GP systems, which include holding a database of prescribable items incorporating knowledge about drug interactions and contra-indications and cross-checks for patient sensitivities.

Community Pharmacists

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what factors underlie the greater increase in prescriptions dispensed by community pharmacists and appliance contractors between 1986 and 1996 for elderly people than for the remainder of the population. [15738]

Mr. Milburn: A greater proportion of prescriptions dispensed in the community by pharmacists and appliance contractors are for elderly people than for other age groups because they have a greater need for treatment. There is an increasing proportion of elderly people in the population, more treatments are now available for conditions which affect the elderly and there is increased recognition that the elderly can benefit from treatment. In addition, more elderly people are being cared for in the community and thus receiving their medication there, rather than in hospital.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to evaluate the role of community pharmacists in providing advice on therapy of minor illnesses, monitoring drug therapy and reviewing repeat prescriptions for older people. [15737]

Mr. Milburn: Advice on self-care and the treatment of minor ailments is a traditional role of community pharmacists and one which we are keen to encourage. The Department has funded a range of pilot projects designed to test how community pharmacists can play a wider role in the provision of primary health care locally. Subjects covered in these pilots include repeat dispensing and monitoring of drug therapy, including that of elderly people. All the projects will be evaluated.

Biotechnological Inventions

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the cost to the NHS of genetic tests and treatments involving biological material patentable under the terms of the draft Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. [16154]

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State (1) what estimate his Department has made of the cost to NHS public laboratories of providing genetic medicine services if the EU Biotech patent directive is passed; [16360]

(2) what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the cost to the NHS over the next five years of the patenting of genes if the European Union Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions is passed; and how much this research indicates the cost to the NHS of gene patenting will be in the next five years. [16373]

Ms Jowell: The European Commission's proposed Directive on the Protection of Biotechnological Inventions aims to harmonise the existing body of law in this area across the European Union; as such, no significant change to the current position in the United Kingdom is anticipated.

NHS Spending (South-West)

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list by health authority the spending on health services (a) in cash terms and (b) at 1992 prices for (i) Cornwall and (ii) Devon in each year since 1992. [15382]

Mr. Milburn [holding answer 12 November 1997]: The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Cash (£000)

	Devon				Cornwall
Year	Exeter DHA	North Devon DHA	Plymouth DHA	Torbay DHA	North and East Devon DHA	South and West Devon DHA	Cornwall and Isles of Scilly DHA
1992–93	120,932	51,216	115,952	98,125	—	—	175,092
1993–94	—	—	—	—	172,695	224,672	179,458
1994–95	—	—	—	—	182,155	233,778	190,088
1995–96	—	—	—	—	186,673	241,552	194,552
1996–97[1]	—	—	—	—	298,276	373,336	303,290

Notes:
[1] 1996–97 data are provisional.
Source:
Annual accounts of district health authorities 1992–93 to 1995–96 and the annual accounts of health authorities 1996–97.

At 1992 prices (£000)

	Devon				Cornwall
Year	Exeter DHA	North Devon DHA	Plymouth DHA	Torbay DHA	North and East Devon DHA	South and West Devon DHA	Cornwall and Isles of Scilly DHA
1992–93	120,932	51,216	115,952	98,125	—	—	175,092
1993–94	—	—	—	—	167,860	218,381	174,433
1994–95	—	—	—	—	173,958	223,258	181,534
1995–96	—	—	—	—	173,793	224,885	181,128
1996–97[1]	—	—	—	—	271,133	339,362	275,691

Notes:
[1] 1996–97 data are provisional.
Source:
Annual accounts of district health authorities 1992–93 to 1995–96 and the annual accounts of health authorities 1996–97.

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the per capita spending on health services (a) in cash terms and (b) at 1992 prices in (i) Cornwall, (ii) Devon, (iii) the South Western National Health Service Region and (iv) England in each year since 1992. [15381]

Mr. Milburn [holding answer 12 November 1997]: The information requested is shown in the attached tables.

Cash per capita (£)

Year	Devon	Cornwall	South Western Region	England
1992–93	509	518	508	607
1993–94	540	542	544	626
1994–95	579	580	577	656
1995–96	593	597	606	684
1996–97	634	628	595	705

Notes:

1. 1996–97 data are provisional.

2. Per capita figures are calculated using crude population which does not reflect differences in relative age and need of populations.

Source:

Annual accounts of regional and district health authorities and family health services authorities 1992–93 to 1995–96 and the annual accounts of health authorities 1996–97.

At 1992 prices per capita (£)

Year	Devon	Cornwall	South Western Region	England
1992–93	509	518	508	607
1993–94	525	527	529	609
1994–95	553	554	551	627
1995–96	552	556	564	637
1996–97	576	571	541	641

Notes:

1. 1996–97 data are provisional.

2. Per capita figures are calculated using crude population which does not reflect differences in relative age and need of populations.

Source:

Annual accounts of regional and district health authorities and family health services authorities 1992–93 to 1995–96 and the annual accounts of health authorities 1996–97.

Domiciliary Services

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what circumstances local authorities, in assessing ability to pay for domiciliary services which do not include personal care, (a) should discount attendance allowance benefit and (b) have discretion to exclude from consideration attendance allowance benefit. [16417]

Mr. Boateng: Under the current system local authorities have complete discretion whether or not to charge for non-residential social services.

In assessing ability to pay for non-residential services, authorities may take into account all types of income including social security benefits except the Mobility component of Disability Living Allowance and income from capital.

DEFENCE

Future Large Aircraft

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the number of defence industry jobs likely to be generated by a British order for the future large aircraft. [13136]

Mr. Spellar: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced on 31 July, Official Report, column 446, we have agreed to join our partners in issuing a Request for Proposals to Airbus Military Company for a future large aircraft (FLA). Additionally, we are seeking competing bids from other aircraft manufacturers to meet our future air transport requirements. We expect that all proposals will involve substantial benefits for the UK defence industry. If FLA were to be selected, we would expect it to create several thousand jobs in the UK over the life of the project.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his assessment of the market potential for the (a) FLA and (b) C130J worldwide. [13139]

Mr. Spellar: The estimates supplied to the Department by potential aircraft suppliers are commercially confidential. Accordingly, I am withholding the information requested under exemption 13 of the Code of Practice.

Hercules C130J Aircraft

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the number of British defence industry jobs likely to be supported by United Kingdom involvement in the C130J project. [13135]

Mr. Spellar: There are some 36 companies in the UK Industrial Support Group supplying equipment for C130J with a potential total value of over £2 billion. This is expected to provide several thousand jobs over the life of the project. As announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on 31 July, Official Report, column 466, we are seeking bids for aircraft manufacturers to meet our future air transport requirements. We expect that, additionally, each of these proposals will involve substantial benefit for the UK defence industry.

Christmas Island

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps have been taken since 1967 to clean up radioactive and toxic waste, and surplus military materials, on Christmas Island; what has been the cost to date of the clean-up; how many United Kingdom military personnel are currently involved in this activity; what is the estimated date of completion of this work; and if he will estimate the likely future costs of the operation. [14718]

Mr. Spellar: My Department is aware of the waste and equipment remaining on Christmas Island after the atmospheric tests in the 1950s. Three separate radiological surveys, including one by the New Zealand Department of Health, have concluded that there is no radioactive contamination which would present a hazard to the inhabitants of Christmas Island.

On completion of the atmospheric testing and related programmes, the United Kingdom undertook extensive radiation surveys and rehabilitation work in areas which may have been affected. Surveys and rehabilitation work on Christmas Island would have been completed before the final evacuation of the Island in July 1964. The costs of these operations to the United Kingdom cannot be separated from the overall expenditure on the whole test series.

We have found no existing records of any action being taken since 1967 to clean up waste and equipment on Christmas Island; nor are there any records of costs being incurred or estimated for such an operation, or of military personnel participating in any clean-up. No clean up is currently being carried out by military personnel; nor are there any current plans to initiate such an operation.

We are prepared to discuss with the Government of Kiribati options which they might put forward for the disposal of the equipment and waste on Christmas Island; and what advice or assistance we might be able to provide.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the environmental and health legacies of the testing of H-bombs on Christmas Island. [15706]

Mr. Spellar: The British nuclear test programme was carried out in the Central Pacific area between May 1957 and September 1958. Between April and July 1962, with United Kingdom agreement and participation, the United States conducted a series of tests on Christmas Island.

Christmas Island has been subject to three radiological surveys since the end of the nuclear weapons tests. These were conducted by the Atomic Weapons Research Establishment (AWRE), which reported in June 1964, the University of Washington in September 1975, and the New Zealand Department of Health which reported in 1981. Only the AWRE survey was sponsored by the United Kingdom; the others were conducted at the request of the Island's Government. The conclusion reached by all three surveys was that there was no evidence of any radiological contamination which would present a hazard to the inhabitants of Christmas Island.

I am not aware of any other recent surveys of Christmas Island having been conducted by my Department.

A survey of the Island was conducted by the then Overseas Development Administration (ODA) in May 1996. A copy of the ODA's report of that survey has been placed in the Library of the House. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office are not aware of any environmental or health surveys of Christmas Island other than that carried out by the ODA last year.

Auxiliary Oiler Contract

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what (a) detailed and (b) major changes his Department has sought to make to the design of the ships under the Auxiliary Oiler contract; what was the cost to the Ministry of Defence of such changes; and what measures have been taken to ensure that costs do not escalate on the contract; [15505]

(2) if the Auxiliary Oiler Contract is (a) on schedule and (b) proceeding to budget; and if he will make a statement. [15506]

Mr. Spellar: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 11 June 1997, Official Report, column 483.

Atomic Weapons Establishment

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many series of technical papers or reports are being produced by the health and safety department of the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston; and what are the names of each series. [15618]

Mr. Spellar: The AWE Directorate of Environment, Safety and Health (DESH) does not produce formal series of technical papers or reports, although papers are produced when required for conferences or other purposes. The DESH also produces an Annual Environment, Safety and Health Report, a Quarterly Health and Safety Report and a Monthly Report to the Environment Agency on Discharges from AWE. As I said previously on July 22 1997, Official Report, column 529, no numerical details of reports and papers produced by AWE divisions are held centrally.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Facilities Project Division at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston was set up; what its purpose is; how many series of technical papers are currently being produced by this division; and what are the names of each series. [15619]

Mr. Spellar: The Project Director Facilities Division was set up in 1986 and disbanded in 1991. Its purpose was to oversee the major programme of building and refurbishment projects then underway at the Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, Aldermaston. Since the Division no longer exists, no technical papers are being produced.

Bosnia (Entertainment of Armed Forces)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the entertainers booked on behalf of the armed forces to perform in Bosnia. [15637]

Dr. Reid: The following acts performed for British forces participating in the NATO-led Stabilisation Force in former Yugoslavia between 7 and 19 May this year:

The Stranglers (Musicians)
Robin Ince (Comedian)
The Knave of Clubs (Juggler)
Under Wraps (Dancers)

Currently performing on a tour lasting from 7 to 17 November are:

The Divas (Musicians)
Miles Crawford (Comedian)
Sonny and Hayes and Co. (Comedy Magicians)
Sax Education (Musicians)
Under Wraps (Dancers)

Booked to perform between 9 and 21 February next year are:

Showaddywaddy (Musicians)
Roy Hastings (Comedian)
Amazing Louise (Contortionist)
Under Wraps (Dancers)

Colchester Garrison

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are his proposals for the future of the Colchester garrison; and if he will make a statement. [15859]

Dr. Reid: As I announced, by writing to the hon. Gentleman on 13 October, my Department is actively pursuing the redevelopment of the whole of Colchester Garrison through a major Private Finance Initiative project. The aim is to provide high quality, modern barracks and facilities which are of an appropriate standard, are flexible to use, and have the potential for further development.

It is likely that surplus MOD land at Colchester will become available as a result of this development. I believe this will be of great benefit to the local Borough Council as it would allow the construction of modern housing and amenities for the local community.

Six consortia have now been issued with an Invitation to Submit Outline Proposals for the project which are due for return by 24 November. The proposals will then be evaluated, a final shortlist drawn up early in the New Year, and detailed bids sought from the shortlisted consortia. It is our intention to identify a preferred bidder by the end of 1998 and to let a contract by the middle of 1999.

Hunting

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will prohibit hunting with hounds on all of his Department's land. [16075]

Mr. Spellar: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Cotswold (Mr. Clifton-Brown) on 30 July 1997, Official Report, columns 352–53.

Courts Martial

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of the procedures relating to courts martial. [16088]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 14 November 1997]: A series of reforms to the court-martial system were included in the Armed Forces Act 1996 and came into effect on 1 April 1997. The reforms were wide ranging and affected the pre-trial, trial and post-trial stages of the court martial system. The purpose of these reforms was to reinforce the independence of the court-martial, principally by reducing the apparent influence of the chain of command, whilst preserving its necessary involvement.

The reforms meet the European Court's concerns about the shortcomings of the system. The ECHR has recognised our actions, noting

"with satisfaction that the UK authorities had made changes to the court-martial system with a view to ensuring the observance of their Conventional commitments".

Although we are not taking any further steps at present to improve the procedures, we are aware that we cannot afford to be complacent. The system is kept under review and will, of course, be looked at as part of the process of preparing for the next quinquennial Armed Forces Bill.

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the current average waiting time for independent appeals following courts martial in the (a) Army, (b) Navy and (c) Royal Air Force. [16087]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 14 November 1997]: I regret that I am unable to provide the information precisely in the format requested. However, in the last twelve months 32 applications for an appeal to be heard have been submitted to the Court-Martial Appeal Court. Of these, six have been heard within an average period of six months each. The remainder are still awaiting a hearing date. The information by single-Service is as follows:

Date of petition to CMAC	Hearing date
Army
October 1996	June 1997
November 1996	December 1996
January 1997	not known
February 1997	not known
March 1997	not known
March 1997	not known
May 1997	not known
June 1997	not known
July 1997	not known
July 1997	not known
July 1997	November 1997
August 1997	not known
August 1997	not known
September 1997	not known
September 1997	not known
October 1997	not known
October 1997	not known
October 1997	not known
October 1997	not known
November 1997	not known
Royal Navy
November 1996	December 1997
June 1997	not known
July 1997	not known
Royal Air Force
November 1996	April 1997
January 1997	not known
February 1997	not known
March 1997	not known
March 1997	not known
April 1997	not known
May 1997	October 1997
June 1997	not known
August 1997	not known

The dates for hearings are provided by the independent Court-Martial Appeal Court which is part of the Lord Chancellor's Department.

Military Exhibitions

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's policy on allowing private companies to host military, security and police events on Ministry of Defence property. [14366]

Mr. Spellar: The Ministry of Defence would consider any request for use of its land on a case-by-case basis.

Arms Exports

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the annual cost of promoting arms exports. [15300]

Mr. Spellar: The net cost in financial year 1996–97 of operating the Defence Export Services Organisation in my Department was £16.6 million.

This sum should be judged in the context of the substantial benefit to the taxpayer which in the same year included receipts of more than £50 million in Commercial Exploitation Levy, income of £84 million from the sale of surplus military equipment, and contributions of more than £300 million in reduced overheads on the MOD's own procurement costs.

Major Eric Joyce

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advice he has received from the Lord Chancellor concerning the case of Major Eric Joyce, Adjutant General to Corps. [15333]

Dr. Reid: I am withholding this information under Exemption 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Chinook Helicopters

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the reliability of the FADIC computer system controlling Chinook helicopters; and if he will make a statement. [15437]

Mr. Spellar: For the Chinook HC Mk2 aircraft, a Full Authority Digital Electronic Control system, FADEC, was procured to replace the hydro-mechanical fuel control system which had been used on the Chinook HC Mk1. An initial FADEC target reliability figure of 1.1 failures per thousand flying hours was agreed, to improve to 0.6 after seven years in service with the RAF. After five years, the FADEC system reliability is currently about 0.4 failures per thousand flying hours, and has thus improved upon the contractual target.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list (a) his Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if he will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared to those for 1990; and what estimate he has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15546]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the hon. Member to the United Kingdom's Second report under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2,000. The report projects forward what the programme is expected to achieve to 2020.

RAF Wittering (Accident)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the accident on 31 October involving a Harrier jet at RAF Wittering, indicating the level of hazard at the accident site, with special reference to the proximity of nuclear material. [15636]

Dr. Reid: The aircraft crashed half a mile southwest of RAF Wittering and the usual post crash management procedures, to eliminate or contain any hazard to the public or the environment, were carried out. There were no nuclear materials involved in the accident.

Private Education

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to review funding for the private education of service personnel provided by his Department; and what is the estimated cost of such funding in the current financial year. [15825]

Dr. Reid: There are currently no plans to review the funding provided by my Department for the private eduction of Service personnel. Costs for such provision for 1996–97, the last year for which figures were available, were £660,000 for Royal Naval personnel and £300,000 for Army personnel. Figures for the RAF are not available as this information is not held centrally.

Vanguard Nuclear Submarines

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to have four fully commissioned Vanguard nuclear submarines in service. [15893]

Dr. Reid: The fourth Vanguard class submarine, Vengeance, is planned to enter service early in the next century.

Defence Budget

Mr. Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will provide a breakdown of the defence budget by amount spent in each of the regions of the United Kingdom (a) in cash terms and (b) as a percentage of the total, ranked according to percentage per region. [15937]

Dr. Reid: Ministry of Defence budgetary data are not maintained in manner which would allow the regional analysis requested. However, estimates of the value of defence expenditure on equipment by UK region are given in "UK Defence Statistics 1997", Table 1.9, a copy of which is in the House of Commons Library.

Strategic Defence Review

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the submissions to the Strategic Defence Review which have not been placed in the Library. [15934]

Mr. George Robertson: No. We have placed in the Parliamentary Libraries the submissions from all of the outside bodies and individuals from whom we have received consent to do so. We will be placing further batches of submissions in the Parliamentary Libraries in due course as we receive the appropriate consent.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will make a statement on the Government's policy towards maintaining the United Kingdom's independent nuclear deterrent; [15894]

(2) if the Strategic Defence Review will examine the role, shape, size and cost of the United Kingdom's independent nuclear deterrent. [15940]

Mr. George Robertson: This Government were elected on a specific manifesto commitment to retain Trident while also pressing for multi-lateral negotiations towards mutual, balanced and verifiable reductions in nuclear weapons. The Strategic Defence Review will examine all aspects of our deterrence requirements to ensure they reflect changing strategic circumstances.

Widows' Pensions

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures will be taken to improve the AFPS pensions for widows whose husbands retired before 31 March 1973. [15942]

Mr. Spellar: The Government have no plans to alter the rules of the Armed Forces Pension Scheme which apply to Service Widows whose husbands retired before 31 March 1973.

Gulf War

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his Answer of 22 May, Official Report, column 115, if his Department has completed its work on dead animals found and analysed during the Gulf war; and if he will make a statement. [15847]

Dr. Reid: My Department has now completed a survey amongst a sample of serving Gulf War veterans on this subject and collated the contemporary documentation which has been found. My officials are, however, still seeking information in respect of one important aspect of this matter from outside MOD. We deem the outstanding issue to be sufficiently significant to delay publishing a report until we know whether further information is likely to be available.

RAF Menwith Hill

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who will pay for the construction and operation of the two radomes to be situated at RAF Menwith Hill for which planning permission has recently been granted; and what is their operational purpose. [15698]

Dr. Reid: The costs will be borne by the United States Government. These facilities will support the new Space Based Infra Red System developed to replace the existing satellite system to provide early warning of ballistic missile launches.

Pattern Room

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will retain the Pattern Room in public ownership. [16204]

Mr. Spellar: The future of the Ministry of Defence Pattern Room at Nottingham is currently under review. No decisions have been taken.

Challenger 2

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the current status of the Army's Challenger 2 programme; and if he will make a statement. [16724]

Mr. Spellar: I am pleased to announce that the sequence of three production reliability growth trials has been successfully completed and the contractor, Vickers Defence Systems, has met the agreed technical milestones. The company have successfully demonstrated, therefore, that the high technical and reliability standards demanded by the Ministry of Defence have been met. Work continues to ensure that logistic support arrangements are established prior to the completion of deliveries of tanks to the first regiment in June 1998, as planned.

Agent Orange

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research Her Majesty's Government have sponsored into the effects of Agent Orange; and if he will make a statement. [14488]

Mr. Spellar: As far as can be established from records, no research on Agent Orange has been undertaken by MOD or its Agencies or their predecessors.

SCOTLAND

University Students

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was (a) the total number of students on first degree courses at Scottish higher education institutions in each of the past five years and (b) the number of those students taking four-year honours degree courses. [15057]

Mr. Wilson: The total number of first degree students—full time and part time—in Scottish higher education institutions for the most recent five years available is set out in the table.

Number of first degree students in Scottish HEIs

Year	Full time	Part time	Total
1991–92	78,182	5,169	83,351
1992–93	87,057	7,014	94,071
1993–94	93,394	7,722	101,086
1994–95	97,928	6,012	103,840
1995–96	99,434	6,198	105,632

However, it is not possible to ascertain how many of these students undertook a four-year honours degree course. The only point at which it is known that a student has studied for an honours degree is when they obtain their qualification. The following tables set out data for full-time first degree graduates from Scottish higher education institutions for 1994–95 and 1995–96. It is not possible to identify the number of years taken to obtain the qualification in data prior to 1994–95.

	1994–95
Year of student	Honours	Other	Total
Less than four years	3,545	5,407	8,952
Four years	10,187	928	11,115
More than four years	2,041	342	2,383
Total	15,773	6,677	22,450

The following table shows that of the 15,773 honours graduates for Scottish HEIs in 1994–95, 10,187—65 per cent—obtained the qualification after completing four years of study. The 3,545 graduates who completed an honours degree in less than four years will include direct entrants into second year and also students transferring between higher education institutions to study the same course.

	1995–96
Year of student	Honours	Other	Total
Less than four years	2,900	6,162	9,062
Four years	12,219	1,149	13,368
More than four years	2,031	642	2,673
Total	17,150	7,953	25,103

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland further to his answer to the hon. Member for Tiverton and Honiton (Mrs. Browning) of 4 November, Official Report, column 156, how many potential university entrants had confirmed places for Scottish universities by 1 August; and if he will make a statement. [15314]

Mr. Wilson: The information requested is not held centrally. Information on university applications may be obtained from the University and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS), Fulton House, Jessop Avenue, Cheltenham, Gloucestershire GL50 3SH.

Chiropody and Podiatry

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will list the budget for each health authority or health board allocated for spending on chiropody and podiatry services in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1996–97 and (c) 1995–96; [15372]

(2) what was the NHS expenditure on NHS chiropody and podiatry in (a) 1996–97, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1994–95. [15373]

Mr. Galbraith: Health Boards are not given specific budgets for spending on chiropody and podiatric services. Resources for these services are met from within Health Boards' general revenue allocations and will reflect their assessment of need.

The majority of chiropodists employed by the NHS in Scotland are engaged in Community Health Services. The costs are not identifiable separately in financial returns. However, information on hospital expenditure is collected centrally and the data, covering both chiropody and podiatry, are in the following table:

Year	£000
1994–95	1,360
1995–96	1,813
1996–97	2,342

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will list those health authorities which have notified his Department of (a) reductions or increases in chiropody services in 1996–97 relative to 1995–96 and (b) planned reductions or increases in chiropody services in 1998–99; [15374]

(2) what are the staffing and personnel figures for all NHS grades and whole-time equivalent staff for chiropody and podiatry for (a) 1996–97, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1994–95. [15362]

Mr. Galbraith: Health Boards are not required to notify the Department of changes in activity in particular services. Although the Department wishes to see health authorities and GP fundholders provide the full range of NHS services including chiropody, detailed planning decision on levels of provision are taken locally according to the needs of the population served.

Information available on changes in chiropody services relates to the number of chiropody and podiatry staff employed by the NHS in Scotland. This information is shown in the following table:

NHS chiropody staff by grade[1] Headcount and whole time equivalent: at 30 September

	Number			WTE
	1994	1995	1996	1994	1995	1996
Chiropody	664	698	716	593.6	619.0	628.3
Chiropodists	632	664	680	564.5	588.4	595.7
Area	6	8	8	6.0	8.0	8.0
Chief	57	59	66	55.7	57.7	64.4
Senior	555	573	583	490.0	499.9	501.9
Basic/general	14	24	23	12.8	22.8	21.4
Footcare assistant	32	34	36	29.1	30.7	32.6

[1] Chiropody staff directly employed by the NHS in Scotland. The figures do not include any privately employed chiropodists who may be engaged by the NHS on a sessional basis.

Source:

National Manpower Statistics from payroll ISD Scotland Adhoc ref. 97/9541.

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the guidelines that are issued and health needs assessments that health authorities undertake to ensure the availability of chiropody and podiatry services to meet the needs of the local population. [15361]

Mr. Galbraith: Health Boards are responsible for undertaking local needs assessments and for providing chiropody services to meet the needs of their local populations within available resources.

Angela Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many (a) face to face contacts and (b) initial contacts there were with NHS chiropody and podiatry staff in (i) 1996–97, (ii) 1995–96 and (iii) 1994–95. [15360]

Mr. Galbraith: The total number of contacts with NHS chiropody and podiatry services, including hospital and community-based services and services provided by voluntary organisations acting on behalf of the NHS, is shown in the following table:

NHS in Scotland—Chiropody and podiatry contacts: year ending 31 December

	Number
1994	1,731,715
1995	1,986,911
1996	1,944,630

There were 43,696 new patients seen by hospital chiropody services during 1996. Information on other contacts is not readily available.

Business Rates

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what steps he has taken to monitor the differential between business rates for hotel properties in Scotland and England; [15520]

(2) if he will commission an investigation into the level of business rates faced by hotels in Scotland and rates for comparable properties in England; [15521]

(3) what representations he has received concerning differences between Scottish and English business rates since 1995. [15522]

Mr. Chisholm [holding answer 12 November 1997]: Valuation for rating of non-domestic property in Scotland is the responsibility of local assessors who together with the Valuation Office Agency have assured the Government that the 1995 Revaluation has been carried out using cross-Border harmonised valuation techniques. Representations arising since the revaluation have been received from, amongst others, the caravan industry, the hotel industry and representatives of those providing self-catering accommodation. The majority of difficulties have been resolved through negotiation with the assessors and through the well established formal appeals system. There are no plans to commission an investigation into these matters.

Prisoner Transfers

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the Scottish Prison Service was first made aware of the application for transfer of Jason Campbell from HM prison Shotts to the Maze prison in Northern Ireland. [16206]

Mr. Dewar: The application from Jason Campbell was made in the first instance to local management at HM Prison Shotts on 10 September. It was sent to Scottish Prison Service Headquarters on 25 September.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if between 25 September and 5 October, transfers of prisoners (a) from Scotland to Northern Ireland and (b) from England to Northern Ireland required the consent of the Secretary of State of both the sending and receiving jurisdictions; [16205]

(2) what factors underlay the delay between the informing of the Scottish Prison Service about the application for transfer of Jason Campbell from HM Prison Shotts to the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland and the informing of the Minister of State at the Scottish Office; [16207]

(3) what factors underlay the delay between the approval by the Scottish Prison Service of the application for transfer of Jason Campbell from HM Prison Shotts to the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland and the informing of the Minister of State at the Scottish Office of this approval; [16208]

(4) what reports the Minister of State at the Scottish Office sought on the progress of the application for transfer of Jason Campbell from HM Prison Shotts to the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland between 25 September and 4 October. [16376]

Mr. Dewar: Transfers of prisoners require the consent of both jurisdictions. They are administered by officials under delegated authority and Ministers would not routinely be consulted or receive reports. The question of a delay in informing Ministers in the case of Jason Campbell's application therefore does not arise. My hon. Friend neither sought nor received reports about the progress of the application between 25 September and 4 October. Ministers have since reviewed the relevant procedures and will in future be notified at an early stage of any application for transfer between Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if the request from the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland or representations from the Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office to the Scottish Office to deal promptly with the application for transfer of Jason Campbell to Northern Ireland was in accord with normal procedure for such transfers; [16209]

(2) what reasons were given to the Minister of State at the Scottish Office by the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on 25 September for the request that the application for transfer of Jason Campbell from HM Prison Shotts to the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland be dealt with promptly. [16217]

Mr. Dewar: Contact between Ministers is a normal part of the conduct of Government business. In their conversation on 25 September, the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland indicated to the Minister of State at the Scottish Office that the transfer of Jason Campbell had importance in the context of the wider peace process.

Unpasteurised Milk

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on current controls on the production, use and consumption of unpasteurised milk in Scotland, giving the reasons underlying the introduction of the current policy and when the policy changed. [16385]

Mr. Galbraith: The production and use of raw milk is controlled in Scotland by the Dairy Products (Hygiene) (Scotland) Regulations 1995. They prohibit the sale in Scotland of unpasteurised cows' milk for drinking and unpasteurised cream. Unpasteurised drinking milk from goats and sheep is permitted to be sold only from the farm premises direct to the ultimate consumer. Raw milk may be used in the manufacture of dairy products, in accordance with the conditions specified in the Regulations.

The sale of raw cows' milk for drinking was banned in 1983, as a result of increasing numbers of cases of illness associated with its consumption. The restrictions on the sale of raw sheep and goats' milk for drinking were introduced by the 1995 Regulations based on the same potential risks but reflecting the small specialist nature of this market.

CABINET OFFICE

Millennium Dome

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Minister without Portfolio what representations he has received regarding the location of the Millennium Dome. [14983]

Mr. Mandelson: I have received no such representations since becoming the shareholder of the New Millennium Experience Company on 25 June 1997.

Millennium Experience

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Minister without Portfolio if he will make a statement on the operation of Millennium Central. [13441]

Mr. Mandelson [holding answer 10 November 1997]: Millennium Central Ltd. (MCL) was the previous name of the New Millennium Experience Company (NMEC). The NMEC is a Non-departmental Public Body responsible for delivering and running the New Millennium Experience at Greenwich and associated National Programme.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Minister without Portfolio what is the basis of his recent estimate that the Millennium Exhibition will contribute up to £1 billion to the economy; and to what extent this estimate takes into account the use of public and Lottery money to build the Millennium Dome. [15686]

Mr. Mandelson: I was quoting from a letter to my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, from the Chairman of the British Tourist Board, David Quarmby who wrote in June:

"Here at the BTA we estimate that the existence of the Exhibition and the way in which it will be the 'jewel in the crown' of the London and Britain tourism offer could account for an additional £300–£550 million of overseas visitor revenue to Britain in the year 2000. This is only 1–1.5 per cent. of total overseas visitors revenue of £32 billion forecast for 2000, and could be conservative; it is conceivable that the halo effect of the Greenwich Exhibition in terms of the overall marketing of Britain could double the impact to 2–3 per cent., i.e. up to £1 billion"

With Mr. Quarmby's permission I have placed a copy of this letter in the Library for reference by hon. Members. The BTA's calculation does not take into account the contribution from Lottery funds towards the Greenwich Experience. No taxpayers' money is involved in building the Dome.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Code of Practice on Access to Government Information

Mr. Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what has been the expenditure by Government for each year since its inception on the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. [15687]

Dr. David Clark: The costs of implementing the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information are not identified separately and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list each of the overseas trips made by himself and other members of his ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if he will make a statement. [15244]

Dr. David Clark [holding answer 11 November 1997]: My hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Secretary, and I have undertaken the following overseas visits:

Minister/Destination	Purpose of the trip	Cost £
Chancellor of the Duchy
Washington	To meet with key figures in the US as part of the preparation for the Better Government White Paper	24,227
Austria	Trilateral discussions with Austrian and German Ministers on co-ordinating a better EU regulation strategy across the three countries' consecutive EU Presidencies	3,905
Canada and Boston	To investigate how the Canadian Freedom of Information system works and to follow up discussions with leading academics at Harvard on Better Government	16,994
New Zealand and Australia	Fact finding visit on Freedom of Information and Better Government	29,235
Parliamentary Secretary
Malaysia and Thailand	Investigate the use of IT in the delivery of public services in these countries and the public service reforms which both have introduced	10,528

SOCIAL SECURITY

Cold Weather Payments

17. Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what representations she has received in the last month concerning the operation of the cold weather payments system; and if she will make a statement. [14646]

Mr. Denham: Since 17 October I have received 29 representations on a number of aspects of the scheme.

34. Mr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security in relation to cold weather payments, how many new weather stations are to be created in the United Kingdom as a whole; and how many will be located in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) Scotland and (c) Renfrewshire. [14665]

Mr. Denham: Two additional weather stations will be introduced into the scheme this winter within Great Britain. Both are located in Scotland but neither are in Renfrewshire.

Questions concerning Cold Weather Payments in Northern Ireland should be referred to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what representations she has received about cold weather payments. [14657]

Mr. Denham: We have received 59 representations from hon. Members, members of the public and national organisations on a number of aspects of the scheme.

24. Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the expected increase in Government expenditure on cold weather payments this year. [14653]

Mr. Denham: Entitlement to Cold Weather Payments is based on either the recorded or the forecast average air temperature over any seven consecutive days. It is not possible to estimate the expected level of expenditure as it depends entirely on temperature conditions.

Social Security Review

18. Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on her review of social security payments and proceedings with particular reference to the treatment of the poorest members of society. [14647]

Ms Harman: Reforming the welfare state to tackle poverty and welfare dependency is a key priority of the Government.

We believe that work, not welfare, is best for people of working age, and we are already transforming the Social Security system to provide opportunities to work so that people can provide a better life for themselves and their children.

Fraud

19. Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to tackle fraud in the social security system. [14648]

Mr. Denham: Rebuilding integrity in—and public support for—the social security system is a key element of reforming the welfare state. Tackling fraud is central to this.

We are determined to make real and permanent reductions in fraud. We will modernise the welfare system so that it is secure from the point of benefit design, through to the point of payment, unlike the previous Government who focused mainly on detection after the event.

20. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to reduce fraud in the information provided to the Child Support Agency. [14649]

Mr. Field: We are determined to stamp out fraud throughout the benefits system—that includes the CSA.

The Agency already has powers to gather and confirm the information necessary to make a child support assessment. But we are considering whether further powers are needed to ensure that maintenance liability is based on accurate information.

32. Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what progress has been made in tackling fraud in the social security system. [14663]

Mr. Denham: We are determined to make real and permanent reductions in fraud. We will do this by modernising the welfare system and transforming the way in which it is delivered. Our aim is for an Active Modern Service where integrity is key, and where security is built in throughout, rather than focused mainly on detection after the event. A system which is secure from the point of benefit design, through to the point of payment.

Welfare Reform

23. Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the planned date of publication of the Minister for Welfare Reform's Green Paper on welfare reform. [14652]

Mr. Field: It is our intention to publish a Green Paper on Welfare Reform at the turn of the year.

Lone Parents

22. Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what measures she proposes to take to assist low-income working lone parents. [14651]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Government firmly believe that work is the best form of welfare and are committed to supporting all families, including lone parents, to improve their standard of living through work.

We recognise that lone parents, in particular, need assistance if they are to prosper. We are therefore taking a number of steps which will support low income working lone parents.

We are committed to the development of a National Childcare Strategy to plan the provision of childcare and will make an announcement by the end of the year. As a first step, from June 1998, the childcare disregard in Family Credit will be increased to £100 for families paying childcare costs for two or more children and the age limit will be extended to the September after the 12th birthday.

We are reviewing all aspects of the Child Support Agency to ensure it provides a fair, efficient, and effective service. Maintenance is a portable income which lone mothers keep when they move into work and they need to know the Child Support Agency will take every action to ensure that it is paid.

We will implement a Minimum Wage which will provide a statutory level beneath which pay should not fall and will remove the worst excesses of low pay and exploitation of vulnerable workers.

We are also examining the interaction of the tax and benefit systems so that they can be streamlined and modernised, so as to fulfil our objectives of promoting work incentives, reducing poverty and welfare dependency, and strengthening community and family life.

33. Mr. Andy King: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the role of childcare in the Government's new deal for lone parents. [14664]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Government recognise the importance of good quality, affordable childcare, for all working parents, but in particular for lone parents who have to cope with bringing up children alone. That is why, when we launched the New Deal for Lone Parents in July this year, additional funds were made available to meet childcare expenses while lone parents undertake jobsearch activities.

New Deal Advisers are able to offer up to £60 per week to each lone parent to help them pay for childcare while they attend job interviews or training.

New Deal Advisers also have access to information on local childcare services so they can help lone parents find the most suitable childcare for their children.

In addition, the Cambridge and Peterborough New Deal for Lone parent areas have the added facility of public access to information via the Internet. This is provided through an information kiosk in the waiting area of each and allows lone parents to access information personally on childcare, jobs, training and benefits. We intend to extend this service to around other offices in the 8 New Deal areas.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many lone parents (a) receiving income support and (b) not receiving income support but receiving one-parent benefit are (i) widowed, (ii) divorced, (iii) separated and (iv) never married. [16210]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is set out in the tables.

Lone parents receiving income support/one parent benefit (November/December 1996)

	Number
Income support	1,022,000
Not receiving income support but receiving one parent benefit	639,000

Percentage

Marital status of recipients	Income support recipients	Non-income support/one parent benefit recipients
Widowed	[2]2	[2]3
Divorced	28	50
Separated	23	[2]16
Never married	47	31

Notes:
[1] Information taken from the 1995–96 Family Resources Survey as no information is available from Departmental administrative data.
[2] Figures based on very small sample sizes and so may be unreliable.
1. Lone parents on income support are defined as those in receipt of the lone parent premium.
2. All figures have been rounded to the nearest thousand.
3. Survey and administrative data are not directly comparable.
Sources:
1. Income Support Quarterly Statistical Enquiry, November 1996 (5 per cent. sample).
2. 1 per cent. sample of the Child Benefit Computer System, 31 December 1996.
3. 1995–96 Family Resources Survey.

Jobseeker's Allowance

25. Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she intends to review the operation of the jobseeker's allowance. [14656]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Our welfare-to-work objectives are to provide work incentives, to reduce poverty and welfare dependency and to strike a new balance between rights and responsibilities. As the main benefit for the unemployed, Jobseeker's Allowance has a major role to play in the transition from welfare-to-work and an extensive programme of monitoring and evaluation of both the policy and delivery is under way to enable us to ensure that it is achieving these objectives.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will estimate the total revenue savings by the awarding of nil benefits to recipients of jobseeker's allowance since its inception. [15776]

Mr. Keith Bradley: No such estimate has been made.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many recipients of Jobseeker's Allowance have had an award of nil benefit reconsidered by (a) officials and (b) Ministers; and if she will make a statement. [15775]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested.

Awards of Jobseeker's Allowance are made by independent Adjudication Officers. Information regarding awards reconsidered by officials is not available.

Benefits Advice

27. Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the telephone facilities for dealing with inquiries to benefits agencies. [14658]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Telephones are used extensively by Agency officers to provide information and advice to customers and their representatives.

The Benefits Agency is leading a project to ensure that the telephone service provided by the Department's Executive agencies, meets customer needs now, and in a future modernised Social Security delivery system.

Pension Sharing

28. Mr. Hutton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proposals she has to enable men and women to share pension rights on divorce. [14659]

Mr. Denham: Our Manifesto committed us to introducing pension sharing for divorcing couples. My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, announced in June that we would be publishing a draft Bill this parliamentary session with the intention of implementing pension sharing from April 2000. This is an important step in helping meet our objective of narrowing the pensions gap between women and men.

Poverty

29. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans the Government have to alleviate poverty for financially disadvantaged individuals who are not in employment. [14660]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We are determined not to continue down the road of a permanent have-not class, unemployed and disaffected from society. We believe that the best way to alleviate poverty is to help people into work.

We will achieve this aim with our New Deal which will help people back to work. The New Deal will provide real opportunities for the long-term unemployed, young unemployed people, lone parents, and sick and disabled people who are able to do some work.

We are also carrying out a wide ranging review of pension provision, and have commissioned research to help establish why a million pensioners do not claim their income support entitlement.

Local Benefits Offices

30. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to give more discretion to local benefits offices in the payment of social security benefits. [14661]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Our aims for welfare reform are to modernise the structure and delivery of Social Security and encourage financial independence while simultaneously promoting social cohesion and well-being; to develop an active welfare system which supports work, savings and honesty; and to help tackle effectively unjustifiable social and economic inequalities. To that end we are reviewing all major components of the social security system.

Domestic Violence

35. Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to increase the number of female judges dealing with cases of domestic violence. [14666]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply because although violence against women is a key priority for the Minister for Women, as this is a specific question relating to female judges, it falls to the Lord Chancellor's Department to answer.

The Lord Chancellor has the fullest confidence that all judges, regardless of gender, deal with cases of domestic violence with impartiality and consideration for the victims of domestic violence. The Lord Chancellor's policy is that all judicial appointments are, and will continue to be, made strictly on merit. He does however very much wish to encourage applications by well qualified women and is taking steps, including increased flexibility in part-time sittings arrangements, to that end.

Pensions

36. Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement about her proposals to reform pensions. [14667]

Mr. Denham: The pensions review, announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 17 July, is looking at the central areas of insecurity for elderly people, including all aspects of the basic pension and its value. A key objective of the review is to ensure that pensioners should have an adequate income in retirement, that they should share fairly in rising national prosperity, and that public finances should be both sustainable and affordable.

The first part of the review ended on 31 October and we are now carefully considering the many responses we have received. The Government intend to publish an initial framework for change in the first half of 1998. There will then be a period of further consultation before firm proposals are developed.

Mr. Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the role of the pensions education and awareness working group. [14650]

Mr. Denham: Raising awareness of pensions, and improving the level of financial education is one of the key challenges for the pensions review. People need to understand the importance of saving for their retirement, and they must be able to make the right choice about what sort of pension is best for them.

That is why we established a working group of top finance, consumer and regulatory experts to consider how we can ensure that existing initiatives are co-ordinated, well-targeted and effective. The group will also advise what other actions are needed to improve people's knowledge of pensions in general. It will report at the end of January.

Pensioners

37. Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what measures will be taken to assist the poorest pensioners in receipt of income support, and living in the coldest parts of the UK, with their heating bills. [14668]

Mr. Denham: The Government are already tackling the problems associated with vulnerable people keeping warm during cold weather. We have already taken action to cut fuel costs and make homes easier to heat.

Social Fund Cold Weather Payments of £8.50 will again be issued automatically to those pensioners in receipt of Income Support, when the average temperature in their area is recorded as, or forecast to be an average of 0°C or below, over a consecutive seven day period. Last winter, the Cold Weather Payments scheme triggered a total of 125 times, involving 55 of the 70 Meteorological Office weather stations used. Almost 5 million payments worth over £42 million were issued to an estimated 2.7 million people.

We are committed to examining the means of delivering more automatic help to the poorest pensioners.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to increase take-up of income-related benefits for pensioners. [14662]

Mr. Denham: We believe that all pensioners should share fairly in the increasing prosperity of the nation.

We are committed to examining means of delivering more automatic help to the poorest pensioners. We have commissioned research to identify reasons why some pensioners do not claim the Income Support to which they are entitled, and to inform ways of getting help to them.

Local Government Finance

Mr. David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to help local authorities adapt to the changes to the minimum funding requirement. [14654]

Mr. Denham: The Local Government Pension Scheme is not subject to the minimum funding requirement (MFR) and would not therefore need help in adapting to any changes, even had there been any.

In fact, the MFR has not changed since it came into effect from 6 April this year. The actuarial profession is at present reviewing the requirement and we will consider their recommendations when they become available.

Pensions Review

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many responses were received to her Department's invitation for contributions to the Pension Review; and if she will place in the Library lists of those who have responded and those to whom individual invitations to respond were sent. [15955]

Mr. Denham: The public consultation exercise and the first part of the Pensions Review ended on 31 October. Responses are still coming in but to date we have received approximately 1,700 responses from pensions providers, employers, employees, consumers, pensions experts and pensioners themselves.

A list of the organisation invited to respond to the Pension Review and a list of those organisations who submitted their views has been placed in the Library. Approximately 1,300 individuals, mostly pensioners, also submitted their responses.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will place in the Library copies of the contributions which her Department has received on the Pensions Review. [15959]

Mr. Denham: A number of the responses to the Review were submitted on a confidential basis. It is a matter for the respondents—pensions providers, employers, employees, consumers, pensions experts and pensioners—whether to make their responses public.

A list of organisations who have responded has been placed in the Library. The Department is prepared to make publicly available individual responses to the Pensions Review, provided the organisation or individual who responded is agreeable.

Consultation Papers

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security is she will make it her practice to inform those invited to respond to departmental consultative papers that their responses may be placed in the public domain unless they request that their responses be kept confidential. [15958]

Mr. Field: It is already existing practice to do so in line with the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. However, because of an oversight this was not done in the case of the public consultation exercise on the Pensions Review.

Pension Sharing (Divorce)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when she will publish the draft Bill on pension sharing after divorce. [15960]

Mr. Denham: The Government are committed to introducing pension sharing for divorcing couples and we aim to do so from April 2000. We welcome input from all interested groups to ensure that we deliver effective and workable arrangements which recognise the contribution that both women and men make to a marriage. We are currently working in partnership with the pensions industry, family lawyers and other key groups and will publish draft Bill clauses for consultation during the current Parliamentary session. This is the first time that this Department has consulted on draft primary legislation in this way, demonstrating our commitment to open and consultative Government.

Benefits Agency Staff

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many Benefits Agency staff are themselves in receipt of income-related benefits. [15837]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the current backlog of cases at the CSA. [14227]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We expect the Child Support Agency to provide an efficient and effective service to all its clients throughout the child support assessment process. We are looking for substantial and sustained operational improvements from the Agency, in particular on getting more maintenance paid, reducing the backlog and improving customer service.

The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. Keith Vaz, dated 14 November 1997:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question concerning the backlog of cases at the Child Support Agency.

Any maintenance application which is over 52 weeks old is considered to form part of the Agency's backlog. At 30 September 1997, there were approximately 199,000 such cases.

The Agency has developed and is now implementing a strategy for meeting its undertaking to clear its backlogs. All Business Units have put in place operational plans which will guide them towards the achievement of our stated objective of clearing backlogs by 31 March 1999.

The Agency is tackling the backlog of cases. However, we must balance the demands placed on us—to delivery Secretary of State targets, to continue to improve performance and improve customer service—and clearance of the backlogs.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what were the staffing levels at the CSA on (i) 1 October 1996 and (ii) 1 October 1997. [14226]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We expect the Child Support Agency to provide an efficient and effective service to all its clients throughout the child support assessment process. We are looking for substantial and sustained operational improvements from the Agency, in particular on getting more maintenance paid, reducing the backlog and improving customer service.

The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. Keith Vaz, dated 14 November 1997:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about staffing in the Child Support Agency.

Details of Agency staffing levels are collected at the end of each calendar month. The table below shows the number of Agency staff at 30 September 1996 and 30 September 1997. The figures in the table do not include personnel at the Belfast Child Support Agency Centre; staff in this Centre are part of the Northern Ireland Child Support Agency, which provides a service to an area of the mainland on our behalf. The number of such staff at Belfast at 30 September 1996 was 745.9[1], and the figure for 30 September 1997 was 876.6[1].

Child support agency staff [1]

	Permanent and fixed term contract staff	Casual staff	Total
30 September 1996	7,191.6	455.4	7,647
30 September 1997	8,043.2	462.7	8,505.9

[1] Figures are an amalgamation of full-time and part-time staff and are expressed as whole time equivalents.

I hope this is helpful.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 18 November 1997

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Kenya

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what projects the current United Kingdom bilateral aid to the Government of Kenya is being spent. [15013]

Mr. Foulkes: Major projects (with commitments of £1 million or over) implemented in partnership with the Government of Kenya are:

	£ million
Education
Primary School management Project	4.8
Strengthening of Primary Education Phase II	18.9
Health
Kenya Family Health Programme	11.5
HIV/AIDS Prevention and Care Project	8.9
Family Planning Interim Support Project	3.5
Natural Resources/Environmental Protection
National Agricultural Research Programme Phase II	10.6
Kenya Trypanosomiasis Research Institute Phase III	2.4
Protected Areas and Wildlife Support Project	2.9
Small Enterprise Development
Improving the Regulatory Environment Phase II	1.0

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what safeguards are currently in place within her Department to prevent the misuse of aid provided directly to the Kenyan Government. [15015]

Mr. Foulkes: Project funds are not normally provided directly to the Kenyan Government, but are controlled and disbursed by project management agents appointed by the British Government, and are subject to independent audit.

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what recent investigations her Department has undertaken into the misuse of aid provided by the United kingdom to the Kenyan Government; [15018]

(2) what estimate she has made of the amount of aid provided by the United Kingdom to the Kenyan Government which is misused. [15019]

Mr. Foulkes: We know of no misuse of our development assistance funds by the Kenyan Government.

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid has been offered to non-governmental organisations in Kenya to assist with an election-observing programme. [15020]

Mr. Foulkes: My Department has offered up to £264,000 for this purpose.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Compliance Cost Assessments

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list those compliance cost assessments published during the latest six-month period. [16904]

Dr. David Clark: The Government are committed to ensuring that regulations are necessary, fair to all parties and properly costed. In accordance with this, we require Departments to produce and publish CCAs for all regulatory proposals likely to have an impact on business, charities and the voluntary sector.

I have presented to Parliament today a Command Paper listing 90 CCAs published between 1 January 1997 and 30 June 1997 plus 1 CCA published in December 1996 which was omitted from the previous Command Paper. Copies of the CCAs listed have been placed in the Libraries of the House. This is the seventh such Command Paper.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Film Industry

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many films were produced in the United Kingdom in each of the last six years broken down by production type. [15448]

Mr. Tom Clarke: Total production figures for the six years are as follows:

1996: 128

1995: 78

1994: 84

1993: 67

1992: 47

1991: 59

Classification by the production types used by the British Film Institute is available only for the last four years:

Category A: Films where the cultural and financial impetus is from the UK and the majority of personnel is British.

1996: 53

1995: 28

1994: 35

1993: 32

Category B: Majority UK Co-Productions; films in which, although there are foreign partners, there is a UK cultural content and a significant amount of British finance and personnel.

1996: 20

1995: 9

1994: 8

1993: 27

Category C: Minority UK Co-Productions. Foreign (non-US) films in which there is a small UK involvement in finance or personnel.

1996: 30

1995: 23

1994: 20

1993: —

Category D: American films with a UK creative and/or financial involvement.

1996: 25

1995: 18

1994: 21

1993: 10

National Lottery

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what procedures he proposes that lottery funding bodies should adopt to take account of public opinion when considering grant applications; and if he will make a statement. [15605]

Mr. Banks: In the White Paper "The People's Lottery" we announced our intention to ensure that lottery money is spent according to a strategy which reflects distributors' assessment of need in their sectors. These strategies should take account of public opinion. It is for distributors to determine the means by which they intend to assess public opinion and reflect it in their strategies.

Tourism (Crown Scheme)

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the English Tourist Board review of the Crown Scheme will be completed; if he will support changes to the scheme to allow resorts which choose not to have telephones in their lodges to be granted a Five Key rating; and if he will make a statement. [15309]

Mr. Tom Clarke: The English Tourist Board, the AA and the RAC are now considering the responses from the industry consultation on their proposals for replacing the existing Crown and Star schemes. They intended to make a final announcement about the new schemes, which will cover serviced accommodation, before the end of the year.

The English Tourist Board will be reviewing their separate Key Scheme for self-catering accommodation in the spring. The first stage will be to commission research into consumer expectations about this sector.

Academy of Sport

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what plans he has to include team sports in the British Academy of Sport; [16567]

(2) when he expects to make an announcement on the location of the British Academy of Sport. [16568]

Mr. Banks: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State met the United Kingdom Sports Council on 14 November and agreed the basis on which the competition will be completed. I have arranged for copies of his announcement and the paper which was considered at that meeting to be placed in the Library. I expect an announcement on the location of the United Kingdom Sports Institute to be made before Christmas. Team sports will be embraced by the Institute. The distribution of training facilities for team sports between the Headquarters, sports specific institutes, and network institutes, will be decided over time with the governing bodies concerned.

Dance and Drama

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what financial contribution his Department has made towards the costs of the Arts Council for England interim scheme for students of dance and drama; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of this expenditure. [15599]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

The Department will be contributing a minimum of £9 million of new funds to the interim bursary scheme over the four academic years the scheme will run. £15 million has been made available in the current year. We are currently assessing the impact of the scheme with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Arts Council of England.

CABINET OFFICE

Millennium Experience

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister without Portfolio how many accidents have been recorded at the dome site since construction began. [15730]

Mr. Mandelson: There have been three minor accidents, involving three people in all, since construction started at the dome site. None of the incidents were classed as "major" injuries under RIDDOR (Reporting of Injuries; Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995). Although all those involved were back at work within a week or less, all three incidents were reported to the HSE as the time off work in each case exceeded three days.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Cleared-up Crime (Definition)

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is his Department's definition of a cleared-up crime; and if he will make a statement. [16547]

Mr. Michael: The full details of the Home Office definition of a cleared-up crime are set out on page 9 of Volume IV of the "Criminal Statistics Instructions, Annual and Miscellaneous Returns", last issued in Janaury 1997.

An offence is regarded as cleared up when:

1. a person has been charged or summonsed for the offence (irrespective of any subsequent acquittal);

2. the offence has been taken into consideration by the court or the unequivocal consent of the offender is obtained by way of statement of admission and desire to have further offences taken into consideration;

3. the offender has been proceeded against in another police force area for the offence;

4. the offender dies before proceedings could be initiated or completed;

5. the offender has been cautioned by the police;

6. the offender is ill and is unlikely to recover or is too senile or too mentally disturbed for proceedings to be taken;

7. the complainant or an essential witness is dead and the proceedings cannot be pursued;

8. the guilt of the offender is clear but the victim refuses, or is permanently unable, or if a juvenile is not permitted, to give evidence;

9. the offender admits the offence but it is decided that no useful purpose would be served by proceeding with the charge;

10. it is ascertained that an offence has been committed by a child under the age of criminal responsibility;

11. an offence is admitted by a juvenile of the age of criminal responsibility and police take no action other than reporting the particulars to a local authority for action under the Children and Young Persons Act 1969;

12. there is sufficient evidence to charge the offender but

(a) the police prosecuting department, the Crown Prosecution Service or a senior police officer decide that no useful purpose would be served by proceeding with the charge; or

(b) for summary offences of unauthorised taking of a motor vehicle or criminal damage value over £20 the time limit of six months for commencing prosecution has been exceeded.

In cases where a warrant for the arrest of an offender, although issued, remains unexecuted, the offence should be regarded as undetected until the offender has been apprehended or until the case comes within the scope of the above paragraphs. As a general principle and apart from the particular examples given above, it should be noted that where there is insufficient evidence for proceedings to be taken against a known and available person, the offence should be regarded as undetected.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Page: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many experiments on animals took place in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will estimate how many of these would have been avoided under the voluntary agreement. [16652]

Mr. George Howarth: The "Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals, Great Britain, 1996" were laid in the House in July. These show that 2,716,587 procedures were carried out on animals. Of these, 252 were for the purpose of safety testing of finished cosmetic products, the category of tests covered by the voluntary ban.

The ban on cosmetic product testing is an important first step. We announced on 6 November that we would also be exploring a ban on the testing of ingredients for "vanity" products and finished household products.

Mr. Page: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the companies licensed to carry out experiments on animals with their addresses and, where appropriate, the name of the holding company. [16653]

Mr. George Howarth: Section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 prohibits the disclosure of information given in confidence. This includes the details of establishments designated under the Act as places where animal experiments may be carried out.

Publication of such information would increase the risk to establishments, and those who work in them, of attack by animal rights extremists.

Police Forces (Finances)

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list for each police force area (a) the total police revenue grant, (b) the total capital grant, (c) other grants to police authorities from central funds and (d) the total capital and revenue grants from central funds, for each of the last two financial years for which figures are available; what is the planned total capital and revenue expenditure from central funds for each of the next two financial years; and if he will make a statement. [16553]

Mr. Michael: The information requested in respect of 1996–97 and 1997–98 is set out in the tables.

Present planned Home Office support for the police for the next two financial years is set out in the "Home Office Annual Report 1997" (CM 3608), table 5.1, page 37, a copy of which is in the Library. This shows that planned support, in the form of specific current, capital and special grants and credit approvals to police authorities, is £3,761 million in 1998–99 and £3,756 million in 1999–2000. The provisional police funding settlement for 1998–99 is likely to be announced next month.

Grants to police authorities 1996–97

	Police revenue grant (Home Office)[1] £	Police capital grant (Home Office) £	Other grants (Home Office, DETR, Welsh Office)[2] £	Total £
Avon and Somerset	77,278,260	2,351,000	25,030,505	104,659,765
Bedfordshire	28,811,092	1,167,000	9,252,820	39,230,912
Cambridgeshire	33,348,537	629,000	8,821,067	42,798,604
Cheshire	49,500,131	961,000	14,065,961	64,527,092
City of London[3]	27,831,884	421,000	203,269	28,456,153
Cleveland	36,816,273	740,000	18,685,068	56,241,341
Cumbria	28,688,560	585,000	11,833,101	41,106,661

Grants to police authorities 1996–97

	Police revenue grant (Home Office)[1] £	Police capital grant (Home Office) £	Other grants (Home Office, DETR, Welsh Office)[2] £	Total £
Derbyshire	46,355,758	1,122,000	13,394,184	60,871,942
Devon and Cornwall	77,025,454	1,907,000	20,857,334	99,789,788
Dorset	32,474,611	933,000	8,637,944	42,045,555
Durham	35,827,979	870,000	15,495,893	52,193,872
Dyfed Powys	24,241,009	477,000	8,141,371	32,859,380
Essex	76,160,629	4,187,000	20,333,298	100,680,927
Gloucestershire	29,317,079	1,015,000	9,161,711	39,493,790
Greater Manchester	171,880,949	4,286,000	85,120,299	261,287,248
Gwent	31,333,758	680,000	13,283,631	45,297,389
Hampshire	88,068,573	2,911,000	23,858,689	114,838,262
Hertfordshire	45,304,535	1,375,000	11,870,184	58,549,719
Humberside	51,746,268	2,067,000	21,409,048	75,222,316
Kent	82,321,694	4,083,000	24,838,623	111,243,317
Lancashire	81,970,295	1,699,000	33,417,198	117,086,493
Leicestershire	47,395,525	1,982,000	16,268,004	65,645,529
Lincolnshire	29,232,699	1,465,000	8,738,292	39,435,991
Merseyside	112,588,958	3,474,000	61,947,845	178,010,803
Metropolitan Police	846,761,947	27,749,000	526,169,133	1,400,680,080
Norfolk	38,205,064	1,283,000	10,556,691	50,044,755
North Wales	34,681,073	1,079,000	12,075,475	47,835,548
North Yorkshire	34,961,340	1,800,000	8,078,083	44,839,423
Northamptonshire	29,320,943	876,000	8,653,157	38,850,100
Northumbria	94,046,011	5,110,000	47,052,716	146,208,727
Nottinghamshire	57,583,603	3,501,000	23,296,748	84,381,351
South Wales	75,246,910	3,644,000	35,309,366	114,200,276
South Yorkshire	77,594,905	3,530,000	35,241,579	116,366,484
Staffordshire	54,610,654	2,165,000	18,499,215	75,274,869
Suffolk	31,033,584	609,000	8,203,782	39,846,366
Surrey	42,090,281	3,021,000	14,904,094	60,015,375
Sussex	75,763,690	3,746,000	20,106,622	99,616,312
Thames Valley Police	101,658,543	4,046,000	25,702,435	131,406,978
Warwickshire	24,725,312	521,000	6,781,933	32,028,245
West Mercia	51,605,192	2,036,000	11,971,915	65,613,107
West Midlands	172,342,961	4,799,000	84,765,670	261,907,631
West Yorkshire	130,447,666	3,918,000	61,047,452	195,413,118
Wiltshire	30,427,811	747,000	8,703,276	39,878,087
Grant not allocated	—	—	—	—
Total	3,348,628,000	115,567,000	1,451,784,681	4,915,979,681

[1] Excludes balances paid in respect of 1994–95 accounts.
[2] Includes (i) Revenue support grant and SSA reduction grant (DETR and Welsh Office), (ii) loan charges grant paid on pre 1990 debt, (iii) grant paid under section 48 of the Police Act 1996, (iv) grant for special constabulary, (v) party conferences grant, (vi) funding for PFI projects.
[3] "Other grants" excludes Revenue support grant and SSA reduction grant—no separately identifiable figures for the City of London police.

Grants to police authorities 1997–98

	Police revenue grant (Home Office)[1] £	Police capital grant (Home Office) £	Other grants (Home Office, DETR, Welsh Office)[2] £	Total £
Avon and Somerset	79,564,084	1,794,000	26,450,976	107,809,060
Bedfordshire	29,969,661	1,355,000	9,476,397	40,801,058
Cambridgeshire	34,517,288	774,000	9,093,929	44,385,217
Cheshire	51,102,862	778,000	14,770,795	66,651,657
City of London[3]	27,475,936	341,000	238,128	28,055,064
Cleveland	37,523,242	599,000	19,703,565	57,825,807
Cumbria	30,037,318	473,000	11,520,912	42,031,230
Derbyshire	48,089,785	2,171,000	14,157,251	64,418,036
Devon and Cornwall	79,046,941	1,718,000	23,597,481	104,362,422
Dorset	33,804,583	1,043,000	7,121,967	41,969,550
Durham	36,512,965	558,000	16,628,701	53,699,666
Dyfed Powys	25,198,643	386,000	5,779,170	31,363,813
Essex	79,693,871	1,384,000	20,387,051	101,464,922
Gloucestershire	30,371,173	541,000	9,477,225	40,389,398
Greater Manchester	176,078,065	4,757,000	89,530,846	270,365,911
Gwent	32,424,045	494,000	11,180,564	44,098,609
Hampshire	90,616,243	1,565,000	25,492,706	117,673,949
Hertfordshire	47,465,812	1,044,000	11,706,039	60,215,851

Grants to police authorities 1997–98

	Police revenue grant (Home Office)[1] £	Police capital grant (Home Office) £	Other grants (Home Office, DETR, Welsh Office)[2] £	Total £
Humberside	53,034,050	2,131,000	22,925,976	78,091,026
Kent	84,673,351	4,476,000	26,567,262	115,716,613
Lancashire	83,767,796	1,305,000	35,606,978	120,679,774
Leicestershire	49,336,277	853,000	16,715,279	66,904,556
Lincolnshire	30,788,473	1,847,000	9,504,990	42,140,463
Merseyside	113,660,328	3,941,000	66,339,413	183,940,741
Metropolitan Police	900,344,546	24,774,000	506,748,742	1,431,867,288
Norfolk	39,052,823	2,728,000	11,553,084	53,333,907
North Wales	30,218,410	917,000	9,493,069	40,628,479
North Yorkshire	95,656,644	1,803,000	9,258,085	106,717,729
Northamptonshire	35,695,797	1,236,000	9,153,273	46,085,070
Northumbria	35,797,195	4,851,000	50,688,139	91,336,334
Nottinghamshire	59,069,950	2,633,000	25,844,470	87,547,420
South Wales	77,732,137	3,110,000	30,860,974	111,703,111
South Yorkshire	79,345,830	2,840,000	37,649,917	119,835,747
Staffordshire	57,200,041	2,627,000	18,525,556	78,352,597
Suffolk	31,859,276	493,000	8,499,579	40,851,855
Surrey	44,807,788	2,054,000	15,593,134	62,454,922
Sussex	78,415,319	2,696,000	20,820,439	101,931,758
Thames Valley Police	104,631,315	3,175,000	26,489,865	134,296,180
Warwickshire	25,725,130	408,000	7,111,493	33,244,623
West Mercia	53,417,326	2,529,000	12,497,379	68,443,705
West Midlands	175,339,329	4,049,000	91,546,536	270,934,865
West Yorkshire	132,526,320	3,080,000	65,905,102	201,511,422
Wiltshire	31,042,893	883,000	9,454,479	41,380,372
Grant not allocated	—	—	—	—
Total	3,472,630,861	105,172,000	1,475,644,556	5,053,447,417

[1] Excludes balances paid in respect of 1994–95 accounts.
[2] Includes (i) Revenue support grant and SSA reduction grant (DETR and Welsh Office), (ii) loan charges grant paid on pre 1990 debt, (iii) grant paid under section 48 of the Police Act 1996, (iv) party conferences grant, (v) payments to police authorities in respect of implications of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997.
[3] "Other grants" excludes Revenue support grant and SSA reduction grant–no separately identifiable figures for the City of London police.

Crime (Conviction and Clear-up Rates)

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the (a) conviction rate and (b) clear-up rate for each category of crime (i) in total and (ii) as a percentage change, per area, in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [16549]

Mr. Michael: The information requested is given in the tables, copies of which have been placed in the Library. Figures for clear-ups and convictions are not directly comparable because clear-ups and convictions are not directly comparable because clear-ups relate to offences and convictions relate to offenders.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what are the detailed procedures for following up asylum seekers after their entry into the United Kingdom; [15081]

(2) who is responsible for following up asylum seekers after their entry into the United Kingdom. [15084]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Asylum seekers granted temporary admission by the Immigration Service may be required to report to the police or the Immigration Service on specified dates. It remains, however, the responsibility of all asylum seekers to maintain contact with the Immigration and Nationality Directorate and to inform the Directorate of any change of address or representative or of any other relevant change in circumstances.

A failure to attend for interview, to respond promptly to written inquires, or otherwise to comply in full with the procedures or the terms of temporary admission, may result in the application being refused.

Police Complaints

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will call for reports on the cost of the complaints and discipline departments for the current year of the police forces of (i) Manchester, (ii) Liverpool, (iii) the West Midlands and (iv) Northumbria. [16127]

Mr. Michael: The forces concerned have supplied the information set out below, which may not necessarily be directly comparable. The estimated costs for the current financial year are:

	£ million
Greater Manchester Police	2.05
Merseyside Police	1.6
West Midlands Police	1.7
Northumbria	0.86

Intrusive Surveillance

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 4 November, Official Report, column 119, if the absolute requirement to obtain the authority of a warrant to carry out intrusive surveillance involving entry on to, or interference with, property also applies to surveillance carried out from without a property. [15953]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The statutory provision is to be found in sections 5 and 6 of the Intelligence Services Act 1994. The requirement to obtain a warrant applies to all operations which involve entry on or interference with property, or with wireless telegraphy.

Interception of Communications

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests for phone tap warrants were made by MI5 in 1996; how many were (a) agreed and (b) refused. [15721]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him on 3 November. Official Report, column 26, where I explained that, in accordance with the practice adopted by successive Interception Commissioners, I considered that it would be prejudicial to national security to publish figures for the number of telephone warrants issued to each individual agency.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if phone taps authorised for numbers allocated to public phone boxes are included in the figures given to Parliament in respect of the numbers of phone taps authorised. [15704]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The information published in the Annual Report of the Interception Commissioner includes all telecommunications warrants issued by the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Scotland, irrespective of the type of telephone which is intercepted.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many warrants authorising phone taps related to (a) an individual and (b) two or more individuals, including organisations, for each year since 1986. [15717]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: It would not be in the public interest to publish this information.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many directives have been issued to British Telecom under section 94 of the Telecommunications Act 1984 for each year since its inception. [15724]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: Section 94(4) of the Telecommunications Act 1984 requires the Secretary of State to lay before the House a copy of every direction given under section 94 unless he is of the opinion that disclosure of the direction is against the interests of national security. No directions have been laid before Parliament. It follows that any directions which may have been issued by the Secretary of State for the Home Department could not be disclosed, in the interests of national security.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many items of mail were legally intercepted and opened for each year since 1986; and in respect of how many persons. [15697]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The available information is published in the annual reports of the Interception Commissioner, which list the number of postal warrants issued each year by the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Scotland. Figures for the numbers of postal warrants issued by the Home Secretary in each year since 1986 are as follows:

Postal warrants issued by the Home Secretary

Year	Number of warrants
1985	40
1986	95
1987	34
1988	48
1989	31
1990	42
1991	62
1992	118
1993	105
1994	76
1995	87
1996	69
Total	807

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances monitoring of international communications terminating within the United Kingdom is subject to approval by warrant. [15681]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The requirement to obtain a warrant under the Interception of Communications Act 1985 applies in relation to the interception of any communication in the course of its transmission by means of a public telecommunications system.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will amend the terms of the Interception of Communications Act 1985 to comply with (a) Article 13 and (b) Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights. [15711]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: We shall, in due course, bring forward proposals to amend the Interception of Communications Act 1985 so as to bring it into line with the judgment of the European Court of Human Rights in the case of Halford v. the United Kingdom.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances calls made by prisoners from Her Majesty's prisons are monitored. [15684]

Ms Quin [holding answer 17 November 1997]: All telephone calls made by prisoners, other than in open establishments, are recorded and are liable to be monitored. Calls made by high and exceptional risk category A prisoners are simultaneously monitored. Monitoring of other prisoners' calls takes place on a selective basis where there is justifiable suspicion of abuse, supplemented by random monitoring to the extent to which it is considered operationally necessary for the purposes of security, control and the detection of crime.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which recommendations of the Birkett Report are not presently effective. [15727]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: I refer the hon. Member to the report by Lord Diplock on the interception of communications in Great Britain, which was published in March 1981 (Cmnd 8191). In the fourth paragraph, Lord Diplock recorded that all of Lord Birkett's recommendations had subsequently been adopted and had been followed ever since. Following a White Paper published in 1985, the Interception of Communications Act 1985 was enacted and this Act provides the current statutory basis for lawful interception of communications.

MI5

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of the MI5 budget is currently spent on counter-subversion. [15679]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: In the current financial year, the Security Service expects to spend less than 1 per cent. of its budget on residual work on counter subversion.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the present terms of reference for MI5. [15720]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The functions of the Security Service are prescribed in the Security Service Act 1989, as amended by the Security Service Act 1996. They are, in summary, as follows:

(i) the protection of national security;

(ii) safeguarding the economic well being of the United Kingdom against threats posed by the actions or intentions of persons outside the British Islands;

(iii) acting in support of the activities of police forces and other law enforcement agencies in the prevention and detection of serious crime.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons are employed in reviewing and destroying files now deemed inappropriate to be held by MI5. [15696]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The review of Security Service files is an integral part of the duties of records management staff within the Security Service. Successive Governments have deemed it inappropriate to provide a breakdown of staff allocated to these tasks. Total staff at the Security Service at 4 November 1997 was 1,860.5 (full-time equivalent).

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances MI5 uses persons external to MI5 to carrying out tapping or other covert surveillance tasks. [15699]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: It has been the policy of successive Governments not to discuss operational matters relating to the work of the security and intelligence services.

Scottish Devolution

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his oral answer of 27 October 1997, Official Report, column 574, which department will be responsible for the campaign against drug misuse in Scotland. [15764]

Mr. Galbraith: I have been asked to reply.

As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department indicated in his reply of 27 October, the Scottish Executive will assume the current responsibilities of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland and my right hon. and learned Friend the Lord Advocate. The reply made it clear that these responsibilities would include drug misuse issues such as health, treatment and education and enforcement of drug misuse legislation in Scotland. Responsibilities on education would cover advertising and prevention campaigns on drug misuse.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

India

Ms Jenny Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many applications for visitors' visas to the United Kingdom have been received at the New Delhi embassy since January; and how many of the applications were refused. [15930]

Mr. Fatchett: Between 1 January and 31 October 1997, 46,799 applications to visit the United Kingdom were received at the British High Commission in New Delhi of which 6,064—13 per cent.—have been refused.

Ms Jenny Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will review the geographical location of the United Kingdom's embassies in India with particular reference to giving adequate coverage to the northern states. [15931]

Mr. Fatchett: We regularly keep under review the size and location of diplomatic posts around the world. We have no current plans to open further posts in India. Our present Missions in India are the High Commission in New Delhi, the Deputy High Commissions in Bombay, Calcutta and Madras and the British Trade Office in Bangalore.

Export Promotion

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the initiatives taken by his Department to improve export promotion. [16357]

Mr. Fatchett: This Department and the Department of Trade and Industry launched the Export Forum in June to look at ways to enhance the effectiveness of current government support for UK exporters. The Forum met between July and October, and my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade welcomed its recommendations in her written announcement to the House on 4 November 1997, Official Report, columns 127–28.

In July we also announced a rolling programme of attachments of business men and women to work on specific promotions or projects overseas for periods of a few months.

Human Rights

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what obstacles remain to the United Kingdom indicating its adherence to the Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials adopted by the 8th UN Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders in September 1990; [15888]

(2) what obstacles remain to the United Kingdom indicating its adherence to the UN Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty adopted by the General Assembly Resolution 45/113 of 14 December 1990; [15889]

(3) what obstacles remain to the United Kingdom indicating its adherence to the United Nations Principles on the Effective Prevention and Investigation of Extra-Legal, Arbitrary and Summary Executions recommended by the Economic and Social Council Resolution of 24 May 1989; [15890]

(4) what obstacles remain to the United Kingdom indicating its adherence to the United Nations Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment adopted by the General Assembly Resolution of 9 December 1988; [15891]

(5) what obstacles remain to the United Kingdom indicating its adherence to the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners, approved by the Economic and Social Council of 13 May 1977. [15892]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We support the broad intentions of the important human rights standards contained in these United Nations texts. The United Kingdom joined consensus on their adoption. However, these instruments are not legally binding. As their wording shows, they are recommendatory in nature. There is therefore no mechanism by which States can become party to them.

Indonesia

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he made of the human rights situation in Indonesia when deciding to continue to export arms to Indonesia; and in what circumstances he would ban arms sales. [16420]

Mr. Fatchett: We will not issue an export licence if the arguments for doing so are outweighed by the need to comply with the UK's international obligations and commitments, or by concern that the goods might be used for internal repression or international aggression, or by the risks of regional stability, or other considerations as described in the new criteria for defence sales announced by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 28 July 1997, Official Report, columns 26-29. These factors will be taken into account when considering an export licence for any country, including Indonesia.

MI6

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the present terms of reference for MI6. [15707]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The principle role of the Secret Intelligence Service is the production of secret intelligence in support of the security, defence, foreign and economic policies within the framework of requirements laid upon us by the JIC and approved by Ministers. The functions of SIS are set out in section 1 of the Intelligence Services Act 1994.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will list each of the overseas trips made by herself and other members of her ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister of Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if she will make a statement. [15212]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 11 November 1997]: DTI Ministers have undertaken the following visits since taking office on 2 May. In respect of the cost estimates, those relating to more recent visits may incur some additional charges which have not yet been booked to the Department.

		£
President of the Board of Trade
25–28 May Japan	Inward Investment and Trade Promotion	29,150
15–16 June Paris	Attend Airbus Ministerial Meeting and Paris Airshow	830
01 July Brussels	Meeting with EU Commissioner Van Miert	850
10–11 September Washington DC	Trade Policy	15,320
13 October Brussels	Meetings with Commissioners Wulf-Mathies and Bangemann	960
12–13 November Brussels	Attend Industry Council	1,170
Minister for Trade and Competitiveness in Europe: Lord Simon of Highbury
20–21 May Brussels	Attend Internal Market Council	750
25–26 May Amsterdam	European Round Table	710
3–5 September Germany and Austria	Series of bilaterals with European Counterparts	1,320
3–4 October Luxembourg	Attend Internal Market Council	860
Minister for Small Firms Trade and Industry: Barbara Roche
5–6 June Munich, Germany	Attend Bavarian Innovation and Research Fair	1,160
15–20 June Brazil	Trade Promotion	12,780
26–27 June Luxembourg and Brussels	Attend Telecoms Council	810
17 July Brussels	Meeting with EU Commissioner for Small Firms	430
10–11 September Hanover, Germany	Speak at Machine Tools and Technologies Exhibition	1,170
Minister for Trade: Lord Clinton-Davis
16–19 May	New York and Trade Promotion Washington DC	11,480
25–26 May Paris	OECD Ministerial	1,830
14–19 June South Africa	Trade Promotion	9,570
21–27 June Thailand and Malaysia	Trade Promotion	11,650
20–21 July France	Trade Promotion and Trade Policy	1,040
24–25 July Ireland	Trade Promotion and Trade Policy	560
9–17 September Argentina and Chile	Trade Promotion	15,050
21–29 September Korea/Japan	Trade Promotion and ASEM	18,760
15 October Paris	Trade Promotion	300
17–22 October Indonesia	Trade Promotion	13,320

		£
Minister for Science Energy and Industry: John Battle
15 May Brussels	EU Research Council	850
26 May Brussels	Energy Council	980
31 May Azerbaijan	Caspian Oil and Gas Show	3,500
17 June Paris	Air Show	770
7 July Bonn	Information Society Conference	960
27 October Luxembourg	Energy Council	1,020
9 November Brussels	Research Council	1,030
Minister of State: Ian McCartney
26–27 June Luxembourg	Social Affairs Council	1,280
4–6 July Luxembourg	EC Business (Informal Social Affairs Council)	850
7 October Luxembourg	Social Affairs Council	1,110
9–10 November Austria	UK Presidency Bilateral	1,310
Minister for Competition and Consumer Affairs: Nigel Griffiths
22–29 June Antwerp and Athens	Attend Institute of Trading Standards Conference	1,800
24–27 September Luxembourg and Paris	Attend UK Industry Travel and Tour Conference	1,220
16–19 October Stockholm	Meetings with EU Consumer Ministers	1,080
30 October–4 November Madrid La Palma Tenerife Brussels	Visiting EU Consumer MinistersVisiting Observatory Attending ABTA Convention Attending EU Consumer Council	1,920

[1] A notional cost representing a share of the cost the Department paid for a train to Paris for the whole UK business delegation.

Locate in Scotland

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what recent discussions her Department has had with the Scottish Office in respect of Locate in Scotland. [15628]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My officials have regular contact with both the Scottish Office and Locate in Scotland on the handling of inward investment projects in the UK. My Department's Invest in Britain Bureau continues to work in partnership with, amongst others, the investment agency for Scotland under the Committee on Overseas Promotion arrangements.

Critical Illness Insurance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimates she has made of the current number of people who have taken out critical illness insurance; and what the figure was in 1987. [15970]

Mr. Ian McCartney: I understand that the Association of British Insurers estimate that in 1996 some 93,000 new policies for critical illness insurance were written in the UK, and that some £50 million of premium was paid for them. No other estimates, or corresponding ones for 1987, are available.

Patents (Genes)

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the link between patents on genes and research into new cures; and if she will place a copy of such research in the Library. [16389]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 17 November 1997]: My Department has not commissioned research into the link between patents on genes and research into new cures.

Under the relevant legislation (the Patents Act 1977) patent protection may be obtained for genes when isolated from the body or produced by a technical process but only if general criteria for patentability are met.

United Kingdom law and that of all member states of the European Union is closely aligned with that of the European Patent Convention which came into force in 1978.

Under current legislation acts done for experimental purposes relating to the subject matter of a patented invention do not infringe patent rights.

Mr. Baker: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on her policy on the levying of royalties by patent holders on crops to which patented genes have spread through horizontal gene transfer. [16152]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The current legislation (The Patents Act 1977) details the act which constitute infringement of a patent for an invention. Where the invention is a product, these acts include making, disposing, offering to dispose, using or importing the product without the consent of the patent holder.

Application of these provisions in any given circumstance is for a Court to determine. To date there has been no litigation on the levying of royalties by patent holders on crops to which patented genes have spread through horizontal gene transfer.

Post Office

Mr. Reed: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress she has made in her review of Post Office services, with particular reference to Crown post office closures; and if she will make a statement. [16560]

Mr. Ian McCartney: The first stage of our review of the Post Office has taken the form of a scoping study and has comprised extensive consultations with the main interested parties in the postal sector. Our aim is to develop a comprehensive policy programme for the Post Office in the context of our manifesto commitment to grant the Post Office greater commercial freedom. Decisions on the future of the Post Office policy of converting Crown post offices to agency status, which has been suspended since May, will be taken within the wider framework of the review.

Inward Investment

Mr. Beggs: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what changes she has made since 1 May to the reporting relationship between regional inward investment attracting organisations and his Department. [16646]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My Department's Invest in Britain Bureau continues to work with all its regional partners under the Committee on Overseas Promotion on arrangements to ensure that the UK remains the Number 1 location in Europe for attracting inward investment.

Mr. Beggs: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how the decision-making powers of (a) Scottish Enterprise, (b) the Welsh Development Agency, (c) the Northern Ireland Industrial Development Board and

(d) the equivalent English agencies on issues of inward investment will be linked to the work of her Department in future. [16647]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My Department's Invest in Britain Bureau will continue to work in partnership under the Committee on Overseas Promotion arrangements with the inward investment agencies of Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and the English regions to maintain the UK as the Number 1 location in Europe for foreign direct investment.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is her policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if she will make a statement. [16309]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: It has been the Department's practice for some years to fax, on request, its press releases to Opposition party spokesman on the day of release.

Discrimination

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will list the names of those employers who have been found to have breached the anti-discrimination legislation at an industrial tribunal, indicating the amount of compensation awarded, since 1 May. [16481]

Mr. Ian McCartney: Since 1 May 1997, there have been 86 successful applications made against employers at Industrial Tribunal hearings in the United Kingdom where the main jurisdiction fell within anti-discrimination legislation. In 28 of these cases, awards were made to the applicants.

The detailed information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Full details of each tribunal application, the tribunal's decision and the names of respondents in particular cases can be found on the Public Register at Bury St. Edmunds, unless the case involves an allegation of a sexual offence.

Competition Bill

Mr. Paterson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many (a) tobacconist shops and (b) public houses will be affected by the Competition Bill. [16354]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: Agreements which fulfil the criteria for exemption under European block exemption regulations, including those relating to beer tie agreements and exclusive distribution, will be automatically exempt from the prohibition of anti-competitive agreements.

The Competition Bill will apply to agreements or conduct which are anti-competitive.

BT Entertainment Services

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when the consultation paper on the proposed lifting of restrictions on BT carrying entertainment services will be published. [16692]

Mrs. Roche: The Government are actively considering the issue. We wish to see competition sustained and developing further in all areas of the market and in the consumer interest. We intend, as soon as possible, to publish for consultation our proposals on the way forward on this issue.

Body Piercing

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what qualifications are needed and what licensing is required of persons who engage in body piercing. [15975]

Ms Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

There are no statutory qualifications for cosmetic body piercers. Local authorities in London have powers either to license or to register cosmetic body piercing businesses. The majority of London local authorities have adopted licensing powers which enable them to set licensing conditions, including the qualifications of persons offering cosmetic body piercing. Local authorities outside London do not have similar powers. In October 1996, the Department consulted on a proposal to give local authorities outside London powers to control cosmetic body piercing businesses. We are currently considering the outcome of the consultation exercise.

WALES

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to the answer of 10 November from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15866]

Mr. Ron Davies [holding answer 13 November 1997]: My Department is in the process of determining the most cost-effective way of using Internet e-mail, and we expect that we will start to do so early in 1998. At that point e-mail addresses of Ministers and senior officials will be made public.

Welsh Economy

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what new proposals he has to promote innovation in the Welsh economy. [14791]

Mr. Hain: In our recently published Economic Strategy Statement we are consulting on various measures to realise the potential of new technology and are meanwhile taking forward our Wales Information Society and Regional Technology Plan initiative.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Fair Trade (Coffee and Tea)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the President of the Council, pursuant to the oral Statement by the Secretary of State for International Development, Official Report,

5 November, column 332, if she will instruct officials to serve coffee and tea furnished by suppliers who adhere to fair trade standards in her Department. [15496]

Mrs. Ann Taylor: The Privy Council Office has no official catering facilities of its own. Beverages served at meetings are supplied under Cabinet Office arrangements.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Students

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the Department for Education plans to fund all four years of study by students from Northern Ireland at Scottish Universities; how many students from Northern Ireland are currently in the fourth year of a degree course at a Scottish University; and what assessment he has made of the cost of funding this fourth year. [16093]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The issue is the subject of Ministerial discussion. In 1996–97 there were around 900 Northern Ireland domiciled students on the fourth year of a full-time first degree course at Scottish Higher Education Institutions. The estimate of costs is currently being examined.

Springvale University

Mr. Maginnis: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans there are to develop the Springvale University campus project; what have been the main determining factors underlying the project's development; and if she will make a statement about revenue funding implications for higher education provision in Northern Ireland over the next decade. [16450]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 17 November 1997]: Discussions, including consideration of new style further and higher education provision at Springvale, are currently taking place between the Belfast Institute of Further and Higher Education and the University of Ulster. Proposals arising from these discussions, including the revenue funding implications, are subject to economic appraisal.

Jury Trials

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate she has made of the increase in the number of jury trials formerly held by Diplock courts as a result of the proposed changes to the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Acts. [15902]

Mr. Ingram: It is not possible to predict the number of cases which will be heard before a jury as a result of the proposed changes to the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996. It will be for my right hon. and learned Friend the Attorney-General to determine, on the merits of each individual case before him, whether or not to certify it out.

May 1974 Bomb Attacks

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what co-operation she will offer the Irish Government to assist investigation into allegations of the unlawful involvement of British military intelligence in bomb attacks in Dublin and Monaghan in May 1974. [15908]

Mr. Ingram: If the Irish Government have any evidence to substantiate allegations about the bomb attacks in Dublin and Monaghan in May 1974 the Government will support investigations to establish the validity of such evidence.

International Decommissioning Commission

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will place the initial report of the International Decommissioning Commission in the Library. [15895]

Mr. Ingram: The International Decommissioning Commission is an independent body established jointly by the British and Irish Governments. It has not yet finalised its initial report. The Governments will keep under review in consultation with the Commission and the other participants in the political negotiations, the handling of reports produced by the Commission on the difficult and sensitive issues entrusted to it.

Victims of Violence

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what are the terms of reference of the Commission established to look at ways of recognising the suffering of victims of violence in Northern Ireland. [15909]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The terms of reference for the Commission are to look at ways of recognising the suffering of victims of violence in Northern Ireland and:

- to examine the feasibility of providing greater recognition for those who have become victims in the last thirty years as a consequence of events in Northern Ireland, recognising that those events have also had appalling repercussions for many people not living in Northern Ireland,
- to consult the various organisations concerned with Welfare of the bereaved and disabled,
- to consult community groups, churches, political parties; and
- to make recommendations to the Secretary of State.

TREASURY

Computers (Century Date Change)

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on what funding provision has been made to accommodate the expenditure needed to resolve the computer millennium problem; and if he expects to have sufficient funding to pay for the work necessary to achieve complete millennium compliance by 1 January 2000. [13564]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 4 November 1997]: Within the Treasury, most of the required compliance can be achieved by upgrading proprietary software or hardware, which would have formed part of the normal development of the department's IT systems. Costs will largely be related to time spent by staff testing their systems. Any costs associated with this work will be met from within existing plans.

Contingency Reserve

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what allocations from the Contingency Reserve have been made for (a) 1997–98 and (b) 1998–99; what is the value of the remaining unallocated component of the Contingency Reserve in (1) 1997–98 and (2) 1998–99; and if he will make a statement. [13284]

Mr. Darling [holding answer 6 November 1997]: The Reserve announced in November 1996 for 1997–98 was £2,5 billion. The main Estimates included allocations of £200 million from the Reserve to departments and the summer Supplementary Estimates included allocations of a further £52 million. The winter Supplementary Estimates to be presented on 13 November will include allocations of a further £234 million. The Reserve for 1998–99 will be £2.8 billion reflecting the allocations in my reply to the hon. Member of 30 July Official Report, column 347.

Dividends (Tax Credits)

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations his Department has received from United States (a) Government bodies, (b) trade associations and (c) major corporations regarding the reduction of the tax credit on dividends. [14689]

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson [holding answer 6 November 1997]: Full details of the changes to tax credits were given immediately after the Budget, as a matter of course, to treaty partners concerned, including the United States Government. In that regard, we have responded to a small number of requests for technical clarification, and received a few representations from trade associations and major corporations.

Pension Funds

Mr. Flight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the number of people of pensionable age who have retired but who have not purchased an annuity with the accumulated capital from their pension fund. [14757]

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: The information is not available.

Mr. Flight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to mitigate the impact of the abolition of ACT recovery on pension funds, in respect of people of pensionable age who have not purchased an annuity. [14756]

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: None.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list (a) his Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if he will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared to those for 1990; and what estimate he has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted from 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15548]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the United Kingdom's Second Report under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward what the current program is expected to achieve to 2020.

EU Customs Information Convention

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 1 July, Official Report, columns 74–76, concerning the Customs Information convention of the European Community, by what means the convention was ratified by the United Kingdom; and what was the date of the relevant parliamentary proceedings. [15567]

Dawn Primarolo: The Convention on the use of Information Technology for Customs Purposes (the Customs Information System Convention) was ratified by the United Kingdom in accordance with the agreed practice and procedure for the ratification by the United Kingdom of international agreements, known as the Ponsonby Rule. The procedure provides Parliament with the opportunity to consider the [redacted] of any agreement which requires ratification, acceptance, approval or accession by the United Kingdom by laying before Parliament a text of the agreement at least 21 sitting days before ratification can be effected. Provided that Parliament does not seek a debate on the agreement, the Foreign Secretary signs the instrument of ratification which is subsequently deposited with the Secretary General of the Council.

In the case of the Convention on the use of Information Technology for Customs Purposes; the Command Paper was laid before Parliament on 13 November 1996, no Parliamentary debate was sought and the Convention was ratified on 18 June 1997—the date when the United Kingdom instrument of ratification was deposited with the Secretary General to the Council.

Official Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the expenditure by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on official hospitality for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (iv) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997. [15238]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Expenditure on hospitality by Ministers and officials is shown in the following table:

£000

Year	Treasury	Inland Revenue (Inc VOA)	Royal Mint	Customs and Excise	National Savings	Office for Nat. Stats.
1980–81	(1)	(1)	(1)	(1)	(1)	(1)
1987–88	9.9	(1)	(1)	(1)	1.9	(1)

£000

Year	Treasury	Inland Revenue (Inc VOA)	Royal Mint	Customs and Excise	National Savings	Office for Nat. Stats.
1990–91	30.4	(1)	35.0	[2]41.0	5.8	(1)
1991–92	35.2	43.0	33.0	[2]55.0	3.6	(1)
1992–93	41.2	41.0	28.0	386.0	10.2	(1)
1993–94	27.3	26.0	40.0	300.0	10.0	(1)
1994–95	40.5	27.0	39.0	266.0	8.4	(1)
1995–96	41.1	18.0	40.0	267.0	13.3	(1)
1996–97	49.5	14.0	40.0	273.0	17.5	33.1
1997–98 May-September	11.0	9.0	24.0	120.0	5.5	22.7

[1] Figures unavailable.
[2] Figures for overseas hospitality are unavailable for these years.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the expenditure by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on overseas travel for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997; and if he will provide a breakdown to show (1) air fares and (2) other expenditure relating to overseas travel. [15239]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Expenditure for all overseas travel (including subsistence) is shown in the table.

£000

	Treasury	Inland Revenue (including Valuation Office Agency)		Custom and Excise	Office for National Statistics
		All	Of which Air Fares
1980–81	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1987–88	299	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1990–91	519	n/a	n/a	1,214	n/a
1991–92	598	313	213	1,557	n/a
1992–93	652	307	222	1,850	n/a
1993–94	796	242	85	2,425	n/a
1994–95	677	472	169	2,766	n/a
1995–96	667	928	174	3,089	n/a
1996–97	775	468	139	3,551	510
1997–98 (May–September)	307	78	69	1,565	144

n/a: These figures are not available.
Figures for the Royal Mint are not available, except at disproportionate cost. Expenditure by National Savings on overseas travel is estimated to be less than £1,000 in each year, but more precise figures are not available, except at disproportionate cost.
Inland Revenue aside, expenditure for airfares is not separately identifiable.

Publicity and Advertising

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the total expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for (i) 1993–94, (ii) 1994–95, (iii) 1995–96, (iv) 1996–97, (v) the 1997–98, year to date, (vi) the 1997–98, full year estimate and (vii) the 1998–99 planned expenditure. [15241]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Expenditure on publicity and advertising for the years requested is shown in the table below:

£000

	Treasury[1]	Inland Revenue[2]	Customs and Excise	Royal Mint[3]	National Savings	Office for National Statistics
1993–94	122	865	922	958	15,419	[4]—
1994–95	121	948	840	794	13,567	[4]—
1995–96	96	8,128	729	2,012	12,975	[4]—
1996–97	121	7,637	1,329	1,879	10,799	369
1997–98 (year to date)	41	5,900	602	1,557	5,476	144
1997–98 (full year)	[5]—	7,900	1,400	[5]—	9,389	297

[1] In 1993–94 and 1994–95, the Treasury included all recruitment expenditure (advertising and expenses) in the same account code. Form 1995–96 recruitment advertising was separated. The earlier figures have been adjusted to provide a series on a consistent basis.
[2] These figures include spending by the Valuation Office Agency. The recent increase reflects publicity for the move to self assessment.
[3] Figures for the Royal Mint for 1993–94 and 1994–95 are higher than those given in previous answers. This is due to a change of policy by the Mint regarding the treatment of commercial information held in confidence.
[4] The ONS was created on 1 April 1996 following the merger of the Central Statistical Office and the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys. Information for previous years is not readily available.
[5] The only figures currently available for 1997–98 are spend to date.
Detailed budgets for 1998–99 have yet to be agreed.

CAP (Fontainebleau Rebate)

Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much the United Kingdom's Fontainebleau Rebate would increase if a community-funded agricultural support programme benefiting British farmers underspent its projected budget by £200 million. [16384]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 17 November 1997]: It is not possible to be sure of the effect for the UK's abatement without making further hypothetical assumptions, since a range of other factors could influence the outcome. For example, if there were a transfer of provision to another programme within the Community Budget from which the UK were to gain equal benefit, there would be no consequences for the amount of out abatement. Any effect would however be reflected in the abatement only in respect of the following year.

Dorneywood

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the dates he has been in residence at Dorneywood since May; and if he will make a statement. [16158]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I make visits to Dorneywood as and when my diary permits.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the running costs of Dorneywood in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [16157]

Mr. Gordon Brown: As Dorneywood is financed by a private trust, my Department does not bear its running costs.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Public Appointments

Mr. Charles Clarke: To ask the President of the Council what assessment Her Majesty's Government have made of the advantages of establishing a procedure for ratification by Select Committee of some senior public appointments; and when she expects to bring recommendations to the House. [15301]

Mrs. Ann Taylor [holding answer 10 November 1997]: The Government have accepted the recommendations of the Committee on Standards in Public Life on appointments to executive non-departmental public bodies and NHS trusts. The consultation paper "Opening up quangos", published by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 11 November, sets out proposals to extend these recommendations to other public bodies. The Government will review the possibility of ratification of certain appointments by Select Committees but has no immediate plans to recommend this.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Hill Farmers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the average income of hill farmers in each year since 1987. [15197]

Mr. Morley: Estimate of average net farm income for full-time Less Favoured Area (LFA) cattle and sheep farms in the United Kingdom are given in the table. The figures, expressed in real terms at 1996–97 prices, are estimates of averages across the United Kingdom. These data have to be interpreted with caution because incomes of individual farms vary considerably according to the farm size, mix enterprises and production systems. More detailed information can be found in the annual publication "Farm Incomes in the United Kingdom".

United Kingdom—LFA cattle and sheep farms

Year	Average net farm income (£/farm) (real terms at 1996–97 prices)
1987–88	14,900
1988–89	17,000
1989–90	11,300
1990–91	8,400
1991–92	10,000
1992–93	12,700
1993–94	14,500
1994–95	10,500
1995–96	14,500
1996–97	14,100

Forecasts for 1997—98 will be placed in the Library of the House within the next few weeks.

Soil Survey Data

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to make soil survey data accessible. [15852]

Mr. Morley: Soil survey data are currently published and readily available as maps, an associated range of Bulletins and the Soil Geo-chemical Atlas.

Our officials, along with those in the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions and the Environment Agency, are in discussions with the Soil Survey and Land Use Research Centre—which holds the data—to assess how access might be better facilitated for bona fide research purposes.

Soil Protection

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he plans to publish his plans for soil protection. [15851]

Mr. Morley: In response to a recommendation of the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution, the Government plan to issue an explicit statement of their policies for the protection of soil. This will take the form of a "soil strategy". Our officials are in discussion with the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions about the preparation of the strategy. The plan is to consult publicly before the strategy is finalised.

Live Animal Exports

Dr. Palmer: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he will announce the results of the review of the operation of laws designed to safeguard the welfare of live animals destined for export from the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [15318]

Mr. Morley: The supervision of exports must not only be the best possible but also be seen to be the best. The current system lends itself to criticism. We intend to change the system so that the Department can nominate veterinary surgeons from a special panel and pay them from a charge on the exporter. Instructions to veterinary surgeons will be clarified and additional training given. We are in discussions with the professional veterinary bodies to get the details in place as soon as possible.

Dr. Palmer: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many live (a) sheep and (b) pigs have been exported from the United Kingdom since 1 January for (i) slaughter, (ii) further fattening and (iii) breeding. [15317]

Mr. Rooker: The following table, derived from Departmental computer records of animal health export certifications, shows the number of live sheep and pigs exported from the United Kingdom, from January–October 1997 inclusive in the categories requested.

	For slaughter	For further fattening	For breeding
Sheep	28,100	288,200	1,200
Pigs	71,000	11,700	138,700

The information given above is provisional and subject to change.

Climate Change

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received on the impact of climate change on (a) agricultural production and methods and (b) crop diseases and pest control; and if he will make a statement. [15590]

Mr. Morley: The Department is aware of an increasing level of concern about the impact of a climate change on agriculture. In particular, we received a query from the Country Landowners' Association covering a range of climate change issues following my visit to East Anglia in June. In October, my officials attended a conference arranged by the Farming and Wildlife Advisory Group (FWAG) to discuss climate change issues with a group of farmers and other interested groups.

The Department will spend about £1 million this year on R and D on climate change in relation to agriculture, of which £300,000 will be spent assessing the impact of climate change and identifying adaptation strategies. Much of the rest will be spent on assessing the extent of greenhouse gas emissions from agriculture and developing options for mitigation. We also intend to publish a booklet on climate change and agriculture in the United Kingdom in the early part of next year.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list (a) his Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if he will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared to those for 1990; and what estimate he has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15547]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the United Kingdom's Second Report under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward what the current programme is expected to achieve to 2020.

Farmers (Hunting)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will estimate the number of farmers who have prohibited hunting with dogs on their land; and what percentage of the total this represents. [15972]

Mr. Morley: There is no information available to form the basis for such an estimate, but farmers are free to prohibit hunting with dogs on their land and many do so.

Agriculture Tenancies Act 1995

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when his Department will publish a review of the workings of the Agriculture Tenancies Act 1995; and if he will make a statement. [16070]

Mr. Morley: An independent initial policy evaluation of the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995, commissioned by this Department and the Welsh Office, is now nearing completion. The results, which it is expected the researchers will wish to publish, will provide data for England and Wales separately.

The primary aims of this initial evaluation were to examine the initial impact of the 1995 Act and to establish a baseline for a more detailed independent evaluation expected to be commissioned in three to four years time.

Farmers (Surveys)

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many postal surveys of farmers have been undertaken by his Department during the past five years; and which of these had a statutory basis providing for penalties for non-compliance. [16047]

Mr. Morley: In 1996, 15 regular statistical surveys were conducted to farmers, of which 6 were compulsory. This excludes 2 voluntary surveys which are not run every year. Over the last five years, 3 voluntary statistical surveys have been dropped and 2 have been introduced. Rather than reducing the number of surveys, most survey control action has concentrated on reducing the numbers contacted. In addition to the statistical surveys, 11 ad hoc postal surveys were run to provide information for policy needs in 1996.

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many postal surveys of farmers undertaken during the past five years requested information which was required by the European Commission. [16048]

Mr. Morley: Of the 15 regular statistical surveys conducted in 1996, 10 provided information required by the EU. This provides the annual picture, apart from a labour survey which is run every 2 or 3 years to provide detailed information required in the European Structure Survey.

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to reduce the number of (a) separate surveys and (b) questions and their level of detail required of farmers and landowners. [16046]

Mr. Morley: The Government are committed to reducing the amount of statistical data collected from farmers. Survey control procedures ensure that the essential information need and the number of surveys is regularly reviewed. Increased sampling in the June and December surveys, together with use of administrative data, will save on the issue of over 25,000 forms this year. About 25 per cent. of farmers contacted in the June 1997 census received a simpler form.

Organic Farming

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress has been made in increasing the percentage of agricultural land on which organic farming is practised. [16330]

Mr. Morley: Figures available from the UK Register of Organic Food Standards show that the total area of land farmed organically has increased from 30,424 hectares (0.17 per cent. of all agricultural land, including rough grazing) in April 1993 to 53,907 hectares (0.3 per cent.) in November 1997.

Slaughter

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many meat animals are slaughtered for human consumption each year without first being rendered unconscious. [16700]

Mr. Morley: The Welfare of Animals (Slaughter or Killing) Regulations 1995 (SI 1995 No. 731) require that animals are stunned so that there is immediate loss of consciousness which lasts until death. This applies to the slaughter of all animals other than when, for reasons of religion, slaughter is carried out without prior stunning. Information is not held separately on the numbers of animals killed without prior stunning by the Jewish or Muslim methods.

Cloning

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of the proposal by Dr. Ian Wilmut at the Bristol Veterinary Association's annual congress, for an ethics debate on matters arising from developments in cloning, reported in the Veterinary Record of 18 October, a copy of which has been sent to him. [14808]

Mr. Morley: We read this account of the discussions at the BVA Congress with interest. The Department has not formed a view of the proposal made by Dr. Wilmut—and separately by others—for a debate on ethics and cloning, and the way in which this might be carried forward. In our policies in this area, we continue to be guided by the advice of the Committee, chaired by the Rev. Professor Michael Banner, on the "Ethical Implications of Emerging Technologies in the Breeding of Farm Animals" which reported December 1994.

Animal Feed Contents Labels

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans his Department has to require feed compounders give a full ingredient listing on animal feed contents labels; and if he will make a statement. [16163]

Mr. Rooker: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to my hon. Friend, the Member for South Derbyshire (Mr. Todd) on 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 21.

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his Answer to the hon. Member for Delyn (Mr. Hanson) of 6 November 1997, Official Report, column 386, (1) which department authorised the disposal of radioactive miss-distance indicators in the Holyhead Deep in 1974; [15984]

(2) if he will establish an inquiry into the implications for public health of the disposal of radioactive miss-distance indicators in the Holyhead Deep in 1974; [15983]

(3) how many radioactive miss-distance indicators were disposed of in Holyhead Deep in 1974, indicating the date of each disposal; [15982]

(4) if he will place in the Library all material held by his Department relating to the disposal of radioactive miss-distance indicators by the Royal Air Force in the Holyhead Deep in 1974. [15985]

Mr. Rooker: Our records show that 112 radioactive miss-distance indicators were dumped in the Holyhead Deep in the second half of 1974. The Ministry of Defence has advised that the dumpings took place on 14–15 August 1974. The disposals were authorised by the Ministry of Defence and the records show that the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food was informed. I am advised that these disposals do not have any significance for human health or the environment. Nevertheless, as I explained in my earlier reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Delyn (Mr. Hanson), I have passed the details to the National Radiological Protection Board for an independent assessment, the results of which I expect to announce shortly. I have today placed in the Library of the House copies of the one original archive document identified by this Department which relates to these disposals.

Ostriches

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will estimate how many on-farm premises exempt from the Poultry Meat Hygiene Regulations but complying with general food hygiene legislation are currently slaughtering ostriches; and if he will make a statement. [16162]

Mr. Rooker: This information is not held centrally. Compliance with general food hygiene legislation is a matter for food authorities under the Food Safety Act 1990.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many slaughterhouses in England have (a) applied for and (b) been granted licences to handle ostriches; and if he will make a statement. [16161]

Mr. Rooker: As at 1 November 1997, no slaughterhouse in England had applied for a licence to handle ostriches.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Homes (Brown-field Sites)

9. Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is his Department's policy on the proportion of the new homes estimated by his Department to be needed by 2016 which should be accommodated on brown-field sites. [14849]

Mr. Caborn: The current policy is for local authorities to make the best possible use of previously used sites for accommodating the country's future housing requirements. The national target set by the previous administration was for half of all new housing to be built on previously developed land, and this is under review. Urban areas could make a larger contribution to total additional housing provision if new conversions are included.

Rough Sleepers Initiative

10. Mr. Hope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what progress he has made in his rough sleepers' initiative; and what plans he has to extend it. [14850]

Ms Armstrong: We are committed to ensuring that nobody should have to sleep rough. We also announced in June £20 million funding for 13 rough sleepers projects in areas outside central London, and I can announce today that we will be providing up to £1 million worth of pump-priming funding over the next 18 months to support six new rough sleeping strategies in Birmingham, Blackpool, Canterbury, Chester, Southampton and Tower Hamlets.

Planning Applications

12. Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is his policy on seeking local opinion before considering whether or not to call in certain planning applications or to hold public inquiries. [14852]

Mr. Caborn: Our policy is to leave local planning authorities to decide planning applications in all but the most exceptional cases. In deciding whether to make an exception, the nature and volume of local representations made would be taken into account.

Flood Defence

13. Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to take flood defence levies out of the other services block in reviewing standard spending assessments for 1998–99. [14853]

Ms Armstrong: Provisional decisions on standard spending assessments for 1998–99 will be announced in due course, as part of the local government revenue finance settlement.

Climate Change Conference

14. Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the United Kingdom Government's main objectives at the Kyoto climate change conference. [14854]

Angela Eagle: In Kyoto our main objective will be to secure agreement by developed countries to a system of legally binding targets for reductions in greenhouse gas emission. The EU has proposed reductions to at least 7.5 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2005 and 15 per cent. below by 2010. We also want developing countries' agreement that over time they will have to play an increasing role in tackling climate change.

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the outcome of the meeting of advanced industrial states in Japan on preparations for the Kyoto Conference on climate change; and if he will place in the Library copies of unrestricted documents circulated at the meeting by (a) the United Kingdom and (b) other participants. [14748]

Mr. Prescott [holding answer 10 November 1997]: I chaired the meeting of developed countries on Saturday 8 November, which was attended by representatives from Japan, Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Italy Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Russia, the USA, the European Community, and by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Environment on behalf of the UK.

We had an excellent and constructive discussion, with some positive movement on a number of issues. For example, we reached agreement that targets should be set in terms of budget periods; and three countries indicated that they would shortly be proposing targets. But even more importantly, I was convinced of the strong political will to ensure a successful outcome at Kyoto. We left the meeting with a much better understanding of each others' positions and I urged all colleagues to build on this spirit of co-operation and to resolve the key outstanding issues in the few weeks ahead. For my part, I met the Vice-President of the USA in Washington on my way to Tokyo and I shall be visiting Australia, New Zealand and India shortly. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, the Minister for the Environment and other colleagues will also be visiting Hungary, Poland, Mexico, South Korea, Japan and a number of European capitals in the run-up to Kyoto.

As Chair I made a personal report of the meeting of developed countries, a copy of which I have placed in the Library. Other documents tabled by Ministers were of a private nature, intended to ensure a frank discussion.

The Japanese Environment Minister, Mr. Ohki, chaired a meeting on Sunday 9 November at which we were joined by colleagues from a number of developing countries: Argentina, Brazil, Korea, Indonesia, Mexico, Samoa and Tanzania. Again, the meeting was both constructive and positive.

Regional Government

15. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the Government's policy towards regional Government in England. [14855]

Mr. Caborn: We will shortly be publishing a White Paper on the regions setting out the Government's detailed proposals for taking forward the regional agenda in England.

28. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the discussions he has had with interested organisations on proposals for regional government. [14869]

Mr. Caborn: We have received around 1,500 responses to the issues paper on regional development agencies which we published on 11 June. The White Paper on the Regions which we will be publishing shortly will set out the Government's detailed proposals for taking forward the regional agenda in England.

Homes (Developed Land)

16. Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, what is his Department's policy on the proportion of new homes required by 2016 which should be built on developed land. [14856]

Mr. Raynsford: The current policy is for local authorities to make the best possible use of previously used sites for accommodating the country's future housing requirements. The current national target is for half of all new housing to be built on previously developed land.

National Parks

17. Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, what representations he has received with regard to countryside protection in national parks. [14857]

Angela Eagle: Ministers on a regular basis receive a variety of representations about a range of issues affecting the national parks. The new National Park Authorities are achieving a great deal in pursuing their revised purposes as set out in the Environment Act 1995. In doing so they are often able to act as models for the conservation and enhancement of the wider countryside.

Local Authorities (Best Value Pilot Schemes)

18. Ms Blears: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, when he expects to make an announcement on local authority best value pilot schemes; and if he will make a statement. [14858]

Ms Armstrong: I will announce the list of authorities who will be invited to join the best value pilot programme in early December, following advice from an expert panel comprising representatives of central government, the CBI, the TUC and the Audit Commission.

27. Mr. Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he plans to make an announcement on local authority best value pilot schemes; and if he will make a statement. [14868]

Ms Armstrong: I will announce the list of authorities that will be invited to join the best value pilot programme in early December, following advice from an expert panel comprising representatives of central government, the CBI, the TUC and the Audit Commission.

Regional Development Agencies

20. Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what are the Government's plans for regional development agencies. [14860]

Mr. Caborn: The White Paper on the regions which we will be publishing shortly will set out the Government's detailed proposals for regional development agencies in England.

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he plans to replace all the existing inward investment agencies if regional development agencies are introduced. [14865]

Mr. Caborn: The White Paper on the Regions which we will be publishing shortly will set out the Government's detailed proposals for regional development agencies in England, including their role in inward investment.

Revenue Support Grant

21. Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how he proposes to adjust the revenue support grant in 1998–99 to take account of the relative costs of providing services between local authorities. [14862]

Ms Armstrong: Our proposals for the distribution of revenue support grant for 1998–99 will be announced in due course.

As my hon. Friend the Minister for London and Construction said on 30 October 1997, Official Report, column 1082, we have recently announced that we intend to commission further research to examine the specific cost approach to calculating the area cost adjustment element of standard spending assessments.

As a consequence of commissioning this research we have decided not to implement for 1998–99 standard spending assessments any options for change proposed by the 1996 Review of the Area Cost Adjustment or the additional research on the area cost adjustment done this year. These options remain available for consideration alongside the findings of the specific cost research.

Green Belt

22. Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to change the planning guidance on the green belt. [14863]

Mr. Raynsford: The Government's green belt policy remains as set out in Planning Policy Guidance note (PPG) 2.

Planning Authorities

23. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what steps he will take to ensure that planning authorities abide by approved and current local structure plans. [14864]

Mr. Raynsford: Section 54A of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 requires that, where the development plan contains relevant policies, applications for development which are in accordance with the plan shall be allowed unless material considerations indicate otherwise. Applicants have the right of appeal against any decision by the local authority not to grant planning permission.

Under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plans and Consultation) Direction 1992, local planning authorities are required to notify the Secretary of State of planning applications for specified types of development which do not accord with the development plan currently in force, where they propose to grant permission. This enables the Secretary of State to consider whether to call in such applications for his own determination.

We have recently consulted on draft revised Directions and improved guidance for local planning authorities, and will issue a final version as soon as possible.

Business Rates

25. Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what progress he has made in his plans to secure greater localisation of business rates. [14866]

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what progress he has made in his plans to restore a greater degree of local discretion over business rates. [14859]

Mr. Raynsford: Since July we have been discussing with the Local Government Association and business representatives how rates could be returned to local control. We aim to issue a consultation paper at the end of this year.

Petrol Leaks

26. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many incidents of leakage of petrol from underground storage tanks at garages there have been in the past two years; and if he will make a statement about the role of the Environment Agency in such circumstances. [14867]

Angela Eagle: In the period since January 1995 the Environment Agency recorded 55 incidents of water pollution from underground petrol storage at petrol filling stations in England and six such incidents in Wales.

The Agency is not responsible for licensing petrol filling stations. However, it is able to influence the siting of new petrol filling station developments as a statutory consultee under Town and Country Planning legislation and can object to petrol filling stations in sensitive areas of groundwater.

There are powers available to the Agency under section 161 of the Water Resources Act 1991 to carry out remedial pollution works and recover costs. The powers have not yet been used in relation to petrol filling stations. The new works notices power under section 161A of the 1991 Act, when brought into force shortly, will enable the Agency to require anti-pollution works to be carried out and thus be more proactive in preventing water pollution from petrol filling stations.

We are considering comments received during a consultation exercise earlier this year on water pollution from industrial and commercial oil storage, included the issue of whether petrol storage should be subject to additional measures of control.

Local Authorities

29. Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to give increased decision-making power to local authorities. [14870]

Mr. Raynsford: We believe that local decision making should be less constrained by Central Government and more accountable to local people. Our programme to modernise local government, therefore, includes in parallel with the renewal of local democracy, placing on councils a new duty to promote the economic, social, and environmental well-being of their area and ending crude and universal council tax capping.

Road Schemes

30. Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will carry out preliminary administration procedures to minimise delay in road schemes on their release after publication of the current review. [14872]

Dr. Strang: We aim to avoid unnecessary delays to schemes approved in the Roads Review. Preparatory work on schemes is being taken forward to the end of the current stage so that they could be re-started without the need to repeat work.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

38. Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if she will make a statement on her policy for the channel tunnel rail link. [14880]

Dr. Strang: The Government have a Development Agreement with London and Continental Railways for the design, construction and operation of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link.

Airports and Aviation

39. Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if the proposed White Paper on an integrated transport policy will incorporate policies relating to airports and aviation provision. [14882]

Dr. Strang: Yes. Airports and aviation have a vital role to play in an integrated transport system. We intend to set out in the White Paper key policies relating to surface access to airports, environmental impact and the role of regional airports.

Rural Railway Stations

40. Mr. David Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions she has had with rail companies to encourage the opening, retention or reopening of small rural railway stations. [14883]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The revised objectives, instructions and Guidance issued to the Franchising Director on 6 November require him to encourage and facilitate the development of worthwhile investment proposals. He has regular discussions with train operating companies, Railtrack and other potential sponsors of station projects.

Thames Crossing

41. Jane Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the agreement by Reading and Oxfordshire councils concerning a third Thames crossing. [14884]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We welcome the announcement that Oxfordshire and Berkshire Local Authorities are to commission a joint, wide-ranging study of travel across the Thames in the Reading area. I understand that the study will identify issues and possible solutions, which may, or may not, include proposals for a third crossing.

Fishing Vessels (Safety)

42. Mr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to modify the regulations and rules governing the occupational safety of the crews of United Kingdom registered fishing vessels. [14885]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The occupational safety of crews in United Kingdom fishing vessels is being pursued through the development of several regulations which will implement EC health and safety directives. Guidance on the requirements of the new regulations will be published in a new Code of Safe Working Practices for Fishing Vessels.

Eurofreight Terminal

43. Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the location of the proposed Eurofreight terminal for south Wales. [14887]

Ms Glenda Jackson: This is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Driving Tests

44. Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what response he has made to the European Parliament Transport Committee's recommendation that driving tests be retaken every five years. [14888]

Dr. Strang: There has been no such recommendation. The Transport and Tourism Committee of the European Parliament are currently reviewing road safety policy, but have not yet reported. In the course of their deliberations, one of the members put forward the idea of periodic re-testing of drivers, but it has not been supported by the Committee as a whole, nor by any of the European Institutions.

London Underground (Acton)

45. Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what factors led to his decision to postpone the sale of London Underground's Acton works. [14889]

Ms Glenda Jackson: London Transport's proposal to sell the Railway Engineering Workshop at Acton requires the Secretary of State's consent (to dispose of one of their subsidiaries under section 9 of the London Regional Transport Act 1984). The Secretary of State does not want to make a decision on whether to give his consent until the Government has reached a clearer view on the future funding and structure of the underground as a whole, and he has held further discussions with interested parties.

Civil Aviation Authority

46. Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he next proposes to meet the Chairman of the Civil Aviation Authority to discuss its future. [14891]

Ms Glenda Jackson: My colleagues and I hold regular meetings with the Chairman of the Civil Aviation Authority where the future of the Authority and National Air Traffic Services is among a wide number of topics that are discussed.

Road Congestion

47. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on how he plans to tackle congestion on Britain's roads. [14892]

Dr. Strang: We are currently undertaking a strategic roads review as part of the work we are doing to develop an integrated transport policy. One of the main objectives is to develop a strategy for dealing with increasing congestion.

Transport Policy

48. Mr. Rammell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the approach he will adopt in assessing transport policies and programmes bids. [14893]

Dr. Strang: Assessment of bids takes account of a variety of factors. The main criterion is the extent to which the proposed expenditure offers value for money in the context of the objectives communicated to authorities in the circular inviting them to bid.

Railway Investment

49. Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he plans to meet the chairman of Railtrack to discuss investment in the railways. [14894]

Dr. Strang: My right hon. Friend and I met the chairman of Railtrack on 30 October to discuss a number of issues, including investment in the railways.

British Rail (Planning Obligations)

50. Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what powers he has to direct the British Rail Property Board in the disposal of assets and the discharge of residual legal responsibilities arising from planning obligations and agreements entered into by British Rail. [14895]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Secretary of State has power to direct the British Railways Board to dispose of any of its property, rights and liabilities under section 89 of the Railways Act 1993, where the principal objective is to secure the result that the function of providing railway services in Great Britain is performed by private sector operators. Discharge of obligations in planning agreements is a matter of contract between the contracting parties.

British Hauliers (France)

51. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions he has held with his French counterpart regarding difficulties faced by British hauliers as a result of the industrial dispute in France. [14896]

Dr. Strang: At a meeting in Paris on 28 October, just before the dispute started, I told the French transport Minister that in the event of disruption I looked to his Government to ensure free passage for UK lorries, to secure the well-being of any British drivers blocked in France and to deal promptly and sympathetically with any claims for compensation. I spoke similarly to the French ambassador at a meeting in London on 4 November once the strike had started.

Speed Cameras

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of speed cameras in reducing speed. [15650]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Speed cameras are particularly good at reducing vehicle speeds in some circumstances. Twenty one cameras placed on roads in West London have shown a 70 per cent. reduction in fatal accidents between 1992 and 1995. A Home Office study of cameras in 10 police forces undertaken between November 1995 and March 1996 showed that accidents reduced by 28 per cent. and average speeds by 4 mph at speed camera sites. However, the effects of cameras are localised, so we recommend that they are used at sites with a history of speed related accidents where they can successfully reduce the likelihood of further incidents.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list his Department's guidelines relating to the installing of speed cameras in villages; what Government funding is available for such cameras; what research his Department has evaluated into the impact of speed cameras on the rate of accidents in villages; and what estimate he has made of the relative costs of installing cameras on A and B roads. [15962]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Guidance on the deployment of speed enforcement cameras was issued by the Department in Circular Roads 1/92. Specific central funding is not usually made available for cameras. Installation costs are typically met by Highway authorities; and operational costs by the police. A Home Office study of cameras in 10 police forces undertaken between November 1995 and March 1996 showed a 28 per cent. drop in accidents and a 4 mph reduction in speed at camera sites. The study showed that the average fixed cost per site for a speed camera was £12,500 and average recurrent costs were around £8,500 per annum. The report did not specify camera site locations. I am unable to give average costs for villages and other areas.

Speed Limits

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on how he plans to reduce (a) city and (b) rural traffic speeds; and what resources have been made available for such initiatives in each of the last five years. [15649]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Department is continually developing and trialling measures for reducing inappropriate and excessive vehicle speeds. Advice about those that prove successful is made available to Local Highway Authorities to employ on their roads. Examples include 20 mph zones, road humps and horizontal deflections for urban areas, and gateway treatments and low cost measures for rural roads. We are looking at ways to make better use of speed cameras which are particularly effective at sites prone to accidents. This complements our long term aim to change driver behaviour through education and advertising. The latest stage of the "Kill your speed campaign" was launched on 16 September.

No comprehensive information is available centrally on the resources allocated for installing traffic calming and other speed management measures.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to increase investment in and use of telematic speed limits; and if he will make a statement. [15651]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Department has a comprehensive research programme which investigates and tries out innovative schemes, including telematics applied to speed limits. The Highways Agency is assessing the Controlled Motorway Project on a part of the M25 which automatically adjusts speed limits to prevailing traffic conditions. Trials are also underway in the East of England to determine the value of warning signs triggered by speeding drivers.

Until the results are known it is not possible to estimate the merit of these schemes, nor what future investment might be involved. We will continue to consider new applications of technology when these become available.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, pursuant to the Answer of 10 November from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15876]

Angela Eagle: The DETR has several public Internet e-mail addresses for inquiries accessible via the Department's Internet Service at www.detr.gov.uk. The Department does not have individual public e-mail addresses for Ministers or senior officials. We do not centrally hold details of public e-mail addresses for chief executives of DETR agencies.

EU Bathing Water Directive

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will provide a definition of the bathing season for the purposes of the EU Bathing Water Directive. [16122]

Angela Eagle: The Directive defines the bathing season as

"the period during which a large number of bathers can be expected, in the light of local circumstances, and any local rules which may exist concerning bathing and weather conditions". In England and Wales the bathing season is regarded as running from mid-May to the end of September. In Scotland and Northern Ireland, from June to mid-September.

Sea Water (Bacteria and Viruses)

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what advice he has taken on the viability of bacteria and viruses in sea water over time; and what research his Department has conducted into the possible health hazards associated with the persistence of such organisms in coastal waters as a result of the lowering of sewage treatment standards in winter months. [16121]

Angela Eagle: The faster decay of indicator bacteria compared to viruses during sewage treatment and in seawater after discharge is a well recognised phenomenon and is taken into account by the Environment Agency is setting discharge consents. Further research into the viability of viruses has recently been commissioned by the Department, the Environment Agency and the UK water industry. The results will help predictions of the effect of any reduction of sewage treatment during the winter months and assessments of possible health hazards from coastal waters, which are currently regarded as very low.

Medium-density Fibreboard

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the findings of the Health and Safety Executive's review of the international literature into the health effects of medium-density fibreboard. [16067]

Angela Eagle: The literature review into the health effects of medium-density fibreboard being conducted by HSE is expected to be published in June 1998.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when the research phase of the Health and Safety Executive's investigation into the health effects of medium-density fibreboard will be completed. [16068]

Angela Eagle: The Health and Safety Executive estimate that the research phase could take about 18 months to two years, but this depends very much on what work is identified as being necessary from the literature review.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what steps the Health and Safety Executive is taking to encourage the use of safer alternatives to medium-density fibreboard in the construction industry. [16063]

Angela Eagle: None. Alternatives to medium-density fibreboard (MDF) may also present risks to health, depending on how they are used. The Health and Safety Executive is of the opinion that any health risks arising from the use at work of MDF, and the alternatives, can and should be effectively controlled by compliance with the requirements of the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations 1994.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the maximum exposure limit to softwood dust set by (a) the United Kingdom Health and Safety Executive, (b) other European Union member states, (c) the United States of America, (d) Japan and (e) Australia. [16066]

Angela Eagle: The maximum exposure limits to softwood dust are:

(a) Softwood dust has been assigned a maximum exposure limit (MEL) of 5 milligrams per cubic metre (mg/m^3) for an 8-hour time weighted average under the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations 1994 (COSHH).

(b) No other EU member state has a specific occupational exposure limit for softwood dust although some have limits for wood dust in general.

(c) In the United States, the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists has recommended an 8-hour threshold limit value of 5 mg/m^3 and a short term limit of 10 mg/m^3.

(d) There is no information available on the occupational exposure limit for softwood dust for Japan.

(e) In Australia a limit of 5 mg/m^3 has been assigned for softwood dust.

Under COSHH employers are required to control exposures to softwood dust to a level as low as is reasonably practicable and in any case below the MEL. It is therefore misleading to compare the numerical value of the MEL with limits in other countries, where limits have different definitions and applications.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what steps the Health and Safety Executive is taking to ensure that, where there are no alternatives to the use of medium-density fibreboard in the construction industry, employers use low or zero formaldehyde emission board. [16064]

Angela Eagle: The Health and Safety Executive is of the opinion that effective control of medium density fibreboard (MDF) dust, coupled with good general ventilation, will adequately control exposure to formaldehyde vapour. British Standards restrict the amount of formaldehyde that can be used in making medium density fibreboard. An HSE survey monitoring exposure to formaldehyde during the machining of MDF has found levels to be substantially below the current maximum exposure limit for formaldehyde. Low or zero formaldehyde emission board use other binding resins which may contain hazardous components.

Subways

Mr. Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what statutory authority there is for highway authorities to close a subway. [16118]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Section 69 of the Highways Act 1980 permits highway authorities to provide pedestrian subways, and to alter, close temporarily, or remove them.

Sewage Treatment

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list those water companies which operate a seasonally variable regime of sewage treatment. [16119]

Angela Eagle: This information is not held centrally but discharge consents set by the Environment Agency in some coastal areas include a requirement for additional treatment during summer months to meet water quality standards under the EC Bathing Water Directive.

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions he has held with water undertakings concerning the practice of downgrading sewage treatment levels prior to discharge into the sea during winter months. [16120]

Angela Eagle: This is primarily a matter for the Environment Agency when setting consent conditions for water company sewage discharges. These consents are set within the framework of EU and domestic statutory requirements and Government and Agency policy on water quality.

Bridleways

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will include measures to encourage the re-establishment of bridleways in his plans for increasing access to the countryside. [16185]

Angela Eagle: We have no plans to do.

Water

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will change the basis on which the Environment Agency forecasts regional demand for water. [16404]

Angela Eagle: At the end of August 1997, the Environment Agency issued to water companies its Water Resources Planning Guidelines. This document, which was drafted in consultation with the Office of Water Services, the water companies and my Department, includes authoritative guidance on the forecasting of demand for water in each discrete water resource zone, from which regional forecasts can be built up. The Environment Agency will update these Guidelines as it considers necessary in response to developing issues.

Coastguards

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the impact of recent cuts in the number of qualified coastguards on public safety. [16175]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Under the Focus for Change review the number of Coastguard officers appropriately qualified increased by some 120. The result is more uniformed regular Coastguards in service than nearly a decade ago. The intention of these measures is to enhance the level of safety of the seagoing and coastal communities and public at large.

Endocrine-disrupting Chemicals

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the research evaluated by his Department since 1995 on (a) endocrine-disrupting compounds and (b) oestrogenic chemicals. [16177]

Angela Eagle: My Department, with the assistance of recognised experts in the field, continually evaluates the research published on endocrine disrupting chemicals in the environment. Where gaps in the available information have been identified research is being planned to address those gaps. The Department's research plans are published annually and the Department's policy is that the results of its research are disseminated externally. Details of individual projects are publicly available on request and also on the Department's research project database to which the House of Commons Library has online access.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what estimate he has made of the contribution of the air traffic sector towards meeting the Government's target of a 20 per cent. reduction in carbon dioxide emissions by 2010. [16186]

Ms Glenda Jackson: None.

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport, and the Regions what assessment he has made of the contribution which could be made by cars to the target of reducing carbon dioxide emissions by 2010 compared to 1990 levels. [14871]

Mr. Prescott: After the climate convention in December, we shall consult on a programme which will take account of our 20 per cent. and the outcome of Kyoto. Measures to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from road transport are an important element of our transport policy review and will form part of a balanced climate change programme.

Road Safety Education

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on his Department's support for road safety education programmes for school pupils; and what plans he has to promote pedestrian training at primary schools. [16342]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions recognises that children, especially pedestrians, are a particularly vulnerable group of road users and as such are a road safety priority. Road safety education both inside and outside school is an integral part of our approach to reducing road accidents amongst children complementing publicity, enforcement and engineering measures.

My Department works closely with local authority road safety professionals, voluntary and commercial organisations and other Government Departments to encourage road safety education. In 1995, the Department produced Good Practice Guidelines for Road Safety Education in Schools and we are, at present, carrying out a review of the provision of road safety education in schools throughout Great Britain.

Despite a good overall road safety record, Great Britain has a relatively poor child pedestrian safety record. Research has shown that practical approaches to child pedestrian training, in small groups at the roadside, are the most effective at improving child pedestrian skills. My Department has used this approach to develop and evaluate two practical child pedestrian training schemes—"Let's Decide Walkwise" and "Kerbcraft". In addition this Department and the Department of Health have jointly funded the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents to produce a video resource—Step Forward—to encourage schools and adult volunteers to participate in local authority pedestrian training schemes.

The Government are committed to reducing car dependency, and in particular, the number of children being driven to school. We are supportive of projects which encourage children to walk and cycle in safety and take the bus to school. The DETR is currently funding research in this area. We are also providing capital resources to a number of local authority transport packages which include safer routes to schools projects. The current fundamental review of transport will be examining journeys to school in conjunction with other Government Departments.

Cyclists (Helmets)

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what action his Department is taking to promote the wearing of helmets by cyclists; and if he will make a statement. [16343]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Department's Cycle Safe campaign includes the production of posters and educational literature which promote the wearing of cycle helmets. Publicity is distributed to local Road Safety Officers, teachers and the police. Advice to wear helmets is contained in the Highway Code and the Highway Code for Young Road Users. One million copies of the Young Road Users Code are distributed free each year to schools.

We encourage local authorities to co-ordinate what they are doing on cycle safety publicity with the Department's campaign so that the messages are reinforced. We will continue to review ways of promoting the wearing of cycle helmets and wearing rate surveys will be made to determine the success of local and national campaigns.

Compressed Air Powered Vehicles

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment his Department has made of the potential of compressed air powered vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [16331]

Ms Glenda Jackson: None.

Homelessness (Christmas)

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to use government buildings other than Admiralty Arch and buildings available for use by members of the Government to house the homeless during the Christmas period. [16159]

Mr. Raynsford: The Government have a Winter Shelter Programme as part of the Rough Sleepers Initiative. This year the Winter Shelter Programme covers London, Bristol and Cambridge. Each year both the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions and the voluntary agencies work closely with the Property Advisers to the Civil Estate (PACE), and other Government Departments, to identify suitable buildings from the Government estate for use as winter shelters for rough sleepers. It is particularly important to locate suitable buildings which will ensure a wide geographical spread of winter shelters.

We are currently assessing the bids we have received from the voluntary sector for funding to manage winter shelters as part of the Rough Sleepers Initiative and will make an announcement shortly on the bids which have been successful.

Energy Efficiency

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to improve the energy efficiency standards of homes. [14861]

Angela Eagle: The Home Energy Conservation Act 1995 requires local authorities to implement strategies for improving domestic energy efficiency in all sectors by 30 per cent. over a 10–15 year period. The Government and Energy Saving Trust will continue to support them in this through pump-priming assistance for innovative approaches, and through disseminating advice and best practice. The Trust has also established an energy efficiency programme, involving all sectors of the industry in providing financial incentives, information and advice for householders, and a comprehensive training package for installers and retailers.

Over 2.5 million low-income, disabled and elderly households have been helped to improve their homes through grants under the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme. We will continue to build on this in tackling fuel poverty through a range of policies. Energy conservation has been specified as a priority area in the design of the Environmental Task Force option of the New Deal for 18 to 24-year-olds, and in the capital receipts initiative for local authorities.

Our current review of the Housing Fitness Standard includes consideration of how best to incorporate energy efficiency requirements. We have also just initiated a review of Part L of the Building Regulations, which deals with energy efficiency of new homes. The aim of the review is to establish the maximum possible contribution that can be made by the Regulations to the Government's target of a 20 per cent. reduction on 1990 levels of CO_2 emissions by the year 2010, whilst observing proportionality and flexibility for designers, and avoiding unreasonable technical risks or excessive cost. The review will be wide ranging, encompassing not just homes, but non-domestic buildings as well.

London Underground (Investment)

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the Government's plans for the funding of London Underground's investment for 1998 to 2003. [14890]

Ms Glenda Jackson: My Department is currently conducting a Comprehensive Spending Review, the outcome of which will help to determine the future funding of London Transport. We are also considering a range of public-private partnership options for the Underground which are intended to provide the Underground with the funds it needs to overcome its investment backlog.

Council Homes

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if the Government will take steps to assist people who have bought their council houses and subsequently find them to have major structural defects; and if he will ensure that they are eligible to apply for home improvement loans from their local council. [14935]

Mr. Raynsford: Local authorities already give grants for repairs to owner occupiers. Renovation grant under Part I of the Housing Grants, Construction and Regeneration Act 1996 is available at the authority's discretion for making property fit and for other works of repair or improvement which go beyond making a property fit. Such grants are subject to a means test. Under separate provisions, certain classes of defective properties, designated as defective under sections 528 or 559 of the Housing Act 1985, are eligible for assistance under Part XVI of that Act. However, works to address the defects in such properties are not eligible for grant under the 1996 Act.

Deep Water Harbour (Merseyside)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on deep water harbour provision on Merseyside. [14936]

Ms Glenda Jackson: There are separate proposals for deep water quays for ro-ro ferry services, at Trafalgar Dock in Liverpool and at Twelve Quays in Birkenhead. Applications have been made for harbour orders to authorise each project. The former has attracted a number of objections and is waiting for the Mersey Dock and Harbour Company to complete a review of their environmental statement; progress with the latter is subject to resolution of one outstanding objection.

Schools (Safe Routes)

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what proposals he has to assist the development of safe routes to schools. [14943]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Government are committed to reducing car dependency, and in particular, the number of children being driven to school. We are supportive of projects which encourage children to walk and cycle in safety and take the bus to school. The DETR is currently funding research in this area. We are also providing capital resources to a number of local authority transport packages which include safer routes to schools projects. The current fundamental review of transport will be examining journeys to school, and considering how the DETR, in conjunction with other Government Departments, should take this forward.

Scottish Parliament

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what consultation he has had with the Scottish Office since the Referendum on the transfer of responsibilities for transport matters which are currently his to the Scottish Parliament; [15088]

(2) what consultation he has had with the Scottish Office since the Referendum on the transfer of responsibilities for environmental and regional matters which are currently his to the Scottish Parliament. [15089]

Mr. Prescott: The Government's proposals for the legislative competence of the Scottish Parliament were set out in the White Paper "Scotland's Parliament". My Department has been working closely with the Scottish Office to ensure that the legislation which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland will shortly be introducing will accurately give effect to the proposals.

Road Speed Limits

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he expects to complete his review of road speed limits. [14881]

Dr. Strang: We need to consider speed limits and other measures together in order to reduce excessive and inappropriate speed. This will form a prominent part of the work on a road safety strategy announced by my noble friend Lady Hayman on 15 October.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Stakeholder Pensions

Mr. Pond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when she will publish further details of her plans for delivering stakeholder pensions. [16902]

Ms Harman: I shall be publishing a consultation document on Stakeholder Pensions on Wednesday 19 November. Copies will be placed in the Library.

Supported Housing

Mr. Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security whether she will outline her plans for the second stage of the interim measures introduced to stabilise the position of existing supported housing provision. [16903]

Mr. Keith Bradley: On 24 July 1997 I announced a two stage package of measures to stabilise existing supported housing provision and protect many thousands of vulnerable people until a long-term solution can be implemented. The first stage of the package—amendments to the Housing regulations—came into effect on 18 August 1997.

We plan to introduce the second stage—the compensation scheme—shortly. This scheme will, where appropriate, enable local authorities to compensate landlords of existing supported accommodation where Housing Benefit has reduced because it was previously meeting charges for those highest levels of care which are outside the scope of the Housing Benefit scheme. The saving in benefit subsidies previously paid to local authorities in respect of these highest levels of care will be applied within Class XII, Vote 2, to underwrite the compensation scheme and will be paid on an extra-statutory basis.

Official Engagements

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list the official engagements that were carried out by the Under-Secretary of State for Social Security, the hon. Member for Southampton, Itchen (Mr. Denham) on the morning of Thursday 13 November. [16517]

Mr. Denham: I was undertaking duties in connection with Departmental business.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment she has made of the impact of the revised benefit system regulations introduced in 1996 on the number of bogus asylum seekers. [14232]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Home Secretary announced on 27 October new procedures to speed up the decision making process in abusive asylum claims.

An inter-departmental review led by the Home Office is currently considering all aspects of the asylum process across government, including the provision of accommodation and support to asylum seekers.

"Removing Barriers"

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment her Department has made of the report, "Removing Barriers", published by the Local Government Association; and if she will make a statement. [14587]

Mr. Field: I welcome the Local Government Association report, "Removing Barriers: the Case for a New Deal for Social Services and Social Security". Both myself and my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Health, are ensuring that it is taken into account in looking at the interface between the Social Security and social services systems as part of our comprehensive spending reviews.

Cold Weather Payments

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when she expects the arrangements for cold weather payments to take account of the new post codes in the Greater Bristol area. [14700]

Mr. Denham: The changes to the postcodes were notified too late to be specified in the amending regulations laid before the House on 9 October (S.I. 1997 No. 2311).

The new postcode arrangements will be considered as part of next year's annual review and reflected in the amending regulations.

For this winter, arrangements are in place to treat eligible people living in the new postcode districts as being situated within the appropriate postcode districts as they existed prior to the changes being made.

Income Support

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people qualify for a 26 week linking period on income support because mortgage protection insurance has fully paid out during the previous benefit claim. [15154]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available.

LETS Credits

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to disregard the value of LETS credits when calculating income for social security purposes. [15202]

Mr. Denham: The Government believe that work is the best form of welfare for people of working age. Our welfare-to-work objectives are to provide work incentives, to reduce poverty and welfare dependency and to strike a new balance between responsibilities and rights. A programme of monitoring and evaluation is under way to enable us to ensure that Jobseeker's Allowance contributes to achieving our objectives.

In addition to this major evaluation exercise, we shall also keep the individual benefit rules, including the treatment of LETS credits, under active consideration as we develop our plans.

Earnings Top-up Claimants

Mr. Pond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list the number and proportion of (a) men, (b) women and (c) total current earnings top-up claimants broken down by standard industrial classification. [15511]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not currently available. Work is in hand to produce statistics in line with the standard occupational classifications and they will be made available as soon as possible.

Family Credit

Mr. Pond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list the number and proportion of (a) men, (b) women and (c) total current family credit claimants broken down by standard industrial classification. [15512]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not currently available.

A breakdown by occupation type was previously published in the "Family Credit Quarterly Statistical Enquiry" but, due to concerns over the quality of data, the tables were withdrawn from the February 1997 publication. Action is being taken to improve the reliability of these statistics and they will be re-introduced as soon as possible.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

Kali Mountford: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what provision is made for suffers of myalgic encephalomyelitis who claim disability living allowance. [15358]

Mr. Denham: Entitlement to Disability Living Allowance is not based on specific disabilities, but on the effects that a person's disability has on their need for help with personal care and/or mobility.

Adjudication Officers are given information on the care and mobility needs arising from disabilities such as myalgic encephalomyelitis in the "Disability Handbook" which is compiled by senior doctors of this Department and approved and monitored by the Disability Living Allowance Advisory Board.

SCOTLAND

Higher Education (Borders Region)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many students from the Scottish Borders region (a) attended full-time undergraduate education at universities or equivalent bodies, (b) attended full-time education as mature students and (c) were in receipt of further education awards in the last year for which figures are available. [15626]

Mr. Wilson: In 1995–96 there were 1,458 full-time undergraduate students in Scottish higher education institutions from the Scottish Borders. The number of mature entrants studying full-time in Scotland from the Scottish Borders is set out in the table following table:

Mature[1] entrants studying full-time in Scotland from the Scottish Borders

1995–96

	Number
HE undergraduate[2] entrants in HEIs	111
HE undergraduate[2] entrants in FECs	324
FE entrants in FECs	131

[1] Mature entrants are aged 21 years and over.

[2] Undergraduate includes first degree and other HE qualifications.

On the basis of the figures available, around 300 students from the Borders Region received local authority bursaries for further education courses in 1995–96. These local authority bursaries (since replaced by college bursaries) were available only for non-advanced courses.

Obstetrics and Gynaecology

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what consideration he is giving to the recommendations of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists Working Party chaired by Dr. Anne McLaren. [14467]

Mr. Galbraith [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Government have noted the report produced by the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists in response to questions about fetal awareness and fetal pain, and welcome the decision to send the report to Fellows and Members of the College to inform and guide their practice.

Forestry Commission Sales

Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will list the Forestry Commission-owned sites which were offered for sale (a) during 1996 and (b) in 1997 (i) before and (ii) after 1 May; [15633]

(2) if he will list the Forestry Commission-owned sites for which disposal is under consideration. [15634]

Mr. Chisholm [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The subject of the questions relates to matters undertaken by Forest Enterprise. I have asked its Chief Executive, Dr. Bob McIntosh, to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Bob McIntosh to Helen Jackson, dated 18 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Scotland has asked me to reply to your two Questions about Forestry Commission land which was offered for sale during 1996 and in 1997 (before and after 1 May) and which we are considering for sale.

I therefore enclose a list of Forest Land which was first offered for sale on the Open Market between 1 January 1996 and 31 December 1996 and 1 January 1997 and 19 March 1997. On 19 March 1997 all Forestry Commission sales were suspended during the General Election. After the Election the Government placed a Moratorium on all Forestry Commission forest land sales in accordance with the Manifesto Commitment. Consequently no forest land has been offered on the open market after 19 March 1997, and we are not considering the sale of any forest land.

Forestry Commission forest land offered for sale on the open market 1 January–31 December 1996

Forest district	Name of property	Area (ha)
England
Downs and Chilterns	Back Lane Wood	7.5
	Beech and Howlets Wood	7
	Channers Wood	15
	Compartment 451	4.3
	Crawley Down	29.5
	Dawley Wood	19
	Greens	1.5
	Hazel Grove	6.2
	Hoo Wood	18
	Howes Wood	5
	Idlecombe and Rowborough	73
	Lockleys Wood	4.9
	Mercers Wood	6
	Priest Wood	28
	Puttock Hill	8.5
	Redcap/Catham Coppice	14
	The Square and Cooks Coppice	5.5
	Whitelands Copse	12
	Whores Wood	2.9
East Anglia	Foulden Broom Covert	6
Forest of Dean	East Cranmore Wood	28
	Greyfield Wood	38
	Pink Wood	33
	Stanton Park	58
	The Bushes	15
	Wanstrow (Breach Wood)	45
Kielder	Denton Fell Plantation	627

Forestry Commission forest land offered for sale on the open market 1 January–31 December 1996

Forest district	Name of property	Area (ha)
Lakes	Birks Wood	8
	Chalk Plains Wood	40
	Tithe Barn Plantation	8
North York Moors	Cold Kirby Woods	116
	Glaisdale Woods	141.5
	Haxby Plantation	50
	Hazel and Hayton Woods	107
	Kilburn Thicket	12
	Robson's Spring	43
	Skelton Banks	11.7
Peninsula	Membury	25
Sherwood and Lincs	Dilliner Wood	20
	Mather Wood	39
	Nut Wood	10
	Park Springs Wood	39
	Roe Wood	47
Weald	Batts Wood	65
	Challock Benacre Wood	25
Scotland
Aberfoyle	Dundurn	744.1
	Easter Muirhead	34.4
	Warroch	68
Ae	Cairnhead	1,361
	Euchenhead	689
	Polskeoch	830
	Shinnelhead	843
Buchan	Auquharney, Lot 1	81
	Haremoss	21
	Lenabo and Moreseat of Hatton	360
Castle Douglas	Glaisters	382
Cowal	Ardlamont	749.9
Dornoch	Achrugan	559
Fort Augustus	Achintraid	42
	Ardelve	26
	Glencannich, Muchrachd and Craskie	148
	Kirkton	92
	Kishorn	67
	Orbost	575
	Waternish	1,159
Inverness	Creag Dhubh	97
	Tor Clunes and Castle Spynie	138
Lochaber	Ardmolich	92
Lorne	Dererach	177
	Scoor Wood, Lot 5	360
Moray	Auchenroath	62
	Ben Main	72
	Elchies	103
	Rhynagoup, Lot 1	16
	Tulloch	239
Newton Stewart	Glenluce	40
	Knockbain	145
Tay	Ardle Bank	43
	Camusericht	304
	Newbiggin and Braedownie	413
West Argyll	Ardbrecknish	119
	Ford	57
Wales
Ceredigion	Allt Hengeraint	18.6
	Allt Wig Wen	8.2
	Allt Y Gigfran	18
	Bryn Wichell	15
	Brynamlwg	9
	Crossway	4.5
	Cruglas	6
	Ffynon Rhys	32.2
	Gelli Gwenyn	17
	Rhos Maes Crug	5

Forestry Commission forest land offered for sale on the open market 1 January–31 December 1996

Forest district	Name of property	Area (ha)
Llandovery	Allt Maes Yr Awdy	6
	Allt Pant Glas	9
	Allt y Fron–Abermarlais 2	5.6
	Blaen Llwydiarth Fern Hill	36
	Cathilas	51.4
	Cilgwyn Wood	13
	Coed Caeau Gwynion–Abermarlais	4.8
	Coed Glyn Aeron	57
	Cotsmoor Wood	7
	Cwmllannarch	32
	Farthings Hook	18
	Gallt Fydr	33
	Martletwy Wood	18
	Measgwyn	20
	Nant Ffrwd	26
	Pentre Mawr Trebwi	10
	Rosehill Wood–Abermarlais 3	3.9
	Ty Rhyg	120
Llanrwst	Bodfuan	101
	Bryn Hendre	10
	Brynffynnon Coed	6
	Bwlch Derwyn	266
	Caeau Bodfel	28
	Coed Allt Ddu	3
	Coed Bryn Kenrick	8
	Coed Mynydd Nefyn	31
	Coed Plas Isaf	5
	Coed Rhosfawr	29
	Coed Salisbury	4
	Coed Tai Hirion	45
	Crown Wood	29
	Frochas 1	7.5
	Frochas 2	3.1
	Frochas 3	5.4
	Frochas 5	2.9
	Gwinllan Rhos Ddu	10
	Nant Merddyn	48
	Nebo	9
	Rhos Hendre	2
	Tyddyn Y Famaeth	4
	Ynys Galed	22
Morgannwg	Craig Y Parc	16
Newtown	Broad Leasow Wood	12.5
	Bryn Gorse	5.6
	Caldy Bank	8.9
	Cefn Derw Cil Owen	10
	Cefn Perfa Wood	3.4
	Cil Llwyn	15
	Common Wood	16
	Curnia Bank	13.3
	Frostal Wood	5
	Geufron	10.1
	Gloddfa Nursery	5.2
	Gorther Rough	8
	Husky Hall	1.8
	Knill Garaway	48.5
	Llan Llwyd	3.8
	Llyn Y Waun	51.6
	Long Nursery Coppice	2
	Lower Ceulannau	3.7
	Lower Wig	2.2
	Molecatchers Wood	16
	Oldland Wood	6
	Parsons Land Coppice	2.7
	Penycarreg East	3
	Penycarreg West	11
	Penycastle Wood	10.4
	Pool Plantation and Kerry Hill	12.7
	Pwll Yr Rhedyn	7

Forestry Commission forest land offered for sale on the open market
1 January–31 December 1996

Forest district	Name of property	Area (ha)
	Rock Wood and Fronfraith Wood	30.5
	Treflyn Bach	2
	Tyny Cwm	3.5
S.E. Wales	New Forest Plantation	9
	Newhouse Wood	227.5
	Tack Wood	63

[1] Boundary change.

1 January to 19 March 1997

Forest district	Name of property	Area (ha)
Scotland
Fort Augustus	Fairy Bridge, Glenhinnisdale	92
Wales
Morgannwg	Hendre Rhys	18.3
England	Nil	—

Compulsory Competitive Tendering

Mr. Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he has taken legal advice on the Local Government Act 1988 (Competition) (Scotland) Regulations 1997, S.I. 1997, No. 197, following the reporting of these Regulations by the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments on the ground that they may be ultra vires (16th Report, HC29-xvi, Session 1996–97); and if he will make a statement. [15481]

Mr. Chisholm [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Local Government Act 1988 (Competition) (Scotland) Regulations 1997, S.I. 1997, No. 197, which were made by the previous Secretary of State, have no practical effect at present. Amendments were made to them by S.I. 1997/1436. This is part of the continuing moratorium on Compulsory Competitive Tendering in Scotland while a Best Value regime is being developed. The Government will re-examine these regulations if CCT under the Local Government Act 1988 has to be reimposed on any Scottish council.

Trunk Roads

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what public consultations he is undertaking about future investment in trunk roads in Scotland; and if he will issue a consultation document. [15951]

Mr. Chisholm [holding answer 14 November 1997]: As part of the strategic review of Trunk Roads in Scotland we shall issue a consultation document in spring 1998 on the new trunk road appraisal system. This system will fulfil our manifesto commitment to assess road proposals against the criteria of integration, accessibility, economy, safety and environmental impact.

Student Fees

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if the Scottish Office plans to fund all four years of study by students from England, Wales or Northern Ireland at Scottish Universities; how many students from England, Wales or Northern Ireland are currently in the fourth year of a degree course at a Scottish University; and what assessment he has made of the cost of funding this fourth year. [16094]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The Scottish Office provides a block grant for teaching in higher education to the Scottish Higher Education Funding Council. SHEFC funding supports about 118,000 full-time equivalent places in Scottish higher education institutions. These places are filled by students from any part of the European Union, including Scotland, England, Northern Ireland and Wales, and the provision includes among other things all years of the Scottish first degree courses, including the fourth year of Scottish Honours courses. Broadly speaking, the funding from the Scottish Office for the fourth year of English, Welsh and Northern Irish students is about £15 million.

Current figures on student numbers are not yet available. Students in Scottish higher education institutions in the fourth year of a degree programme in December 1996 included around 3,400 domiciled in England, around 100 domiciled in Wales and around 900 domiciled in Northern Ireland.

The Scottish Office also provides student support to Scottish domiciled students for higher education courses no matter where in the UK they study.

Land Policy

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the members of the Scottish Office Committee to investigate land policy in Scotland, and the grade, department and relevant area of expertise of the civil servant members; and if he will make a statement. [15735]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The Land Reform Policy Group is chaired by my noble Friend the Minister for Agriculture, the Environment and Fisheries; the Minister for Education and Industry and my special adviser Murray Elder also attend when available. In other core membership comprises the following officials of The Scottish Office and the Forestry Commission:

	Grade	Department	Area
Isabelle Low	Senior Civil Service	Agriculture, Environment and Fisheries Department	Land Use Division
Alan Fraser	Senior Civil Service	Education and Industry Department	Enterprise and Tourism Division
John Randall	Senior Civil Service	Agriculture, Environment and Fisheries Department	Rural Affairs and Natural Heritage Unit
Douglas Greig	Senior Civil Service/Chief Economist	Agriculture, Environment and Fisheries Department	Economics and Statistics Division
Hugh MacDiarmid	Senior Civil Service	Home Department	Solicitor's Office

	Grade	Department	Area
Joyce Lugton	Grade 7	Home Department	Civil Law and Legal Aid Division
David Henderson-Howat	Chief Conservator	Forestry Commission
Angela Saunders (Secretariat)	Senior Executive Office	Agriculture, Environment and Fisheries Department	Land Use Division

Professor John Bryden of Aberdeen University, who has long experience of land tenure issues, acts as external assessor. The group also draws upon the relevant expertise of other officials as required, and upon the useful body of knowledge and literature produced by organisations that have devoted considerable time and effort to these issues.

Scottish Environment Protection Agency

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what submission he has received from the Scottish Environment Protection Agency for the 1998–99 Public Expenditure Survey; [16096]

(2) what level of grant-in-aid the Scottish Environment Protection Agency sought for 1998–99; what the grant-in-aid provision was for 1998–99 in the previous Public Expenditure Survey; and what assessment he has made of the level of grant-in-aid requested by the agency to fulfil its responsibilities. [16097]

Mr. Chisholm: My officials have met SEPA on several recent occasions, and funding for 1998–99 has been among the subjects discussed. My right hon. Friend will announce his detailed spending plans for 1998–99 in due course. SEPA's baseline for 1998–99 from last year's survey is £18.3 million.

DEFENCE

Defence Conversion

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will make a statement on progress made on Defence Conversion; [14477]

(2) when the Green Paper on the proposed Defence Diversification Agency will be published. [14478]

Mr. Spellar: My Department has no plans to promote defence conversion. However, we will shortly be bringing forward proposals on defence diversification. We said in our election manifesto that

"we support a strong UK defence industry which is a strategic part of our industrial base as well as our defence effort. We believe that part of its expertise can be extended to civilian use through a defence diversification agency".

We will publish a Green Paper on Defence Diversification before Christmas.

Mustard Gas

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what evaluation the Chemical Defence Establishment has made of whether short-term exposure to mustard gas causes (a) skin cancer, (b) leukaemia and (c) recurrent corneal ulcerative disease. [15554]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 18 November 1997:

I am replying to your question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the evaluation of the effects of mustard gas as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA).

The Chemical and Biological Defence Sector at Porton Down has not conducted any practical evaluation into the long term effects of short term exposure to mustard gas. However, DERA is aware of some reports that suggest a casual relationship between mustard gas exposure and respiratory and skin cancer, and possibly leukaemia. In particular, I refer you to the "Veterans at Risk" reports, details of which are given below.

You will recall from my reply to your earlier question about the ocular effects of mustard gas that case reports from the United States suggest that doses of between 400 and 800 milligrams per cubic metre per minute of mustard vapour result in corneal damage with ulceration and scarring of the conjunctiva. As far as recurrent corneal ulcerative disease is concerned, it has been reported that some individuals who experience acute eye injuries following exposure to high doses of mustard gas, particularly with liquid contamination of the eye, may exhibit clinical eye problems after their initial injuries have subsided. Sometimes recurrent and persistent corneal ulceration may occur after latent periods.

I hope this is helpful.

References:

1. C. M. Pechura and D. P. Rall (Editors). Veterans at Risk. The Health Effects of Mustard Gas and Lewisite. National Academy Press, Washington. 1993. ISBN 0-309-04832-X.

2. W. F. Hughes. Mustard gas injuries to the eyes. Archives of Ophthalmology. 27: 582-601, 1942.

Nuclear Materials

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) for what purpose special nuclear materials are being carried by air between RAF Brize Norton and the USA; and if he will make a statement; [16130]

(2) what steps he has taken to assure himself that flights carrying special nuclear materials between RAF Brize Norton and the USAF base at Dover in Delaware are in keeping with the United Kingdom's obligations under the Non-Proliferation Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [16131]

Dr. Reid: The Government are committed to all their obligations under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. I can confirm that the transportation of special nuclear material by aircraft between the United Kingdom and the United States does not contravene the obligations of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. It is conducted under the provisions of the 1958 UK/US Agreement for Co-operation on the Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defence Purposes.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16313]

Dr. Reid: My Department does not have a policy on the faxing of press releases to Opposition spokesmen. It has not been our practice routinely to fax such releases; this practice has not changed since 1 May. All Ministry of Defence Press Releases are distributed via the Central Office of Information News Distribution Service and are available in the House on POLIS.

Courts Martial

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many successful appeals there have been as a percentage of the total number of cases of courts martial in the (a) Army, (b) Navy and (c) Royal Air Force. [16086]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 14 November 1997]: Across the three Services, there were 31 applications to the Court-Martial Appeal Court in 1995 and 36 in 1996. The numbers of these which were successful, as a percentage of court-martial cases, are as follows:

Per cent.

	Army	Royal Navy	Royal Air Force
1995	0	0	0
1996	1	0	1

Changes were made to the court-martial system by the Armed Forces Act 1996 and the new system came into force on 1 April 1997. Before that date, however, where a court-martial had found an accused guilty, he was able to submit a petition to the Defence Council asking for a review of finding and/or sentence. If an applicant was granted the relief he sought at this stage there was no case to go forward to the CMAC. However, Service personnel were able to appeal to the CMAC against finding and sentence but not against sentence only. Since 1 April this year, the Reviewing Authority now automatically reviews all cases, whether a petition is submitted or not. Additionally, Service personnel can now appeal to the CMAC against finding and/or sentence.

The figures provided above do not reflect appeals against finding and/or sentence which were successful at the internal stage. The number of successful internal petitions as a percentage of the total number of courts-martial were:

Per cent.

	Army	Royal Navy	Royal Air Force
1995	2	11	17
1996	1	14	9

All figures have been rounded to the nearest percentage point.

Boarding School Allowance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what arrangements will be made for service personnel to receive professional help in the presentation of their case to their commanding officer for a special exception to be granted for boarding school allowance for under eight-year-old children; [16423]

(2) what will be the impact on public funds of the removal of the boarding school allowance for under eight-year-olds for service personnel; what estimate he has made of the number of personnel who will (a) leave the armed forces and (b) not volunteer for foreign postings as a result of this change; [16434]

(3) what consultation has taken place and on what occasions with (a) groups representing service personnel and (b) organisations representing independent schools in respect of the removal of boarding school allowance for under eight-year-olds; [16424]

(4) what research his Department has conducted into the educational impact of those children moved from school to school because of their parents' different service postings; [16433]

(5) if he will postpone his decision on the removal of the boarding school allowance for children aged under eight years for service personnel to allow more time for consultation; [16428]

(6) how many children will be affected in a full academic year by the removal of the boarding school allowance for under eight-year-olds; [16426]

(7) what arrangements are being made to notify (a) service personnel affected and (b) schools that will be affected by the removal of boarding school allowance for under eights for service personnel; [16427]

(8) when the boarding school allowance will be removed for under eight-year-olds. [16425]

Dr. Reid: The decision to increase the minimum age for eligibility for Boarding School Allowance was made by the previous Administration in response to the recommendations made in Sir Michael Bett's review of Armed Forces pay and allowances. These recommendations were made in light of the recognition that, whilst excessive turbulence can damage a child's educational progress, it was also recognised that some degree of mobility need not be harmful. A list of the organisations and agencies consulted during the review are listed in Sir Michael's report to the then Secretary of State for Defence, a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

Service personnel and other interested parties were informed of the changes in the regulations through the publication of the Information Document issued in February of this year. This publication was accompanied by an announcement by the then Minister for the Armed Forces, and the changes were also given wide publicity through the normal Service channels. It is the responsibility of individual parents to inform schools if the change in regulations is likely to affect the attendance of their children at school.

The amended regulations will come into force on 1 December 1997. There are no plans to postpone the implementation date.

Parents who are currently in receipt of BSA in respect of children under the age of eight will retain reserved rights to the allowance and will not, therefore, be directly affected by the change in the regulations. There are currently 80 children between the age of five and seven whose parents are claiming BSA, and the majority of these are either welfare cases or cases involving children with special educational needs. It is our policy that cases in these categories will continue to be viewed sympathetically. In view of the small number of children in the affected age group, and as many of these are receiving BSA for welfare reasons, the withdrawal of entitlement to BSA for children aged less than eight will have a marginal impact on public spending, and it is not anticipated that the changes will have any significant effect on recruitment and retention levels in the Armed Forces.

Service parents who believe that they fall into a category that warrants special consideration may seek advice in preparing their application from their unit administrative staff, who will have experience of preparing such cases; from the Service Childrens' Education agency—an organisation tasked specifically with the educational needs of Service children; and from the personnel and welfare staffs of the three Services.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the total cost to his Department of boarding school allowance for the academic year 1996–97 together with the total average number of children for whom boarding school allowance was claimed in that year and the average number of children whose parent is of (a) officer and (b) other rank; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the current admissible schools list. [16365]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 17 November 1997]: Costs for Boarding School Allowance are not held centrally for academic years. However the total cost to my Department of Boarding School Allowance in financial year 1996–97 was £87.5 million. The total average number of children for whom the allowance was claimed in the same year was 9,833, of whom 6,538 were the children of officers and 3,295 were the children of other ranks.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of the boarding school allowance. [16361]

Dr. Reid [holding answer Monday 17 November 1997]: My Department remains committed to the principle of providing a stable educational environment for the children of Armed Forces personnel. Boarding School Allowance is a central part of this provision and we remain confident that payment of this allowance is an effective way of ensuring continuity of education for the children of personnel who are subject to frequent postings throughout their Service careers.

With effect from 1 December 1997 certain changes will be introduced to the way in which BSA is regulated. These will help to target the allowance more accurately at those members of the Armed Forces who most need support in providing a stable education for their children. These changes were introduced in response to the recommendations made in Sir Michael Bett's report on pay and allowances in the Armed Forces, and were originally announced in the Information Document published by the previous administration in February of this year.

Chinook Helicopters

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was paid in compensation to the Ministry of Defence in 1995 by Textron Lycoming in connection with the manufacture and supply of fully automated digital engine control systems for RAF Chinook helicopters. [14782]

Mr. Spellar: The Ministry of Defence had no claim against, and therefore in 1995 received no money in compensation from, Textron Lycoming for the manufacture and supply of fully automated digital engine control systems for RAF Chinook Helicopters.

However, compensation totalling just over $3 million was received from Textron Lycoming in November 1995 in respect of damage caused to an RAF Chinook HC Mk1 aircraft during development testing of a pre-production Full Authority Digital Electronic Control system.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the outcome of the case against Boeing brought by the Ministry of Defence in United States courts in connection with the manufacture and supply of fully automated digital engine control systems for RAF Chinook helicopters; and when the case was (a) commenced and (b) concluded. [14783]

Mr. Spellar: The Ministry of Defence brought no case against Boeing in United States courts in connection with the manufacture and supply of fully automated digital engine control systems for RAF Chinook Helicopters.

However, an RAF Chinook HC Mk1 aircraft was damaged in January 1989 during development testing of a pre-production Full Authority Digital Electronic Control system. The Ministry of Defence held that both Boeing and Textron Lycoming were responsible. A settlement was made by Being as a discount on a separate contract placed in September 1993.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what independent assessment was made, and by whom, of the performance and reliability of the software used in 1994 on RAF Chinook helicopters including aircraft ZD 576; and what were the conclusions and recommendations. [14779]

Mr. Spellar: FADEC software was subjected to an independent review by EDS Scicon Ltd. in July 1993. This review was commissioned because A&AEE, Boscombe Down (now part of DERA) was concerned with the method of software qualification used by the FADEC Design Authority, Textron Lycoming.

EDS Scicon were contracted to verify the software using a State Code Analysis (SCA) technique recommended by Boscombe Down. However, the contracted software documentation was not amenable to such analysis, so the work stopped after only 17 per cent. of the code had been reviewed; 485 observations were made, but none was considered safety critical and most related to errors in the documentation. The EDS final report did not make recommendations.

In October 1993, EDS Scicon made preliminary proposals to carry out a limited rewrite of the software to make it more compatible with SCA verification. This proposal was not accepted, but to satisfy Boscombe Down's concerns and provide improved maintainability for any future update of the software code, the Ministry of Defence decided to re-document the software to make it suitable for SCA. Textron Lycoming were contracted on a shared cost basis and the software re-documentation work was eventually completed in 1996.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the planned introduction of cockpit voice recorders and accident data recorders into all Chinook helicopters commenced; and when it will be completed. [14781]

Mr. Spellar: Cockpit Voice Recorders and Flight Data Recorders will be fitted to all Chinook helicopters as part of the Chinook Health and Usage Monitoring (HUMs) programme. A contract was signed with Smith

Industries (UK) Ltd., on 25 October 1996. The equipment will be fitted to the first 6 aircraft by December 1998, and embodied on the rest of the fleet by late Spring 2000.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many incident signals have been issued relating to the fully automated digital engine control system on Chinook Mark II aircraft since they were introduced into squadron service with the RAF. [14780]

Mr. Spellar: Incident Signals are raised for both ground and air incidents. Some incidents may be spurious; that is to say a fault is indicated in some way which has not actually occurred; some may occur through use other than as recommended by the Aircraft Design Authority; some will be unconfirmed, which is to say no faults found on a subsequent examination; and some will be due to system faults.

With regard to the Chinook HC Mk2; there have been a total of 519 Incident Signals, of which 70 have been FADEC related. Of those FADEC related signals, seven were spurious, 24 arose through carrying out engine overspeed tests other than as designed, three were unconfirmed, and 36 were attributed to system faults. Of the 36 attributed faults, 14 were due to mechanical failure, five were due to electrical failure and 17 were software faults.

Strategic Review

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what deadline he has given for receiving the report of the part of the Strategic Review relating to DERA. [16694]

Dr. Reid: As part of the Strategic Defence Review, we are examining options for the future of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. No precise deadline has been set for a report to Ministers on this work, which will be conducted in accordance with the overall timetable for the Strategic Defence Review.

Fox Hunting

Mr. Grey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much private land which the military have previously used for training purposes is no longer available as a result of the change of policy with regard to fox hunting over his Department's land. [16518]

Mr. Spellar: We have renewed licences for fox hunting on the Defence Estate and therefore there should be no question of training use of private land being withheld on this account.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's policy on fox hunting as a means of fox control on his Department's estate. [16548]

Mr. Spellar: Hunting with hounds is one of the means by which fox numbers on the Defence Estate are reduced.

HMY Britannia

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 7 November, Official Report, column 361, if he will provide a breakdown of the estimated additional cost of the farewell voyage of HMY Britannia; and what estimate he has made of the level of costs incurred by the voyage to which they are additional. [16160]

Dr. Reid: The additional costs associated with the farewell voyage of HMY Britannia and its escort vessel can be broken down as follows:

	£
HMY Britannia
Port and harbour dues	51,000
Fuel	71,000
Travel and subsistence	2,000
Telecommunications	3,000
Entertainment	5,000
Escort vessel
Port and harbour dues	20,000
Fuel	5,000

The only other identified costs specifically associated with the voyage are those of the support tanker RAF Brambleleaf. These amounted to £81,000 for Port and Harbour dues and £19,000 for fuel.

These costs are in each case additional to the underlying cost of running the vessels, including manpower, that would have been incurred whether or not they had undertaken the farewell voyage.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list (a) his Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if he will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared to those for 1990; and what estimate he has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15545]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the United Kingdom's Second Report under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward what the current programme is expected to achieve to 2020.

Primary Schools (Class Sizes)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what was the average class size for key stage 1 classes in primary schools (a) in January and (b) in September 1997. [15552]

Mr. Byers: The average class size of Key stage 1 classes taught by one teacher in maintained primary schools in England in January 1997 was 26.9.

Information on class sizes in September is not collected centrally.

Universities (Building, Equipment and Collaborative Projects)

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will establish the revolving loan fund for university building refurbishment, equipment and collaborative projects recommended by the Dearing report; and if he will make a statement on what measures his Department plans to take to encourage support for the scheme among public and private research sponsors. [15322]

Dr. Howells: It is for the Higher Education Funding Council for England to consider, in the light of other forms of finance and support schemes, whether or not to establish a revolving loan fund for university building refurbishment, equipment and collaborative projects, as recommended in the Dearing Report (recommendation 75). The Funding Council has already encouraged other research sponsors to support its joint research equipment initiative: this provides grants rather than loans.

The Government are currently considering, in the light of responses to consultation, the separate recommendation in the Dearing Report (recommendation 34) for a revolving loan fund to support infrastructure in a limited number of top quality research departments.

University for Industry

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what factors he will take into account when deciding where to locate the HQ of the proposed University for Industry. [15515]

Dr. Howells: The University for Industry will not require a large physical presence as it will make full use of information and communications technologies and networks to deliver its information, brokerage and commissioning services and it will not itself deliver courses. It is too soon to determine that factors that will be taken into account in locating its administrative centre.

Electronic Data (Access)

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what proposals he has to maintain the free access for research purposes to academic and scientific data stored electronically recommended by the Dearing report; and if he will make a statement. [15587]

Dr. Howells: We are currently considering the communications and information technology recommendations of the Dearing Report in the light of consultations and wider issues of policy on copyright.

Dance and Drama

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what discussions he has held with ministers in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on the funding of students of dance and drama; and if he will make a statement. [15604]

Dr. Howells: The Secretary of State for Education and Employment met the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on 28 October 1997. The matters they discussed included the arrangements for providing financial support for dance and drama students, which are under review.

Training (Fraud)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what estimate he has made of the level of fraud carried out by training providers who claim for work that has been undertaken. [15514]

Dr. Howells: It is not possible to estimate the level of fraud carried out by training providers. Currently the Department for Education and Employment's Financial Scrutiny Unit is investigating 20 cases of alleged fraud or irregularity by training providers. We believe around 5,000 providers deliver training so these cases represent a very small proportion, but one, nevertheless which we seek to eradicate.

Training and Enterprise Councils (Internet)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list those TECs which have internet sites and what percentage of the total this represents. [15516]

Dr. Howells: I understand from the TEC National Council that, at 15 September, 40 TECs had internet sites. This represents 55 per cent. of all English TECs. A list follows:

AZTEC
Barnsley and Doncaster TEC
Birmingham TEC
Bradford and District TEC
CAMSTEC
Central England TEC
County Durham and Darlington TEC
Cumbria TEC
Devon and Cornwall TEC
Focus Central London TEC
Gloucestershire TEC
Greater Nottingham TEC
Hampshire TEC
Hereford and Worcester CCTE
Humberside TEC
Kent TEC
Leeds TEC
Lincolnshire TEC
Manchester TEC
Merseyside TEC
Milton Keynes and North Bucks CCTE
Norfolk and Waveney TEC
North Derbyshire TEC
North London TEC
North Nottinghamshire TEC
Northumberland TEC
Rochdale TEC
Rotherham CCTE
Sheffield TEC
SOLOTEC
Somerset TEC
South and East Cheshire TEC
Southern Derbyshire CCTE
Sunderland City TEC
Surrey TEC
Sussex CCTE
Thames Valley Enterprise
Tyneside TEC
Wakefield TEC
West London TEC.

Fair Trade (Coffee and Tea)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment, pursuant to the oral Statement by the Secretary of State for International Development, Official Report, 5 November, column 332, if he will instruct officials to serve coffee and tea furnished by suppliers who adhere to fair trade standards in his Department. [15489]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by the Prime Minister on 13 November, Official Report, column 617.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list each of the overseas trips made by himself and other members of his ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if he will make a statement. [15260]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Seventeen overseas trips have been made by the Department for Education and Employment Ministers since 2 May. A breakdown is shown in the following table:

Ministerial Overseas Travel: 2 May–11 November

Minister	Date(s) of visit		Country	Purpose of visit	Expenditure (£)
	From	To
Andrew Smith	09/06/97	10/06/97	Switzerland	ILO Conference	2,110.28
Baroness Blackstone	25/06/97	26/06/97	Luxembourg	Education Council	2,804.91
Secretary of State/Andrew Smith	26/06/97	27/06/97	Luxembourg	Social Affairs Council	6,938.85
Kim Howells	04/07/97	05/07/97	Switzerland	Attendance at Skills Olympics	1,664.67
Baroness Blackstone	04/07/97	05/07/97	Luxembourg	Social Affairs Council	1,736.14
Kim Howells	13/07/97	14/07/97	Germany	UNESCO Conference	1,907.41
Baroness Blackstone	25/07/97	01/08/97	Botswana	Commonwealth Education Ministers' Conference	22,602.49
Baroness Blackstone	26/09/97	28/09/97	Italy	Conference on Education	527.57
Alan Howarth	05/10/97	09/10/97	USA	To examine Welfare to Work Initiative and Disability Legislation	12,651.00
Kim Howells	06/10/97	07/10/97	Germany	To examine German "dual" system of training	1,190.13
Andrew Smith	06/10/97	07/10/97	Luxembourg	Social Affairs Council	2,785.03
Andrew Smith	14/10/97	15/10/97	France	OECD Meeting	2,424.37
Secretary of State	15/10/97	16/10/97	France	Bilateral Meeting	1,084.83
Kim Howells	27/10/97	28/10/97	Luxembourg	EC Youth Council Meeting	2,122.46
Baroness Blackstone	02/11/97	03/11/97	Netherlands	Bilateral Meeting	—
Andrew Smith	06/11/97	07/11/97	Belgium	Employment Week and Special Social Affairs Council	—
Andrew Smith	10/11/97	11/11/97	Sweden	Meeting with French Minister of Labour	—

[1] Costs have not yet been brought to account.

Welfare to Work

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment for what reasons the Colchester area was selected, under the Welfare to Work New Deal proposals, for private sector bidding; and if he will make a statement. [15857]

Mr. Andrew Smith: We have invited the private sector to lead the organisation and delivery of New Deal in a total of ten locations. The competition to identify private sector lead organisations in the two pathfinder areas of Hackney and City and South Humber is complete. The additional eight areas were selected on the basis of a judgment as to where a private sector led partnership would have most to contribute.

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many hon. Members responded to his consultation letter on the Government's Welfare to Work proposals; and if he will list those responded. [15856]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The response to our Welfare to Work proposals has been very encouraging, from hon. Members as well as from employers, voluntary sector organisations and other interested partners. Consultation on the New Deal and other Welfare to Work proposals has been wide ranging and it is not possible to identify from our records which of many representations we have received have been as a direct response to my right hon. Friend's letter.

Montserrat Evacuees

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what assistance his Department is giving to evacuees from Montserrat who wish to (a) study and (b) work in the United Kingdom. [15850]

Mr. Alan Howarth: Montserrat evacuees have full access to the education system. The Montserrat Emergency Awards Scheme has been set up to help with the fees and living expenses of higher education students. The evacuees are being helped by the Employment Service to find work and they may enter the Government's employment and training programmes, providing they meet the eligibility criteria.

Student Support Agency

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment pursuant to paragraph 21.56 of the main report of the National Committee of Inquiry into Higher Education, when he expects to establish a student support agency; if he will make a statement about (a) the likely responsibilities of the agency and (b) the likely number of its employees; and if he will assess the advantages of housing the agency at his Department's Albion Wharf offices, York. [15763]

Dr. Howells: The Government are currently considering the National Committee of Inquiry into Higher Education's recommendation for a student support agency and expects to make an announcement shortly.

Student Funding

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if students who currently claim supplementary allowance will continue to receive this as grants under the Government's student finance reforms. [15523]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 12 November 1997]: Subject to means-testing, higher education students currently eligible for supplementary allowances as part of their mandatory award will continue to be eligible for them until the end of their course. Students who enter full-time higher education in 1998–99 will be eligible for these allowances as part of their mandatory award on the same basis as now for 1998–99 only. The Disabled Students Allowances will no longer be subject to a means-test from 1998–99. The Government will review the position for 1999–2000 and beyond.

Student Loan Book

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if the Government will use the money raised from the sale of the student loan book for re-investment in higher education. [15524]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 12 November 1997]: The sale proceeds will be available to the Government to meet their expenditure commitments including those in higher education, and have already been taken into account within the Department's spending plans.

Americans with Disabilities Act

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what assessment his Department has made of the Americans with Disabilities Act; and if officials from his Department visited the United States of America to study the impact of this legislation. [16033]

Mr. Alan Howarth: The Department has not made a comprehensive assessment of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

I recently visited the USA and discussed the effectiveness of the Act with, amongst others: Ronald Drach, Vice Chairman of the President's Committee on the Employment of People with Disabilities and Paul Inasaki, Vice Chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

My senior official dealing directly with policy on civil rights for disabled people has also visited for more extensive discussions. Both I and my officials met Paul Miller, a Commissioner from the American Employment Equal Opportunities Commission when he visited London recently. We also receive a range of journals and other publications on the Act.

We are aware of evidence that there have been very significant benefits not just for disabled people but for business from this legislation, particularly in relation to retention of employees who become disabled and to improving access to customers. Research has shown a general acceptance of the principles of the legislation among American employers and it has been found that costs associated with making adjustments were often lower than many employers anticipated. This is in line with experience here.

However, the Act has not yet ended discrimination against disabled people.

Higher and Further Education

Mr. McNulty: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what criteria his Department will use to determine the distribution of the 500,000 additional places in higher and further education throughout the United Kingdom announced by the Prime Minister. [16133]

Dr. Howells: We are currently drawing up proposals for taking forward the Prime Minister's pledge. The distribution of the 500,000 will reflect our policies on lifelong learning, in particular widening participation and increasing attainment. We intend to concentrate especially on those who have not benefited from learning previously and young people at risk of dropping out, and will provide more details of our proposals in the forthcoming Lifelong Learning White Paper.

School Playing Fields

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what is his Department's policy on the sale of school playing fields required for educational or community purposes; and if he will estimate the number of such fields (a) currently declared surplus to educational requirements and (b) where planning consent has been given for change of use. [15946]

Mr. Byers: We intend to make sure that those playing fields which schools and their local communities need are not sold in future. To that end, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment is discussing a wide range of options with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport and the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions.

The current legal framework allows local authorities to dispose of the assets they own without reference to the Secretary of State. The governors of grant-maintained schools, however, do need prior approval. But we expect local authorities to consider carefully projected pupil numbers for the foreseeable future and the needs of the wider communities that their schools serve, before they decide that any land is surplus to requirements.

Decisions on the sale of LEA-maintained playing fields are for local determination. The Department does not collate this information centrally.

Planning consent is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions.

GCSE Results

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he plans to publish the average point score for each school's GCSE results; and if he will make a statement. [16054]

Dr. Howells [holding answers 14 November 1997]: The secondary school performance tables to be published shortly will continue to show the percentage of 15 year old pupils in each school who achieved five or more GCSE grades A*–C,5 or more grades A*–G, and 1 or more grades A*–G. Presentation of GCSE achievements in this way have received broad support in the past. We shall consult fully early next year onthe 1998 performance tables.

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment which local education authority has achieved the greatest improvement in performance at GCSE level and equivalent since 1994. [16649]

Dr. Howells: Newham local education authority has achieved the greatest improvement in performance at GCSE and equivalent since 1994 with an increase of 10 percentage points in the percentage of 15 year old pupils achieving five or more grades A*–C at GCSE or equivalent. This has increased from 23 per cent. in 1994 to 33.4 per cent. in 1997.

Smoking

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will introduce measures to ban smoking by pupils in all schools and educational establishments. [16448]

Ms Estelle Morris: We have no plans to do so. We encourage schools and other educational establishments to decide their won policies, bearing in mind the needs of both the students and staff. An increasing number of schools already prohibit smoking entirely on their premises, or limit it to a designated area for all teachers, non-teaching staff and visitors. Research conducted this year by Ofsted, via a questionnaire sent to 1,500 schools, found that 88 per cent. of primary schools and 79 per cent. of secondary schools already have no-smoking policies in place.

University Funding

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if his Department plans to fund all four years of study by students from England at Scottish Universities; how many students from England are currently in the fourth year of a degree course at a Scottish University; and what assessment he has made of the cost of funding this fourth year. [16091]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 14 November 1997]: There were some 3,400 students from England in the fourth year of first degree courses at Scottish institutions in 1996–97 (the latest year for which figures are available). Under our plans, students from lower-income families will have the whole of their tuition fees paid for them in the fourth as in the previous three years, whilst others may have part of their fees paid, depending on an assessment of their parents', spouses' or own income.

We estimate that the extra cost of meeting the contributions payable by students from England towards fees in the fourth year of first degree courses at Scottish institutions would be some £1.5 million.

Child Care

Ms Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) if he will make a statement on the role of child care information in the new child care strategy in relation to the Welfare to Work and Lifelong Learning Initiatives; [16439]

(2) if he will make a statement on co-ordination between the bodies involved in the New Deal in relation to child care information; [16440]

(3) what role the national child care organisations will play in the development of child care information services for the New Deal and Lifelong Learning Initiatives. [16441]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Child care is important to our Welfare to Work and Lifelong Learning strategies, particularly the New Deal for Lone Parents, which is why we have been consulting with national child care organisations to look at new and innovative ways of ensuring that information about child care opportunities will be readily available. This will feed into the National Childcare Strategy, which we are currently developing.

Social Fund Training Courses

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the termination of training courses previously run with the support of the European Social Fund. [16405]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The annual competition for funding through the European Social Fund (ESF) is intense and inevitably some projects are unsuccessful. In the competition for 1998 a proportion of successful applicants will be given approval for two years, subject to satisfactory performance. This will reduce for some projects the difficulties caused by the annual nature of the ESF.

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what steps his Department is taking to promote the principles of the employment provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 among small employers exempted from the employment duties set out in the Act. [16422]

Mr. Alan Howarth: The Department has been considering how to proceed with the small employer exclusion threshold and has held initial discussions with representatives of employer and disability organisations on the matter. We will announce plans shortly.

Student Loans Company

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment when the Student Loans Company's 1997 annual report and accounts will be available. [16874]

Dr. Howells: Copies of the report and accounts have today been placed in the Library.

Employment Service

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what targets were set for the Employment Service for 1997–98; and to what extent these have been achieved, broken down into standard regions to the latest date for which information is available. [16485]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Figures are available for the first six months of the 1997–98 Operational Year (1 April to 30 September 1997). The following summary tables give a breakdown of cumulative performance against the Annual Performance Agreement targets by the standard Employment Service Regions. The overall performance figure is shown in the final column. This column also shows variance against profiled targets.

Performance figures relate to the period April to September 1997

Operation year: 1997–98

APA indicators		Northern	Yorks and The Humber	East Midlands and Eastern	London and South East	South West
Unemployed placings	End year target	76,475	147,000	140,700	415,800	138,775
	Performance to September	33,459	65,835	67,488	182,289	69,431
JSA claimant placings	End year target	52,000	95,865	88,700	261,000	86,100
	Performance to September	23,085	42,875	43,071	111,203	42,273
Long term claimant placings (as percentage of JSA claimant placings)	End year target (per cent.)	45.4	43.4	44.0	57.1	42.4
	Performance to September (per cent.)	38.4	39.3	35.4	46.7	37.7
2 year plus claimant placings	End year target	4,800	6,750	6,450	27,300	4,500
	Performance to September	1,911	4,437	3,527	16,110	4,399
Placings of people with disabilities (as percentage of unemployed placings)	End year target (per cent.)	4.6	5.0	5.2	4.9	5.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	5.6	6.2	6.0	6.3	7.5

Performance figures relate to the period April to September 1997

Operation year: 1997–98

APA indicators		Northern	Yorks and The Humber	East Midlands and Eastern	London and South East	South West
Training for Work starts	End year target	11,146	14,771	14,342	36,835	12,335
	Performance to September	5,062	6,744	6,037	16,462	5,744
Positive outcomes for unemployed claimants invited to a 12 month advisory interview	End year target (per cent.)	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	48.3	48.3	53.1	44.8	56.2
Claims not pursued	End year target (per cent.)	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	12.9	11.5	13.4	11.8	12.8
Adjudication decisions made within 14 working days	End year target (per cent.)	70.0	70.0	70.0	70.0	70.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	This is information is not yet available. System changes have been commissioned.
Accuracy of Training for Work payments	End year target (per cent.)	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0
	Performance to September (per cent.	99.0	98.7	98.3	97.8	97.3
JSA claims passed to the Benefits Agency within 7 days[1]	End year target (per cent.)	90.0	90.0	90.0	90.0	90.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	88.0	85.9	86.6	84.0	86.2
Accuracy of JSA payments[2]	End year target (per cent).	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	95.4	95.0	96.5	95.8	95.9
Efficiency savings		The efficiency savings target is not profiled or allocated to Regions. The national target is £43 million. By September the ES had achieved £19.3 million.

[1] These figures should be treated with caution. The data are currently being investigated.
[2] Correct as at 10 October 1997.

		Office for Wales	West Midlands	North West	Office for Scotland	National
Unemployed placings	End year target	121,800	175,200	292,250	242,000	1,750,000
	Performance to September	55,973	79,316	108,827	105,309	767,927
JSA claimant placings	End year target	65,100	108,435	161,300	131,500	1,050,000
	Performance to September	28,912	47,522	61,064	60,784	460,789
Long term claimant placings (as percentage of JSA claimant placings)	End year target (per cent.)	39.0	48.8	43.7	46.8	47.5
	Performance to September (per cent.)	35.4	39.5	34.9	36.2	39.3
2 year plus claimant placings	End year target	3,450	6,750	8,175	6,825	75,000
	Performance to September	2,231	4,881	4,505	3,747	45,748
Placings of people with disabilities (as percentage of unemployed placings)	End year target (per cent.)	5.2	4.9	4.5	4.4	4.8
	Performance to September (per cent.)	6.7	6.8	5.3	5.4	6.1
Training for Work starts	End year target	7,199	15,520	21,848	15,999	14,995
	Performance to September	3,003	6,968	10,632	8,863	69,515
Positive outcomes for unemployed claimants invited to a 12 month advisory interview	End year target (per cent.)	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.043.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	53.0	50.4	52.7	49.4	49.3
Claims not pursued	End year target (per cent.)	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	12.9	12.3	11.3	12.0	12.1
Adjudication decisions made within 14 working days	End year target (per cent.)	70.0	70.0	70.0	70.0	70.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	This information is not yet available. System changes have been commissioned.
Accuracy of Training for Work payments	End year target (per cent.)	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	98.8	98.2	99.0	99.0	98.4
JSA claims passed to the benefits agency within 7 days[1]	End year target (per cent.)	90.0	90.0	90.0	90.0	90.0
	Performance to September (per cent.)	87.8	85.5	88.0	87.4	86.1
Accuracy of JSA payments[2]	End year target (per cent.)	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0
	Performance to September	98.2	95.4	92.9	93.5	95.0
Efficiency savings		The efficiency savings target is not profiled or allocated to Regions. The national target is £43 million. By September the ES had achieved £19.3 million.

[1] These figures should be treated with caution. The data are currently being investigated.
[2] Correct as at 10 October 1997.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what targets were set for the Employment Service in 1996–97; and to what extent these were achieved, broken down into standard regions. [16484]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The following summary tables give a breakdown of cumulative performance in 1996–97 against the Annual Performance Agreement targets by the standard Employment Service Regions. The overall National performance figure is shown in the final column. This column also shows variance against profiled targets.

More detailed information is available in the Employment Service Annual Report and Accounts laid before the House on 7 November 1997.

Operational year: 1996–97

APA indicators		Northern	Yorkshire and the Humber	East Midlands and Eastern	London and South East	South West
Unemployed placings	Target	93,900	145,600	160,450	500,900	157,200
	Actual	77,988	140,904	137,503	402,973	143,647
	Variance (per cent.)	-17	-3	-14	-20	-9
JSA claimant	Target	27,960	41,780	47,690	154,130	43,400
Placings (from October 1996)	Actual	25,215	44,979	47,314	127,747	46,731
	Variance (per cent.)	-10	8	-1	-17	8
Long term claimant placings	Actual (per cent.)	25.8	26.6	24.1	28.7	23.8
(as percentage of unemployed placings)	Target (per cent.)	28.7	28.9	29.5	37.1	27.0
	Variance	-2.9	-2.3	-5.4	-8.4	-3.2
Placings of people with disabilities	Target (per cent.)	4.0	4.4	4.6	4.8	4.2
(as percentage of unemployed placings)	Actual (per cent.)	4.7	5.4	5.4	5.2	5.8
	Variance	+0.7	+1.0	+0.8	+0.4	+1.6
Training for Work referrals	Target	36,000	48,000	50,880	125,745	39,000
	Actual	28,632	36,905	39,010	100,229	31,598
	Variance (per cent.)	-20	-23	-23	-20	-19
Training for Work starts	Target	12,000	16,000	16,960	41,915	13,000
	Actual	10,846	14,366	13,950	35,830	11,999
	Variance (per cent.)	-10	-10	-18	-15	-8
Positive outcomes for unemployed claimants	Target (per cent.)	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0
invited to a 12 month advisory interview	Actual (per cent.)	36.6	36.7	38.5	35.3	45.7
	Variance	-6.4	-6.3	-4.5	-7.7	+2.7
Positive outcomes for unemployed claimants	Target (per cent.)	35.0	35.0	35.0	35.0	35.0
invited to a 24 month advisory interview	Actual (per cent.)	28.8	28.5	29.7	29.3	37.5
	Variance	-6.2	-6.5	-5.3	-5.7	+2.5
Claims not pursued	Target (per cent.)	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0
	Actual (per cent.)	11.6	10.7	11.3	12.3	11.6
	Variance	+1.6	+0.7	+1.3	+2.3	+1.6
Submissions to adjudication[1]	Target	8,226	17,980	19,748	79,045	15,335
	Actual	8,742	17,910	17,680	78,485	13,276
	Variance (per cent.)	6	-0	-10	-1	-13
Accuracy of Training for Work payments	Target (per cent.)	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0
	Actual (per cent.)	99.3	98.3	97.9	95.7	97.5
	Variance	+2.3	+1.3	+0.9	-1.3	+0.5
JSA claimants offered a jobseekers agreement	Target (per cent.)	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
	Actual (per cent.)	99.7	98.2	96.7	99.2	100.0
	Variance	-0.3	-1.8	-3.3	-0.8	-
Efficiency savings		The efficiency savings target is not profiled or allocated to Regions. In 1996–97 the national target was £43 million. The year end achievement was £44.34 million.

[1] Sum of individual regional targets greater than national target of 215,000 submissions.

APA Indicators		Office for Wales	West Midlands	North West	Office for Scotland	National
Unemployed placings	Target	130,750	191,350	333,850	256,000	1,970,000
	Actual	115,994	161,675	270,021	234,607	1,685,312
	Variance (per cent.)	–11	–16	–19	–8	–14
JSA claimant	Target	29,970	59,360	82,080	75,040	561,450
placings (from October 1996)	Actual	29,644	51,990	68,239	66,557	508,416
	Variance (per cent.)	–1	–12	–17	–11	–9
Long term claimant placings	Target (per cent.)	18.9	31.6	23.9	27.5	29.5
(as percentage of unemployed placings)	Actual (per cent.)	18.7	26.0	19.7	22.5	24.3
	Variance (per cent.)	–0.2	–5.6	–4.2	–5	–5.2
Placing of people with disabilities	Target (per cent.)	4.4	4.5	4.0	4.1	4.4
(as percentage of unemployed placings)	Actual (per cent.)	5.5	5.5	4.4	4.6	5.1
	Variance	+1.1	+1.0	+0.4	+0.5	+0.7

APA Indicators		Office for Wales	West Midlands	North West	Office for Scotland	National
Training for Work referrals	Target	29,790	45,000	69,825	44,760	489,000
	Actual	21,561	38,551	55,040	42,477	394,003
	Variance (per cent.)	–28	–14	–21	–5	–19
Training for Work starts	Target	9,930	15,000	23,275	14,920	163,000
	Actual	7,693	15,098	21,258	19,308	150,348
	Variance (per cent.)	–23	1	–9	29	–8
Positive outcomes for unemployed claimants invited to a 12 month advisory interview	Target (per cent.)	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0
	Actual (per cent.)	36.2	41.5	37.6	39.0	37.8
	Variance	–6.8	–1.5	–5.4	–4.0	–5.2
Positive outcomes for unemployed claimants invited to a 24 month advisory interview	Target (per cent.)	35.0	35.0	35.0	35.0	35.0
	Actual (per cent.)	29.5	33.4	29.9	30.7	30.3
	Variance	–5.5	–1.6	–5.1	–4.3	–4.7
Claims not pursued	Target (per cent.)	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0
	Actual (per cent.)	11.4	11.6	9.6	10.8	11.3
	Variance	+1.4	+1.6	+0.4	+0.8	+1.3
Submissions to adjudication[1]	Target	9,513	13,500	36,223	16,942	216,512
	Actual	9,714	10,245	32,498	14,141	202,691
	Variance (per cent.)	2	–24	–10	–17	–6
Accuracy of Training for Work payments	Target (per cent.)	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0	97.0
	Actual (per cent.)	98.4	98.6	98.6	98.8	98.1
	Variance (per cent.)	+1.4	+1.6	+1.6	+1.8	+1.1
JSA claimants offered a jobseekers agreement	Target (per cent.)	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
	Actual (per cent.)	97.8	99.7	98.6	100.0	98.9
	Variance	–2.2	—0.3	—0.4	–	–1.1
Efficiency savings		The efficiency savings target is not profiled or allocated to Regions. In 1996–97 the national target was £43 million. The year end achievement was £44.34 million.

[1] Sum of individual regional targets greater than national target of 215,000 submissions.

HEALTH

Blood

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if increased cost recovery charges for donated blood products will be levied to national health service hospitals and national health service trusts during the financial year 1998–99. [15560]

Mr. Boateng: Blood handling costs for 1998–99 are currently under review.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the National Blood Authority has to introduce tests for anti-malaria antibodies. [15564]

Mr. Boateng: The National Blood Authority is currently piloting malarial antibody screening tests in two centres.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff were employed at the National Blood Authority's headquarters at Watford, and what were the centre's operating costs in the last year for which figures are available. [15563]

Mr. Boateng: In 1996–97 there were 25 staff at the Watford headquarters. The operating costs were £1.7 million for that year.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the surveys of blood donors on the sale or disposal of surplus blood products, quoted by the National Blood Authority in their communications. [15585]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The latest survey was carried out in 1996, and copies of the report "Blood Donors and Exports" have been placed in the Library.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the value of transitional funding provided to the three zones of the National Blood Service in order to facilitate the reorganisation of the English blood services. [15576]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The transitional funding to the zones was £3.3 million, £1.1 million per zone.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many working days during 1996–97 and during the first half-year of 1997–98, (a) total blood stocks in England were less than 15,000 units, (b) stocks of group O positive were less than 3,200 units, (c) stocks of group O negative were less than 1,100 units and (d) stocks of group AB positive exceeded 1,200 units. [15581]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information requested is in the table.

	1996–97 Number of working days (251)	1997–98 (April–end September) Number of working days (126)
Total stock less than 15,000	49	0
O positive stock less than 3,200	43	1
O negative stock less than 1,100	14	0
AB positive stock more than 1,200	247	125

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many red cell units were issued by zone and by year, by the National Blood Service during (i) 1994–95, (ii) 1995–96, (iii) 1996–97 and (iv) the first half-year of 1997–98. [15580]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information requested is in the table:

	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97	1997–98 (6 months)
Midlands and South West	577,803	586,425	586,113	303,861
London and South East	782,457	803,411	814,619	422,271
North	756,277	763,656	782,706	403,832
NBS	2,116,537	2,153,492	2,183,438	1,129,964

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the National Blood Service performance indicators for each zone for the financial year 1996–97 and for the first half-year of 1997–98. [15579]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health gave him on 11 November 1997, Official Report, columns 705–06.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what were the costs of redundancy payments made to National Blood Service personnel since 1 April 1995, in each National Blood Service zone and in each financial year. [15577]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information requested is given in the table.

£000

	1995–96	1996–97	1997–98 (April–end September)
London and South East	Nil	328	131
Midlands and South West	26	281	152
North	133	505	146
Total	159	1,114	429

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the total expenditure by the National Blood Authority in (i) 1994–95, (ii) 1995–96 and (iii) 1996–97 and what is the forecast expenditure for 1997–98. [15583]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information requested is as follows:

Year	£ million
1994–95	173
1995–96	188
1996–97	202
1997–98	[1]207

[1] Forecast.

The figures given are for the authority as a whole, and are rounded to the nearest million.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the operating surplus or deficit for each zone of the National Blood Service for (i) 1995–96, (ii) 1996–97 and (iii) the first six months of 1997–98. [15584]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information requested is in the table.

	1995–96 £	1996–97 £	April to end September 1997 £
London and South East	(301,000)	18,000	88,000
Midlands and South West	(730,000)	(1,119,000)	(766,000)
North	(735,000)	(301,000)	(620,000)

Source:
National Blood Authority.

Hearing

Sir Nicholas Lyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the cost to the National Health Service in the last year for which figures are available of providing health care for people suffering from hearing difficulties, separately identifying the cost of providing hearing aids. [15677]

Mr. Boateng: The National Health Service does not collect figures for the health care costs of people with hearing loss or for the cost of providing hearing aids. However, we know that more than half a million hearing aids per year are purchased from the NHS Supplies Authority. Audiology departments also purchase some hearing aids from commercial suppliers.

Waiting Lists (Sportspeople)

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines his Department issues in respect of the priority to be afforded to professional sportspeople on waiting lists for NHS treatment for injuries incurred during competition. [15949]

Mr. Milburn: We have not issued any guidance on this subject. We would expect that where professional sportspeople turn to the National Health Service for treatment the priority they are given will depend on their clinical and other needs compared with those of other patients waiting for treatment.

Incontinence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment his Department has made of the Royal College of Nursing briefing paper on "The Cost of Continence"; and if a representative of his Department will meet representatives of the Royal College of Nursing to discuss the report; [15927]

(2) what plans his Department has to improve the care for people with incontinence who are still living in their own homes. [15928]

Mr. Boateng: The Royal College of Nursing briefing paper "The Cost of Continence" provides a useful summary of the problems experienced by people who are incontinent and the social, psychological and financial costs of this distressing condition. I have already had a brief discussion about the report with Christine Hancock, the General Secretary of the Royal College of Nursing, and officials of the Department of Health would be happy to meet RCN officials for further discussion.

The £269 million additional funding for the National Health Service in England, which we have recently announced, is aimed partly at helped hospitals cope with medical emergencies, reducing delays in discharging patients and reducing the need for people to be admitted to hospital in the first place, for example by providing more specialist nursing and community services, such as continence services, for people—particularly older people—in their own homes. We are considering what further action it may be possible to take in this area.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the provision his Department will make for 1998–99 to support expenditure incurred by local authorities in assisting asylum seekers. [16195]

Mr. Boateng: We have given a commitment to reimburse local authorities for their expenditure in supporting asylum seekers for the current year. Whether or not local authorities will need reimbursing in 1998–99 depends on both the outcome of the forthcoming House of Lords appeal against the Court of Appeal ruling that the National Assistance Act 1948 applies to adult asylum seekers, and on the outcome of the current cross-departmental review of the whole asylum process which will report early in the new year.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the special grants to cover the costs incurred by local authorities in 1997–98 in support of asylum seekers will meet the full costs incurred by local authorities. [16323]

Mr. Boateng: Three special grants will be made available to local authorities for 1997–98, subject to Parliamentary approval, in respect of their expenditure on support for asylum seeking: adults, families and unaccompanied children.

For adult asylum seekers, local authorities will be able to claim their full costs up to a limit of £140 per week, averaged out over the year, for each asylum seeker supported. Local authorities will also be able to claim an additional £10 per week for each asylum seeker accommodated in specially commissioned or re-commissioned premises.

For the Families with Children Grant, local authorities will be able to recover 80 per cent. of the additional cost above the threshold set in council tax band D. This is in recognition of the additional burden on local authorities as a consequence of a change in legislation. The grant recognises that services for children and families have always formed a core part of social service functions, and so it would not be appropriate to meet costs in full. This grant will compensate local authorities for their additional costs.

Responsibilities for unaccompanied asylum seeking children and associated costs have fallen on a limited number of authorities. In recognition of these costs, a special grant of £3 million will be made available to local authorities. The grant is intended as a contribution towards helping local authorities meet their spending on unaccompanied asylum seeking children and it was never intended that the Government would be responsible for meeting the full costs.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will present a special grant report to Parliament, under section 88B of the Local Government Finance Act 1988, to cover the costs incurred by local authorities in 1997–98 in support of asylum seekers under the National Assistance Act 1948 and the Children Act 1989. [16324]

Mr. Boateng: We will shortly be consulting with local authority associations on the terms of the three special grants and plan to present them to Parliament before the end of this year.

London Strategic Review

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will publish the report by the Independent Advisory Panel on the London Strategic Review; and what is the length of the public consultation period between the publication of the report and the Government's response. [16546]

Mr. Milburn: We will be publishing the Independent Advisory Panel's advice and the Government's response in due course.

Community Hospitals

Mr. Prior: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his policy on the future of community hospitals (a) nationally and (b) in North Norfolk. [16544]

Mr. Boateng: Health authorities are responsible for determining the most appropriate balance of health services for their populations. However, we are currently examining national policy on effective service configurations, including the balance between acute hospital care and more community based services. The role of community hospitals is one element of a review of intermediate services currently being carried out by East Norfolk Health Authority. No short-term measures will be taken in respect of community hospitals in North Norfolk, which would prejudice debate on their longer-term future.

Young People (Assistance)

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will seek to amend section 24 of the Children Act 1989 to impose an enforceable duty on local authorities to assist young people who have left care with cash or material assistance until their 21st birthday. [16648]

Mr. Boateng: In addition to carrying out their duties to advise and befriend care leavers, local authorities make use of their powers under the Children Act 1989 to provide individual care leavers with assistance in kind or in cash to supplement any income that the young person receives whilst in training, education, employment or from state benefits. The Government are aware, however, of the social exclusion experienced by many care leavers and consider that the question of providing cash or material assistance cannot be separated from issues of housing, education, training and employment and Income Support. These are all matters which the Government intend to address as part of preventing social exclusion and we have no plans at present to amend.

Trust and Health Authority Boards

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many appointments to (a) trust and (b) health authority boards were due to be made in each month since 1 May; and how many appointments (i) have been made and (ii) are outstanding. [16545]

Mr. Milburn: A total of 570 trust board posts fell vacant on 1 November, of which 391 have now been filled. A further 502 trust board posts fall vacant on 1 December, 23 of which have already been filled.

Publicity and Advertising

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his estimate of the total expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for (i) 1993–94, (ii) 1994–95, (iii) 1995–96, (iv) 1996–97, (v) the 1997–98, year to date (vi) the 1997–98, full year estimate and (vii) the 1998–99 planned expenditure. [15221]

Ms Jowell [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Annual spending on publicity and advertising for the financial years 1993–94 to 1997–98 is shown in the attached table. Information for the year 1998–99 is not yet available.

£ million

Financial year	Total publicity expenditure (including advertising)	Advertising expenditure
1993–94
Department of Health	19.20	6.10
Agencies	—	—
Non-departmental public bodies	0.15	—
1994–95
Department of Health	18.20	4.30
Agencies	0.19	—
Non-departmental public bodies	0.24	—
1995–96
Department of Health	15.56	2.08
Agencies	0.18	—
Non-departmental public bodies	0.32	—
1996–97
Department of Health	15.73	2.50
Agencies	0.20	—
Non-departmental public bodies	0.28	—
1997–98 (to date)
Department of Health	3.29	0.27
Agencies	0.12	—
Non-departmental public bodies	0.08	—
1997–98 (full year estimate)
Department of Health	15.13	1.83
Agencies	0.26	—
Non-departmental public bodies	0.22	—

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 19 November 1997

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

China

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will give details of the training and equipment assistance provided to the Chinese police; how much has been spent on it so far; and what future cost commitments there are. [16042]

Clare Short: DFID assistance is limited to a £1 million contribution, approved in September 1996, to a United Nations project (managed by the UN Drug Control Programme) in Yunnan Province. The purpose of the project is to strengthen the drugs law enforcement capability of customs and police officials. Activities include training, development of guidelines for prosecution of traffickers and provision of vehicles and communications equipment to assist drug control operations in the mountainous border region between Yunnan and Burma.

World Bank Group

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will set out the recent changes in ministerial responsibilities for the World Bank Group and indicate how these will impact on the role of officials. [17259]

Mr. Foulkes: I am pleased to inform the House that the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Secretary of State for International Development have agreed that, following the creation of the Department for International Development, the Secretary of State for International Development should become the United Kingdom Governor of the World Bank Group. The Chancellor has taken over the role of United Kingdom Alternate Governor of the World Bank Group. He and the Secretary of State for International Development attended the meeting of the Development Committee in Hong Kong in September, followed by the Annual meetings of the IMF and World Bank.

The division of responsibilities at official level in our Delegation to the World Bank and International Monetary Fund (IMF) in Washington remains as before. The United Kingdom has one Executive Director for the World Bank and IMF who is a Treasury official appointed after consultation with the Department for International Development. On World Bank work, the Executive Director is assisted by an Alternate appointed by the Department for International Development.

Afghanistan

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps she has taken to protect the human rights of women in Afghanistan; and if she will make a statement. [16039]

Clare Short: UK assistance in Afghanistan is guided by a common position agreed with other aid donors. This calls on all parties to recognise, protect and promote the equal rights and dignity of men and women, including access to education, employment outside the home, personal security and freedom from intimidation and harassment, and to support only aid programmes which actively attempt to promote the equitable participation of both men and women.

In repeated representations to the Taliban and other factions, we have urged respect for women's human rights, for example in urging them to relax their restrictions on women's work and education. We are also supporting Oxfam to research gender issues and advocate for women's rights in Kabul.

My Department has recently appointed a field manager for Afghanistan to monitor our programme and its relation to human rights more effectively. A team from my Department is currently in Afghanistan looking into these issues amongst others.

We will continue to give a high priority to measures aimed at protecting human rights in Afghanistan in the UN, the Afghanistan Donor Support Group and other fora.

East Timor

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what action she has taken to implement her undertaking not to support any new programmes by the Government of Indonesia covering East Timor. [16040]

Clare Short: We are not supporting any projects through the Government of Indonesia which cover East Timor.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment she has made of the compliance of the European Union's three-year programme of aid to East Timor with the European Union's objectives in respect of strengthening respect for human rights. [16041]

Clare Short: The European Commission are still developing their proposals. My officials are maintaining contacts with their counterparts in the Commission.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what human rights projects she intends to support in East Timor. [16044]

Clare Short: We are actively investigating the best means of addressing human rights issues in East Timor (including economic and social rights) in consultation with NGOs and other interested parties.

Somalia

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance she has offered in respect of the recent floods in Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [16129]

Clare Short: The UN estimate about 200,000 people have been affected by recent flooding in the Shabelle and Juba river valleys: 1,000 may have died. Access is difficult. My Department has provided £0.5 million bilaterally to help SCF and World Vision reach 50,000 people with supplies. The EU has earmarked about £1.6 million (UK contribution—£228,000) for logistics and supplies. We are in close touch with UN agencies and NGOs and will consider new needs as they emerge.

Vietnam

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance she has offered to Vietnam following the recent hurricane; and if she will make a statement. [16126]

Clare Short: We offered a grant of £50,000 on 8 November through the British Embassy, Hanoi for the provision of immediate relief items. Most of this is being distributed by Oxfam to beneficiaries in the severely affected provinces of Tra vinh and Ca Mau. We are continuing to review the relief effort.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Millennium Dome

Mr. Marshall-Andrews: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place the consultation documents obtained during the review of the Millennium Dome Exhibition in the Library. [12998]

Mr. Chris Smith: I do not intend at this juncture to disclose the detailed review of the Exhibition which took place immediately after the General Election. As I explained in my letter to the hon. Gentleman of 9 September, my decision to invoke the exemption relating to internal discussion and advice under the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information was taken so as not to prejudice sensitive discussions between the New Millennium Company and contractors and sponsors. With the hon. Gentleman's agreement, I have made available in the Library of the House a copy of my letter of 9 September and of my letter of 10 September to him in my capacity as Chairman of the Millennium Commission.

Mr. Marshall-Andrews: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what was the date of the meeting of the Millennium Commission which approved funding for the Millennium Dome Exhibition of an additional £250 million. [12993]

Mr. Chris Smith: At its meeting of 9 July 1997, the Millennium Commission, of which I am Chairman, approved an offer of grant to the New Millennium Experience Company of up to a maximum of £449 million (gross) by December 1999 and £399 (net), inclusive of grant already paid under the interim agreement signed on 27 March 1997.

Opera and Ballet (London)

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if Sir Richard Eyre's appointment to chair the review group on the future of the London Coliseum and the Royal Opera House was conditional on his support for the basic principle of merger; and if he will make a statement. [15606]

Mr. Fisher: The text of my letter to Sir Richard Eyre has already been placed in the Libraries of the House. It says:

> "I shall be happy to receive the Working Group's recommendations, and I encourage you to think freely and creatively about the options".

I am not aware of any suggestion of a merger of any kind between the Royal Opera House companies and English National Opera.

Television Licences (Blind People)

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what is the estimated number of blind people who receive a discount for their television licence; when the amount was last reviewed; and if he will make it his policy to increase the discount for blind people. [16123]

Mr. Fisher: Approximately 34,400 registered blind people received a reduction in their television licence fee in the year to August 1997. The concessionary scheme, including this reduction, was reviewed within Government in 1985, but that review did not lead to the discount for the blind being increased.

The Government have no plans at present to increase the level of the reduction for blind people. However, the current Agreement between the Secretary of State and the BBC provides for a review of the television licence fee as the mechanism for funding the BBC after 2002. We shall conduct such a review before that date, and it will include a detailed consideration of the concessionary arrangements, including those for blind people.

Radio Rights

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what plans he has to prevent radio rights from being sold to non-radio broadcasters; and if he will make a statement; [16193]

(2) what measures he is taking to safeguard local radio live sports coverage; and if he will make a statement. [16194]

Mr. Fisher: Radio coverage of major sports events is included in the voluntary code signed by sports rights holders under the umbrella of the Central Council for Physical Recreation. This code appears to be working well. The current review of listed sports events will, however, allow the question of live radio broadcast rights to be considered further.

Sports Coverage

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will introduce a statutory code on news access to sports coverage; and if he will make a statement. [16192]

Mr. Fisher: News access to major sports events is protected under the fair dealing provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988. A voluntary code of practice signed by a number of broadcasters also exists and this appears to be working well.

Pay Television

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the ITC review into bundling and competition in the pay television market will be completed. [16693]

Mr. Fisher [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The closing date for responses to the Independent Television Commission's consultation document "Competition Investigation into Bundling in the Pay TV Market: Second Phase", was 30 September. I understand that the Commission are currently considering the responses and have not put any timescale on an announcement.

SCOTLAND

Health Service (Consultant Posts)

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many consultant posts in the Scottish Health Service are unfilled at present; where the unfilled posts are located; and what was the equivalent position 12 months ago. [16169]

Mr. Galbraith: The information requested is shown in the table.

Hospital medical and dental consultant vacancies as at 30 September

	1996		1997
Trust/Health Board	Total vacancies	Posts vacant more than six months	Total vacancies	Posts vacant more than six months
Aberdeen Royal Hospitals NHS Trust	10	5	5	4
Angus NHS Trust	—	—	3	—
Argyll and Bute NHS Trust	1	1	2	1
Ayrshire and Arran Community Health Care NHS Trust	5	5	5	5
Borders Community Health Services NHS Trust	—	—	1	—
Borders General Hospital NHS Trust	6	1	2	2
Caithness and Sutherland NHS Trust	—	1	3	—
Central Scotland Healthcare NHS Trust	5	1	2	1
Dumfries and Galloway Acute and Maternity Hospitals NHS Trust	5	5	6	5
Dumfries and Galloway Community Health NHS Trust	1	1	1	1
Dundee Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust	2	—	2	1
Dundee Healthcare NHS Trust	—	—	—	—
East and Midlothian NHS Trust	—	—	—	—
Edinburgh Healthcare NHS Trust	1	1	2	—
Edinburgh Sick Children's NHS Trust	2	2	—	—
Falkirk and District Royal Infirmary NHS Trust	6	2	1	1
Fife Healthcare NHS Trust	2	1	2	1
Glasgow Dental Hospital and School NHS Trust	1	—	1	—
Glasgow Royal Infirmary University NHS Trust	7	—	—	—
Grampian Healthcare NHS Trust	12	4	5	1
Greater Glasgow Community and Mental Health Services NHS Trust	9	3	4	2
Hairmyres and Stonehouse Hospitals NHS Trust	2	2	2	1
Highland Communities NHS Trust	2	2	1	—
Inverclyde Royal NHS Trust	8	5	3	3
Kirkcaldy Acute Hospitals NHS Trust	3	1	3	—
Lanarkshire Healthcare NHS Trust	12	12	10	7
Law Hospital NHS Trust	10	9	9	7
Lomond Healthcare NHS Trust	4	1	—	—
Monklands and Bellshill Hospitals NHS Trust	12	4	10	7
Moray Health Services NHS Trust	3	—	6	—
North Ayrshire and Arran NHS Trust	1	—	2	1
Orkney Health Board Unit	—	—	—	—
Perth and Kinross Healthcare NHS Trust	2	1	1	1
Queen Margaret Hospital NHS Trust	3	2	3	1
Raigmore Hospital NHS Trust	5	4	3	2
Renfrewshire Healthcare NHS Trust	6	4	6	3

Hospital medical and dental consultant vacancies as at 30 September

Trust/Health Board	1996 Total vacancies	1996 Posts vacant more than six months	1997 Total vacancies	1997 Posts vacant more than six months
Royal Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust	4	2	3	2
Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh NHS Trust	9	9	2	—
Scottish National Blood Transfusion Service	—	—	2	1
Shetland Hospitals and Community Services Unit	1	—	4	4
South Ayrshire Hospitals NHS Trust	4	1	7	—
Southern General Hospital NHS Trust	2	1	2	1
State Hospital	—	—	—	—
Stirling Royal Infirmary NHS Trust	2	2	2	—
Stobhill NHS Trust	1	—	3	—
Victoria Infirmary NHS Trust	2	1	3	1
West Glasgow Hospitals University NHS Trust	—	—	1	—
West Lothian NHS Trust	—	—	3	—
Western General Hospitals NHS Trust	6	1	3	1
Western Isles Health Unit	3	2	2	—
Yorkhill NHS Trust	5	2	1	1
Total	187	101	144	69

Water Quality

Mr. Ernie Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on Scottish river and coastal water quality. [17260]

Mr. Dewar: The report on the Water Quality Survey of Scotland 1995 is being published today, and a copy has been placed in the House Library. I am pleased that the results confirm that the majority of Scottish rivers, lochs, estuaries and coastal waters are of a high quality.

However, I intend that progress will continue to improve further the Scottish water environment. For very large discharges (that is those serving more than 150,000 population equivalent), Article 8(5) of the Urban Waste Water Treatment Directive allows for primary treatment only to be provided, where it can be demonstrated that there would be no environmental benefit from secondary treatment. I have decided that only in very exceptional circumstances will we allow waste water discharges from major conurbations into coastal waters to be provided with anything less than secondary treatment. Following advice from the Scottish Environment Protection Agency (SEPA) it is clear that the discharge from the Aberdeen Waste Water Treatment Works, which discharges directly to the open North Sea via a 2.5km long outfall, is exceptional in that it far exceeds the criteria established to judge such cases. The North of Scotland Water Authority's plans to invest in primary treatment will significantly improve the discharge, but I have accepted SEPA's advice that providing secondary treatment would not lead to any additional environmental benefit. The Government therefore have proposed to the European Commission that Article 8(5) of the Directive should be applied to the Aberdeen case.

Having also carefully considered SEPA's recommendations following comprehensive studies at Edinburgh and Levenmouth, I have decided that secondary treatment should be provided at those two sites. I do not envisage that the Government will wish to put forward to the Commission any further cases for relaxations under Article 8(5) for discharges from large sewage works into other Scottish waters.

Kent Report

Mr. Ernie Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the report commissioned from Mr. Roger Kent on safeguards for children living away from home. [17261]

Mr. Dewar: In July last year, Roger Kent was invited to look at the measures in place for the protection of children living away from home and to assess their effectiveness. I have now received Mr. Kent's report. It identifies the risks that exist for this group of vulnerable children, the safeguards which apply at present and makes a number of recommendations—61 in total—on how those safeguards could be improved. The recommendations are wide-ranging, addressing the needs of children living in residential and foster care, children in boarding schools and children otherwise living away from home.

I welcome the report as a further step in ensuring that children living away from home can do so in safety and security. Because the report raises a number of important issues spanning a range of interests, I have asked for it to be published. A consultation exercise on the report's recommendations will be undertaken before final decisions are taken on the recommendations.

HEALTH

Finished Consultant Episodes

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many elective finished consultant episodes took place in the NHS in 1996–97; [15672]

(2) how many emergency patients the NHS received in 1996–97. [15670]

Mr. Boateng: The number of general and acute elective finished consultant episodes commissioned by health authorities in England in 1996–97 was 5.0 million. The number of non-elective finished consultant episodes was 4.3 million. These data are drawn from the quarterly monitoring of health authorities.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Rural Employment

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans the Government have to sustain rural employment and local communities which depend upon such employment; and if he will make a statement. [16496]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The proportion of people in employment in rural areas is generally much higher than in urban areas. However, the figures can mask pockets of deprivation in the most remote areas.

The Government are taking forward a number of initiatives to sustain rural employment. The New Deal will help all young people, including those living in rural areas, to make the transition from welfare to work. In order to ensure diversity of opportunity in all parts of the country, we have invited local organisations and providers to participate in consortia to deliver the programme. I am delighted that Eastbourne has been selected as one of the New Deal "Pathfinder" areas in which the programme will start to operate from 5 January.

The Government's Local Competitiveness Challenge Fund can be particularly helpful for rural firms. The hon. Member may be familiar with the "Wired County" project in Sussex, which is developing local multimedia and on-line service industries. In addition, Single Regeneration Budget money is being used by the Salsey Regeneration Group to develop integrated public access systems for local businesses and individuals seeking training and employment.

Higher Education (Student Complaints)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to ensure that higher education establishments review their arrangements for handling complaints from students. [16554]

Dr. Howells: Universities and colleges of higher education are independent, autonomous bodies responsible for their own academic and administrative affairs, including arrangements for handling complaints from students. The Government have no powers to intervene directly. However, the Department is discussing with higher education representative bodies the recommendation from the National Committee of Inquiry into Higher Education (the Dearing Committee) that institutions should, over the next two years, review and, if necessary, amend their arrangements. I understand also that the Committee of Vice-Chancellors and Principals have been reviewing appeal arrangements for students and they expect to publish their final report and recommendations shortly.

Higher Education (Staff Contracts)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what steps he intends to take to ensure that confidentiality clauses in the contracts of staff working in higher education institutions are restricted to cases of clear commercial confidentiality; and if he will make a statement. [16555]

Dr. Howells: Higher education institutions are autonomous, private corporations and as such are responsible for the terms and conditions of contracts of employment of their staff. Ministers have no powers to intervene.

Youth Council

Mr. Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Youth Council on 28 October. [17246]

Dr. Howells: I attended a useful Council discussion about the prospects for Community action on youth beyond 1999. Debate focused on a Commission non-paper suggesting that there should be a single programme integrating the best elements of Youth for Europe III and the European Voluntary Service for Young People. The latter has yet to be adopted but is being "trialled" in what the Commission have described as a pilot programme in 1996 and 1997. Member States confirmed their attachment to an active youth policy at Community level.

The Commission's proposal to establish a European Voluntary Service for Young People from 1998 was also discussed. The UK maintained a Parliamentary scrutiny reserve but there was broad concensus on the text of the proposal. The budget had been a particular area of difficulty for the UK. Although we firmly support the concept of a voluntary service for young people, we considered that expenditure at the level that had been proposed (60 million ecu over two years) would be excessive in the early stages of an activity that is relatively undeveloped in some Member States. After discussion agreement to a figure of 35 million ecu over two years was secured. Subject to the UK scrutiny reserve being lifted, the common position reached at Council will be formally adopted and conveyed to the European Parliament as part of the co-decision process.

The Council also adopted a statement in the context of the European Year Against Racism, stressing the importance of informal education to promote the principles of tolerance and respect for other people; and welcoming initiatives by the member states and the Commission to enable young people and those working with them to counter racism.

Finally, the Council adopted a statement expressing concern about the difficult situation of many young Europeans in the context of high unemployment; welcoming the emphasis on the fight against youth unemployment; and calling for the adoption of concrete and effective measures in favour of young Europeans at the European Council on 21 November.

Positive Discrimination

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what guidance he proposes to issue to the Civil Service relating to the European Court of Justice's ruling on positive discrimination in favour of women. [16419]

Dr. David Clark [holding answer 17 November 1997]: I have been asked to reply.

The issues raised by the European Court of Justice's judgment in the case of Marschall v Land NordRhein Westfalen are still being considered.

I have no current plans to issue guidance.

WALES

Welsh Assembly

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the policy areas which will be the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly; and if he will make a statement. [15746]

Mr. Ron Davies: A list is in paragraph 1.7 of the White Paper 'A Voice for Wales' (Cm 3718). The details of the functions to be exercised by the Assembly will be set out in the Bill that establishes the Assembly and the transfer order which will be made under it in due course.

Training and Enterprise Councils

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much money each training and enterprise council in Wales has accumulated as reserves. [16138]

Mr. Hain: The information requested is contained in the following table. The figures show that the reserves consist of funds which have already been used to acquire assets, or funds required to meet day-to-day needs, or funds which were committed to be spent over a reasonable period. The balance available for discretionary spending at 31 March 1997 (£8.9 million) represents funds which have been earmarked by the TECs for planned expenditure during 1997–98 and for longer term projects.

Reserve levels in Wales are projected to fall to £18.217 million by March 1998. Officials in the Welsh Office continue to monitor closely the level of TEC reserves in order to ensure that they are clearly related to demonstrable working capital needs or reinvestment plans. Further discussions are to be held with the TECs shortly to asses the extent to which TECs might be able to re-direct their reserves towards other objectives within the Government's strategic agenda and to provide an indication of when this could be done.

Welsh TEC reserve levels March 1997 to March 1998

£000s

TEC	Reserve Level	Fixed Assets	Long Terms Loans	Working Capital[2]	Amount available for discretionary spend
1996–97 End of year position
CELTEC[1]	5,032	440	824	2,733	1,035
Gwent	5,193	359	0	2,836	1,998
Mid Glamorgan	2,682	229	0	1,807	646
Powys	869	47	0	511	311
South Glamorgan	4,326	125	175	1,625	2,401
West Wales	6,352	427	0	3,368	2,557
All TECs	24,454	1,627	999	12,880	8,948

Source:
TEC Statutory Accounts.
Notes:
[1] CELTEC came into being on 1 April 1997—the figures represent the combined reserve levels of its two predecessor TECs in North Wales.
[2] N.B. estimated at six weeks turnover.

£000s

TEC	Reserve level	Foxed assets	Long term loans	Working capital[1]	Amount available for discretionary spend
1997–98 Projected end of year position
CELTEC	4,046	316	824	2,540	366
Gwent	3,911	293	0	2,585	1,033
Mid Glamorgan	1,601	249	0	946	406
Powys	567	50	0	442	75
South Glamorgan	4,040	1,048	100	1,469	1,423
West Wales	4,052	5,599	0	2,731	762
All TECs	18,217	2,515	924	10,713	4,065

Source:
TEC Statutory Accounts.
Note:
[1] Less than six weeks turnover.

Quarries (Planning Permission)

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will take action to prevent the reactivation of a dormant quarry planning permission near the village of Llanfyaydd, Flintshire. [16107]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The Environment Act 1995 prevents the reactivation of a dormant site with an old planning permission for mineral working unless full modern planning conditions have been imposed. Advice on the procedures is provided in Mineral Planning Guidance note 14 "Environment Act 1995: Review of Mineral Planning Permissions". Cae Rheinallt Quarry near Llanfynydd has been duly registered with Flintshire County Council under the provisions of the Act as a dormant site, and the principle of the existence of permission to quarry is not in question. To date, no application to determine conditions to control any future working have been received by the local authority.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to legislate to prevent the reactivation of dormant quarry planning permissions; and if he will make a statement. [16108]

Mr. Win Griffiths: My right hon. Friend has no plans to legislate on this matter. The Planning and Compensation Act 1991 and the Environment Act 1995 introduced new requirements for initial and periodic reviews of old mineral permissions. The principle of their existence is not an issue, but provisions in the existing legislation will ensure that dormant quarry permissions cannot be reactivated without full modern planning conditions attached to protect the environment and amenity, and to ensure that suitable restoration and aftercare takes place.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16299]

Mr. Ron Davies: There is no formal arrangement for faxing departmental press releases to Opposition party spokesmen on the day of release, but they are supplied on request. No changes have been made since 1 May.

Cycleways

Mr. Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will collate the information on the planning and management of cycleways, currently held by the new unitary authorities in Wales. [16510]

Mr. Hain: I am keen to encourage the development of cycleways throughout Wales, but wish to await the outcome of the Government's consultation on integrated transport before re-assessing Welsh Office responsibilities in this area.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Monetary Union

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which Minister briefed the Financial Times in respect of its September story on British entry into monetary union. [14005]

Mrs. Beckett: To my knowledge, none.

Gas Appliances

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps he is taking to ensure that gas appliances are safe and regularly maintained. [15160]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: A carbon monoxide safety awareness campaign is currently under way to warn as many households as possible in the country about the dangers of carbon monoxide, including the need to make sure that heating systems are serviced once a year by a qualified engineer.

Gas appliances made or sold in the UK including imports must comply with the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, which implement into UK law the Gas Appliances Directive, and this Department is in the process of considering the results of a formal consultation on proposed regulations to control the safety of second-hand gas appliances.

Gas safety legislation requires landlords to maintain in a safe condition, gas appliances that they own in let property. Failure to do so can result in unlimited fines and up to two years imprisonment.

Fireworks

Ms Stuart: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which Ministers responsible for firework safety have visited (a) Liverpool, (b) Manchester, (c) Newcastle, (d) Glasgow, (e) Birmingham and (f) Leeds since 1979 to promote firework safety. [15615]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: I understand that since 1993 no Minister responsible for firework safety has visited these cities to promote firework safety. I undertook to visit all these cities prior to this bonfire night to promote safety awareness.

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on her policy on the length of the firework season (a) in terms of retail availability of fireworks and (b) in terms of a possible permissible period for letting them off. [16340]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: The policy remains the same as that of my predecessor. However, a range of measures has been implemented to assist in tackling more dangerous fireworks and those used by hooligans. Details of these are in the House of Commons Library.

Action 2000

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will publish the job specification for the Chairman of Action 2000. [16136]

Mrs. Roche: The statement of his particular responsibilities is reproduced below:

"(a) To appoint the other members of the Advisory Board. The choice of members will be your decision, but you will consider including representatives of:

CBI

FEI

CSSA

BBA

NCC

IEE

the Business Links

and you will consult the organisations concerned. In addition you may appoint up to seven additional members, drawn mainly from the private sector. Before you make any appointments you should consult the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry.

(b) To advise the Secretary of State and the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on the state of preparedness of the private sector—particularly in key sectors identified by them—and to make such contribution to their work on contingency planning as they may require.

(c) To advise the Secretary of State whether the DTI should offer funding to organisations other than the Company.

(d) To draw up, agree with the Secretary of State, and implement through the Company a costed programme of collective activities—Action 2000—to support businesses in the private sector in their efforts to tackle the century date problem.

(e) To appoint a Director, other board members and staff of the Company. The Director will be appointed after consulting the Secretary of State and after considering a number of candidates on a competitive basis.

(f) Expenditure on activities under the agreed costed programme will be disbursed by the CTI, on advice from you or the Director, acting on behalf of the Advisory Board."

Funeral Industry

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade on how many occasions mergers and acquisitions of (a) funeral directors, (b) crematoria and (c) funeral directors and crematoria have been referred to and investigated by the Monopolies and Mergers Commission; in how many cases the Monopolies and Mergers Commission has recommended divestment; and if she will list the firms concerned. [16703]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: Two mergers involving funeral directors have been referred to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission (MMC).

The acquisition by The Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd. (CWS) of the Scottish funerals business of House of Fraser PLC was referred to the MMC on 4 June 1987. The MMC recommended divestment of four funeral undertaking businesses (in Aberdeen, Falkirk, Crieff and Perth) or divestment of all the businesses acquired from House of Fraser.

The acquisition by Service Corporation International (SCI) of Planstbrook Group plc. was referred to the MMC on 20 December 1994. The MMC's report was published on 25 May 1995. The MMC recommended divestment of individual funeral directors' businesses in ten specified areas.

No acquisitions of crematoria, or of funeral directors and crematoria, have been referred to the MMC.

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what contacts she has had with the Monopolies and Mergers Commission regarding the marketing and selling of pre-purchase funeral plans. [16706]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: My right hon. Friend has had no contact with the Monopolies and Mergers Commission regarding pre-paid funeral plans, nor a request from the MMC to discuss this.

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what consultations she has had with the Director General of Fair Trading regarding the marketing and selling of pre-purchase funeral plans. [16707]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: I have had a number of meetings with the Director General of Fair Trading regarding pre-paid funerals and have sought his views on a number of possible options for consumer protection. I share the Director General's concern to protect consumers who purchase their funerals in advance. I am discussing with my colleagues in the Treasury what speedy action might be taken to further protect consumers.

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations she has received regarding the maintenance of fair trade practices in the marketing and selling of pre-purchase funeral plans. [16708]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: I have had a number of representations on fair trade practices in the marketing and selling of pre-paid funeral plans. I am considering these, and working on proposals with my Treasury colleagues to protect those consumers who purchase their funerals in advance.

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations she has received on the potential for trading links (a) between insurance companies and providers of funeral services and (b) between providers of funeral services and trading companies that are subsidiaries of registered charities to operate against the public interest and to the detriment of consumers. [16705]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: A number of representations have been received about the links between providers of funeral services and trading companies that are subsidiaries of registered charities. These have been passed to the Charity Commission. No representations have been received on links between insurance companies and providers of funeral services.

Health Service (Bereavement and Mortuary Services)

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations she has received from NHS hospitals on the contracting cost of bereavement and mortuary services to the private sector. [16712]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: No NHS hospital has made representations on this subject.

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what guidance she has provided on fair trade practices to NHS hospitals which (a) have contracted out and (b) have expressed an interest in seeking to contract out bereavement and mortuary services. [16709]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: This department has no responsibility for NHS hospitals, and no guidance has been sought.

Inward Investment

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many jobs have been created via inward investment in each of the last five years; and if she will give a breakdown of the number of jobs created in each county or equivalent area. [16166]

Mr. Ian McCartney: This information is available only on a regional basis. According to figures notified to my Department's Invest in Britain Bureau, the number of new jobs associated with inward investment in each of the last five years by each region as follows:

Inward investment into the United Kingdom

Year/Region	Total number of new jobs
1992–93
East	363
East Midlands	183
North-east	2,312
Northern Ireland	2,742
North-west	1,012
Scotland	4,497
South-east	1,212
South-west	285
Wales	2,382
West Midlands	1,568
Yorkshire and Humberside	1,286
Total for the year	17,842
1993–94
East	482
East Midlands	3,218
North-east	2,256
Northern Ireland	3,030
North-west	2,427
Scotland	7,635
South-east	916
South-west	1,065
Wales	3,913
West Midlands	3,370
Yorkshire and Humberside	2,329
Total for the year	30,641
1994–95
East	842
East Midlands	3,028
London	27
North-east	5,780
Northern Ireland	3,251
North-west	1,986
Scotland	7,678
South-east	3,273
South-west	1,386
Wales	3,151
West Midlands	4,797
Yorkshire and Humberside	3,152
Total for the year	38,351
1995–96
Region not identified	0
East	372
East Midlands	1,437
London[1]	2,588
North-East	6,075
Northern Ireland	3,741
North-West	3,592
Scotland	9,092
South-East	5,385
South-West	1,468
United Kingdom	0
West of England[2]	250
Wales	4,429
West Midlands	7,034
Yorkshire and Humberside	2,004
Total for the year	47,467

Inward investment into the United Kingdom

Year/Region	Total number of new jobs
1996–97
East	925
East Midlands	1,306
London[1]	2,631
North East	3,089
Northern Ireland	4,135
North West	1,402
Scotland	9,928
South East	3,905
South West	682
West of England[2]	1,622
Wales	10,397
West Midlands	4,387
Yorkshire and Humberside	1,830
Total for the year	46,239
Total for the last 5 years	180,540

[1] Prior to 1994–95 the figures for London were included in those for the South-East.

[2] Prior to 1995–96 the figures for the West of England were included in those for the South-West.

The IBB only records inward investment decisions by regions of the UK and these figures are based on information provided by the companies at the time of the announcement of the decision to invest in the UK. They are based on the companies best estimate of jobs created by the investment in its first three years. The figures take no account of subsequent developments.

There is no requirement to notify the Department and so the figures include only those projects where the Department's Invest In Britain Bureau and its regional partners were involved or which have come to their notice.

Trade Union Membership

Mr. Cox: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the policy of her Department in respect of the membership of trade unions for those in employment; and if he will make a statement. [14342]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Government considers that employees should be free to belong, or not to belong, to trade unions and, where a majority of a relevant workforce vote for it in a ballot, unions should be recognised for collective bargaining purposes. My Department will be publishing a White Paper on fairness at work, and principally on union recognition, in the first part of next year.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Weald and Downland Roads Project

Mr. Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 27 October 1997, Official Report, columns 722–23, on the Weald and Downland DBFO, if the outcome of the roads review will provide clear guidance on the future of the individual schemes which make up the Weald and Downland DBFO. [14969]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We intend that the output of the Roads Review should include a forward programme of high priority projects and work to develop strategies for transport problems from which investment programmes will emerge. This applies equally to the schemes that were included in the Weald and Downland DBFO as to other schemes.

Climate Change

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what representations he has made to the Canadian Government concerning their policies towards global climate change. [15627]

Angela Eagle: We have discussed climate change with Canada in a number of fora, including most recently at the Ministerial meeting of key developed countries in Tokyo on 8 November, chaired by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, where Canada indicated that they would shortly be proposing a greenhouse gas emissions target.

Pedestrian Fatalities

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the Government's attempts to reduce the incidence of (a) child and (b) total pedestrian fatalities. [15645]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Measures to reduce the incidence of pedestrian and child pedestrian accidents focus on both engineering and enforcement, supported by education (including publicity).

Traffic calming and 20 mph zones have proved successful in slowing traffic, with a consequential reduction in the number and severity of accidents to all pedestrians. Effective enforcement is also necessary generally to reduce speed, and we are considering ways of making better use of speed cameras to help achieve this. These measures are reinforced by publicity campaigns, and my noble Friend the Minister for Roads launched the current "Kill Your Speed" campaign on 16 September.

While seeking to reduce the risks to all pedestrians, we also educate children, in particular, to develop the skills they need to cope with the risks they face. We support road safety practitioners by providing resources such as 'Kerbcraft' (launched in September), which promotes practical child pedestrian training. A new child safety campaign is planned for January.

Measures further to improve safety for child and adult pedestrians will be a priority aim of the road safety strategy announced by my noble Friend the Minister for Roads on 15 October.

Telecommunications Developments

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what guidance his Department offers in respect of publicity for telecommunication developments with reference to (a) site notices, (b) notifications to town or parish councils and (c) notification to local residents; and if he will make a statement; [15664]

(2) what guidance his Department has issued in respect of publicity for telecommunication developments in respect of (i) site notices, (ii) notifications to town or parish councils and (iii) notification to local residents; and if he will make a statement. [16189]

Mr. Raynsford: Where telecommunications development is subject to a planning application, the local planning authority is required by law to publicise the application. This will be either by a site notice or by neighbour notification, and may also include a newspaper advertisement. Departmental guidance on this is given in Circular 15/92: "Publicity for Planning Applications". There is a statutory requirement for local planning authorities to consult the relevant parish council, at the council's request, of planning applications. Where development is subject to a prior approval determination under Part 24 of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, Appendix E to Circular 9/95 encourages publicity so that people likely to be affected by the proposed development can make their views known to the local planning authority.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact of the 28 day prior notification limit for telecommunications developments on (i) consultation with parish or town councils and councillors, (ii) opportunities for comment from local residents and (iii) the opportunities to negotiate and amend proposed schemes; and if he will make a statement. [16188]

Mr. Raynsford: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 3.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will enable local planning authorities to extend the 28 day limit in their determination of applications for telecommunications developments; and if he will make a statement. [16187]

Mr. Raynsford: This is an issue on which I expect the Working Group reviewing the Code of Best Practice on telecommunications prior approval procedures as applied to mast/tower development will make representations to me. I will reflect on their conclusion in due course.

Car Airbag Systems

Mr. McNulty: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the safety of car airbag systems. [16132]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We continue to collect detailed information on a sample of road accident injuries as part of the Department's research programme, and this allows us to monitor effects such as airbags in cars. To date, we are not aware of any cases of airbags having caused serious injuries in the UK.

In 1993 the Department commissioned TRL to investigate airbag effectiveness. This was largely a review of published research on both airbag testing and airbag performance in the field. By necessity, this review was mainly based on the experience in the USA where airbags, which are required by law, are far more prevalent than in Europe.

US airbags tend to be more aggressive than those in Europe, as the US seat belt wearing rate is low and airbags are designed to be the primary source of protection. TRL therefore also looked at the sample of accidents in the UK to establish the role which airbags had played. However, the number of accidents examined was small, and there was insufficient evidence to reach a conclusion on the efficacy of airbags in European cars. The results of this study were part of a wider European paper presented at the Enhanced Safety Vehicles conference in 1996. TRL also carried out some very limited laboratory testing to supplement the information already available for grossly out of position occupants where there is a considerable injury risk.

Overall, international research indicates that airbags reduce the risk of serious head and chest injuries for vehicle occupants and any adverse effects are minimised if the vehicle occupants use their seat belt correctly and sit as far from the airbag as is comfortably possible. In particular rear facing child restraints should never be used in a front facing passenger position where an airbag is fitted.

Severn Bridge Tolls

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the amounts raised from tolls, and the cost involved in collecting the tolls, for (a) the original Severn Bridge and (b) the second Severn Bridge in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [15963]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The accounts for Severn River Crossing plc show that in the year ending 31 December 1996 they had a turnover from toll revenue of £47.2 million. Separate figures for the toll revenue from each crossing are not available but 75–80 per cent. of the traffic uses the new bridge. Toll operating costs and maintenance are not dis-aggregated but, with administrative expenses, total running costs amounted to £7.6 million.

Planning Applications

Mr Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) how many planning applications he has called in since 1 May; [16465]

(2) how many planning applications he has determined since 1 May. [16466]

Mr. Raynsford: Since 1 May this year, 95 planning applications have been called in and 60 called-in applications have been determined.

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list those London boroughs which have introduced ethnic monitoring of planning applications. [16482]

Mr. Raynsford: The Department does not collect information on local planning authorities' monitoring of the ethnic background of applicants for planning permission. The Local Government Association has commissioned research on "Race and the built environment". The resulting good practice guide will be published in the New Year and will contain information on the extent of ethnic monitoring of planning applications by local planning authorities.

Water

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to enhance the role of water companies in the water planning process. [16402]

Angela Eagle: Under section 37 of the Water Industry Act 1991, water companies already have the duty to develop and maintain an efficient and economical system of water supply in their areas. In revising current planning policy guidance for local authorities we will consider how increased emphasis may be given to the impact of proposed development on water supply provision.

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will create forums to include water companies and all of the planning authorities in an area to discuss resource issues. [16403]

Angela Eagle: The Department's current policy guidance requires local authorities to consult with all infrastructure providers, including water supply companies, when preparing their development plans. The creation of discussion fora is a matter for local government.

Fly Tipping

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will increase the resources devoted to controlling fly tipping. [16394]

Angela Eagle: The responsibility for monitoring illegal fly tipping, clearance of the wastes involved and pursuing offenders lies with a number of organisations including local authorities, the Police and the Environment Agency. My Department has no conclusive evidence that fly tipping in England is increasing. However the Environment Agency is continuing to monitor the situation closely and is working with the other bodies to implement a three-part strategy: First, to enhance co-operation with local authorities to monitor and control fly tipping and prosecute offenders—an emergency hotline number has been established and widely published for information on vehicles and individuals involved on fly tipping to be given; secondly, to gather the more reliable information needed, the Agency is working with the Tidy Britain Group to produce a comprehensive study of the incidence of fly tipping before and after the introduction of the Landfill Tax. It is intended that this report will be published in Spring 1998. It should assist the Agency and others, particularly local authorities, to respond to fly tipping in a co-ordinated, proportionate and effective manner; thirdly, the Agency continues to work with a broad range of partners including trade associations, landowners and local government to encourage good waste management practice.

EU Environment Council

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the conclusions of the Environment Council meeting of 16 October. [16322]

Mr. Meacher: With Lord Sewel, I represented the United Kingdom at the Environment Council which took place in Luxembourg on 16 October.

The Council reached political agreement on the proposal for a new Drinking Water Directive. This sets new standards in line with current scientific thinking for the quality of drinking water; these will provide additional protection for human health. The text also provides for much greater subsidiarity and flexibility for Member States. It will now go forward for the opinion of the European Parliament. The Council further developed the Community's negotiating position for the Third Conference of the Parties to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change in Kyoto, Japan, in December this year.

In the debate on the landfill directive, I indicated our strong support for the tight regulation of all landfills but that greater flexibility was needed on the requirements for biodegradable waste going to landfill. In the discussion of the Strategy prepared by the Commission to reduce the problems of acid rain in the Community I made it clear that the UK strongly supported action on this, though more technical work was needed to clarify the benefits and costs—a view shared by the majority who spoke.

The Council also noted the progress of discussions on the directive tightening emissions from light commercial vehicles and on the Water Framework Directive. The Commission made a presentation on its Communication on Environmental Taxes and Charges which was not discussed.

Energy Saving Trust

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the resources made available to the Energy Saving Trust in each of the last five years; and what is next year's budget. [16173]

Angela Eagle: My Department has provided funding for the Energy Saving Trust since 1995–96 as follows:

1995–96: £500,000

1996–97: £25,000,000.

Funding of up to £19,000,000 has been made available for 1997–98. The budget for 1998–99 has not yet been finalised.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the work of the Energy saving Trust's energy efficiency programme. [16174]

Angela Eagle: The Energy Saving Trust's "Energy Efficiency" programme has our full support. It aims to promote energy efficiency to domestic consumers so that they can save money and help the environment. The Trust's October campaign of promotional activities under the programme has just been completed, culminating in "Energy Efficiency Week" between 20 and 27 October.

My Department has contributed funding of up to £2.5 million towards "Energy Efficiency" in 1997–98. I have recently approved a further £4 million in Government funding for the programme in 1998–99.

Household Growth Green Paper

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he expects to make a statement on the outcome of the consultation on last year's Green Paper on Household Growth. [16400]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are considering the question of household growth not just in isolation but within the wider context of policies to promote sustainable development, including integrated transport policy and regional planning. We will make a statement in due course.

Wheelchairs

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what progress has been made by his officials in relation to discussions with wheelchair manufacturers on establishing a marking protocol to indicate the suitability of manual and powered wheelchairs for use on public transport. [16443]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Officials from my Department have established a working group with representatives of the wheelchair manufacturing industry and the Medical Devices Agency. The purpose of the working group is twofold: to develop a testing protocol for new wheelchairs to assess their suitability for use in vehicles and secondly, to work towards a marking system that indicates the transport "compatibility" of manual and powered wheelchairs.

The work is progressing well. As a first step towards the marking protocol, the Group is drawing up an information leaflet for wheelchair users and those advising on wheelchair choice, which will help them to choose an appropriate wheelchair for their lifestyle. We hope that the leaflet will be finalised by the beginning of next year.

On the testing protocol, the Group has agreed to use as a base the proposed requirement in a draft International Standards Organisation standard for new products. The Group will be producing a leaflet to inform wheelchair users and transport operators about the testing protocol and the role of wheelchair tie downs and occupant restraints in vehicles. Again, we hope that that leaflet will be available early in the new year.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16311]

Angela Eagle: My Department will provide press releases to Opposition party spokesman by fax on the day of release if requested to do so. This standardises the policy of the former Departments of the Environment and of Transport, which operated different systems prior to the Election and before their subsequent merger. The Department also issues press releases on the day of release via the Internet at address http://www.detr./gov.uk/. and copies are placed in the Library of the House of Commons.

Air Quality

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the air quality in the United Kingdom's main urban centres on (a) 31 October and (b) 4 November; and what warnings were given to the public concerning air quality on those days. [16413]

Angela Eagle: On 31 October 1997 air quality in a number of UK urban centres was poor. High concentrations of nitrogen dioxide were measured in Birmingham, Bristol, London, Lincoln and Reading. Nitrogen dioxide levels were highest on 31 October, peaking at 257 parts per billion at Camden Roadside. A table summarising the highest hourly nitrogen dioxide concentrations that occurred on that day is shown below. On 4 November 1997 there were no occurrences of poor or very poor air quality at any national UK monitoring site.

Monitoring site location	Maximum hourly NO_2 levels (parts per billion)
Bromley Roadside	110
Camden Roadside	257
Southwark Roadside	185
Sutton Roadside	172
Tower Hamlets Roadside	110
West London	213
London A3 Roadside	117
London Bridge Place	194
London Eltham	124
London Hackney	100
London Lewisham	131
London Marylebone Road	153
London North Kensington	142
London Southwark	237
London Teddington	114
London Wandsworth	216
Birmingham Centre	151
Birmingham East	115
Bristol Old Market	102
Lincoln Roadside	170
Reading	105

On both 31 October and 4 November hourly air pollution information and air quality forecasts were available on CEEFAX (pages 410–417), TELETEXT (page 106), the Department's free phone information line (0800 556677) and through the Department's Internet site. In addition, air quality forecasts and information on pollutant levels were sent to national and regional newspapers, television, radio stations, Government agencies, local authorities and environmental groups.

Local Government Finance

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions pursuant to his answer of 31 July 1997, Official Report, column 548, if he will list the percentages of management and maintenance allowances for council-owned homes for 1990–91 to 1997–98 inclusive. [16476]

Mr. Raynsford: I have placed in the House of Commons Library a list showing for each local authority the percentage increase in their HRS Subsidy Management and Maintenance Allowance year by year from 1990–91 to 1997–98.

Landfill Sites

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list those landfill sites which are unlined and permitted to receive low-level radioactive waste. [16453]

Angela Eagle: The Environment Agency advise that disposal of low-level radioactive waste is authorised under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 at the following sites in England and Wales:

Landfill site	Operator and location	Engineered containment status
Arpley Quarry	3C Waste Ltd., Arpley, Warrington	Engineered containment
Lamby Way	Cardiff County Council	Clay based engineered containment
Milton Landfill	Milton Cambridgeshire	Clay based engineered containment
Cowpen Bewley	ICI Ltd., Billingham, Cleveland	No engineered containment
Clifton Marsh	Lancashire Waste Services, Preston Lancashire	Current phase unlined, next phase will include an engineered containment
Stanford Quarry	Oxfordshire County Council, Stanford in the Vale	No engineered containment
Beighton Tip	Sheffield Waste Disposal Authority	No engineered containment, closure early 1998
Asham Quarry	East Sussex County Council, Beddingham, East Sussex	Opened 1979, old phases unlined. From 1995, fully engineered lining for new phase
Hilts Quarry	Rolls Royce Ltd., Crich, Derbyshire	No engineered containment
Magnesium Elektron Swinton	Magnesium Elektron, Swinton, Greater Manchester	No engineered containment
Millennium Inorganic Chemicals Ltd.	Millennium Inorganic Chemicals, Grimsby, Humberside	No engineered containment
Cilgwyn Quarry	Cwmni Gwastraf Mon Arfon cyf, Caernorfon, Gwynedd	No engineered containment

The Scottish Environment Protection Agency advise that disposal of low level radioactive waste is authorised under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 at the following sites in Scotland:

Landfill Site	Operator and location	Engineered containment status
Black Devon	Operated by local authority, Clackmannanshire	Unlined
Balbarton	Operated by local authority, Fife	Unlined
Braehead Quarry	Operated by local authority, Edinburgh	Unlined
Riveside	Operated by local authority, Dundee	Unlined

Landfill Site	Operator and location	Engineered containment status
Kilgarth	Operated by local authority, North Lanarkshire	Unlined
Dalmacouter	Operated by local authority, North Lanarkshire	Unlined
Ness Farm	Operated by local authority, Aberdeen	Unlined
Longman	Operated by local authority, Inverness	Unlined
Lower Polmaise	Operated by local authority, Stirling	Unengineered natural clay lining
Lower Polmaise	Operated by local authority, Stirling	Unengineered natural clay lining
Melville Wood	Operated by local authority, Fife	Current disposals to lined area—engineered natural clay lining with bentonite (cement slurry) wall. Historic disposals to unlined area
Summerston	Operated by local authority, Glasgow	Natural clay and geotextile lining

The Environment and Heritage Service advise that disposal of low level radioactive waste is authorised under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 at the following sites in Northern Ireland.

Landfill site	Operator and location	Engineered containment status
Dargan Road	Belfast City Council	Lined
Culmore Point	Derry City Council	Unlined
Letterloan	Coleraine Borough Council	Unlined
Mayboy Road	Coleraine Borough Council	Unlined

The radiological impact of disposals to these landfill sites are assessed by the Environment Agencies and the Environment and Heritage Service when determining applications for authorisation.

Mesothelioma and Asbestosis

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many people died as a result of (a) mesothelioma and (b) asbestos induced lung cancer in (i) 1995 and (ii) 1996 broken down by (1) parliamentary constituency and (2) local authority unit. [16479]

Angela Eagle: The numbers of mesothelioma deaths in 1995 by local authority are shown in Table 1. Information on mesothelioma deaths is not yet available for 1996. Information for parliamentary constituencies is not collected.

The total number of lung cancers caused by asbestos is estimated to be at least equal to the number of mesothelioma cases, and may be greater, but it is not possible to give a more precise figure as they are not distinguishable from the much larger number due to other causes such as smoking.

Table 1: Mesothelioma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelioma deaths 1995
Greater London	138
City of London	0
Barking and Dagenham	12
Barnet	2
Bexley	7
Brent	2
Bromley	2
Camden	2
Croydon	3
Ealing	7
Enfield	1
Greenwich	6
Hackney	1
Hammersmith and Fulham	2
Haringey	3
Harrow	2
Havering	7
Hillingdon	7
Hounslow	2
Islington	4
Kensington and Chelsea	0
Kingston upon Thames	3
Lambeth	3
Lewisham	5
Merton	2
Newham	8
Redbridge	6
Richmond upon Thames	6
Southwark	2
Sutton	3
Tower Hamlets	9
Waltham Forest	4
Wandsworth	11
City of Westminster	4
Greater Manchester	37
Bolton	4
Bury	2
Manchester	3
Oldham	4
Rochdale	3
Salford	1
Stockport	3
Tameside	8
Trafford	2
Wigan	7
Merseyside	35
Knowsley	3
Liverpool	9
St. Helens	4
Sefton	11
Wirral	8
South Yorkshire	27
Barnsley	3
Doncaster	11
Rotherham	3
Sheffield	10
Tyne and Wear	64
Gateshead	9
Newcastle-upon-Tyne	10
North Tyneside	13
South Tyneside	13
Sunderland	19
West Midlands	41
Birmingham	26
Coventry	2
Dudley	2

Table 1: Mesothelloma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelloma deaths 1995
Sandwell	1
Solihull	4
Walsall	4
Wolverhampton	2
West Yorkshire	57
Bradford	12
Calderdale	6
Kirklees	12
Leeds	21
Wakefield	6
Avon	17
Bath	1
Bristol	9
Northavon	4
Kingswood	0
Wansdyke	0
Woodspring	3
Bedfordshire	8
Bedford	1
Luton	2
Mid Bedfordshire	2
South Bedfordshire	3
Berkshire	21
Bracknell Forest	2
Newbury	4
Reading	3
Slough	7
Windsor and Maidenhead	4
Wokingham	1
Buckinghamshire	20
Aylesbury Vale	2
South Bucks	4
Chiltern	3
Milton Keynes	7
Wycombe	4
Cambridgeshire	16
Cambridge	2
East Cambridgeshire	5
Fenland	3
Huntingdonshire	1
Peterborough	5
South Cambridgeshire	0
Cheshire	22
Chester	2
Congleton	0
Crewe and Nantwich	2
Ellesmere Port and Neston	2
Halton	6
Macclesfield	4
Vale Royal	3
Warrington	3
Cleveland	17
Hartlepool	7
Langbaurgh-on-Tees	4
Middlesborough	2
Stockton-on-Tees	4
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	8
Caradon	0
Carrick	2
Kerrier	1
North Cornwall	1
Penwith	2

Table 1: Mesothelloma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelloma deaths 1995
Restormel	1
Isles of Scilly	1
Cumbria	16
Allerdale	0
Barrow-in-Furness	11
Carlisle	2
Copeland	1
Eden	0
South Lakeland	2
Derbyshire	15
Amber Valley	2
Bolsover	2
Chesterfield	2
Derby	6
Erewash	0
High Peak	2
North East Derbyshire	0
South Derbyshire	1
Derbyshire Dales	0
Devon	31
East Devon	2
Exeter	2
North Devon	3
Plymouth	19
South Hams	1
Teignbridge	1
Mid Devon	1
Torbay	1
Torridge	0
West Devon	1
Dorset	14
Bournemouth	2
Christchurch	2
North Dorset	3
Poole	4
Purbeck	1
West Dorset	1
Weymouth and Portland	0
East Dorset	1
Durham	15
Chester le Street	1
Darlington	5
Derwentside	1
Durham	0
Easington	5
Sedgefield	2
Teesdale	0
Wear Valley	1
East Sussex	12
Brighton	2
Eastbourne	1
Hastings	2
Hove	0
Lewes	2
Rother	3
Wealden	2
Essex	39
Basildon	9
Braintree	2
Brentwood	4
Castle Point	2
Chelmsford	2
Colchester	2
Epping Forest	3

Table 1: Mesothelloma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelloma deaths 1995
Harlow	1
Maldon	3
Rochford	1
Southend on Sea	2
Tendering	3
Thurrock	5
Uttlesford	0
Gloucestershire	11
Cheltenham	1
Cotswold	3
Forest of Dean	1
Gloucester	2
Stroud	3
Tewkesbury	1
Hampshire	70
Basingstoke and Deane	4
East Hampshire	2
Eastleigh	6
Fareham	2
Gosport	1
Hart	3
Havant	8
New Forest	5
Portsmouth	13
Rushmoor	3
Southampton	16
Test Valley	6
Winchester	1
Hereford and Worcester	14
Bromsgrove	3
Hereford	1
Leonminster	0
Malvern Hills	0
Redditch	2
South Herefordshire	1
Worcester	0
Wychavon	4
Wyre Forest	3
Hertfordshire	21
Broxbourne	0
Dacorum	4
East Hertfordshire	0
Hertsmere	4
North Hertfordshire	3
St. Albans	2
Stevenage	1
Three Rivers	2
Watford	1
Welwyn Hatfield	4
Humberside	22
Beverley	7
Boothferry	2
Cleethorpes	3
Glanford	3
Great Grimsby	1
Holderness	1
Kingston upon Hull	4
East Yorkshire	0
Scunthrope	1
Isle of Wight	5
Medina	4
South Wight	1
Kent	54
Ashford	5

Table 1: Mesothelloma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelloma deaths 1995
Canterbury	5
Dartford	5
Dover	4
Gillingham	2
Gravesham	3
Maidstone	4
Rochester upon Medway	13
Sevenoaks	2
Shepway	1
Swale	3
Thanet	4
Tonbridge and Malling	3
Tunbridge Wells	0
Lancashire	32
Blackburn	7
Blackpool	4
Burnley	0
Chorley	1
Fylde	4
Hyndburn	1
Lancaster	1
Pendle	0
Preston	4
Ribble Valley	1
Rossendale	1
South Ribble	3
West Lancashire	3
Wyre	2
Leicestershire	9
Blaby	0
Charnwood	0
Harborough	1
Hinckley and Bosworth	2
Leicester	3
Melton	1
North West Leicester	0
Oadby and Wigston	1
Rutland	1
Lincolnshire	8
Boston	1
East Lindsey	0
Lincoln	1
North Kesteven	2
South Holland	1
South Kesteven	1
West Lindsey	2
Norfolk	23
Breckland	4
Broadland	6
Great Yarmouth	3
North Norfolk	3
Norwich	2
South Norfolk	3
Kings Lynn and West Norfolk	2
Northamptonshire	15
Corby	3
Daventry	0
East Northants	2
Kettering	0
Northampton	4
South Northants	2
Wellingborough	4
Northumberland	7
Ainwick	2
Berwick upon Tweed	1

Table 1: Mesothelloma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelloma deaths 1995
Blyth Valley	1
Castle Morpeth	1
Tynedale	1
Wansbeck	1
North Yorkshire	14
Craven	0
Hambleton	0
Harrogate	3
Richmond	0
Ryedale	3
Scarborough	3
Selby	0
York	5
Nottinghamshire	31
Ashfield	1
Bassetlaw	2
Broxtowe	2
Gedling	5
Mansfield	3
Newark and Sherwood	6
Nottingham	5
Rushcliffe	7
Oxfordshire	12
Cherwell	2
Oxford	1
South Oxfordshire	1
Vale of White Horses	4
West Oxfordshire	4
Shropshire	2
Bridgnorth	0
North Shropshire	1
Oswestry	0
Shrewsbury and Atcham	1
South Shropshire	0
The Wrekin	0
Somerset	5
Mendip	0
Sedgemoor	2
Taunton Deane	0
West Somerset	0
South Somerset	3
Staffordshire	18
Cannock Chase	4
East Staffordshire	3
Lichfield	2
Newcastle-Under-Lyme	1
South Staffordshire	0
Stafford	3
Staffordshire Moorlands	0
Stoke on Trent	4
Tamworth	1
Suffolk	11
Babergh	5
Forest Heath	0
Ipswich	3
Mid Suffolk	1
St. Edmundsbury	2
Suffolk Coastal	0
Waveney	0
Surrey	18
Elmbridge	1
Epsom and Ewell	1
Guildford	0

Table 1: Mesothelloma deaths in Great Britain 1995 by local authority

County/Local authority	Mesothelloma deaths 1995
Ipswich	2
Mole Valley	2
Reigate and Banstead	3
Runnymeade	2
Spelthorne	3
Surrey Heath	0
Tandridge	3
Waverley	1
Woking	0
Warwickshire	8
North Warwickshire	1
Nuneaton and Bedworth	2
Rugby	1
Stratford on Avon	1
Warwick	3
West Sussex	18
Adur	1
Arun	3
Chichester	3
Crawley	3
Horsham	4
Mid Sussex	2
Worthing	2
Wiltshire	10
Kennet	0
North Wiltshire	1
Salisbury	2
Thamesdown	5
West Wiltshire	2
Clwyd	7
Alyn and Deeside	0
Colwyn	0
Delyn	2
Glyndwr	2
Rhuddlan	1
Wrexham Maelor	2
Dyfed	9
Carmarthen	1
Ceredigion	1
Grampian	9

NORTHERN IRELAND

Strangford-Portaferry Ferry Service

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made on the replacement of the MV Portaferry vessel used on the Strangford-Portaferry service. [15667]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Roads Service under its Chief Executive Mr. W. McCoubrey. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from V. Crawford to Mr. Eddie McGrady dated 17 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked the Chief Executive to respond to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question about progress on the replacement of the MV Portaferry vessel used on the Strangford Lough ferry service. In Mr McCoubrey's absence, I am replying.

Invitation to Negotiate documents were issued on 4 July 1997 to 4 companies who prequalified under the Private Finance Initiative process. Three of the companies subsequently withdrew from the bidding process although we are confident the remaining company will submit its bid by the due return date in December 1997. Assuming this bid represents value for money against the public sector comparator, we expect that the contract for the operation of the ferry service will be awarded in the Spring of 1998 with the replacement ferry becoming available about a year later. The timing of the replacement vessel will depend on whether a refurbished or new ferry is to be provided.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Roads Schemes

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on changes in policy in relation to the funding of major road schemes in Northern Ireland since 1 May. [15676]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Roads Service under its chief executive, Mr. W. McCoubrey. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from V. Crawford to Mr. Eddie McGrady, dated 17 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked the Chief Executive to respond to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question about changes in policy in relation to the funding of major road schemes since 1 May. In Mr McCoubrey's absence I am replying.

There have been no changes to the policy of funding major roads schemes in Northern Ireland since 1 May 1997. With the level of funding available for major road works being severely restricted, the policy remains that the only schemes being promoted are those which are being carried out under the Private Finance Initiative.

You will be aware that the Government is carrying out a fundamental review of transport policy and intends to issue a White Paper on an Integrated Transport Policy next year. This will be complemented by a policy statement on transport in Northern Ireland. The Government is also undertaking a Comprehensive Spending Review also to be completed next year. Both reviews have the potential to change the policy of funding major roads schemes.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what has been the funding allocation to the maintenance programme in each roads division in each year from 1 April 1987 to 31 March 1997; [15668]

(2) what has been the funding allocation to major and minor roads schemes in each roads division in each year from 1 April 1987 to 31 March 1997. [15669]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Roads Service under its Chief Executive Mr. W. McCoubrey. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from V. Crawford to Mr. Eddie McGrady, dated 17 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked the Chief Executive to respond to your recently tabled Parliamentary Questions about the funding allocation to the major road works, minor road works and road maintenance programmes in each Roads Division in each of the last 10 years from 1 April 1987 to 31 March 1997. In Mr. McCoubrey's absence I am replying.

The information is set out in the attached tables.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Funding allocated to road maintenance in each Division of Roads Service has, for the period in question been as follows:

Road maintenance

Expenditure in £000's

Financial year	Ballymena	Belfast	Coleraine	Craigavon	Downpatrick	Omagh
1987–88	6,195	9,217	5,404	7,813	9,166	8,605
1988–89	6,275	9,583	6,261	8,477	9,298	9,541
1989–90	7,272	11,044	7,019	9,015	10,438	10,739
1990–91	7,792	11,142	7,734	10,259	10,903	12,101
1991–92	7,350	11,195	7,727	9,842	10,465	11,398
1992–93	7,815	10,993	8,065	10,162	10,345	12,513
1993–94	7,134	10,762	7,699	9,893	10,202	12,640
1994–95	7,903	12,619	8,495	11,236	11,540	14,484
1995–96	10,524	15,255	10,998	13,990	13,356	19,472
1996–97	10,957	14,796	10,792	14,667	12,368	19,335

All figures relate to maintenance of roads. Operation and maintenance costs of street lighting and car parks not included.
Figures from 1995–96 are inclusive of supervisory and other indirect administrative costs not previously apportioned on a Divisional basis.

Funding allocated to major road works (i.e. works costing over £200,000) in each Division of Roads Service, for the period in question, has been as follows:

Major road works

Expenditure in £000s

Financial year	HQ[1]	Ballymena	Belfast	Coleraine	Craigavon	Downpatrick	Omagh
1987–88	690	1,071	3,169	1,821	1,784	890	793
1988–89	1,755	3,063	1,999	986	1,844	1,827	694
1989–90	100	1,895	6,510	1,298	1,233	2,217	3,144
1990–91	35	1,518	4,991	1,091	1,313	2,782	3,379
1991–92	—	2,308	8,430	1,813	2,807	2,982	1,600

Major road works

Expenditure in £000s

Financial year	HQ[1]	Ballymena	Belfast	Coleraine	Craigavon	Downpatrick	Omagh
1992–93	—	706	7,759	1,634	377	1,744	1,646
1993–94	—	1,846	12,679	1,586	1,368	888	300
1994–95	—	1,526	11,231	1,291	4,571	521	814
1995–96[2]	—	605	7,421	748	7,385	880	2,724
1996–97	126	2,631	7,455	288	2,628	1,744	1,882

[1] Relates to schemes handled centrally.
[2] Figures from 1995–96 are inclusive of supervisory and other indirect administrative costs not previously apportioned on a Divisional basis.

Funding allocated to minor road works (ie works costing less than £200,000) in each Division of Roads Service has, for the period in question, been as follows:

Minor Road Works

Expenditure in £000s

Financial year	Ballymena	Belfast	Coleraine	Craigavon	Downpatrick	Omagh
1987–88	1,341	1,480	1,271	1,174	1,401	1,382
1988–89	1,078	1,399	1,147	1,057	1,307	1,306
1989–90	1,372	1,656	1,450	1,422	1,338	1,555
1990–91	1,441	1,878	1,449	1,791	1,552	1,653
1991–92	1,292	1,510	1,285	1,430	1,282	1,284
1992–93	1,273	2,022	1,629	1,636	1,630	1,638
1993–94	2,272	2,568	2,612	2,629	2,398	2,471
1994–95	2,383	2,821	2,477	2,686	2,315	2,448
1995–96[1]	2,765	2,737	2,708	2,795	2,919	3,301
1996–97	2,248	2,716	2,245	3,275	2,274	2,346

[1] Figures from 1995–96 are inclusive of supervisory and other indirect administrative costs not previously apportioned on a Divisional basis.

Gas Market

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what preparations have been made to expand the gas market throughout Northern Ireland. [15666]

Mr. Ingram: Further extension of the gas market depends on private sector investment. To assist possible future development Government are facilitating a feasibility study into extension of the gas industry to the North West of Northern Ireland and have participated in a feasibility study into Northern Ireland-Republic of Ireland gas interconnection.

Driving Disqualifications

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the application of driving disqualifications imposed in Great Britain on Northern Ireland driving licence holders. [13018]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Separate legislation governs the issue of driving licences in Great Britain and in Northern Ireland. There is mutual recognition throughout the United Kingdom of driving licences issued under both jurisdictions, however, there is no provision in the legislation for a driving disqualification incurred in one jurisdiction to be recognised in the other. Accordingly, a Northern Ireland driving licence holder disqualified in Great Britain cannot drive there, but can continue to drive in Northern Ireland. The reverse is also the case. This situation has obvious road safety implications for Great Britain and Northern Ireland and its resolution will require primary legislation to apply to both jurisdictions. It is intended to take this forward at the earliest opportunity.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Deportations

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-United Kingdom citizen parents of United Kingdom citizens were deported from the United Kingdom in each of the last five years. [15819]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Reliable information about the citizenship of the children of persons subject to deportation action can be obtained only through examination of individual case records. I regret that the information requested is, therefore, available only at disproportionate cost.

Animal Boarding Establishments

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which local authorities have implemented the model licensing conditions for animal boarding establishments, issued in October 1995. [15822]

Mr. George Howarth: Information on which of the 414 local and unitary authorities in England and Wales have adopted the voluntary model licence conditions is not available.

Attacks at Work

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is his estimate for the last three years of the number of employees who have been subject to attacks at work; and if he will make a statement. [16104]

Mr. Michael: The 1996 British Crime Survey (BCS) estimates that there were 770,000 incidents of violence against people who were at work in 1995. The BCS is conducted on a biennial basis, so there are no figures available for 1994 or 1996.

The Health and Safety Executive commissioned a series of questions in the Office for National Statistics August and October 1995 Omnibus surveys. This included questions on violence at work. Six per cent. of male workers and eight per cent. of female workers reported that they had been attacked by a member of the public in their current job. Half of these respondents had been attacked between one and four times in the last 12 months, a further 10 per cent. had been attacked at least five times in the same period. Just over a third of nurses and a quarter of security and protective services staff reported being attacked by a member of the public while in their job. Care workers and "other educational and welfare workers" (not teachers) also reported significantly higher rates than average. The full results of this survey were published on 13 November 1997 in "Self-reported working conditions in 1995".

Laser Pens

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) cases and (b) arrests his Department has recorded in respect of police officers being assaulted with laser pens. [15922]

Mr. Michael: It is not possible to ascertain from the information collected centrally how many recorded offences or arrests involved the use of laser pens. Any injury or attempted injury to a police officer, irrespective of how it is inflicted, is a very serious matter and the police have my full support in acting against the perpetrator. I have invited the Superintendents' Association, which has expressed particular concerns, to provide information about the experience of their members and will keep the problem under review in the light of any evidence from police sources and elsewhere.

Police Complaints

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the cost of the Metropolitan Police Complaints and Discipline department in the current year. [16128]

Mr. Michael: The Commissioner tells me that the Metropolitan Police's Complaints Investigation Bureau's (CIB) budget for the year 1997–98 is £6,040,000. However, during the year CIB has taken on additional police officers as part of its move to a more proactive role and it is now forecast to cost £7,128,000.

The Commissioner tells me that the provisional budgetary estimates of the five Area Complaints Units are:

1 Area: £996,000
2 Area: £1,622,000
3 Area: £1,280,000
4 Area: £1,459,000
5 Area: £1,413,000
Total: £6,770,000.

These figures are in addition to the figure for the CIB.

Police Investigations (Perjury)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the average cost of a police investigation into an alleged perjury. [15974]

Mr. Michael: The cost of any police investigation, including perjury, varies according to the nature of the investigation and the details involved, for example the length of the investigation, the number and rank of officers involved, how many defendants there are and whether they plead guilty.

Information on the average cost of perjury investigations is not collected centrally.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16289]

Mr. Straw: My Department faxes all press releases to main Opposition spokesmen as a matter of course. The only changes introduced since 1 May relate to the names of the Opposition spokesmen designated to receive press releases.

Young Offenders' Institutions

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to review the young offenders' institutions. [16183]

Ms Quin: We are currently reviewing the juvenile secure estate, including Young Offender Institutions (YOIs), as part of the Government's comprehensive spending review. The Prison Service is also reviewing regime provision for juveniles held in its care.

Young Offenders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders between the ages of 16 and 21 years are currently in prison. [16180]

Ms Quin: On 30 September 1997, there were 10,487 offenders aged from 16 and under 21 years of age, held in custody in Prison Service establishments.

HMYOI Castington

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to address (i) the lack of female officers, (ii) the delays in the Lifer Management Unit at Prison Service Headquarters, (iii) the lack of a staff mess and (iv) the inadequacy of health care provision identified by the Chief Inspector of Prisons at HMYOI Castington. [16500]

Ms Quin: The Governor of Castington has submitted a draft action plan addressing all the recommendations made by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons. This is being considered by the Prison Service Operational Director responsible for Castington and must be finalised within 30 working days after publication of the report.

One female officer has already transferred to Castington and postings for two more female staff have been arranged to take place shortly.

A reorganisation of the Lifer Management Unit is taking place and they are working with the Crown Prosecution Service to reduce delays.

Staff at Castington can use the officers' mess facility at Acklington which is on the opposite side of the road.

The area healthcare advisor responsible for Castington has reviewed the healthcare service and his report will be completed by the end of November.

Prisons (Drug Workers)

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time mandatory drug testing officers are operating in prisons; and if he will make a statement. [16536]

Ms Quin: Mandatory drug testing (MDT) of prisoners takes place in all prisons. However, it is not possible to identify the exact number of officers involved because, although in some larger establishments full-time MDT teams exist, in small establishments MDT work is often combined with other duties.

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drug workers operate in prisons; and if he will make a statement. [16542]

Ms Quin: There are 110 community drug workers operating within 63 centrally funded drug treatment projects. These are in addition to a variety of Prison Service staff who are engaged in drug treatment work.

The Prison Service is currently reviewing its strategy to tackle drug misuse in prison. In part, the review will be examining how best drug treatment programmes can be made available in the future, including the development of a national directory of drug treatment services that establishments can utilise.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to outlaw the testing on animals of ingredients intended for inclusion in cosmetic products. [16452]

Mr. George Howarth: We announced on 6 November that the Government wish to see an end to the testing of ingredients used in the types of cosmetics which could be classified as "vanity" products.

The definition of "cosmetics" in the European Directive goes beyond such "vanity" products and includes, for example, sun creams, anti-caries toothpaste and wart remover. Indeed, some products classed as cosmetics in Europe would be considered to be pharmaceuticals in other parts of the world. We do not intend to compromise consumer safety by banning the testing of such products until suitable alternative tests have been validated.

We are consulting with the Animal Procedures Committee, industry and other interest groups about the definition of "vanity" products and how to differentiate their ingredients from others used more widely. A decision on whether a ban on ingredient testing can be introduced and, if so, in what form, will then be taken.

Telephone Tapping

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if British Telecom is required to be shown a valid warrant by MI5 before a telephone tap is introduced at their request. [15719]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: Warrants are delivered directly to Public Telecommunications Operators by the Home Office, following signature by the Secretary of State. No interception may be commenced until the warrant has been signed.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will ensure information gained by means of telephone tapping which is not connected with the specific matter under investigation is immediately destroyed. [15712]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: Section 6(3) of the Interception of Communications Act 1985 requires that each copy made of intercepted material obtained under a warrant for one of the reasons set out under section 2(2) of the Act should be destroyed as soon as its retention is no longer necessary for the purpose for which the warrant was issued. One of the tasks of the Interception Commissioner, currently Lord Nolan, is to review the adequacy of arrangements made to give effect to the obligations imposed by section 6.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many positively vetted telephone engineers are currently in the employ of British Telecom; and how many of these are under the direction of the Government and paid for by British Telecom. [15725]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The vetting of British Telecom staff is a matter for British Telecom. All British Telecom engineers work under the direction of British Telecom.

MI5

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what instructions he has issued to MI5 in respect of the retention or otherwise of files originally collated in pursuit of counter-subversion activities;[15723]

(2) if he will undertake a review to establish what further information concerning, or held by, MI5 could be released for public scrutiny without damaging national security or prejudicing current criminal investigations. [15688]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The Security Service keeps under review the records which it holds with a view to identifying information which might be released for public scrutiny, and destroying records which it no longer needs to retain in order to fulfil its statutory responsibilities. For some time, the Service has been taking steps to place more information in the public domain and to select for destruction records which are no longer required. I have emphasised to the Director General the importance I place on both aspects.

On 17 November, records relating to the activities of the Service up to 1918 were released to the Public Records Office, and there are plans for further releases to follow. The Service has also released current information about itself in the form of two editions of a booklet published by Her Majesty's Stationery Office.

Intelligence Services Act (Warrants)

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 3 November 1997, Official Report, column 25, on how many occasions in 1996 a civil servant issued a warrant under section 4(1)(b) and section 6(1)(b) of the Interception of Communications Act 1985 and section 6(1)(b) of the Security Service Act 1989. [15722]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 17 November 1997]: In 1996, 74 warrants were issued under section 4(1)(b) of the Interception of Communications Act 1985 by senior officials of my Department acting upon the express authority of the Secretary of State because of the urgency of the application. It would not be in the public interest to provide figures in relation to warrants issued under the Intelligence Services Act 1994.

Prison Staff (Pensions)

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of terms and conditions of the pensions of (a) the privatised staff at workshops at HMP Coldingly and (b) those remaining within the Prison Service. [16550]

Ms Quin [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The Government Actuary has examined the pension terms offered by Wackenhut United Kingdom Limited to the staff now employed by the company in the workshops at Coldingley prison. He has issued a statement to the effect that the Wackenhut pension scheme offered to these staff is broadly comparable with the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme in respect of service after the date of transfer.

The trade unions have made representations about that decision and these representations are currently being considered by the Government Actuary.

Prison Service Advisory Board

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the employment of non-executive members of the Prison Service Enterprise Board as consultants for Wakenhut UK. [16551]

Ms Quin [holding answer 18 November 1997]: There is no Prison Service Enterprise Board. Regime Services, the section of the Prison Service's Central Services concerned with work, education and offending behaviour programmes in prisons, has an advisory board with two non-executive members. Neither of them has any connection with, or has had any dealings with, Wackenhut United Kingdom.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Iraq

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he had made of the arguments advanced in respect of the treatment of Iraqis on the "Call Robin Lustig" radio programme on 11 November, a copy of which has been sent to him; and if he will make a statement. [16028]

Mr. Fatchett: We have seen a transcript of the radio programme and noted with interest the wide variety of opinions that were expressed about Iraq.

We continue to pursue a diplomatic solution to the stand-off with Iraq but Saddam Hussein must back down from his attempt to undermine Security Council resolutions. He must unconditionally resume co-operation with Unscom and comply with all relevant SCRs.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16316]

Mr. Fatchett: There is no written departmental guidance on the dissemination of information. As much public information as possible is made available via this Department's website (http://www.fco.gov.uk/), which is updated several times daily with the latest news and information material.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16315]

Mr. Fatchett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office Bulletin is faxed daily to Opposition party spokesmen if they request it. There has been no change in policy since 1 May. The text is also available on this Department's website and the Parliamentary On-Line Information Service (POLIS).

Structural and Cohesion Funds

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy in future discussions with the Commission and other member states to press for the continuation of structural and cohesion funds for all present eligible United Kingdom areas after 1999. [16538]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We believe that reform of the Structural and Cohesion Funds is necessary to make them more effective, provide better value for money and meet the challenge of enlargement. All existing member states will eventually have to expect reductions in receipts if costs are to be contained. We are working hard to ensure that UK regions do not suffer disproportionate cuts. Any regions which no longer meet the existing criteria should benefit from transitional support for a limited period to help them adapt to their new situation.

Amsterdam Treaty (Non-discrimination Legislation)

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his policy on the introduction of European Union non-discrimination legislation under Article 6(a) of the Treaty of Amsterdam covering areas not currently covered by United Kingdom legislation. [16492]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We will consider each proposal for legislation under Article 6a of the Treaty of Amsterdam on its merits when it is brought forward.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will make it his policy to refuse to agree to any European Union non-discrimination legislation under Article 6(a) of the Treaty of Amsterdam which provides a lower standard of protection against discrimination than is already provided by United Kingdom legislation; [16497]

(2) if Her Majesty's Government will, during its European Union Presidency, ask the Commission to commence drafting European Union non-discrimination legislation under Article 6(a) of the Treaty of Amsterdam. [16498]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The Commission will not be able to bring forward any proposals for legislation under Article 6a of the Treaty of Amsterdam until ratification is complete. The UK will consider each measure on its individual merit. All proposals must be agreed by unanimity.

Algeria

Mr. Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received about the situation in Algeria; and if he will make a statement. [16559]

Mr. Fatchett: We have received numerous representations from NGOs and from members of the public in the United Kingdom expressing concern about the situation in Algeria.

We share the widespread revulsion at events in Algeria and continue to be seriously concerned about the security situation there. We condemn the violence unreservedly and call on those responsible to end the appalling atrocities. The scope for international action is limited; we believe that more will be achieved through quiet diplomacy. We urge the Algerian Government and all interested parties to find an early solution to this major internal problem and encourage the government to continue along the democratic path.

Gibraltar

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it a condition of Spain's entry into full membership of NATO that both civil and military aircraft using Gibraltar airport are allowed to overfly Spanish airspace. [16666]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Civilian aircraft using Gibraltar airport routinely overfly Spanish airspace in accordance with the Chicago Convention. Military overflights are one element in our discussions with Spain in the NATO context.

Turkey (EU Membership)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to oppose the application by Turkey to join the European Union and if he will make a statement. [16677]

Mr. Doug Henderson: No. We believe that Turkey's application to join the European Union should be judged by the same criteria as other applicants' applications.

PRIME MINISTER

Public Transport

15. Mr. Dawson: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has to improve public transport in rural areas. [15135]

The Prime Minister: The need to enhance rural public transport services is being addressed in the fundamental review of transport policy. Our proposals for enhancing public transport services, including those in rural areas, will be set out in the forthcoming White Paper on transport policy.

Engagements

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Wednesday 19 November. [15133]

Sir Peter Tapsell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Wednesday 19 November. [15137]

The Prime Minister: This morning, I had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. I shall have further meetings later today.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Housing Benefit

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many households have had housing benefit restrictions imposed on them in each of the last three years (a) in total and (b) in each London borough. [14815]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is in the tables.

Number of households with housing benefit restrictions

Financial year	Number of households (GB)
1994–95	269,000
1995–96	321,000
1996–97	439,000

Number of households with housing benefit restrictions in each London borough

Local authority	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Barking and Dagenham	1,000	1,000	2,000
Barnet	1,000	2,000	3,000
Bexley	[1]—	1,000	1,000
Brent	5,000	5,000	5,000
Bromley	1,000	1,000	1,000
City	0	[1]—	[1]—
Camden	2,000	2,000	2,000
Croydon	2,000	2,000	3,000
Ealing	3,000	4,000	4,000
Enfield	2,000	2,000	3,000
Greenwich	1,000	1,000	1,000

Number of households with housing benefit restrictions in each London borough

Local authority	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Hackney	4,000	4,000	4,000
Hammersmith and Fulham	1,000	2,000	1,000
Haringey	6,000	7,000	8,000
Harrow	1,000	1,000	2,000
Havering	1,000	1,000	1,000
Hillingdon	[1]—	1,000	1,000
Hounslow	1,000	2,000	3,000
Islington	2,000	2,000	2,000
Kensington and Chelsea	1,000	1,000	2,000
Kingston upon Thames	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
Lambeth	3,000	3,000	[2]—
Lewisham	3,000	4,000	4,000
Merton	1,000	2,000	2,000
Newham	6,000	7,000	9,000
Redbridge	3,000	3,000	5,000
Richmond on Thames	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
Southwark	[1]—	1,000	2,000
Sutton	[1]—	[1]—	1,000
Tower Hamlets	1,000	1,000	2,000
Waltham Forest	3,000	3,000	5,000
Wandsworth	2,000	3,000	3,000
Westminster	5,000	5,000	4,000
Great Britain	269,000	321,000	439,000

[1] There were less than 500 restrictions in the borough during the given year.
[2] Figures for Lambeth are not yet available for 1996–97.
1. Figures have been estimated using Rent Officer Statistics, the Housing Benefit Management Information System quarterly 100 per cent. caseload enquiry and Rent Allowance expenditure information, collected on annual subsidy claim forms from Local Authorities.
2. Caseloads have been rounded to the nearest 1,000 households.
3. Housing benefit restrictions are taken to mean rent restrictions. Single room rent restrictions have not been included due to insufficient reliable data.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total estimated saving arising from restrictions on housing benefit (a) in total and (b) for each London borough in each of the last three financial years. [14814]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is in the tables.

Total estimated savings arising from housing benefit restrictions

Financial year	Total estimated saving (GB) (£ million per annum)
1994–95	245
1995–96	275
1996–97	360

Total estimated savings from housing benefit restrictions by London borough

£ million

Local authority	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Barking and Dagenham	1.5	1.5	1.5
Barnet	2.0	1.0	3.0
Bexley	0.5	0.5	1.0
Brent	6.0	5.0	5.0
Bromley	0.5	1.0	1.0
City	0	[1]—	[1]—
Camden	2.0	2.0	3.0
Croydon	2.5	2.0	3.5
Ealing	3.5	4.0	4.5
Enfield	2.5	3.0	4.0
Greenwich	0.5	1.0	1.5

Total estimated savings from housing benefit restrictions by London borough

£ million

Local authority	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Hackney	7.0	7.5	6.5
Hammersmith and Fulham	2.0	2.5	1.5
Haringey	9.0	9.5	11.5
Harrow	1.0	1.5	2.0
Havering	0.5	0.5	1.0
Hillingdon	0.5	1.0	1.5
Hounslow	1.0	2.5	4.0
Islington	2.0	2.5	2.5
Kensington and Chelsea	2.0	2.5	3.5
Kingston upon Thames	[1]—	0.5	0.5
Lambeth	3.0	4.0	[2]—
Lewisham	3.0	5.0	4.5
Merton	1.5	1.5	1.5
Newham	8.0	8.5	11.5
Redbridge	3.0	3.5	5.0
Richmond on Thames	0.5	0.5	0.5
Southwark	0.5	1.5	1.5
Sutton	[1]—	[1]—	0.5
Tower Hamlets	1.5	1.5	2.0
Waltham Forest	5.0	4.0	5.0
Wandsworth	2.5	3.0	3.0
Westminster	14.5	13.0	9.0
Great Britain	243.5	277.0	358.5

[1] There were less than 500 restrictions in the borough during the given year or less than £250,000 worth of savings.
[2] Figures for Lambeth are not yet available for 1996–97.
1. Figures have been estimated using Rent Officer Statistics, the Housing Benefit Management Information System quarterly 100 per cent. caseload enquiry and Rent Allowance expenditure information, collected on annual subsidy claim forms from local authorities.
2. Estimated savings have been rounded to the nearest £5 million for Great Britain and to the nearest £500,000 for London boroughs.
3. Housing benefit restrictions have been taken to mean rent restrictions. Single room rent restrictions (from October 1996) have not been included as sufficient reliable data is not yet available.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many households with (a) children aged under 18 years and (b) other vulnerable members were subject to housing benefit restrictions in each of the last three years. [14816]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information requested was not collected prior to 1996–97. The estimated number of households with dependent children under age 18, who were subject to housing benefit restrictions in 1996–97, was 60,000. The number of households with other vulnerable members, who were subject to housing benefit restrictions for this period is estimated to be negligible.

Note:

The figure does not take account of Local Authority discretionary payments.

Source:

Rent Officer Statistics, the Housing Benefit Management Information System annual 1 per cent. sample enquiries and Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit Summary Statistics 1997.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many households in receipt of income support were subject to housing benefit restrictions in each of the last three years; and what was the average value of the restriction. [14818]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is in the table.

Financial year	Number of households (GB)	Average housing benefit restriction (£p.w.)
1994–95	207,000	17.00
1995–96	248,000	17.00
1996–97	328,000	16.00

1. Figures have been estimated using Rent Officer Statistics, the housing benefit Management Information System quarterly 100 per cent. caseload enquiry and Rent Allowance expenditure information, collected on annual subsidy claim forms from local authorities.

2. Caseloads have been rounded to the nearest 1,000 households.

3. Housing benefit restrictions have been taken to mean rent restrictions. Single room rent restrictions (from October 1996) have not been included as sufficient reliable data is not yet available.

Student Loans

Mr. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what has been the total value of the loans granted for support of students which have been treated as income for the purposes of calculating income support entitlement in each of the financial years since April 1991; and how many students have been affected. [15325]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available.

Income Support is not normally paid to students. In those limited circumstances where it is payable, information on student loans is not identified separately from other forms of income.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Gibbs: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to review the jobseeker's allowance. [15756]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Government believe that work is the best form of welfare for people of working age. Our Welfare to Work objectives are to provide work incentives, to reduce poverty and welfare dependency and to strike a new balance between rights and responsibilities. A programme of monitoring and evaluation is under way to enable us to ensure that jobseeker's allowance contributes to achieving our objectives.

Income Support (Disabled Claimants)

Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claims for income support were originally refused because of non-receipt of disability living allowance or attendance allowance but which when re-submitted subsequently after receipt of disability living allowance or attendance allowance were successful within (i) three, (ii) four, (iii) five and (iv) six months; and what was the total number of disabled claimants receiving income support in the years (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1996–97. [15454]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is set out in the table.

Total number of disabled income support claimants

	Number of claims
1994–95	722,000
1995–96	769,000
1996–97	809,000

Notes:

1. The number of income support claims which were originally refused but were successful on review following receipt of disability living allowance or attendance allowance is not available.

2. Numbers are rounded to the nearest thousand.

3. Sample size 5 per cent. Figures may be subject to a degree of sampling error.

4. Disabled are defined as those claimants receiving the disability premium.

5. Jobseeker's allowance replaced income support for the unemployed in October 1996.

Source:

Income Support Statistics Quarterly Enquiries February 1995 to February 1997.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Justices of the Peace

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many justices of the peace there were in 1980; how many there are now; and if he will make a statement. [15749]

Mr. Hoon: At 1 January 1980, there were 24,684 active justices of the peace in England and Wales; as at 1 January 1997, the figure was 30,374.

Conditional Fees

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many representations he has received in favour of the extension of conditional fees; and if he will make a statement. [15748]

Mr. Hoon: My Department has had in the region of 30 inquiries from individual members of the public. The overwhelming message is that the proposed extension of conditional fees will be a real answer to the real problem they face of being denied access to justice through unaffordable lawyers fees.

Traditional Dress

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans the Lord Chancellor has to dispense with his traditional dress on what timescale; and if he will make a statement. [15758]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor is keen to modernise his traditional dress on ordinary workings days. This is, however, a matter for committees of the House of Lords to decide.

DEFENCE

Gulf War Syndrome

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will correct in the Official Report all ministerial answers to hon. Members in respect of Gulf war syndrome which his Department has now discovered to be inaccurate. [14707]

Dr. Reid: I am not aware of any answers given by Defence Ministers in this Administration to questions concerning Gulf veterans' illnesses which have been discovered to be incorrect.

Fair Trade (Coffee and Tea)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the oral Statement by the Secretary of State for International Development, Official Report, 5 November, column 332, if he will instruct officials in his Department to serve coffee and tea furnished by suppliers who adhere to fair trade standards. [15488]

Mr. Spellar: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer the Prime Minister gave on 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 617. All procurement decisions in the Department are based on the Government's policy of value for money.

Service Personnel (Exposure to Radiation)

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 22 July 1997, Official Report, columns 529–30, on exposure to radiation, when each of the six individuals received the doses of radiation; what work each of them was engaged in at the time; in what circumstances each of them received the doses; and if his Department has monitored the health of these individuals after they received these doses. [15553]

Mr. Spellar: I shall write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Exhibitions (China)

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what support the United Kingdom Government is giving to United Kingdom companies planning to attend the International Defence Electronics Exhibition and the China Military Logistics Exhibition to be held in Beijing in May 1998. [16043]

Mr. Spellar: The Defence Export Service Organisation is aware of both exhibitions and is encouraging British companies to participate where exhibiting their products is consistent with the UK interpretation of the EU embargo on defence sales to China and our usual criteria governing all defence exports.

Communications Cables

Mr. Alan Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Defence if he will make a statement on the laying of communications cables by the Government or government agencies in the early 1970s in the Barents Sea in the vicinity of the North Cape Bank. [16691]

Dr. Reid: The Ministry of Defence did not lay cables in the Barents Sea either in the 1970s, or at any other time. Nor am I aware of any cables laid by any other UK Government organisation.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of experiments carried out on animals at (a) Porton Down and (b) other DERA establishments in 1995 would now be prohibited by the Government's announced ban on weapons testing. [16454]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation Research Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Norman Baker, dated 19 November 1997:

I have been asked to respond to your question about experiments carried out by DERA for the purpose of weapons testing.

DERA does not use animals to develop or evaluate weapons. All experiments undertaken by DERA for the Ministry of Defence involving the use of animals are concerned with the safety and protection of the UK Armed Forces.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list by category the experiments carried out on animals at (a) Porton Down and (b) other DERA establishments in 1995. [16455]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation Research Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Norman Baker, dated 19 November 1997:

I have been asked to respond to your question about the category of experiments involving animals within DERA.

Within DERA, two areas hold Home Office Project Licences to carry out tests on animals, the Chemical and Biological Defence Sector (CBD) at Porton Down and the Environmental Sciences Department at Alverstoke. In 1995 CBD held thirty five Home Office Project Licences for animal experimentation, of which six were classified as substantial, twenty as moderate, five as mild and four as unclassified. The Environmental Sciences Department held one project licence classified as moderate.

I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the (a) viruses, (b) bacteria and (c) other pathogens tested on animals in (i) Porton Down and (ii) other DERA establishments in 1995. [16456]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation Research Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Norman Baker, dated 19 November 1997:

I have been asked to respond to your question about viruses, bacteria and other pathogens tested on animals in DERA establishments.

DERA does not test viruses, bacteria or other pathogens on animals for any offensive purposes. All experiments undertaken by DERA for the Ministry of Defence involving the use of animals are concerned with the safety and protection of the UK Armed Forces.

The research programme carried out by the Chemical and Biological Defence Sector (CBD) at Porton Down does include work on new or improved vaccines and medical countermeasures. It would not be in the interest of national security to release details of the specific microganisms involved in this research programme.

I am sorry I cannot be more helpful on this occasion.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary for Defence pursuant to the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster's answer on 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15872]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The official MOD website at www.mod.uk provides the postal address for the Ministers' Correspondence Unit (Room 6140, MOD Main Building, Whitehall, London SWIA 2HB), which is a central distribution point for all correspondence addressed to the Department, its Minsters, senior officials and the chief executives of its agencies. We are considering improvements to the Department's internet presence, including the provision of a central e-mail address.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Beef Industry

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he will take to promote awareness of the beef assurance scheme throughout the industry. [16654]

Dr. John Cunningham: I have no plans for any specific new measures to promote awareness of the Beef Assurance Scheme. When the scheme was set up the Agriculture Departments sent details of the scheme to every beef farmer in the country as well as to a wide range of organisations representing the farming and food industry. The scheme has, however, had a low uptake. There are currently only 73 members herds, spread across country.

Agri-environment Schemes

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress has been made in increasing the percentage of agricultural land that is farmed under an agri-environment scheme. [16328]

Mr. Morley: We encourage applications under all our agri-environment schemes. In particular, we expect to approve this year some 1,300 applications under the Countryside Stewardship Scheme and almost 1,100 under the ESA scheme, with smaller numbers under the other existing schemes. Details of the area of land concerned are not yet available. In addition, a pilot Arable Stewardship scheme is being introduced in England at the beginning of 1998 to encourage arable farmers to manage their land in ways which will encourage wildlife.

All schemes are subject to regular review and consideration is given to any practical suggestions for improving their uptake. The Government consult on their implementation with a wide range of interests.

For the future, the Government see a continuing, and ultimately increased, role for environmental incentive schemes as part of a reformed CAP.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16296]

Mr. Morley: I have made arrangements for copies of this guidance to be placed in the Library of the House. In keeping with the Department's commitment to the principles of open Government, this guidance has, for some time, been made available on request.

Farming

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to encourage new entrants into farming; and if he will make a statement. [16329]

Mr. Morley: The Government appreciate the need to encourage new entrants to farming. The Department funds a number of measures to ensure that young people are aware of career opportunities in agriculture. These are provided through the MAFF contract with ATB-Landbase, the Industry Training Organisation for agriculture and commercial horticulture, through Sector Challenge and through a grant to the National Federation of Young Farmers' Clubs. We will also participate fully in the discussion due on the European Commission's report "Young Farmers and the Problem of Succession in European Agriculture".

TREASURY

Charities

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress he has made in his review of the taxation of charities, with particular reference to charity shops and if he will make a statement. [15935]

Dawn Primarolo: Charities (including charity shops), businesses and other interested parties are contributing their suggestions on improvements to the existing taxation system for charities by the Review's deadline of 1 December 1997. The suggestions received will inform a public consultation document which is due to be published in Spring 1998.

Tobacco Smuggling

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he will take to combat tobacco smuggling. [15943]

Dawn Primarolo: My right hon. Friend announced in his last Budget a review to look at the effect on the Exchequer and the industry of alcohol and tobacco fraud, smuggling and cross-border shopping. The review, which is being conducted in partnership with all the trade sectors concerned and with key Government Departments, will report to me by the end of the year with options for dealing with these issues.

European Space Vehicles

Mr. O'Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the approximate total value of the 293 consignments of goods imported for the development and construction of European space vehicles during 1996–97, on which relief from customs duties was given, and the approximate value of duties forgone; in which countries these consignments originated; and for what reasons relief was given. [16077]

Dawn Primarolo: The European Space Agency was established as an International Organisation in 1978 and under the International Organisations Act 1968 receives exemption from customs duties, excise duties and VAT on the importation of goods imported by or on behalf of the Agency for its official activities.

I regret that figures pertaining to the number, value, origin of consignments and extent of duties relieved for the development and construction of European space vehicles are not available in the form requested.

Asbestosis

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were diagnosed to be suffering from asbestosis in (a) 1995 and (b) 1996 broken down by (i) parliamentary constituency and (ii) local authority unit. [16480]

Mrs. Liddell: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Chief Executive of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Tim Holt to Mr. Michael Clapham, dated 19 November 1997:

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has asked me to reply, as Director of the Office for National Statistics (ONS) to your recent question on the number of people diagnosed as suffering from asbestosis in 1995 and 1996, by parliamentary constituency and local authority unit.

There are no registers kept on cases of asbestosis diagnosed whilst people are still alive. Data from Hospital Episode Statistics (Department of Health) are not suitable because they relate to the number of treatments rather than the number of individuals. The only information centrally available covers deaths from asbestosis in 1995 and 1996. This is in the tables below:

Deaths from Asbestosis in England and Wales by local authority of residence, 1995

County/Local authority	Number
Greater London	9
Barking and Dagenham LB	1
Harrow LB	1
Havering LB	1
Newham LB	3
Redbridge LB	1
Tower Hamlets LB	1
Westminster City of LB	1

Deaths from Asbestosis in England and Wales by local authority of residence, 1995

County/Local authority	Number
Merseyside	5
Liverpool MD	1
Wirral MD	4
South Yorkshire	2
Rotherham MD	1
Sheffield MD	1
Tyne and Wear	5
Gateshead MD	1
Newcastle upon Tyne MD	1
South Tyneside MD	1
Sunderland MD	2
West Midlands	1
Sandwell	1
West Yorkshire	5
Kirklees MD	3
Leeds MD	2
Cheshire	2
Crewe and Nantwich CD	1
Macclesfield CD	1
Cleveland	5
Hartlepool CD	1
Langbaurgh on Tees CD	1
Stockton on Tees CD	3
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	1
Caradon CD	1
Cumbria	1
Allerdale CD	1
Derbyshire	3
Bolsover CD	1
Chesterfield CD	1
Derbyshire Dales CD	1
Devon	1
Plymouth CD	1
Hampshire	2
Portsmouth CD	1
Southampton CD	1
Staffordshire	1
Stafford CD	1
Warwickshire	1
Warwickshire CD	1
Total	44

Deaths from Asbestosis in England and Wales by local authority of residence, 1996

County/Local authority	Number
Greater London	15
Barking and Dagenham LB	5
Havering LB	1
Hillingdon LB	1
Lambeth LB	1
Newham LB	4
Redbridge LB	1
Southwark LB	1
Tower Hamlets LB	1

Deaths from Asbestosis in England and Wales by local authority of residence, 1996

County/Local authority	Number
Greater Manchester	2
Rochdale MD	1
Salford MD	1
Merseyside	7
Knowsley MD	1
Wirral MD	6
Tyne and Wear	8
Newcastle upon Tyne MD	1
North Tyneside MD	3
Sunderland MD	4
West Midlands	1
Walsall MD	1
West Yorkshire	1
Wakefield MD	1
Bedfordshire	1
South Bedfordshire CD	1
Cheshire	2
Crewe and Nantwich CD	1
Macclesfield CD	1
Cumbria	1
Barrow in Furness CD	1
Derbyshire	1
Erewash CD	1
Devon	4
Plymount CD	3
Torbay CD	1
East Sussex	1
Hove CD	1
Hampshire	5
Gosport CD	1
Havant CD	1
New Forest CD	1
Southampton CD	2
Kent	2
Canterbury CD	1
Gillingham CD	1
Lancashire	1
Blackburn CD	1
Staffordshire	2
Stafford CD	2
Surrey	1
Woking CD	1
Wiltshire	1
Kennet CD	1
Unitary Authorities
Bath and North East Somerset UA	1
Bristol UA	1
Cardiff UA	1
Denbighshire UA	1
Hartlepool UA	1
Isle of Wight UA	3
Kingston upon Hull UA	1
Newport UA	1
Stockton on Tees UA	2
Total	68

The tables show only those local authorities in which a death occurred. Similar data could only be presented at parliamentary constituency level at disproportionate cost.

Deaths from asbestosis were identified as those certified with an underlying cause coded to ICD9 [International Classification of Diseases Ninth Revision] code of 501.

VAT Agreement

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the current VAT agreement expires; and what representations he has received from the European Commission concerning its renewal. [16695]

Dawn Primarolo: The Sixth VAT Directive (77/388) is the principal European Community (EC) level agreement on VAT, and remains in force automatically in the absence of unanimous agreement to change it. The European Commission has published a suggested programme for progress towards a "common system" of VAT to apply throughout the European Community, but has yet to produce any legislative proposals on the substantive VAT issues of its programme.

VAT (Cereal Bars)

Sir Nicholas Lyell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer why Fruesli bars manufactured by W. Jordans (Cereal) Ltd. and Multigrain bars manufactured by Kelloggs Ltd. are treated differently as regards their liability for value added tax; and if he will make a statement. [16493]

Dawn Primarolo: Cereal bars and similar products, other than cakes, are liable to VAT at the standard rate. Wherever a line is drawn between such items as cakes and confectionery, there are bound to be problems as to which side of the borderline a particular item falls.

Harmful Tax Competition

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the Government's policy towards the document on harmful tax competition recently produced by the European Commission. [14088]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 3 November 1997]: The Government deposited an Explanatory Memorandum on 17 November 1997 on the Commission Communication of 5 November 1997, "A Package to Tackle Harmful Tax Competition in The European Union." (COM (97) 564).

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Government's policy in relation to the European Commission tax harmonisation proposals contained in the document, "Towards Tax Co-ordination in the European Union: A Package to Tackle Harmful Tax Competition." (COM (97) 495 Final). [14463]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 5 November 1997]: The Commission Communication "Towards Tax Co-ordination in the European Union: A Package to Tackle Harmful Tax Competition" (COM (97) 945 Final) was superseded by the 5 November 1997 Commission Communication "A Package to Tackle Harmful Tax Competition in The European Union" (COM (97) 564). The Government deposited an Explanatory Memorandum on 17 November 1997 on the latter text.

Insurance Premium Tax

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the review of insurance premium tax, with particular reference to the travel industry, will be completed. [16201]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 17 November 1997]: There is no general review of insurance premium tax. However, as is usual with significant new tax measures, I have asked officials in Customs and Excise to monitor the effect of the introduction of the higher rate of insurance premium tax. It is too early yet to draw any firm conclusions from this monitoring process and I expect that is will continue into the New Year.

Unemployment

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the oral answer of 13 November 1997, Official Report, columns 1034–35, how many young people currently have been unemployed for six months or longer. [16650]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Chief Executive of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Tim Holt to Mr. David Willetts, dated 19 November 1997:

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has asked me to reply, as the Director of the Office for National Statistics (ONS), to your recent question asking how many young people have been unemployed for six months or more.

The ONS measure of unemployment, derived from the quarterly Labour Force Survey, is defined on a consistent and internationally recognised basis set out by the International Labour Organisation (ILO) and counts as unemployed people who are: (a) without a paid job; (b) available to start work within the next two weeks and (c) have either looked for work in the last four weeks or are waiting to start a job already obtained. According to the spring 1997 Labour Force Survey there were an estimated 206,000 people aged 18–24 in the United Kingdom who had been ILO unemployed for six months or more.

ONS also publishes the monthly claimant count, which is based on the administrative system which records all people claiming unemployment-related benefits (i.e. Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA) or National Insurance (NI) credits) at Employment Service offices on the day of the monthly count, who on that day had signed on as unemployed and available to do any suitable work. Essentially, all people who attend an Employment Service office to sign on the designated day are counted. According to the October 1997 claimant count figures there were 122,000 people aged 18–24 in the United Kingdom who had been claiming Jobseeker's Allowance or National Insurance credits for more than six months. This is the figure Mr. Blunkett quoted in his original reply because your question was about young people and unemployment-related benefits.

Dorneywood

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the members of the management board of the Dorneywood Trust; and if he will make a statement. [16156]

Mr. Gordon Brown [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The Dorneywood Trust is a private charity and is not accountable to my Department.

CABINET OFFICE

Millennium Experience

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister without Portfolio how many hours per week he devotes to work on the Millennium Experience. [16923]

Mr. Mandelson: This varies from week to week but I devote whatever time I judge necessary to fulfilment of my responsibilities in this area.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Service (Disability)

11. Mr. Heppell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans his Department has to improve the opportunities of people with disabilities for promotion and staff development within the civil service. [15102]

Mr. Kilfoyle: My Department has established a number of initiatives to improve opportunities for disabled staff in the Civil Service.

The Programme for Action for Disabled People in the Civil Service provides a framework to help departments and agencies recruit, develop and promote people on merit, regardless of whether they have a disability. Progress is monitored by my Department and reported to Parliament in the biennial Progress Report on Equal Opportunities in the Civil Service.

Overall numbers of disabled staff in the Service have risen. However, these tend to be concentrated in the lower levels. Action to address this situation is being taken primarily through the implementation of the recommendations made by an independent Advisory Panel on Equal Opportunities in the Senior Civil Service.

Civil Service

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to encourage better employer-employee relations in the Civil Service. [15103]

Mr. Kilfoyle: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster recently had a very constructive meeting with the General Secretaries of the Civil Service trade unions at which he discussed a range of issues connected with improving employer-employee relations within the Civil Service.

24. Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to protect and promote the independence of the civil service. [15115]

Dr. David Clark: The role of the Civil Service, as set down in the Civil Service Code, is to assist the duly constituted Government of the day with integrity, honesty, impartiality and objectivity. Ministers are under a duty—set out in the Ministerial Code—to uphold the political impartiality of the Civil Service and not to ask civil servants to act in any way which would conflict with the Civil Service Code. This Government are the first to commit Members to bringing forward legislation to give legal force to the Civil Service Code to ensure that the essential characteristics of a politically impartial Civil Service are enshrined in statute.

Charter Mark Standards

14. Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measures are in place to monitor the maintenance of charter mark standards in NHS hospital trusts. [15105]

Mr. Kilfoyle: All Charter Mark applicants have to undergo a rigorous assessment process.

Those that meet the standard have to reapply for their awards every three years. During this period, departments, inspectorates and other regulatory bodies keep us informed of any problems and we always act on any reports of poor performance. This ensures that Charter Mark winners maintain a high standard of service.

Special Advisers

15. Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he has taken to ensure that possible breaches of contract of employment by special advisers are properly investigated. [15106]

Mr. Kilfoyle: All special advisers' terms and conditions, including procedures for dealing with breaches or grievances, are set out in their contract, a model copy of which is in the Libraries of the House.

26. Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many special advisers are currently employed in Government Departments; and what the total is planned to be on 19 November 1998. [15117]

Mr. David Clark: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 13 November 1997, Official Report, columns 615–17. It is not known how many Special Advisers will be in post on 19 November 1998.

Government Information Officers

16. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Government information officers have (a) resigned and (b) have dismissed since 1 May. [15107]

Mr. Kilfoyle: I assume that the hon. Member is referring to Heads of Information.

Since 1 May, seven vacancies have arisen as a result of Heads of Information leaving their posts.

As the hon. Member will appreciate the reasons for individual moves are personal and contractual matters between the individual and department.

Better Government Programme

17. Mr. Stringer: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proposals he has to involve local government in his better government programme. [15108]

Dr. David Clark: Local government are key partners in the Better Government Programme.

As part of the Deputy Prime Minister's initiative to develop the partnership between Central and Local Government, I am setting up a group to develop a framework for innovative pilots on how services can be improved at the local level through different organisations working together. The local authority sector was also well represented in my recent Better Government discussion seminars.

Citizens Charter

18. Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to ensure that Departments meet citizens charter targets. [15109]

Mr. Kilfoyle: All Departments and agencies are responsible for meeting targets set down in relevant charters. In addition, central Government Departments must meet six service standards laid down for central Government. We will be considering as part of the relaunch of the Charter programme how better to ensure that targets are actually delivered.

22. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has for the improvement of the citizens charter. [15113]

Mr. Kilfoyle: We will relaunch the citizen's charter and focus it on the needs and wishes of the people who both use and deliver public services every day. Details of the new Charter programme will be published as part of the Better Government initiative.

Public Bodies

19. Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to reduce the number of non-departmental public bodies. [15110]

Dr. David Clark: The Government are determined to control the number of quangos. I have asked Ministers in charge of departments to take a personal look at the continuing need for all the non-departmental public bodies they sponsor, with a view to abolishing, merging or winding up a future date any bodies which are no longer essential. As part of the Comprehensive Spending Review, Ministers have also been asked to include a zero-based analysis of the functions of the NDPBs they sponsor.

Helen Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress he is making in improving public access to information in respect of non-departmental public bodies. [15118]

Dr. David Clark: In our consultation paper, "Opening up Quangos", published on 11 November, the Government have made a number of relevant proposals including: information on appointments to non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) and other bodies, such as public corporations and nationalised industries, should be available from a single Internet source; new appointments should be made public through a press release; there should be greater openness about meetings of bodies; and all bodies should produce Annual Reports and make them publicly available.

Food Standards Agency

20. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on his proposals for a food standards agency. [15111]

Dr. David Clark: We will shortly publish a White Paper setting out the Government's proposals for establishing a Food Standards Agency. This will be the subject of a full round of public consultation.

Freedom of Information

21. Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he plans to publish a White Paper on freedom of information. [15112]

25. Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on his freedom of information proposals. [15116]

Dr. David Clark: I refer the hon. Member and my hon. Friend to the answer I gave earlier to my hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, North (Ms Morgan).

Access Business Initiative

23. Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the Access business initiative. [15114]

Mr. Kilfoyle: As I announced on 23 July 1997, Official Report, column 583, Access Business has been set up to modernise and simplify the delivery of regulatory advice, forms and guidance to business. The first fruit of our work is Direct Access Government, a service which I launched on 6 November, and which enables business to access a wide range of forms and advice on the Internet.

Technology

28. Maria Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what projects are being undertaken to develop the technology used in delivering Government services. [15119]

Dr. David Clark: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister recently set a target that by 2002, one quarter of dealings with Government will be able to be done by a member of the public electronically—through a computer, or an interactive television set, or over the telephone.

My department is using pilot projects to give the general public the opportunity to try electronic service delivery for themselves. For example, on 8 December, I will be launching an Intelligent Form, which will convert what were once six paper forms on notification of self-employment into one electronic form. This will distribute information to Customs and Excise, Inland Revenue and the Contributions Agency. An electronic signature will secure the contents of the form. The Intelligent Form will provide a seamless service for the end user.

Previously announced projects include:

Broadclyst rural Post Office kiosk which makes benefits information accessible alongside local information;

a kiosk project involving HM Customs and Excise, Inland Revenue and the Contributions Agency as part of their Closer Working. It uses touch screen technology to provide information on tax, National Insurance and VAT;

Direct Access Government provides a One Stop Regulation Shop on the Internet. It brings together regulatory guidance and forms from all main government departments to give easy access to business and individuals;

SCOTLIS (Scottish Land Information System) provides information on land and property in Scotland to individuals and businesses. At present it is only available for a small area around Bridge of Alan, near Stirling;

a pilot project which provides information on Citizen's Charter data on a network of 200 "BT Touchpoint" kiosks within the M25.

Public Services

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on his plans to involve ordinary people more in decisions about the delivery of public services. [15104]

Dr. David Clark: As part of the relaunch of the Citizen's Charter, we are undertaking a wide-ranging consultation exercise to find out what people want in the new programme.

I also plan to set up a People's Panel early in the new year, which will provide us with more information on the experiences of users of public services.

Civil Service Budget

Mr. Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will provide a breakdown of the civil service budget by amount spent in each of the regions of the United Kingdom (a) in cash terms and (b) as a percentage of the total, ranked according to percentage per region. [15936]

Dr. David Clark: The information is not held centrally.

Analyses of total public expenditure by function, region and country are contained in Chapter 7 of the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (1997–98: Cm 3061) a copy of which has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Civil Service and Quango Jobs

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil service and quango jobs are in towns and cities in Scotland with populations above 40,000. [15933]

Dr. David Clark: The full-time equivalent numbers of permanent and casual civil servants in each town or city at 1 July 1997, and of employees of executive non-departmental public bodies at 1 April 1997, are shown in the following table:

Town/city	Population (1991 Census)	Civil servants (July 1997)	Staff of executive NDPBs (April 1997)
Glasgow	663,000	9,970	2,020
Edinburgh	402,000	9,680	3,650
Aberdeen	190,000	1,400	540
Dundee	160,000	810	340
Paisley[1]	76,000	560	0
East Kilbride	70,000	2,430	0
Dunfermline	55,000	1,440	0
Greenock[1]	50,000	650	0
Hamilton	50,000	150	0
Cumbernauld	49,000	1,420	0
Ayr[1]	48,000	630	140
Kirkcaldy	47,000	190	0
Kilmarnock	44,000	80	0
Coatbridge[1]	44,000	150	0
Livingston[1]	42,000	660	0
Perth	41,000	940	0
Inverness	41,000	720	440

[1] The number of civil servants shown are those in the respective local authority areas: Renfrew (Paisley), Inverclyde (Greenock), Kyle and Carrick (Ayr), Monklands (Coatbridge), and West Lothian (Livingston).

COI Web Site

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people have visited the Central Office of Information web site, "Today's Press Releases," since it was set up. [16676]

Dr. David Clark: There have been 168,382 visits to the "Today's Press Releases" page on the Central Office of Information's web site since it was set up.

Civil Service Employees (Scotland)

Mr. Ernie Ross: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the total level of employment is in Scotland in the Civil Service and its agencies; and what the respective employment levels are in (a) Glasgow, (b) Edinburgh, (c) Aberdeen, (d) Dundee, (e) Stirling and (f) Inverness. [16519]

Dr. David Clark: On 1 July 1997, there were 44,760 full-time equivalent permanent and casual Civil Servants employed in Scotland, of whom 9,970 were in Glasgow, 9,680 in Edinburgh, 1,400 in Aberdeen, 810 in Dundee, 860 in Stirling and 720 in Inverness.

Public Service Delivery (Consultation)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on his proposals to consult and involve ordinary people more in discussions about the delivery of public services. [15098]

Dr. David Clark: As part of the relaunch of the Citizen's Charter, we are undertaking a wide-ranging consultation exercise to find out what people want in the new programme. We are also planning to set up a People's Panel early in the new year, in order that the public's views inform our plans to improve the delivery of public services.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list each of the overseas trips made by himself and other members of his ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if he will make a statement. [15244]

Dr. David Clark [pursuant to his reply, Official Report, 17 November 1997, c. 78]: My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary and I have undertaken the following overseas visits:

Minister/Destination	Purpose of the trip	Cost (£)
Chancellor of the Duchy
Washington	To meet with key figures in the US as part of the preparation for the Better Government White Paper	24,227
Austria	Trilateral discussions with Austrian and German Ministers on co-ordinating a better EU regulation strategy across the three countries' consecutive EU Presidencies	£3,905
Canada and Boston	To investigate how the Canadian Freedom of Information system works and to follow up discussions with leading academics at Harvard on Better Government	16,994
New Zealand and Australia	Fact finding visit on Freedom of Information and Better Government	29,235
Parliamentary Secretary
Malaysia and Singapore	Investigate the use of IT in the delivery of public services in these countries and the public service reforms which both have introduced	10,528

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 20 November 1997

DEFENCE

Burma Railway Memorial

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will provide funds to support a memorial to commemorate allied service men who, while prisoners of war, died during the construction of the Burma railway; and if he will make a statement. [14490]

Mr. Spellar: The Government are very aware of the hardships and suffering endured by prisoners of war who were forced by their captors to build the Burma-Siam Railway during the Second World War.

While we have the greatest sympathy for those men and their families and acknowledge the need for remembrance and commemoration, it has been a long-standing policy of successive Governments that the cost of memorials is not usually met from public funds, but from private donations or public subscription.

The Ministry of Defence is, therefore, unable to assist with the funding of the memorial.

The organisers intend to site the memorial in Thailand and the Ministry of Defence would be happy to provide representation at any dedication ceremony, should the necessary funding be raised.

Correspondence

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the hon. Member for Salisbury can expect a reply to his letter to the Minister of State for the Armed Forces, dated 24 July, about the closure of the Army Base Repair Organisation depot at Ludgershall. [16947]

Dr. Reid: I replied yesterday to the hon. Member's letter. I regret not having done so sooner.

Eurofighter

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will further review the (a) number of and (b) timetable for its delivery of Eurofighter 2000. [17006]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the right hon. Member to the answers I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Selly Oak (Dr. Jones) on 4 November 1997, Official Report, column 111.

Gene Science

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many research projects concerned with aspects of gene science have been commissioned by his Department in each year since 1987; and if he will list these in date order. [16789]

Mr. Spellar: My Department commissions research into a wide variety of what might be called genetic science applications, mainly in support of chemical and biological defence. Examples range from the use of gene probes to develop improved detection of biological warfare agents, to the use of genetic engineering for research into new vaccines. Most of this research is conducted at Porton Down, where an initial survey indicates that the number of genetic engineering projects undertaken since 1987 is as follows:

Year	Number of projects
1987	8
1988	11
1989	19
1990	8
1991	12
1992	19
1993	15
1994	13
1995	8
1996	20

I am withholding details of these and similarly aimed research projects under the terms of exemption category 1 of the Code of Practice on Government Information.

Army (Engineer Resources)

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the Army's engineer resources. [17550]

Dr. Reid: My predecessor announced in August 1995 that the Army Engineer Resources Organisation, based at Long Marston in Warwickshire, would collocate with another Royal Engineers organisation—the Military Work Force—on a single site at Chilwell near Nottingham. A number of subsequent developments have led to a review of this decision.

In order to ensure that the Engineer Resources organisation was configured in the most efficient way for the transfer to Chilwell and subsequent Market Testing, a comprehensive business review of this organisation was carried out. This concluded that many of the Engineer tasks—notably storage, provisioning and repair—could be carried out more efficiently by other parts of the Army support organisation, for which they are core business.

In parallel, further work was undertaken on the Army's overall storage requirement. The Storage Rationalisation Study, about which we made a separate announcement on 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 611, concluded that the Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency had sufficient space to absorb the Engineer Resources storage task. In the light of this work, an investment appraisal has been carried out which has demonstrated that disaggregation of the Engineer Resources task is substantially more cost-effective by some 15 per cent. (approximately £21 million over 25 years in net present value terms) than any option for collocation at Chilwell.

Obtaining greater efficiency from Defence spending is a central part of the Strategic Defence Review. All support activities are being rigorously scrutinised against the benchmark of value for money and the need to ensure that we retain only those assets which are essential for Defence needs. I have therefore accepted, as the basis for consultation, a recommendation to proceed with the disaggregation of the Engineer Resources tasks to other service providers. Long Marston will close by December 1999. Final decisions will be taken in the light of representations made during the consultation period. A copy of the consultative document is being placed in the Library.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Penalty Points

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will reduce the number of penalty points that result in disqualification; and if he will make a statement. [16344]

Mr. Michael: There are no present plans to reduce the number of points which would result in disqualification. However, with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, I keep under review the number of points which may be imposed for individual offences.

Poaching

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to increase the penalties for poaching. [16627]

Mr. George Howarth: The Government have no plans to increase the penalties for poaching. Penalties were last amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994.

Rural Crime

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures the Government will take to encourage and support Rural Watch and Farm Watch schemes. [16630]

Mr. Michael: The Government recognise that, in rural areas, the police response to crime cannot always be as quick as they or the public would like and it is imperative that people take reasonable precautions against becoming victims of crime.

The most effective response to rural crime is a partnership approach between the police and local communities. We encourage schemes such as Farm Watch and Rural Watch which enable members of the public—with the support of the local police—to do something positive in the fight against crime.

In the Crime and Disorder Bill, we will introduce a new statutory duty for the police and local authorities jointly to analyse and identify local problems of crime and disorder and, together with the local community, draw up and implement strategies for tackling such problems. Schemes such as Farm Watch and Rural Watch will play a positive role in this partnership. The support of local communities will make a significant impact on crime in the countryside.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposals the Government have to tackle rural crime. [16629]

Mr. Michael: Rural communities suffer from most of the same types of crime as, but have different needs from, urban communities. The most effective answer to rural crime is a partnership between the police and local communities.

The Crime and Disorder Bill will provide for new statutory duties for local authorities and the police jointly to analyse and identify local problems of crime and disorder. With input from local communities, a strategy will be drawn up and implemented to tackle those problems. This will apply in both rural and urban areas.

The partnership ideal is already evident in many rural communities, and the creation of many and diverse "Watch" schemes are testimony to the efficacy of this approach.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will provide additional financial assistance to North Yorkshire Police for radio communications in remote areas. [16631]

Mr. Michael: North Yorkshire Police Authority's spending capacity increased by £2.8 million (4%) to £72.4 million in 1997–98, which was an increase above the national average. The provisional police revenue settlement for 1998–99 is likely to be announced in December, along with capital funding allocations. Once the allocations have been made, it is entirely for individual chief constables and their police authorities to determine their spending priorities. This Government have undertaken to keep within the public expenditure limits we inherited from the previous Government and no allowance has been made for additional capital funding to be provided to North Yorkshire Police for radio communications in remote areas.

Crime Prevention

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) amount and (b) percentage of his Department's expenditure, in (i) the current and (ii) the next financial year, will be spent on crime prevention. [16540]

Mr. Michael: Home Office expenditure specifically allocated to crime prevention in 1997–98 is £19.3 million. That figure is additional to £7.2 billion public expenditure on the police service. The prevention of crime is one of the key functions of the police service and the Government are committed to encouraging a partnership approach to crime prevention.

It is not possible to identify the level of public expenditure on the police service or other programmes within the Home Office budget which is devoted to crime prevention. Therefore, it is not possible to provide a percentage of the overall budget devoted to crime prevention.

Detailed expenditure plans for 1998–99 have yet to be finalised.

Alcohol Abuse

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures the Government will take to tackle alcohol abuse by young people. [16635]

Mr. George Howarth: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Selby (Mr. Grogan) on 16 July, Official Report, column 173, and to the letter which I sent to all hon. Members on 17 July.

Prison Enterprise Services

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to contract out the Prison Enterprise Services to the private sector; and if he will make a statement. [16552]

Ms Quin [holding answer 18 November 1997]: There are no plans to contract out Prison Enterprise Services (which provides advice and support to prisons in managing their industrial and commercial activity) or to contract out industrial activity in other prisons.

My right hon. Friend and I have agreed to a partnership between Wackenhut United Kingdom and the Prison Service under which the company will manage the industrial work at Coldingley prison although the governor will be involved in decisions on major new lines of production and there will be a profit-sharing arrangement with the prison.

Beer Glasses

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to introduce regulations for strengthened beer glasses for use in public houses. [16912]

Mr. George Howarth: I have no present plans to do so. I understand that approximately one third of straight-sided beer glasses in pubs are already made of toughened glass. The recommendation on 22 October by the Brewers and Licensed Retailers Association that its members should use toughened glasses will very significantly increase their use. The Government will be monitoring developments closely.

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the effect of the Amsterdam Treaty on the status under national law of (a) churches, (b) religious associations and (c) organisations which his Department classifies as cults in the United Kingdom. [16985]

Ms Quin: Declaration 11 to the Treaty of Amsterdam refers to the status of churches, religious associations and non-confessional organisations. It is non-binding and has no effect on national law.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effect of the terms of the Treaty of Amsterdam on the death penalty in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) her dependencies. [17016]

Mr. Michael: The Treaty of Amsterdam has no effect on the position in the United Kingdom or her dependencies so far as the death penalty is concerned. The policy of the Government remains that it is for Parliament to decide on the reintroduction or abolition of the death penalty in the United Kingdom.

Drugs Prevention Initiative

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish a report on the progress of his Department's Drugs Prevention Initiative. [17438]

Mr. George Howarth: I am publishing tomorrow the Drugs Prevention Initiative's seventh annual progress report. The report summarises encouraging progress. An extensive and innovative programme is now providing some useful findings about effective community-based drugs prevention work. The programme aims to show more fully by March 1999 what action communities themselves can take to tackle local drugs problems. I am placing a copy of the report in the Library tomorrow at 10.30 am.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances a licence can be awarded under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in respect of a product or ingredient of a product already freely available on the United Kingdom market. [16458]

Mr. George Howarth: Other than finished cosmetic products, for which no new authorities to test will be issued, such authorities under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 are issued for testing only when there is a specific regulatory requirement: for example, to meet the requirements of the Dangerous Substances Directive, the Biocidal Products Directive or the Medical Devices Directive.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to increase the availability of public information under section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. [16459]

Mr. George Howarth: There are no plans to change section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. It will therefore remain an offence to disclose information given in confidence. Such information includes the details of establishments and individuals licensed under the Act, and details of licence applications.

We do, however, plan to make more information available on how the Act is operated. The policy and procedures for handling infringements were described in the 1996 annual report of the Animal Procedures Committee. The Committee is also planning to produce an extended statement on the cost-benefit assessment required under section 5(4) of the Act and I understand that this will describe the process by which programmes of work are assessed. A revised and updated version of the "Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986" is also being produced.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many project licence applications put before the Animal Procedures Committee in 1996 were (a) approved and (b) refused. [16460]

Mr. George Howarth: During 1996, the Committee considered two new project licence applications.

The Committee does not grant or refuse applications. It can only advise the Secretary of State on whether licences should be granted. In these cases, the Home Secretary decided that the two licences should be granted.

The Committee also saw two applications to amend existing licence authorities. One requested an extension of the licence to the maximum allowed term of five years. This was granted by the Home Secretary. The other, requesting changes to the existing authorities, was considered on several occasions by the Committee during 1996. Some of the requested amendments were granted.

Further details of these considerations were published in the Committee's annual report for 1996.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the circumstances under which Alice, the Macaque monkey at the Institute of Neurology, died; which procedures were authorised to be undertaken on the animal; and what assessment he has made of the extent to which the evidence given in application for a project licence to use Alice met the requirements of section 5(5) of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. [16461]

Mr. George Howarth: Alice was used in a non-recovery procedure under anaesthesia in February 1996.

After craniotomy and laminectomy under general anaesthesia, her brain was stimulated electrically and recordings were made from spinal nerves. (The purpose was to investigate the way in which cells in the motor cortex address motoneurones controlling hand and forearm activity.) Alice was then given an overdose of anaesthetic.

Section 5(5) of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 requires that applicants give adequate consideration to the feasibility of achieving the purposes of the programme of work by means not involving protected animals. This work could only be undertaken in living animals because the complexity of the neurological processes cannot be reproduced by other means.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Attorney-General if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16286]

The Attorney-General: The Code of Practice on Access to Government Information applies in relation to my own office and to the Treasury Solicitor's Department, for which I have responsibility. In the light of the exemptions from disclosure under the Code and the nature of the work we do, requests falling within the Code are unlikely. Internal guidance prepared by the Treasury Solicitor's Department none-the-less exists and is being updated. A copy of the new guidance will be placed in the Library.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Attorney-General what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16285]

The Attorney-General: It has not been my practice to fax press releases to Opposition party spokesmen on the day of release and this has not changed since 1 May. However, I would willingly do so in future if requested.

"The Last Governor"

Mr. Cranston: To ask the Attorney-General what consideration has been given to proceedings under the Official Secrets Act 1989 in relation to disclosures contained in the book "The Last Governor." [17551]

The Attorney-General: The Director of Public Prosecutions was asked to consider whether the circumstances disclosed a possible offence under the Official Secrets Act 1989 such as to require a criminal investigation. She therefore sought my views on the public interest aspect of the case because any prosecution would by statute have required my consent.

I considered the matter with the DPP and I then invited relevant colleagues to draw to my attention matters which the public interest required be taken into account in accordance with the long-standing procedures described to the House by my predecessor on 29 January 1951, Official Report, columns 683-684. Following such consultation I concluded that intelligence and foreign relations considerations outweighed other public interest considerations which might otherwise have required a prosecution in respect of any offence established by a criminal investigation. It followed that no useful purpose would have been served for there to have been a police investigation in this matter.

Although that view took account of the considerations advanced by Ministerial colleagues, the assessment of those considerations was my responsibility alone as a Law Officer acting independently of Government but after further consultation with the DPP, the DPP concurred with my view.

CABINET OFFICE

Amsterdam Treaty

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister without Portfolio in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Office contributed to drafting. [17014]

Mr. Mandelson: The United Kingdom position on the draft Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation between relevant Government Departments.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16293]

Dr. David Clark: Press notices are not routinely faxed to Opposition spokesmen. They are available on request and are automatically posted to individuals who have asked to be put onto the Cabinet Office press notice mailing list. There has been no change since 1 May.

Government Car Service

Mr. Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the expenditure on the Government Car Service for the last year for which figures are available, and separately identifying the cost of ministerial cars. [16995]

Mr. Kilfoyle: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated under the terms of the Framework Document to the Government Car and Despatch Agency. I have asked its Chief Executive, Mr. Nick Matheson, to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Nick Matheson to Mr. Norman Baker, dated 20 November 1997:

The Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Public Service, has asked me in my capacity as the Chief Executive responsible for the Government Car Service to reply to your Parliamentary Question dated 17 November 1997.

The total cost of providing all Government Car Service services in 1996–97 was £7.6 million. The estimated cost of vehicles and drivers allocated to Ministers and their private offices was £4.1 million, although they are also used for several other purposes such as the movement of documents and for use by officials as directed by the ministerial private office.

The Government Car and Despatch Agency charges customer departments for the services provided on a basis that recovers all costs.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Farmed Land (Foreign Ownership)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will estimate the percentage of the farmed area in the United Kingdom which is in foreign ownership. [15968]

Mr. Hoon: The Question concerns a specific operational matter on which the Chief Executive of the Land Registry is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the Chief Executive to reply direct.

Letter from Stuart Hill to Mr. Gordon Prentice, dated 20 November 1997:

I have been asked by the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, to reply to your recent question on the percentage of the farmed area in the United Kingdom in foreign ownership.

I regret that statistics relating to the nationality of registered proprietors are not maintained by the Registry and I am therefore unable to supply the information required.

Family Law

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if those attending pilot group divorce information meetings under the Family Law Act 1996 received the full range of divorce information referred to in Section 8(9) of the Act at such meetings. [16079]

Mr. Hoon: With the exception of marriage counselling and support services, attendees at group information presentations receive the full range of information. Information on marriage support is additionally given in individual meetings.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the total cost of the research into the pilot projects for the provision of divorce information under the Family Law Act 1996. [16072]

Mr. Hoon: Negotiations are continuing in relation to further pilots and disclosure of costings would be likely to affect our negotiating position with potential pilot providers. Therefore, this information must remain confidential at present.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when it is proposed to produce Welsh language leaflets to be distributed to attendees at divorce information meetings under the Family Law Act 1996. [16081]

Mr. Hoon: All leaflets specially commissioned for the information meetings pilots are available in Welsh for those attending meetings organised by the pilot project in South Wales and have been from its commencement in June 1997.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the budget for producing and distributing the leaflets given to attendees at the pilot divorce information meetings under the Family Law Act 1996; and if he will make a statement. [16080]

Mr. Hoon: Negotiations are continuing in relation to further pilots and disclosure of costings would be likely to affect our negotiating position with potential pilot providers. Therefore, this information must remain confidential at present.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what the overall budget is for piloting arrangements for the provision of divorce information under section 8 of the Family Law Act 1996; and if he will make a statement. [16085]

Mr. Hoon: Negotiations are continuing in relation to further pilots and disclosure of costings would be likely to affect our negotiating position with potential pilot providers. Therefore, this information must remain confidential at present.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Sectary, Lord Chancellor's Department if alternatives to meetings for the provision of divorce information under the Family Law Act 1996 have been piloted; and in what form. [16071]

Mr. Hoon: Both models being currently tested in the pilots involve personal attendance at meetings.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what the relationship is between the pilot group divorce information meetings for married and unmarried individuals and the statutory framework under the Family Law Act 1996 of one to one meetings for married individuals; and if he will make a statement. [16083]

Mr. Hoon: Information presentations to a number of attendees constitute one of the models of information meetings currently being piloted. For married persons, these presentations are preceded by an individual information meeting. The individual meetings are within the statutory framework of the Family Law Act. Non-married persons do not first attend an individual meeting.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what the cost was of producing the video being shown at the pilot group divorce information meetings under the Family Law Act 1996; and if he will make a statement. [16082]

Mr. Hoon: Negotiations are continuing in relation to further pilots and disclosure of costings would be likely to affect our negotiating position with potential pilot providers. Therefore, this information must remain confidential at present.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what arrangements exist for consultation on the contents of phases II and III of the divorce information pilot projects under the Family Law Act 1996; when and with whom this consultation will take place; and if he will make a statement. [16078]

Mr. Hoon: All aspects of the pilot projects are being objectively tested through research. The views of the public who attend meetings, those involved in organisation and delivery of the pilots and all professionals and organisations within the pilot areas are being sought. Consultation on the content of the leaflets took place with relevant organisations. As required by section 8 (10) of the Family Law Act, before making any regulations under subsection (6) of section 8, the Lord Chancellor must consult such persons concerned with the provision of relevant information as he considers appropriate. The Lord Chancellor will do so.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what was the total cost of the tendering process for research into the pilot projects for the provision of divorce information under the Family Law Act 1996; and if he will make a statement. [16073]

Mr. Hoon: There was no competition for the evaluation element of the pilots as opposed to the pilot provision itself which was subject to competition. In the course of this competition the Department received a manifestly suitable set of proposals for the evaluation and an application for a grant in aid. No separate competition for the evaluation element was therefore necessary.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what the budget is for providing pilot group divorce information meetings for married and unmarried individuals under the Family Law Act 1996. [16084]

Mr. Hoon: Negotiations are continuing in relation to further pilots and disclosure of costings would be likely to affect our negotiating position with potential pilot providers. Therefore, this information must remain confidential at present.

Courts

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the ratio between the cost of maintaining courts in (a) rural and (b) urban areas. [15945]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor's Department does not hold information on the comparative cost of maintaining individual magistrates courts. Expenditure information is only collected at magistrates committee level and this will, in many cases, cover more than one court.

The Court Service does hold information on the maintenance cost of individual crown and county court centres but does not classify them as either rural or urban.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what account was taken of representations received from courts committees in formulating the strategic plan for 1997 to 2007; and what savings will be made as a result of the closure of court houses under the strategic plan. [15977]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor's Department has not formulated a strategic plan for the years 1997 to 2007. The Dorset Magistrates Courts Committee has drawn up a plan covering those years. The Lord Chancellor's Department was not consulted about the content of the plan and there is no statutory requirement for the Committee to have done so. It is for the Committee itself to determine what account should be taken of any representations received during the formulation of its plan.

The strategic plan makes no specific reference to the level of savings that could be achieved through the closure of court houses.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will review the practice whereby individuals representing themselves at court in civil cases, who win their cases, are not entitled to claim for costs other than travel expenses. [15947]

Mr. Hoon: Under the Litigants in Person (Costs and Expenses) Act 1975, litigants in person are entitled to recover costs other than travel expenses, including disbursements incurred and time for preparing their case. However, as part of the civil justice reform programme, my Department issued a consultation paper in August 1997, on the general provisions relevant to taxation of costs, including the costs of litigants in person.

Legal Aid

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the insurers and insurance companies with whom the Lord Chancellor or his officials have held discussions about the Government's legal aid reform proposals, indicating in each case where and when the discussion took place and who was present. [16321]

Mr. Hoon: Officials of the Lord Chancellor's Department have had contact with various insurers and their representatives for some years. However since my noble and learned Friend the Lord Chancellor, announced his intentions to reform legal aid on 18 October 1997, his officials have met a delegation from the Association of British Insurers on 29 October 1997. The meeting took place at the Lord Chancellor's Department Headquarters (Selborne House). The Lord Chancellor also met James Innes of Abbey Legal Protection Ltd. on 14 November 1997 in the Lord Chancellor's office in the House of Lords. Those meetings have been in addition to less formal contact over the telephone and in correspondence.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what part his Department played in the formulation of the Treaty of Amsterdam material concerning (a) qualified majority voting in employment matters and (b) the treatment of employment as a matter of common concern; and if he will make a statement. [17017]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Department for Education and Employment played a full part in the formulation of the UK position on the new Employment Chapter in the Amsterdam Treaty, in conjunction with other interested Departments.

The Government's objectives at the Amsterdam European Council in relation to employment were: to agree a new Employment Chapter; to ensure that tackling unemployment is a priority for the EU; and to secure recognition of the importance of employability and flexible labour markets in any employment strategy.

All these objectives were met.

TREASURY

Taxation Changes

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the total net revenue cost to the Exchequer in 1998–99 of (a) introducing a new rate of income tax of 50 per cent. on taxable income of over £100,000 per annum, (b) abolishing mortgage interest tax relief, (c) abolishing the married couple's tax allowance, (d) restricting the value of the personal tax allowance to the basic rate of income tax, (e) applying tax on savings at the marginal rate of income tax, (f) abolishing the lower rate of income tax, (g) abolishing the capital gains tax annual exempt amount and (h) raising the value of the personal income tax allowance to £10,000 per annum. [13249]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 5 November 1997]: The latest available information is for 1997–98. Separate costs or yields for each of the individual measures are given in the table. The combined cost of all of the measures may differ significantly from the sum of the figures for the individual measures. The estimates do not allow for any behavioural changes.

	Full year cost (–)/yield (+) at 1997–98 income levels
(a) 50 per cent. of taxable income above £100,000	+£1.4 billion
(b) abolish mortgage interest tax relief	+£2.6 billion
(c) abolish the married couple's allowance and related allowances[1]	+£3.3 billion
(d) restrict the value of personal allowance to the basic rate	+£1.9 billion
(e) apply tax on savings (excluding dividends) at the marginal rate of income tax	+£0.2 billion
(f) abolish the lower rate of tax, but leave savings and dividends rate at 20 per cent.	+£2.7 billion
(g) cost of capital gains tax annual exempt amount[2]	–£2.5 billion
(h) raise non aged and aged personal allowances to £10,000	–£2.9 billion

[1] This figure includes the cost of abolishing the additional personal allowance of £220 million and the cost of abolishing the widow's bereavement allowance of £25 million.

[2] This figure allows for windfall gains arising from the disposal of shares issued in connection with building society and insurance company de-mutualisations. It is particularly uncertain due to the exceptional level of de-mutualisation activity during this year. This estimate represents the reduction in tax liabilities from the existence of the relief and cannot generally be interpreted as the yield from withdrawing it. In practice, withdrawing a relief would often result in significant changes to taxpayers' behaviour and might require changes to other reliefs.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will estimate the percentage change in after-tax income per income decile as a consequence of announced changes to direct and indirect taxation over the period 1998–99 to 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [13280]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 6 November 1997]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. member for Wells (Mr. Heathcoat-Amory) on 11 July, Official Report, column 167–68.

Estimates of the impact on after-tax per income decile in 1998–99 will depend on measures announced in the spring Budget.

Business Insolvency

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance he has issued to (a) the Inland Revenue and (b) HM Customs and Excise in respect of bankruptcy orders in business insolvency cases. [16196]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue and Customs and Excise have a statutory duty to collect tax that is legally due. It is their responsibility, to the Exchequer and to taxpayers generally, to do so speedily and effectively, taking the action they consider appropriate to obtain payment. However both Departments recognise the need to balance their duty to collect tax with the proper concern for the taxpayer to continue in business. Insolvency proceedings are only taken as a last resort, after all other attempts to secure payment within a reasonable time-scale have failed.

Elderly People (North Norfolk)

Mr. Prior: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the number of people in North Norfolk over the ages of (a) 65 and (b) 75 years in (i) 1977, (ii) 1987, (iii) 1997, (iv) 2007 and (v) 2017. [16533]

Mrs. Liddell: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Chief Executive of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Tim Holt to Mr. David Prior, dated 20 November 1997:

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has asked me to reply, as Director of the Office for National Statistics, to your recent question on the number of people in North Norfolk aged over 65 and 75.

Population estimates are available for North Norfolk for 1977 and 1987. This information is set out below:

District of North Norfolk

	65 and over	75 and over
Population estimates
1978	17,300	6,500
1987	21,200	9,600

Population projections are only available for counties, metropolitan districts and London Boroughs, and are not available for smaller geographical areas such as that of North Norfolk. Therefore, the figures for 1997, 2007 and 2017 are provided for the county of Norfolk only. Comparable population estimates are also given.

County of Norfolk

	65 and over	75 and over
Population estimates
1977	114,700	42,200
1987	136,300	59,500
Population projections
1997	153,400	73,400
2007	164,000	85,200
2017	198,900	92,200

Sources:
1977 and 1987—based Population estimates for England and Wales.
1993—based Subnational Population Projection for England (PP3 no. 9, 1995).

Airport Taxes

Mr. Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to reduce the burden of United Kingdom airport taxes on foreign children making flights on medical grounds to the United Kingdom. [16916]

Dawn Primarolo: Cases of this type are usually administered by UK registered charities which already benefit from a range of tax reliefs such as gift aid and the payroll scheme. These encourage donations to charity by focusing on what people give rather than what charities spend. Additionally, in his last Budget, the Chancellor announced a review of the taxation of charities and invited contributions from interested parties. Although the main focus of the review will be the current VAT arrangements, all aspects of the tax system will be taken into consideration.

The Government receive many appeals of this nature for relief of taxes and duties. While we are sympathetic to the causes it would be difficult to justify discrimination by granting relief in some cases but not in others.

Brewing Industry

Mr. Heppell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to introduce a progressive duty in respect of the brewing industry. [15414]

Dawn Primarolo: None.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Television (Sporting Event)

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations he has received about the England v. Australia Rugby Union international on Saturday 15 November not being available live to terrestrial viewers. [16569]

Mr. Fisher: Mr right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has received one representation on the subject of the coverage of this particular match. He has received eight representations on the subject of the coverage of England Rugby Union matches in general. This match was shown live by BSkyB under the terms of its contract with the English Rugby Football Union. Coverage of the whole match was transmitted by ITV later on the same afternoon, and I understand that this will be the arrangement for television coverage of all home England internationals until 2001.

Tourism

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the value of the tourism industry to (a) the East Midlands, (b) Leicestershire and (c) Loughborough. [16571]

Mr. Tom Clarke: In 1996, the tourism industry generated an estimated £1,700 million in the East Midlands and an estimated £370 million in Leicestershire.

Official data sources do not provide reliable estimates of tourism expenditure in Loughborough or other sub-county local authority areas.

Museums (Tyne and Wear)

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if grant in aid per visitor is a factor he is taking into account in his current review of Tyne and Wear museums funding; and if he will make a statement. [16516]

Mr. Fisher: The main focus of the Department's current review of the funding arrangements of the Tyne and Wear Museums Service is on whether the annual grant from the Museums and Galleries Commission should continue in the light of the Department's wider spending review. The review will take into account relevant factors including value-for-money considerations such as cost per visitor from all funding sources, and TWMS's record of achievement in the delivery of public services.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what factors have been taken into account in his review of Government direct funding of the Tyne and Wear Museums Service; and if he will make a statement. [16625]

Mr. Fisher: The Department is reviewing the current funding arrangements for the Tyne and Wear Museums Service as part of the Government's Comprehensive Spending Review. That Review, embracing all aspects of the Government's public expenditure programmes, includes a consideration of the Department's funding of the museums sector overall. The grant to TWMS cannot be exempt from that consideration.

Listed Buildings (Ecclesiastical Exemption)

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he has received Mr. John Newman's report on the ecclesiastical exemption from listed building and conservation area controls. [17573]

Mr. Banks: Mr. Newman has completed his review of the ecclesiastical exemption and copies of his report have been placed in the Library. His overall conclusion is that the six denominations should continue to enjoy the exemption for the time being. He none the less proposes a number of changes to procedure within each of the denominations and recommends that a further formal review be conducted after a year in the case of the Baptist Union and after three years in the case of the other denominations.

Copies of the report are today being sent to all the exempt denominations and other interested bodies with an invitation to comment on its conclusions. The Government look to each of the denominations to give serious consideration to those recommendations which relate to it. My Department and that of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales propose to have discussions with each denomination on the action needed in the light of Mr. Newman's report. The Government propose to accept Mr. Newman's recommendation concerning the need for further reviews.

Written comments submitted to Mr. Newman in the course of his review are open to inspection in the Libraries of my Department and of the Welsh Office.

"The BBC and the Future of Broadcasting"

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he will publish his response to the Culture, Media and Sport Committee's report "The BBC and the Future of Broadcasting". [17574]

Mr. Chris Smith: The Government welcome the Culture, Media and Sport Committee's report "The BBC and the Future of Broadcasting" and are grateful to the Committee for its inquiry into this area. I have today published Command Paper 3799, which constitutes the Government's response to the report. Copies were laid before Parliament earlier today.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

British Dependent Territories

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to encourage all remaining British dependent territories to seek their independence; and if he will make a statement. [16675]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We shall not seek in any way to influence opinion on independence, but will respond positively wherever this is the clearly and constitutionally expressed wish of the citizens of a Dependent Territory, and where it is an option.

Quota Hopping

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the legal authority of the letter from the President of the European Commission, agreed at Amsterdam, on quota hopping. [16945]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The letter records the interpretation of the Commission of how a Member State may, within the rules of the Single Market, establish an economic link between fishing activity and fishing communities. Under Article 155 of the EC Treaty the Commission is the guardian of the Treaty, and the letter carries that authority.

EU Border Controls

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his Department's officials were first notified that the presidency of the European Union had accepted the non-participation of the United Kingdom within the relaxation of border controls set out in the Amsterdam Treaty. [16942]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The decision to include an explicit recognition in the Amsterdam Treaty of the UK's right to maintain internal frontier controls was one which had to be taken by all Member States. No such decision was taken until the Amsterdam Summit. It was not a decision which the EU presidency alone could have taken.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to discuss with the Spanish Foreign Minister the voting arrangements for the United Kingdom opt-in to border controls. [16941]

Mr. Doug Henderson: I have no such plans.

EU Enlargement

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the reforms required to European Union institutions to enable enlargement to take place. [16943]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Under the provisions of the protocol on the Institutions in the Amsterdam Treaty, the EU Member States are committed to seeking a resolution to the issues of Commission size and the reweighting of votes in Council prior to enlargement.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his policy on those reforms to the voting arrangements of the European Union required to enable enlargement to proceed. [16944]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We welcome the commitment contained in the Protocol on the Institutions in the Amsterdam Treaty to tackle the issues of the size of the Commission and the Weighting of the votes in Council.

Media Relations

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to change (a) procedures and (b) staff involved in media relations; and if he will make a statement. [17001]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: None, but I would expect to implement any new procedures which might result from the current review of the Government Information Service.

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the legal status of a declaration to the Treaty of Amsterdam. [16946]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The Conference declarations annexed to the Final Act of the Treaty of Amsterdam are not part of the Treaty. They comprise political commitments or exhortations, interpretative statements and statements of fact of which the Conference takes note. They form part of the context of the Treaty for the purpose of its interpretation, including in the European Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance.

Brazil

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Brazil concerning the threat to indigenous peoples of the rain forest arising from logging and other developments. [16678]

Mr. Foulkes: I have been asked to reply.

We regularly raise the interests of indigenous peoples with the Government of Brazil, at Ministerial and other levels, We also work closely with the Government of Brazil on projects to conserve the environment and improve people's livelihood, with a particular focus on the Amazon rain forest. Our technical co-operation programme tackles issues such as sustainable forest management and conservation of plant and animal wildlife. The expressed needs of local people, including indigenous people, form an integral part of such projects. These aim to involve indigenous people in the decision-making process and thereby help to preserve their traditional way of life while enhancing their social, political and economic circumstances.

SCOTLAND

Accident Reports

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will encourage the police forces in Scotland to include in accident reports information as to whether the pass-plus course has been taken. [16037]

Mr. McLeish: No. This information is not routinely available to the police. It would need to be specifically requested by the officers attending the scene of the accident, and then verified, all at additional cost. I understand that it would not be possible to draw statistically valid conclusions from such information.

Local Government Funding

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proportion of the additional £8.9 million allocated to local authorities in the current financial year and the extra £26.7 million allocated for each of the following four years for capital expenditure on the repair and replacement of school buildings, will be allocated to Argyll and Bute. [16409]

Mr. Wilson: £202,000 in the current financial year and £607,000 in each of the following four years.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proportion of the additional £59 million to be allocated to local authorities for general education current spending in the next financial year will be allocated to Argyll and Bute. [16410]

Mr. Chisholm: These funds will form part of the local government current expenditure settlement, and will be included in the Grant-Aided Expenditure Assessment arrangements. Each council's share of this will be announced in the settlement in the normal way.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proportion of the additional £15 million to be distributed to local authorities for general spend-to-save measures through capital expenditure will be allocated to Argyll and Bute. [16412]

Mr. Wilson: £341,000. The Council was also successful in its application for £440,000 of a further £15 million which has been set aside to support school rationalisation on a spend-to-save basis. These figures will be included in the local government finance settlement.

Montserrat Evacuees

Mr. Ernie Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to ensure that adequate housing is available for evacuees from Montserrat. [17519]

Mr. Chisholm: Local authorities need to be able to respond as flexibly as possible to the needs of Montserratians arriving under the Government's Montserrat Assisted Passage Scheme (MAP Scheme), which provides for voluntary evacuation.

We recognise that authorities will incur additional costs when bringing accommodation into use for Montserratian evacuees. We must do our best to ensure that evacuees coming to Scotland under the MAP Scheme are given as smooth and welcoming a reception as possible.

We are proposing to offer a special grant to encourage local authorities to make vacant property available more quickly to house evacuees who have chosen to come to Scotland under the MAP Scheme and who have nowhere to stay. The grant will also be payable to housing associations which offer accommodation. The special grant to local authorities would be provided for under section 108A of the Local Government Act 1992. Payments to housing associations would be made direct by Scottish Homes.

The Scottish Office Development Department has written today to local authorities, Scottish Homes, and the Scottish Federation of Housing Associations setting out details of the scheme and arrangements for making claims. Copies of the letter have been placed in the Library. Subject to approval of the House, grants will be made available for each unit of accommodation provided for qualifying households placed with local authorities or housing associations under the MAP Scheme between 27 August 1997 and 31 January 1998, at a rate of £500 or £1,500 depending on the costs involved. The grant scheme has been drawn up after consultation with the Convention of Scottish Local Authorities.

Amsterdam Treaty

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Department contributed to the drafting. [17013]

Mr. Chisholm: The United Kingdom position on the Draft Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation between relevant Government Departments.

Gaelic

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to ensure that Gaelic is carried on digital terrestrial television; and if he will make a statement. [16579]

Mr. Fisher: I have been asked to reply.

Scottish Television and Grampian Television are required to broadcast on Digital Terrestrial Television (DTT) their existing terrestrial analogue services, which must include at least one hour a week on average of programmes in Gaelic. S4C Digital Networks (SDN) have been awarded the licence to operate the DTT multiplex which will carry Channel 5 and S4C. SDN are also required to broadcast on that multiplex in Scotland a minimum of half an hour each day of programmes in Gaelic during peak time—between 6 pm and 10.30 pm, and the BBC, Scottish Television and Grampian are each required to make at least 30 hours of Gaelic programming a year available to SDN, free of charge, for re-broadcasting as part of their programme service. These provisions, taken together with the increase in capacity which digital terrestrial television will bring, should provide the opportunity for an increase in the amount of Gaelic programming available on television services.

WALES

Clydach Hospital

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has for the head injury rehabilitation section at Clydach Hospital; and if he will make a statement. [16074]

Mr. Win Griffiths: This is a matter for the Health Authority and Morriston Hospital NHS Trust. However, I understand that Clydach Hospital is temporarily closed due to the sick absence of the Consultant in Rehabilitation who is responsible for Neuro-rehabilitation. Patients are currently receiving treatment at Morriston Hospital, where a new ward facility has been opened as a contingency measure.

NHS Bureaucracy and Waste

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) what measures he has taken since 2 May to reduce unnecessary bureaucracy; and if he will make a statement; [16106]

(2) what is his estimate of the amount of money saved by his actions against waste in the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [16100]

Mr. Ron Davies: I have set in train a number of measures that will reduce unnecessary bureaucracy and lead to better services for patients, business and the general public. These include:

NHS: Management cost savings of £6 million this year; a White Paper to come on abolishing the internal market; a review of Trust configuration.

Quangos: The creation of a single Economic Powerhouse for Wales and the absorption of Tai Cymru and 2 Special Health Authorities into the Assembly.

Education: Abolition of the nursery voucher scheme.

Local Government: Consultation on proposals to give local authorities more flexibility when conducting tendering exercises.

TECs: Planned reduction in the number of Training and Enterprise Councils from 6 to 4.

Smoking

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his policy regarding his aim to bring about a reduction in smoking in Wales with particular reference to children of school age. [16102]

Mr. Win Griffiths: My right hon. Friend has set NHS Wales a number of targets to improve health and health services. These include a reduction in the number of people in Wales who smoke, including teenagers. Responsibility for achieving the targets to reduce smoking rests with Health Authorities working closely with the activities of other agencies such as the Health Promotion Authority for Wales.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary for Wales if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16300]

Mr. Ron Davies: Departmental guidance on the dissemination of information is contained within the Welsh Office Handbook. Copies of this guidance have been placed in the Library.

Student Funding

Mr. Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the average funding per student in further education in each of the last five years. [16508]

Mr. Hain: The average funding per Further Education Funding Council for Wales-funded full-time equivalent student in further education over the last four years (the 1992–93 figure is not on a comparable basis), including capital, was as follows:

1993–94: £3,038

1994–95: £3,366

1995–96: £3,220

1996–97: £3,000.

Amsterdam Treaty

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Department contributed to the drafting. [17011]

Mr. Ron Davies: The United Kingdom position on the draft Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation between relevant Government Departments.

Fires

Mr. Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) how many (a) injuries and (b) fatalities were caused through fires in (i) houses in multiple occupation, (ii) the rest of the private rented sector, (iii) council houses and (iv) other social housing in Wales in each of the past 10 years; [16513]

(2) how many (a) injuries and (b) fatalities were caused by carbon monoxide poisoning from house fires in (a) houses of multiple occupation; (b) the rest of the private rented sector, (c) council housing and (d) other social housing in Wales in each of the past 10 years. [16512]

Mr. George Howarth: I have been asked to reply.

The readily available information on fires in dwellings in Wales is given in the tables.

Casualties from carbon monoxide poisoning cannot be identified centrally. The data for 1994 and 1995 do not reliably distinquish houses in multiple occupation from other types of dwelling, such as flats and maisonettes.

Information for 1987 and earlier years is not available. Information for 1996 will be available early in 1998.

Table 1: Fatal casualties from fires in dwellings by type of dwelling and cause of death, Wales, 1988 to 1995

Cause of death	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	[1]1994	[1]1995
Single occupancy/dwelling
Overcome by gas or smoke	20	12	12	21	18	15	7	12
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	2	2	0	5	0	2	3	13
All causes	28	18	17	32	28	23	16	30
Multiple occupancy dwelling
Overcome by gas or smoke	5	6	2	8	4	2	2	2
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	2
All causes	6	8	3	9	6	5	2	5
Other or unspecified dwellings
Overcome by gas or smoke	1	0	0	2	1	0	1	3
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
All causes	2	0	1	2	1	0	1	4
All types of dwelling
Overcome by gas or smoke	26	18	14	31	23	17	10	17
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	2	3	0	5	0	2	3	15
All causes	36	26	21	43	35	28	19	39

[1] Including additional late call and heat and smoke damage incidents (not recorded prior to 1994).

Table 2: Non fatal casualties from fires in dwellings by type of dwelling and nature of injury, Wales, 1988 to 1995

Nature of injury	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	[1]1994	[1]1995
Single occupancy dwelling
Overcome by gas or smoke	102	93	91	125	119	141	123	149
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	12	7	8	3	12	5	9	7
All types of casualty	343	299	322	328	361	328	413	401
Of which:
precautionary check up	64	77	71	93	97	54	141	104
Multiple occupancy dwelling
Overcome by gas or smoke	35	57	64	79	71	71	58	118
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	1	3	0	5	1	3	8	2
All types of casualty	127	142	131	165	152	172	189	203
Of which:
precautionary check up	35	31	32	33	40	59	78	51
Other or unspecified dwellings
Overcome by gas or smoke	2	0	5	2	2	4	2	1
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	0
All types of casualty	5	5	13	8	9	10	6	3
Of which:
precautionary check up	2	0	0	0	3	2	1	0

Table 2: Non fatal casualties from fires in dwellings by type of dwelling and nature of injury, Wales, 1988 to 1995

Nature of injury	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	[1]1994	[1]1995
All types of dwelling
Overcome by gas or smoke	139	150	160	206	192	216	183	268
Burns and overcome by gas or smoke	13	10	8	10	13	8	17	9
All types of casualty	475	446	466	501	522	510	608	607
Of which:
precautionary check up	101	108	103	126	140	115	220	155

[1] Including additional late call and heat and smoke damage incidents (not recorded prior to 1994).

PRIME MINISTER

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list each of the overseas trips made by himself and other members of his ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if he will make a statement. [15276]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The overseas visits I have made since 2 May are listed below. The costs given represent the costs brought to account to date and may not be the final cost to my office of the visit.

Destination	Purpose	Cost to Date £
Noordwijk[1]	Special European Council	—
Paris	NATO/Russia Summit	10,557
Bonn/Malmo	German bilateral/European Socialist Meeting	22,115
Paris	Bilateral with M. Chirac	3,482
Amsterdam	European Council	28,482
Denver	G7/8 Economic Summit	61,687
New York	UN Special Session on the Environment	86,581
Hong Kong	Handover	16,743
Madrid	NATO Summit	23,010
Moscow[1]	Bilateral with President Yeltsin	—
Luxembourg/Strasbourg[1]	Special European Council	—

[1] Bills not in yet.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to the answer of 10 November from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if he will make it the Government's policy to ensure that e-mail addresses for all Ministers are available to all hon. and right hon. Members. [15845]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 13 November 1997]: E-mail can be an effective additional way of communicating between Ministers, officials and the public.

It is up to individual Ministers to decide whether to establish and publish e-mail addresses.

My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster is willing to provide a central list of e-mail addresses along the lines indicated in his reply of 10 November, Official Report, column 441.

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Prime Minister if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of his meeting with Mr. Bernie Ecclestone held on 16 October. [16319]

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister if he will publish the minutes of the meeting he held with Mr. Ecclestone and Mr. Mosley on 16 October; which ministers were present; and where it took place. [16740]

The Prime Minister: Because of the level of public interest in this matter, and as an exception to the normal practice, I have released the notes of the meeting which I held with Mr. Ecclestone and Mr. Mosley on 16 October at 10 Downing Street. A copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister (1) when he informed the Secretary of State for Health of his decision to exempt Formula 1 from the proposed ban on tobacco sponsorship; and by what means he notified him of the decision; [16744]

(2) when the decision was made to exempt Formula 1 from the proposed ban on tobacco sponsorship; and what factors led him to conclude that there was an appearance of conflict of interest between the donation the Labour Party received from Mr. Ecclestone and the decision to exempt Formula 1 from the ban on tobacco sponsorship; [16737]

(3) what criteria he used in making his decision to refer the donation from Mr. Eccelstone to Sir Patrick Neill. [16743]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the oral answer I gave in the House on 12 November, Official Report, columns 898–99.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister what criteria he used when deciding to meet representatives from sporting organisations affected by the proposed ban on tobacco sponsorship. [16742]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the oral answer I gave in the House on 12 November, Official Report, column 900.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list those sports where representatives met Ministers to discuss the impact of a ban on tobacco sponsorship on their sports, indicating the date of appointment, and the names of those he saw and the organisations they represent. [16753]

The Prime Minister: On 24 June, the Minister for Sport met Maurice Lindsay of the Rugby Football League, Richard Little of the England and Wales Cricket Board, Jonathan Ashman of the RAC Motorsports Association and Martyn Blake of the World Professional Billiards and Snooker Association.

In addition, the Minister for Sport was present when the Minister for Public Health met Max Mosley of the Federation Internationale de L'Automobile on 23 September.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister what factors he took into account when deciding to publish the letter that was sent at his request to Sir Patrick Neill on 4 November and his subsequent reply. [16738]

The Prime Minister: The decision to publish the letter was taken by the author, the General Secretary of the Labour Party, with my agreement. The main factor I took into account in giving my agreement was transparency.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Prime Minister how many meetings his Chief of Staff has attended with Mr. Bernard Ecclestone since his appointment; and if he will give their dates. [16851]

The Prime Minister: One. On 16 October he attended my meeting with Mr. Ecclestone together with a Private Secretary.

Cabinet Business

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister what criteria he uses to determine which Government policies are referred to full Cabinet for discussion and decision. [16681]

The Prime Minister: Paragraph 3 of the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the Library, states:

"Cabinet and Ministerial Committee business consists, in the main, of:

(a) questions which significantly engage the collective responsibility of the Government, because they raise major issues of policy or because they are of critical importance to the public;

(b) questions on which there is an unresolved argument between Departments."

Only where matters cannot be satisfactorily resolved elsewhere need they be referred to the full Cabinet.

Political Donations

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make it one of his recommendations to the Neill Committee that political parties which have received substantial donations from animal rights organisations return such donations, together with an appropriate amount in interest. [16636]

The Prime Minister: No.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister what criteria he uses to determine whether potential conflicts of interest exist between Government policy decisions and political donations from companies subsequently affected. [16739]

The Prime Minister: General advice on the avoidance of potential conflicts of interest between a Minister's private interests and his or her official duties is set out in the Ministerial Code, a copy of which was placed in the Library in July. I have also asked the Committee on Standards in Public Life to review and make recommendations on the complex issues relating to Party funding.

Anglo-French Summit

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Prime Minister what factors were taken into account in the decision to use Canary Wharf rather than buildings in public ownership to host the recent Anglo-French summit. [16752]

The Prime Minister: The Canary Wharf Tower was chosen to reflect the modern and forward-looking partnership between Britain and France. The setting provided opportunities for the Government to work with the private sector in promoting an area of London of growing importance, and contemporary British design.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Prime Minister what account was taken of the public contract for tendering provisions of the European Union in awarding the contracts for furnishing and decorating the Canary Wharf venue for the Anglo-French summit. [16581]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 19 November 1997]: We were not required to take account of European Union tendering provisions since Government expenditure was below the threshold.

Chequers

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Prime Minister how many days he has spent in residence at Chequers since 1 May. [16116]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 18 November 1997]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer of 30 October, Official Report, column 858.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the (a) names, (b) dates of appointment and (c) appointing body of the independent trustees of Chequers. [16115]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 18 November 1997]: In accordance with the Chequers Estate Act 1958 the trustees are:

The Lord Privy Seal, the right hon. the Lord Richard QC (Chairman, ex-officio);

The right hon. the Lord Camoys DL, appointee of the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (appointed 1 November 1991);

Sir Henry Aubrey-Fletcher, appointee of the Prime Minister (appointed 13 June 1997);

Ms J. C. Lomas, public Trustee ex-officio;

Mr. Charles Nunneley, Chairman of the National Trust ex-officio.

Xenotransplantation

Mr. Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the departmental responsibilities in respect of xenotransplantation. [16457]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 19 November 1997]: The United Kingdom Health Departments are responsible for regulating the development of xenotransplantation as a medical procedure. The United Kingdom Xenotransplantation Interim Regulatory Authority (UKXIRA) was established in January 1997 to advise my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State responsible for the UK Health Departments, on the safety and efficacy and any other pre-conditions for xenotransplantation for human use and the acceptability of any specific applications to proceed with xenotransplantation in humans. The UKXIRA also provides a focal point on xenotransplantation issues across Government. All the Departments concerned have regular contact on specific issues and meet occasionally in an Inter-departmental Group on Xenotransplantation.

Other Departments with specific interests in aspects of the development of xenotransplantation include:-

the Home Office, with regard to its responsibilities for the use of animals under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986;

the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions and the Health and Safety Executive in relation to legislation controlling Genetically Modified Organisms in respect of Human Health and safety and environmental protection;

the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food in relation to any potential use of animals, bred in the development of xenotransplantation, within the food chain, the welfare of farm animals and the importation of animals or animal tissue;

the Department of Trade and Industry in relation to the sponsorship of the industrial exploitation of biotechnology and, through the Science Budget, underpinning basic and strategic research in the fields of biomedical sciences.

Prime Minister's Diary

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Prime Minister if his Chief of Staff has overall responsibility for keeping the Prime Minister's diary. [16852]

The Prime Minister: The Diary Secretary has responsibility for keeping the Prime Minister's diary.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

Mr, John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the estimated number of ME sufferers in Northern Ireland; if he will assess the advantage of providing a clinic to diagnose and manage ME: if she will examine best practice elsewhere in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [15914]

Mr. Worthington: Information is not collected centrally on the numbers of patients presenting with ME. Data are collected on finished consultant episodes in Northern Ireland hospitals. In 1996–97, the latest year for which information is provisionally available, there were 29 finished consultant episodes with a diagnosis of "postviral fatigue syndrome". In 11 of these cases, "postviral fatigue syndrome" was the primary diagnosis.

The report of the Royal Colleges of Physicians, Psychiatrists and General Practitioners produced in 1996 concluded that most patients with ME should be managed in primary care and that the needs of those patients who do require specialist care could be addressed through a reconfiguration of general hospital services. I have asked Health and Social Services Boards for their views as to how services for people with ME and other similar conditions could be improved.

Union Flag

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland at whose request the Union flag was flown at the headquarters of the Southern Area Health Board at Tower Hill, Armagh City on 9 November; and if she will make a statement. [15913]

Mr. Worthington: A letter was sent to all Health and Social Services Boards on 1 May 1997 advising them of the days in 1997 on which the Union flag should be flown on Central Government Buildings. There is, however no requirement for the Boards to fly the Union flag on these dates. It is at the discretion of each organisation whether the flag should be flown on those buildings occupied by their staff.

The Union flag was not flown at the Southern Health and Social Services Board, Tower Hill, Armagh on 9 November 1997.

Street Lighting (Millisle)

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to erect street lights along the Novella Road and the Moss Road in Millisle, Co. Down. [16038]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Roads Service under its chief executive, Mr. W. McCoubrey. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from G. P. Fraser to Mr. John D. Taylor, dated 18 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked the Chief Executive to respond to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question about what plans there are to erect street lighting along Novella Road and Moss Road, Millisle, County Down. In Mr. McCoubrey's absence I am replying.

First, I assume that your reference to Novella Road should be Movilla Road, Newtonards. The latter is linked to Moss Road, Millisle, by the Ballyblack Road East. Street lighting is already provided on those parts of Movilla Road and Moss Road which are within the urban boundaries of Newtonwards and Millisle. The remaining unlighted sections of both roads are mainly rural in character.

Roads Service's criteria for the provision of street lighting on rural roads are based on housing density, general traffic conditions and road safety. The sections of road in question do not meet this criteria given that they have only sporadic roadside development and a good accident record. In the circumstances we have no plans to extend the street lighting along these roads.

I am sorry I cannot be more helpful on this occasion.

Prisoner Transfers

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what communications there were between the Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office and (a) the Minister of State, Scottish Office, (b) his officials and (c) the Scottish Prison Service about the application for transfer of Jason Campbell from HM Prison Shotts to the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland; and what were the dates of such communications. [16218]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 17 November 1997]: On 25 September I received confirmation from my officials that Jason Campbell had applied for transfer to Northern Ireland.

There were no communications between myself and the Minister of State at the Scottish Office nor between myself and the Scottish Prison Service.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Forestry Commission Land

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, what discussions the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food had with the Forestry Commission about its decision to start selling Forestry Commission land in England and Wales again; what steps are being taken to ensure public access to such land; and how much land he expects to be sold in the current financial year. [14693]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 November 1997]: There are no Commission forests being offered for sale in England. A moratorium on the sale of Forestry Commission forests was imposed immediately after the election. It is still in place. The Commission is, however, completing those sales which were agreed before the election. Wherever possible, the Commission offers to enter into access agreements with local authorities for every area of forest land that it sells. These agreements ensure that public access is protected in perpetuity.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food pursuant to the Answer of 10 November from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15873]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The information requested is being placed in the Library.

Beef Imports

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what amount of beef is currently imported into the United Kingdom; from which countries; and what proposals he has to review those countries permitted to export beef to the United Kingdom. [15948]

Mr. Rooker: The information requested for the period September 1996 to August 1997 is set out in the table. All fresh meat imported into the UK, whether from other Member States or third countries, must have been produced in accordance with harmonised Community rules laid down in Council Directive 64/433/EEC and must comply with Community legislation governing imports into the European Union. In addition, national legislation prohibits the sale for human consumption of all bovine meat derived from bovines which, at the time of slaughter were more than 30 months old, other than those born, reared and slaughtered in the following third countries:

Argentina
Australia
Botswana
Brazil
Mauritius
Namibia
New Zealand
Paraguay
Poland
South Africa
Swaziland
Uruguay
USA
Zimbabwe.

National and Community legislation governing beef imports is kept under constant review.

UK imports of beef September 1996 to August 1997

Country	Tonnes
Imports of bovine carcase meat
Irish Republic	51,979
Netherlands	15,567
Uruguay	11,598
Argentina	9,130
Australia	8,034
Germany	7,457
Botswana	5,698
Zimbabwe	5,060
Namibia	4,792
New Zealand	4,517
France	4,471
Brazil	3,577
Belgium-Luxembourg	1,630
U.S.A.	1,520
Spain	1,080
Denmark	688
Other	1,069
Total	137,866
Imports of bovine offal
Irish Republic	4,460
Netherlands	1,822
France	1,563
Germany	894
New Zealand	522
Australia	481
Other	1,224
Total	10,966
Imports of meat and offal of bovine animals, prepared and preserved
Brazil	34,044
Argentina	14,697
Irish Republic	14,225
Uruguay	4,715
Mauritius	3,262

UK imports of beef September 1996 to August 1997

Country	Tonnes
Zimbabwe	2,316
Botswana	554
Netherlands	452
Other	1,362
Total	75,628
Total beef imported	224,459

Source:
Business and Trade Statistics Ltd.
Data prepared by Stats (C and F) C, ESG.
All data are provisional and subject to amendment.
The above data include an estimate of below threshold trade, but excludes an estimate for non-response.

Dairy Farmers

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food in which EU member states dairy farmers in the less-favoured areas receive help under the terms of EC Directive 75/268/EEC. [16345]

Dr. John Cunningham: A working document produced by the European Commission last year indicated that in 1995 compensatory allowances were payable in all other Member States to farmers in less-favoured areas on limited numbers of dairy cows. No more recent information is available.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what research his Department has (a) evaluated and (b) commissioned on the relationship between stocking density and the incidence of tuberculosis in cattle; and if he will make a statement. [16338]

Mr. Rooker: No research has been commissioned specifically to study the relationship between stocking density and the incidence of tuberculosis in cattle. However, several studies have examined the behaviour of cattle in herds. For example, as cattle numbers increase, cattle do not avoid grass contaminated by badger faeces as much as usual. Professor Krebs's Committee has examined current research on bovine tuberculosis and is expected to report shortly.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what research his Department has (a) evaluated and (b) commissioned on the levels and types of soil bacteria found in (i) organic agriculture and (ii) conventional agriculture; and what assessment he has made of the implications of that research for the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle. [16341]

Mr. Rooker: No MAFF-funded research has been commissioned to study levels and types of soil bacteria found in either organic or conventional agriculture in the context of tuberculosis in cattle. However, some research has been carried out on the survival times of bovine TB in soil under experimental conditions. Further work has been carried out in the south west of England on the effect of farming practices on environmental mycobacteria. It has been suggested that these mycobacteria can prime the immune response in animals and humans, and may alter their response to subsequent infection and pathogens. Professor Krebs's Committee has examined current research on bovine tuberculosis and is expected to report shortly.

BSE

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what data he has collated concerning the existence of BSE in the United States cattle herd; and if he will make a statement. [16683]

Mr. Rooker: No cases of BSE in cattle have been reported by the USA authorities to the Office International des Epizooties (OIE). The USA has carried out detailed risk assessments which have been made available to us. It has traced, investigated and destroyed cattle imported from the UK and initiated surveillance for BSE in cattle presented for slaughter, concentrating particularly on adult animals with neurological symptoms.

The demography of the USA cattle and sheep populations, the regional nature of its distribution of rendered protein and its low incidence of scrapie suggest that the risk from BSE in the USA is low. Nevertheless, the presence of three transmissible spongiform encephalopathies, namely scrapie in sheep, CWD (Chronic Wasting Disease) in elk and mule-deer and more rarely TME (Transmissible Mink Encephalopathy), indicate that the risk cannot be zero.

Fishing Vessels

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the current operation of the EC-sponsored scheme to reduce the number of United Kingdom fishing vessels. [16505]

Mr. Morley: The Fishing Vessels (Decommissioning) Scheme 1997 has now been approved by Parliament. We are currently assessing the 203 bids made under this Scheme and I expect to announce the results very shortly.

Agriculture Council

Dr. George Turner: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the outcome of the Agriculture Council held in Brussels on 17 to 18 November; and if he will make a statement. [17437]

Dr. John Cunningham: I represented the United Kingdom at a meeting of the European Union Agriculture Council on 17 and 18 November.

The principal task of the Council was to reach conclusions on the proposals to reform the Common Agricultural Policy in the context of the Commission's Agenda 2000 initiative. Discussions on these proposals have gone on in the Council since September. After long negotiations, it was possible to reach agreement on conclusions that met the key requirements which I had identified for the UK. These are, first, that there should be a rapid start to negotiating the necessary legislative changes to agricultural market regimes in order to give effect to CAP reform; second, that there should be recognition of the need for EU agriculture to be sustainable and competitive on domestic and international markets; third, that CAP reform should facilitate EU enlargement and allow the EU to take a positive negotiating stance in the next WTO round; and fourth, that there should be confirmation that the agricultural guideline imposes an absolute ceiling on spending in this sector. The Council confirmed the approach to reform along the lines I have advocated, namely reduced price-support, compensated through direct aid and complemented by reinforced agri-environmental and rural development measures.

The conclusions finally adopted fully achieved these objectives. They were endorsed by 14 of the 15 member states, Spain being unable to associate itself with the language reconfirming the unchanged nature of the agricultural guideline. The Council's conclusions will be passed to the General Affairs Council and ultimately to Heads of Government for consideration at their meeting in Luxembourg in December.

In my view, this Council marked an important step in the process of reforming the Common Agricultural Policy, which is a key Government objective in the EU. I look forward to beginning the process of detailed negotiation as soon as the Commission's formal proposals are available.

Aside from Agenda 2000, the Council had a detailed report from the Agriculture Commissioner on BSE, in the light of the European Parliament's recent report; and on the need to amend the July decision on specified risk materials in order to provide derogations for the imports of necessary pharmaceutical products. A proposal to this effect is to be made very shortly. I joined my Dutch and German colleagues in putting pressure on the Commission to bring forward proposals as rapidly as possible on battery cages for laying hens.

Cattle Passport Scheme

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) what estimate he received from the National Cattle Database Working Party on the annual running costs of the cattle passport scheme; [17005]

(2) what recommendations he received from the National Cattle Database Working Party on the charge for a cattle passport; and if he will make a statement. [17008]

Dr. John Cunningham: The National Cattle Database Working Party, which is a livestock industry body, submitted a report to MAFF in August 1996 on establishing a cattle tracing database. However, this report did not contain any estimates of costs of the database or the cattle passports scheme, or of the charge for a cattle passport.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what estimates he has made of the annual cost of the cattle passport scheme. [17003]

Dr. John Cunningham: The latest estimate for Great Britain for 1997–98 is in the region of £7.2 million. This is an estimate of the cost of the current cattle passport scheme, and not of the new computerised cattle tracing system including cattle passports, which will be introduced in 1998.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what calculations were involved in determining the charge level for cattle passports; and if the charge includes a contribution to the scheme's annual running costs. [17007]

Dr. John Cunningham: There will be a charge for cattle passports once a computerised cattle tracing system has been introduced in Great Britain. The charge level has not yet been determined, but is expected to be in the range £5 to £10 per animal.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the cost to public funds of producing each cattle identification document; and how many were issued in the last year for which figures are available. [17004]

Dr. John Cunningham: Cattle Identification Documents (CIDs) are issued only in respect of male cattle; cattle passports have been a requirement for all cattle born after 1 July 1996. As they form an integral part of the Beef Special Premium Scheme, it is not an easy matter to identify separately the costs relating to CIDs. However, taking account of relevant development, capital, maintenance and staff expenditure, our best estimate is that each one issued to date by the Department has cost in the region of £1.88. A total of 1,034,552 were issued in England in 1996.

Arable Area Payments Scheme

Mr. Tipping: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many agricultural holdings and what area of agricultural land in hectares came within the arable area payments scheme in each county in England in 1996. [16717]

Mr. Morley: The table gives the county breakdown of claims under the arable area payments scheme in 1996. A single claim may cover more than one holding where the holdings form part of one business.

	1996
	Number of claims	Area paid hectares
Avon	400	16,924
Bedfordshire	586	65,541
Berkshire	265	38,622
Buckinghamshire	643	57,781
Cambridgeshire	2,125	201,178
Cheshire	929	27,190
Cleveland	213	15,821
Cornwall	1,728	42,256
Cumbria	931	16,904
Derbyshire	786	33,717
Devonshire	2,662	69,725
Dorset	704	61,439
Durham	657	43,695
Essex	1,500	189,560
Gloucestershire	979	86,881
Greater London	65	4,498
Greater Manchester	141	5,375
Hampshire	785	115,480
Hereford and Worcester	1,984	99,882
Hertfordshire	479	71,112
Humberside	2,065	203,542
Isle of Wight	131	9,679
Kent	1,051	116,613
Lancashire	458	18,565
Leicestershire	1,091	99,453
Lincolnshire	3,352	347,816
Merseyside	173	9,570
Norfolk	2,866	232,675
Northamptonshire	896	115,632
Northumberland	816	91,279
Nottinghamshire	1,000	93,470
Oxfordshire	922	124,250
Shropshire	1,579	86,578
Somerset	1,230	50,876
Staffordshire	827	49,507
Suffolk	2,082	194,348
Surrey	205	14,968
East Sussex	447	31,691
West Sussex	493	48,396

	1996
	Number of claims	Area paid hectares
Tyne and Wear	110	9,192
Warwickshire	879	82,000
West Midlands	94	5,812
Wiltshire	1,012	122,665
North Yorkshire	3,132	214,249
South Yorkshire	526	43,344
West Yorkshire	384	23,990

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the impact on United Kingdom fishermen of the proposals contained in the Amsterdam Summit. [16948]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made to the House by my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food on 18 June 1997, Official Report, columns 331–44.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what will be the impact of the implementation of the Amsterdam Treaty on the live export of cattle from the United Kingdom to the European continent. [16949]

Mr. Morley: In general the European Union does not recognise animal movements from one Member State to another as in any way distinct from the generality of animal movements on EU territory, although, because of BSE, there is currently a ban on exports of live cattle to the continent. The Treaty protocol agreed at Amsterdam will not change this. However, it will mean that the EU will have to pay full regard to animal welfare in further developing the controls which it applies to the transportation of animals.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list (a) her Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if she will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared to those for 1990; and what estimate she has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15538]

Mr. Foulkes: I refer the hon. Member to the United Kingdom's Second Report under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward to 2020 what the current programme is expected to achieve.

As regards developing country issues, our policy is to limit the growth of greenhouse gas emissions from developing countries through the conventions energy efficiency programme which encourages these countries to play an effective role in controlling emissions while continuing their economic development. Through this we have committed over £311 million since 1992 on projects which improve the efficient use of energy resources, encourage the use of renewable sources of energy and conduct research into climate-friendly technologies. We have also committed over £130 million to the Global Environment Facility which is the financial mechanism of the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change. We are prepared to make a substantial further contribution to the GEF at its current replenishment negotiations. Some 40 per cent. of these resources are allocated to climate change projects in developing countries and economies in transition. Data that quantify the effect of the above in terms of tonnes of greenhouse gases are unavailable.

Commonwealth Development Corporation

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proposals she has to change the 1997–98 External Financing Limit for the Commonwealth Development Corporation. [17521]

Clare Short: The External Financing Limit for CDC for 1997–98 will be increased by £2,300,000 from minus £40,000,000 to minus £37,700,000. The change allows for the take-up of an entitlement under end year flexibility arrangements. The increase will be charged to the Reserve and will not therefore add to the planned total of public expenditure.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Competitiveness

16. Barbara Follett: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has for enhancing the competitiveness of British business. [15406]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: My right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade is pushing forward her Competitiveness UK initiative. On 11 November, she published "A Benchmark for Business", an examination of our competitiveness at both national and sectoral level.

The President also announced the creation of six industry-based Working Parties to advise her on how business and Government can improve UK performance. The work of these groups and of the President's Advisory Group on Competitiveness will lead to a Competitiveness White Paper next year.

35. Mr. Brady: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when she last met representatives of small and medium British businesses to discuss competitiveness. [15427]

Mrs. Roche: DTI policies for all companies are being developed in close dialogue and consultation with business. Within this, there is a particular focus on the competitiveness of small and medium enterprises. SMEs are therefore represented on the president's Advisory Group on Competitiveness and will be an important component in the Competitiveness Working Parties now being established. More specifically, Ministers and officials in this department regularly meet a variety of small firms' representatives to discuss a wide range of issues of concern to this important sector.

Low Pay Commission

17. Mr. Pond: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations she has received on the work of the Low Pay Commission; and if she will make a statement. [15407]

Mr. Ian McCartney: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave earlier to the right hon. Member for South-West Surrey (Mrs. Bottomley).

Agricultural Development Councils

19. Mr. Gray: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what role she is playing in the examination of agricultural development councils. [15409]

Mr. Battle: My Department is reviewing its administration of section 508 of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988, under which the Secretary of State may approve "research Associations" (a term which has been taken in the past to include certain Agricultural Development Councils) for tax exemption purposes.

Scientific Research

20. Dr. Cable: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps the Government are taking to increase research and development investment in independent scientific research organisations. [15410]

Mr. Battle: My Department is prepared to consider projects from any source provided it is driven by an industry demand. We are well aware of the important role that research organisations can and do play in developing and transferring technology to improve the competitiveness of UK industry, particularly SMEs. Our support for the exciting new TWI/BT concept, JOIN-IT, to deliver technical advice to SMEs via the Internet is an example of how we are prepared to support these organisations to develop novel technology which will benefit UK industry.

Inward Investment

21. Mr. Baldry: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the provisions of the concordat between Departments on inward investment. [15411]

Mr. Ian McCartney: Both the Scotland and Wales White Papers on Devolution indicated that there would be a concordat on financial assistance. We are currently preparing a concordat between England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to ensure that financial assistance to industry remains within common UK guidelines and consultation arrangements. It will address the concern that public money should not be used to finance competition between different parts of the country.

25. Mr. Evans: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what action she is taking to win fresh inward investment into the United Kingdom. [15417]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My Department's Invest in Britain Bureau will continue to promote the attractions of the UK for mobile international investment to consolidate our position as the number one location in Europe for inward investment. We have an enviable record and the Government are determined to maintain this in the face of increased competition from our European partners. We will pay particular attention to developing our skills base as well as consolidating the other attractions of the UK as an investment location.

Business Support Services

22. Ms Kingham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what actions she is taking to improve her Department's business support services. [15413]

28. Mr. Pickthall: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what action her Department is taking to improve business support services. [15420]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: Since the election, we have taken a number of initiatives to improve the Department's business support services—including, for example, the Export Forum and the announcement of a new Vision for the development of Business Links. We have also just launched the Enterprise Zone on the Internet, to help SMEs find their way to sound sources of business information.

Business support is a key function of this Department, and so forms a major focus of DTI's Comprehensive Spending Review.

Minors (Illegal Sales)

23. Helen Jones: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has to increase the powers of Trading Standards Officers to prevent illegal sales to minors. [15415]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: The only specific requirements governing sales to minors for which my Department is responsible relate to fireworks and to consumer credit agreements. In addition, Trading Standards Officers have powers under the General Product Safety Regulations 1994 to deal with consumer products which fail to take proper account of the safety needs of their intended users, in particular products intended for use by children.

I am confident that TSOs have the powers necessary to enforce these provisions.

Duty Free Purchases

24. Mrs. Ewing: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what discussions she has held with the Scotch Whisky Association about the impact on the industry of the abolition of EU duty free purchases in 1999. [15416]

Mrs. Roche: The abolition of EU duty free purchases is primarily a matter for the Chancellor. However, DTI officials meet regularly with the Association to discuss a wide range of matters.

Scotland (Departmental Responsibilities)

26. Mr. Canavan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the responsibilities of her Department within Scotland. [15418]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My Department is responsible for promoting competitiveness in the UK as a whole. This is complemented by The Scottish Office which directly and through sponsored bodies has responsibility for promotion and support of a strong Scottish economy within the UK framework.

Research and Development

27. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what initiatives she plans to introduce to promote British research and development. [15419]

Mr. Battle: We attach the greatest importance to the health and vigour of the national research and development effort, in both the public and private sectors, as an essential component of an innovative modern economy. We are reviewing the totality of our policies and expenditure plans as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review but we have already introduced the following measures to strengthen UK research and development—a Ministerial Foresight Group to co-ordinate Foresight activities across Whitehall; Foresight LINK Awards to support collaborative projects in Foresight priority areas; the Foresight Vehicle LINK programme to develop the technologies and components for the car of the future; and the President's Partnership Prize, to be awarded each year to the academic department which has made the most contribution to help sustain a healthy economy.

Aerospace Industry

29. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what recent initiatives she has taken to promote the aerospace industry. [15421]

Mr. Battle: My ministerial colleagues and I, and my officials, maintain a close dialogue with the UK aerospace industry. This involves domestic and overseas activity in both civil aerospace, such as work on the future of the Airbus Consortium, and the military field, where we are involved in the Ministry of Defence's Strategic Defence Review and in considering the industrial implications of major defence procurements. We promote export sales of Airbus aircraft, UK aircraft and engines throughout the world. On 13 November, I announced a long-term investment of Rolls-Royce's new range of Trent engines.

33. Mr. Borrow: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement about the role of her Department in respect of the British presidency of the European Union in 1998 in relation to the aerospace industry. [15425]

Mr. Battle: As with other industries, my Department will continue to work with aerospace companies and colleagues elsewhere in Government to encourage the improvement of European competitiveness. Working towards this end, in partnership with business, offers the best prospect of developing industry and raising employment levels in the EU.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made it clear after his summit meeting with President Chirac and Prime Minister Jospin two weeks ago that he regards restructuring of the aerospace and defence industry as a matter of importance. My ministerial colleagues and I will be taking forward work on this as a high priority over the coming months.

Scottish Powercards

30. Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations she has received about the withdrawal of Scottish Powercards from post offices. [15422]

Mr. Ian McCartney: Ministers in the Department of Trade and Industry have received nine representations, of which six were from Members of Parliament, about the decision of Scottish Power not to renew its contract with Post Office Counters Ltd. for the sale of powercards through post offices.

Amsterdam Treaty (Social Provisions)

31. Mr. Robathan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations she has received about the effects on trade and industry of the social provisions contained in the Amsterdam treaty. [15423]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My colleagues and I have received a number of representations expressing a range of views about the social provisions of the Treaty of Amsterdam. We have made it clear that the Government will use their influence to ensure that the social provisions of the Treaty are used to promote employability, flexibility and competitiveness.

Competition

32. Miss Melanie Johnson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what measures her Department is taking to promote competition. [15424]

Mr. Battle: This Government's commitment to competition is demonstrated by the introduction of the Competition Bill, a long overdue reform of competition law. The new Competition Bill will introduce two prohibitions which will prove a highly effective deterrent against cartels and abuses of dominance.

Economic and Monetary Unity

34. Mr. Bradsahw: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the progress of the committee set up to prepare for British entry into EMU. [15426]

Mrs. Roche: In his statement on 27 October, Official Report, columns 583-88, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced the establishment of a Standing Committee to oversee and co-ordinate preparations for EMU. Preparation is vital given the implications for the UK of the participation of other Member States in the single currency and for the option of joining in the next Parliament. The Committee's tasks over the next few months will include organising a series of conferences to inform businesses of the need to prepare, assessing the steps needed to help firms trade in euro in 1999, and starting longer-term planning for the option of joining.

Information Technology

36. Mr. Desmond Turner: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has to encourage small businesses to increase their use of information technology facilities. [15428]

Mrs. Roche: Many recent studies have emphasised the crucial importance of new technologies to the competitiveness of smaller firms. Within Government, we have a comprehensive package of programmes to encourage greater awareness and use of information technology, electronics and communication (ITEC) products and services among both business and individuals in the UK. We are pressing ahead with our support for the Information Society Initiative Programme for Business, which places particular emphasis on offering access and awareness opportunities for SMEs at locations throughout the UK, and this month we have launched the Internet Enterprise Zone to give SMEs one-stop access to authoritative business information using the latest technology.

Electrical Retailers

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement about the meetings she has had and the representations she has received on the Monopolies and Mergers Commission report on electrical retailers. [15393]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: My right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade and I have received a number of representations regarding the Monopolies and Mergers Commission report on domestic electrical goods.

While Ministers have not met those making representations, DTI officials have met industry bodies and representatives of smaller electrical retailers. Therefore, my right hon. Friend and I have a clear picture of the concerns of suppliers and retailers.

Assisted Areas

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress has been made on policy regarding the future designation of assisted area status. [15408]

Mrs. Roche: The Government are still considering whether a Review of the Assisted Areas Map is necessary. I will not be in a position to announce the outcome of this assessment for several months.

Prostitution

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of schemes proposing a bar on outgoing calls from telephone boxes to numbers displayed on advertisements for prostitute services; and if she will make a statement. [14040]

Mr. Battle: The Government are very concerned about the problem of prostitutes' advertising cards and support BT in its action unilaterally to bar incoming calls to the BT customers who repeatedly advertise in BT Call boxes. Since February 1997, BT has issued a total of 733 warning letters and has barred incoming calls to 104 lines. In addition, 94 customers ceased renting a BT line during the process.

BT has requested a licence amendment which would allow BT to extend its barring rights to calls from BT's kiosks to any advertised number, regardless of whether it belongs to a BT or a non-BT customer. Oftel will consult on this licence amendment very shortly as part of a more general consultation on Public Call Boxes. Such an amendment should strengthen the impact of BT's present scheme.

Small and Specialist Businesses

Mr. Waterson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if the Government have sought to establish regular meetings with organisations representing small and specialist businesses; and if she will make a statement. [16495]

Mrs. Roche: Ministers and officials have frequent meetings with a variety of organisations representing small and specialist businesses to discuss a wide range of issues.

Biotechnological Inventions

Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the extent to which the proposed EU Directive on the Legal Protection or Biotechnological Inventions will enhance competitiveness within the Single European Market. [16527]

Mr. Battle: The purpose of the proposed Directive is to establish a clear legal framework for the protection of biotechnological inventions through national patent law. Although the texts of Members States' patent laws are currently closely aligned with that of the European Patent Convention (an inter-governmental agreement dating from 1978), there have been differences in interpretation between Member states. Although no assessment has been made as to the direct effect this proposed Directive may have on enhancing competitiveness, the clarification arising from it will reduce current uncertainty in this area of law and harmonise EU law.

Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what criteria the Government used in selecting participants for its public consultation on the proposed EU Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. [16528]

Mr. Battle: Information concerning the Commission's proposal was circulated widely, including by use of the Internet. Those organisations which made their views known to me or my Department have been included in the consultation exercise and, for example, were invited to a meeting, on 17 October, of the Standing Advisory Committee on Industrial Property, a body created to advise Ministers on all aspects of industrial property, and whose membership comprises organisations representing the professions, industry, small businesses, and consumer interests. In addition, other Government departments were invited to contribute further names of those with an interest in this proposal.

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps she has taken to ensure that all Government Departments are aware of the implications of the EU Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. [16754]

Mr. Battle: Contact and discussions between Department of Trade and Industry officials and those of other Government departments has been maintained ever since the Commission's proposal for a Directive emerged. I have recently written to Ministerial colleagues to explain the contents and consequences of the Commission's proposal and to seek views.

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment her Department has made of the adequacy of its consultation on the proposed EU Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. [16734]

Mr. Battle: The European Commission's proposal for a Directive on the legal protection of biotechnological inventions is substantially consistent with current United Kingdom legislation (the Patents Act 1977). In particular, the proposal does not afford patent rights to anything which is not patentable under current law. It is therefore within the regime envisaged in the proposal that biotechnology has developed during the last 20 years in the United Kingdom. The European Commission has sought to harmonise patent laws in this area since 1988 when an initial proposal for a Directive emerged. Since enactment of current legislation in the UK and publication of the Commission's initial proposal, interest has grown and to date some 150 organisations are taking part in a consultation exercise. Such organisations include those concerned with the environment, health and patient care, industry, the professions, consumer interests, animal welfare and religious groups.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what criteria determined which participants were invited to a consultation on the proposed EU Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. [16735]

Mr. Battle: Information concerning the Commission's proposal was circulated widely, including by use of the Internet. Those organisations which made their views known to me or my Department have been included in the consultation exercise and, for example, were invited to a meeting, on 17 October of the Standing Advisory Committee on Industrial Property, a body created to advise Ministers on all aspects of industrial property, and whose membership comprises organisations representing the professions, industry, small businesses, and consumer interests. In addition, other Government Departments were invited to contribute further names of those with an interest in this proposal.

European Space Agency

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will list the progress on discussions with the United Kingdom space industries and users in preparation for the ESA Ministerial Meeting in July 1998. [16214]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The European Space Agency has just initiated preparations for its next Ministerial meeting, at present planned for 23–24 June 1998. BNSC is already discussing the issues with partner departments, industry and other users. We plan to develop the UK position on a basis of wide consultation.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will publish an update of the United Kingdom space plan before the ESA Ministerial Council in July 1998. [16215]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The British National Space Centre is preparing the draft of a new UK Space Plan. I expect to bring this forward for discussion in the New Year. We shall reflect the results of discussion in both the finalised Plan and in our preparations for the ESA Ministerial Council.

Surveillance and Listening Equipment

Mr. Baker: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will estimate the annual turnover of British companies derived from the manufacture and supply of covert surveillance and listening equipment. [15680]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The information is not available. It is not possible to extract information from official statistics on UK manufacturers' sales of covert surveillance and listening equipment, as the PRODCOM system of collecting sales data does not include separate headings for these products. A number of Trade Associations represent firms which manufacture, install and service security products. However, although the Department has commissioned the collection of data on manufacturers of security products, which included closed circuit television equipment, a similar study has never been undertaken in respect of manufacturers of covert surveillance and listening equipment. To approach all the firms involved would incur considerable cost.

Ferry Services (Merger)

Mr. Baker: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when she expects to make an announcement on the proposed merger of Stena and P&O. [16451]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 17 November 1997]: I published the report yesterday, and copies have been laid before Parliament. As is usual in such cases, I have also issued a press notice announcing my decision, copies of which are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Manufacturing Industry

Mr. MacShane: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps she is taking to strengthen manufacturing industry in the English regions. [15395]

Mr. Battle: Last week the Government published a benchmark of British business performance against overseas competitors. This showed that we have some excellent manufacturing firms, among the very best in the world. But our overall performance on several counts, especially innovation, skills and productivity, remains behind that of other developed countries. We shall now be looking at these areas and identifying ways of raising the performance of manufacturing industry. The Government have, however, done much already to strengthen manufacturing industry in the English regions and address these weaknesses. For example:

We have refocused and relaunched Business Links, to ensure that new and expanding firms receive the support they need.

We have just launched the Enterprise Zone, an internet information service for SMEs.

We have given fresh impetus and direction to the Foresight programme, helping companies to innovate and work in partnership with the science base.

We support a wide range of sectoral programmes to strengthen manufacturing industries.

We are also supporting best practice programmes, delivered through Business Links.

We have strengthened the Teaching Company Scheme, which encourages technology transfer.

We are encouraging new manufacturing industry by promoting the UK as a site for inward investors.

Political Donations

Mr. Gummer: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will introduce legislation to ensure that political parties which find it necessary to return donations pay an appropriate rate of interest for the period the donation has been outstanding. [16577]

Mr. George Howarth: I have been asked to reply.

The whole question of party funding will be considered by Sir Patrick Neill's Committee on Standards in Public Life in its review of the funding of political parties.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Child Support Agency

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will review the operation of the Child Support Agency with particular reference to (a) the recording of telephone conversations by agency staff, (b) the requirement for face-to-face interviews and (c) the ways in which the income the parent without care is determined; and if she will make a statement. [14755]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We expect the Child Support Agency to provide an efficient and effective service to all its clients throughout the child support assessment process. We are looking for substantial and sustained operational improvements from the Agency, in particular on getting more maintenance paid, reducing the backlog and improving customer service.

The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Faith Boardman to Mr. Howard Flight, dated 19 November 1997:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about telephone conversations, interviews and the income of parents without care (normally known as absent parents) dealt with by the Child Support Agency.

It may be helpful to outline the current situation with regard to telephone conversations and face to face interviews. When contact is made via the telephone, Agency staff are instructed to make a note of the relevant parts of the discussion. This can be done in one of two ways, either by recording details on the Child Support Computer System or by making a clerical note. Feedback from customers has made it clear that the majority of our customers prefer to be contacted by telephone. The Agency is currently piloting a scheme called Positive Customer Contact which maximises the use of the telephone to obtain information and to establish closer links with customers. Staff are instructed to maintain a brief but accurate record of the important elements of the conversation, namely the information which enables a case to be progressed. Details of telephone conversations are not recorded by the Agency in any other way.

The second point you raised concerns face-to-face interviews. Although most contact between the Agency and its customers is by means of written correspondence or via the telephone there is sometimes a need to carry out face-to-face interviews. A customer can also repeat an interview, and where this is the best way to progress a case an interview will be arranged. Such interviews normally take place in DSS local offices.

The third point you raised concerned the calculation of income of the parent who does not have primary care. The income of the absent parent consists of the total income from all sources available to that parent as defined in the Child Support Maintenance Assessments and Special Cases Regulations 1992. This includes earnings from employment or self-employment (less tax, national insurance contributions and 50% of contributions made to an occupation of personal pension scheme); some social security benefits; income from capital; income from boarders or tenants; income from occupational or personal pension schemes; training allowances and student grants (providing the student has some other form of income in addition to the grant). Certain types of income are subject to a partial disregard, for example £10 per week of a War Disablement or War Widows Pension is disregarded.

For an employed parent the average income derived from earnings can be calculated or estimated. The Agency will look at earnings received in a period beginning up to eight weeks before the Agency receives a maintenance application form or issues a maintenance enquiry form and ending with the date the assessment is made. If evidence is incomplete or considered to be unrepresentative of the normal earnings, the Agency will estimate the amount of earnings. Any payments of bonus, commission, or profit related pay are averaged over the year. Payments for expenses are ignored, provided they are necessarily incurred in carrying out the employment.

The calculation of earnings for the self-employed is intended to reflect the flow of cash through the business and the money available to the parent for the payment of child maintenance. The calculation reflects the difference between earnings from the gross receipts and expenses incurred in the running of the business. The assessment period is either a year, the period of self employment if less than a year, or a period that provides a more reliable calculation. However, the parent may provide the latest profit and loss account for a period between 6 and 15 months. Provided that period ends within 24 months of the date the maintenance enquiry form is sent, then earnings will be averaged over the period of the accounts.

A partner's income is calculated in the same way as a parent's. An absent parent's partner has no liability to maintain children from the absent parent's previous relationship, but her income is included in the calculation of disposable income (this is the total income of the household) which is required for consideration of the protected income provisions (this is an amount to ensure that the absent parent's household is left with sufficient disposable income, after paying maintenance, to meet their day to day needs and that of any new family.

We are currently examining all aspects of the work of the Child Support Agency with a view to ensuring that the Agency provides a consistent, fair and efficient service to all its customers.

I hope this is helpful.

Montserratian Evacuees

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what steps she has taken to ensure that all staff at Arcola Street and Sylvester Road Department of Social Security are aware of (a) the current situation in Montserrat and (b) her Department's regulations in relation to evacuees from Montserrat, and that evacuees from Montserrat are not experiencing undue delay in the processing of their claims; and if she will make a statement. [15759]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The operational responsibility of dealing with benefit claims from evacuees is a matter for Peter Mathison, the Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Ms Diane Abbott, dated 19 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning staff awareness, at Arcola Street and Sylvester Road, of the regulations in relation to evacuees from Montserrat.

All Benefits Agency (BA) staff, including those at the BA Hackney & Islington District (which includes the offices at Arcola Street and Sylvester Road) have been and continue to be fully informed of the situation in Montserrat. A series of the procedural benefit bulletins have been issued since May 1996 and copies placed in the Library. The bulletins clarify the situation in Montserrat and explain the procedures and legislation to be followed should claims to benefit be received from Montserratians. The Hackney & Islington District staff training sessions are held on a fortnightly basis and all procedural bulletins are discussed and copied to relevant staff.

The District have confirmed that whilst there are no specific statistics relating to clearance times for claims from Montserratians, there is nothing to suggest that there is any undue delay in dealing with these claims. If any of your constituents have experienced problems or delays with their claims, they should contact their local benefits manager who will address their concerns.

I hope you find this reply is helpful.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the visit by the Under-Secretary of State to Bonn on 8 October. [17018]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The purpose of the visit to Bonn was to exchange views on a range of Social Security matters, including those likely to be considered by the Council of Ministers during the United Kingdom (UK) Presidency. The visit demonstrated the UK's commitment to work constructively with European Union partners.

The visit included meetings with the Parliamentary State Secretary at the Federal Labour and Social Affairs Ministry, the Official State Secretary at the Federal Health Ministry, and members of the Bundestag Committee for Labour and Social Affairs.

Disability Benefits

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to review the provision of interest-free loans for the disabled. [16655]

Mr. Denham: Interest-free loans are available within the Social Security programme through the Social Fund. Budgeting loans help people, including disabled people, on Income Support or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, to meet intermittent expenses for which it may be difficult to budget. Crisis Loans help people, including disabled people, meet expenses in an emergency or as the consequence of a disaster where such help is the only means of avoiding serious damage or serious risk to the health or safety of the applicant or a member of his family. The percentage of budgeting loan expenditure going to disabled people has doubled since 1988–89.

The Government are determined to modernise the Social Security system. The Social Security Bill currently before Parliament will help to achieve that,. It includes measures to modernise the application and decision processes for Social Fund budgeting loans by making the budgeting loan system simpler and easier for customers to understand and more cost-effective for staff to administer. Those changes will benefit all customers, including the disabled.

Correspondence

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of draft replies to hon. Members, prepared by her Department's Correspondence Unit, are initially rejected by her as being inadequate to be sent out to hon. Members. [17019]

Mr. Denham: The information is not available in the format requested. Over 8,000 letters have been received from hon. Members since May. A proportion of the draft replies prepared by officials are amended by Ministers to ensure that they provide the best possible response to points raised by hon. Members.

Minister for Women

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what submissions the Minister for Women has had made to her concerning women since her appointment; [16888]

(2) on how many days the Minister for Women has been present in the Department since her appointment; [16890]

(3) how many officials with responsibility for (a) women's issues and (b) sex equality have transferred from the Department for Education and Employment to her Department since 1 May; [16892]

(4) what engagements were fulfilled by the Minister for Women on 17 November; [16885]

(5) what are the departmental responsibilities of the Minister for Women; [16886]

(6) what are the estimated annual costs of (a) the private office and (b) the ministerial car for the Minister for Women; [16887]

(7) what severance pay the Minister for Women will receive on leaving; [16889]

(8) what official engagements the Minister for Women has carried out since her appointment; [16891]

(9) what responsibilities for women she retains. [16893]

Ms Ruddock: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is Minister for Women and I support her in that role. We are committed to building stronger links between women and Government, and delivering policy commitments for women.

We are creating a new bond of trust between women and Government by opening up a new dialogue with women.

The new dialogue comprises two main initiatives—improving and extending the way in which Government communicates with women's organisations; and looking at ways to conduct a dialogue with women who are not in organisations.

The traditional mechanism by which Government consult with women's organisations is the Women's National Commission, which was established in 1969. We are currently conducting a review of the Commission. We are also looking at ways to establish a wider dialogue with women throughout the country.

We are taking steps to ensure that women's interests are placed at the very heart of Government. This means integrating women's concerns and interests into the policy-making process—often called "mainstreaming".

We believe that it is essential that women are properly represented in public life. My Women's Unit is working closely with the Public Appointments Unit at the Cabinet Office on developing a joint strategy to increase the number of women on public bodies.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I work closely together on the priority areas we have identified as Ministers for Women. The three priorities we have set are child care; promoting family-friendly employment policies and practices; and tackling violence against women.

Since my appointment, I have focused my work on taking forward each of our priority areas. On Monday 17 November I was engaged on such official business.

In addition, I have been fulfilling the UK Government's international obligations on women; and travelling within Britain talking to women and listening to their views and concerns. I have met representatives of all the major women's NGOs as well as meeting and talking to a large number of women from a variety of personal, professional and ethnic backgrounds.

We are working closely with colleagues across Government to deliver on these and all our commitments to women.

Shortly after taking issue, the Government established a powerful Cabinet sub-committee on women's issues to ensure an effective cross-Departmental approach to issues of concern to women.

The current staff profile of our Women's Unit, the civil servants who support us, is in full-time equivalents as follows:

1 Grade 5 (Head of the Women's Unit)

3 Grade 7s

2.7 SEOs

1 HEO(D)

5.3 HEOs

6 EOs

2 AOs

2AAs

1 Personal Secretary

Four of these 24 staff with responsibility for women's issues transferred from the Department for Education and Employment.

I am supported by a Private Office consisting of one HEO, one EO and one AO. The estimated annual staffing costs of my Private Office are £73,000. Other overheads are not identified separately. The estimated annual costs of my Ministerial car and driver are £46,000.

Under the terms of my employment I am not entitled to severance pay.

National Insurance (Actors)

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to review the National Insurance Contributions system as it affects actors. [16992]

Mr. Denham: We are considering the status of actors for National Insurance purposes and an announcement will be made in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Offshore Safety

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what progress has been made in replacing the Certificate of Fitness regime for offshore safety with verification schemes; and what requirement there is in such schemes for physical testing of materials used. [15957]

Angela Eagle: The legal requirement for offshore installations to have a Certificate of Fitness was replaced by legislation which came into effect on 30 June 1996. There are transitional provisions which allow the continued use of the Certificate of Fitness arrangements under certain circumstances until 30 June 1998; by that date every offshore installation operating on the UK Continental Shelf must be covered by a verification scheme. This involves scrutiny by an independent and competent person of the suitability of all safety-critical elements on the installation. Physical testing of materials is not specified in the legislation, but where the materials contribute to the suitability of a safety-critical element they would be expected to be subject to verification by appropriate means.

Climate Change Convention

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the outcome of the discussions in Tokyo under his chairmanship on 8 November on climate change. [15915]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions to my hon. Friend the Member for Blaenau Gwent (Mr. Smith) on 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 122.

Drivers (Eyesight)

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the advantages of requiring an official certificate of eyesight standard for driving licence renewals past retirement age. [15978]

Ms Glenda Jackson: All drivers, when renewing their licences (normally at the age of 70 and every three years thereafter), are required to declare whether they can meet the prescribed eyesight standard. They also have a statutory obligation, whatever their age, to meet the standard whenever they drive and, if they cannot do so, to cease driving and notify the DVLA. In particular, drivers should notify conditions affecting both eyes, such as glaucoma, cataracts or progressive retinal disease. A requirement for compulsory eye tests for all drivers over a certain age would place extra costs on elderly drivers and involve major additional administration. The Government are not persuaded that it would bring significant road safety benefits.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what contribution towards the Government's target of a 20 per cent. reduction in carbon dioxide emissions by 2010 he estimates will be made by (a) increases in petrol prices, (b) improvements in the fuel efficiency of vehicles and (c) reduction in the volume of road traffic. [16406]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The UK is leading the world in its efforts to combat the threat of climate change. Tackling emissions from transport will be a key element of the balanced climate change programme which we will be developing after the Kyoto conference. We are currently undertaking a fundamental review of transport policy as part of our commitment to develop an integrated transport policy. A number of transport measures are being considered carefully.

In the last Budget, the Chancellor made a commitment to increase road fuel duty by an average of 6 per cent. a year in real terms. If continued for the lifetime of this Parliament, it would produce additional savings in emissions of 2.5 million tonnes of carbon per year in 2010.

The Cleaner Vehicle Task Force, announced by the Prime Minister on Friday 14 November, will set up a new partnership between Government and industry to promote the production and sales of cleaner vehicles. Encouraging the uptake of more fuel-efficient and greener cars, will be an important contribution to reducing CO_2 emissions from transport.

Lost Shipping (The Gaul)

Mr. Alan Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what reports have been received by his Department from (a) crew of the fishing protection frigate Mohawk, (b) trawler skippers and (c) others concerning the location of The Gaul since The Gaul disappeared. [16684]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Existing Departmental records contain one report from HMS Mohawk dealing with her involvement with the search and rescue operation conducted following the disappearance of The Gaul. Seven reports on possible locations of the wreck were received from fishing vessel skippers and six from other sources. The positions given varied widely.

Mr. Alan Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what estimates were made of the cost of searching for The Gaul, following its disappearance; and for what reasons no search was made. [16685]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Following the loss of The Gaul, the Department of Trade, which was then responsible for marine safety, considered a number of proposals for searching for the wreck. Proposals from the Royal Navy and commercial sources were discussed, but were not pursued as it was decided then that the considerable cost of each proposal could not be justified.

Departmental records show that the lack of a positively identified search area was an important factor in these decisions. It is important to consider that mid-1970s technology was less able than the technology available today to make positive identifications of underwater objects from the surface.

Mr. Alan Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what arrangements are being made to survey The Gaul following discovery of the wreck; [16686]

(2) if he plans to reopen the formal investigation into the circumstances of the loss of The Gaul. [16687]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Marine Accident Investigation Branch (MAIB) has obtained from Channel 4 copies of the material obtained during its photographic survey of the ship. This material has to be considered by the MAIB before any recommendation to the Secretary of State can be made on whether further action is appropriate.

Under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, the Secretary of State shall reopen the formal investigation into the causes of this tragic loss if the material contains new and important evidence. We await the MAIB's recommendations on the new material before any decision can be made on whether or not the formal investigation into the case should be reopened.

Airspace (London)

Dr. Michael Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what are the air traffic arrangements for aircraft having to hold as a result of missed approaches at London airports; and to what extent these arrangements impinge on the airspace capacity of provincial airports around London; [16514]

(2) what estimates he has made of the airspace capacity over the approaches to London; how full they are currently; what arrangements are in place to prevent overcrowding; and if he will make a statement. [16515]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Civil Aviation Authority, which is responsible for the management of UK airspace, seeks to maximise airspace capacity over the approaches to London airports to the greatest extent possible, commensurate with safety. The management of the flow of air traffic and the scheduling of incoming and outgoing flights should ensure that there is no overcrowding. The separation distance between aircraft conforms to internationally agreed standards. Under current procedures, aircraft do not have to hold as a result of missed approaches at London airports as they are integrated into the approach patterns, without impacting materially on aircraft on final approach for landing. Any adjustment to arrival procedures, caused by aircraft carrying out missed approaches at London airports, does not impinge on the airspace capacity of provincial airports around London.

Newcastle upon Tyne (Population)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what were the mid-year estimates of population in the City of Newcastle upon Tyne in (a) 1988 and (b) 1996; what assessment he has made of the factors which have contributed to the change; and what population figure in Newcastle upon Tyne he proposes to use for the 1998–99 rate support grant settlement. [16642]

Mr. Raynsford: The Registrar-General's mid-year estimates of population in the City of Newcastle upon Tyne for 1988 was 276,653. The corresponding figure for 1996 was 282,338. The need for an assessment of the factors which have contributed to the change has not arisen. Our proposals for Revenue Support Grant for 1998–99 will be announced in due course.

EU Institutions (Regional Representation)

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is his Department's policy on direct regional representation to European Union institutions. [16982]

Mr. Caborn: The only European Union institution with a regional character with which my Department is involved is the Committee of the Regions. Members of the Committee are appointed by the Council of Ministers following nominations by member states. The question of direct regional representation does not therefore arise.

Housing (Staffordshire)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will estimate how many new homes are to be built in each of the next 10 years in (a) Staffordshire, (b) Lichfield District and (c) Tamworth Borough. [16701]

Mr. Raynsford: Regional Planning Guidance for the West Midlands (RPG 11) currently state that Staffordshire should provide for an annual average of 3,300 houses during the years 1991 to 2011. (This figure includes housing provided by conversions and that needed to replace existing housing that is demolished). It is up to the structure plan authority to put forward proposals for distributing this requirement across the districts, including Lichfield and Tamworth.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he has set targets for the proportion of (a) social housing and (b) affordable housing to be built on brown-field sites in (i) Staffordshire and (ii) the West Midlands. [16702]

Mr. Raynsford: No. The scope for meeting housing requirements on brown-field sites is one of the live issues being considered in response to the consultation on accommodating household growth.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many people are currently on waiting lists for social housing in (a) Staffordshire, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. [16872]

Mr. Raynsford: Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting lists at 1 April each year on their annual Housing Investment Programme (HIP1) returns. The latest available figures relate to the position on 1 April 1996 and are given in the 1996 "HIP 1 All Items Print", a copy of which is in the Library. Local authorities have different practices in compiling and managing their waiting lists with the effect that simple comparisons between authorities can be misleading.

Corresponding data are not collected centrally for housing associations, some of which do not operate waiting lists.

Air Quality

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to improve public information on air quality. [16850]

Mr. Meacher: The new national Air Pollution Public Information System was launched on Wednesday 19 November.

The existing system has been revised and extended, by:

- adopting a system based on health effects with four pollutant bands;
- describing pollutant levels in the four bands as "low", "moderate", "high", or "very high";
- using the National Air Quality Strategy standards as the first breakpoint between the low and moderate band;
- assignment of the breakpoints between the moderate, high and very high bands according to advice from the Department of Health's Committee on Medical Effects of Air Pollutants;
- providing hourly information and daily forecasts on sulphur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide and ozone, and extending the system to include hourly information and forecasts for carbon monoxide and airborne particles (as PM_{10}); and
- providing hourly information on the carcinogens benzene and 1,3 butadiene, describing the levels as above or below the national standard (but not including them in the banding system).

When air pollution levels are presented to the public, an overall summary is provided followed by pollutant-specific information. When the overall summary is presented for each region, levels of air pollution will be described as those occurring in the highest band for any individual pollutant. For example, if levels of all pollutants in a region were low, with the exception of one pollutant which was high, then in the overall summary the air pollution for that region would be described as high.

The bands were chosen on the basis of effects on health. The "low" band for each pollutant covers levels up to the air quality standard set in the National Air Quality Strategy. These standards are based on the best available consensual view of medical and scientific experts on the UK Expert Panel on Air Quality Standards.

The breakpoints between the "moderate", "high" and "very high" bands were recommended by the Department of Health's Committee on the Medical Effects of Air Pollutants (COMEAP). This Committee was established by the Chief Medical Officer in 1992 to assess and advise Government on the effects upon health of air pollutants.

The details of the new system are presented in the following table, including the pollutant concentrations for the four bands.

Description "air pollution"	"Standard"		"Information"	"Alert"
	"Low"	"Moderate"	"High"	"Very high"
Sulphur Dioxide (parts per billion, 15 minute averages)	Less than 100	100–199	200–399	400 or more
Ozone (parts per billion)	Less than 50 ppb (8 hour running average)	50–89 (hourly average)	90–179 (hourly average) 180 or more (hourly average)
Carbon Monoxide (parts per million, 8 hour running average)	Less than 10	10–14	15–19	20 or more
Nitrogen Dioxide (parts per billion, hourly average)	Less than 150	150–299	300–399	400 or more
Fine Particles (micrograms per cubic metre, 24 hour running average)	Less than 50	50–74	75–99	100 or more

Further details on the health effects have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what was the expenditure by his Department on the monitoring of air quality in the last year for which figures are available. [16994]

Angela Eagle: In the financial year 1996–97, my Department spent £4.6 million on ambient air quality monitoring.

Single Regeneration Budget (West Midlands)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what bids into the Single Regeneration Budget from local authorities and other organisations within the West Midlands Region have been (a) submitted and (b) approved in each year since the SRB was established; and if he will indicate in each approved case the number of jobs created. [16896]

Angela Eagle: Over Rounds 1 to 3 of the SRB Challenge Fund the West Midlands has received 98 final bids of which 43 were approved and 41 have a funding agreement with the Secretary of State in the financial year 1997–98. Thirty-five of these bids were local authority led and 27 of the approved bids had local authority accountable bodies. A round-by-round breakdown is at annexe 1.

Thirty-eight of the approved and contracted bids forecast job creation outputs totalling 48,527. To 31 March 1997 the Rounds 1 and 2 schemes had already created 8,334 jobs. Round 3 schemes will make their first return in November 1998. Scheme-by-scheme details of jobs created are at annexe 2.

Annex 1: Government office for the West Midlands
SRB Challenge Fund: final and approved bids, rounds 1–3

	Final bids			Approved bids
	Local authority led bids	Non-Local Authority led bids	Total	Local Authority accountable body	Non-Local Authority accountable body	Total
Round 1	8	29	37	7	6	13
Round 2	10	12	32	12	9	[1]21
Round 3	17	12	29	8	1	9

[1] Twenty one bids were approved in Round 2 of which 19 have contracts in 1997–98.
There is no direct correlation between local authority led final bids and approved bids with local authority accountable bodies. Many bids are submitted by a Regeneration Partnership which agrees an accountable body from within its membership on receiving approval.

Annex 2: Job creation outputs forecast over scheme lifetime and achieved at latest return date, in approved and contracted SRB Challenge Fund schemes

Title	Accountable body	Lifetime forecast	Achievement to 31 March 1997 Outputs over 2 years
Round 1
Regeneration Wolverhampton	Wolverhampton MBC	2,365	703
Foundation for the Future	Dudley MBC	901	146
Sandwell Regeneration Partnership Programme	Sandwell MBC	952	332
Creating a sustainable Black Country Urban Forest	National Urban Forestry Unit	6	4

Annex 2: Job creation outputs forecast over scheme lifetime and achieved at latest return date, in approved and contracted SRB Challenge Fund schemes

Title	Accountable body	Lifetime forecast	Achievement to 31 March 1997 Outputs over 2 years
Connected Community for the 21st century	KC3	41	19
Cannock Gateway Project	Cannock Chase DC	2,134	353
Supporting start-ups and existing small businesses in Shropshire	Shropshire TEC	700	545
Support for new and young businesses in Staffordshire	Staffordshire TEC	4,560	862
Employment creation in the HAWTEC area	HAWTEC	2,165	990
Cobridge Community Renewal	Stoke on Trent CC	2,067	459
Birmingham 1995–2000	Birmingham CC	5,679	2,260
Spreading market confidence north	CWP Ltd.	2,301	1,208

Title	Accountable body	Lifetime forecast	Achievement to 31 March 1997 Outputs over 1 year
Round 2
Birmingham 1996–2003	Birmingham CC	1,620	32
Burton: A better future	East Staffordshire BC	5,901	232
Trent Challenge	Cannock Chase DC	2,386	6
Meeting the Challenge of Change—North Warwickshire	CWP Ltd.	439	24
Wren's Nest comprehensive Area Regeneration	Dudley MBC	50	34
Aston SRB: Breaking the cycle	Focus Housing Association	75	2
Empowering Local Communities	Walsall MBC	759	0
Improving Labour Market Flexibility in the HAWTEC area	HAWTEC	180	20
Leek Regeneration	Staffordshire Moorlands DC	196	12
Cheston Community Programme	Newcastle Under Lyme BC	1,031	16
Redditch Community Works	Redditch BC	750	7
Capacity Building for Urban Regeneration	Sandwell MBC	124	24
North Solihull Change	Solihull MBC	130	10
Villages Initiative	Stoke on Trent CC	1,090	10
Impact on Employment	Stourbridge College	0	1
Empowering Enterprise in Local Communities	HAWTEC	120	11
Substance misuse initiative	Warwickshire Probation Service	6	5
Engineering in Education	EEF West Midlands	8	7

Title	Accountable body	Lifetime forecast	Achievement to 31 March 1997 1st return due November 1997
Round 3
Black Voluntary Sector Regional Regeneration Network	SIA	10	n/a
Burntwood Chase Community Partnership	Lichfield DC	769	n/a
Foleshill Regeneration	Coventry CC	450	n/a
Leominster—Back from the Brink	Leominster DC	343	n/a
Malvern Hills Science Park	Malvern Hills DC	81	n/a
Newcastle Western Urban Villages Community Programme	Newcastle under Lyme BC	1,811	n/a
Regeneration Wolverhampton—Round 3	Wolverhampton MBC	5,700	n/a
Young People in Focus—Sandwell	Sandwell MBC	527	n/a

Sources:
Lifetime Forecasts—1997–98 Delivery Plans.
Actuals to 31 March 1997—1995–96 and 1996–97 outputs returns.

Contaminated Land

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list, by region, the percentage of land in the United Kingdom which is classified as contaminated land. [16882]

Angela Eagle: This information is not held by this Department. Various estimates have been made by different bodies of the total amount of land affected by contamination in the UK. However, each of these takes a different approach to the definition of what might constitute contaminated land.

Euroregions

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions which English county councils are involved in discussions with EU institutions on the issue of the creation of Euroregions; and if he will make a statement. [16996]

Mr. Caborn: I am not aware of any discussions, although I know that Kent County Council is working with neighbouring areas of continental Europe to create an informal "Euroregion", for co-operation on issues of common interest, comprising Kent, Nord-Pas de Calais in France, and Belgium. Also, two English county councils, Kent and East Sussex, are involved with other local partners in the Interreg 2 programme, a Community Initiative which aims to increase transfrontier co-operation. Through these programmes the county councils are linked with their neighbouring French departments, Nord-Pas de Calais and Seine-Maritime/Somme, respectively.

Planning Applications

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make the water companies statutory consultees in respect of planning applications. [16993]

Angela Eagle: Under Planning Policy Guidance note 12, "Development Plans and Regional Planning Guidance", local planning authorities should consult all infrastructure providers, including water companies, when preparing their development plans. This process seeks to ensure that development does not exceed the capacity of existing or planned water supply systems. We will give further consideration to the need to consult on the impact of proposed development on water demand in our forthcoming revisions of PPG12 and the system of regional planning guidance. In the light of these arrangements, we see no need to make water companies statutory consultees in relation to individual planning applications.

Pentland Coastguard Station

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what factors led to Pentland Coastguard Station being included in the list of stations to be closed by 2002; [16880]

(2) if he will publish the Coastguard Agency's strategy document relating to the closure of Pentland Coastguard Station; [16879]

(3) what arrangements he intends to make for the radioing-in of vessels going through the Pentland Firth, after the proposed closure of the Pentland Coastguard Station. [16881]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Five-year Strategy which I announced on Monday is based on the introduction of new digital communications technology to replace outdated equipment. This will enable greater organisational flexibility without compromising safety. Indeed, the changes will improve the efficiency and effectiveness of Coastguard Search And Rescue (SAR) co-ordination services. A document outlining the strategy will be published shortly. I will arrange for the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland to receive the document and will place a copy in the Library.

The proposed closure of a number of Coastguard stations, including Pentland, means that Coastguard officers will be co-ordinating search and rescue from fewer centres. Concentrating resources in this way will enhance the potential for watch keeping staff to become involved in vital accident prevention work during quieter periods. The number of coastal rescue teams will not be affected by these changes, but the number of sector managers will be increased through additional posts at the locations where centres are to be closed.

The current level of Coastguard radio coverage around the UK will remain unchanged. Vessels using the Pentland Firth will be able to contact the Coastguard on radio as now. Pentland's aerials will be monitored by Aberdeen and Shetland. Staff complements at these adjacent centres will be increased to appropriate levels.

Government Homes

Yvette Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how his Department, the Home Office and the Ministry of Defence performed against last year's targets for reducing empty government homes; and what new targets have been set for 1997–98. [17291]

Mr. Raynsford: The overall number of empty homes held by my Department, the Ministry of Defence and the Home Office fell by 754 between 1 April 1996 and 1 April 1997. This welcome reduction reflects a 5.7 per cent. fall in the number of empty Ministry of Defence properties. Against this there was a small increase in the number of empty homes held by both the Home Office and the Department of Environment, Transport and the Regions (DETR), reflecting an unexpectedly high number of new vacancies coming on stream. The number of empty homes is still too high and this Government are determined to improve on these figures in the future. We simply cannot afford to have substantial numbers of Government-owned homes lying empty.

I have considered with other Departments and interested parties such as the Empty Homes Agency how we might make better use of these properties and have investigated every opportunity for setting new, more challenging targets for this year as well as improving arrangements for the disposal process.

The Home Office target for this year is more stringent than last year's. The high figure of empty DETR (Highways Agency) properties is due, mainly, to the rundown of the road programme, with properties which had been bought and were being let until needed, being vacated so that they could be sold. This year's targets for my Department reflect this fact and the failure to meet the April 1997 target. However, they represent a significant improvement over last year's achievements. The Ministry of Defence's target has been set at a level which will continue the disposal of surplus properties while retaining the flexibility to react to any changes to the demand for service housing which may emerge from the findings of the Strategic Defence Review, due to report next year.

Details of achievement against targets for 1996–97, and new targets for 1997–98 are below. Details of the Welsh

Office and Scottish Office performance are not shown in the table as they are reporting their figures separately. My hon. Friends the Ministers responsible for housing in Scotland and Wales will, however, continue to report and remain committed to further reductions in the number of empty properties they own.

	Total stock at 1.4.97	Total empty stock at 1.4.96	Total empty stock at 1.4.97	Target for percentage empty at 1.4.97	Achievement against target	Target for percentage empty at 1.4.98	Target for percentage habitable homes empty more than 6 months at 1.4.97	Achievement against target	Target for percentage habitable homes empty for more than 6 months at 1.4.98	Action being taken to dispose of homes empty more than 6 months
Home Office	3,411	242	268	<6 per cent.	7.9 per cent.	<5 per cent.	1 per cent.	0.9 per cent. (32)	<1 per cent.	[1]—
Department of Transport[5]	3,120	669	690	<17 per cent.	22 per cent.	<18 per cent.	<7 per cent.	11.2 per cent. (350)	<9 per cent.	[4]—
Ministry of Defence	65,800	13,943	[2]13,142	To dispose of 4,000 empty homes	4,987	To dispose of 1,000 empty homes

Notes:

1. Properties that are "habitable" include all properties except:

(a) derelict properties that await demolition (e.g. to make way for road schemes),

(b) those that are expected to be demolished in the near future where the expenditure required to make them habitable would be disproportionate to their expected life (e.g. where substantial investment would be required to connect essential services such as water, sewage or electricity),

(c) those that cannot be made accessible (e.g. due to adjacent construction works).

[1] The Home Office has identified an under-reporting of this figure because the Prison Service had previously understood that only homes surplus to operational requirements were to be included in the empty homes more than six months category. Consequently no central record has been kept of how long the non-surplus homes have been empty. The estimate is that up to 100 homes may have been missed from the previous reports, but that the current figure is considerably less than this as a result of a rigorous challenging of the non-surplus status. These homes will be included in future figures and are subject to 1997–98 targets.

[2] Of the 13,142 properties empty: 1,755 have already been identified for disposal; 3,364 were allocated to incoming families; 2,533 were empty pending major upgrade work; 633 had been identified as temporarily surplus with action in hand to lease out to local authorities or housing associations and; 1,117 were not available to dispose of or lease out as they were on military bases and subject to security constraints. If these properties are excluded from the total number of empty properties it leaves 3,740 properties, which represents 5.86 per cent. of MOD stock.

[3] 19 properties are in the process of being sold. Four being refurbished for reoccupation. Four under review for disposal. Five are in blocks of police quarters with police tenants being targeted.

[4] All properties currently vacant are in the process of being sold or let through managing agents.

[5] (Now the Department of Environment, Transport and the Regions.)

< = less than.

Road Safety (Mobile Phones)

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the research evidence relating to the dangers of using a mobile phone while driving. [17292]

Ms Glenda Jackson: There has been much concern both in this country and elsewhere in the world about the road safety implications of using mobile phones while driving. My noble friend, the Minister for Roads therefore asked the Transport Research Laboratory to review the evidence currently available and the report it has prepared is being published today. Copies have been placed in the Library.

The report concludes that the use of hand-held mobile phones while driving is widely regarded as unsafe. Most safety researchers regard this as so self-evident that there have been few specific studies. Hands-free phones have received the greatest attention and the debate in the research community centres on the extent to which hands-free conversations impact on driving performance. Studies suggest that the distraction effect of phones reduces as they are made easier to use. However, the distraction caused by the mental effort of telephone conversation is present, even with advanced devices.

Manual dialling and intense telephone conversations have been shown to cause considerable distraction and it is thought that this may impact on safety. Although the evidence is largely circumstantial, it all points in the same direction—there is an association between telephone use and increased accident risk. Furthermore, there is evidence that phone conversations are more stressful than equivalent conversations with passengers.

The results of this research are reflected in the revised draft of the Highway Code on which public comment was invited last week and which we hope to put before Parliament next year. It is also reflected in the draft Code of Practice on the use of mobile phones in vehicles, which is currently being discussed with the mobile phone companies and motoring interests.

House Building

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he has set a target for the amount of new housing to be built on previously developed land. [17520]

Mr. Prescott: No, the Government have not yet taken a final decision on what target might be appropriate. In the meantime, the previous Government's target of 50 per cent. still applies. We are considering our policy on planning for household growth, taking into account the public consultation earlier this year, and will announce our decisions in due course. We remain committed both to protecting the countryside and to regenerating our towns and cities, by encouraging local authorities to make the best possible use of previously developed land. The presumption against inappropriate development within Green Belts remains in place.

HEALTH

Myelograms

Mr. Collins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the adequacy of the keeping of medical records concerning myelograms int he health service. [14609]

Ms Jowell: The preservation, retention and destruction of medical records is addressed in Health Circular HC(89)20, copies of which are available in the Library. This guidance satisfies the requirements of the Public Records Acts 1958 and 1967. While HC(89)20 recommends minimum retention periods, implementation of the guidance is for local interpretation. It is a matter for local management and professionals to determine which elements of the record may be retained, and which may be discarded before the end of the recommended retention period.

The radiologist's report on an x-ray procedure, including those for myelograms, is kept with the patient's medical record. Following a meeting with the Department of Health, the Royal College of Radiologists issued guidance in May 1991 advising that there was greater value in retention of the radiologist's report rather than the film. This was because the x-ray report was considered to be the permanent constituent of the record and the x-ray film was considered to be of transitory nature. Therefore the report should be kept for a period consistent with guidance. In most cases this is for a minimum of eight years after the latest treatment. Where a new episode of treatment begins during that eight-year period the retention period will be extended for a further eight years from that date. Therefore, where treatment continues indefinitely the record will be retained indefinitely.

Ill Health Retirement

Mr. Breed: To ask the secretary of State for Health (1) what percentage of NHS pension applicants each year have been successful in gaining ill health retirement (a) on initial application to the Pensions Agency and its medical consultants, (b) on appeal to the Pensions Agency and its medical consultants, (c) on appeal to the Occupational Pensions Advisory Service, (d) on appeal to the Pensions Ombudsman and (e) on appeal to the Secretary of State for Health; [14802]

(2) what percentage of NHS pension applicants each year have been successful in gaining ill health retirement on (a) initial application to the Pensions Agency and their medical consultants, (b) appeal to the Pensions Agency and their medical consultants, (c) appeal to the Pensions Ombudsman and (d) an appeal to the Secretary of State. [15592]

Mr. Milburn: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the NHS Pensions Agency under its Chief Executive, Mr. A. F. Cowan. I have asked him to reply to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alec Cowan to Mr. Colin Breed, dated 20 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question, as it falls within my area of responsibility.

We cannot answer your question precisely in the format asked because until 1 April 1997 the Agency operated open ended procedures for ill health applications. An unsuccessful applicant could submit fresh medical evidence at any time for reconsideration by the Agency's medical advisers. The table below therefore shows only the proportion of applications accepted in the financial years 1992–93 to 1996–97:

Percentage of accepted NHS ill health pension applications

	Number
1992–93	98
1993–94	96
1994–95	91
1995–96	75
1996–97	84

During 1995–97 there was a special review exercise relating to cases involving Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, because of the particular difficulties of prognosis in that condition. 245 cases were independently reviewed by an Expert Group established by the Medical Adviser to the DSS. Of these 154 (63%) were accepted on appeal by the Secretary of State for Health.

Since 1 April 1997, when formal appeal mechanisms were introduced the position is as follows:

	Per cent.
Accepted on initial application or remitted for review to await outcome of treatment	72
Accepted on appeal by NHSPA and their advisers	6
Accepted by OPAS	0
Accepted by Pensions Ombudsman	0
Accepted by Secretary of State	2

There were no successful applications on appeal to OPAS and the Pensions Ombudsman.

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS pension applications for early retirement on the grounds of ill health there were in each year from 1992 to 1996 and in 1997 to date; and what percentage of the applicants in each year quoted stress as a contributory factor in causing their ill health. [14801]

Mr. Milburn: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the NHS Pensions Agency under its Chief Executive, Mr. A. F. Cowan. I have asked him to reply to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alec Cowan to Mr. Colin Breed, dated 20 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question, as it falls within my area of responsibility.

The number of pensions applications for early retirement on the grounds of ill-health from 1992 to 1996 and in 1997 to date was:

Year	Number of applications
1991–92	7,725
1992–93	8,497
1993–94	9,918
1994–95	10,355
1995–96	10,704
1996–97	8,005
1997–98[1]	3,807

[1] Estimated to 31 October 1997. We do not hold data that would indicate for each application the extent to which stress was a contributory factor in causing their ill-health.

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times since 1992 the NHS Pensions Agency has changed the medical consultants it uses regarding decisions on ill-health retirement; what factors underlie the changes; and if he will make a statement. [15939]

Mr. Milburn: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the NHS Pensions Agency under its Chief Executive, Mr. A. F. Cowan. I have asked him to reply to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alec Cowan to Mr. Colin Breed, dated 20 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question as it falls within my area of responsibility.

Since 1992 the Agency has changed the source of its expert medical advice once. Between 1992 and 1997 the Benefits Agency Medical Service (BAMS) of the Department of Social Security advised on all ill-health retirement applications under the NHS Pension Scheme. BAMS withdrew from this service with effect from 31 March 1997 and following an open competitive tendering exercise were replaced by Medical Insurance Services Ltd.

Renal Dialysis (East Lancashire)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates he has made of the likely additional future demand for renal dialysis in East Lancaster; and if he will make a statement. [15196]

Mr. Boateng: East Lancashire Health Authority, in conjunction with the three other health authorities in Lancashire and South Cumbria, has commissioned a statistical modelling exercise to predict the numbers of residents likely to require renal dialysis up to the year 2005. The modelling exercise is complex and is able to take into account special factors such as the age structure of the population and the proportion of residents from an ethnic minority background.

The model predicts a very substantial increase in the total number of residents requiring dialysis, from 120 in 1996 to 220 in 2005. In order to meet the predicted demand for dialysis places over the next 10 years, East Lancashire Health Authority is about to consider the best way of increasing local provision.

Tobacco-related Illnesses

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the cost to local authority social services departments of assisting people suffering from disabilities resulting from tobacco-related illnesses in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [15037]

Ms Jowell: Smokers generally suffer from a number of disabilities arising out of their having smoked. It is only possible to identify, from the current statistics, the cost of the type of social service provision being made to each client group and not the original cause which gave rise to it.

National Blood Authority

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the expiry date for the contracts under which the chairman and chief executive of the National Blood Authority are employed. [15562]

Mr. Boateng: The Chairman was appointed for a two-year period beginning 1 April 1997, and the Chief Executive's contract with the National Blood Authority expires on 31 March 2000.

Ambulance Service

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will review his Department's objections to making the Ambulance Service (Emergency) Long Service and Good Conduct Medal available to all ambulance personnel who served with the service from its national inception, and if he will make a statement. [15342]

Mr. Boateng: No. There is a long-standing precedent that civilian medals are not awarded retrospectively.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the ambulance trusts which (a) have introduced and (b) are considering introducing a priority dispatch system for dealing with emergency 999 calls; and if he will make a statement. [15976]

Mr. Boateng: Nine ambulance services have introduced priority dispatch systems: Berkshire, Derbyshire, Essex and West Midlands from April 1997 and Cleveland, Lancashire, Leicestershire, Northumbria and Warwickshire from October 1997. Others plan to do so shortly.

CS Gas

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment of the health effects of the CS gas solvent, methyl isobutyl ketone, has been made by the medical officers of the Department of Health since 1990; how many (a) published and (b) internal reports have been written by the Department of Health's medical officers since 1990; and how many of these reports are currently unclassified. [15504]

Ms Jowell: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave him on 3 July 1997 Official Report, column 231.

No internal reports have been produced or published, but the toxicology of the CS gas solvent methyl isobutyl ketone was discussed between scientists in the Department and the Police Scientific Development Branch.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary for Health if he will list (a) his Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if he will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared to those for 1990; and what estimate he has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15536]

Ms Jowell: The United Kingdom's Second Report under the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997 reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward what the current programme is expected to achieve by 2020.

Lariam

Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many reports of suspected adverse reactions associated with Lariam were reported to the Medicines Control Agency in each year from 1990 to 1997. [15456]

Ms. Jowell: The numbers of suspected adverse reactions reported to the Committee on Safety of Medicines and the Medicines Control Agency from 1 January 1990 to 31 December 1997 for mefloquine (brand name, Lariam) as the suspect drug in the United Kingdom are given in the table:

Year	Total number of suspected adverse reactions	Number of reports
1990	54	19
1991	58	27
1992	52	22
1993	183	73
1994	597	227
1995	1,233	447
1996	1,361	455
1997 (up to 11 November 1997)	445	159

A report of a suspected adverse drug reaction does not necessarily mean that it was caused by the drug. Each report relates to one patient. Patients may have more than one suspected reaction and the number of reactions given exceeds the number of patients affected as seen above.

Donated Blood Products

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the nature, value and destination of sales abroad of English and Welsh voluntarily donated blood products during (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96, (c) 1996–97 and (d) the first half-year period of 1997–98. [15561]

Mr. Boateng: Blood products surplus to domestic requirements, mainly albumin together with small quantities of other products such as clotting factors VIII and IX, are sold to many countries worldwide. The value of sales, which raise money for the blood service, is given in the list.

1994–95: £5.7 million

1995–96: £6.7 million

19967–97: £9.4 million

1997–98: (April to end September) £5 million.

Special Advisers

Mrs Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received about the salary and benefits of the special advisers in his Department; and how many candidates were considered for each post. [16034]

Ms Jowell: We have not received any such representations. One candidate was considered for each post.

Diabetes

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has evaluated on the relationship between the incidence of diabetes mellitus and diet; and if he will make a statement. [16337]

Ms Jowell: The Government are currently supporting a range of research into the incidence of diabetes and diet. The Medical Research Council, the main agency through which the Government support medical and clinical research, is funding a major epidemiological study of the effect of diet on a number of health outcomes including diabetes. This work is taking place at the University of Cambridge under Professor K. Khaw. The value of the award is £1,109,000 over five years, with £210,000 spent in 1996–97.

Other current grants by the Medical Research Council for work on diabetes incidence and diet have a total value of £586,000, with £71,000 spent in 1996–97. This includes research into the influence of foetal growth on diabetes in later life, an important element of which is being carried out at the MRC Environmental Epidemiology Unit by Professor D. Barker and his team.

The Department of Health's Policy Research Programme has recently funded a study entitled "Development and validation of a weight-losing dietary intervention to reduce the risk of diabetes and coronary heart disease in South Asians". This study was undertaken at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine at a cost of £173,836.

Heart Disease

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what new initiatives his Department plans to take to combat incidences of coronary heart disease; and if he will make a statement. [16335]

Ms Jowell: The Government are committed to a series of initiatives to reduce the incidence of coronary heart disease.

Coronary heart disease is the biggest killer of men and women in this country. It accounts for about 124,000 deaths a year. We are committed to countering this by tackling the main risk factors associated with coronary heart disease, such as smoking, poor diet and physical inactivity. Smoking is the greatest single cause of preventable illness and premature death and kills more than 13 people an hour. The prevention of smoking is therefore a high priority for this Government. Details of the Government's strategy to reduce smoking will be set out in a White Paper, which will be published next year.

The significance of physical inactivity as a major risk factor in coronary heart disease is as high as that for smoking because of the prevalence of inactivity. We are, therefore, pressing ahead with plans within the "Active for Life" physical activity campaign to promote the significant health benefits of moderate-intensity physical activity, and to focus not only on people aged 50 and over, but also young women aged 16 to 24 and disabled people in the coming year. In a special exercise, we have also asked the Health Education Authority to investigate and report on the levels of physical activity appropriate for children and young people aged up to 16. The consultation work is currently under way. We are also liaising with colleagues in the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions, to play a key role in promoting active and health modes of transport through the national cycling and walking forums.

In addition to this, last month we published a review of effective interventions in the prevention and treatment of obesity, and work is in hand to establish a directory of weight management services available across the National Health Service in England which have been evaluated for their effectiveness.

Furthermore, the Government's Healthy Living Centres initiative aims to promote health, both physical and mental, and some activities within the initiative are likely to contribute to the prevention of coronary heart disease.

Contraception

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what family planning and other reproductive health facilities are currently available free within the NHS; and if he will list those which are available on prescription; [16325]

(2) which types of contraception are available (a) free and anonymously at family planning centres, (b) free through a qualified doctor and (c) with a prescription; and what plans he has to change these arrangements. [16494]

Ms Jowell: The National Health Service provides a wide range of family planning services through general practitioner services and family planning clinics. This includes advice and counselling on family planning, as well as the provision of contraceptives. All methods of contraception available under the National Health Service are obtainable free of charge.

Doctors are entitled to provide any of the contraceptive methods available under the National Health Service providing they have the necessary expertise. Certain drugs and appliances are available by prescription only. These are listed in the British National Formulary at chapter 7.3. Copies have been placed in the Library.

Confidentiality is an important feature of family planning service provision. Questions of anonymity are a matter for the professionals and individuals concerned taking account of particular circumstances as well as the type of contraception involved.

A review of the existing arrangements for prescribing is currently being undertaken. The issue of charging for prescriptions is also being examined within a comprehensive review of all National Health Service spending. However, the Government remain committed to a policy of access to treatment based on need and not on ability to pay.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16306]

Ms Jowell: The information requested has been placed in the Library. The guidance is kept under review, and is regularly amended.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16305]

Ms Jowell: The Department makes press releases available by placing hard copies in the Library. Electronic versions are placed on the Parliamentary Online Information Service (POLIS) which can be accessed by all Members of Parliament and Peers and on the Internet.

Appendicitis

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of appendicitis were recorded for each year since 1979; and if he will make a statement. [16334]

Mr. Boateng: The information available is in the table:

Diagnosis of appendicitis recorded in National Health Service hospitals in England

	Number
1979	60,020
1980	59,220
1981	54,060
1982	51,820
1983	47,480
1984	46,660
1985	45,990
1989–90	45,518
1990–91	42,225
1991–92	41,037
1992–93	41,386
1993–94	41,246
1994–95	39,285

Notes:
1979 to 1985: Discharges and Deaths (Ordinary admissions only) with a primary diagnosis Appendicitis (ICD code 540–543).
Source:
Hospital In-patient Enquiry (data grossed by a factor of 10).
Information for the year 1986 to 1988–89 is not available.
1989–90 to 1994–95: Completed Finished Consultant Episodes with a primary diagnosis of Appendicitis (JCD9 code 540–543). (Ordinary admissions and day cases).
Source:
Hospital Episode Statistics.
Data in this table is grossed for both coverage and unknown/invalid clinical data.

Utting Report

Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish the Utting Report. [16339]

Mr. Boateng: Sir William Utting's report "People Like Us" was published yesterday. Copies have been placed in the Library.

NHS Trusts (Mergers)

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts in the area covered by the NHS Yorkshire and Northern Region he estimates are currently considering mergers; and if he will estimate the anticipated financial savings and assess the potential benefits to patients if the mergers go ahead. [16165]

Mr. Milburn: We understand that 16 National Health Service trusts in Northern and Yorkshire Region are currently considering mergers. If all these mergers were to be approved, then the 16 existing trusts would be consolidated into eight new NHS trusts.

All new trusts will be expected to achieve savings of around £500,000 from management costs alone from merger. In some cases there is further potential for greater savings from rationalising non-clinical support services and making better use of clinical capacity.

The potential benefits to patients from merger will depend on the type of merger being proposed, but may include:

better integration of acute and community services;

pooling of resources and expertise to offer patients more effective, integrated specialist services; and creating specialist trusts than can offer patients more responsive services more focused on their needs.

Ministers will only approve mergers if they are able to demonstrate improvements in patient care.

Obesity

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent actions he has taken to reduce the national incidence of obesity; and if he will make a statement. [16333]

Ms Jowell: Diet and physical inactivity are major risk factors for obesity and coronary heart disease. Details of the Government's proposed public health strategy, which will include proposals to combat these, will be issued for consultation in a green paper later this winter.

Meanwhile, we want to maintain the momentum of the excellent national and local work which is currently being done in the areas of increasing physical activity and reducing the level of obesity. We are, therefore, pressing ahead with plans within the "Active for Life" physical activity campaign to focus not only on people aged 50 and over but also young women aged 16 to 24 and disabled people in the coming year. In a special exercise, we have also asked the Health Education Authority to investigate and report on the levels of physical activity appropriate for children and young people aged up to 16. The consultation work is currently under way. In addition, we are liaising with colleagues in the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions, to play a key role in promoting active and healthy modes of transport through the national cycling and walking forums.

In addition to this, last month we published a review of effective interventions in the prevention and treatment of obesity and work is in hand to establish a directory of weight management services available across the National Health Service in England, and to evaluate a sample of these for their effectiveness.

Also, the Health Education Authority continues to promote the healthy eating message, which is that a varied and balanced diet, in particular one which is low in fat and rich in fruit and vegetables, should have a longer-term impact on combatting obesity.

Infertility

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his Department's estimate of the extent of (a) female and (b) male infertility in the United Kingdom. [16327]

Ms Jowell: A number of studies have suggested that about one in six couples seek specialist help at some time because of difficulty in conceiving.

For those couples who seek specialist help, an estimated 20 per cent. of cases are attributable to conditions affecting the male partner and 40 per cent. to the woman. The remainder involves either a combination of difficulties affecting both partners or unexplained causes.

Metered Dose Inhalers

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to assist patients and general practitioners to change from chlorofluorocarbons to non-chlorofluorocarbon metered dose inhalers. [16641]

Mr. Milburn: We are considering what action we need to take to provide information to patients and to general practitioners and other health professionals, to assist in the change from chlorofluorocarbon to non-chlorofluorocarbon metered dose inhalers. The Government will consult with the relevant professional groups.

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the annual cost to the National Health Service of changing from chlorofluorocarbons to non-chlorofluorocarbon metered dose inhalers. [16640]

Mr. Milburn: It is estimated that the direct cost of switching to chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) free products will be up to £10 million per annum. This cost will be incurred because there will not be a generic version of one of the major "reliever" inhalers containing salbutamol so patients currently using these will have to be moved on to another product. However other costs may arise if doctors respond to the transition by prescribing patients more expensive products than before. Such indirect costs depend on how the behaviour of individual doctors and patients might change and are difficult to quantify.

Private Health Insurance

Mr. Prior: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the number of people who have discontinued private health insurance since May. [16534]

Mr. Milburn: The information requested is not collected by the Department.

Patient Care

Mr. Prior: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his Department's policy regarding the relationship and responsibilities for patient care between (a) community hospitals and general practitioners, (b) community hospitals and acute district hospitals and (c) Kelling Hospital in North Norfolk and the Norfolk and Norwich General Hospital. [16532]

Mr. Boateng: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 174.

The relationship between Kelling Hospital and Norfolk and Norwich Hospital is currently being considered as part of the review of intermediate services being carried out by East Norfolk Health Authority.

Engagements

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish his official engagements together with those of the Minister for Public Health for 16 October. [16731]

Ms Jowell: On 16 October, in addition to internal meetings, I met the National Consumer Council, the Meat Training Council, and had lunch with members of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, met the hon. Member for Southwark North and Bermondsey (Mr. Hughes), spoke at a lunch of the Health and Medical Public Relations Association, and fulfilled a speaking engagement at the National Housing Association in addition to attending internal meetings.

Minister for Public Health

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the Minister for Public Health did not attend the anti-smoking awards ceremony on 14 November. [16745]

Ms Jowell: On this day I attended the funeral of my former constituency secretary and visited her bereaved relatives.

Junior Doctors (Hours)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proposals he has for the future operation of the Regional Task Force on junior doctors' hours; and if he will make a statement. [15838]

Mr. Milburn: Regional task forces will continue to advise National Health Service trusts on reducing junior doctors' hours and to monitor progress. They will also promote action to improve junior doctors on-call accommodation and out-of-hours catering facilities.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health announced on 29 October 1997 that £1.233 million had been allocated in 1998–99 to support both regional task forces and local medical workforce advisory groups (LMWAGs). Copies of the 1998–99 Health Authority Cash Limits Exposition Book, which contains this information, have been placed in the Library.

The precise allocation between task forces and LMWAGs will be decided in December.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of posts in each NHS trust comply with the recent agreement on junior doctor's hours, indicating the compliance figure issued by the trusts concerned prior to its revision following the involvement of the Regional Task Force. [15839]

Mr. Milburn: The set of returns from regional task forces for 30 September 1997 show overall compliance with limits on junior doctors' hours at 80.5 per cent. This represents 23,808 juniors out of a total of 29,572 in England. This information is derived from monitoring data collated by the 10 English task forces based on validated returns from the National Health Service trusts in their area.

Part of the monitoring process conducted by task forces is to check and verify returns from individual trusts. Task forces may challenge returns and agree amendments with trusts if necessary. We do not keep separate returns to show the unchecked position before task forces have completed their monitoring function. We shall place a list of all NHS trusts and their agreed compliance rate in the Library.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice his Department gives to individual trusts concerning methods of monitoring the hours worked by junior doctors. [15840]

Mr. Milburn: We monitor junior doctors' hours every six months and detailed guidance notes on the completion of monitoring forms is made available to National Health Service trusts via our regional task forces at the same time.

It would not be appropriate to prescribe centrally one single method of monitoring hours. Task forces will advise individual trusts on the most suitable local method. Trusts are required to have their progress reports validated by a junior doctor representative locally to ensure that accurate monitoring has taken place. Also, before a trust can be accredited as complying in full with junior doctors' hours' limits the task force must be satisfied that robust internal monitoring is in place.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the criteria which his Department will use to measure the number of patients removed from waiting lists. [16656]

Mr. Milburn: Information on the numbers of patients treated from waiting lists is published annually in "Hospital Episode Statistics". The latest is for 1995–96 and copies are available in the Library. Removals are patients removed from the waiting list for in-patient treatment, in accordance with clearly defined guidelines set out in "The NHS Data Manual", for any reason other than admission for treatment from that list. This can be because they have already received treatment at another hospital or because the treatment is no longer necessary. Trusts are encouraged to validate their waiting lists on a regular basis to ensure they do not include any patients that should not be on them.

Health Care (Geographical Discrepancies)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if his planned White Paper on the future of the NHS will address geographical discrepancies in eligibility for health care services. [16657]

Mr. Milburn: The Government consider that fair access to services on the basis of need is a fundamental principle of the National Health Service. It is central to our plans to replace the internal market.

Health Authorities and Trusts (Expenditure)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what instruction he has given to the chairs of health authorities and trusts in England on the use of extra money made available from (a) central Government, (b) efficiency savings and (c) other sources for patient care only. [16658]

Mr. Milburn: Details of the purposes to which the extra funds for the National Health Service announced in October 1997 are to be put are contained in Executive Letter (97)64, copies of which are available in the Library. This made it clear that the additional resources made available from central Government should be used to: help hospitals cope with medical emergencies during the winter months; reduce delays in discharging patients; reduce the need for people to be admitted to hospital in the first place by strengthening primary, community and social services; and begin to restrain the growth in waiting lists.

Emergency Admissions and Elective Surgery

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what criteria his Department plans to measure the effectiveness of provisions made for (a) treating emergency accident and emergency admissions and (b) elective surgery in the period 1 October 1997 to 1 April 1998. [16659]

Mr. Boateng: During the coming winter we expect health authorities and trusts to ensure that their first priority is to make adequate provision for emergency care. We expect health authorities to share the risks faced by National Health Service trusts in meeting unpredictable demand and for all concerned to work closely with other NHS agencies and with social services departments. In particular hospitals should not close unilaterally to hospital admissions.

We have allocated additional funds which will be used both to ease the pressures on the health and social care system during the winter period and to restrain the growth in waiting times and waiting lists, starting by clearing all patients waiting over 18 months.

The NHS Executive will measure the effectiveness of provision through its normal management procedures.

Official Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his estimate of the expenditure by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on official hospitality for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997. [15218]

Ms Jowell [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Information on hospitality expenditure for the Department, its agencies and the non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) is not available prior to 1990–91 which is when the Department of Health was established as a separate Department. Prior to April 1995 additional elements of expenditure (working lunches and refreshments at meetings) were included under the heading of hospitality.

Figures for the years are 1991–92 to 1996–97 and the period 1 May 1997 to 30 September 1997 are given in the table:

Year	Departmental expenditure	Agencies expenditure	NDPB expenditure
1990–91	158,000	0	17,505
1991–92	168,151	10,318	16,416
1992–93	246,374	15,612	20,366
1993–94	218,995	28,864	21,208
1994–95	229,779	32,451	21,152
1995–96	73,516	37,182	23,646
1996–97	105,192	23,589	21,335
1997–98 (1 May to 30 September)	41,803	7,159	7,004

Written Answers to Questions

Friday 21 November 1997

HOME DEPARTMENT

"Corpus Juris"

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the document "Corpus Juris" produced by Directorate General XX at the European Commission seminar at San Sebastian; and if he will make a statement. [16980]

Mr. Michael: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Great Grimsby (Mr. Mitchell) on 28 October 1997, Official Report, column 778.

In this, I explained that the document in question is a discussion paper with no formal status. We disagree with many of its recommendations which are incompatible with the legal traditions of this country. For any of them to have effect, they would need to be proposed formally and agreed unanimously in the Council. An English translation of the document has been placed in the Library.

NORTHERN IRELAND

RUC

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions and for what purpose the RUC hosted visits by German police officers in November and December 1996. [13077]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: The RUC hosted no visits by German police officers in November and December 1996.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions and for what purpose RUC officers travelled to Germany in November and December 1996. [13076]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: During November and December 1996 police officers visited Germany on a number of occasions for both training and operational reasons.

Belfast Incidents

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) if she has received a report on the conduct of British soldiers (a) in Ardoyne on 2 September, (b) on 20 September at the Old Park barracks and (c) in North Belfast on 3 October; [15899]

(2) if she has received a report of an incident in Belfast city centre on 10 October after which an individual was taken to Grosvenor Road barracks. [15901]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 November 1997]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not had a report of the incidents referred to by my hon. Friend. If he can furnish further details she will look into the matter.

Ian Magill Case

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the cost to public funds of salary payments made, since his suspension, to the employee of the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum at Cultra recently convicted of paedophile offences. [16718]

Mr. Worthington: Mr. Magill has been paid £42,554.24 from September 1995 to October 1997.

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate was made of the cost of an award by an industrial tribunal in the event of Ian Magill making a successful claim against the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum for unfair dismissal. [16719]

Mr. Worthington: No estimate was made of the cost of an award by an industrial tribunal.

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what factors led Ulster Folk and Transport Museum to employ Ian Magill after his first conviction on paedophile charges. [16720]

Mr. Worthington: Following Mr. Magill's conviction in 1991, the Board of Trustees of the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum obtained legal advice about whether or not Mr. Magill could be dismissed. Counsel's opinion and that of the Museum's solicitors was that the Museum would have difficulty in establishing a fair dismissal.

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps her Department is taking to recover the salary paid to Ian Magill since his suspension; and if she will assess the advantages of restricting his pensionable service to the date of that suspension. [16721]

Mr. Worthington: This is entirely a matter for the Museum's senior management and Board of Trustees. They are seeking legal advice.

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment she has made of the legal advice obtained in the Ian Magill case. [16722]

Mr. Worthington: No assessment has been made as this is entirely a matter for the Museum's senior management and Board of Trustees.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Museums and Galleries

Mr. Alan Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the level of grant-in-aid subsidy was per visitor for (a) national museums and galleries on Merseyside, (b) the Museum of Science and Industry in Manchester and (c) Tyne and Wear museums, in each year since 1994. [16191]

Mr. Fisher: The details requested are listed in the table. The figures are not strictly comparable. For the National Museums and Galleries on Merseyside (NMGM)

and the Museum of Science and Industry in Manchester (MSIM) the grant figures shown represent grant in aid provided by the then Department of National Heritage. Neither the NMGM nor the MSIM receive core revenue funding from their respective local authorities. In the case of the Tyne and Wear Museums Service (TWMS) the figures represent only the grant provided by the Museums and Galleries Commission. The figures exclude revenue support to the Service's museums provided by the five metropolitan district councils in the former Tyne and Wear Metropolitan County Council area which make up the bulk of the public funding to the TWMS.

	Government grant £000			Visitors			Grant per visitor
	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
NMGM	16,411	13,275	13,123	1,344,959	1,221,428	1,207,937	12.20	10.87	10.86
MSIM	2,318	2,363	2,310	286,510	261,597	334,852	8.09	9.03	6.90
TWMS	1,020	1,015	1,015	1,047,612	929,128	1,048,731	0.97	1.09	0.97

These figures are not comparable, since the basis on which these museums/museums services are funded are different.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Lords Lieutenant

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Lords and Deputy Lords Lieutenant come from the ethnic minorities; and if he will make a statement. [15167]

Dr. David Clark: Although Lords Lieutenant are appointed by the Queen on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, Deputy Lieutenants are recommended for appointment by Lords Lieutenant. The information sought will take time to complete. I will write to my hon. Friend when it is available and place a copy in the Library.

Access Business Group

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on what dates the Access Business Group has met; and how often it plans to meet in future. [17182]

Mr. Kilfoyle: The group met on 23 July and 6 October and will meet again on 25 November. It is expected to continue to meet at intervals of approximately two months as its programme of work requires.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what are the aims and objectives of the Access Business Group. [17184]

Mr. Kilfoyle: The objective of the Access Business Group is to help to make central and local government's regulatory advice and service more transparent, accessible and helpful. The Group aims to minimise bureaucracy and red tape by coordinating and modernising a wide range of regulatory advice, forms and guidance for business into a simpler, more unified service.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who are the members of the Access Business Group; and how they were appointed. [17183]

Mr. Kilfoyle: I announced its membership on 23 July 1997, Official Report 1997 column 583. Councillor John Ryan was nominated by the Local Government Association to assist the group's work on local government regulatory advice and service. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster invited Teresa Graham to join the group in her capacity as vice chair of the Better Regulation Task Force where she is responsible for advising the government on regulatory issues. The remaining members of the group are the Under-Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, my hon. Friend the Member for Wallasey (Angela Eagle), and the Minister for Small Firms, Trade and Industry in the Department of Trade and Industry.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what remuneration is provided to which members of the Access Business Group. [17185]

Mr. Peter Kilfoyle: None.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what circumstances the principle of subsidiarity as set out in the Amsterdam Treaty is subordinate to (a) the 'acquis communautaire' and (b) EU law; and in what circumstances it could be used to repeal existing directives. [16964]

Mr. Doug Henderson [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The protocol on subsidiarity in the Treaty of Amsterdam is not subordinate to the acquis communautaire or EU law. All protocols have Treaty force and are fully justiciable before the European Court of Justice. Paragraph 2 of the protocol says that:

"The application of the principles of subsidiarity and proportionality shall respect the general provisions and objectives of the Treaty, particularly as regards the maintaining in full of the acquis communautaire and the institutional balance."

As regards the repeal of existing European legislation, paragraph 3 of the subsidiarity protocol says that:

"Subsidiarity is a dynamic concept and should be applied in the light of the objectives set out in the Treaty. It allows Community action within the limits of its powers to be expanded where circumstances so require, and conversely, to be restricted or discontinued where it is no longer justified".

EU Social Chapter

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the Social Chapter will come into force in the United Kingdom. [16965]

Mr. Doug Henderson [holding answer of 20 November 1997]: The provisions of the Agreement on Social Policy will be incorporated into the EC Treaty by the Amsterdam Treaty. They will thus enter into force in the UK when the Amsterdam Treaty enters into force. This will happen once the Treaty is ratified by all Member States.

In the meantime, it was agreed at Amsterdam that the UK could take part in discussions under the Social Agreement and that our views would be taken into account. This is already happening.

Separately, legislation under the Social Chapter will be extended to the UK by new directives under Article 100. We have undertaken to implement the two existing directives within two years of their formal application to the UK.

EU Works Council Directive

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his policy on the Commission's proposal to extend works councils to businesses employing 50 or more employees. [16963]

Mr. Doug Henderson [holding answer 20 November 1997]: There is no such proposal on the table, but the Commission is consulting the Social Partners about possible action in this area. We believe that it is good practice to inform and consult employees about matters which concern them. However, we are not convinced of the need for additional EU legislation on information and consultation arrangements for companies operating only in one Member State.

SCOTLAND

Devolution

Mr. Shepherd: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he plans to publish the Bill to implement his devolution proposals. [17223]

Mr. McLeish: The Bill will be published as soon as it is ready.

Dounreay Nuclear Plant

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps will be taken to eradicate the new areas of contamination in sea discharge tanks at the Dounreay nuclear plant. [14303]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 3 November 1997]: I have been asked to reply.

During routine monitoring of the Dounreay sea discharge tanks UKAEA discovered three small patches of low level radioactivity which they have now removed. I have been assured by the UKAEA that their monitoring arrangements will continue to ensure that there are no unauthorised discharges.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Legal Aid

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many representatives he has received concerning his legal aid proposals. [16469]

Mr. Hoon: My officials and I have held a total of 22 meetings with individuals and organisations concerning the legal aid proposals announced by my noble and learned Friend, the Lord Chancellor.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information and if he will make a statement. [16288]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor's Department is required and committed to provide information in line with the principles laid down in the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. A copy of our internal guidance, "Lord Chancellor's Department Guidelines on Code of Practice on Access to Government Information", which supplements Cabinet Office guidance, has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses today. Government Information Service members of the Department's Communications Branch use "A Working Guide for Government Information Officers" (produced by the Government Information Service in 1992 and currently being updated) as a handbook for working practices in disseminating information to the public.

Child Litigants

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what assessment his Department has made of the rights of child litigants in personal injury cases where the parents or a potential next friend cannot afford to seek initial legal advice in order to prepare a claim in respect of the injury; and if he will make a statement. [16350]

Mr. Hoon: No such assessment has been made. Under the current legal aid scheme, a parent or guardian may apply on behalf of a person under the age of 16 for Legal Advice and Assistance (Green Form scheme) on any matter of English law. The Green Form scheme provides for up to two hours help from a solicitor covering advice, writing letters and, where appropriate, obtaining counsel's opinion. For eligibility purposes, a child's means are assessed separately from their parents where it appears just and equitable to do so.

Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) public and (b) judicial appointments his Department has made since 1 May. [16468]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor has made a total of (a) 135 appointments to non-departmental public bodies and (b) 927 judicial appointments (including 686 appointments to the lay magistracy), since 1 May.

Immigration Appeals

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 425, how many cases were awaiting hearing on (a) 1 May and (b) 1 October; and how many adjudicators have been appointed since 1 May. [16464]

Mr. Hoon: The number of adjudicator appeals awaiting hearing on 1 May was 34,048; this figure rose to 34,907 at the end of July and fell to 33,865 at the end of September. During October it fell further, to 32,692. Eight full-time and 35 part-time adjudicators have accepted appointment since 1 May 1997.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16287]

Mr. Hoon: My Department does not automatically fax press releases to Opposition party spokesmen on the day of release. Departmental press releases are transmitted electronically by the Central Office of Information to both Houses at the same time as they are issued to the media and can be accessed by all Peers and Members of Parliament, including Opposition party spokesmen, via the Parliamentary On Line Information System (POLIS). No changes have been introduced since 1 May.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Equal Opportunities

Mr. Baker: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make a statement on equal opportunity employment practices within the House. [17020]

Mr. Kirkwood: The Commission aims to provide equal opportunities for all its staff. We are currently reviewing our equal opportunities policy in order to ensure that it matches best practice elsewhere and that it meets the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995.

Mail Services

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee for what reasons it has been decided that mail should be delivered hourly to outbuildings; which committees and officials were consulted; if she will give the total added cost of such deliveries; and if she will make a statement. [17224]

Mrs. Roe: Two of the conclusions of the survey of Members, their staff and Departments of the House, which has been used to shape the mail services, were that there was a demand both for more frequent mail deliveries and for a faster internal mail service. These have been met by hourly deliveries and collections in the outbuildings. The findings of the survey were reported to the Administration Committee at the end of the last Parliament.

Costs for delivery are included in the overall cost of the service provided by Royal Mail and it is not possible to disaggregate them. However, the total charge for the enhanced service is expected to be not more than that paid previously.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Civil Servants (Benefits)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what are the administrative arrangements within the Benefits Agency for the payment of benefits to civil servants. [16988]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The administration of Social Security benefits is a matter for Peter Mathison, Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. David Hinchliffe, dated 20 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what are the administrative arrangements within the Benefits Agency for the payment of benefits to civil servants.

No special arrangements are made for the payment of benefits to civil servants. However, individual benefit areas do try to ensure that claims from civil servants are treated sensitively. A member of staff may highlight that they are a civil servant when making a claim for benefit, particularly if they are employed locally. Claims which are identified in this way are dealt with by nominated officers within each particular benefit unit and can only be accessed by authorised members of staff.

Some benefits, for example Child Benefit, do not require details of a customer's employment. It is unlikely that claims to these benefits will be identified as being from a civil service employee, unless the member of staff actually works in the area responsible for their claim.

I hope you find this reply useful.

Benefit Fraud

Mrs. Fiona Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will publish the reports of inspections made by the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate; and if she will make a statement. [17704]

Mr. Denham: Our aim is to bring about a permanent reduction in the amount of benefit fraud. The Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (BFI) will play a vital role in driving up operational standards to maximise counter-fraud performance and minimise the risk of fraud throughout the Social Security system. A key role of the BFI is to identify and disseminate good practice to bring the performance of all up to the standards already achieved by the best.

Over recent months, BFI's procedures have been developed and rigorously tested in a series of trial inspections. The BFI is now carrying out the first formal inspection of Blackpool Borough Council's administration of Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit, in particular their performance in the prevention and detection of benefit fraud.

Starting with the Blackpool inspection, all BFI reports, including those on DSS Agencies, will be made publicly available. We will not include sensitive material of potential benefit to fraudsters in published reports.

Copies of the reports will be placed in the Library. Further copies will be available from the Department on request.

Mortgage Payments

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people have made use of the 26-week linking period on income support for those whose mortgage protection insurance has fully paid out during the previous benefit claim. [17225]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the jobseeker's allowance payment system; and if she will make a statement. [17192]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Since the Jobseeker's Allowance Payment System (JSAPS) went live on 6 October 1996 the system has continued to meet the levels of service specified in the service level statement.

There has been a number of system releases. Each of these has been subject to review and has been found fully to fully meet the requirements as specified.

TREASURY

Computers (Century Date Change)

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what discussions he has had or plans to have with his World Trade Organisation counterparts on the problems facing computer systems through the century date change; and if he will make a statement. [13155]

Mrs. Liddell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Small Firms, Trade and Industry on 12 November 1997, Official Report, column 569.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the Government will measure the convergence between the United Kingdom economy and the economies of European states participating in the first stage of EMU; and at what measurable point it will be possible to establish that convergence has been achieved. [14427]

Mrs. Liddell: The Chancellor's statement to the House on 27 October 1997, Official Report, columns 583–88, set out the five economic tests which define whether membership of the single currency would be in Britain's national economic interest.

Applying the economic tests, the Government have concluded that there is no proper convergence between the British and the other European economies now. And there is no realistic prospect of our having demonstrated, before the end of this Parliament, that we have achieved convergence that is settled rather than transitory.

What is needed is a period of stability and intensive preparations, so that Britain will be in a position to join a single currency, should we wish to, early in the next Parliament.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure that exchange transfers between sterling and the euro before British membership of EMU are (a) free of exchange costs and (b) not affected by rate fluctuations. [15926]

Mrs. Liddell: The exchange rate between sterling and the euro will continue to fluctuate unless the UK joins the single currency. The cost of, and exchange rates used for, exchanges between sterling and the euro will be principally a matter for financial institutions and their customers.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what requirements will apply to the United Kingdom in respect of the management of the exchange rate in circumstances where the United Kingdom is not a member of EMU in the first round and has signified an intention to join later. [15918]

Mrs. Liddell: The fact of having signified an intention to join EMU would not result in any additional requirements applying to the UK in respect of the management of the exchange rate. In particular, membership of the new exchange rate mechanism will be voluntary.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the provisions of those treaties relating to European Economic and Monetary Union on which the influence of (a) Her Majesty's Government and (b) other bodies within the United Kingdom can be exercised (i) before the date of United Kingdom full entry to Monetary Union and (ii) after such entry in respect of the duties and operations of the proposed European Central Bank. [16958]

Mrs. Liddell: Protocol 11 of the EC Treaty defines the terms of the UK's opt-out from the third stage of economic and monetary union. Paragraph 5 of that protocol lists the articles which shall not apply to the UK as a result of our exercising the opt-out.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the minimum period for which a country must belong to the ERM in order to participate in the single currency. [16962]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The Maastricht Treaty states (article 109j) that the Commission and the European Monetary Institute shall report to the Council inter alia on

"the achievement of a high degree of sustainable convergence"

by Member States. On the basis of these reports the Council shall assess whether each Member State fulfils the necessary conditions for the adoption of a single currency. The UK Government have made clear their view that, given the changes in the operation of the ERM since the Treaty was signed, ERM membership is not necessarily a precondition for participating in EMU. It will be for the Council to decide whether each Member State fulfils the necessary conditions for the adoption of the single currency.

Fiscal Deficit

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his target for the United Kingdom fiscal deficit related to GNP for the next four years. [15924]

Mrs. Liddell: The Government's fiscal policy will be guided by two strict rules:

the golden rule: over the economic cycle the Government will only borrow to invest and not to fund current expenditure; and public debt as a proportion of national income will be held over the economic cycle at a stable and prudent level.

The July 1997 "Financial Statement and Budget Report" set out medium-term projections for the public finances that showed a continuous decline in the fiscal deficit as a proportion of GDP. A new forecast will be published as part of the Pre-Budget Report.

European Bank

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the United Kingdom has a vote in the election of the President of the European Bank. [15916]

Mrs. Liddell: The Maastricht treaty establishes that the UK shall have no vote in the election of the ECB president for as long as it continues to exercise its right to opt out of EMU.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, of 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15875]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 13 November 1997]: Ministers and all officials at the Treasury can be e-mailed by typing the first name and surname, separated by a full stop, and then adding "@hm-treasury.gov.uk". For example "gordon.brown@hm-treasury.gov.uk". The names and responsibilities of Ministers and officials can be found in the Treasury's office directory which is available in hard copy and also in electronic form on the Treasury's Internet site at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk. Arrangements for the receipt of e-mails for agencies are administered by the individual agencies and are not held centrally.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16318]

Mrs. Liddell: HM Treasury publications, including press releases, are deposited in the Library of the House. They can also be accessed via the Treasury's Internet site at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16317]

Mrs. Liddell: In line with long-established practice, HM Treasury's policy has been to mail releases to Opposition spokesmen on the day of issue. The Treasury has decided to fax all press releases to Opposition spokesmen on the day of issue with immediate effect. Copies of all press releases and other Treasury material can be found on the Treasury's Internet site at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

Interest Rates

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the current interest rate differentials between the United Kingdom, France and Germany and likely movements in such differentials between the present and 1 January 1999. [16507]

Mrs. Liddell: The UK official interest rate is currently 7¼ per cent. compared with the key official rate of 3.3 per cent. in France and Germany. This interest rate differential partly reflects differences in the countries' current cyclical positions. Financial market prices imply that the differentials are expected to narrow between now and 1 January 1999. Further information may be found in "UK Membership of the Single Currency: An Assessment of the Five Economic Tests", HM Treasury, October 1997, (available in the House of Commons Library).

Euro

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to legislate to enable a person or company in the United Kingdom to require another person to accept payment of the settlement of a debt in euros. [16651]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The Government has no plans to legislate to make the euro legal tender in the United Kingdom without participating in the single currency. Firms and individuals can agree contracts in foreign currencies, including the euro after its introduction in participating countries, if they choose to do so.

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the legal opinion of the European Commission lawyers on delaying the introduction of the euro beyond 1 January 1999. [16961]

Mrs. Liddell: Any legal advice given by Commission legal service to the Commission, individual Commissioners or the staff of the Commission would be confidential to the Commission.

Counterfeit Currency

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the numbers of (a) counterfeit notes and (b) counterfeit £1 coins in circulation (i) nationally and (ii) in the North West England. [16921]

Mrs. Liddell: The Bank of England is not in a position to provide a reliable estimate of the number of counterfeit notes in circulation. A record is maintained of the number of counterfeit notes which are received from circulation, but the Bank of England, in common with most note-issuing authorities, does not publish details of the counterfeit notes it receives. However, despite an increase in counterfeiting between 1990 and 1995, counterfeit notes detected still represented only a small fraction of 1 per cent. of the total notes in circulation throughout that period. The number of counterfeit notes received during 1997 shows a reduction against earlier totals. Counterfeit notes are found throughout the United Kingdom and there is no particular bias towards the North West.

The Royal Mint is not in a position to provide a reliable estimate of counterfeit £1 coins in circulation, either on a national or a regional basis. However, the number of counterfeit £1 coins is believed to be very small in relation to the total circulation.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to make it more difficult for the coinage to be forged. [16922]

Mrs. Liddell: Special precautions are always taken to protect higher value coins. This is done by developing and using sophisticated alloys, edge lettering and, in the case of the new bi-coloured £2 coin, the introduction of a latent feature.

Financial Services Regulation

Mr. Caplin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the consultations with employees and their representatives on the proposed reforms of financial services regulations; and what estimate he has made of the impact on employment of the reforms. [16908]

Mrs. Liddell: Employees of regulated firms and their representatives will have the opportunity to respond to a consultation exercise planned for summer 1998, when the draft bill will be published. Representations before then are very welcome. A modernised system of financial regulation will promote financial stability, a necessary condition for sustainable growth and rising employment.

Mr. Caplin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the reform of financial services regulation will include all financial products and services, with particular reference to mortgages. [16858]

Mrs. Liddell: The Financial Services Authority will acquire the regulatory responsibilities currently exercised by the Bank of England, the three Self-Regulating Organisations (the Investment Management Regulatory Organisation, the Personal Investment Authority and the Securities and Futures Authority), the Department of Trade and Industry Insurance Directorate, the Building Societies Commission, the Friendly Societies Commission and the Registry of Friendly Societies. The Financial Services Authority will also be given responsibility for the authorisation of firms currently authorised to do investment business by virtue of their membership of a Recognised Professional Body.

These responsibilities do not currently include regulating the sale of mortgages. The Government will give the Council of Mortgage Lenders an opportunity to demonstrate that their code provides an appropriate level of consumer protection. If it does not, then the Government will act.

Amsterdam Treaty

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Department contributed to the drafting. [17010]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The UK position on the Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation with relevant Government departments.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Environmental Rights Charter

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will introduce a charter of environmental rights; and if he will make a statement. [16172]

Angela Eagle: We will be considering questions of environmental rights, including the role of citizens in environmental decision making and enforcement, in the context of our forthcoming review of the previous Government's Sustainable Development Strategy.

Regeneration Schemes (Greenwich)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what regeneration schemes are to be sited in Greenwich as part of the Millennium celebrations. [16467]

Mr. Caborn: The decision to site the Millennium Experience on the Greenwich Peninsula has brought forward the regeneration of the site. A masterplan for a new urban quarter in London has been prepared by English Partnerships, the Government's regeneration agency, which now owns the Peninsula. The Millennium Village scheme announced by the Deputy Prime Minister in July this year represents the first stage of development.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information and if he will make a statement. [16312]

Angela Eagle: A revised version of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information was published in January 1997, and circulated to staff in the former Department of the Environment and the former Department of Transport. Copies are available in the Library.

Rural Crime

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact of the Government's proposals on access to the countryside on levels of rural crime; and if he will make a statement. [16632]

Mr. Meacher: We have made no such assessment. We will take account of concerns about the impact of rural crime when we draw up our detailed proposals to give effect to our manifesto commitment to give people greater freedom to explore open countryside.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what proposals

the Government have to ensure that increased public access to the countryside will not provide increased opportunities for rural crime. [16628]

Angela Eagle: People may make known any concerns in their responses to our consultation paper on how to implement our commitment to give greater freedom to explore open countryside. We intend to issue this consultation paper shortly. We will take account of the responses in drawing up our more detailed proposals.

Sewerage

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will take steps to ensure that all sewers and drains serving residential developments are of an adoptable standard. [16856]

Angela Eagle: Under section 102 of the Water Industry Act 1991, the owner of a sewer can apply to the sewerage undertaker to have the sewer adopted. The sewerage undertaker may require that certain conditions are met before it agrees. There are no plans at present to require all existing unadopted sewers to be brought up to an adoptable standard or to require new sewers to be built to that standard.

Planning Police Guidance

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what recent representations he has received regarding Planning Policy Guidance Note 6. [16878]

Mr. Caborn: We have received a number of representations. Our Response to the Fourth Report of the Environment Select Committee on Shopping Centres, published in July 1997 [Cmnd 3729], reaffirmed the policy set out in Planning Policy Guidance Note 6 (PPG6).

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he expects to revise Planning Policy Guidance Note 6. [16875]

Mr. Caborn: We have no current plans to revise Planning Policy Guidance Note 6.

Coastguard

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will provide a breakdown by type of all the employees, indicating separately auxiliaries and volunteers, working with the Coastguard over each of the past five years; and what changes will be made in these numbers consequential on the control centre closures and mergers announced on 17 November. [17028]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The information is as follows:

Year	Total number of permanent employees	Total number of auxiliary (voluntary) coastguards
1993	536.5	3,823
1994	544	3,454
1995	518.5	3,415
1996	516.5	3,200
1997	[1]648.5	[1]3,121

[1] Figures at November 1997.

As a result of the closure of the stations at Pentland, Oban, Tyne Tees and Liverpool, the Coastguard officers complement will be reduced by around 78 staff over the next four to five years, although there will be some additional posts at flank stations. This will be set against the increase in staff of around 200 this year and the overall result after 5 years will be a net increase in staff over last year's levels. The number of coastal rescue teams will not be affected by these changes, but the number of sector managers will be increased through additional posts at the locations where centres are to be closed.

Water Supply (New Developments)

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will review the requirement on water companies to supply water to all newly approved developments. [17067]

Angela Eagle: Under section 37 of the Water Industry Act 1991, a water undertaker is required to supply water to all persons who request it. This duty is enforceable by the Secretary of State. There are no plans at present to review this requirement.

Carrington Moss (Planning Application)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what representations he has received regarding Manchester United's application for planning permission to build on green-belt land at Carrington Moss; [17188]

(2) if he will list those organisations and individuals which have made representations to him (a) in favour of and (b) against Manchester United's planning application to build on green-belt land at Carrington Moss; [17186]

(3) what discussions he has had with directors of Manchester United regarding its application to build on green-belt land at Carrington Moss. [17187]

Mr. Raynsford: Trafford Metropolitan Borough Council referred Manchester United's application for planning permission to build a training facility at Carrington Moss to the Secretary of State, under normal procedures. The Secretary of State decided on 7 November not to call in the application.

Ministers received a number of representations on this matter. I will place a list of the names of the 51 individuals and organisations who provided written submissions opposing the proposal in the Library of the House.

Compulsory Competitive Tendering

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will announce the conclusion of the recent review of regulations and guidance on compulsory competitive tendering. [17588]

Ms Armstrong: I have today laid before Parliament new regulations which amend the existing framework for Compulsory Competitive Tendering in England and Wales to make it more flexible and encourage local authorities to move to a Best Value-based approach to service delivery. In due course we will be replacing CCT with a new legislative framework on Best Value. In the meantime, I want local authorities to develop Best Value ahead of primary legislation.

These changes take account of the views of nearly 300 local authorities, professional bodies and relevant private sector interests who responded to the consultation paper I published on 25 July. Copies of these responses will shortly be placed in the House of Commons Library. The regulations themselves have also been the subject of consultation with local government and other organisations.

The key changes brought about by the Regulations are:

(a.) a significantly enhanced credit for voluntary competition of 125 per cent. of its real value which offsets the amount of work which must be exposed to compulsory competition and is designed to encourage authorities to pursue this route ahead of Best Value;

(b.) Lowering of the competition percentage for finance to 40 per cent. and for construction and property to 55 per cent. A raising of the de minimis for construction and property to £450,000.

(c.) Moving the implementation date from a finance-based to a 4,000-properties de minimis level for housing management to 1 April 1999 and abandoning the previous Government's plans to move to a 2,500 property de minimis level;

(d.) a relaxation of the implementation timetable for reorganising authorities in England in respect of professional services, particularly for authorities reorganised in April 1996 and April 1997, and housing management. Also an alignment of implementation dates for professional services, where they have not yet been reached, to align with, or post date, the effective dates of the new Regulations;

(e.) exemption of all schools from CCT with a special credit within the Regulations to take account of the potential anomaly which might otherwise have increased the overall competition requirement within an individual local authority;

(f.) a significant reduction in the amount of detailed prescription in relation to tendering and evaluation of CCT contracts. The de minimis level for manual services is raised to £150,000;

(g.) removal of need for local authorities to prepare an annual statement of the costs of supporting their front line services (the 'SSSC').

I believe that we have made sensible adjustments to the regulations set in place by the previous Government. I believe that these will be broadly acceptable to all parties. The new Regulations will allow local authorities to develop Best Value alternatives which are consistent with the purpose of the primary legislation and allow them much greater flexibility. We have removed many of the prescriptive elements of CCT. Local authorities now have real incentives to seek partnerships with the voluntary and private sectors to deliver quality services.

The changes emphasise voluntary competition. Competition will remain a vital element of Best Value but we are keen to use it in a more flexible and constructive way. We are increasing the credit that local authorities will get for any professional services work that they put out to competition voluntarily during the remainder of the CCT regime.

In recognition of the concerns expressed in the responses to our consultation paper, we have also decided to extend our original proposal to exempt work done on behalf of LMS schools from CCT, to cover all local authority maintained schools. This will reduce the administrative burden on school heads and allow local authorities to consider Best Value alternatives for schools.

I hope local authorities will respond to the opportunities these changes now provide. Best Value is about providing quality services at a price that local people are willing to pay. There is no reason for any local authority to put off considering how they are going to approach this. The new Regulations will provide the extra flexibility and resources they need to consider the new agenda.

I also intend to publish a new Departmental Circular to replace Circular 5/96 (Welsh Office Circular 11/96), which provides guidance on the conduct of CCT, shortly.

Hedgerows

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when the review of the Hedgerows Regulations 1997 will be completed. [17414]

Angela Eagle: The group which we set up to review how the Hedgerows Regulations 1997 might be strengthened is making good progress but does not now expect to be able to complete its deliberations by the end of December 1997. Its consideration of the issues involved has taken longer than anticipated. I expect it to complete its work in early 1998.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

New Deal (Young People)

Ms Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what consultation he has carried out with young people on the New Deal. [14371]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Nationally, the Employment Service commissioned a consultation exercise to discover young people's expectations of the New Deal. A detailed report will be published before the end of the year but results have already been used in the design of the New Deal provision. In addition, individual Regions and Districts will have carried out widespread consultation including obtaining the views of young people.

University Funding

Mr. Wicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what is the amount of state financial support per student in (a) Oxford, (b) Cambridge and (c) all universities. [16437]

Dr. Howells: In the current academic year, public funding for teaching per student is some £5,800 at Oxford and Cambridge and an average of £4,000 per student at other universities.

In addition, students are entitled to apply for maintenance support in the form of grants and loans. In 1995–96 (the latest figures available) the average maintenance grant per student was £1,390 and the average loan was £1,250.

Road Transport Industry Training Board

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list the assets transferred to the Road Transport Industry Training Board on its privatisation. [16680]

Dr. Howells: It was the Road Transport Industry Training Board which was wound up and its assets were transferred to RTITB Services Limited in September 1992. The assets listed in the transfer agreement, with values where shown, were:

Assets	Value £
The Book Debts (estimated)	1,390,000
The Capital Fund	8,976,727
The Contracts	—
The Fixed Assets	1,094,772
The Goodwill	—
The Intellectual Property	—
The Investments	3,050,000
The Premises (book value as at transfer date)	6,747,788
The Stocks	—

Teaching Positions (Greater London)

Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what are the total number of (a) teaching, (b) head teacher and (c) deputy head teacher posts in the Greater London area in maintained (i) primary, (ii) secondary and (iii) special schools; and how many and what percentage of these are currently (1) vacant and (2) covered by (A) supply teachers and (B) those with short-term contracts. [16905]

Mr. Byers: The numbers of full-time teachers employed, vacancies and vacancy rates, in the Greater London area, as at 16 January 1997, in the maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools sector are shown in the table.

	Nursery/primary	Secondary	Special
Head teachers[1]
Number of teachers[2]	2,200	460	160
Number of vacancies[3]	22	4	9
Vacancy rates (per cent.)	1.0	0.9	5.6
Deputy head teachers[1]
Number of teachers[2]	2,170	930	180
Number of vacancies[3]	59	9	7
Vacancy rates (per cent.)	2.7	1.0	4.0
Classroom teachers[1,4]
Number of teachers[2]	21,500	21,310	1,640
Number of vacancies[3]	366	221	54
Vacancy rates (per cent.)	1.7	1.0	3.3

[1] The breakdown by grade has been estimated, based on the scale of which a teacher is paid.
[2] Full-time teachers plus full-time secondments in maintained schools sector at 16 January 1997. Figures rounded to the nearest 10.
[3] Only those posts which were advertised at 16 January 1997 as full-time permanent posts or posts of at least one term's duration are counted as vacancies. Posts covered by temporary appointments on a contract of at least a term are not counted as vacant.
[4] Excludes unqualified teachers.

New Deal (West Lancashire)

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if the work already done on the new deal by (a) the West Lancashire Forum, (b) the CVS and (c) other bodies will be copyright. [16865]

Mr. Andrew Smith: It is recognised that many organisations and individuals have invested significant time and commitment in order to bring the New Deal Partnership in West Lancashire to its current position.

It will be important that the good work already undertaken in West Lancashire is built upon in order to ensure we provide the best possible help to unemployed young people. I would expect the private sector organisation selected to manage New Deal in West Lancashire to work closely with existing partnerships and the Employment Service. The issue of copyright is currently under consideration within the Department.

HEALTH

General Practitioners

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what initiatives he (a) is taking and (b) proposes to take, to attract back to general practice general practitioners who are not currently practising as full-time partners. [15821]

Mr. Milburn: The Government are very aware of the problem of recruitment and retention of general practitioners in some parts of the country. We are committed to tackling these problems, which is why we are delighted to introduce a salaried option for GPs who cannot, or do not wish to, become a GP principal. This can happen within general medical services this year, and under the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 pilots from 1 April next year. Under arrangements beginning this year, which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has just announced, together with a kick start of an extra £4 million, it will be possible for a GP to be salaried by a practice and for the health authority to reimburse some or all of the expenses to the practice.

We also propose to strengthen the retainer scheme by allowing GPs who wish to take a career break to keep in touch by undertaking up to four sessions per week with appropriate educational input and supervision. Finally, through local development schemes under section 36 of the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act, it will be possible for HAs to devise returner schemes from 1 April 1998. These schemes will be aimed at meeting the needs of individuals who wish to return to general practice after a career break.

Taken together, these schemes provide a package which will help to retain GPs and attract them back to the work force.

NHS Trusts (Chairpersons)

Mr. Pendry: To ask the secretary of State for Health if he will list the criteria by which he will appoint the chairpersons of National Health Service trusts; and if he will ensure that those chosen will live in the area served by the trust. [15844]

Mr. Milburn: To be considered for a trust chairmanship, candidates are normally expected to:

live in the area served by the trust;

have a strong personal commitment to the National Health Service;

be able to demonstrate a commitment to the needs of the local community;

be a good communicator with plenty of common sense;

be committed to the public service values of accountability, probity, openness and equality of opportunity;

be available for about 3 days a week;

be able to demonstrate leadership and motivation skills and the ability to think strategically;

have the ability to understand complex issues; and be able to demonstrate an interest in healthcare issues

Desirable qualities include having:

experience as a carer or user of the NHS;

experience serving in the voluntary sector, particularly in an organisation working in health issues;

served the local community in local government or some other capacity;

relevant specialist skills or knowledge relevant to the trust; and management experience at a senior level in the public, private or voluntary sectors.

Candidates are expected to have all the essential qualities and preferably some of the desirable ones. Only in exceptional circumstances would we be prepared to depart from the requirement that a trust chairman should live in the community served by the trust, for example, where there are severe recruitment problems, or when a particularly strong candidate has demonstrated in some other way their commitment to the local community.

Counselling (Consultation Rooms)

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his Department's policy towards the provision of counselling in the consultation rooms of general practitioners. [15938]

Mr. Milburn: The Department's policy is to support general practitioners in rendering to their patients all necessary and appropriate personal medical services including giving advice, where appropriate, to a patient in connection with the patient's general health, and in particular about the significance of diet, exercise, the use of tobacco, the consumption of alcohol and the misuse of drugs or solvents; and arranging for the referral of patients, as appropriate, for the provision of any other services under the National Health Service Act 1977. Such services can be delivered at the doctor's practice premises, or elsewhere within the doctor's practice area, according to the condition of the patient.

Dentures

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates he has made of the number of young people under 18 years who have (a) a partial and (b) a full set of dentures. [15973]

Mr. Milburn: We do not have this information for children under 16, although some of it may be inferred. Figures for 1988 show that, in the United Kingdom, 100 per cent. of 16 to 19-year-olds had some natural teeth, in England and Wales 20 per cent. of 16 to 24-year-olds had a combination of natural teeth and dentures.

Medical Auditing

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to increase the effectiveness of medical auditing. [15941]

Mr. Milburn: Clinical audit is central to the framework for promoting clinical effectiveness. It offers a practical way for all local clinicians to review their own practice and thereby improve the quality of care given to patients. In order to promote clinical effectiveness, health authorities are responsible for ensuring that sufficient resources are made available for clinical audit and that they are used in the most effective way.

The quality and effectiveness of National Health Service services will be a paramount objective of our plans to replace the competitive, contract driven and bureaucratic internal market, which we will set out in a White Paper later this year.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in promoting (a) energy efficiency and (b) recycling and waste minimisation within the National Health Service; and what plans he has for further measures. [16332]

Mr. Milburn: The Department of Health is committed to encouraging hospitals to be more energy efficient. National Health Service trusts are required to provide data on energy consumption. This is analysed by the Department's NHS Estates agency so as to give NHS trusts detailed information on energy usage against which to compare their performance. NHS trusts are expected to contribute to the target of the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions of improving energy efficiency by 15 per cent. between 1990 and 1995–96, revised to 20 per cent. from 1990–2000. The NHS achieved an energy saving of some 11.4 per cent. from 1990 to 1995–96. Information for 1996–97 is not yet available but initial indications suggest continuing reductions.

The NHS Estates agency has set up a working group with the aim of identifying existing good waste management practice to encourage the reduction of waste arisings.

To promote recycling and waste minimisation, the NHS Estates agency has issued 'A strategic guide to clinical waste management—for General Managers and Chief Executives' advising Trusts to develop environmental protection and waste minimisation policies, with the emphasis on waste management rather than disposal. The preferred options, in order of priority, are: prevention; reuse; recycling; combustion with energy recovery; incineration; and landfill. To continue to promote the importance of waste management and segregation, the NHS Estates agency recently published Health Technical Memorandum 2065 'Healthcare waste management—segregation of waste streams in clinical areas'(1997).

The agency is working on further guidance relating to the minimisation and disposal of clinical waste in the community.

Social Services Funding

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the extra funding for social services for the current financial year under the recently announced extra funding proposal to avoid a winter crisis will be available only if it is authorised by individual health authorities. [16447]

Mr. Milburn: Yes. Those additional resources for the National Health Service made available to improve services this winter have been allocated to health authorities. It has been the responsibility of individual health authorities, liaising with interested parties in their area, including local authority social services departments, to draw up plans for the use of the resources and agree them with regional offices of the National Health Service Executive. Guidance to health authorities given in Executive Letter EL(97)64, copies of which are available in the Library, indicated that where the identified service need was for social care, funds should be transferred to local authorities using powers under Section 28A of the National Health Service Act 1977.

Health Authority Contracts

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list by health authority the number of contracts in each of the last three financial years that have been referred for arbitration within the NHS region. [16445]

Mr. Milburn: The information requested has not been collected and validated on a consistent basis at a regional level.

Health Service (London)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the report of the Independent Advisory Panel into London's health service; and if he will make a statement. [16444]

Mr. Milburn: We will be publishing the Independent Advisory Panel's advice and the Government's response in due course.

Prescription Charges

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (i) women and (ii) men and (a) are and (b) are not currently entitled to an exemption from prescription charges in the United Kingdom. [16326]

Mr. Milburn: The information requested is not available. It is estimated that about 50 per cent. of the population are entitled to free prescriptions in England.

Additional Resources 1997–98

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if health authorities will be able to use the recently announced extra funds to avoid winter pressures for health and social care, to reduce their budget deficits. [16446]

Mr. Milburn: Details of the priorities for the extra funds for the National Health Service announced in October 1997 are contained in Executive Letter EL(97)64, copies of which are available in the Library. This made clear that priority would be given to plans which:

- help hospitals cope with medical emergencies which are already known or likely to occur during the winter months, for example by improving staffing levels at times of peak pressure and through services being open for extra hours;
- reduce delays in discharging patients, for example by improving rehabilitation and recuperation services, funding increased care at home, extra nursing and residential home places and more social services support;
- reduce the need for people to be admitted to hospital in the first place by strengthening primary, community and social services, providing more specialist nursing and therapy for people—particularly older people—in their own homes, nursing and residential homes, and through improved community and out-of-hours services;
- restrain the growth in waiting times and waiting lists. As resources allow, a further aim should be to keep any increase in lists and waiting times to an absolute minimum and where possible improve on performance.

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer of 12 November 1997, Official Report, columns 898–99 when (a) he and (b) his Ministers were informed of the £1 million donation from Mr. Ecclestone. [16730]

Mr. Dobson: Friday 7 November 1997.

Utting Report

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when Sir William Utting's report on children in care will be published; and if he will make a statement. [17286]

Mr. Boateng: Sir William Utting's report "People Like Us" was published on 19 November and a statement of the Government's response was made in the House on that date, Official Report, columns 327–38.

Bereavement and Mortuary Services

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many, and which NHS hospitals contracted out bereavement and mortuary services to the private sector in the years (a) 1994, (b) 1995, (c) 1996 and (d) 1997; [16711]

(2) how many and which, NHS hospitals plan or have announced plans to contract out bereavement and mortuary services. [16710]

Mr. Milburn [holding answer 19 November 1997]: The National Health Service Executive market testing database has no record of any NHS trust contracting out its bereavement and mortuary services in 1994, 1995 and 1996. In 1997, one NHS trust, the Central Middlesex Hospital, contracted out its bereavement and mortuary services (but not its bereavement counselling).

The database has no record of any other NHS trust planning to contract out bereavement and mortuary services.

Metered Dose Inhalers (CFCs Exemption)

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to phase out the chlorofluorocarbons exemption on metered dose inhalers. [16639]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The Montreal Protocol allows chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) to continue to be produced for use in the manufacture of metered dose inhalers. This essential use exemption will only continue to be provided until an adequate range of non CFC based alternatives is on the market, which in the European Union is likely to occur within the next two to five years.

The European Commission expects to finalise in January a transition strategy which will provide for the orderly phase out of CFCs in metered dose inhalers as suitable non-CFC based treatments become available. The government has also begun to prepare a UK phase out strategy to complement the European Union strategy. We will be consulting on the UK strategy shortly.

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the current annual volume of chlorofluorocarbons released into the atmosphere through the use of metered dose inhalers in the United Kingdom. [16638]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

In 1996 the European Commission approved the production of 2,171 tonnes of chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) for use by the manufacturers of metered dose inhalers in the United Kingdom under the essential use exemption allowed by the Montreal Protocol. About 40 per cent. of these metered dose inhalers will be used in the United Kingdom, the remainder being exported to other European Union countries and elsewhere. It is assumed that all the CFC used in the manufacture of metered dose inhalers will eventually be emitted to the atmosphere.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Electricity Generation

Mr. Prior: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the Government's forecast for the percentage of electricity produced from coal in the United Kingdom for (i) 1997, (ii) 2000, (iii) 2010, (iv) 2020 and (v) 2030. [14807]

Mr. Battle: Coal's share of fuel used in UK electricity generation was 43 per cent. in 1996. Energy projections for the UK were published by the previous administration as Energy Paper 65 in March 1995 which is available in the Library of the House.

The department is working on a new set of projections which will be published next year.

Export Licences

Ann Clwyd: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to her answer to the hon. Member for Don Valley of 30 October 1997, Official Report, column 870, to what extent she attributes the errors in export licensing data to (a) computer and (b) human error. [15315]

Mrs. Roche: A number of factors contributed to the situation:

(i) the computer was developed primarily as a licence application processing system (detailed information is retained in the licensing papers);

(ii) even simple data searches were found to require expert knowledge of the computer system;

(iii) information transferred electronically from preceding computers was shown to have contained significant errors, as was the input of new data;

(iv) in the interests of processing efficiency, and given that the full list of goods subject to licensing scrutiny was always detailed in case papers available to all Departments participating in the licensing process, only the most significant items of an application were recorded on the computer.

Airbus

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement concerning applications for grant aid for the A340-600 aircraft project by British Aerospace. [16098]

Mr. Battle: No final decision has yet been taken on the application from British Aerospace for launch aid in respect of the A340-500/600 project. Discussions with the company are continuing.

Mr. Jack: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment her Department has made of the potential impact on the United Kingdom aerospace industry of not providing Launch Aid in connection with British Aerospace's involvement in the Airbus A340-500 and 600 projects. [17278]

Mr. Battle: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Alyn and Deeside (Mr. Jones) today.

My Department has been considering the impact on the UK aerospace industry of its decision on launch aid, as part of its detailed appraisal of British Aerospace's application.

Action 2000

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what discussions the Minister had with the chairman of Taskforce 2000 prior to establishing Action 2000. [16137]

Mrs. Roche: My hon. Friend the Minister for Science, Energy and Industry met the Chairman of Taskforce 2000 on 14 July. I had further discussions with him about the century date change and related matters on 16 July and 25 September and on 22 July we co-chaired the Millennium IT Skills Summit.

Iraq

Mr. Flynn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has to reclaim from the Government of Iraq the unrecovered money paid in claims for arms-related equipment. [15980]

Mrs. Roche [holding answer 14 November 1997]: Iraq has large outstanding debts with official creditors (such as ECGD) and private creditors around the world. It is our objective to recover debt from the Government of Iraq, although this is not easy at present, while Iraqi assets remain frozen under UN Sanctions.

Minimum Wage

Mr. Healey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will set out in (a) domestic currency and (b) pounds sterling at purchasing power parity exchange rates, the statutory national minimum wage, on the minimum wage established through bargaining in key industries, in (i) each EU state, (ii) the USA and (iii) Japan. [14752]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 18 November 1997]: My department does not systematically collect information on all countries. What information is available is set out in the table.

National minimum wages in selected countries for 1997

	Local currency	Local currency rate	Period	PPP £ equivalent
Belgium	Belg. franc	44,185	month	796.74
France	Fre. franc	39.43	hour	4.07
Greece	drachma	5,746–6,321	day	17.55–19.30
Luxembourg	Lux. franc	46,275–55,530	month	786.33–943.59
Netherlands	guilder	2,243	month	734.66
Portugal	escudo	56,700	month	310.02
Spain	peseta	2,221	day	11.86
USA	dollar	5.15	hour	3.49
Japan	yen	4,521–5,252	day	17.72–20.58

The definition of the minimum wage varies across countries. Also, exemptions may apply for some workers and different rates may apply for youth workers.
Local Currency rates for 1997 as known at 28 July 1997.
Source for purchasing power parities (PPP), OECD, Main Economic Indicators, 10/97. PPP rates are for 1996.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which powers are exercisable (a) by the Energy Council of Ministers and (b) the European Parliament in respect of Community legislation whose basis is the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community as subsequently amended. [16927]

Mr. Battle: (a) Legislative acts of the Council under the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community (or the Euratom Treaty) are handled not by the Energy Council but by the General Affairs Council, except for research items, which are referred to the Research Council.

(b) There is no provision for co-decision under the Euratom Treaty, but the European Parliament has been consulted on legislation based on the Treaty. In addition, the Parliament may request the Commission to submit any appropriate proposal on matters on which it considers that a Community act is required for the purpose of implementing the Euratom treaty.

Scientific Research Associations (Taxation)

Mr. Jack: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if her Department's proposals to change the definition affecting the tax treatment of scientific research associations will have retrospective effect in relation to accounting periods ending in March 1996. [17583]

Mr. Battle: The position of approvals and the treatment of outstanding applications relating to earlier accounting periods are key issues being addressed by my Department's review of its administration of section 508 of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 initiated in December 1996.

Mr. Jack: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what factors led her Department to conduct its exercise to redefine scientific research associations; which current bodies or organisations are under scrutiny; and what are the implications for their tax status. [17531]

Mr. Battle: The Department initiated the review of its administration of section 508 in December 1996 of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 because in autumn 1996 it became concerned that over the years its procedures had become flawed and that consequently many previous approvals might be unsound. At present, the Department is looking at the approvals system and, once the review is complete, will consider the position of any bodies seeking approval.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Fish Stocks

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 22, concerning fish stocks, what information was given by his Department's scientists to the representatives of the fishing industry who met them on Thursday 13 November. [17285]

Dr. John Cunningham: The scientists concerned were staff of the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science and I have asked the Agency's Chief Executive to reply to the right hon. Member direct.

Letter from P. W. Greig-Smith to Mr. Michael Jack, dated 21 November 1997:

Dr. Cunningham has asked me to respond your Parliamentary Question concerning information given by this Department's Scientists to the representatives of the Fishing Industry on 13 November.[17285]

I would advise that the International Council for Exploration of the Sea's Advisory Committee on Fishery Management (ACFM) met from 22–31 October. At this meeting, ACFM prepared advice for the management of many of the commercial fish stocks important to the UK. Dr. J. Horwood (CEFAS) was the UK representative and Dr. R. Cook (FRS, Aberdeen) also attended.

On 13 November CEFAS scientists gave representatives of the fishing industry their summary of the expected ACFM advice. The attached table was handed to the industry. The final column is CEFAS' interpretation of the ACFM advice for catch limits in 1998. As was explained to the industry, these figures should be used with some caution. They are based upon the latest draft of the ACFM advice, and the figures are subject to change.

The final ACFM report is expected very soon.

Summary of ICES ACFM advice, agreed TACs and actual landings (k tonnes) 1985–91

			1985	1986	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991
Demersal
North Sea	Cod	ICES rec	<259	<130	<125	<148	<124	113	92
		Agreed TAC[a]	250	170	175	160	124	105	100
		Actual landings[a]	193	163	175	150	116	104	87
	Haddock	ICES rec	<209	<239	<120	<185	<68	50	48
		Agreed TAC[2,a]	207	230	140	185	68	50	50
		Actual landings[a]	165	169	112	109	78	54	49
	Whiting	ICES rec	<118	135	127	134	115	130	134
		Agreed TAC[2,a]	160	135	135	120	115	125	141
		Actual landings[a]	69	76	78	100	83	93	84
	Saithe	ICES rec	195	195	<198	156	170	120	125
		Agreed TAC[b]	200	240	173	165	170	120	125
		Actual landings[b]	200	164	149	105	92	88	99
	Plaice	ICES rec	130	<160	120	150	<175	171	<169
		Agreed TAC	200	180	150	175	185	180	175
		Actual landings	160	165	154	154	170	156	147
	Sole	ICES rec	15	12	11	11	14	25	27
		Agreed TAC	22	20	14	14	14	25	27
		Actual landings	24.2	18.2	17.4	21.6	21.8	35.1	34
English Channel (VIId, e)	Plaice	ICES rec	5.4	6.2	[4]6.8	[4]6.9	11.7	10.7	8.8
		Agreed TAC	6.5	6.9	8.3	[4]9.96	11.7	10.7	10.7
		Actual landings	7.4	8.6	10.3	12.9	11.1	11.6	9.7
English Channel (East VIId)	Sole	ICES rec	2.3	[4]2.6	[4]3.1	[4]3.4	3.8	3.7	3.4
		Agreed TAC	2.7	3.2	3.85	3.85	3.85	3.85	3.85
		Actual landings	3.9	3.9	4.90	3.90	4.2	4.0	4.4
English Channel (West VIIe)	Sole	ICES rec	1.3	1.3	1.3	1.3	1.0	0.9	0.54
		Agreed TAC	1.4	1.3	1.15	1.3	1.0	0.9	0.80
		Actual landings	1.4	1.4	1.2	1.4	1.2	1.1	0.70
English Channel and Celtic Sea	Cod	ICES rec VIId	—	—	—	—	[c]10.0	[c]10.5	[c]12.0
		ICES rec VIIf, g	—	—	—	7.0	8.6	9.2	4.5
		Agreed TAC	—	—	—	[b,c]22.0	[b,c]23.9	[b,c]24.0	[b,c]22.0
		Actual landings	—	—	—	29.8	29.2	18.2	12.8
	Whiting	ICES rec VIId	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
		ICES rec VIIf, g	—	—	—	7.0	7.9	8.4	8.0
		Agreed TAC	—	—	—	[4]18.5	[4]19.3	[4]24.0	[4]24.0
		Actual landings	—	—	—	21.2	22.5	18.8	20.2
Bristol Channel/Celtic Sea (VIIf, g)	Sole	ICES rec	1.2	1.2	1.6	0.9	1.0	1.2	1.1
		Agreed TAC	1.2	1.5	1.6	1.1	1.0	1.2	1.2
		Actual landings	1.33	1.60	1.22	1.15	1.0	1.2	1.1
	Plaice	ICES rec	1.3	1.6	[4]1.2	n/a	2.0	1.9	1.7
		Agreed TAC	1.8	1.8	1.8	2.5	2.5	1.9	1.9
		Actual landings	1.8	1.7	1.9	2.1	2.2	2.1	1.5
Irish Sea	Cod	ICES rec	8.8	10.7	10.3	10.1	<13.4	15.3	6.0
		Agreed TAC	15.0	15.0	15.0	15.0	15.0	15.3	10.0
		Actual landings	10.5	9.9	12.9	14.2	12.8	7.4	6.7
	Whiting	ICES rec	13.4	16.0	16.0	12.0	<11.0	8.3	6.4
		Agreed TAC	18.2	18.2	18.2	18.2	18.2	15.0	10.0
		Actual landings	18.2	12.4	14.4	11.9	13.4	10.7	10.0
	Plaice	ICES rec	4.0	5.0	5.0	4.8	5.8	5.1	3.3
		Agreed TAC	5.0	5.0	5.0	5.0	5.8	5.1	4.5
		Actual landings	5.1	4.8	6.2	5.0	4.4	3.3	2.5
	Sole	ICES rec	1.1	1.65	1.9	1.6	<1.5	1.5	1.3
		Agreed TAC	1.25	1.9	2.1	1.75	1.5	1.5	1.5
		Actual landings	1.1	2.0	2.8	2.0	1.8	1.6	1.2
NE Arctic	Cod	ICES rec	170	<446	<645	[e]530	300	172	215
		Agreed TAC	220	400	560	[e]590	300	160	215
		Actual landings	308	430	523	435	332	212	319
Pelagic
Herring	North Sea (north)	ICES rec[d]	166	235	600	500	484	373	363
	ICES IVa, b	Agreed TAC	—	500	560	500	484	385	370
		Actual landings	466	496	580	646	620	488	503
	North Sea (south) and	ICES rec[d]	62	42	[4]10	[4]5	[4]30	[4]30	[4]30
	English Channel	Agreed TAC	90	70	40	30	30	30	30
	(IVc, VIId)	Actual landings	70	51	45	52	79	61	61
	Irish Sea	ICES rec	5	6.3	4.3	[4]10.5	[4]5.5	[4]6.0	5.6
		Agreed TAC	5	6.3	4.5	10.5	6.0	7.0	6.0
		Actual landings	9.2	7.4	5.8	10.2	5.0	6.3	4.4
Mackerel	North Sea	ICES rec	0	0	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—
		Agreed TAC	37	55	55	55	49.2	45.2	65.5
		Actual landings	35	25	3	6	7	10	10
	Western	ICES rec	340	290	380	430	[4]500	480	500
		Agreed TAC[a]	415	367	405	573	495	525	575
		Actual landings	561	538	615	628	567	606	646
Sprat	North Sea	ICES rec	[4]—	<80	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	n/a	n/a
		Agreed TAC	153	100	57	[4]57	[4]59	[4]59	[4]55
		Actual landings	50	16	33	87	63	71	110

Summary of ICES ACFM advice, agreed TACs and actual landings (k tonnes) 1985–91

			1985	1986	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991
Other
Hake	Northern	ICES rec	—	—	—	[4]54	[4]54	[4]59	[4]59
		Agreed TAC	—	[4]48.9	[4]63.5	[4]66.2	[4]60.0	[4]65.1	[4]67.0
		Actual landings	65.7	59.9	63.3	64.8	66.5	59.9	57.6
Nephrops	North Sea	ICES rec	—	—	—	—	—	—	10.0
		Agreed TAC	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
		Actual landings	8.1	8.6	8.2	9.7	11.1	10.4	11.0
	Area VII	ICES rec	—	[3]20.0	[3]20.0	[3]20.0	[3]20.0	16.5	17.7
		Agreed TAC	—	24.7	24.7	24.7	26.0	26.0	19.0
		Actual landings	17.6	16.4	17.6	15.6	15.2	14.9	15.9
Anglerfish	Area VIIb–k[(f)] and VIIIa, b	ICES rec	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
		Agreed TAC	—	—	39.1	43	43	43	43
		Actual landings	—	—	29.5	28.5	30.0	29.3	25.0
Megrim	Area VIIb–k[(f)] and VIIIa, b	ICES rec	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
		Agreed TAC	—	—	16.5	18.1	18.1	18.1	18.1
		Actual landings	—	—	17.0	17.5	19.2	14.3	15.0

[1] Expected landings.
[2] Human consumption + industrial.
[3] Status quo as no specific recommendation.
[4] Precautionary TAC.
[5] STCF recommendation.
[6] Revised May 1988.
[7] Subsequently revised to 5.6.
[8] Lowest possible level.
n/a: not available.
[(a)] Includes IIa + IV.
[(b)] Includes IIa + IV + IIIa–d.
[(c)] Includes VIIe.
[(d)] Includes VIId–h.
[(e)] Includes VIII, IX, X and CECAF 34.1.1.
[(f)] Includes VIId–k.
[(g)] Includes IV + IIIa + VIId.
[(h)] Includes IV + VIId.
[(i)] Includes IIa (except EC zone), Vb + VII + VIIIa, b, d, e + XII + XIV.
[(j)] Includes VII + VIIIa, b, d, e.
ICES recommended figures are preferred or maximum levels.

Summary of ICES ACFM advice, agreed TACs and actual landings (k tonnes) 1992–98

			1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998
Demersal
North Sea	Cod	ICES rec	98	95	–102	132	141	115	153
		Agreed TAC[(a)]	100	101	102	120	130	115	—
		Actual landings[(a)]	98	105	94	120	106	[1]137	—
	Haddock	ICES rec	60	134	210	109	120	114	110
		Agreed TAC[2,(a)]	60	133	160	120	120	114	—
		Actual landings[(a)]	81	91	84	83	81	[1]131	—
	Whiting	ICES rec	121	88	–87	69	59	76	54
		Agreed TAC[2,(a)]	135	120	100	81	67	74	—
		Actual landings[(a)]	72	68	52	69	64	45	—
	Saithe	ICES rec	[1]102	93	–72	107	111	113	97
		Agreed TAC[(b)]	110	93	97	107	111	115	—
		Actual landings[(b)]	92	105	97	114	110	[1]118	—
	Plaice	ICES rec	<160	[1]170	[1]147	87	61	80	82
		Agreed TAC	175	175	165	115	81	91	—
		Actual landings	125	110	111	98	83	[1]93	—
	Sole	ICES rec	21	[1]29	[1]31	28	23	14.6	18.1
		Agreed TAC	25	32	32	30	23	18	—
		Actual landings	29	31	33	30	23	[1]20	—
English Channel (VIId, e)	Plaice	ICES rec	<9.6	6.1-7.7	[1]9.1	7.0	7.1	6.5	4.8
		Agreed TAC	9.6	8.5	9.1	8.0	7.5	7.1	—
		Actual landings	7.9	6.7	7.0	6.1	6.4	[1]6.7	—
English Channel (East VIId)	Sole	ICES rec	<2.7	2.8	<3.8	3.8	4.7	5.2	<4.5
		Agreed TAC	3.5	3.2	3.8	3.8	4.7	5.2	—
		Actual landings	4.1	4.4	4.6	4.5	5.0	(4.8)	—
English Channel (West VIIe)	Sole	ICES rec	0.77	0.7	1.0	[1]0.86	<0.68	0.69	0.67
		Agreed TAC	0.8	0.9	1.0	0.95	0.7	0.75	—
		Actual landings	0.8	0.8	0.7	0.7	0.58	[1]0.60	—
English Channel and Celtic Sea	Cod	ICES rec VIId	—	—	—	2.9	5.5	—	—
		ICES rec VIIf, g	<9.8	6.5	5.6	4.7	4.7	[4],[6]10.5	[7]13.7
		Agreed TAC	[4],[6]20.0	[4],[6]17.5	[4],[6]17.0	[4],[6]17.0	[4]20.0	[4]20.0	—
		Actual landings	14.1	14.1	14.7	17.1	[7]15.5	(15.9)[7]	—
	Whiting	ICES rec VIId	—	—	6.7	5.7	6.9	—	—
		ICES ref VIIf, g	[4]8.0	6.6	<9.4	8.2	<8.6	[4],[6]12.4	[7]14.0
		Agreed TAC	[4]22.0	[4]22.0	[4]22.0	[4]25.0	[4]28.0	[4]27.0	—
		Actual landings	19.3	22.8	28.3	30.0	[7]23.0	[7]16.2	—

Summary of ICES ACFM advice, agreed TACs and actual landings (k tonnes) 1992–98

			1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998
Bristol Channel/Celtic Sea (VIIf, g)	Sole	ICES rec	[1]1.1	—	1.0	1.0	0.8	0.8	0.7
		Agreed TAC	1.2	1.1	1.1	1.1	1.0	0.9	—
		Actual landings	1.0	0.9	1.0	1.2	1.0	[1]0.8	—
	Plaice	ICES rec	1.4	—	1.2	[1]1.3	0.93	1.10	1.0
		Agreed TAC	1.5	1.4	1.4	1.4	1.1	1.1	—
		Actual landings	1.2	1.1	1.1	1.0	0.95	[1]1.2	—
Irish Sea	Cod	ICES rec	10.0	10.2	3.7	3.9	5.4	5.9	6.2
		Agreed TAC	10.0	11.0	6.2	5.8	6.2	6.2	—
		Actual landings	7.2	7.6	5.4	4.6	4.8	[1]5.9	—
	Whiting	ICES rec	9.7	6.5	9.9	[1]8.3	9.8	7.5	3.8
		Agreed TAC	10.0	8.5	9.9	8.0	9.0	7.5	—
		Actual landings	12.8	9.2	7.9	7.0	4.5	[1]4.9	—
	Plaice	ICES rec	3.0	2.8	<3.7	[1]2.4	2.5	2.1	2.4
		Agreed TAC	3.8	2.8	3.1	2.8	2.45	2.1	—
		Actual landings	3.2	2.0	2.1	1.9	1.7	[1]2.1	—
	Sole	ICES rec	1.2	0.92	1.5	0.8	0.8	0.8	0.85
		Agreed TAC	1.35	1.0	1.5	1.3	1.0	1.0	—
		Actual landings	1.3	1.0	1.4	1.3	1.0	[1]0.9	—
NE Arctic	Cod	ICES rec	250	385	649	681	746	993	514
		Agreed TAC	356	500	700	700	700	850	—
		Actual landings	513	582	771	740	732	[1]840	—
Pelagic
Herring	North Sea (north) ICES IVa, b	ICES rec[2]	[1]396	290	296	[1]379	156	159	225–250
		Agreed TAC	380	380	390	390	156	134	—
		Actual landings	472	432	392	534	216	[1]361	—
	North Sea (south) and English Channel (IVc, VIId)	ICES rec[2]	[4]130	[4]50	[4]50	[4]50	—	—	—
		Agreed TAC	50	50	50	50	—	25	—
		Actual landings	74	85	73	63	50	—	—
	Irish Sea	ICES rec	6.6	4.9–7.4	[4]5.3	[4]<5.1	[4]5.0	none	none
		Agreed TAC	7.0	7.0	7.0	7.0	7.0	9.0	—
		Actual landings	5.3	4.4	4.8	5.1	5.3	n/a	—
Mackerel	North Sea	ICES rec	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—
		Agreed TAC	76.3	83.1	95.7	—	—	52.8	—
		Actual landings	n/a	n/a	n/a	—	n/a	n/a	—
	Western	ICES rec	[6]600	670	[6]831	530	280	381	420–580
		Agreed TAC[7]	670	730	790	608	425	364	—
		Actual landings	742	805	798	729	529	[1]530	—
Sprat	North Sea	ICES rec	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	none	none	none
		Agreed TAC	[8]55	114	114	175	200	[4][8]150	—
		Actual landings	124	200	324	357	137	n/a	—
Other
Hake	Northern	ICES rec	[6]61.5	—	<46	31	39.1	54.2	44.8
		Agreed TAC	[6]69.0	71.5	60	55.1	51.1	60.1	—
		Actual landings	56.6	52.1	51.3	56.2	47.8	[1]52.1	—
Nephrops	North Sea	ICES rec	10.6	10.2	[4]12.5	[4]12.5	[4]12.5	[4]12.5	14.6
		Agreed TAC	12.0	12.0	13.0	15.2	15.2	15.2	—
		Actual landings	9.6	12.8	14.4	14.7	13.5	n/a	—
	Area VII	ICES rec	16.5	17.2	[4]17.2	[4]17.2	[4]17.2	[4]17.2	17.2
		Agreed TAC	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	23.0	23.0	—
		Actual landings	15.8	16.7	17.5	20.2	17.1	n/a	—
Anglerfish	Area VIIb–k[f] and VIIIa, b	ICES rec	—	—	—	—	30.3	34.3	33.0
		Agreed TAC	43	25.1	23.9	23.2	30.4	34.3	—
		Actual landings	21.1	20.1	21.9	25.0	26.9	[9]29.8	—
Megrim	Area VIIb–k[f] and VIIIa, b	ICES rec	—	—	—	—	16.6	19.1	14.5
		Agreed TAC	18.1	21.5	20.3	22.6	21.2	25.0	—
		Actual landings	15.5	14.9	13.5	15.5	14.4	[1]14.3	—

[1] Expected landings.
[2] Human consumption + industrial.
[3] Status quo as no specific recommendation.
[4] Precautionary TAC.
[5] STCF recommendation.
[6] Revised May 1988.
[7] Subsequently revised to 5.6.
[8] Lowest possible level.
n/a: not available.
[a] Includes IIa + IV.
[b] Includes IIa + IV + IIIa–d.
[c] Includes VIIe.
[d] Includes VIId–h.
[e] Includes VIII, IX, X and CECAF 34.1.1.
[f] Includes VIId–k.
[g] Includes IV + IIIa + VIId.
[h] Includes IV + VIId.
[i] Includes IIa (except EC zone), Vb + VII + VIIIa, b, d, e + XII + XIV.
[j] Includes VII + VIIIa, b, d, e.
ICES recommended figures are preferred or maximum levels.
In many cases 1998 figures are estimates of possible Commission proposals.

Unpasteurised Milk

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many people were medically affected as the result of drinking unpasteurised milk in each of the last five years. [17282]

Dr. John Cunningham: Information is not routinely collected on individual cases of illness.

Raw cows' drinking milk has been shown by surveillance studies to contain pathogens, and some data are available on illnesses associated with particular foods following outbreaks of food poisoning.

The Public Health Laboratory Service has published data in 'General outbreaks of infectious intestinal disease associated with milk and dairy products in England and Wales between 1992 and 1996'. This can be found in the 'Communicable Disease Report', Volume 7, Review number 3 dated 7 March 1997.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the powers available to him to ban the use of unpasteurised milk in England and Wales. [17284]

Dr. John Cunningham: Section 16 (1) (f) of the Food Safety Act 1990 empowers Ministers to make regulations prohibiting the sale of food where it appears necessary or expedient to them in the interests of the public health or to protect or promote the interests of consumers.

In accordance with established procedure, any proposal to proceed with a ban, e.g. on the sale in England and Wales of raw cows' milk for drinking, would need to be notified under the Technical Standards Directive (83/189/EEC), to give the European Commission and the other member states the opportunity to express a view.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will publish the concerns expressed to him by the Advisory Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Food about the microbiological quality of unpasteurised cows' milk for drinking. [17283]

Dr. John Cunningham: The Advisory Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Food has considered reports of two surveys on the microbiological status of raw cows' milk for drinking. The Committee was very concerned to note that these surveys showed that raw cows' drinking milk contained significant amounts of faecal contamination indicator micro-organisms as well as, in some cases, food poisoning pathogens. These concerns were publicised in the press release of the Committee's 18 September meeting, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House.

Sheep Annual Premium

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if an underspend on sheep annual premium in the financial year 1997–98 could result in an increase in the level of Britain's Fontainebleau rebate during 1998–99. [17280]

Dr. John Cunningham: An underspend on sheep annual premium in the 1997 EU Budget could theoretically increase the UK's Fontainebleau abatement during 1998. However, it is not possible to be sure of the effect for the UK's abatement, for the reasons given in the reply to the right hon. Member by my hon. Friend the Economic Secretary to the Treasury on 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 115.

Food Priorities

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 21, when he estimates it will be appropriate for him to publish the details of the United Kingdom, agriculture, fisheries and food priorities for the period of the United Kingdom's presidency of the European Union. [17281]

Dr. John Cunningham: I will announce my presidency priorities after the Luxembourg presidency has substantially completed its business.

Agriculture Schemes

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which Community-funded agricultural schemes affecting the United Kingdom he estimates will be underspent in relation to their expected levels of expenditure at the end of the current financial year; and if he will make a statement giving details of projected underspends for each affected scheme. [17279]

Dr. John Cunningham: Lower than expected levels of expenditure on EU-funded agricultural schemes do not automatically lead to an underspend since reduced expenditure is mirrored in a corresponding reduction in EU receipts.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 24 November 1997

TREASURY

Tax Avoidance Schemes

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if, in his review of avoidance of direct taxes, he will examine the use of Jersey-based capital gains tax avoidance schemes by British companies. [12587]

Dawn Primarolo: Yes.

Economic and Monetary Union

Ms Kelly: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the legislation which would need to be enacted prior to the United Kingdom joining a single currency. [15338]

Mrs. Liddell: The European Communities (Amendment) Act 1993 requires an Act of Parliament before the UK would be able to move to the third stage of economic and monetary union. In addition, as confirmed in the Chancellor's statement on 27 October 1997, Official Report, columns 583–88, whenever a decision to enter is taken by the Government, it should be put to a referendum of the British people, and this would require legislation. Separately, the Bank of England would need to be compatible with the terms of the Treaty which apply if we were to join and there would be changes needed to related UK legislation.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from what decisions relating to the European Single Currency—other than those determined in treaties or protocols concerning the operation of the European Monetary Institute, the European System of Central Banks or the statutes and duties of the European central banks—member states unable or unwilling to participate in the single currency, or the representatives of their respective central banks, will be excluded. [15436]

Mrs. Liddell: All decisions relating the European Central Bank (ECB) will be taken pursuant to the Treaty establishing the European Community, including its various Protocols, in particular Nos. 3, 4, 8 and 11, which collectively lay down the rights and obligations of participating and non-participating member states and their National Central Banks.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representation he has made concerning the formation of a working group of first-round EMU participants distinct from the ECOFIN group. [16987]

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy on the proposal of the French Government for a Conseil de l'Euro. [17002]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 19 November 1997]: The UK is in agreement with all other Member States that the ECOFIN Council will remain the decision-making body for economic and financial issues after the start of stage three of EMU, as it is now.

Tax and Benefits Task Force

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the members of the Tax and Benefits Task Force chaired by Mr. Martin Taylor. [16845]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Martin Taylor chairs a Task Force on which the Treasury, Inland Revenue, the Department of Social Security and Department for Education and Employment are represented by senior officials. It is not the usual practice to name individual officials.

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16782]

Mrs. Liddell: The Chancellor's Department and Agencies have made 31 public appointments since 1 May 1997, of which eight (26 per cent.) receive remuneration. The information about ethnic origin cannot be provided since to do so would risk identifying individuals without their consent. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has provided information for all departments in an aggregated form.

Wealth Tax

Dr. Vis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will calculate the revenue impact of imposing an additional 1 per cent. annual tax on individuals whose assets exceed £1 million. [17040]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not possible to assess precisely the number and wealth of millionaires in the United Kingdom at any one time. The only available estimates are derived from inheritance tax data on a year-of-death basis. On this basis it is provisionally estimated that living individuals with net marketable wealth—that is, excluding pension rights—exceeding £1 million in 1994, the latest available year, owned assets totalling £116 billion, of which 1 per cent. represents just over £1 billion.

Exchange Rates

Dr. Fox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 13 November, Official Report, column 625, on exchange rates, if he will publish the available evidence which suggests that the use of foreign currency is fairly stable over time. [16899]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The following figures, which are the most recent available, show exports and imports invoiced in foreign currency from 1979–88. It suggests that the proportion of trade invoiced in foreign currency was generally stable over that period, after allowing for a likely once-off adjustment by businesses to the lifting of foreign exchange controls.

Proportion of UK exports invoiced in sterling and foreign currency (by value) 1979–88[1]

Year	Invoiced in currency of destination country[2]	Invoiced in US dollars	Invoiced in other foreign currencies	Invoiced in sterling
1979	12	12	2	74
1980	11	11	2	76
1981	16	9	1	74
1982	18	15	2	65
1983	19	14	2	65
1984	22	15	0	63
1985	23	18	0	59
1986	26	20	3	54
1987	24	19	3	57
1988	24	15	3	62

[1] Data 1979 based on annual figures; 83–88 based on November transactions except for 1987, which is based on May data.

[2] 'Invoiced in currency of destination country' includes US dollar for US/UK trade.

Proportion of UK imports invoiced in sterling and foreign currency (by value) 1979–88[1]

Year	Invoiced in importing country currency[2]	Invoiced in US dollars	Invoiced in other foreign currencies	Invoiced in sterling
1979	38	21	3	38
1980	38	27	3	32
1981	41	23	1	3
1982	41	22	2	34
1983	44	19	2	35
1984	41	25	1	34
1985	43	24	1	32
1986	46	17	2	37
1987	46	13	1	40
1988	41	16	2	43

Notes:

[1] Data 1979–83 annual figures; 83–88 based on September transactions except for 1987 which is based on March data.

[2] 'Invoiced in currency of importing country' includes US for US/UK trade.

Sources:

'British Business' 31 May 1985, 17 January 1986 and 24 April 1987 (DTI) and 'Business Bulletin' 15 December 1989 (CSO).

Airbus

Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the reasons for his Department not having approved the grant of launch aid to British Aerospace in respect of its involvement in the Airbus A340–500 and 600 aircraft. [17255]

Mr. Darling [holding answer 21 November 1997]: The Government have yet to announce their decision concerning the application for assistance from British Aerospace.

National Asset Register

Mr. Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to be able to publish the National Asset Register. [17817]

Mr. Darling: I am publishing The National Asset Register today. Copies are available in the Vote Office.

The National Asset Register fulfils the Government's Manifesto commitment to publish a thorough inventory of the assets they own. Publication demonstrates the Government's commitment to greater openness and accountability by letting the nation see what assets the nation owns.

This is the first time that any Government have had such a comprehensive picture of all the assets they hold. The National Asset Register will be an invaluable starting point in helping departments to identify whether they are making the best use of their assets and achieving value for money. It demonstrates the Government's commitment to maintaining prudent and sound financial management.

To help departments do this the Treasury has also introduced two new measures to encourage departments to get the best from their assets:

First, at present any receipts from the sale of surplus assets must be surrendered to the Consolidated Fund unless the Treasury agrees that the department concerned can retain them to increase its gross spending power. (The receipts then count as negative public expenditure so do not increase net spending or the Control Total.)

From 1 April 1998 until 1 April 2001 when the new resource budgeting arrangements are in place, the Treasury will allow departments to retain 100 per cent. of the receipts from assets of which they dispose, subject to certain limits. These limits are that:

the value of an individual sale does not exceed £100 million;

the value of the total sales for any financial year does not exceed 3 per cent. of a department's cash-limited vote; and the receipts can only be used to finance capital spending. They cannot be used to finance current spending.

These limits are necessary to ensure that these sales do not distort the Government's overall spending allocations.

Second, Departments are also being encouraged to make better use of assets they retain. This more effective management may include increasing commercial activity which has generally been constrained by lack of incentives for departments and by current Treasury guidance.

Under the new arrangements Departments will be helped to maximise the value they retain from their assets by being able to retain receipts from commercial activity;

being encouraged to develop relationships with the private sector to bring in any necessary skills and expertise;

the Treasury's Private Finance Task Force will provide support to Departments; and this new approach in being developed in partnership with departments which are being consulted on the arrangements.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Council what is her policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if she will make a statement. [16283]

Mrs. Ann Taylor: All press releases issued on my behalf are posted to the relevant Opposition spokesman on the day of release. Press notices are not routinely faxed to Opposition party spokesmen unless requested. There has been no change since 1 May.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Council if she will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if she will make a statement. [16284]

Mrs. Ann Taylor: In my small Department it has not bee necessary to issue detailed guidance on the dissemination of information.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Student Loans

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what will be the total loan available to students whose parents are not required to provide a parental contribution for those undertaking higher education for (a) three years, (b) four years, (c) five years, (d) six years, (e) seven years and (f) eight years; and what is his estimate of how long the loan will take to repay in each case if a graduate earns (i) 50 per cent. average earnings, (ii) 75 per cent. average earnings, (iii) 85 per cent. average earnings, (iv) average earnings, (v) 125 per cent. average earnings, (vi) 150 per cent. average earnings, (vii) twice average earnings and (viii) three times average earnings. [16429]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 November 1997]: The table following sets out the estimated maximum amount of loan available to students studying outside London and living away from home during their studies, and the estimated number of years it would take to repay these loans. It should be noted, however, that the vast majority of students will be on courses lasting not more than four years. Of those few on courses lasting longer than four years, medical and dental students might also be eligible for income-related bursaries from the Department of Health to help with living costs.

Maximum loan available to students and estimated length of repayment under new student support arrangements

Earnings (as a percentage of average earnings)

Number of years of study	Maximum loan available (1990–00 prices) (£)	50 per cent.	75 per cent.	85 per cent.	100 per cent.	125 per cent.	150 per cent.	200 per cent.	300 per cent.
		Number of years taken to repay loans
3	10,395	[1]—	17	13	10	7	5	4	3
4	14,020	[1]—	21	16	12	9	7	5	3
5	17,645	[1]—	25	19	15	10	8	6	4
6	21,270	[1]—	28	22	17	12	9	7	4
7	24,890	[1]—	32	25	19	14	11	8	5
8	28,520	[1]—	34	27	21	15	12	8	5

[1] Loans never fully repaid. 'Average earnings' have been taken from the 'New Earnings Survey 1997'. Average graduate earnings would be expected to increase more rapidly than average earnings for full-time workers as a whole, thus reducing the average length of the repayment period for any given amount of loan;

Repayments will not begin until a graduate has a gross annual income of £10,000 and will stop if at any time their income falls below this threshold;

The figures for 'maximum loan available' are based on the assumption that the graduates enter higher education in 1999–2000 and are therefore eligible for a 100 per cent. maintenance loan (as opposed to the 75 per cent. loan available in the 1998–99 transitional year). They also assume that loans will be uprated annually in line with inflation.

Child Care

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to build on the Child care Consultation carried out by the last Government. [17274]

Mr. Alan Howarth: We have already taken action to improve childcare by extending the childcare disregard and offering young people the opportunity to obtain training and work experience in childcare as part of the New Deal programme. We are currently developing a National Childcare Strategy which will help parents, especially women, to balance family and working life and I will make an announcement in the first part of next year.

Student Fees

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list those non-degree education courses which will be subject to the Government's new student fees policy. [16541]

Dr. Howells: Undergraduate full-time courses of higher education leading to an HND or DipHE or to a certificate, diploma or other academic award comparable to a first degree will be subject to the new arrangements for student support starting in autumn 1998. Postgraduate and part-time courses of initial teacher training will also be covered. However, we have already announced that students on PGCE courses will continue to receive free tuition.

Teachers (Advanced Skilled Status)

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what estimate he has made of the percentage of teachers who achieve advanced skilled teacher status. [16909]

Ms Estelle Morris: The Government intends to introduce a new career grade of Advanced Skills Teacher to reward the best teachers who are prepared to take on additional roles contributing tc the quality of teaching in their schools. In the first instance, it is proposed that the new grade could be introduced on a pilot basis in September 1998. Further decisions will be taken following the pilots.

University Admissions (Oxford and Cambridge)

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what proportion of undergraduate students admitted to Oxford and Cambridge universities came from outside the European Union in the last year for which figures are available. [16760]

Dr. Howells: The most recent data available are for academic year 1996–97 and are given in the table:

Entrants[1] to undergraduate courses 1996–97

University	Percentage of non-EU undergraduate entrants
Oxford	7.2
Cambridge	8.0

[1] Students on their first year of study.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what proportion of undergraduate students admitted to Oxford and Cambridge universities came from grant-maintained schools in the most recent year for which figures are available. [16857]

Dr. Howells: The information requested is not held centrally. I understand that the Admissions Offices of both universities do produce annual statistics along these lines and my hon. Friend might care to speak to them directly.

Student Maintenance Grant

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) how many (a) first-year, (b) second-year, (c) third-year and (d) fourth-year undergraduate students at Oxford and Cambridge universities qualified for a maintenance grant in each of the last five years; [16758]

(2) if he will list the proportion for each year of the last five years of (a) first-year, (b) second-year, (c) third-year and (d) fourth-year undergraduate students attending all United Kingdom universities who qualified for a maintenance grant. [16759]

Dr. Howells: Information is not collected centrally on maintenance awards by year of course nor on awards made to students at individual universities. The table below shows the percentage of mandatory award holders from England and Wales who received full, partial and nil maintenance grants in each of the last five years.

Mandatory awards in England and Wales[1]

Academic years 1991–92 to 1995–96 — Percentage of award holders receiving full, partial and nil rates of grant

	1991–92[2]	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96
Full maintenance grant	39	42	44	45	45
Partial maintenance grant	36	34	33	32	30
Nil maintenance grant	25	24	22	23	24

Source:
F503G
Notes:
[1] Made by LEAs in England and Wales to students normally domiciled in their area who are studying in the United Kingdom. Includes awards made to postgraduate students on courses of initial teacher training.
[2] Excluding awards made by the London Residuary Body for which full details are not available.

University Funding

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list the amount of university funding per student in England in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96, (c) 1996–97 and (d) 1997–98; and if he will make a statement. [16935]

Dr. Howells: Public funding in cash terms per higher education student in England paid through grants to the Higher Education Funding Council for England and the Teacher Training Agency and through publicly funded tuition fees was £4,973 in 1994–95; £4,976 in 1995–96; £4,803 in 1996–97; and is £4,858 in 1997–98.

Age Discrimination

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the protection afforded under (a) European Union and (b) United Kingdom law to employees against age discrimination. [17044]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Employees in the UK are afforded protection under employment legislation. However, there is no specific age discrimination legislation in either the United Kingdom or the European Union.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what guidance his agencies issue to (a) employers and (b) employees about age discrimination in the work place. [17041]

Mr. Andrew Smith: My colleagues and I take every opportunity to explain to employers the benefits of a diverse workforce. The Employment Service encourages employers to recruit on merit, irrespective of age. It also encourages jobseekers to treat age as a positive asset in jobsearch and provides advice on handling objection to employment which may be due to age.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) what is the Government's policy on age discrimination in the work place; [17042]

(2) what proposals his Department has to tackle age discrimination in the work place. [17043]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Government believes that age discrimination in employment is unfair and makes no economic sense, either for business or society. I told my hon. Friend the Member for Walsall North on 22 May 1997, Official Report, column 825, that I intended to consult widely on the best approach to this issue. The consultation is taking place.

LEA Funding

Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what criteria are laid down by his Department for LEAs obtaining support for bids under the New Deal scheme for replacing old school buildings; and if he will make a statement. [17024]

Mr. Byers: We issued guidance to Local Education Authorities (LEAs) on how to bid for the next tranche of New Deal for Schools funding on 5 November. In deciding allocations, we shall consider LEAs plans to meet their most urgent building needs as a whole. We are asking LEAs to assess the condition of their school buildings objectively in four priority bands. This will allow us to compare the needs of LEAs consistently across the country.

Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the procedure followed by his Department in approving funding for design work on the replacement of old school buildings and in allocating funding for the replacement of such schools. [17025]

Mr. Byers: For county schools, we do not allow separately for design fees when we allocate Annual Capital Guidelines (ACGs) or Supplementary Credit Approvals (SCAs); design fees are part of the project costs which LEAs meet from borrowing and other sources of funding at their disposal. For voluntary aided and special agreement schools, LEAs may bid for grant aid for design fees in the annual capital bidding round in October each year or, in the case of statutory proposals, before publication. The annual bidding letter sets out the priorities for distributing resources to schools. Authorities may bid to replace a school in the Exceptional Basic Need (EBN) category. EBN funding is only given if the building will have to be taken out of use within the next twelve months; repair is impracticable; and no alternative provision exists.

For New Deal for Schools allocations in 1997–98, we gave priority to bids to cover the development costs of innovative Public Private Partnerships and building work which could be completed between 30 September 1997 and 31 March 1998. No whole-school replacements were supported.

Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list those schemes included in the 1997–98 financial year bids for school replacements which are due for completion by 31 March 1998. [17026]

Mr. Byers: No Annual Capital Guideline or Supplementary Credit Approval cover, grant aid for governors costs, or grant through the New Deal for Schools is being provided in 1997–98 for whole school replacements scheduled for completion before 31 March 1998.

Lancaster Adult College

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the allocation of additional resources to Lancaster Adult College. [17546]

Dr. Howells: On 12 November, my right hon. Friend set out the Government's vision and priorities for further education. He announced additional funding for the sector next year, totalling £83 million. The Further Education Funding Council will take decisions, in the light of guidance from my right hon. Friend, on the general principles to be applied to funding for the academic year 1998–99. Allocations of funding to sector colleges, and external institutions like Lancaster Adult College, are the responsibility of the Council which will make them early next year.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Local Government (South-East England)

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what steps the Government have taken to meet local government associations and council leaders for authorities covering South-East England since 1 May. [16504]

Mr. Raynsford: My Ministerial colleagues and I have met on a number of occasions with representatives of the Local Government Association, the Association of London Government and individual council leaders since 1 May, to discuss a wide range of topics, including the London and South East Regional Planning Conference (SERPLAN).

Rural England White Paper

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if the Government intend to continue the updating of statistics which the 1995 White Paper on Rural England and its 1996 update emphasised the importance of updating; and if he will make a statement. [16506]

Angela Eagle: We have no plans to publish an update of the commitments set out in the previous Administration's White Papers on Rural England, but statistics on issues affecting the countryside continue to be collected and updated. Much of this information is published.

For example, we will be undertaking a major national survey of the habitats, plants, landscape features and land types of the British Countryside to mark the end of the Millennium. Countryside Survey 2000 will update and extend previous surveys undertaken at intervals over the last 20 years.

Biocidal Products Directive

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what are the total projected costs to British business of the amended European Union directive on the placing of biocidal products on the market; and what discussions he has had with British business interests on this matter. [16984]

Angela Eagle: I have had no direct discussions with British business about the Biocidal Products Directive. The Health and Safety Executive have consulted business on all aspects of this directive through regular meetings of a working group on biocides.

When the directive is implemented, British business will benefit from the opening up of the EU-wide market in biocidal products and from the introduction of a single risk assessment procedure for approval of products, involving mutual recognition of product authorisations in all member states. HSE's estimate of the costs to industry of implementing the directive are set out in the cost benefit assessment (CBA) appended to the Department's Explanatory Memorandum 9600/97 submitted in August 1997. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Costs are estimated on the basis of the additional costs over and above those which would be incurred by a compliance with existing chemical control regimes. The CBA shows estimated one-off costs in the range of £5–£20 million, with annual costs of around £6.7 million, depending on the number of new products placed on the market. This estimate of annual costs takes account of the significant reduction in costs achieved by the simplified administrative procedures negotiated by the United Kingdom. HSE are currently updating the cost estimates in the CBA in discussion with the Chemical Industries Association.

Coastguards

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if he will list the locations of the permanently manned coast stations planned for 2001 which will have responsibility for marine and coastal safety in the Irish Sea; [16977]

(2) if he will make a statement on the provision of coastguard services for the North West of England following the proposed closure of the Liverpool Centre in 2000. [16973]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Coastguard Agency plans that in the year 2001, the following permanently manned coastguard stations will have responsibility for marine and coastal safety in the Irish Sea:

Maritime Rescue Sub Centre (MRSC) Belfast

MRSC Holyhead

MRSC Milford Haven

Following the closure of Liverpool in 2000, the level of provision of coastguard services in the North West will be unaffected. Radio sites will remain at Calbeck, Walney Island, Blackpool, Liverpool and Heswall and will be controlled by MRSC Holyhead. An additional Sector Manager will be located at Liverpool.

Local Authority Spending

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions by how much local authority spending increases for each 1 per cent. rise in the GDP deflator. [16870]

Mr. Raynsford: There is no automatic link between inflation in the economy generally, as measured by any rise in the GDP deflator, and local authority spending. The impact would depend on the rate of increase in prices for the particular services and goods purchased by authorities, and on authorities' budgetary reactions to these pressures.

Bus Lanes

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how much has been spent on bus lane cameras since 1 May. [16840]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Traffic Director for London is currently developing a trial in north London as part of a project to test the use of cameras to enforce bus lanes, but nothing has been spent on cameras since 1 May. We understand that the London local authorities are also working towards using cameras to enforce bus lanes but we have no information on how much money they might have spent on cameras.

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many people have been successfully prosecuted for driving in bus lanes since 1 May. [16841]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The information requested is not separately identified in the statistics collected centrally.

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the average number of police man hours spent each week studying the film from bus lane cameras. [16843]

Ms Glenda Jackson: From 5 December prosecutions will begin in the Traffic Director for London's project in north London to test cameras to enforce bus lanes. He estimates that it will then require about two police man hours per week to study the film from the cameras.

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what estimate he has made of the revenue expected from fines for driving in bus lanes during the next financial year. [16842]

Ms Glenda Jackson: No estimates are made of future fine revenue for specific offences.

Social Housing

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what annual targets have been set for social housing construction. [16974]

Mr. Raynsford: My Department has not set annual targets for social housing construction. Official estimates of the newly arising need for social housing in England over the period 1991–2001, published in 1995, indicate a requirement for 60,000 to 100,000 lettings per year.

My Department has commissioned the Department of Applied Economics at Cambridge University to carry out a feasibility study of an economic model of housing need for the period 1996–2006. Ministers have not yet reached conclusions on this research, or on the proportion of housing need which will be met by means other than new construction. A report on the research will be published shortly.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will seek to negotiate an enforcement mechanism for reviewing carbon dioxide emission targets at Kyoto. [16868]

Mr. Meacher: Both the UK and the EU believe that the targets to be agreed in Kyoto should be legally binding. We consider that targets, as well as other commitments in the Protocol, must be backed by a strong compliance regime. However, the details of the regime provided for in the Protocol will be elaborated after Kyoto.

Lord Sainsbury

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he last met Lord Sainsbury in an official capacity; and what subjects were discussed. [16836]

Mr. Prescott: I met Lord Sainsbury of Turville on 20 October 1997 for the first and only time since the General Election. We had a wide-ranging discussion on a number of issues relating to the policy areas of my Department. In particular, the meeting covered rail freight, lorry weights, mixed-use housing and retail developments and the speed and consistency of the planning process generally.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions by how much the interest rate bill of local authorities rises for each 1 per cent. rise in interest rates. [16861]

Mr. Raynsford: I estimate that English local authorities currently hold about £5 billion in variable rate debt, on which additional interest payments of £50 million would arise if interest rates rose by 1 per cent. generally.

Further, if authorities borrow an additional £2 billion in 1997–98, broadly in line with the issue of new credit approvals, then a 1 per cent. rise in interest rates would increase interest payments on this new borrowing by about £20 million.

Local authorities currently hold around £10 billion in bank deposits and other short-term investments and might therefore earn additional interest of up to £100 million, if rates rose by 1 per cent.

However, the additional costs or income arising from the increase in interest rates would tend to be offset over time by compensating changes in HRA subsidy and Revenue Support Grant paid to local authorities by central government.

Tourist Coaches (London)

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the adequacy of parking facilities for tourist coaches in London; and what plans he has to make improvements. [16791]

Ms Glenda Jackson: In London, the provision of coach parking and its enforcement is generally the responsibility of the local authorities. We aim to encourage the local authorities, the coach and tourist industries and other interested parties to discuss and implement measures to assist the operation and parking of coaches.

Acid Rain

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the effect of acid rain on Britain's trees. [17170]

Angela Eagle: Maps of acid deposition in the UK based on work carried out for my Department have recently been published in reports by the Review Group on Acid Rain and the Critical Loads Advisory Group. Copies have been deposited in the House of Commons Library.

Research into the sensitivity of trees to acid deposition is being carried out both in the UK and elsewhere in Europe. From the research, maps of the sensitivity of forest ecosystems to acid deposition have been developed on a UK and European scale. The areas of the UK forest at risk of damage can be identified by combining the maps of sensitivity and acid deposition.

In addition, surveys of woodland tree condition in the UK are carried out annually. While these do not assess directly the impact of acid rain, the have provided evidence that, during the past few years, the previous decline in tree health has been reversed.

Acid rain and damage to sensitive ecosystems including trees is an on-going transboundary problem. The UK was one of the first countries to ratify the Second Sulphur Protocol under the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) Convention on Long Range Transboundary Air Pollution. This commits the UK to an 80 per cent. reduction in its 1980 sulphur emissions by 2010. My Department is currently taking an active part in negotiations in the EU and UNECE aiming to provide further protection to the environment from acid deposition.

English Partnerships (Allocation of Funds)

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list, by region, the amount of money in each of the last five financial years which English Partnerships allocated to (a) housing development, (b) employment, and (c) retail development. [16894]

Angela Eagle [holding answer: 20 November 1997]: English Partnerships became fully operational in April 1994, with statutory objectives focusing on the sustainable regeneration of areas of need promoting job creation, inward investment and environmental improvements through the reclamation and development of vacant, derelict and underused land and buildings. It operates through broadly based strategic partnerships throughout the English regions with local authorities, the private sector, voluntary bodies and others.

Although English Partnerships does not keep information in the form requested, the table sets out, by region, English Partnerships' approved investment by development type under its Partnership Investment Programme, over its first three years of operation.

Approved Partnership Investment Programme

£ million

	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
North East Region
Housing	0.584	3.408	5.022
Retail	1.453	—	2.670
Other
Commercial/Industrial	16.374	8.574	47.594
Total	18.411	11.982	55.286
North West Region
Housing	11.628	4.223	6.440
Retail	0.300	2.874	6.416
Other
Commercial/Industrial	14.878	37.137	39.086
Total	26.806	44.234	51.942
Yorkshire and Humberside
Housing	1.018	4.913	1.926
Retail	—	—	2.744
Other
Commercial/Industrial	8.861	18.760	34.276
Total	9.879	23.673	38.946
Midlands
Housing	0.805	1.777	0.845
Retail	3.370	0.982	0.546
Other
Commercial/Industrial	34.444	37.385	44.107
Total	38.619	40.144	45.498
London and South East
Housing	8.287	0.705	2.084
Retail	6.000	—	—
Other
Commercial/Industrial	6.800	20.694	26.700
Total	21.087	21.399	28.784
South West
Housing	0.113	—	0.200
Retail	—	—	1.400
Other
Commercial/Industrial	—	9.321	26.113
Total	0.113	9.321	27.713
Total all regions	114.915	150.753	248.169

Fishing Vessels (Safety)

Mr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 18 November, Official Report, column 127, (1) if he will list the organisations and other interested parties which were consulted over the proposed Code of Safe Working Practices for Fishing Vessels' and if he will make a statement; [17553]

(2) when the new code of safe working practices for fishing vessel will be published. [17552]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I have asked the Chief Executive of the Marine Safety Agency to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Mr. Norman Godman, dated 24 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions has asked me to reply to your Questions relating to the new Code of Safe Working Practice for Fishermen.

The first draft of the Code has recently been prepared for the Marine Safety Agency (MSA) by the Sea Fish Industry Authority. The MSA is convening an early meeting of the Fishing Industry Safety Group's Technical Sub Group to discuss the draft Code and to consider its further development.

Publication of the Code, which will provide guidance on the regulations which implement the Framework Directive on the introduction of measures to encourage improvements in the safety and health of workers at work and associated daughter directives, is dependent on progress on its development and on consultation with the fishing industry. We aim to introduce the regulations to implement the Directive early in 1998 and, subject to completion of the Code, to bring them into force by 31 March 1998.

CITES

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions for what reasons the Government (a) abstained from the vote to downlist three populations of African elephants at the CITES conference and (b) agreed to an exemption to the ban on ivory sales by Botswana, Namibia and Zimbabwe. [17578]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Environment to my hon. Friend the Member for Barnsley, East and Mexborough (Mr. Ennis) on 8 July, Official Report, column 449, which reports the main decisions taken by the Conference.

Schools (Safe Routes)

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what measures his Department is taking to encourage more children to walk to school. [17432]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Lancaster and Wyre (Mr. Dawson) on 18 November, Official Report, columns 137–38.

EU Structural Funds

Mr. Peter Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what was the level of Objective 5b funding in the less-favoured areas of the North of England in (i) 1993, (ii) 1994, (iii) 1995 and (iv) 1996. [17310]

Angela Eagle: European Funds under Objective 5b became available for the Northern Uplands from 1 January 1994. However they must be supplemented by other funds from the public and private sectors. The full amount of the funding available is as follows:

£ million

	European structural funds	Public/private sectors	Total
1993	—	—	—
1994	8.8	12.4	21.2
1995	11.5	16.4	27.9
1996	13.1	18.8	31.9

South Downs

Mr. Lepper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement about a timetable for public consultation on the long-term structure for the management of the South Downs; and if he will indicate the form that consultation will take. [16723]

Angela Eagle: At our request, the Countryside Commission is carrying out the consultation on the long-term arrangements for the South Downs. A conference will take place in Brighton on 26 November to launch the consultation document and mark the beginning of the further debate on the future of the Downs. Copies of the consultation document will be available from the Commission's London office from that date. Copies will also be freely available at libraries within the South Downs and surrounding towns from the following week. Written views are requested by 12 January 1998 when the Commission will start its analysis, but any significant points made later in January can still be taken into account. The Commission will analyse the responses and bring the results and advice to Ministers next spring.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many examples of the horizontal transmission of genetic material from genetically modified organisms approved for (a) field testing and (b) marketing his Department has evaluated. [17339]

Angela Eagle: The risks of all types of gene transfer, including horizontal gene transfer, are evaluated when considering all applications for consent to release or market genetically modified organisms (GMOs) in the UK. To date 134 applications for the experimental release of GMOs in Great Britain and 24 notifications for marketing GMOs in the European Community have been considered since the Genetically Modified Organisms (Deliberate Release) Regulations 1992 came into force on 1 February 1993.

Driving and Diabetes

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the members of the Honorary Advisory Panel on Driving and Diabetes, with their relevant expertise and date of appointment. [16901]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The members of the Honorary Advisory Panel on Driving and Diabetes, and their date of appointment to the Panel, are as follows:

	Appointed
Dr. Peter J. Watkins (Chairman since 1977) Kings College Hospital, London	1985
Professor John D. Ward The Royal Hallamshire Hospital, Sheffield	1985
Dr. John L. Day Ipswich Hospital, Suffolk	1985
Dr. Nina Essex Mayday Hospital, Thornton Heath, Surrey	1989
Dr. Brian Frier The Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh	1996
Dr. Stephen G. Gilbey St. James's University Hospital, Leeds	1997
Dr. Anthony B. Stevens Royal Hospitals Trust, Belfast	1997

All are consultant physicians who specialise in diabetes.

EU Committee of the Regions

Mr. David Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what plans he has to make British members of the EU Committee of the Regions directly elected by the regions they represent; [17197]

(2) what plans he has to review the method of appointment of British members of the EU Committee of the Regions; and if he will make a statement. [17340]

Angela Eagle: My right hon. Friend has no such plans. Members of the Committee of the Regions are appointed by the Council of Ministers of the European Union following nominations by member states. Under the European Communities (Amendment) Act 1993 United Kingdom members of the Committee must be elected members of a local authority at the time of their nomination. Any change to the method of appointment, including the direct election of members, would require a Treaty amendment agreed by all European Union member states acting unanimously.

London Government

Mr. Edward Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many responses to the Green Paper "New Leadership for London" (a) expressed satisfaction with the proposals, (b) expressed concerns over (i) the length of time between the publication of the White Paper and the Referendum, (ii) the number of questions in the Referendum and (iii) the proposal for a directly elected mayor and (c) expressed opinions on the election of mayor; what percentage (a) to (c) constituted of the total number of responses; and if he will make a statement. [17586]

Mr. Raynsford: An analysis of the responses to the Green Paper "New Leadership for London" will be included in the White Paper.

On 21 November copies of the responses were placed in the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions main library, 2 Marsham Street, SW1P. Lists of individuals and organisations who responded, were placed in the House of Commons Library on the same day.

Office Space

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what statistics his Department collates on the amount of empty office space in each region of England; and what estimate he has made of the amount of office space that has been empty (a) for more than six months and (b) for more than a year. [17716]

Mr. Raynsford: None. Information on vacant office space in the major centres is available from leading commercial agents, but is not collated centrally.

Thames 2000

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what progress has been made on his Thames 2000 river transport initiative. [17708]

Mr. Prescott: I am pleased to announce that excellent progress has been made as a result of my Thames 2000 initiative on proposals to establish new passenger transport services on the River Thames by the Millennium, and to leave a permanent legacy thereafter.

Today I can announce three new developments which, taken together, should provide the blueprint for securing a new future for passenger transport on the Thames, which I believe is an important ingredient in developing a modern, integrated transport system for the capital. As well as providing an important access route to the Millennium Experience, the aim is to secure a lasting legacy of new investment and high-quality services, which will provide a convenient and attractive new means of travel for Londoners and for visitors.

The initiative has been taken forward at my request by the Cross River Partnership, which includes the London Boroughs of Southwark and Lambeth, the Cities of Westminster and London, the Port of London Authority, London Transport and others, in collaboration with the New Millennium Experience Company and the Government Office for London.

First, the Cross River Partnership and the New Millennium Experience Company have formally invited a shortlist of potential operators to tender to run new River services. Some of these would serve the Millennium Experience, with direct services from dedicated central London piers and downstream "park-and-sail" sites, as well as a shuttle service to Greenwich. Operators are also being invited to tender for longer-term services, including a "hopper" service linking key central London destinations, and "express" services to central London from both up-stream and down-stream. Potential operators may bid for any or all of these services.

Second, the Partnership has drawn up a programme of new infrastructure works along the River. This will provide high-quality new piers at key locations, including close to Waterloo and Blackfriars Stations. It will also secure the much-needed improvement of some existing piers, and improved linkages with other public transport modes. The Partnership has sought funding from the Millennium Commission for this project. Matching funding will come from a variety of sources, including local authorities, the PLA, the Single Regeneration Budget and the private sector. The New Millennium Experience Company is also developing new piers on the Greenwich peninsula and downstream.

Finally, we have been working with members of the Partnership to develop new arrangements for managing piers and passenger services on the Thames. Our intention is that a new agency should be set up with responsibility for managing piers and for promoting and co-ordinating river passenger services in London. This agency would in due course come under the aegis of the new London Transport Authority proposed in the "New Leadership for London" Green Paper as part of the plans for a new Greater London Authority. In the interim a shadow agency will be set up under London Transport to commission the new river services and manage piers.

Green Belt (Carrington Moss)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what representations he has received from employees of Manchester United regarding the club's planning application to build on green belt land at Carrington Moss. [17329]

Mr. Raynsford: The Secretary of State received no representations from employees of the club on this matter.

Housing Corporation

Ms Jennifer Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, if he will list the directors of the Housing Corporation, indicating the tenure of their directorships, their remuneration and the qualifications which led to their appointments. [14730]

Mr. Raynsford [pursuant to his answer, 11 November 1997, c. 483–84]: Details of the directors of the Housing Corporation are in the table.

In making appointments to the Board of the Housing Corporation, candidates are sought who, in addition to their individual areas of expertise and knowledge, are able to take a broad view of housing policy and related issues. Candidates should be able to contribute usefully in directing a major Non Departmental Public Body and to make constructive contributions to the development of social housing policy at the national level. The Board needs members with a range of skills and expertise extending from knowledge of finance and regulation to an understanding of how housing policy impacts on other areas of social welfare.

Board Members of the Housing Corporation

Name	Appointed to the Board	Current appointment ends	Remuneration (per annum) £	Main areas of expertise
Baroness Dean of Thornton-le-Fylde (Chairman)	6 November 1997	31 March 2001	37,958	Regulation, management and organisational expertise
George Cracknell (Deputy Chairman)	1 December 1994	30 November 1997	21,706	Finance and banking
Eric Armitage	1 October 1997	30 September 2000	9,899	Registered Social Landlords
Sheila Button	1 October 1997	30 September 2000	9,899	Social housing sector
Sylvia Denman	1 March 1996	28 February 1999	9,899	Legal
John Foster	1 June 1996	31 May 1999	9,899	Local government
Ken Griffin	1 October 1995	31 May 1999	9,899	Business
David Kleeman	3 September 1990	30 September 1998	9,899	Business

Board Members of the Housing Corporation

Name	Appointed to the Board	Current appointment ends	Remuneration (per annum) £	Main areas of expertise
Robin Thompson	17 March 1989	16 March 1998	9,899	Rural housing
Julia Unwin	26 February 1992	25 February 1998	9,899	Homelessness and tenant participation
Derek Waddington	28 January 1994	27 January 2000	9,899	Local government
Dr. Peter Williams	1 October 1995	30 September 1998	9,899	Lending institutions
Anthony Mayer (Chief Executive)	30 April 1991	n/a	n/a	Chief Executive of the Housing Corporation

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Small Claims

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will publish the results of the monitoring conducted by his Department into the effects on waiting times of the last increase in the small-claims limit. [17456]

Mr. Hoon: The last increase in the small claims limit was made on 6 January 1996 and, as the monitoring of waiting times was introduced that year, the information requested could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to increase the resources of the small claims court to ensure that the proposal to raise the small claims limit from April 1999 does not result in increased delays. [17408]

Mr. Hoon: The proposed increase in the small claims limit must be considered along with the other civil justice reform proposals. Resources will be allocated to reflect changes in workload consequent upon implementation of the reforms as a whole.

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will give a breakdown of the length of time taken by small claims cases in county courts by type of case; and what assessment he has made of the factors underlying delays. [17455]

Mr. Hoon: The table below shows the average length of time taken for small claims cases in 1996 from the issue of the summons to the hearing. It was previously published in "Judicial Statistics 1996" (CM 3716) in July 1997. These cases take a substantially shorter time than those which proceed to trial.

Average waiting times[1] for arbitrations, by nature of claim, 1996

Nature of claim	Average waiting time in weeks (issue of summons to arbitration)
Debt	21
Negligence—personal injury	23
Other negligence	22
Non-possession housing dispute	26
Other	22
Total	21

[1] Figures are based on three months sample data from selected county courts.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Arson Attacks

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list all recorded instances of arson attacks on (a) Protestant churches, (b) Catholic churches, (c) orange and other loyal institutions' premises and (d) Gaelic Athletic Association premises in the period and since July, indicating the estimated cost of damages. [14183]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 5 November 1997]: Recorded instances of fire caused by arson in these categories are listed below. Estimated costs of damage are not held centrally and are therefore unavailable.

Arson attacks on protestant churches

6 July 1997: 1st Kilrea Presbyterian Church, Church Street, Kilrea;

6 July 1997: Presbyterian Church Hall, Dunloy

9 July 1997: Presbyterian Church Hall, Castle Street, Ballycastle

9 July 1997: Apostolic Church, Melmount Road, Strabane

9 July 1997: Carnmoney Parish Church, Church Road, Carnmoney

9 July 1997: Strathfoyle, Londonderry

10 July 1997: Presbyterian Church Hall, New Street, Dungiven

17 August 1997: Presbyterian Church, Ballyhoe, Newtownbutler

30 August 1997: Church of Ireland Manse, Main Street, Dundrum

31 August 1997: Whitehouse Presbyterian Church, Shore Road, Glengormley

14 September 1997: St. Columbanus Church Hall, Groomsport Road, Bangor

21 September 1997: May Street Presbyterian Church, May Street, Belfast

26 October 1997: St. Stephens Church, Millfield, Belfast

Arson attacks on catholic churches

12 July 1997: Killowen Chapel, Kylesbrae, Coleraine

29 September 1997: Tanaghmore RC Church, Fernisky Road, Kells

Arson attacks on orange halls

4 July 1997 College Square, Bessbrook

6 July 1997 Old English Road, Dungannon

6 July 1997 Newry

6 July 1997 Antrim Road, Glengormley

6 July 1997 Orritor Road, Cookstown

7 July 1997 Tirooney Road, Sixmilecross

7 July 1997 Brackey Road, Beragh

7 July 1997 Armagh Road, Newtownhamilton

7 July 1997 Coleraine Road, Ballycastle

8 July 1997 Station Road, Dunloy

9 July 1997 Athernee Road, Carrickmore

11 July 1997 Bond Street, Londonderry

12 July 1997 Great Georges Street, Warrenpoint

12 July 1997 Rasharkin, Ballymoney

15 July 1997 Gortvale Road, Rock, Ballymoney

6 August 1997 Dyan, Caledon

6 August 1997 Newry

12 August 1997 Ballycoran Road, Carryduff

26 August 1997 Armagh Road, Newtownhamilton

8 September 1997 Aughintober Road, Dungannon

1 October 1997 Darkley Road, Keady

14 October 1997 Main Street, Rasharkin

Arson attacks on GAA premises

13 July 1997 GAA Club, Mary's Lane, Killyleagh

28 August 1997 GAA Clubhouse, Crosskeys Road, Ahoghill

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list each of the overseas trips made by herself and other members of her ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if she will make a statement. [15252]

Mr. Murphy [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information is as follows:

(a)	(b)	(c)	(d)
Secretary of State	Washington (USA)	Briefing influential audiences on Government Policy on Northern Ireland	£15,209.25
Paul Murphy	Washington (USA)	Briefing Americans on political situation in Northern Ireland	£6,173.80
	Brussels	Introduction as Northern Ireland Minister for European Affairs	£2,586.88
Adam Ingram[1]	Paris	To attend Paris Air Show	£1,187.80
	Boston (USA)	Inward Investment Visit	£5,961.60
	Washington Chicago Minneapolis (USA) St. Louis New York Washington	IDB Trade Mission	£6,818.70
Lord Dubs	New York (USA)	Delegate to 43rd Annual Conference of the International Downtown Association	£4,941.70

[1] The costs refer to expenditure on flights only. However they do not include internal US flights, accommodation, or any miscellaneous expenditure, as this information is not readily available and can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Joint Framework Document

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the Joint Framework Document is the preferred option of Her Majesty's Government for a settlement in Ireland. [15678]

Mr. Murphy [holding answer 13 November 1997]: Our primary aim is to secure agreement amongst unionists and nationalists. So far as the Government is concerned, no outcome is either predetermined or excluded in advance, or limited by anything other than the need for agreement. The Joint Framework Document describes a shared understanding reached between the British and Irish Governments on the parameters of a possible outcome to the talks process. We believe it is, as the Prime Minister said in May, a reasonable basis for negotiation. The development under this Government of a wider constitutional reform programme, including our commitment to devolution elsewhere in the United Kingdom and to better protection of human rights through incorporation of the ECHR, may also have helpful implications for an agreed outcome to the current negotiations.

Policing

Mr. Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will publish her key policing objectives and key performance indicators for the year 1998–99. [17816]

Dr. Mowlam: I am arranging for copies of the key objectives and key performance indicators for the year 1998–99 to be placed in the Library on Tuesday 25 November at 11.00.

WALES

NHS

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what measures he has proposed for the NHS to ensure that the interests of pensioners are not overlooked, with particular reference to (a) hip and other joint operations and (b) bed blocking. [16105]

Mr. Win Griffiths: While the National Health Service in Wales does not discriminate against pensioners, who receive access to services on the same basis as other patients, I am keen that the interests of elderly people are not overlooked. I stressed the point when announcing recently the provision of an extra £9.5 million this year for the NHS in Wales. Whilst I urged the Service to use the money to improve their emergency services, reduce the need for people to be admitted to hospital and reduce delays in discharging patients, I stressed that Trusts must not forget their elective surgery obligations.

The Patient's Charter guarantees that "a patient will receive a hip or knee or a cataract operation within 18 months of being referred to their doctor".

However, this guarantee embraces the total patient population and does not target any one group. Latest figures provided by Health Authorities show that there were 35 breaches to this guarantee during the last quarter—this is an improvement from the June quarter when there were 85 breaches. As yet we do not know where the breaches lie, but this will be thoroughly investigated.

A340-600 Aircraft

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement concerning applications for regional development assistance for the A340-600 aircraft project by British Aerospace. [16099]

Mr. Ron Davies: I expect to make a decision on the company's application for Regional Selective Assistance shortly.

Student Funding

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will estimate the level of university funding per student in Wales in 1998–99; and if he will make a statement. [16936]

Mr. Hain: The level of funding per student in Wales in 1998–99 will depend upon the allocation for higher education within the Department's expenditure plans for next year which will be announced shortly.

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has made of the amount of extra funding which will be available for Welsh (a) further and (b) higher education in 1997–98; and if he will make a statement. [16855]

Mr. Hain: The final claim from the Further Education Funding Council for Wales for extra funding under the Demand-Led Element scheme is currently being considered. There are no plans to increase the 1997–98 budget of the Higher Education Funding Council for Wales.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Lake Windermere Speed Limit

Mr. Collins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what consultations the Sports Council had with anglers and walkers before deciding to support the opponents of the proposed speed limit on Lake Windermere at the public inquiry; [14604]

(2) what was the total cost incurred by the Sports Council in making representations to the public inquiry into the proposed speed limit on Lake Windermere. [14605]

Mr. Banks: The then GB Sports Council (GBSC) consulted a wide range of sports interests groups before deciding to support the opponents of the proposed speed limit upon Lake Windermere. Anglers and walkers organisations included:

Salmon and Trout Association;

Furness and South Cumbria Fisheries Consultative Association;

Northern Federation of Sea Angling Societies;

Fly Dresser' Guild;

Ramblers Association; and

Northumberland Long Distance Walkers' Association.

In 1996–97, the GBSC and its successor, the English Sports Council (ESC) spent £7,200 on the Lake Windermere speed limit issue. In 1997–98 to date, the ESC has spent £4,600. Information on GBSC spending in previous years could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

The Lake District National Park Authority successfully appealed to the High Court to have the original decision not to introduce a speed limit quashed. A hearing took place on 18 November at which the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions did not oppose the Authority's legal challenge. He is now required to re-consider the whole issue afresh and a further round of representations is necessary.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list each of the overseas trips made by himself and other members of his ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, (c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if he will make a statement. [15208]

Mr. Chris Smith [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information requested is set out in the table.

Minister	Date	Location	Purpose	Cost to nearest £100
Mr. Clarke	12 May–14 May	Cannes	Support for the British film industry	1,700
Mr. Smith	14 May–16 May	Cannes	Support for the British film industry	1,500
Mr. Banks	10 June–11 June	Paris	Support for the FA bid for the World Cup 2006 and attend the Turnoi de France	1,600
Mr. Fisher	28 June–1 July	Rome/Luxembourg	Attending State opening and Culture Council	1,900
Mr. Fisher	28 July–same day	Brussels	Meet representatives of the EP Culture and Media Committee	1,600
Mr. Clarke	31 August–3 September	Venice/Rome	Support for the British film industry/Meeting with Italian DPM	2,600
Mr. Clarke	2 October—5 October	Brittany	Support for the British film industry	500
Mr. Clarke	8 October–15 October	Far East	Promotion of British tourism	10,200
Mr. Banks	10 October–same day	Rome	Support for the FA bid for the World Cup 2006 and attend the England v Italy qualifier	1,600
Mr. Fisher	15 October–16 October	Frankfurt	Promotion of the British publishing industry and attend the European Book Fair	1,200
Mr. Banks	23 October–30 October	USA/Trinidad/Costa Rica	Support for the FA bid for the World Cup 2006	9,800
Mr. Smith	21 October–26 October	USA	Promotion of British creative industries	'12,100
Mr. Smith	11 November–same day	Brussels	Visit to the European Commission	'500
			Total	46,800

' Denotes full figures not yet available.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Answer from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, on 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15869]

Mr. Tom Clarke [holding answer 13 November 1997]: E-mail addresses exist for all Ministers at the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. Ministers can be reached at: chris.smith@culture.gov.uk, tom.clarke@culture.gov.uk, mark.fisher@culture.gov.uk and tony,banks@culture.gov.uk. The Permanent Secretary can be reached at hayden.phillips@culture.gov.uk. The Chief Executives of the Department's two agencies do not currently have e-mail addresses. More information on contact details can be obtained from the Department's website at www.culture.gov.uk.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16307]

Mr. Chris Smith: My Department has made arrangements to fax press notices on the day of release to the main Opposition Spokesman, as was the practice before 1 May. On request we would do the same for other Opposition Parties.

National Lottery

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what has been the sum given in grant aid since the commencement of the National Lottery (a) in total, (b) by region and (c) in the Wansbeck constituency. [16168]

Mr. Banks: To date the National Lottery distributing bodies have announced awards worth £4.49 billion to over 30,000 projects throughout the UK. Table 1 below provides a breakdown by country and English region. Wansbeck has received awards worth over £1 million covering 31 projects; these are detailed in Table 2.

Information on all Lottery awards is now available on the Department's website www.lottery.culture.gov.uk.

Table 1: Breakdown of awards announced by value

	Total (£)	As percentage of total awards
England
London (Local)[1]	368,519,487	8.2
London (National)[1]	622,407,546	13.9
North West	376,894,368	8.4
North East	232,927,750	5.2
Yorkshire and Humberside	283,570,947	6.3
Eastern	224,875,804	5.0
East Midlands	183,698,156	4.1
West Midlands	314,142,340	7.0
South West	304,968,472	6.8
South East	330,806,176	7.4
Merseyside	91,801,641	2.0
England wide	9,938,161	0.2
Total	3,344,550,848	74.5
Scotland	446,629,736	9.9
Wales	214,094,982	4.8
Northern Ireland	132,105,934	2.9
Total	4,137,381,500
UK wide	329,499,704	7.3
Overseas	24,600,000	0.5
Grand total	4,491,481,204	100.0

[1] Awards to bodies based in London include many to institutions that are of national importance and are of benefit to the country as a whole. These are therefore separated from local awards in London.

Table 2: Awards announced in the Wansbeck constituency

Distributing body	Recipient	Project title description	Award date	Award amount (£)
Heritage Lottery Fund	Northumberland County Council	West Wylam Bridge, Tyneside Riverside Country Park, West Wylam	3 April 1996	157,000
National Lottery Charities Board	Northumberland Womens Aid	To improve inadequate staffing levels and provide transport	23 October 1995	124,742
National Lottery Charities Board	Chevington Community Initiative	Encourage social cohesion by integrating disaffected youth into the community	23 October 1995	119,150
National Lottery Charities Board	Trinity Youth Association	Provides leisure, recreational and educational opportunities to targeted vulnerable groups of young people	11 June 1996	115,809
National Lottery Charities Board	Northumberland Federation of YMCAs	Promote and develop a range of youth and community initiatives for groups of young people living in rural areas	11 June 1996	106,090
Arts Council of England	Ellington Colliery Band	Purchase of new instruments and equipment.	16 July 1997	54,478
National Lottery Charities Board	Spital Estate Community Association Ltd.	A community training centre for the use of all community members on the estate	11 June 1996	47,915
National Lottery Charities Board	General Access Northumberland Group (G A N G)	To improve access for disabled people to the built environment	17 December 1996	39,564

Table 2: Awards announced in the Wansbeck constituency

Distributing body	Recipient	Project title description	Award date	Award amount (£)
Arts Council of England	Wansbeck's Ashington Colliery Band	To purchase instruments	11 December 1996	38,026
Arts Council of England	Pegswood Brass Band	To purchase instruments.	21 January 1997	34,195
National Lottery Charities Board	Womens Health Advice Centre	To increase hours worked by womens health advice centre co-ordinator	23 October 1995	25,013
National Lottery Charities Board	Northumberland Federation of YMCAs	To enable vital work to continue within a deprived community	23 October 1995	25,000
National Lottery Charities Board	Contact Morpeth Mental Health Group	To purchase a caravan to use a permanent respite holiday facility for people with mental health problems and their carers	17 December 1996	22,620
English sports Council	Northumberland CC	To upgrade the sports hall at Hirst High School, Ashington and to provide a district centre of excellence for cricket	6 June 1995	13,400
English Sports Council	Cambois Amateur Rowing Club	Purchase of rowing equipment	11 September 1997	13,194
National Lottery Charities Board	Abuse Counselling and Training	Provides office and travel costs for the expansion of a counselling service for abused young people	11 June 1996	10,000
Heritage Lottery Fund	Castle Morpeth Borough Council	Morpeth, Carlisle Park, feasibility study	12 December 1996	9,000
National Lottery Charities Board	Access to the Working Countryside	Providing access to the working countryside of North East England	23 October 1995	7,250
National Lottery Charities Board	Welfare Crescent Residents Association	To improve living conditions/community facilities for local tenants	23 October 1995	6,000
Arts Council of England	Num Northumberland Area	Miners picnic–Northumberland Coalfield visual art project	19 March 1997	5,000
Arts Council of England	Bothal Church Development Group	Bothal church arts project	11 June 1997	5,000
Arts Council of England	Wansbeck Youth Concert Band	In tune with youth	11 June 1997	5,000
National Lottery Charities Board	B. Ware (Blyth Women are . . .)	To support women who are lone parents, on low income and victims of abuse	1 July 1997	4,992
National Lottery Charities Board	Cambois Camera Club	To establish a club in a premises also used as a day centre for older people from Blyth as part of Age Concern	13 May 1997	4,879
National Lottery Charities Board	Castle Morpeth Mediation	To provide a dispute resolution service led by victim support	1 July 1997	4,800
Arts Council of England	Quadro Ariano	Quadro Adriano: ome and away	11 June 1997	4,790
Arts Council of England	Trinity Youth Association	Schools out (summer programme)	11 June 1997	4,680
National Lottery Charities Board	Bedlingtonshire Community High School P.T.A.	To provide equipment for the Duke of Edinburgh scheme	1 July 1997	3,629
National Lottery Charities Board	Northumberland Hospital Radio	To provide a training resource for volunteers	13 May 1997	2,763
Arts Council of England	The Mid-Northumberland Chorus	Chorus development project	11 June 1997	2,000
Arts Council of England	Blyth Town band	Blyth Town band residential training weekend	11 June 1997	1,264
		Total	31 awards	1,017,243

Tourism

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to introduce a Tourism Development White Paper; and if he will make a statement. [16570]

Mr. Tom Clarke: We are working closely with the tourism industry and we shall be discussing with the newly revitalised Tourism Forum on 26 November our ideas for developing tourism.

Heritage Lottery Fund

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what is the level of grant allocated to date by the Heritage Lottery Fund to (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) Scotland expressed as a percentage of population; what is the value of grants applied for, but not yet determined, as a percentage of the population in each country; and how many applications remain undetermined in each country more than 12 months after submission. [16580]

Mr. Banks [holding answer 18 November 1997]: As at 17 November 1997 the value of awards made by the Heritage Lottery Fund for projects in England, Wales and Scotland was as follows:

	£
England	630,937,408
Wales	19,575,315
Scotland	95,233,358

Taking into account the value of awards for projects in Northern Ireland, the above figures represent, respectively, 83 per cent., 3 per cent. and 13 per cent. of the total value of awards made by the HLF.

The populations of England, Wales and Scotland and their percentage—proportion of the total United Kingdom population, were estimated[1] in 1996 as:

	Population	Per cent.
England	49,089,085	83
Wales	2,921,075	5
Scotland	5,128,000	9

[1] Source: Office for National Statistics.

The value of grants applied for, but not yet determined, in respect of each of the three countries is not readily available. However, the figure for the United Kingdom, as at 17 November 1997, was £839,882,885.

The number of applications which remain undetermined more than 12 months after submission in respect of the three countries is likewise not readily available. However, the figure for the United Kingdom was 154 as at 17 November 1997.

Visitor Numbers

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the impact on visitor numbers to the United Kingdom from (a) within and (b) outside the EU, of the introduction of a single currency not including the United Kingdom. [16792]

Mr. Tom Clarke: Many factors influence the numbers of visitors to the UK, and it is difficult to quantify the effect of each factor. Anything which eases the movement of people is generally seen by the industry to be positive. The travel and tourism industry is represented on the Business Advisory Group established by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer to consider the practical implications of the single currency for businesses, whether or not the United Kingdom joins. A report summarising the Advisory Group's work will be published early in 1998.

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many visitors to the United Kingdom were from (a) the Far East, (b) the EU and (c) the USA in each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement on trends in visitor numbers. [16790]

Mr. Tom Clarke: In 1995 and 1996, the number of visits made to the UK by residents of the Far East, the EU and the USA was as follows (in millions of visits):

		Million
	1995	1996
Far East	1.7	1.6
EU	13.9	15.5
USA	3.1	3.1

CABINET OFFICE

Millennium Experience

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Minister without Portfolio if he will ban smoking (a) within the Millennium Dome and (b) on the Millennium Experience site. [16449]

Mr. Mandelson: In developing their policy within the Dome and its environs the New Millennium Experience Company (the operating company for the Experience at Greenwich) will take fully into account relevant central and local government policies and all statutory requirements and best practice concerning health and fire safety.

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Minister without Portfolio what arrangements have been made for the involvement of church, charitable and other non-commercial organisations in the Millennium Exhibition in Greenwich. [16408]

Mr. Mandelson: The New Millennium Experience Company is planning to focus on spiritual renewal as one of the themes of the Millennium Experience. This will, among other things, look at the major role Christianity has played in shaping this country and the rest of the world over the past 2000 years. It will also reflect the multi-faith nature of modern British society. To this end, the Company is liaising closely with the Churches and Other Faiths Sub-group of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport's Millennium Co-ordination Group.

The Company is also in discussion with not-for-profit organisations, charities, interest groups and local authorities across England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, and with the Lottery Distributor bodies. The aim of this ongoing consultation process is to enable as many people as possible to contribute to the development of the NMEC's national programme and to maximise participation in it. The national programme, will be an integral part of the Millennium Experience, and will reflect the central Experience theme that

"It's time to make a difference".

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister without Portfolio if he will make a statement on his meeting with the French Minister for European Affairs on 16 September. [16976]

Mr. Mandelson: We discussed a number of matters of mutual interest including the Luxembourg Jobs summit.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to his Answer of 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15864]

Dr. David Clark [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The list of e-mail addresses requested is as follows:

Dr. Clark: (Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster)
dclark@ccta.gov.uk
Mr. Kilfoyle: (Parliamentary Secretary):
pkilfoyle@ccta.gov.uk
The Committee on Standards in Public Life:
http://www.open.gov.uk\cspl\csplhome.htm
Better Government:
bettergov@gtnet.gov.uk
Better Regulation:
better.regulation@gtnet.gov.uk
Central Information and Technology Unit:
acarty@citu.gov.uk
lwatson@citu.gov.uk
cmuid@citu.gov.uk
clefevre@citu.gov.uk mgladwyn@citu.gov.uk
cholmes@citu.gov.uk
Citizen's Charter Unit:
charter@gtnet.gov.uk
Civil Service Employer Group:
opssecretariat@gtnet.gov.uk
Fast stream and European Staffing Division:
fsed.recruit.co@gtnet.gov.uk
Development and Equal Opportunities Division:
deod.ops@gtnet.gov.uk
Office of the Civil Service Commissioners:
ocsc@gtnet.gov.uk
Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments:
wwwhttp://ww.open.gov.uk/ocpa
Management and Conditions of Service Division:
jstrach.co.hgr@gtnet.gov.uk
International Public Service Unit:
ipsu.co@gtnet.gov.uk
Efficiency and Effectiveness Group: efficiency.unit@gtnet.gov.uk
Machinery of Government and Standards Group:
open.co.wh@gtnet.gov.uk
AGENCIES
Civil Service College:
hickey@cscollege.attmail.com
Property Advisers to the Civil Estate:
jcisc@property.gov.uk
Security Facilities Executive:
safe@ndirect.com
The Buying Agency:
stephen.sage@tba.gov.uk
Central Computer and Telecommunications Agency:
rassirati@ccta.gov.uk
Government Car and Despatch Agency:
gcda@compuserve.com

Central Office of Information

COI are currently in the final stages of implementing e-mail. They hope to be on-line by the end of this month. The Chief Executive's e-mail address will then be: tdouglas@coi.gov.uk.

The Minister without Portfolio, Mr. Mandelson and the Permanent Secretary, Mr. Mountfield do not have an e-mail address at the present time but the Department is giving consideration to their introduction.

Web Sites

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if it is Government policy that all Government departments should have web sites on the World Wide Web and that they should make their site addresses well known. [17442]

Dr. David Clark: Whilst this is a matter for individual Departments to decide whether to establish and publish web sites on the World Wide Web, I am pleased to inform the hon. Member that all the major Departments of State do indeed already have public web sites.

They form part of the nearly 600 public sector organisations that are accessible on World Wide Web via the Government Information Service run by CCTA (an Agency of my Department) through its web address http://www.open.gov.uk/. The service is accessed by users between 1.5 and 3 million times a week.

DEFENCE

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16314]

Mr. Spellar: I am placing my Department's guidance notes on answering Parliamentary Questions, Parliamentary Inquiries and letters from members of the public, together with the Departmental instructions on the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information in the Library of the House. The guidance on the Code of Practice can also be found on my Department's Internet site at http://www/mod.uk/pol.docs/dci1997.htm.

Defence Evaluation and Research Agency

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if consideration has been given to the development of science parks close to DERA sites in the Strategic Defence Review. [16670]

Dr. Reid: Yes.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the criteria by which DERA is to be assessed as part of the Strategic Defence Review. [16668]

Dr. Reid: The Strategic Defence Review includes a rigorous scrutiny of Departmental assets to ensure best value for money. This includes an examination of Agencies, and options for the future of DERA are being considered as part of this process. Options will be assessed on the basis of value for money and on how best to meet the Department's requirements for access to a wide range of technology.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if the location of DERA sites will be considered as part of the Strategic Defence Review; [16669]

(2) if the impact of DERA sites on locally-based high technology industries will be taken into account in the Strategic Defence Review. [16667]

Dr. Reid: Work on options for the future of DERA is concerned primarily with the overall role and organisation of the Agency rather than the location of particular sites. The relationship between DERA and high-technology industries will be an important consideration in this work, although not confined to particular geographical locations.

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16776]

Mr. Spellar: MOD has made 32 public appointments to its Non Departmental Public Bodies since 1 May 1997 of which 22, or 69 per cent. receive remuneration. In all but one case, the remuneration involved is a payment of £200–£250 a day for those days on which the Committee, the Defence Scientific Advisory Council meets. The Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster is responding to part (b) of your question of behalf of all Departments.

Cadet Forces

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what financial contribution his Department has made to the (a) Army, (b) Sea and (c) Air cadets for each of the last five financial years; what is the figure for the current year; what is the projected figure for the next financial year; and if he will make a statement. [16928]

Dr. Reid: The Ministry of Defence's financial contribution in support of Army, Sea and Air cadets during each of the last five financial years is shown below. Also shown, although not specifically requested, is similar detail in respect of the Combined Cadet Force (CCF). Figures given are in £ million.

	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Army Cadets (ACF)	n/a	20.9	22.2	23.4	28.0
Sea Cadets (SCC)	5.6	5.3	5.6	5.7	6.2
Air Cadets (ATC)	16.1	17.6	18.3	19.8	17.5
CCF	n/a	6.1	6.6	6.2	5.8

Expenditure in current year: Forecast expenditure in Financial Year 1997–98 (£ million) is:

	£ million
(a) ACF	25.7
(b) SCC	6.3
(c) ATC	17.0
(d) CCF	6.4

Projected funding for next financial year: The allocation of funds for the next financial year will be determined as part of the MOD's long term costing, which is the process by which the Department recosts and adjusts its internal plans. The Department's internal plans represent projections and assumptions, which inform advice to Ministers on the affordability of particular elements of the defence programme and it has been the policy of successive Governments not to publish detailed information arising from this. Accordingly, I am withholding the information requested in the third part of the question which constitutes internal discussion and advice, under exemption 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government information.

Minister's Statement: In February 1997, when in opposition, I addressed the Royal United Services Institute. When considering the question of re-fostering links between military and civilian society I made the following comments in respect of cadet forces:

" . . . cadet forces are, in my view, perhaps the most under-utilised of all in reaching their true potential of civil utility, particularly in offering opportunities for self-development, initiative, character building and leadership qualities among our young people, many of whom are forced by circumstances into blind alleys".

Whilst it would be inappropriate to comment upon future funding levels whilst the Strategic Defence Review work progresses, I can confirm that the Government's commitment to cadet forces, as a major national youth organisation, remains undiminished. Their value both to the civilian community and to our Regular and Reserve Forces is acknowledged, and they will receive our continued support.

Officers (Education)

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officers in each of the Armed Forces were educated in (a) state and (b) private schools. [17138]

Dr. Reid: The breakdown of the educational background of all presently serving officers in the Armed Forces is not readily available. However, figures are available regarding the educational background of those more recently joining the Armed Forces for direct entry officer training. The latest figures from the three officer training establishments show that 80 per cent. of those joining Britannia Royal Navy College in Dartmouth, 45 per cent. of those entering the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst, and 82 per cent. of those entering RAF Cranwell come from State schools.

RAF Menwith Hill

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what period was specified under the 21-year agreement reached in 1976 between the Government and US Forces in respect of RAF Menwith Hill to take account of circumstances where the Government wished to terminate the US use of the base; and what period of notice now applies. [16990]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 20 November 1997]: No period of notice was specified. The arrangements were to facilitate the commitment of US funding and did not constitute any form of lease. As with all sites that are made available to the United States Visiting Forces, termination of occupation would be a matter for the Governments of the United Kingdom and United States under arrangements that exist for our mutual defence.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 17 July 1997, Official Report, column 324, what is the present status of the US Forces occupying RAF Menwith Hill following the expiry of the 21-year agreement. [16989]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 20 November 1997]: RAF Menwith Hill continues to be made available to the United States Visiting Forces on the same basis as other RAF sites in the United Kingdom.

Service Women

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consultations he had with the Minister for Women before deciding to allow women on to the front lines. [17166]

Dr. Reid: Appropriate discussions took place at Ministerial level before my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced, on 27 October 1997, the Government's decision to expand opportunities for women serving in the Army.

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Department contributed to the drafting. [17015]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The United Kingdom's position on the draft Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation between relevant Government Departments.

Fox Hunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 154, what changes in his policy on fox hunting have been made since June; and what guidance his Department has issued on this subject since that date. [17344]

Mr. Spellar: There has been no change in my Department's policy on foxhunting since June. On a matter of detail, following the announcement on 8 August 1997 by the Masters of Foxhounds Association that the practice of digging out foxes once they have gone to ground will in future only take place at the request of the landowner or occupier, my Department has made it known to all hunts which have a licence to operate on the Defence Estate that the Ministry of Defence, as landowner, will not request or allow digging out on the Defence Estate.

Officer Training Corps

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what is the membership of the Officer Training Corps in each institution in which it operates; [13757]

(2) what percentage of members of the Officer Training Corps subsequently join the regular forces. [13756]

Dr. Reid [pursuant to his answers, 5 November 1997, Official Report, col. 254]: The figures for OTC establishments given include not only the authorised numbers of Officer Cadets, but also a number of instructor and support staff. The number of Officer Cadets for which each Officer Training Corps is established is shown in the following table, together with the total establishment which was given in my earlier reply:

	Total establishment	Officer cadets
Aberdeen	168	140
Belfast	168	140
Birmingham	168	140
Bristol	168	140
Cambridge	224	198
East Midlands	168	140
Edinburgh	168	140
Exeter	168	140
Glasgow	168	140
Leeds	168	140
Liverpool	168	140
London	364	322
Manchester	168	140
Northumbria	168	140
Oxford	224	198
Sheffield	168	140
Southampton	168	140
Tayforth	168	140
Wales	168	140

This means that the 260 members of the OTC commissioned into the Regular Forces in academic year 1995–96 represent nearly 9 per cent. of the Officer Cadet establishment, not 7.5 per cent. as I said in my separate answer of 5 November 1997.

Land (Military Training)

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received from land owners whose land was formerly used for military training; and if he will estimate the amount of private land on which military training has been discontinued in the last year. [17345]

Mr. Spellar: My Department has received a number of representations from landowners who have on occasions allowed access to their land for training purposes. With the exception of a few landowners in Wales, I am not aware of any action by landowners to withdraw permission for military training.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Official Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his estimate of the expenditure by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on official hospitality for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997. [15214]

Mr. Fatchett [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Expenditure on official hospitality by this Department is shown in the following table:

Year	FCO £000	Agencies £	NDPB'S £000
1980–81	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
1987–88	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
1990–91	[1]—	[1]—	862
1991–92	5,688	[1]—	969
1992–93	[1]—	[1]—	967
1993–94	7,476	[1]—	958
1994–95	7,660	455	1,038
1995–96	9,282	786	1,091
1996–97	9,538	687	1,073
1997–98 May–September	4,083	335	423

[1] Figures unavailable.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his estimate of the expenditure by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on overseas travel for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997; and if he will provide a breakdown to show (1) air fares and (2) other expenditure relating to overseas travel. [15215]

Mr. Fatchett [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Details of expenditure by this Department (Diplomatic Wing) on official duty travel overseas by officers serving in the United Kingdom is shown below. Expenditure for air fares is not separately identifiable.

Year	£ million
1980–81	No details retained
1987–88	4.7
1990–91	5.6
1991–92	5.6
1992–93	8.3
1993–94	6.7
1994–95	6.8
1995–96	7.9
1996–97	8.4
1997 1 May–30 September	2.9

Publicity and Advertising

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his estimate of the total expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for (i) 1993–94, (ii) 1994–95, (iii) 1995–96, (iv) 1996–97, (v) the 1997–98, year to date, (vi) the 1997–98, full year estimate and (vii) the 1998–99 planned expenditure. [15217]

Mr. Fatchett [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Total expenditure on advertising and publicity in this Department for the last five financial years is as follows:

	£
1993–94	458,000
1994–95	243,000
1995–96	573,000
1996–97	365,349
1997 (to date)	148,758

The full year estimate for 1997–98 is: £436,774.

The planned expenditure for 1998–99 is: £525,703.

Total expenditure on advertising and publicity for Wilton Park Executive Agency for the last five financial years is as follows:

	£
1993–94	22,000
1994–95	20,000
1995–96	15,000
1996–97	21,000
1997 (to date)	8,000

The full year estimate for 1997–98 is: £28,000.

The planned expenditure for 1998–99 is: £30,000.

Quota-hopping

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the draft protocol on quota-hopping, put forward at the Amsterdam summit. [16925]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The draft protocol put forward by the previous administration was not supported by any other Member State.

Schengen Agreement

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his answers of 17 July 1997, Official Report, column 252 and 6 June 1997, Official Report, column 283, when he will reach a conclusion as to which documents of The Schengen Acquis will be placed in the Library; and when the Schengen Secretariat will complete its review of the classification of these documents. [16968]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The main Schengen Treaties are already in the Libraries of the House. Work under way within Schengen on the definition of the rest of the acquis is expected to be completed very soon.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Spanish amendment on voting arrangements on asylum and border controls put forward at the Amsterdam summit. [16913]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The Spanish amendment on voting arrangements submitted at the Amsterdam summit is contained in Article 4 of the Schengen Protocols and states that the unanimous agreement of the Schengen States would be necessary for the UK or Ireland to participate in aspects of the Schengen Acquis.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the proposed Schengen-related agreement between the United Kingdom, Ireland, Iceland and Norway. [17080]

Mr. Doug Henderson: In accordance with Declaration 47, adopted by the Inter-governmental Conference at Amsterdam, the Council is currently considering how to give effect to the requirement in Article 6 of the Schengen Protocol that an agreement should be concluded with Norway and Iceland for the establishment of rights and obligations between Ireland and the UK on the one hand and Iceland and Norway on the other in the domains of the Schengen acquis which apply to these States. No decisions have yet been taken on whether any part of the Schengen acquis should apply to the UK in accordance with the Protocol.

Gibraltar

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he proposes to make with regard to (a) military and (b) civilian aircraft landing rights in Gibraltar. [16969]

Mr. Doug Henderson: None. British military and civilian aircraft have no problems with landing rights at Gibraltar airport, which is owned by the Ministry of Defence and managed by the Royal Air Force.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what will be the impact of the proposals contained in the Amsterdam Treaty on the use of Gibralter's operational facilities during WEU operations by (a) Spain and (b) other WEU members. [17076]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: None.

Qualified Majority Voting

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the policy areas in which he is opposed to an extension of qualified majority voting in principle. [16914]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We are committed to retaining the national veto over key matters of national interest, such as taxation, defence and security, immigration, decisions over the budget and Treaty changes. These issues were settled for the foreseeable future at the Amsterdam European Council.

Organisation of African Unity

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the European Union proposes to give to the Conflict Prevention Unit of the Organisation of African Unity. [16983]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The European Union (EU) is giving 860,000 ecu (about £635,000) to the Conflict Prevention Unit of the Organisation of African Unity (OAU) to improve communication links between its national and regional offices and its teams in the field. The EU is also actively considering further possible practical assistance.

El Salvador

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on relations with El Salvador. [16869]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: Relations with El Salvador are friendly. We welcome the near completion of the implementation of the 1992 Peace Accords which have restored peace and democracy to that country. We are involved in a political dialogue with El Salvador through the San Jose process which began in November 1985. The next Ministerial meeting of the EU/San Jose dialogue will take place during our Presidency in Costa Rica next February. Our trade relationship is also developing with our exports up by 7.7 per cent. We are currently negotiating an Investment Promotion and Protection Agreement with El Salvador and Air Services talks took place on 20 and 21 November to discuss ways of improving air services between our two countries.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his policy on the United Nations Resolution Advisory Opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons. [16924]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We voted against the Resolution tabled in the United Nations First Committee by Malaysia about the Advisory Opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons, because of its selective quotation of the Advisory Opinion and its unrealistic call for time-bound multilateral negotiations.

We remain committed to the goal of nuclear disarmament and continue to hold the International Court of Justice in high regard. We have said that we will press for multilateral negotiations towards mutual, balanced and verifiable reductions in nuclear weapons and, when satisfied with progress, will ensure that British nuclear weapons are included in multilateral negotiations.

Congo

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations on the military intervention by Angola in Congo Brazzaville in the UN Security Council. [17154]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: On 17 October, the United Nations Security Council issued a statement condemning all external interference in the Republic of Congo and, in particular, the intervention of foreign forces in violation of the Charter of the United Nations, and calling for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign forces including mercenaries. The UK fully supports this statement.

Ottawa Treaty

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects Her Majesty's Government will ratify the Ottawa Treaty. [17050]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We look forward to signing the Ottawa Convention on 3 December and will ratify it as soon as the necessary legislation is in place.

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will define the term rights and obligations of natural and legal persons in Article 309 of the Treaty establishing the European Community as amended by the Amsterdam Treaty; which European institution will be responsible for interpreting this provision; and if he will make a statement. [17221]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The reference to

"rights and obligations of natural and legal persons"

in this Article refers to their rights and obligations under Community law. The Council will, in the first instance, be responsible for interpreting this provision. It is also subject to the jurisdiction of the European Court of Justice.

Electronic Communications

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the role of (a) the Home Department and (b) the Ministry of Defence on the discussions on COM(97)503 and a common European encryption procedure on electronic communication. [17266]

Mr. Robin Cook: Electronic communications are regularly discussed between interested Departments, including my Department and the Home Office. Both Departments were directly involved in consideration of the UK's response to COM(97)503, but the Ministry of Defence was not.

Africa (Great Lakes Region)

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what new measures he will propose to the EU to deal with the situation in the Great Lakes region of Africa. [17151]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: During our presidency we will seek to ensure co-ordinated EU action in support of stability and economic development in the region, which takes account of humanitarian concerns, human rights issues and the need for improved and more accountable government. We will support the efforts of the EU Special Envoy for the Great Lakes, Aldo Ajello, to promote dialogue and the negotiated resolution of conflict in the region.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will propose the convening by the UN Secretary General of a conference on the problem of displaced people in the Great Lakes region. [17152]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We support the principle of convening, as soon as conditions allow it to produce concrete results, a conference under UN and OAU auspices to address issues of peace, stability and development in the Great Lakes region. We will consult closely with regional states, partners in the EU and at the UN on the practicalities of arranging such a conference.

Intelligence and Security Committee (Drug Trafficking)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will submit his plans for the redirecting of intelligence resources towards combating the drugs trade to the Intelligence and Security Committee with an estimate of the time required (a) for that redirection and (b) to undo that redirection. [17021]

Mr. Robin Cook: It is for the Intelligence and Security Committee to request information on intelligence issues which it wishes to consider.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if joining the single currency will be considered acquis communautaire for applicant countries to the European Union. [17222]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Acceptance of the Community aim of economic and monetary union will be part of the acquis communautaire for applicant countries. The Treaty imposes an obligation to join the Single Currency on Member States considered, in compliance with Articles 109j and k, to fulfil the necessary conditions. However this obligation does not apply to Member States which, like the UK and Denmark, have negotiated special provisions. Applicant countries will have to decide whether to seek to negotiate special provisions in their treaties of accession.

War Crimes

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the definition of war crimes to be used in the draft statute of the International Criminal Court. [16059]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The definition of war crimes to be used in the draft statute of the International Criminal Court will be on the agenda for the next Preparatory Committee meeting in December. The United Kingdom will be an active participant in that discussion.

Intergovernmental Conference

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government on the timing of a new intergovernmental conference. [17084]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We see no need for a further intergovernmental conference (IGC) in the near future. Under the Protocol on the Institutions in the Treaty of Amsterdam, an IGC will be called to review the institutional provisions of the Treaties before the Union enlarges to 21 or more Member States.

European Union (Co-operation)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the co-operation envisaged by Article 127 of the treaty establishing the European Community will be restricted to that laid out in Article 129. [17287]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Article 127 (in the Amsterdam Treaty as Article 109p) gives the Community a general role of supporting and, if necessary, complementing co-operation that is occurring or may occur at Member State level, while respecting the competences of the Member States. The only specific power given to the Community for this purpose is that in Article 129 (or Article 109r) to adopt incentive measures to encourage and support co-operation.

European Union (Enlargement)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government on European Union applicant countries and the desirability of expansion of the Western European Union. [17290]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: Enlargement of the European Union is a priority for us. It will fulfil Europe's historic destiny and will enhance security and stability. Enlargement must remain an all-inclusive process.

We broadly agree with the European Commission's recommendations on the applicants' readiness for membership based on the criteria laid down by the Copenhagen and Madrid European Councils of June 1993 and December 1995 respectively. Generally speaking, these criteria require the new Member States to be able to take on the obligations of membership. Membership of the Western European Union is not such an obligation.

The criteria agreed by WEU Member States at Maastricht in 1991 established the eligibility of countries for different categories of WEU membership as and when they assume membership of NATO, the EU or both. The UK will welcome applications for these respective categories from new NATO and EU Members States should they choose to apply.

Computers (Century Date Change)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consultation he has held with representatives of (a) other governments and (b) international bodies over computer millennium compliance. [17074]

Mr. Fatchett: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no consultations with other governments or international bodies on computer millennium compliance. Officials continue to discuss this issue in appropriate contacts with other governments.

European Union (International Agreements)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Treaty of Amsterdam allows for the European Union to withdraw from international treaties and agreements. [17077]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The Treaty of Amsterdam allows the Council, acting unanimously, to conclude international agreements under certain circumstances in the areas of the Common Foreign and Security Policy and Police and Judicial Co-operation in Criminal Matters. Implicitly, any decision subsequently to withdraw from such an agreement would similarly be taken by the Council acting unanimously. It would also be subject to the relevant rules of international law.

Euro-Mediterranean Process

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Barcelona Euro-Mediterranean Process. [17083]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The United Kingdom is committed to the Euro-Mediterranean Process, which provides for economic, political and social co-operation with the 12 Mediterranean partners. We support progress towards a Euro-Mediterranean Free Trade Area by 2010: the new wave of Euro-Mediterranean Association Agreements are the first step towards this goal. The Euro-Med partnership will be an important part of our EU Presidency: we hope to host a Euro-Med Capital Markets Conference in London in March, and a seminar on the human dimension of the partnership in May. We are discussing with EU partners the idea of holding a meeting of Foreign Ministers to give impetus to the relationship.

Amsterdam Treaty (Foreign Policy)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether, if the European Union decided to refrain from taking any military action against Iraq, with the United Kingdom abstaining from that decision under Article 1 (10) (J.13) of the Amsterdam Treaty, the United Kingdom would be prevented by the provisions of that treaty from committing United Kingdom forces or otherwise acting in support of any military action taken against Iraq by the United States of America. [17256]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The European Union does not take military action. The hypothetical scenario in the hon. Member's question could therefore not arise.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in relation to Article 1 (10) (J.13) of the Treaty of Amsterdam, whether, if a member state voted for the adoption of a foreign policy stance, requiring unanimity, but voted against a particular implementation of that policy requiring qualified majority voting, that member state would be precluded from taking unilateral action in a way contrary to the implementation agreed by qualified majority voting. [17258]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Member States are bound by implementing decisions taken in accordance with Article J.13.2. If a Member State has difficulties with a proposed implementing decision, such that it would contemplate taking unilateral contrary action, it can prevent the adoption of the decision by invoking the "emergency brake" provisions in Article J.13.2 second paragraph.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in relation to Article 1 (10) (J.13) of the Treaty of Amsterdam, whether, if a member state abstained from a decision and the European Union apart from that state adopted a foreign policy and acted upon it, the abstaining member state is prevented from taking unilateral action in relation to that foreign policy. [17257]

Mr. Doug Henderson: A Member State which abstains from a CFSP decision requiring unanimity is not prevented from taking unilateral action in relation to the policy concerned. But it is required to refrain from any action likely to conflict with or impede Union action based on that decision. Any Member State can block rather than abstain from a CFSP decision likely to conflict with its interests.

Fontainebleau Rebate

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he is making at European Union level regarding the Fontainebleau rebate. [17082]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The United Kingdom rebate is enshrined in the Own Resources Decision, which can be changed only with the agreement of the UK Government and following ratification by the UK Parliament. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer and I have repeatedly made it clear to our Community partners that we shall not agree any change to the rebate which results in a system less advantageous to the United Kingdom than the current arrangement. The rebate will remain fully justified given the size of our net contribution in relation to our relative prosperity.

Amsterdam Treaty (Social Charter)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the legal effect of the references in the preamble to the new Article 117 set out in Article 2 (22) of the Treaty of Amsterdam to the European Social Charter of 18 October 1961 and the 1989 Community Charter of the Fundamental Social Rights of Workers. [17226]

Mr. Doug Henderson: These references indicate a political attachment to the rights identified in the Charters, the provisions of which will not become justiciable before the European Court of Justice.

European Union (Common Concern Principle)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if repeated rejection of recommendations made under Article 128 of the treaty establishing the European Community will be judged to be a breach of the common concern principle; and if he will make a statement. [17289]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Recommendations adopted under Article 128 (old Article 109q) of the Treaty establishing the European Community as amended by the Treaty of Amsterdam will have no binding force, and thus create no binding obligations on Member States. We fully endorse the principles set out in Article 125 (old Article 109n) which encourage the promotion of "a skilled, trained and adaptable workforce and labour markets responsive to economic change".

PRIME MINISTER

Political Donations

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his oral Answers of 12 November 1997, Official Report, columns 898-99, if he will list the names of those with whom he or his advisers have had meetings or discussions in No. 10 Downing Street on policy matters since 2 May who have also made donations or loans to the Labour Party of £5,000 or more in the past 12 months. [16727]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 19 November 1997]: No. When individuals or groups meet me or my advisers on Government policy, they are not asked whether they have provided funding to the Labour Party or any other party.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Prime Minister if he will extend the remit of Sir Patrick Neill's Committee to include the identifying of all those individuals and companies who have donated money to political parties in the years 1992 to 1997 inclusive, indicating the sums they donated. [16366]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 17 November 1997]: I have proposed that all Parties disclose to the Neill Committee—on a confidential basis—the names of donors and the amounts over £5,000 donated since 1992, so that the Committee can properly assess the current state of affairs of party funding and see how the system had been working in practice. The leader of the Liberal Democrats has agreed to this. I have urged the hon. and learned Gentlemen's party to do the same.

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his oral Answer of 12 November 1997, Official Report, column 898, when he first learned of the £1 million donation from Mr. Ecclestone. [16755]

The Prime Minister: Before I became Prime Minister.

Planning Policy (Supermarkets)

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Prime Minister what recent representations he has received regarding planning policy towards supermarkets. [16876]

The Prime Minister: I have received a variety of representations concerning planning policy. Our policy was set out in our Response to the Fourth Report of the Environment Select Commmittee on Shopping Centres. Our Response reaffirmed the policy set out in Policy guidance Note 6 (PPG6). This seeks to focus development, especially retail development, within existing town centres.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Transport and the Regions regarding planning policy towards supermarkets. [16877]

The Prime Minister: Along with other Ministerial colleagues, I was consulted on the Government's Response to the Fourth Report of the Environment Select Committee on Shopping Centres (Cmnd 3729). This Response reaffirmed the policy set out in Planning Policy Guidance Note 6 (PPG6), which seeks to focus development, especially retail development, within existing town centres.

Lord Sainsbury

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Prime Minister when he last met Lord Sainsbury in an official capacity; and what subjects were discussed. [16897]

The Prime Minister: I have not met Lord Sainsbury in an official capacity.

Iraq

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his oral answer of 19 November, Official Report, column 323 in what circumstances the United Kingdom would consult (a) France, (b) Russia, (c) China and (d) Arab states prior to endorsing military action by (i) the United Kingdom and (ii) the USA against Iraq. [17439]

The Prime Minister: Since the crisis with Iraq began, we have maintained close contact with the US, France, Russia, and China as permanent members of the Security Council, and a number of Arab states in our efforts to seek a diplomatic solution.

It is not sensible to speculate on the circumstances in which military action would be appropriate.

We are pleased that the solidarity of the Security Council has forced the Iraqi regime to resume full co-operation with UNSCOM United Nations Special Commission) without the need to resort to military action.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Prime Minister (1) which Minister is responsible for co-ordinating the work and outputs of (a) the Treasury's departmental spending reviews of current public expenditure and tax and benefits, (b) the Department of Social Security's review of the future of the welfare state, (c) the benefit-by-benefit review, (d) the benefits integrity programme and (e) the review of pensions; [17035]

(2) what are the anticipated time scales for (a) the Department of Social Security's review of the future of the welfare state, (b) the DSS benefit by benefit review, (c) the benefits integrity programme and (d) the Treasury's review of tax and benefits; and how and when the findings of each review will be reported to the House. [17038]

The Prime Minister: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer is Chairman of the ministerial committee on public expenditure which is overseeing the Comprehensive Spending Review announced by my right hon. Friend, the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on 11 June. It includes departmental and cross-departmental reviews and is expected to take about a year to complete.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Social Security is conducting a wide-ranging review of the Social Security system within the framework of the Comprehensive Spending Programme. As a first step in the review, my right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Social Security and the Minister for Welfare Reform expect to publish a Green Paper on the framework for welfare reform around the turn of the year.

The Benefit Integrity Project, checking the correctness of Disability Living Allowance payments by means of postal inquiries and visits, is due to be completed by 31 March 1999.

The review of tax and benefits, headed by Martin Taylor, Chief Executive of Barclays Bank, and involving officials from the Treasury, the Department of Social Security, the Department for Education and Employment and the Inland Revenue will inform my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer's, Spring Budget.

Diana, Princess of Wales

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his answer of 3 November 1997, Official Report, column 3, on his role in the events surrounding the funeral of Diana, Princess of Wales, if he will list those from whom he sought advice. [17262]

The Prime Minister: No. It has been the long-standing practice, enshrined in the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, that the sources of advice to Ministers on such matters are not normally made public.

Ministerial Task Force on Child Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Prime Minister what will be the long-term role of the Ministerial Task Force on Child Care. [17535]

The Prime Minister: In his statement in the House on 19 November 1997, Official Report, columns 327–29, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health announced that the first job of the Ministerial Task Force would be to prepare the full Government response to Sir William Utting's report. As part of that it will be asked to consider what, if any, its long-term role should be.

Carrington Moss (Planning Application)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if he will list those organisations and individuals which have made representations to him (a) in favour of and (b) against Manchester United's planning application to build on green belt land at Carrington Moss; [17190]

(2) what representations he has received regarding Manchester United's application for planning permission to build on green belt land at Carrington Moss; [17191]

(3) what discussions he has had with directors of Manchester United regarding its application to build on green belt land at Carrington Moss; [17189]

(4) what representations he has received from employees of Manchester United regarding the club's planning application to build on green belt land at Carrington Moss. [17330]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 21 November 1997]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend, the Minister for London and Construction on 21 November, Official Report, column 336.

UK Parliamentary Delegation

Mr. Terry Davis: To ask the Prime Minister if he will place in the Library the latest information bulletin on the activities of the United Kingdom delegation to the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe and the Assembly of Western European Union covering the period May to September 1997. [17545]

The Prime Minister: I have done so today.

Mr. Jonathan Powell

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what steps were taken to ensure that no conflict of interest arises in respect of Mr. Jonathan Powell's role as Chief of Staff as a result of his knowledge of contributions to the Leader of the Opposition's office fund. [17562]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the reply that I gave the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Mr. Hawkins) on 26 June 1997, Official Report, column 611.

Official Meetings

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister when he met (a) Lord Levy, (b) Lord Merlyn-Rees, (c) Baroness Dean of Thornton le Fylde, (d) Baroness Jay of Paddington, (e) Mr. John Mendleson, (f) Mr. Colin Lehmann, (g) Mr. David Goldman, (h) Mr. Gary Bond, (i) Mr. David Pitt-Watson, (j) Sir Emmanuel Kaye, (k) Sir Trevor Chinn, (l) Mr. Alex Bernstein, (m) Mr. Ashley Mitchell and (n) Mr. David Ward in an official capacity; and what was discussed. [17585]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings with Ministerial colleagues and others.

Anglo-French Summit

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his answer of 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 617, who provided rooms in Canary Wharf free of charge, when he expects to have final figures for the cost of preparing and furnishing the rooms; and if he will place these figures in the Library. [17569]

The Prime Minister: Canary Wharf Limited provided rooms in Canary Wharf free of charge. We expect to have final figures for the cost of preparing and furnishing the rooms shortly. The figures will be placed in the Library.

British Film Industry

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Prime Minister who he met and what was discussed at his meeting with representatives from the British film industry held before the July budget. [17440]

The Prime Minister: I have discussed the British film industry with ministerial colleagues and others prior to and after the Budget.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Bicycle Allowance

Mr. Brake: To ask the President of the Council if she will introduce travel allowances for hon. Members using their bicycles on Parliamentary business. [16844]

Mrs. Ann Taylor: I have asked the Senior Salaries Review Body to consider the merits of a cycling allowance for MPs in its next report. The report will, if appropriate, make recommendations on a possible mechanism for reimbursing the cost of using bicycles on official business—for Members of both Houses—and recommend an appropriate figure for any allowance. The SSRB's report is due to be published in the New Year.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he has received the National Radiological Protection Board's report on the radiological significance of past dumpings of radioactive waste at (a) Beaufort's Dyke and (b) elsewhere; and if he will make a statement. [17615]

Mr. Rooker: I have now received the results of the independent assessment which I asked the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB) to undertake, and I have arranged for copies of NRPB's report to be placed in the Library of the House.

The report concludes that all the past dumpings which were identified during the searches of records would give rise to doses well within the International Commission on Radiological Protection's recommended dose limit for members of the public. Moreover, in all cases except one, the report states that the calculated doses were at a level considered trivial in radiological protection terms. Only in relation to the disposals in Liverpool Bay area were peak critical group doses estimated to have been above the 'trivial' level, and even these were well within the recommended dose limit. The NRPB conclude that, since estimated doses from the dispersion of radionuclides in marine waters are not significant in radiological protection terms, there is no need for additional environmental monitoring in connection with the disposals.

The NRPB consider that the only eventuality which could give rise to a significant calculated dose is if one of the two anti-static devices dumped off the Isle of Arran in 1958 were to be washed ashore or trawled up and handled by a member of the public. They conclude that the likelihood of this situation occurring is extremely low but advise that it may nevertheless be prudent to ensure that trawlermen and organisations responsible for dealing with material washed up on beaches are made aware of the possibility and advised to seek expert assistance if there is reason to suspect that one of these sources has appeared. In the light of this, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland and I are exploring with the NRPB how such advice can effectively be provided.

Quarantine Reform

Mr. Key: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the members of his Assessment Panel on Quarantine Reform indicating their qualifications. [16952]

Mr. Rooker: The members of the Advisory Group on Quarantine are:

Professor Ian Kennedy LL.D (Chairman), Professor of Health Law, Ethics and Policy at the School of Public Policy, University College London. He was previously president of the Centre for Medical Law and Ethics, Kings College London and chaired the Government's Advisory Group on the Ethics of Xenotransplantation in 1995–96.

Dr. Barbara Bannister MSc FRCP, Consultant in Infectious and Tropical Diseases at the Royal Free Hospital, London.

Mr. Paul deVile BVetMed, a small animal veterinary practitioner in Eastbourne. He is a past president of both the British Veterinary Association and the British Small Animals Veterinary Association.

Dr. Chris Dye who is on secondment from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicines as Senior Epidemiologist at the World Health Organisation, Geneva.

Professor Os Jarrett, Professor of Comparative Virology at the University of Glasgow.

Professor Herbert Sewell, Head of Immunology at University Hospital Medical School, Queen's Medical Centre, Nottingham.

and

Sir Joseph Smith who is the retired head of the Public Health Laboratory Service. He is a former member of the Committee on the Safety of Medicines.

Mr. Key: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what are the terms of reference for the Assessment Panel on Quarantine Reform; when it will begin and finish its work; and how many officials at which grades will be assigned in support of the work of the panel. [16953]

Mr. Rooker: The terms of reference for the Advisory Group on Quarantine are as follows:

"To assess the risk of introduction of rabies into the United Kingdom under the current policy of quarantine for pet animals and under alternative policies, particularly the five set out below. The assessment should advise on, and take full account of the practical aspects of enforcement of the policies in determining the risk posed by each. The assessment should also consider and advise on the costs and benefits of each of the policies, and of the risk of introducing other animal diseases transmissible to humans.

The alternative policies to be assessed are:

Option (a): maintain the existing policy whereby imported animals are housed in secure quarantine facilities for six months;

Option (b): reduce the length of time animals are required to spend in quarantine;

Options (c) and (d): allow in animals for which reliable alternative assurances can be obtained, in particular those from EU Member States and certain rabies-free countries, through restrictions based on identification, vaccination, blood testing, certification and a system of checks after entry. In option (c) checks would be made at the point of entry, in option (d) these checks would be made away from the point of entry in approved reception centres. Where these assurances cannot be met, animals would be quarantined as now;

Options (e) and (f): give up quarantine altogether. Under option (e) imported animals only would be subject to pre-entry vaccination. Under option (f) all domestic cats and dogs would be vaccinated. Farm livestock and foxes in affected areas would be vaccinated were the disease to be introduced."

The Advisory Group is beginning its work now and aims to produce its report in the Spring of 1998.

One Grade 7, one Veterinary Adviser, one Higher Executive Officer and one Administrative Officer have been assigned to support the work of the Advisory Group. Other staff will be involved as necessary.

Flood Warnings (Somerset)

Mr. David Heath: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to improve floodplain zoning and flood warning systems in Somerset. [17071]

Mr. Morley: The Environment Agency is responsible for carrying out surveys in relation to its flood defence function and for arranging for flood warnings to be issued. It has recently undertaken a survey of all main-river floodplain in Somerset, under the provisions of Section 105(2) of the Water Resources Act 1991. In its latest Corporate Plan, the Agency has set out targets for its flood warning arrangements which will involve the development of new telemetry, forecasting and warning dissemination systems.

Bruton Flood Detention Dam

Mr. David Heath: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what survey of the reservoir site was conducted prior to the construction of the Bruton flood detention dam. [17072]

Mr. Morley: The Environment Agency has advised that surveys, including topographic and ground site investigation, were undertaken by consulting engineers to satisfy the requirements of the Engineers appointed pursuant to the Reservoirs Act 1975.

Mr. David Heath: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of the design standards of the Bruton flood detention dam. [17073]

Mr. Morley: The Environment Agency has advised that the design standard of the Bruton flood detention dam was established at the time of construction by the consulting engineers, in accordance with current legislation and best practice. A review was subsequently undertaken in 1995–96, by consulting engineers Babtie using the latest methodologies. This independent hydrological assessment indicates that the dam currently provides protection against floods in excess of the 1 in 100 year return period.

Regional Panels

Mr. Paice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food pursuant to his answer of 7 November 1997, Official Report, columns 363–65, on the former regional panels, if he will list the addresses of each of the individual panel members. [17348]

Mr. Rooker: No.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Biotechnological Invention

Dr. Gibson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment her Department has made of the impact of commercial monopoly rights over natural DNA sequences. [15341]

Mr. Battle: Under current United Kingdom law (the Patents Act 1977) it is possible to obtain patent rights for DNA sequences but only where they are isolated from the body, only where such sequences simultaneously meet the three general conditions for patentability: they are new, they are inventive and they are capable of industrial application. Discoveries, for example that a particular sequence exists in nature, are not patentable. This legislation provides for exceptions to patent rights for the benefit of those who wish to carry out research relating to protected DNA sequences.

Significant progress in genetic engineering and biotechnology in general has been made in the United Kingdom throughout the twenty years this legislation has been in place. No assessment has been made during that time to identify the precise impact on patent rights to such progress, and to disentangle their role in facilitating the recovery of the costs of research and development from that of other factors which influence decisions to invest in research and the marketing of biotechnoligical products.

However, the current uncertainty which exists in this area of law in Europe at present has the potential to act as a deterrent to investment in this industry. This Directive could play an important role in harmonising and clarifying national laws.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps the Government took to ensure that members of the public were informed of a consultation on the proposed EU Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. [16736]

Mr. Battle: Information concerning the Commission's proposal was circulated widely, including by use of the internet. As a result, over 150 organisations have made their views known to me or my Department and have taken part in a consultation exercise, including a major meeting of interested parties held in London in October. Organisations should include those representing environmental interests, health and patient groups, animal welfare, the professions, industry, trade unions and religious groups.

Mr. Benn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the impact of the proposed EU Directive on the Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions on (a) employment and (b) small biotech companies. [16751]

Mr. Battle: Since the European Commission's proposed Directive is substantially consistent with current United Kingdom legislation (The Patent Act 1977), no specific assessment has been made of the impact of the proposed Directive. The Patents Act has been in place throughout the development of the modern biotechnology industry in the United Kingdom, which already employs over 10,000 people, a figure forecast to rise to 14,000 over the next two years. A sound intellectual property regime is considered essential to financing support for small and medium biotechnology companies and to safeguard their contribution to improving the quality of life through developments in this technology.

Patents (Biological Materials)

Mr. McDonnell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what research her Department has conducted into the benefits of granting patents on living biological materials. [16750]

Mr. Battle: Assuming general conditions for patentability are met, patent rights may be obtained for plant and animal materials under current United Kingdom legislation (The Patents Act 1977). This legislation has been in place throughout the development of the modern biotechnological industry in the United Kingdom.

No specific research has been conducted. However, the industry has made significant progress in enhancing quality of life with medical advances in treatments for conditions such as Asthma, Rheumatoid Arthritis and Hepatitis B.

Publicity and Advertising

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is her estimate of the total expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising by (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for (i) 1993–94, (ii) 1994–95, (iii) 1995–96, (iv) 1996–97, (v) the 1997–98 year to date, (vi) the 1997–98 full year estimate and (vii) the 1998–99 planned expenditure. [15213]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Total Departmental expenditure on publicity is not held centrally and could be produced only at disproportionate cost. Expenditure on publicity, including advertising, from centrally-managed budgets is as follows:

	£000
1993–94	8,468
1994–95	8,112
1995–96	9,211
1996–97	9,216
April–October 1997	2,348

Planned spend for 1997–98 and 1998–99 is not available.

Chief Executives of the Department's Executive Agencies have been asked to respond direct.

Letter from Seton Bennett to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 24 November 1997:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply on behalf of the National Weights and Measures Laboratory (NWML), a net running cost Agency, to your question about expenditure on publicity and advertising.

The figures for NWML are as follows:

Year	£000
1993–94	n/a
1994–95	9
1995–96	16
1996–97	28
1997–98 year to date	12
1997–98 full year estimate	25
1998–99 planned	25

n/a = not available.

Letter from John Holden to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 24 November 1997:

I have been asked to respond to your question to the President of the Board of Trade regarding expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising. The total for all forms for Companies House (shown in £000s) are:

	£000
1993–94	378
1994–95	448
1995–96	364
1996–97	289
1997–98 (to date)	49
1997–98 (estimated)	444
1998–99 (plan)	444

Letter from P. R. S. Hartnack to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 24 November 1997:

I am replying for the Patent Office to your Parliamentary Question to the President of the Board of Trade about expenditure on publicity and advertising.

The figures in £'000 are as follows:

		£000
	Marketing	Recruitment advertising
1993–94	1,545	0
1994–95	887	7
1995–96	557	17
1996–97	546	48
1997–98 (end of October)	330	40
1997–98 (forecast)	650	60
1998–99 (forecast)	617	62

Letter from Ian Jones to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 24 November 1997:

You tabled a Parliamentary Question to the President of the Board of Trade, for named day reply on 11 November, about expenditure by her Department, its agencies and non departmental bodies on all forms of advertising and publicity. I have been asked to reply in respect of the Employment Tribunals Service.

The Employment Tribunals Service was established as an executive agency on 1 April 1997. The Agency spent to 31 October 1997 £97,000 on publicity and advertising. We expect to spend £146,000 in the current financial year. This mainly covers the cost of explanatory leaflets for the public and, where appropriate, advertisements to locate parties who we are otherwise unable to trace. Plans for 1998/9 have not yet been finalised.

Letter from Peter Joyce to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 24 November 1997:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply to your question about The Insolvency Service's expenditure on publicity and advertising for 1993–94 to 1996–97, 1997–98 to date and full year estimates, and 1998–99 planned expenditure.

The Insolvency Service has a statutory obligation to advertise each compulsory corporate and personal insolvency in the London Gazette and one other newspaper. The costs are charged to the estate of the insolvent company/individual, and not directly to the Department.

Recruitment advertising is undertaken from time to time at both national and local level. Expenditure was devolved to the Agency from 1993–94, and the amounts expended have been:

	£
1993–94	14,900
1994–95	4,595
1995–96	4,060
1996–97	40,960
1997–98 to date	6,170
1997–98 full year estimate	20,000

It is not possible to provide an estimate of planned expenditure for 1998–99 at this stage as financial and manpower settlements have not yet been agreed.

In addition The Service incurred some £12,00 advertising costs during 1995–96 as part of the contracting out study taking place at that time.

The Service also publishes a range of guidance material designed to provide its users and the public with information about various aspects of insolvency as well as its Annual Report and Accounts each year. Expenditure on these publications totalled:

	£
1993–94	n/a
1994–95	29,670
1995–96	24,465
1996–97	50,210
1997–98 to date	21,140
1997–98 full year estimate	47,000

n/a = not available.

Again, it is not possible to provide an estimate of planned expenditure for 1998–99 at this stage as financial and manpower settlements have not yet been agreed.

Letter from Jim Norton to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 24 November 1997:

The President of the Board of Trade, Mrs Margaret Beckett MP, has asked me to reply, on behalf of The Radiocommunications Agency, to your question concerning details in respect of expenditure on publicity activities undertaken from financial year 1993–94, including proposed expenditure for financial years 1997–98 and 1998–99.

The details are as follows:

Financial year	Spend £
1993–94	188,706
1994–95	211,634
1995–96	369,732
1996–97	304,049
1997–98 to date	366,000
1997–98 estimate	420,000
1998–99 budget	450,000

I hope that this is helpful.

Competition Bill

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will exempt (a) newspaper distribution arrangements, (b) the arrangements between oil companies and filling stations and (c) the tie between brewers and pubs from the terms of the Competition Bill prohibitions. [15817]

Mrs. Beckett: Agreements which fulfil the criteria for exemption under European block exemption regulations, including those relating to beer tie agreements, petrol service station agreements and exclusive distribution will be automatically exempt from the Chapter 1 prohibition in the Competition Bill. There is no exemption from Chapter II prohibition in the Bill.

Export Licences

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the average period for a company seeking an export licence from the Department of Trade and Industry, from its first contacts with the Department of Trade and Industry to seek information on how to apply, to the granting of the licence. [16143]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The Export Control Organisation (ECO) of my department has a Helpline and other advisory facilities for exporters seeking to obtain export licences. Since individual circumstances are so varied, it is not possible to keep records relating the first date of inquiry to the received date of a formal application for an export licence (if indeed such an application is made). Inquiries are dealt with promptly—usually the same day.

In some 'pre-licence' inquiries, exporters request advice on the licensable status (or 'rating') of goods that may be exported. Targets for dealing with such applications, provided full information is received with the inquiry, are:

10 working days where circulation to other Government Departments is not required.

20 working days where circulation to other Government Departments is required.

For the last four week period for which statistics have been compiled (22 September to 17 October 1997) those targets have been met in 96 per cent. of non-circulated cases and 80 per cent. of circulated cases.

Once an export licence application is received by the ECO, performance targets are applied to the length of time it takes Government to process. The targets, provided full information is supplied with the application, are:

10 working days where circulation to other Government Departments is not required.

20 working days where circulation to other Government Departments is required.

For the last four week period for which statistics have been compiled (22 September to 17 October 1997), those targets have been met in 71 per cent. of non-circulated cases and 48 per cent. of circulated cases.

The ECO does not record the average length of time it takes for an export licence application to be issued.

Fossil Fuel Levy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much revenue she plans to raise from non fossil fuel energy, in the first full year of the extended fossil fuel levy under the Fossil Fuel Levy Bill [Lords]. [16148]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The amount to be raised from the Levy in 1998–99 is currently being estimated by the Levy Collector. I will announce their estimate when it becomes available. The Fossil Fuel Levy Bill will have no effect on the total amount of revenue raised. Levy is paid on electricity supplied by licensed electricity suppliers. It is not possible to plan how much Levy will be raised on electricity from specific sources as this will depend upon the volume of electricity supplied from those sources which is subject to a range of factors including the availability of plant and the commercial decisions of the companies involved.

Mr. Fallon: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will estimate (a) the total amount expected to be raised by the fossil fuel levy in 1998–99 and (b) the amount to be raised from (i) the nuclear industry, (ii) hydro-electric generation and (iii) other renewable sources of energy. [16057]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The amount to be raised from the Levy in 1998–99 is currently being estimated by the Levy Collector. I will announce their estimate when it becomes available. The Fossil Fuel Levy Bill will have no effect on the total amount of revenue raised. Levy is paid on electricity supplied by licensed electricity suppliers. It is not possible to plan how much Levy will be raised on electricity from specific sources as this will depend upon the volume of electricity supplied from those sources which is subject to a range of factors including the availability of plant and the commercial decisions of the companies involved.

Business Opportunities

Mr. Waterson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what new steps the Government are taking to enhance opportunities for business start-ups and small businesses seeking to compete in established industry sectors. [16503]

Mrs. Roche: The Government recognise the value of providing a climate within which those starting new enterprises and those running small businesses can compete and win. This is why I support the work of the Business Links, which provide access to high quality business services, and why I have taken steps to make them more effective. I launched the vision for enhancing Business Links on 7 October, and I am sure that the commitment to continuous improvement in service standards which is required will be of immense benefit to emerging businesses.

Electrical Retailing

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the impact of implementing the recommendations contained in the Monopolies and Mergers Commission Report on electrical retailing on the numbers of electrical retailing businesses operating. [16523]

Mrs. Beckett: The MMC have found that, as a result of a number of entrenched practices by suppliers and dealers of domestic electrical goods, retail prices are higher than they would otherwise be, price competition in these markets is muted, new retailers have difficulty getting supplies, and innovation in retailing is discouraged.

My proposed remedies, announced on 30 July 1997, would stop suppliers and dealers from relying on recommended retail prices and help dealers who want to compete on price but have difficulty getting supplies. They would allow consumers to benefit from lower prices through stronger price competition and more choice of retail outlets.

During the consultation on my proposals small retailers have told me, as they did the MMC, that a number of them would close if the proposed remedies were implemented. I am considering these arguments.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many representations against her electrical retailing proposals she has received. [16522]

Mrs. Beckett: By the close of 14 November, I had received around 140 representations raising one or more objections to the proposals I announced on 30 July 1997.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate she has made of the impact on prices of her electrical retailing proposals. [16521]

Mrs. Beckett: The MMC found that a number of entrenched practices by suppliers and dealers of domestic electrical goods operated against the public interest by causing retail prices to be higher than they would otherwise be. I announced on 30 July 1997 my proposals to prohibit these practices, and that consumers would benefit from lower prices through stronger competition and more choice of retail outlets.

Recommended Retail Prices

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the use of recommended retail prices in (a) electrical retailing and (b) newspaper distribution. [16576]

Mrs. Beckett: In relation to electrical retailing, the MMC found various practices which encouraged retailers to adhere to recommended retail prices, and concluded that the level of retail prices was influenced by recommended retail prices, and that tackling only the associated practices would be an insufficient remedy. They therefore recommended that recommended retail prices themselves be prohibited in these markets. I accepted their recommendation in my announcement of 30 July 1997.

In relation to newspaper distribution the MMC, in its 1993 report, made no adverse findings against the publishers' practice of displaying newspaper cover prices, which are in effect recommended retail prices.

Departmental Announcements

Mr. Baker: To ask the President of the Board of Trade under what circumstances it is her Department's policy to make announcements to the media prior to informing Parliament. [16966]

Mrs. Beckett: It is the Department's policy, as far as practicable, to inform Parliament of major policy decisions before making announcements to the media.

Some announcements are market sensitive, and there is a need to ensure that the information reaches the market in an orderly fashion. The contents of MMC monopoly and merger reports and my decisions on them are, for example, market sensitive. My normal practice is to announce my decision to the market at the same time as the report is published and laid in Parliament.

Stena and P&O Merger

Mr. Baker: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will investigate the report contained in The Observer newspaper of 16 November relating to the proposed merger of Stena and P&O with a view to identifying the source close to the authorities cited in the report. [16967]

Mrs. Beckett: I have seen the press report to which the hon. Member refers. The report was speculative, and inaccurate in a number of respects. It contained nothing which suggests that it was derived from a UK official source. Unless there is other evidence to suggest that it was derived from a UK official source, I do not intend to investigate the report further.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when she plans to publish her decision on the P & O and Stena ferries merger; and if she will make an oral statement. [17065]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 21 November 1997]: I published the Monopolies and Merger's report on the proposed joint venture between P & O and Stena on 19 November. Copies of the report have been laid before Parliament. As is usual in such cases, I also issued a Press Notice announcing my decision on the report, copies of which are available in the libraries of both Houses.

Plutonium

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade pursuant to her Answer to the hon. Member for South Down (Mr. McGrady) of 6 November 1997, Official Report, columns 296–97, if she will set out the ways in which the Euratom Safeguards Office scrutinises the United Kingdom plutonium stocks. [16853]

Mrs. Beckett: All civil nuclear material in the UK, including plutonium, is subject to Euratom safeguards and to the terms of the tripartite UK/Euratom/IAEA safeguards agreement. These require the regular provision of information by nuclear operators to the Euratom Safeguards Directorate. The UK's plutonium stocks, along with other civil nuclear material in the UK, are also subject to inspection by safeguards inspectors. Details of the reporting and associated procedures are set out in Commission Regulation (Euratom) No. 3227/76. I have placed copies of the Regulation in the library of the House.

Coal Supplies

Mr. Grogan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the DTI forecasts for coal burn in the electricity sector and for deepmines and opencast coal production in (a) 1997, (b) 1998 and (c) 2001. [17136]

Mr. Battle: UK deep-mined and opencast coal output in 1997 are likely to be about 31 million tonnes and 17 million tonnes respectively. The previous administration published energy projections for the UK as Energy Paper 65 in March 1995 which is available in the libraries of the House indicated that coal burn in 2000 was likely to fall within the range 14.6 to 23.7 million tonnes of oil equivalent.

My Department is working on a new set of projections which I intend to publish next year.

Low Pay Commission

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will publish the revisions which she has made to her instructions to the Low Pay Commission in the last month. [17066]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 21 November 1997]: There have been no changes to the Low Pay Commission's terms of reference.

BP Power Station

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which ministers (a) saw the relevant papers regarding, (b) discussed and (c) were involved in the decision concerning the approval for a new British Petroleum gas-fired power station. [17062]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 21 November 1997]: Departmental responsibility for applications for consent under section 36 of the Electricity Act 1989 rests with the Minister for Science, Energy and Industry and the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and it is those Ministers who considered the papers on BP's Salt End power station project and who will come to consider the papers on BP's other proposed power station project at Baglan Bay.

Written Questions

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the average time her Department has taken to give substantive answers to named day questions in the current parliamentary session. [17560]

Mrs. Beckett: Eighty-nine per cent. of the named day questions were answered within 5 sitting days and 71 per cent. within 2 days of the date for answer.

Fax and Telephone Installation Costs

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what was the cost to public funds of installing (a) a fax and (b) a telephone at her mobile home. [17561]

Mrs. Beckett: None.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16302]

Mr. Dewar: My Department disseminates information in a number of different ways. There is no central guidance held by my Department which covers all of the various means of issuing information.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16301]

Mr. Dewar: Scottish Office press releases are not faxed on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen. Copies of the press releases are, however, mailed on the day of release to the Scottish headquarters of the four main political parties in Scotland. This was the position prior to 1 May and I have no plans to change these arrangements.

Student Funding

Mr. Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the average funding per student in further education in Scotland in each of the last five years. [16509]

Mr. Wilson: The average Government funding per full-time equivalent student in further education colleges in Scotland (in cash terms and rounded to the nearest £) over the last three years is shown in the list:

1995–96: £2,812

1994–95: £2,902

1993–94: £2,811.

The figures for 1992–93 and 1991–92 are not compatible with those above. They include expenditure on other vocational education and assistance, transport, residential accommodation and bursary support and cannot be disaggregated.

1992–93: £3,481

1991–92: £3,228.

Tuition Fees

Mr. Gorrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate his Department has made of the total annual sum likely to be required of students from England, Wales and Northern Ireland to pay towards the fees for their fourth year at a Scottish university once the scheme is fully in operation. [16645]

Mr. Wilson: From academic year 1998–99 new full-time undergraduate students will be required to contribute up to a maximum of £1,000 a year in tuition fees, depending on their parents', spouses' or own income. The Scottish Office does not have responsibility for assessing the contribution towards fees for students domiciled in England, Wales or Northern Ireland, and no specific estimate of the likely average fee per student for those students from England, Wales and Northern Ireland studying in Scotland is available.

Quangos

Mr. Ernie Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list all the quangos in Scotland employing more than 20 employees, with the total level of employment and the respective employment levels in each of the quangos in (a) Glasgow, (b) Edinburgh, (c) Aberdeen, (d) Dundee, (e) Stirling and (f) Inverness. [16520]

Mr. Dewar: The information is set out in the following table.

Employment numbers (full-time equivalents)

Body	Total	Glasgow	Edinburgh	Aberdeen	Dundee	Stirling	Inverness
Executive NDPBs
Accounts Commission for Scotland	157	20	77	9	—	—	11
Crofters' Commission	76	—	—	—	—	—	76
Highlands and Islands Enterprise[1]	350	—	—	—	—	—	174
National Board for Nursing, Midwifery and Health Visiting for Scotland	44	—	44	—	—	—	—
National Galleries of Scotland	164	—	164	—	—	—	—
National Library of Scotland	217	—	217	—	—	—	—
National Museums of Scotland	270	—	270	—	—	—	—
Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh	202	—	202	—	—	—	—
Royal Commission on the Ancient and Historical Monuments of Scotland	65	—	65	—	—	—	—
Scottish Agricultural and Biological Research Institutes:
Hannah Research Institute	140	—	—	—	—	—	—
Macaulay Research Institute	260	—	—	260	—	—	—
Moredun Research Institute	156	—	156	—	—	—	—
Rowett Research Institute	276	—	—	276	—	—	—
Scottish Crop Research Institute	343	—	—	—	343	—	—
Scottish Arts Council	80	—	80	—	—	—	—
Scottish Children's Reporter Administration	327	66	22	17	18	38	16
Scottish Community Education Council	30	—	30	—	—	—	—
Scottish Council for Educational Technology	88	88	—	—	—	—	—
Scottish Enterprise[1]	1,714	694	114	94	91	79	—
Scottish Environment Protection Agency	637	12	91	64	—	101	—
Scottish Further Education Unit	28	—	—	—	—	28	—

Employment numbers (full-time equivalents)

Body	Total	Glasgow	Edinburgh	Aberdeen	Dundee	Stirling	Inverness
Scottish Higher Education Funding Council	60	—	60	—	—	—	—
Scottish Homes	837	218	310	8	48	—	17
Scottish Legal Aid Board	273	3	270	—	—	—	—
Executive NDPBs
Scottish Natural Heritage	613	—	199	36	—	9	39
Scottish Qualifications Authority	350	350	—	—	—	—	—
Scottish Screen	38	38	—	—	—	—	—
Scottish Sports Council	150	—	150	—	—	—	—
Scottish Tourist Board	157	—	120	—	—	—	37
Water Authorities
East of Scotland Water Authority	1,963	—	714	—	—	226	—
North of Scotland Water Authority	1,928	—	—	403	370	—	253
West of Scotland Water Authority	2,725	1,267	—	—	—	—	—

[1] Figures relate to the Highlands and Islands Enterprise and the Scottish Enterprise networks as a whole.

HEALTH

Abortion

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the average cost of a first trimester NHS abortion by vacuum aspiration in (a) Sheffield and (b) Newcastle. [15671]

Ms Jowell: Estimates of the costs information requested are shown in the table:

Estimates of the average cost of a first trimester National Health Service abortion by vacuum in Sheffield and Newcastle

Trust	Estimate of average cost of first trimester NHS abortion by vacuum (£)
	Day case	In-patient
Central Sheffield Hospitals NHS Trust	443	443
Royal Victoria Infirmary and Associated Hospitals NHS Trust (Newcastle)	289	343

NHS Dentists Register

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people expected to be removed from NHS dentists' registers because they have not made an appointment in the last 15 months. [16634]

Mr. Milburn: From 1 September 1996, the registration period for both adult continuing care and child capitation was harmonised to provide patients with a period of continuing dental care for 15 months following each course of treatment. The most recent estimate is that registration numbers may gradually fall by about 4 million as a result of this change. However, the actual effect on the number of patients registered with a dentist will depend on the response to the incentive for many patients to attend the dentist on a more regular basis.

Fluoridation

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list those studies which his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the potential dangers and side effects of fluoridated water supplies; if he will list those dangers or side effects; and when he expects his Department to complete the current review of the fluoridation programme. [16501]

Ms Jowell: Evaluation of the safety and efficacy of fluoridation of water supplies rests not on the results of a few studies but on the assessments of the very extensive, relevant published scientific literature on the effects of fluoride (including human exposure to fluoride present naturally in drinking water), and on the results of more than half a century of fluoridation. No serious side effects have been identified from fluoridating water by one part of fluoride per million parts of water (the optimum level), but we continue to monitor and evaluate the progress of the programme.

We cannot at present predict when we will complete our review.

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the decision was taken to exempt Formula 1 racing from the proposed ban on tobacco sponsorship of sport; what ministerial meetings took place on this subject between 16 October and 6 November; which Ministers attended these meetings; and if he will publish the minutes of these meetings. [16749]

Mr. Dobson: The issue was discussed in correspondence between Ministers which was brought to a close on 3 November when my hon. Friend the Minister for Public Health wrote to the presidency. It is not the Government's practice to disclose the nature or detailed records of inter-ministerial discussions on policy matters.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department made of the (a) advantages and (b) disadvantages of exempting formula one from the ban on tobacco sponsorship. [16741]

Ms Jowell: After considering the issue of sponsorship in great depth, the Government have proposed excluding formula one from the scope of the proposed EU Directive on tobacco advertising and sponsorship which is currently being negotiated. The Government have always made it clear that it is pursuing twin objectives of reducing smoking and of safeguarding sport from any effects arising from the loss of tobacco sponsorship. The fact is that a blanket Europe-wide ban on formula one sponsorship would mean not only fewer grand prix in Europe but, perversely, more tobacco advertising on our TV screens beamed in from events from outside the European Union.

General Practitioners (Correspondence)

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what factors underlay the decision of the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Darlington (Mr. Milburn), to send the letter of 21 October to general practitioners; to which doctors it was sent and what is the estimated cost of printing and mailing these letters. [16767]

Mr. Milburn: The purpose of the letter was to inform general practitioners about a number of policy developments which are of direct relevance to them and to underline the priority the Government attach to primary care. The cost of printing and mailing these letters including postage, was £14,000.

Trauma Centres

Mr. Lock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued to health authorities in respect of the development of major trauma centres following the report by Sheffield University on the clinical effectiveness of the trauma centre at Stoke on Trent; and if he will make a statement. [16955]

Mr. Boateng: A report, "The cost-effectiveness of the regional trauma system in the North-West Midlands" was published in March 1996. It was made available to health authorities and National Health Service trusts to help inform their decisions on the organisation of accident and emergency services. Copies are available in the Library.

Nursing and Residential Homes

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 59, what plans he has to change the arrangements for remunerating general practitioners for care of patients in nursing and residential homes. [17175]

Mr. Milburn: With effect from April 1998, health authorities will be able, under amendments to the National Health Service (General Medical Services) Regulations 1992, to give general practitioners financial incentives beyond those set out in the Statement of Fees and Allowances to enhance the provision of local general medical services. Subject to local priorities which the health authority will determine, this may include the provision of specified general medical services tailored to the needs of those living in nursing and residential homes.

At present, the Government have no further plans to change the arrangements for remunerating general practitioners for care of patients in nursing and residential homes.

Cancer

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action his Department will be taking to address the differences in the incidence of cancers between the north and south of England. [16660]

Ms Jowell: There is no clear pattern in the overall incidence of cancers when comparing the north and south of England. Stomach, lung and cervical cancers are registered more frequently in the north of England than the south, but female breast cancer and malignant melanoma rates are lower in the north. Death rates from all cancers combined are higher in the north of England.

Sir Donald Acheson, former Chief Medical Officer, is carrying out an independent inquiry into inequalities in health which will report next summer. His recommendations, together with responses to the forthcoming Green Paper on the new public health strategy, will be used to develop next year's White Paper which will aim to reduce geographical health inequalities such as these.

The Government is also committed to implementation of the recommendations in the document "A Policy Framework for Commissioning Cancer Services" which sets out the need for high-quality cancer care wherever a patient may live.

Hospitals (Performance Indicators)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to introduce new clinical indicators of hospital performance; and what measures he plans to take against hospitals with low levels of performance. [16661]

Mr. Boateng: We are already consulting across the National Health Service and the clinical professions on a set of 15 provisional health authority and trust clinical indicators. These indicators may raise questions on aspects of the quality of clinical care for local investigations and are for use within the NHS. Decisions on taking them forward will be taken in light of the consultation process.

We are committed to improving levels of performance throughout the whole of the NHS. Our plans will be set out in an NHS White Paper which we intend to publish shortly.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to ensure waiting lists will not rise in the next 12 months in England. [16662]

Mr. Milburn: We inherited record numbers of patients waiting for treatment from the previous Government. We cannot expect to turn this round overnight. Our immediate priorities are to ensure that the National Health Service deals effectively with emergencies during the winter and that by the end of next March there are no patients waiting more than 18 months for admission to hospital. We are determined to have shorter waiting lists by the end of this Parliament. The wide-ranging action plan for waiting lists and times announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 18 November and the considerable extra resources we have made available to the NHS for this year and next will ensure that we begin to turn the tide.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the proportion of waiting list initiative funding that has been spent in the private sector in the last three years; and what monitoring is undertaken of clinical standards for the private sector in respect of patients being treated under the waiting list initiative. [17337]

Mr. Milburn: Central funding for the previous Government's waiting list initiative ran from 1987–88 to 1993–94 inclusive. Since then the money has been built into health authorities' recurrent revenue baselines and is no longer centrally earmarked for waiting list initiatives. It is for health authorities, as purchasers, to assess their population's needs and to target resources through contracts to ensure that those needs and national priorities such as waiting list and waiting time targets are met. It is also their responsibility to monitor the clinical standards and quality of care of any hospital with which they contract, whether this is an independent hospital or National Health Service trust.

Guidance to health authorities and general practitioner fundholders effective from April 1998 is that they should explore the scope to make maximum cost-effective use of local NHS capacity before thinking about use of private sector provision.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients have died while on waiting lists in each of the last 10 years; and if he will indicate the treatment for which they were waiting. [17343]

Mr. Milburn: Information is collected on removals from waiting lists but this does not differentiate between the various reasons, which include death. Patients may die from any one of a wide range of causes, in common with the rest of the population, while waiting for treatment and the cause may have nothing to do with the condition for which they were on a waiting list.

NHS Bureaucracy

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria his Department will use to measure the savings achieved from the elimination of excess NHS bureaucracy; and by what date he expects to achieve his target for these savings. [16663]

Mr. Milburn: The Government are committed to reducing National Health Service bureaucracy. As a first step, we are tackling the worst features of the internal market and reducing NHS management costs in Great Britain by £100 million in 1997–98. The NHS Executive has set targets for 1997–98 with every health authority and trust in England to reduce their management costs.

The NHS Executive calculates the costs of managing the NHS using two measures: health authority costs; and trust management costs. Health authority costs are monitored quarterly through regional offices. Where there is significant deviation from plan, it is for the NHS Executive regional offices to negotiate recovery plans for those health authorities concerned. Trusts report their management costs in their annual accounts. It is for the regional offices to ensure that trusts are taking the necessary steps to deliver the savings by the end of the year. Current information indicates that both health authorities and trusts are on target to achieve their 1997–98 plans by the end of the year.

We will shortly be announcing further actions to reduce NHS bureaucracy linked to functional and structural change, as part of our plans to replace the internal market.

NHS Contracts

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contracts have been made between purchasers and providers in the NHS in each of the last five years; and how many GP fundholder contracts with providers have been made since fundholding began. [17341]

Mr. Milburn: Information on the number of contracts between purchasers and providers and on general practitioner fundholders' contracts is not collected centrally. Some data have been held at a regional level but this has not been collected or validated on a consistent basis.

Clinical Depression

Ms Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to include consideration of targets for the diagnosis of clinical depression in a future review of health policy. [17196]

Mr. Boateng: We have no such plans.

Ms Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of treating clinical depression, broken down into costs (a) of actual treatment, (b) associated with sickness benefit, (c) of working days lost to illness resulting in lost income revenue and (d) of community care. [17198]

Mr. Boateng: We have made no estimate of these costs.

Ms Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he last had meetings within the Department of Social Security, the Treasury and the Department for Education and Employment to discuss policy on the treatment of clinical depression. [17194]

Mr. Boateng: Treatment of clinical depression is a matter for the relevant bodies. We hold meetings with other Government departments as and when appropriate.

In recent months, officials have had discussions with colleagues at both the Department of Social Security and the Department for Education and Employment on the problems mentally ill people face on securing employment.

Ms Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to set up a task force to examine the diagnosis and treatment of clinical depression. [17195]

Mr. Boateng: We have no such plans. The Clinical Standards Advisory Group, a statutory body that advises United Kingdom Health Ministers on standards of clinical care, began work in March this year to review the clinical management of depression in primary and secondary care. We expect to receive its report early in 1998.

GP Fundholding

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list by (a) health authority and (b) region, the total savings made by general practitioners and the percentage of savings spent in each year since the inception of fundholding. [17334]

Mr. Milburn: Information held centrally on savings made on general practitioner fundholder budgets, and on spending from these savings (excluding savings voluntarily returned by fundholders to their health authorities), has been placed in the Library.

For 1991–92 and 1992–93, these are savings made at regional health authority level. From 1993–94 to 1995–96, data are available at family health services authority/health authority level on both savings made and spending from savings.

"Retained savings" are savings made on fundholders' budgets, excluding amounts voluntarily returned to the health authority, retained for spending in future years. "Accumulated savings available for spending" are all savings made since entry to fundholding less any savings spent.

In 1995–96, fundholders in England retained £84.8 million or 2.4 per cent. of their budgets in savings, and spent £47.6 million (32 per cent.) of their £150.9 million accumulated savings.

All data are taken from audited accounts, returned by National Health Service Executive Regional Offices. Information is not yet available from 1996–97 audited accounts.

Hospital Waiting Lists (Essex)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in the Mid-Essex Hospital Trust area had been waiting for treatment for more than (a) 24 months, (b) 18 months and (c) 12 months, (i) on 31 March and (ii) at the latest available date. [17029]

Mr. Milburn: Information on patients awaiting admission to Mid-Essex Hospital National Health Service Trust on 31 March 1997 and 30 September 1997 is given in the table.

Number waiting	At 31 March 1997	At 30 September 1997
For 12 months or more	104	441
For 18 months or more	0	3
For 24 months or more	0	0

Figure is final one and differs from provisional figure supplied in the reply given to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on 11 June 1997 at column 479.

Figures for 30 September 1997 are provisional.

Minister for Public Health

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the Minister for Public Health informed him of her concerns over a potential conflict of interest arising out of her family links with the motor racing industry; and if he will publish (a) the advice he offered her and (b) the advice she received from the Permanent Secretary.[16747]

Mr. Dobson: My hon. Friend the Minister for Public Health first raised this issue with me when we discussed the division of responsibilities within the Ministerial team at the start of May.

Both the Permanent Secretary and I are fully satisfied that no conflict of interest arises for my hon. Friend the Minister for Public Health and that she has fully observed my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's guidance to Ministers on conduct and procedures.

It is not the practice to publish internal advice on such matters.

Funding Formula

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what ways his Department's proposals to change the funding formula used to allocate National Health Service funds between health authorities reflects the sparsity of areas; and if he will make a statement. [17453]

Mr. Milburn: A geographical cost adjustment for emergency ambulance services was introduced into the national weighted capitation formula used to inform 1998–99 revenue allocations to health authorities. This includes a measure of rural sparsity.

Bed Blocking

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the numbers and cost of elderly patients blocking beds. [17335]

Mr. Boateng: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for North Devon (Mr. Harvey) on 12 November 1997, Official Report, column 602.

Specific information on the cost of delayed discharges is not collected centrally and we have no plans to change this. The Department is seeking to reduce the burden of data collection by the National Health Service and rationalise data flows within the NHS and between the NHS and the centre. The amount of information required to calculate the average cost of delayed discharge would not be in line with this policy.

NHS Trusts (Finances)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many trusts have been assessed by his Department in respect of their long-term financial viability; and what has been the outcome in each case. [17333]

Mr. Milburn: The financial viability of all trusts is assessed as a part of each trust's annual business planning cycle. The financial monitoring process and independent auditing of accounts are also elements in the assessment framework. The outcome in the vast majority of cases has been the continued existence of the trusts as they were established.

Trusts are merged or reconfigured for a number of operational reasons. The majority of reconfigurations are to improve local service provision although a small number have resulted principally from concerns over their long term financial viability. These are:

the merger of West Dorset Community Health NHS Trust with West Dorset Mental Health NHS Trust to form the Dorset Community NHS Trust on 1 April 1994;

the merger of Royal Liverpool University NHS Trust and Broadgreen NHS Trust to form Royal Liverpool University and Broadgreen NHS Trust on 1 April 1995;

the merger of Louth and District Healthcare NHS Trust and Lincoln Hospitals NHS Trust to form Lincoln and Louth NHS Trust on 1 April 1996;

the merger of Royal Free NHS Trust and the Royal National Throat, Nose and Ear Hospital NHS Trust on 1 April 1996;

the dissolution of Anglian Harbours NHS Trust on 30 September 1997.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Criminal Anti-social Behaviour

15. Mr. Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to deal with criminal anti-social behaviour in neighbourhoods. [15791]

Mr. Michael: Anti-social behaviour which harasses or intimidates neighbours, or disturbs a community in general, is unacceptable and the Government intend to tackle it directly. The Crime and Disorder Bill will contain provisions to enable the police or a local authority to apply for a court order prohibiting an individual from behaving in this way. Breach of the Order will be a criminal offence.

Juveniles

16. Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to reduce the number of juveniles held within the prison system. [15793]

Ms Quin: Our aim is a faster, more efficient youth justice system with a clear emphasis on early and effective intervention to prevent young people offending. We will be bringing forward legislation to strengthen the scope for dealing effectively with young people in the community.

We will shortly announce new custodial sentencing arrangements for young people. We are also reviewing the whole range of secure accommodation for remanded and sentenced young people.

Our aim is to find ways of making better and more effective use of the accommodation and to ensure positive and constructive regimes which safeguard young people's welfare and tackle offending behaviour.

Parole

17. Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consideration he has given to improving the system whereby the Parole Board takes fully into account representations from victims or their families. [15794]

Ms. Quin: The Parole Board considers any representations submitted to it from or on behalf of victims when considering the conditions to be contained in the licence of an offender to be released from custody to supervision by the Probation Service. Under the Victims Charter and the Probation Service National Standards, probation services are required to make contact with victims of violent or sexual offences, or the victims of any offence for which the offender was sentenced to four years or more, to enable them to express any concerns they want to be taken into account when the Parole Board is considering the conditions to be attached to release licences.

Victim Support

18. Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the Government's plans to provide greater support for victims of crime. [15795]

Mr. Straw: I refer to the oral answer the Minister of State, Home Department, my hon. Friend the Member for Gateshead, East and Washington (Ms Quin) West gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Reading West (Mr Salter) earlier today.

Criminal Justice System (Delays)

19. Ms Kelly: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to tackle delays in the criminal justice system. [15796]

Mr. Michael: The Government are committed to tackling delay throughout the criminal justice system especially in the youth justice system and have pledged to halve the time taken to deal with persistent young offenders. The Crime and Disorder Bill will contain the necessary measures and, will make provision for statutory time limits which will be tougher for young offenders than for adults, and tougher still for persistent young offenders.

Prison Officers

20. Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he next plans to meet representatives of prison officers to discuss prison matters. [15797]

Ms Quin: I visited Prison Officer Association staff at their headquarters in London on 24 July and have had several other formal meetings with their representatives, which will continue, although no precise date has been arranged for the next meeting.

Metropolitan Police Recruitment

21. Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on Metropolitan police recruitment. [15799]

Mr. Michael: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that he has recruited 811 officers this financial year. He plans four further intakes, bringing the total for 1997–98 to 1,210.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme

22. Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement concerning the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme. [15800]

Mr. Michael: The Great Britain criminal injuries compensation scheme is one of the most generous in the world. In 1996–97 it paid out over £210 million to some 47,000 victims of crime. We are currently looking at expenditure on victims of crime, including expenditure on the scheme, as part of the Government's comprehensive spending review initiated earlier this year. We shall consider whether any changes should be made to the scheme in the light of the findings that emerge from the review.

Police (Resources)

23. Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he makes of the needs of the police force when allocating resources within his departmental budget. [15801]

Mr. Michael: The Government's overall aim is to ensure that the police have adequate resources to play their key part in cutting and preventing crime. In assessing the spending needs of the police we take into account, amongst other considerations, the budget pressures identified by the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities.

Members of Parliament (Bribery)

24. Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to make bribery of hon. Members an offence. [15802]

Mr. Michael: The Government are committed to tackling all forms of corruption, including bribery of hon. Members. My right hon. Friend expects to make a statement on the reform of the law in this area early next year, taking account of the results of the consultation exercise which he launched in June and of proposals which the Law Commission are preparing. He will also take account of any further recommendations which the Committee on Standards in Public Life might make and of the views of the Joint Committee on Parliamentary Privilege.

European Elections (Electoral Arrangements)

25. Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the electoral arrangements proposed for the next European elections. [15803]

Mr. George Howarth: The European Parliamentary Elections Bill, which is to have its Second Reading tomorrow, provides for elections to the European Parliament to be conducted using a proportionally-based regional list system.

Restorative Justice

26. Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of projects under evaluation by his Department relating to restorative justice. [15804]

Mr. Michael: Restorative justice is one way of fulfilling this Government's intention to confront offenders—especially young offenders—with the consequences of their actions.

Restraint Methods

27. Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance he has issued to police forces on methods of restraint, with particular reference to positional asphyxia. [15806]

Mr. Michael: The Association of Chief Police Officers has issued detailed guidance to all police self-defence trainers on this subject. This deals with the circumstances in which positional asphyxia is most likely to occur, risk factors, and how to recognise the symptoms and give first aid. The recent HMIC report of Officer Safety also made particular reference to the need for Police officers to have training in first aid and the care of individuals who have been restrained.

Young Offenders (Parents)

28. Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he will take to ensure that support and guidance is given to parents of young offenders. [15807]

Mr. Michael: Reform of the youth justice system is one of the Government's key priorities. As part of our radical shift in priorities we will introduce a new Parenting Order which encourages parents to accept their responsibilities for the behaviour of their children. There will be an element which allows the courts to direct that parents exercise control over their children and an element which allows the court to impose a requirement on parents to attend training and guidance sessions. We intend to include proposals for the Parenting Order and the establishment of Youth Offender Teams in the forthcoming Crime and Disorder Bill.

Prison and Probation Services

29. Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to ensure integration and co-operation between the Prison Service and the probation service. [15808]

Ms Quin: As my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced in July, I am leading the work of a review into the efficiency and effectiveness of the ways in which the two services work together. There is no predetermined outcome to the review. We shall be considering options for improving their performance next year with a view to consulting widely about the future of both services in due course.

Anti-social Neighbours

30. Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made in respect of his policy to tackle anti-social neighbours. [15809]

Mr. Michael: In September we published a consultation paper outlining proposals for a new court order which would prohibit an individual who had engaged in anti-social behaviour from continuing to behave in that way. The responses received have been generally positive, and we will introduce appropriate provisions in the Crime and Disorder Bill shortly.

Alcopops

31. Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of the report by the Office for National Statistics on alcopops; and if he will make a statement. [15810]

Mr. George Howarth: The findings of the Office for National Statistics' (ONS) report "Young teenagers and alcohol in 1996" support those of other surveys and research, which indicate worrying levels of alcohol misuse by young people. The Government's announcement on 17 July made clear our concern about this problem and set out the action which we expected all concerned, including the industry itself, to take.

Sex Offenders

32. Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to protect the public from serious sex offenders released early from non-life sentences. [15811]

Mr. Michael: The Sex Offenders Act 1997 requires offenders who have been convicted of sex offences against children and other serious sex offences to notify the police of their name and address and any changes to these details. The police will work with the Probation Service and other agencies to use this information to protect children and vulnerable people by alerting agencies and individuals of the presence of an offender in their area when appropriate. The Crime and Disorder Bill will also introduce provisions to allow for the extended supervision of sex offenders. This will enable probation services to ensure that offenders complete treatment programmes.

Human Rights

33. Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures he intends to introduce to safeguard the rights of British citizens under the European Convention on Human Rights. [15812]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We introduced the Human Rights Bill in another place last month. The Bill gives further effect in domestic law to the rights and freedoms set out in the Convention, and will significantly improve the ability of people in the United Kingdom to rely on their Convention rights before our own courts.

Drugs and Crime

34. Gillian Merron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to tackle the link between drugs and crime. [15813]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to tackle the link between drugs and crime. [15815]

Mr. George Howarth: The Home Office has a research programme designed to shed further light on the links between drugs and crime. In addition, a Home Office Drugs Prevention Initiative study is testing the impact of drug treatment interventions in the criminal justice system—from arrest through sentence and beyond—to refer people with drug problems to drug treatment programmes.

A new testing and treatment order will be introduced to give courts the powers to require drug misusing offenders to undergo treatment. The new order will be rigorously enforced and include the use of drug testing to ensure those in treatment are staying off illegal drugs.

The new United Kingdom Anti-Drugs Co-ordinator Keith Hellawell, has been appointed and will be supported by a Deputy, Michael Trace. The immediate priorities for the Co-ordinator will include reviewing existing action against drug misuse and submitting proposals to Ministers for a new strategy as quickly as possible, aimed at tackling drug problems through effective enforcement, treatment and education.

Youth Crime

35. Mrs. Fiona Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what response he has received to his proposals to tackle youth crime. [15814]

Mr. Michael: The Government's formal proposals for tackling youth crime were set out in the three consultation documents and the consultation periods for these documents closed recently. Several hundred responses were received, and these are currently being assessed. The intention is to provide Parliament with a report on these consultation exercises as soon as practicable. More generally we have received an enthusiastic response from the police, the public and most other organisations in the field.

Prison Service

37. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received regarding the use of private contractors in the management of the Prison Service. [15816]

Ms Quin: Since 1 May, my right hon. Friend has received representations from hon. Members, the Prison Service Trade Unions, members of staff, representatives of contractors and other members of the public. The subjects covered include: the building and running of new prisons under the private finance initiative; the involvement of the private sector in Prison Service administration under the Quantum project; and the contractual management of industries at Coldingley prison.

Figures are available for Parliamentary Questions and Ministers' cases and are listed in the table:

Representations received on private sector involvement in prison service management

Subject	Parliamentary Questions	Ministers cases
Quantum	6	2
PFI and Prisons	3	—
Prisons and Private sector	4	10
Totals	13	12

Police Officers

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there are per head of population in (a) England as a whole and (b) the Devon and Cornwall constabulary. [15789]

Mr. Michael: The average ratio for England is one police officer: 414 people. In the Devon and Cornwall Constabulary the ratio is one police officer: 538 people. This is based on police numbers at March 1997, and the latest population figures which are for June 1996.

Bus Lanes

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will raise the penalty for illegal use of bus lanes. [16839]

Mr. Michael: Illegal use of a bus lane is an offence under section 36 of the Road Traffic Act 1988 and carries a maximum fine of £1,000. An offence can be dealt with under the fixed penalty procedure, in which case the penalty is currently £20.

We have no plans to increase the maximum penalty which may be imposed by the courts, but we are reviewing the current level of the fixed penalty.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the reviews being undertaken by his Department, indicating the consultation documents issued in relation to each review and the expected completion date for each. [16539]

Mr. Straw: The information requested about reviews is set out in the table.

Review	Consultation	Expected completion date
Joint review with Northern Ireland Office to consider permanent United Kingdom wide counter terrorism legislation	Consultation document to be published early 1998	Autumn 1998
Review of the law relating to bribery and corruption. "Prevention of Corruption—Consolidation and Amendment of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1889–1916: A Government Statement"—issued June 1997	Discussion paper: "Clarification of the Law relating to Bribery of an MP"—issued December 1996	Early 1998
Strategic Review of National Police Training	No formal consultation paper	Early 1998
Inter-Departmental Review of Police Pensions	Consultation document still to be issued	To be decided
Review of Firefighters' Pension Scheme	Consultation document still to be issued	To be decided
Review of Community Fire Safety	Consultation document on the strategy proposed in the report of the Community Fire Safety Task Force published November 1997	To be decided
Review of Prison Nursing Services	Consultation document issued 21 October 1997	February 1998
Review of long-term future of organisation of Prison Service Health Care	Joint Prison Service/Department of Health Working Group. Consultation document not yet issued	Mid 1998
Review of Prison Service Drug Strategy	No consultation document issued	March 1998
Review of Prisons Investigations Strategy	No consultation document issued	First stage completion April 1998
Review of the operation of release of prisoners on temporary licence	No consultation document issued, but consultation with Police/Probation Service and other interested parties to be carried out by the end of 1997	Mid 1998
Review of Government proposals on reform of Youth Justice System	Three consultation papers: "Tackling Youth Crime"—September 1997, "New National and Local Focus on Youth Crime"—October 1997 "Tackling Delays in Youth Justice System"—October 1997	Results of review to be reflected in Crime and Disorder Bill
Review of measures to deal with anti-social behaviour	Consultation document on community safety orders published 9 September 1997	Results of review to be reflected in Crime and Disorder Bill

Review	Consultation	Expected completion date
Review of measures to deal with the protection of communities from known sex offenders who pose a continuing risk	Consultation document on community protection orders issued 5 November 1997	Results of review to be reflected in Crime and Disorder Bill
Review of measures on Community Safety	Consultation paper: "Getting to Grips with Crime"—issued September 1997	Results of review to be reflected in Crime and Disorder Bill

In addition, my Department is carrying out a Comprehensive Spending Review, and contributing to cross-Departmental reviews of the criminal justice system and of illegal drugs, in accordance with my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary's statement of 11 June 1997, Official Report, columns 1143-44. The statement said that these reviews were expected to take 12 months to complete. My Department is also carrying out a review of those non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs) for which the Home Office is the sponsoring Department. This review is part of a Government-wide exercise which is referred to in the Government's public consultation paper "Opening Up Quangos" issued in November 1997.

Huntingdon Life Sciences (Dog Breeding)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Huntingdon Life Sciences was granted a licence to breed dogs at their laboratory at Occold; and to what extent his Department's inquiry into Huntingdon Life Sciences' treatment of dogs was taken into account in allowing the licence. [16726]

Mr. George Howarth: The Certificate of Designation was amended on 23 May to allow the breeding of dogs.

Careful consideration was given to the suitability of allowing Huntingdon Life Sciences to breed dogs in the light of the allegations made in the Channel 4 programme. The emerging findings from the Chief Inspector's investigation showed, however, that the problems uncovered by the broadcast were limited to the Huntingdon site.

The Chief Inspector had specifically assessed conditions at Occold. The housing conditions for the dogs and the adequacy of the staffing arrangements to ensure the welfare of the animals were therefore checked before the Certificate of Designation was amended.

Illegal Entrants

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what has been the total cost to public funds of the removal of illegal entrants between 1 May and 30 September; [16768]

(2) how many illegal entrants have been removed from the constituency of Leicester, East since 1 May; and what has been the cost to pubic funds. [16769]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Statistics and costings in relation to the removal of overseas nationals as illegal entrants are not available on the basis of Parliamentary constituencies. Details of the costs of removing illegal entrants are not maintained separately from those of overseas nationals removed by the deportation process and the information requested could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Breath Testing

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government has to introduce random breath testing for alcohol. [16898]

Mr. Michael: The law already provides the police with wide powers to test drivers for drinking and driving: they may administer a test in the event of an accident or a moving traffic offence; of if they have cause to suspect a driver has alcohol in his body. These powers are used extensively. In England and Wales in 1996, it has been calculated that some 781,000 roadside breath tests were carried out, the highest number ever.

My noble Friend the Minister for Roads is currently considering a number of options for improving road safety, including possible measures on drinking and driving.

Electronic Tagging

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to use electronic tagging as a substitute for part of a custodial sentence so as to bring about the early release of convicted prisoners. [17158]

Ms Quin: I refer the hon. Member to the statement my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary made on 20 November 1997, Official Report, column 453.

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list all foreign visits (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department have undertaken since 2 May separately identifying those examining the operation of electronic tagging systems; and if he will make a statement. [16582]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 20 November 1997]: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Gordon (Mr. Bruce) on 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 642. Of the foreign visits listed in that reply, only the one on 4–6 November involved study of electronic monitoring. That visit was undertaken by one Minister accompanied by three officials. No other foreign visits by officials on this subject have been undertaken since 2 May. The right hon. Member may, however, be interested to note that I looked at the operation of electronic tagging in one city in the United States of America while on a visit there in 1995.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will assess the (a) advantages and (b) disadvantages of requiring asylum seekers to live in reception centres; and if he will make a statement. [17407]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The interdepartmental study of the asylum process is looking at reception centres as one of a wide range of different options in the course of its examination of the arrangements for providing support and accommodation to asylum seekers. The study team will report to Ministers in the new year.

WPC Fletcher

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the result of the interview between the hon. Member for Linlithgow and Commander David Venness in July 1997 on further investigations into the death of WPC Fletcher. [15887]

Mr. Straw: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that the investigation into the murder of Woman Police Constable Fletcher is continuing. The investigation is taking account of all the circumstances of the case, including those raised by my hon. Friend.

Telecommunications (Interception)

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will extend the law to protect calls on mobile and cordless telephones from intrusive interception. [15792]

Mr. Straw: It is already an offence intentionally to intercept a communication in the course of its transmission over a public telecommunications system. I shall, in due course, introduce legislation to bring interception on private networks into the statutory framework.

Private Security Industry

Mr. Healey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received about regulation of the private security industry. [15798]

Mr. Michael: We have received over 60 responses to our recent consultation exercise with the industry and others on the best way to provide a comprehensive, effective and streamlined system for regulation of the private security industry. We shall be making recommendations for action once we have analysed all the responses.

Right to Silence

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the operation of recent reforms relating to the right to silence; and if he will make a statement. [15805]

Mr. Michael: The Home Office Research and Statistics Directorate has been monitoring the effects of the 1994 right to silence legislation since its introduction. The findings of the research will be published in two parts: the first, due at the end of this year, will cover the changes in the frequency of the suspect's use of right to silence in police interviews; and the second, due early next year, will look at the wider impact of the provisions on the criminal justice system.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Child Support Agency

Mr. Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many clients have appealed against their assessment since the establishment of the CSA; and what percentage of appellants have been successful in winning their appeal. [14545]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We expect the Child Support Agency to provide an efficient and effective service to all its clients throughout the child support assessment process. We are looking for substantial and sustained operational improvements from the Agency, in particular on getting more maintenance paid, reducing the backlog and improving customer service.

The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Faith Boardman to Mr. Jeff Ennis, dated 21 November 1997:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about appeals to the Child Support Agency.

I am unable to give you precisely the information that you have requested, so I have provided as much information as is available. Although appeals were received during the first year of operation, reliable information on this area of performance has only been collected since April 1994. From that date to 30 September 1997, 25,754 appeals have been received by the Agency.

Not all appeals sent to the Agency are sent to the Independent Tribunal Service and not all of those sent to Independent Tribunal Service are heard by a tribunal. Some will be withdrawn by the appellant, others may lapse or be ruled as outside the jurisdiction of the tribunal before they are allocated a hearing.

From April 1994 to September 1997 26,280 cases have been lodged with the Independent Tribunal Service (during the same period the agency has completed or in some way reviewed approximately 1.1 million assessments). More cases have been lodged with Independent Tribunal Services than have been recorded as received by the Agency, as this includes some cases which were received by the Agency in 1993–94. Of those cases lodged with Independent Tribunal Services 17,091 have been cleared by a hearing, 12,990 of which have been returned to the Agency for reassessment; the reassessment requested can be linked to the reason for the appeal, or may be a result of other factors which have come to light during the appeal process. This represents 49 per cent. of cases lodged with the Independent Tribunal or approximately 1 per cent. of assessments completed or reviewed during this period.

I hope this reply is helpful.

Official Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is her estimate of the expenditure by (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on official hospitality for (i) 1980-81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990—91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997. [15222]

Mr. Field [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is set out in the following table.

£000

	1987–88	1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97	1 May to 30 September 1997
Department of Social Security Headquarters	1,582,930	75,778	54,036	78,833	38,525	40,493	15,885	7,160	5,149
Resettlement Agency	—	—	231	136	0	0	—	—	—
Information Technology Services Agency	—	—	13,376	24,026	17,544	7,229	416	0	0
Benefits Agency	—	—	24,224	60,429	82,799	62,064	71,567	22,331	3,433
Contributions Agency	—	—	67	1,040	3,637	6,021	3,434	7,066	423
Child Support Agency	—	—	—	11,437	20,439	5,992	3,6002	4,622	0
War Pensions Agency	—	—	—	—	1,517	5,340	2,215	2,007	506
Independent Statutory Bodies	—	—	—	—	—	—	2,810	3,010	2,171

1. Expenditure information for 1980–81 is not available.
2. The Department's Non-Departmental Public Bodies are funded on-Vote and, as such, their expenditure prior to 1995–96 is subsumed within DSS HQ.
3. The Resettlement Agency was disbanded in 1995–96.

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is her estimate of the expenditure by (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on overseas travel for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997; and if she will provide a breakdown to show (1) air fares and (2) other expenditure relating to overseas travel. [15223]

Mr. Field [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is set out in the table.

£000

	1987–88	1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97	1 May to 30 September 1997
Department of Social Security	788,683	213,231	205,482	202,253	158,66	200,154	160,672	79,629	21,713
Information technology Services Agency	—	38,014	121,084	174,274	53,119	56,364	48,139	44,704	4,700
Benefits Agency	—	—	102,447	62,517	57,346	113,266	172,120	185,752	16,258
Contributions Agency	—	—	—	12,960	31,838	15,040	21,356	—	—
Child Support Agency	—	—	—	8,988	NIL	9,584	8,080	7,046	—
War Pensions Agency	—	—	—	—	47,198	3,975	2,134	2,899	874
Non Departmental Public Bodies	—	—	—	—	—	—	1,850	199	488

1. A breakdown of air fares and other expenditure relating to overseas travel is not available.
2. Figures for the 1980–81 financial year are not available.
3. Figures include the amounts paid for subsistence.
4. The Department's NDPBs are funded on-Vote and, as such, their expenditure prior to 1995–96 is subsumed within DSS HQ.

Publicity and Advertising

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is her estimate of the total expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising by (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for (i) 1993–94, (ii) 1994–95, (iii) 1995–96, (iv) 1996–97, (v) the 1997–98, year to date, (vi) the 1997–98, full year estimate and (vii) the 1998–99 planned expenditure. [15225]

Mr. Field [holding answer 11 November 1997]: The information is set out in the table.

	£
1993–94	18,333,603
1994–95	20,054,914
1995–96	20,085,672
1996–97	17,724,255
1997–98[1]	3,464,040
1997–98[2]	12,937,210
1998–99[3]	11,399,000

[1]Figures as at September 1997.
[2]Full year Estimate.
[3]Planned Expenditure.

Benefit Recipients (Income Tax)

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will estimate the number of people receiving (a) income support, (b) housing benefit, (c) council tax benefit and (d) family credit who are also liable to pay income tax. [17568]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is as follows.

As at May 1997, the latest date for which information is available, it is estimated that there were 424,000 Family Credit recipients who were paying income tax at the time the award began. This represents 57 per cent. of the Family Credit caseload.

Information on the number of people receiving Income Support, Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit who are also liable to pay income tax is not available.

Note:

Number is rounded to the nearest thousand. Percentage is given to the nearest full per cent.

Source:

5 per cent. sample of Family Credit awards as at 31 May 1997.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many recipients of family credit paid income tax in 1996–97. [17347]

Mr. Keith Bradley: As at May 1997, the latest date for which information is available, it is estimated that there were 424,000 Family Credit recipients who were paying income tax at the time the award began. This represents 57 per cent. of the Family Credit caseload.

Note:

Number is rounded to the nearest thousand. Percentage is given to the nearest full per cent.

Source:

5 per cent. sample of Family Credit awards as at 31 May 1997.

Health Action Zones

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for social Security what proposals she has to encourage the involvement of local Benefits Agency officers in the development of health action zones. [17227]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Department is working closely with the Department of Health to consider what role Social Security, and the Benefits Agency, might play in the development of health action zones. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has no specific proposals at this time.

Lone Parents

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the average amount of which the 433 lone parents who were helped to obtain jobs by the New Deal pilot scheme were better off in work. [17559]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not yet available.

The evaluation of the New Deal for Lone Parents includes a quantitative survey of a sample of participants in all eight areas of the scheme which will collect information from lone parents on how much better off they are in work.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the average eligible rent for housing benefit and the average housing benefit awarded to single people under 25 years under (a) previous scheme rules, (b) the local reference rent and (c) the single room rent, for the quarters ending February 1997 and May 1997. [17409]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is set out in the tables.

Estimated eligible rent for single people aged under 25 claiming housing benefit for accommodation in the private sector (excluding Housing Associations)—Great Britain—provisional

	February 1997 £
Assessed under previous scheme rules	55.60
Assessed under local reference rent scheme	49.10
Assessed under single room rent scheme	43.00

Note:

Comparable figures for May 1997 are not yet available.

Source: Returns from a representative sample of local authorities.

Eligible rent and housing benefit for single people aged under 25 claiming housing benefit for accommodation in the private sector (excluding Housing Associations) and assessed under single room rent scheme—Great Britain

	May 1997 £
Eligible rent	40.30
Average housing benefit	37.80

Notes:

1. Comparable figures for February 1997 are not available.
2. Average housing benefit figures for single people under 25 and assessed under other schemes are not routinely collected.

Source: Quarterly 100 per cent. counts.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what is her estimate of the expenditure by (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on overseas travel for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997; and if she will provide a breakdown to show (1) air fares and (2) other expenditure relating to overseas travel. [15263]

Clare Short [holding answer 12 November 1997]: Expenditure on overseas travel made by the Department for International Development and its agency, the Natural Resources Institute (NRI), for the years requested is as follows:

£000

	DFID	NRI	Total
1991–92	1,066	166	1,232
1992–93	1,249	170	1,419
1993–94	1,375	178	1,553
1994–95	1,374	112	1,486
1995–96	1,514	179	1,693
1996–97	1,471	—	1,471
1997–98 to 30 September	531	—	—

NRI was transferred to private ownership in 1996–97.

Figures for years prior to 1991–92 and the breakdown between air fares and other expenditure cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs.

World Bank

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps she intends to take to use her position as a Governor of the World Bank to ensure that promises made to parliamentarians by the World Bank President in his letter of January 1996 are being kept. [17033]

Clare Short: The UK will use its influence in the World Bank to strengthen its poverty focus and encourage it to set quantifiable targets for poverty reduction and to measure progress towards these.

The World Bank is a key partner in our efforts to pursue the international development targets, which are based on agreements reached at a series of UN Summits. The President of the World Bank, Mr. James Wolfensohn, has already made a clear commitment to the targets, which I very much welcome. We will encourage the Bank to devote more attention to monitoring and evaluating the output and the impact of its activities, and to integrate gender considerations and environmental and social sustainability into its projects including enhanced support for activities which help the poorest, such as education, health and clean water.

We will pursue these objectives through regular discussions with the President of the Bank and with senior management; through the extensive contacts which exist between professional advisers and programme managers in the Bank and my department; through our regular contacts with non-governmental organisations to discuss policy issues and specific Bank-funded projects; and through the interventions in formal Board proceedings made by our Director at the Bank and his team in the UK Delegation.

El Salvador

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list current British aid projects in El Salvador. [16910]

Mr. Foulkes: In addition to a £100,000 British Partnership Scheme, administered by the British Embassy in San Salvador, which enables support to be provided for small local development projects, we are currently supporting the following projects through the Department for International Development (DFID) Joint Funding Scheme.

Organisation	Project title	DFID contribution (£)
Health Unlimited	Relief and training programme	257,000
International Co-operation for Development	Institutional strengthening of NGOs	67,827

It is likely that additional projects in El Salvador will be supported this year through the block grant arrangement of the Joint Funding Scheme, which operates on the basis of claims in arrears. Twenty-eight CAFOD, Christian Aid and Oxfam projects in El Salvador were supported in this way last year.

Iraq

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the 1997 proposals for demining to be administered by the European Community Humanitarian Office in Northern Iraq. [16979]

Mr. Foulkes: The European Community Humanitarian Office (ECHO) does not itself administer projects. It works in partnership with NGOs, UN and other international agencies that are themselves responsible for project administration.

In 1997 the only ECHO funded partner for demining in Iraq was the British NGO Mines Advisory Group (MAG). MAG has a contract for £680,000 primarily to supply mine detectors and other equipment such as protection jackets, helmets etc. ECHO has also provided £1.5 million for medical support for land mine victims. Britain contributes about a seventh of the cost of the ECHO programme.

Aid and Trade Provision

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what finances are budgeted for (a) 1997–98 and (b) 1998–99 for mixed credits in place of ATP for each agreed country programme. [17446]

Clare Short: There will be no separate budget allocation for mixed credit projects. In announcing the closure of the ATP scheme the White Paper on International Development also made it clear that any new mixed credit projects will be managed within agreed country programmes.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list (a) the countries to which ATP assistance has been given and (b) the amounts involved in each of the last five years. [17443]

Clare Short: The countries and amounts involved for all ATP agreements concluded in each of the last five years are as follows (figures in £ million):

£ million

Country	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997
Chile	0.0	0.8	0.0	0.0	0.0
China	2.0	4.2	12.3	3.8	27.2
Ghana	0.0	0.0	0.0	8.7	7.8
India	1.4	0.0	0.0	0.0	0.0
Indonesia	0.0	0.0	29.7	9.5	0.0
Lesotho	0.0	4.8	0.0	0.0	0.0
Malaysia	1.0	0.0	0.0	0.0	0.0
Morocco	10.9	0.0	0.0	0.0	0.0
Pakistan	0.0	0.0	2.5	0.0	0.0
Philippines	0.0	0.0	4.2	9.2	0.0
Sri Lanka	0.0	0.1	0.0	0.0	0.0
Thailand	0.0	4.1	0.0	0.0	0.0
Turkey	6.6	0.0	0.0	0.0	0.0
Zimbabwe	4.3	0.0	1.4	0.0	0.0
Total	26.2	14.0	50.1	31.2	35.0

Commonwealth Development Corporation

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when she intends to bring forward legislation on the Commonwealth Development Corporation. [17449]

Clare Short: We shall be seeking to bring forward legislation to enable the creation of a new public/private partnership for the Commonwealth Development Corporation as soon as Parliamentary time permits.

Zimbabwe and Zambia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance her Department is currently giving for the maintenance of order in rural areas in Zimbabwe. [17448]

Clare Short: DFID is supporting a programme of reforms by the Zimbabwe Republic Police to introduce community policing, including in the rural areas.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans she has to give development assistance to (a) Zambia and (b) Zimbabwe; and if she will make a statement. [17451]

Clare Short: We have substantial development programmes in both countries. These are being refocused in line with the recent White Paper (Cm. 3789).

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions her Department has had with the Government of Zimbabwe on assistance with compensation in connection with land redistribution; and if she will make a statement. [17444]

Clare Short: The issue has been discussed with the Government of Zimbabwe by British Ministers and officials. We have told the Government of Zimbabwe that we cannot support the rapid programme of land acquisition that they seem to envisage. We would be willing to support a properly prepared programme of land reform as part of a partnership to eliminate poverty.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations she has made to the Government of Zambia on (a) human rights and (b) good government; and if she will make a statement. [17445]

Clare Short: I raised these issues with the Government of Zambia earlier this year. Officials have pursued them frequently since.

Somalia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance her Department is currently giving for disaster relief in Somalia. [17450]

Clare Short: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Sutherland, South (Mr. Mullin) on 19 November 1997, Official Report, column 178. Since then, I have provided a further £0.5 million bilaterally to help—$0.25 million for UNICEF, which is co-ordinating the logistical operation and £0.25 million for the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 25 November 1997

HOME DEPARTMENT

Manslaughter (Custodial Sentences)

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the average custodial sentence applied for manslaughter in England in each year since 1990; and if he will make a statement. [17087]

Mr. Michael: Information for 1990 to 1996 is given in the following table:

Average sentence length[1] given at the Crown Court for offences of manslaughter 1990 to 1996

England

Offence/year	People sentenced to immediate custody	Average sentence length[1] (months)	Number of life sentences
Manslaughter (Common Law and Offences Against the Person Act 1861, sections 5, 9 and 10)
1990	128	56.6	9
1991	145	53.9	10
1992	200	58.9	10
1993	167	63.3	8
1994	160	60.0	5
1995	166	58.5	6
1996	196	61.3	13
Manslaughter due to diminished responsibility (Homicide Act 1957, section 2)
1990	8	51.0	2
1991	12	64.0	6
1992	6	72.0	3
1993	11	57.3	2
1994	9	51.0	3
1995	13	55.5	5
1996	7	61.0	1

[1] Excludes life sentences.

Apart from the requirement under the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997 for the courts to give automatic life sentences for people convicted of manslaughter for a second time, and within the statutory limits set by Parliament, sentences in individual cases are a matter for the courts.

Prison Service (Medical and Health Care Research)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the nature of the (a) medical and (b) health care research currently being undertaken within the Prison Service. [17623]

Ms Quin: Current medical or health care research being undertaken within the Prison Service has centred on epidemiological studies of hepatitis B and C, and HIV/AIDS, and the psychiatric morbidity of male sentenced prisoners. In addition, work is also being carried out to evaluate drug detoxification and treatment programmes, and the impact of Mandatory Drugs Testing on the pattern of drug abuse within prisons. Other work involves studies into the management and throughcare of mentally disordered offenders.

Prisons (Disability Officers)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prison establishments in England and Wales currently have a disability officer; and if he will make a statement on proposals to increase this number. [17622]

Ms Quin: All Prison Service establishments have a nominated equal opportunities officer whose role includes having responsibility for disability. However, in some prisons the Governor has in addition nominated a disability officer.

Police Manpower

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list (a) the establishments and (b) the current strength of each constabulary in England and Wales. [17199]

Mr. Michael: The Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 removed the power for the Home Secretary to set police establishments. It was left to individual chief officers of police to determine the number of officers in their force. The strength of each force at 30 September 1997 is set out in the table.

Police force numbers for England and Wales (provisional)
As at 30 September 1997

Force	Number of police officers
Avon and Somerset	2,973
Bedfordshire	1,081
Cambridgeshire	1,228
Cheshire	2,029
City of London	836
Cleveland	1,481
Cumbria	1,162
Derbyshire	1,757
Devon and Cornwall	2,910
Dorset	1,279
Durham	1,479
Dyfed-Powys	1,008
Essex	2,944
Gloucestershire	1,107
Greater Manchester	6,908
Gwent	1,229
Hampshire	3,481
Herfordshire	1,738
Humberside	2,030
Kent	3,301
Lancashire	3,281
Leicestershire	1,958
Lincolnshire	1,189
Merseyside	4,222
Metropolitan Police	26,391
Norfolk	1,440
Northamptonshire	1,181
Northumbria	3,685
North Wales	1,370
North Yorkshire	1,383
Nottinghamshire	2,317
South Wales	2,990
South Yorkshire	3,158
Staffordshire	2,230

Police force numbers for England and Wales (provisional)
As at 30 September 1997

Force	Number of police officers
Suffolk	1,198
Surrey	1,608
Sussex	3,040
Thames Valley	3,705
Warwickshire	914
West Mercia	2,031
West Midlands	7,079
West Yorkshire	5,250
Wiltshire	1,167
Total	124,751

Europol

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 12 November 1997, Official Report, column 558, what guidance will be issued to the Director of Europol on the requirement to waive the immunity of staff members of Europol where the immunity would impede the course of justice; if such guidance will be published; and if he will make a statement. [17769]

Mr. Michael: The need for, and content of, any such guidance will be for consideration once the Europol Convention has entered into force and Europol has taken up its activities. The Director will be accountable to the Management Board in the performance of his duties and it will be open to the Board to consider any difficulties that may arise in this area.

Article 12 provides that the privileges and immunities granted under the provisions of the Protocol are conferred

"in the interests of Europol and not for the benefit of the individuals themselves" and also that

"Europol shall co-operate at all times with the appropriate authorities of member states to facilitate the proper administration of justice".

Article 13 of the Protocol also provides that any disputes on a refusal to waive an immunity shall be referred to the Council of Ministers; if they are unable to reach a settlement, they shall decide on the modalities according to which they will be settled.

Prisons (Private Finance Initiative)

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 14 November 1997, Official Report, column 692, what criteria are used to assess quality and confidence in deliverability in relation to the awarding of contracts to the private sector to (a) manage and (b) design, construct, manage and finance prisons; and if he will make a statement. [17771]

Ms Quin: The Prison Service must satisfy itself that bidders are capable of building the prison to the required standards, opening it by the required date and operating it safely and securely with the required level of service in terms of prisoner regime or, in the case of management-only contracts, of operating it safely, securely and with the specified prisoner regime. Bids which satisfy these criteria are assessed on the basis of value for money. The methodology for evaluating bids for the first two design, construct, manage and finance prisons at Bridgend and Fazakerley, is described at paragraphs 2.7 to 2.11 and Appendix 5 of the recent Report by the Comptroller and Auditor General on those contract awards (HC 253 Session 1997–98).

Laser Pens

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have been brought in the past 12 months for assault involving a laser pen. [16970]

Mr. Michael: People carrying laser pens with intent to cause injury may be liable to prosecution under section 1 of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953, as amended by the Offensive Weapons Act 1996 section 2(1).

Court proceedings data collected centrally, under this legislation, do not record the type of weapon or article used.

Gaol Sentences

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with what frequency he publishes changes in the weekly rate at which people are convicted of criminal offences carrying a possible gaol sentence of six months or more. [17577]

Mr. Michael: Almost all indictable offences carry a possible custodial sentence of six months or more. It is normal practice to prepare data on the numbers of people convicted of an indictable offence quarterly and to publish figures annually.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16290]

Mr. Straw: A copy of the Home Office Departmental Procedures on the application of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information has been placed in the Library.

Vehicle Examinations

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will encourage chief constables to ensure that police forces involve trading standards officers in the examination of vehicles. [17157]

Mr. Michael: The extent to which police forces develop links with trading standards officers for law enforcement purposes is an operational matter for individual chief officers. There are no plans to issue any specific Home office guidance on the subject. However, a good level of co-operation exists across the country as a whole. Trading standards officers assist the police and other agencies at multi-agency vehicle checks, for example by checking wheel and axle weights and looking for goods with counterfeit trade marks. They are also frequently involved, in conjunction with the police, in examining cars and other vehicles of uncertain origin and condition, with the aim of detecting offences under the Trades Descriptions Act 1968.

Youth Crime

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence about involving the Army Cadets, Sea Cadets and Air Cadets in his policies to tackle youth crime. [17140]

Mr. Michael: The Home Office operates a small grant scheme to cover the additional costs incurred when local Cadet Forces provide activities for children thought to be at risk of becoming involved in youth crime or who have already been involved in offending. This scheme was set up in 1995 to provide a variety of activities including providing positive alternatives to offending. I will shortly meet colleagues from the Ministry of Defence and the Department for Education and Employment to discuss the scheme and the role of the Cadet Forces in tackling youth crime.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Sports Broadcasting

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress he has made in his review of the sports events listed under Part IV of the Broadcasting Act 1996; and if he will make a statement. [17935]

Mr. Chris Smith: I have consulted interested parties about the principles which should guide the listing process, and I am today publishing criteria which I hope will make the process more transparent. I have also appointed an advisory group of individuals with knowledge of the sporting, broadcasting and public policy issues involved. The members of the group are:

Lord Gordon of Strathblane (chairman)
Mr. Alastair Burt
Mr. Jack Charlton
Mr. Steve Cram
Kate Hoey, MP
Mr. Michael Parkinson
Mr. Clive Sherling
Professor David Wallace

I have invited this group to consider the issues against these published criteria:

(a) whether events or parts of events should be removed from the list; and

(b) whether other major sporting events should be added to the list.

As an initial step in the process of reviewing the list, the rights holders for the events currently listed and a number of other major sports events are being formally consulted, as the 1996 Act requires. The submissions received from them will be made available to the advisory group.

The rights holders for the following events are to be consulted:

Events currently listed:
The Olympic games
The FIFA World Cup Finals
The FA Cup Final
The Scottish FA Cup Final (listed only in Scotland)
Cricket Test matches involving England
Wimbledon Tennis Tournament (finals weekend only currently listed)
The Grand National
The Derby
Other major sports events:
The Cricket World Cup
The Rugby World Cup
The European Football Championships
The Commonwealth Games
The World Athletics Championships
The British Grand Prix
The Five Nations Rugby Tournament
The Open (golf)
The Ryder Cup

The group may request that other events be included in the review and the rights holders for these events will be consulted.

The group will begin its work immediately and I expect it to make its recommendations to me before Easter. I shall then decide what changes, if any, to make to the current list.

Dance and Drama

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the interim schemes for the funding of dance and drama in (a) England and (b) Wales; and what factors account for the differences; [15597]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of the Arts Council for England interim scheme on increasing access to training for students of dance and drama; and if he will make a statement; [15600]

(3) what assessment he has made of the benefits of using any surplus in the allocation for the interim scheme for funding students of dance and drama to relieve hardship among students on accredited courses in dance and drama colleges; [15596]

(4) what proportion of English dance and drama students on accredited courses in the current academic year are receiving support from the Arts Council interim scheme. [15598]

Mr. Fisher: The operation of the interim scheme is a matter for the Arts Council of England. I understand that full information is not yet available, but I have asked the Arts Council for a report on the effectiveness of the interim scheme and I will reply in full to the hon. Member as soon as I have it.

New Opportunities Fund

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what are the management and distribution arrangements for the money currently being channelled to the New Opportunities Fund. [17595]

Mr. Chris Smith: Shadow accounting arrangements have been in place since 14 October 1997 whereby 13¼ per cent. of the proceeds for good causes from the National Lottery, and any interest earned on that sum, accrue to the New Opportunities Fund. Subject to Parliament's approval of the legislation I shall be introducing shortly, funds being held for the New Opportunities Fund will be formally transferred to it after Royal Assent. Initial funding for the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts will be met from the sum allocated to the New Opportunities Fund. These arrangements will be fully reflected in the accounts of the National Lottery Distribution Fund and the Distributing Bodies.

Blackhill Control Centre

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the impact on monitoring and maintenance of terrestrial television and radio transmission in Scotland of the closure of Blackhill Control Centre. [16699]

Mr. Fisher [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The Independent Television Commission and the Radio Authority set the technical standards for the transmission of commercial terrestrial television and radio services respectively. It is for the Commission and the Authority to monitor the compliance of broadcasters and service providers with those standards.

National Transcommunications Ltd.

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what powers he has to supervise the activities and service provided by National Transcommunications Ltd. [16698]

Mr. Fisher [holding answer 20 November 1997]: National Transcommunications Ltd. (NTL) provides a range of services in the telecommunications and broadcasting fields. It has to comply with the conditions and requirements set out in the licences granted to it by the Radiocommunications Agency under the provisions of the Wireless Telegraphy Act 1949 (as amended); by the Department of Trade and Industry under the provisions of the Telecommunications Act 1984 and by the Independent Television Commission (ITC) under the terms of the Broadcasting Acts 1990 and 1996. It is for the Agency, the Office of Telecommunications and the ITC to ensure that NTL complies with the terms of these licences. NTL is also under contract to a number of broadcasters who are licensed by the ITC under the Broadcasting Acts and who are required to fulfil certain transmission obligations.

Local Television Channels

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what data his Department collates on the availability of local television channels in particular areas. [16715]

Mr. Fisher: The BBC and the Independent Television Commission (ITC) are responsible for planning the use of frequencies for television services and hold data on the coverage of all national and regional terrestrial television services. This information is shared with my Department and with the Department of Trade and Industry's Radiocommunications Agency, which is responsible for ensuring that frequency plans for all terrestrial television services do not interfere with other spectrum users' services.

Departmental Information

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal departmental guidance on the dissemination of information; and if he will make a statement. [16308]

Mr. Chris Smith: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport treats all request for information in accordance with the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. The Code was revised earlier this year and copies of the Second Edition of the Code and the accompanying Guidance on Interpretation are available in the Libraries of the House.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Mr. Philip Dale

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Attorney-General for what reasons he refused to overturn the sentence for manslaughter given to Mr. Philip Dale at Winchester Crown Court on 3 September 1997 on grounds of undue leniency; and if he will make a statement. [17203]

The Attorney-General: I declined to apply to the Court of Appeal for leave to refer to the Court for review the sentence imposed upon Mr. Philip Dale at Winchester Crown Court on 3 September 1997 on the grounds that the sentence was not unduly lenient. An unduly lenient sentence is one which falls outside the range of sentences which a judge, applying his mind to all of the relevant factors, could reasonably consider appropriate.

Manslaughter Sentences

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Attorney-General on how many occasions he has attempted to increase the length of a sentence applied for manslaughter; and on how many occasions and in what proportion of manslaughter cases he has increased the length of sentence since 1990. [17086]

The Attorney-General: In 1991, application was made for leave to refer three sentences imposed for manslaughter to the Court of Appeal. One application was refused and the remaining two applications were withdrawn.

In 1992, one sentence was referred to the Court of Appeal and was increased. In 1993, four sentences were referred to the Court of Appeal. Two sentences were increased and two were unchanged. In 1994, three applications for leave were made. Leave was refused in two cases. In the other case, the sentence was increased. In 1995, five applications for leave were made. One was subsequently withdrawn. Two sentences were increased and two unchanged. In 1996, three applications for leave were made to the Court. Each sentence was unchanged by the Court of Appeal.

So far this year, there have been three applications for leave. One sentence has been increased; one remained unchanged; and the third application is outstanding.

PRIME MINISTER

Ministerial Meetings

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Prime Minister which representatives of business he has met at No. 10 Downing Street since 1 November 1997, excluding those attending social functions, to discuss the impact of the Government's economic and monetary policy on large businesses. [17656]

The Prime Minister: Since the election, I have met a large number of people from business and discussed a wide range of topics.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Hereford By-pass

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when a decision will be taken on the proposed Hereford by-pass; and if he will make a statement. [15964]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We are currently in the process of a Strategic Roads Review. The proposed Hereford Bypass is being considered within the context of that Review, the results of which we hope to announce next year. This scheme is in any event still subject to the completion of statutory procedures.

Conservation Directive

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what requirements Article 6(3) of the EU Directive on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora (92/43/EEC) places on water undertakers in respect of projects which are likely to have a significant effect on a European site. [16674]

Angela Eagle: Where the consent of a water undertaker is required to any such plan or project, they should, as competent authorities under the Conservation (Natural Habitats, etc.) Regulations 1994, apply the provisions of Article 6(3) of the Directive. This requires an appropriate assessment to be undertaken in view of the site's conservation objectives. They should agree to the plan or project only if the assessment shows that it will not have an effect on the integrity of the European site. Public consultation may be appropriate.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he is required to comply with Article 6 of the EU Directive on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora (92/43/EEC) when granting an application for a drought order which is likely to have a significant effect on a European site. [16665]

Angela Eagle: Yes. The Secretary of State is a competent authority under the Conservation (Natural Habitats, etc.) Regulations 1994, which transpose the requirements of the Habitats Directive.

Green-belt Land

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many acres of green-belt land have been built on in the last two years in (a) England, (b) the South East of England and (c) the North West of England. [16793]

Mr. Raynsford: The information is not currently available. Estimates under preparation, using the Department's Land Use Change Statistics, will show the number of hectares of previously undeveloped land in adopted green belt which is developed, by calendar year. I shall write to the hon. Member when these estimates are available.

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16770]

Angela Eagle: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has made the following appointments to NDPBs and nationalised industries sponsored by the Department since 1 May:

		Posts remunerated	Percentage
NDPBs:
Executive	43	40	93
Advisory	31	18	58
Tribunals	59	7	12
Nationalised Industries	2	2	100
Total	135	67	48

For part (b) of the question, I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given today by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Railways (Rolling Stock)

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will ensure that a requirement to improve rolling stock is integral to the new franchise agreement when new franchises are let for rail services. [16854]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Current franchise agreements have between four and fourteen years still to run. We shall consider the terms on which franchises might be relet in the light of all the circumstances pertaining at the time.

Roads (A65)

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions pursuant to his answer of 31 July 1997, Official Report, column 534, how much compensation must be paid in respect of the cancellation of the PFI Scheme for by-passes on the A65 road. [16932]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Claims for compensation from the four tenderers for the Cumbria-Bradford DBFO project are being considered currently. I cannot therefore say what compensation might be paid.

Planning Applications (Supermarkets)

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) how many planning applications for developments involving supermarkets he determined since 1 May; [16873]

(2) how many planning applications for developments involving supermarkets he has called in for determination. [16862]

Mr. Caborn: Since 1 May this year, 17 applications involving retail development have been called in and 25 called-in applications involving retail development have been determined.

House Building (Brown-field Sites)

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated in respect of the availability of brown-field sites for the construction of new homes, separately identifying that conducted by local authorities. [16918]

Mr. Raynsford: The Department will be going out to tender shortly on research designed to assess the future supply and location of brownfield sites. Also, as part of the Government's overall consideration of the household growth debate, the Government have evaluated several independent studies about housing capacities and location from organisations such as the TCPA, the CPRE, and the Joseph Rowntree Foundation.

Most individual local authorities conduct their own studies of land availability for housing and other development as part of their plan preparation process. These are too numerous and varied in scope to list here. Additionally, a number of broader housing capacity and brownfield land studies have either been, or are being, commissioned by the Regional Planning Conferences to assist them in the process of drafting their Regional Planning Advice to the Secretary of State.

Rail Network

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will protect trackbeds used previously for freight and passenger rail services from development until the National Railways Authority has reviewed the strategic rail network. [16907]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The establishment of a new Railways Authority would require primary legislation. In the meantime, it is for Railtrack and those other organisations who own trackbed to consider each individual case separately.

Owners' powers of disposal are limited under the Railways Act 1993 which makes provisions for the closure of railway lines carrying passenger traffic. Railtrack operates non-statutory closure procedures before disposal for freight-only lines. These involve wide consultation and consideration of strategic needs.

Railtrack and British Rail are considering those lengths of former railway line still in BR's ownership which Railtrack might wish to acquire for future railways development.

Road Accidents

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will arrange for trading standards officers to obtain information on accidents from DVLA computers on-line. [17147]

Ms Glenda Jackson: DVLA does not hold a comprehensive record of accident-damaged vehicles. This information is available to trading standards officers from the Motor Insurers Anti Fraud and Theft Register (MIAFTR).

Bathing Beaches

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the beaches designated as bathing beaches for the purposes of European Union legislation on pollution in (a) 1987, (b) 1992 and (c) 1997. [17174]

Angela Eagle: There were 374,455 and 486 UK bathing waters identified within the scope of the Bathing Water Directive in 1987, 1992 and 1997 respectively. Lists are provided in the detailed summary of monitoring results which is placed in the Library each year. The summary for the 1997 season will be available early in the New Year.

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what data he has collated on the level of pollution on beaches not designated as bathing beaches. [17173]

Angela Eagle: The Environment Agency collect information on a site-specific basis in connection with their wider responsibilities for water pollution control. The information is available on the Agency's Regional Water Pollution Registers.

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what new steps are being taken to improve the quality of water at beaches in England and Wales. [17172]

Angela Eagle: In July this year, the Government endorsed Environment Agency proposals for new standards to protect bathing waters. Under the new policy, sewage treatment plants with outfalls near bathing waters will have to meet higher design standards that will contribute to more beaches meeting Bathing Water Directive "guideline" standards for cleanliness. Improvements will also result from completion of the remaining schemes in the bathing water improvement programme and implementation of the Urban Waste Water Treatment Directive. Priorities for additional investment by water companies on environmental improvements, including improved bathing water quality, will be considered next year as part of the current periodic review of water prices.

Agenda 21

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what timetable and deadlines he is working to for co-ordinating the drawing up and adoption of Local Agenda 21s. [17296]

Angela Eagle: At the United Nations General Assembly Special Session in June 1997, the Prime Minister called on all UK authorities to adopt Local Agenda 21 strategies by the year 2000. The Deputy Prime Minister will be launching a Joint Document next January, produced in conjunction with the Local Government Association and the Local Government Management Board, giving clear, practical guidance to councils showing why Local Agenda 21 strategies are needed and how to put an effective local strategy in place, building on the good practice that is being developed across the country. The document will ask all local authorities to send a copy of their strategy to the Chairman of the Local Government Association by 15 December 2000.

Coastguard

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if he will list the documents which will incorporate the five year strategy for Her Majesty's Coastguard announced on 17 November 1997, Official Report, columns 9–10; [17548]

(2) if he will list the consultative processes that preceded the five year strategy for Her Majesty's Coastguard; and what consultation he now proposes on the strategy. [17549]

Ms Glenda Jackson [holding answers 24 November 1997]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Wallace) on 21 November 1997, Official Report, columns 335–36.

The development of the strategy was an internal matter for the Coastguard Agency. The Chief Coastguard consulted with his Regional Controllers in drawing up the details. The first closures of rescue centres are not scheduled to take place for more than 2 years which allows time to discuss fully the implications and implementation with staff and trade unions. Any personnel disruption will be kept to a minimum and it is intended to reduce staff through natural wastage and voluntary retirement.

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) whether, and at what cost, design consultants were employed in the preparation of the brochure "HM Coastguard: 5 Year Strategy"; [17603]

(2) on what date the design and detail of the brochure "H. M. Coastguard: 5 Year Strategy" was agreed; [17604]

(3) on what date the brochure "HM Coastguard: 5 Year Strategy" was sent to the printers; and on what date that print order was completed; [17605]

(4) if the two pages headed "Some Questions and Answer" were printed separately from the remainder of the publication, "HM Coastguard: 5 Year Strategy"; on what date the contents of those pages were (a) approved by Ministers and (b) despatched for printing; and on what date those two pages were printed. [17606]

Ms Glenda Jackson: On October 20 1997, the Coastguard Agency issued an information pack to provide journalists with background on the work of the Agency. Design consultants employed to advise the Agency on all its publications had some input into the provision of this press information pack, which did not contain any reference to the five year strategy. The cost of consultant advice on the press pack was around £140. The press information pack went to the printers on 7 October and the print order was returned on 15 October.

On 17 November 1997, Official Report, columns 9–10, when I announced the 5 year strategy, the information pack was reissued with the addition of two pages headed "Some Questions and Answers". These were photocopied separately from the rest of the pack on 14 November at the Agency's office and added to the press information pack for issue on the day of the announcement. The contents of the added pages were approved by Ministers when we approved the announcement.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will publish figures at the time of his announcement of the local government settlement for 1998–99 which reflect the impact of his grant and capping decisions on the actual financial position of each local authority. [17812]

Ms Armstrong: I shall publish and place in the Library of the House tables of figures showing my proposals, for each English local authority, for Standard Spending Assessment (SSA) in total and for each major service block; and for each authority's entitlement to business rates, revenue support grant and special grant in respect of SSA reductions. I shall also publish figures showing the provisional effect on each local authority of the capping guidelines that will be announced by my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions. My officials will also send to each local authority an explanation of how their figures are derived. Subsequent decisions on budgets and local rates of council taxes are a matter for each local authority.

Kyoto Conference

Ms Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what steps the Government are taking to ensure that the conference at Kyoto reaches effective conclusions. [16016]

Mr. Meacher: The UK has played a leading role in the negotiations to date, including through our position as part of the EU Presidency Troika in which role I and EU colleagues lobbied the US earlier this month. We are continuing to press for a successful outcome at Kyoto, which must include agreement to significant reductions in greenhouse gas emissions by all developed countries for the post-2000 period. To this end, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions has recently chaired a meeting of key developed countries in Tokyo and is visiting India, Japan, Australia and New Zealand to explore their positions further.

Greater London Authority

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the reasons for the Government's intention not to provide a choice between options in the referendum on the government of London. [17813]

Mr. Raynsford: The Government are providing Londoners with a clear choice about the future government of their city. The Government were elected on a manifesto commitment that, following a referendum to confirm popular demand, they would establish a new Greater London Authority comprising an assembly and a mayor, each directly elected.

In accordance with that commitment, we will present the detail of our proposals to the people of London in a White Paper to be published in March next year. Londoners will then be given the opportunity to vote in a referendum on whether or not they consent to us implementing these proposals. In the event that they vote yes, the Government intend that legislation should be introduced next session to implement the White Paper proposals.

The Government are unconvinced by arguments for more than one question. The Mayor and the Assembly are not separable within the context of the Government's proposals. An authority without a directly elected Mayor would be a very different type of organisation. We do not believe that such an organisation would be capable of giving London the leadership it needs. A Mayor without an elected Assembly to hold him or her to account would be too powerful and unaccountable. Neither proposal would be in keeping with the clear manifesto commitment on which the Government were elected. It would not be responsible government to put unworkable options to the people of London.

The Government believe that the referendum should present clear and comprehensible proposition to the people of London. The result of the referendum should be capable of delivering an unambiguous mandate. Despite the time available to proponents of more than one question, no single alternative second question has been devised which meets the concerns of all parties. Additional questions so far proposed have been numerous and contradictory. None would provide a clear mandate.

The Government believe a single question on a well thought out package is the only fair and honest option. Voters will be able to study detailed proposals in the White Paper, make a considered judgment about the whole package on offer, and cast their vote. They will know exactly what they are voting for and what they will get. If they do not like it they can vote 'no.'

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list by name for each year for which figures are available the instances of horizontal transmission of genetic material from genetically modified organism approved for (a) field testing and (b) marketing. [17735]

Angela Eagle: There are no figures available for instances of horizontal gene transfer for each release of a GMO which has been carried out. To date, 313 consents have been granted for the experimental release of GMOs since the regulations came into force in March 1993. Previous research by both the Department and industry has shown that the frequency of horizontal transfer of any genes to wild species is very low. Monitoring is often a statutory condition of consents for experimental releases. However, no formal arrangement exists to monitor gene transfer because the consequences of horizonal gene transfer occurring are evaluated in advance when considering all applications for consent. Consent is granted only if the consequences of gene transfer would be negligible. The Department is continuing to fund research to monitor releases of GM oilseed rape carried out under a marketing consent. This includes monitoring for evidence of gene transfer to confirm that the risk assessment remains valid.

Driving Licences (GP Reports)

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what action he is taking to resolve the dispute between the DVLA and BMA regarding payment of GPs for medical reports required to obtain driving licences. [17601]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The fees being paid to doctors for supplying medical information do not meet with the approval of the British Medical Association. Only a small proportion of doctors are refusing to provide information however the majority are providing the medical information for the fee offered. DVLA is reviewing the position and will be seeking to reach agreement with the BMA.

TREASURY

Compliance Costs

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimates he has made of the future costs of compliance under the proposed Financial Services Authority relative to these presently applied. [17200]

Mrs. Liddell: The Government intend to publish a draft compliance cost assessment alongside a draft Bill when it is published for consultation in Summer 1998. It is intended that the Financial Services Authority should be efficient and economic and ensure that costs and restrictions on firms are proportionate to the benefits of regulation.

CAP (Fontainebleau Rebate)

Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 115, if he will calculate the effect of only one programme being underspent by £200 million and no other changes to other programmes or matters on the level of the Fontainebleau rebate in the following year. [17758]

Mrs. Liddell: On the assumption that the £200 million underspend took place entirely in the UK, and all other things being equal, our abatement would increase by around £110 million in the year following the underspend. This is however a hypothetical calculation. In practice numerous other factors would influence the outcome of the abatement.

Financial Services Authority

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proposals he has for the relationship between the Financial Services Authority and the Scottish Parliament. [17202]

Mrs. Liddell: Financial regulation is reserved to the Westminster Parliament.

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the estimated cost of the proposed Financial Services Authority; what office accommodation has been secured for it; and at what cost to public funds. [17088]

Mrs. Liddell: The Financial Services Authority does not receive public funds. It is responsible for acquiring and meeting the costs of its own accommodation.

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the impact of the establishment of the Financial Services Authority on the role of professional bodies in Scotland with responsibility for monitoring the work of solicitors and accountants. [17201]

Mrs. Liddell: The Government intend to give the Financial Services Authority responsibility for the authorisation of all firms carrying an investment business, including those currently authorised by virtue of their certification by a Recognised Professional Body. The Government are considering enabling the Financial Services Authority to engage professional bodies to carry out specified functions on its behalf. The Financial Services Authority may also be able to refrain from making specified rules or categories of rules where it considers those of the relevant professional bodies to be adequate. The Financial Services Authority is currently consulting the professional bodies, including those in Scotland, on this matter.

Landfill Tax

Mr. Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money has been raised form the landfill tax since 1996. [16883]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The amount of landfill tax collected to the end of October 1997 was £343 million.

Mr. Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money has been raised by the landfill tax from the deposition of waste taken from previously contaminated land. [16884]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 20 November 1997]: None. Subject to certain qualifying conditions, waste arising from the clearance of contaminated land and disposed of to landfill is exempt from landfill tax.

Newry VAT Registration Unit

Mr. Mallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the (a) total agreed complement of (i) full-time permanent staff, (ii) casual fixed term staff and (iii) part-time staff and (b) total number of (1) casual staff recruited, (2) permanent staff recruited, (3) voluntary early retirements by permanent staff, (4) dismissals of permanent staff, (5) dismissals of casual staff, (6) dismissals of part-time staff, (7) contracts that expired, (8) contracts that were extended, (9) staff on long term sick leave, (10) staff on maternity leave, (11) compulsory early retirements and (12) fundamental early retirements under fundamental economic review for Newry VAT Registration Unit of HM Customs and Excise. [17061]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 21 November 1997]: (a) The current agreed resource allocation is:

(i) 91 full-time permanent staff

(ii) 10 fixed term and 5 casual staff

(iii) 11 part-time staff

(b) In the twelve months since November 1996:

(1) 7 casual staff have been recruited

(2) 17 fixed term appointees have been converted to permanent and 1 by direct recruitment

(3) Nil—voluntary early retirements

(4) Nil—dismissals of permanent staff

(5) Nil—dismissals of casual staff

(6) Nil—dismissals of part-time staff

(7) 3 "casual" contracts expired

(8) 6 Fixed Term Appointments were extended

(9) 5 staff are currently on long term sick leave (exceeding 25 days)

(10) 12 women have had periods of maternity leave

(11) & (12) Nil—early retirements

VAT (Passenger Transport)

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy on value added tax levels on passenger transport fares. [16981]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the Government's policy to maintain the current zero rate on public passenger transport.

Income Tax

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate how may people would have a marginal rate of income tax of 10p in the pound, assuming bands for this rate were the first (a) £500, (b) £1,000, (c) £1,500, (d) £2,000, (e) £2,500, (f) £3,000, (g) £4,000, (h) £5,000 and (i) £6,000 of taxable income. [16837]

Dawn Primarolo: Using the hon. Member's assumptions, the estimates for 1997–98 are given in the table.

New 10p starting rate on first[1] £	Number of taxpayers who would face a marginal rate of 10 pence (millions)
500	0.8
1,000	1.5
1,500	2.2
2,000	2.8
2,500	3.4
3,000	4.1
4,000	5.6
5,000	7.1
6,000	8.5

[1] Assuming that the new 10 pence rate band would apply to all taxable income, so that the rates for savings income would be 10 per cent., 20 per cent. and 40 per cent.

Scientific Research Associations (Taxation)

Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will amend the terms of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 in respect of the definitions used to determine the tax liabilities of scientific research associations. [17579]

Dawn Primarolo: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry is responsible for certifying whether a body is a scientific research association (SRA). Her department is reassessing the criteria for qualification as an SRA.

Budget Measures (Environmental Impact)

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will include in his consultation document on the Budget, plans to publish an annual Green Book estimating the environmental impact of Budget measures. [17295]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on the hon. Member for South Suffolk (Mr. Yeo) on 10 July 1997, Official Report, column 1062.

Indonesia

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contribution Her Majesty's Government made to the IMF package for Indonesia. [17150]

Mrs. Liddell: There was no bilateral contribution made by the UK Government to the IMF package for Indonesia.

European Central Bank

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer under what procedures and with which participants the appointment of office holders of the (a) governing council and (b) governing board, of the proposed European Central Bank will be made; what will be the principal functions of (a) and (b); and what factors determine who will be responsible for appointing office holders. [15310]

Mrs. Liddell: These arrangements are set out in Protocol No. 3 to the Maastricht Treaty (on the Statute of the European System of Central Banks and of the European Central Bank).

VAT (Building Conversion)

Mr. Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money was raised in each of the last five financial years from value added tax paid on goods and materials used in the conversion of old buildings to residential use. [16838]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

Somerset House

Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress is being made with plans to open up Somerset House to wider public access. [17925]

Dawn Primarolo: A new trust, the Somerset House Trust, has been established, under the chairmanship of the right hon. Sir Timothy Sainsbury. The trust has its objective the care and stewardship of Somerset House, with a view to restoring it fully and turning part of the building into an improved centre for art and culture with increased public access and use.

The Government propose shortly to assign Somerset House to the trust on a 128 year lease. Under the terms of the lease, the trust will pay no rent to the Government for 5 years; after 5 years, it will pay 25 per cent. of the income receivable from its tenants; and after 10 years, 50 per cent. The Government will also make available to the trust an initial grant of up to £1 million a year for the first four years of its operation. Once the lease is signed, ownership of Somerset House will be transferred from the Inland Revenue to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

As regards occupancy, the Lord Chancellor's Department plan to vacate the South Wing of Somerset House next year; after necessary renovation and adaptation, part of the South Wing will house the Gilbert Collection of precious gold and silver objects and the trust will seek appropriate heritage uses for the remainder of the Wing. The Courtauld Institute will continue to occupy the North Wing, as tenants of the trust, and the Inland Revenue will continue to occupy the East, West and New Wings.

This is an important step towards the long term preservation of one of the London's finest heritage assets and its development for public enjoyment. The Gilbert Collection, generously donated by Mr. Arthur Gilbert, is the largest ever gift to the nation of works of art of this kind. I wish the new trust every success.

Abortions

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many legal abortions were performed in 1996 (a) with antiprogesterone and (b) without overnight stay in each (i) health region and (ii) district health authority; and how many in each case involved (1) National Health Service hospitals, (2) National Health Service agency arrangements and (3) other purchasers; [17143]

(2) how many legal abortions were performed in (a) 1995 and (b) 1996 on women in each quinary age group, in each (i) health region and (ii) district health authority as constituted on 1st April 1996. [17142]

Mrs. Liddell: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Chief Executive of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Tim Holt to Dr. Jenny Tonge, dated 25 November 1997:

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has asked me to reply, as Director of the Office for National Statistics (ONS), to your recent questions on legal abortions.

The number of abortions performed in 1995 by quinary age-group in each health region and health authority as constituted on 1st April 1995 is published in the ONS publication 'Abortion Statistics 1995' series AB No. 22.

The number of abortions performed in 1995 could only be provided to the health authority boundaries as constituted in 1996 at disproportionate cost.

The number of abortions performed in 1996 by quinary age-groups in each health region and health authority as constituted on 1st April 1996 are being compiled at present and will be published in 'Abortion Statistics 1996' in December 1997.

Statistics for the number of legal abortions performed in 1996 with antiprogesterone and without overnight stay will also be published in the Abortion Statistics annual reference volume for 1996 (series AB No. 23).

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Citizens Charters

Mr. Fabricant: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list each citizens charter currently operating and its running cost in the last available year. [17320]

Mr. Kilfoyle: There are 40 main national Charters, which are as follows:

List of Charters

United Kingdom

Taxpayer's Charter (HM Customs & Excise)
Taypayer's Charter (Inland Revenue)
Traveller's Charter (HM Customs and Excise)

Great Britain

Benefits Agency Customer Charter
Child Support Agency Charter
Contributor's Charter
Employer's Charter
Jobseeker's Charter
Redundancy Payments Service Charter

England and Wales

Charter for Court Users
Victim's Charter

England only

Charter for Further Education
Charter for Higher Education
Council Tenant's Charter
London Bus Passenger's Charter
London Underground's Customer Charter
Parent's Charter
Patient's Charter
Road User's Charter

Scotland only

Further and Higher Education Charter in Scotland
Justice Charter for Scotland
Parent's Charter in Scotland
Patient's Charter
Tenant's Charter for Scotland

Wales only

Charter for Further Education
Charter for Higher Education
Charter for Council Tenants in Wales
Charter for Parents in Wales
Charter for Patients in Wales

Northern Ireland only

A Charter for Patients and Clients
Bus Passenger's Charter
Charter for Further Education in Northern Ireland
Child Support Agency (NI) Charter
Courts' Charter for Northern Ireland
Northern Ireland Housing Executive Tenant's Charter
Northern Ireland Railways Passenger's Charter
Parent's Charter
Royal Ulster Constabulary Charter
Social Security Agency Customer Charter
Training and Employment Agency Customer's Charter

In addition there are over 10,000 local charters, which are not centrally controlled.

Running Costs

The Citizens Charter Unit in my Department had a budget of £4.8 million in the last financial year (1996–97), of which £2.9 million was spent on the Charter Mark Awards Scheme.

Other departments are responsible for arrangements to oversee the running of their charters. These costs are not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate costs.

In June, we announced that we would relaunch the Charter programme. We began a consultation exercise on 16 September and will publish the results next year.

Special Advisers

Mr. Edward Davey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total paybill for all Special Advisers for 1996–97; what is the projected figure for (a) 1997–98 and (b) 1998–99; and if he will make a statement. [14103]

Dr. David Clark: The total paybill for 1996–97 was £1.8 million. The estimated paybill for 1997–98 is £2.6 million. The estimated total paybill for 1997–98 covers various posts, including the Standards and Effectiveness Adviser to the Department for Education and Employment, the UK anti-drugs co-ordinator and his deputy, which are not covered by the earlier paybill figure.

No projected figures are available for future years.

Political Advisers

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many political advisers were employed in each Government department on 1 August, and what was the annual total salary cost of such advisers, for (i) 1992–93, (ii) 1993–94, (iii) 1994–95, (iv) 1995–96, (v) 1996–97 and (vi) 1997–98; what are the current salary scales on which they are paid; and if he will make a statement. [14806]

Dr. David Clark: At 1 August, Government departments employed the following numbers of paid Special Advisers:

Department	Number employed
Number 10 Downing Street	18
Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food	2
Cabinet Office (Office of Public Service)	1
Chief Whip's Office	2
Department for Culture, Media and Sport	2
Ministry of Defence	2
Department for Education and Employment	5
Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions	3
Foreign and Commonwealth Office	2

Department	Number employed
Department of Health	2
Home Office	2
Department for International Development	2
Lord Privy Seal's Office	2
Northern Ireland Office	2
Privy Council Office	1
Scottish Office	2
Department of Social Security	2
Department of Trade and Industry	2
Her Majesty's Treasury	4
Welsh Office	2

[1] Of which two part-time.
[2] Of which one part-time.

The total salary cost for 1992–93 is not readily available. However, the paybill for those in post at September 1992 was £1.3 million.

The total salary costs for the years 1993–96 are given in the list below:

1 August 1993–31 July 1994: £1,133,590

1 August 1994–31 July 1995: £1,460,733

1 August 1995–31 July 1996: £1,512,622

The total paybill from 1 April 1996 to 31 March 1997 was £1.8 million. The estimated paybill for 1997–98 is £2.6 million. The estimated total paybill for 1997–98 covers various posts, including the Standards and Effectiveness Adviser to the Department for Education and Employment, the UK anti-drugs co-ordinator and his deputy, which are not covered by the earlier paybill figure.

No projected figures are available for future years.

The current salaries in bands of £10,000 are set out in the following table.

Salary band (£)	Number of Advisers
10,001—20,000	6
20,001—30,000	25
30,001—40,000	14
40,001—50,000	8
50,001—60,000	6
60,001—70,000	6
70,001—80,000	1
80,001—90,000	2
90,001—100,000	0
100,001—110,000	1

The table includes the nine Special Advisers appointed since 1 August.

CABINET OFFICE

Millennium Dome

Mr. Marshall-Andrews: To ask the Minister without Portfolio, pursuant to his answer of 11 November 1997, Official Report, column 534, in relation to the procedures applied to the appointment of M. & C. Saatchi as contractors of the Millennium Dome Project, in accordance with which of the three criteria listed in the answer the contract was awarded to M.& C. Saatchi. [17452]

Mr. Mandelson [holding answer 24 November 1997]: The contract awarded to M. & C. Saatchi met all three of the criteria listed in my answer of 11 November. Further details about this contract are contained in my letter to my hon. Friend of 24 November which I have, with his consent, placed in the Libraries of the House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Bar Glasses

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Chairman of the Catering Committee if he will ensure that lined glasses are used in all the bars on the Parliamentary Estate. [17204]

Mr. Dennis Turner: As my hon. Friend will appreciate, my Committee has no responsibility for bars in the House of Lords or for the Sports and Social Club. However, all the glasses used in this House's Refreshment Department outlets conform with current trading standards. Should any future legislation be enacted which would require all glasses to be so lined, then I understand that the Refreshment Department would phase in such glasses accordingly.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Mission Statement

3. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the Government of Indonesia in respect of the Foreign Office mission statement. [15990]

Mr. Fatchett: None.

Nigeria

15. Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Government of Nigeria in respect of the restoration of democracy. [16003]

Mr. Fatchett: We have contact with the Nigerian Government through our High Commissioner in Abuja. He regularly raises our concerns about the lack of progress towards the restoration of democracy and respect for human rights.

Kashmir

25. Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement concerning his role in relation to Kashmir. [16014]

Mr. Fatchett: I refer the hon. Member to the replies I gave to my hon. Friends the Members for Peterborough (Mrs. Brinton) and for Luton, North (Mr. Hopkins) on 28 October 1997, Official Report, columns 795–96. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made clear to the House on the same day that Britain continues to be willing to help find a solution, but that any offer of help must be acceptable to Pakistan and India.

Israeli Prime Minister

27. Mr. Caplin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the recent visit to the United Kingdom of the Prime Minister of Israel. [16017]

30. Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State For Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he made to the Israeli Prime Minister during his recent visit to London. [16020]

36. Mr. Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his recent talks with the Prime Minister of Israel. [16026]

Mr. Fatchett: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer given to the House today by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon (Mr. Dismore).

Mr. George Atkinson

28. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the case of Mr. George Atkinson, imprisoned in Dubai. [16018]

Mr. Fatchett: We have been told by the Government of Dubai that initial charges have been made against Mr. Atkinson. When investigations have been completed, final charges will be made and the case referred to the court or he will be released.

Iraq

29. Mr. Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the United Nations with regard to the situation in Iraq. [16019]

Mr. Fatchett: Following the UN Security Council's display of unanimity, I am pleased that Saddam Hussein has backed down unconditionally and allowed UNSCOM Inspection to return to Iraq. The Inspectors should now be permitted to get on with their job of uncovering and destroying Iraq's large stocks of weapons of mass destruction.

Human Rights

31. Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what will be the role of the European Union under the terms of the Amsterdam treaty in the protection of fundamental human rights. [16021]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Under Article F of the Treaty on European Union, the Union is already obliged to respect fundamental rights, as guaranteed by the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR). The Amsterdam Treaty, by an amendment to Article L, confirms the European Court of Justice (ECJ) jurisdiction to ensure that acts of EU institutions are consistent with these rights. New Article F.1 allows for sanctions against a Member State found in "serious and persistent" breach of fundamental rights. The EU's role, therefore, complements—and does not replace—that of the European Court of Human Rights.

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list those countries to which the European Union has made representations concerning the human rights and record of that country. [17316]

Mr. Fatchett: The European Union has made representations to a range of countries concerning their human rights records. A summary of European human rights activities is set out in the European Union's Annual Memorandum to the European Parliament. The most recent edition of the Memorandum was issued on 16 October 1997, and is available in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list those posts which in their project work in the legal training of state officials provide human rights documentation for schools and support non-governmental organisations involved in human rights issues. [17322]

Mr. Fatchett: Many posts support local human rights projects. Those recently involved in legal training of state officials or provision of human rights educational material include Sofia, Peking, Prague, Islamabad, Colombo, Lusaka, Vilnius and Port Louis. Posts regularly work closely with the British Council and both UK-based and local NGOs.

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list those countries to which representations have been made by Her Majesty's Government on the grounds of the human rights record of that country. [17314]

Mr. Fatchett: We make representations to many countries on their human rights records. We do so bilaterally or with EU partners, either directly or through multilateral fora. Where we consider it to be more effective, some representations are made privately.

Common Foreign and Security Policy

32. Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement about the United Kingdom contributions to the European Union budget activities on the Common foreign and security policy. [16022]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The 1997 EU budget for the common foreign and security policy makes provision for commitments of up to 30 Mecu (ie about £22.1 million). Britain's gross contribution is approximately 15 per cent. of expenditure, ie up to £3.32 million depending on the prevailing exchange rate.

Australia (Native Title)

33. Mr. Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on Australia's proposals on native title of their indigenous peoples. [16023]

Mr. Fatchett: We have received a small number of letters.

Maastricht Treaty

34. Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on the provisions of the Maastricht treaty relating to political integration. [16024]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We have received a wide variety of representations on the Maastricht Treaty.

Export Promotion

35. Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to encourage export promotion to central and eastern Europe. [16025]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We provide a range of services to encourage trade with Central and Eastern Europe, including export promoters. A major campaign was launched in January 1997 to promote awareness among British businesses of the growing commercial opportunities in Central Europe.

European Union

37. Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with representatives of countries seeking entry into the European Union. [16027]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We are committed to enlargement of the EU and to ensuring that this is an all-inclusive process. Regular contacts—at all levels—with all countries that have applied for membership in the European Union are essential to this. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is visiting Hungary, the Czech Republic and Poland this week. I have travelled to Bulgaria, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Romania, Slovenia and Turkey this autumn. All this is in addition to the continuous dialogue conducted by officials and HM Ambassadors.

China

Mr. Paul Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of United Kingdom relations with China in respect of the handover of Hong Kong. [16000]

Mr. Fatchett: We have entered a new, more constructive phase in our relations with China. Provided China continues to fulfil its pledge to respect the Joint Declaration, we believe Hong Kong will remain a bridge between Britain and China. When my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met his Chinese opposite number in New York in September, they agreed to work together on a whole range of bilateral and global issues.

Visa Applicants

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the case of Mr. Vaja of Leicester, Ref. R/97/3541, who has been refused a visa in Bombay. [16756]

Mr. Fatchett: We have asked our High commissioner in Bombay for a detailed account of the application and my noble Friend the Under-Secretary will write to my hon. Friend within one week of receiving that account.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the case of Mrs. Chauhan of 5 Rushey Close, Leicester, whose husband has been refused a visa in Bombay (Foreign Office ref. GV100/36904). [16846]

Mr. Fatchett: I understand that the Migration and Visa Correspondence Unit wrote to my hon. Friend on 18 November about this case. I hope the reply has addressed my hon. Friend's concerns.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the average waiting time for an interview in respect of an application to join (a) a husband and (b) a wife in (i) Pakistan, (ii) Sri Lanka, (iii) India and (iv) Bangladesh in the last year for which figures are available. [16972]

Mr. Fatchett: The average waiting times for interviews in respect of applications to join husband/wives in the last year for which figures are available (1996) are as follows (unless otherwise specified figures are the same for husbands and wives and refer to first time application):

	Waiting time
Islamabad	3.5 months, to join husband 4.5 months to join wife
Karachi	16 weeks
Colombo	10–12 weeks, depending on the conditions attached to the spouse's stay in the UK
New Delhi	2.75 months
Bombay	11 weeks
Madras	6 weeks
Calcutta	2 weeks
Dhaka	6.7 months

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) men and (b) women were waiting for an interview at British High Commission offices in (i) Pakistan, (ii) Sir Lanka, (iii) India and (iv) Bangladesh to join husbands or wives resident in the United Kingdom on 1 November. [16919]

Mr. Fatchett: On 1 November, the numbers of men and women waiting for an interview to join husbands or wives in the UK were as follows:

Post	Men	Women
Islamabad	610	665
Karachi	33	57
Colombo	1	121
New Delhi	33	73
Bombay	86	209
Madras	11	19
Calcutta	1	0
Dhaka	432	151

Entry Certificate Officers

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many entry certificate officers were employed in British High Commission offices in (a) Pakistan, (b) Sri Lanka, (c) India and (d) Bangladesh on 1 November. [16915]

Mr. Fatchett: The number of Entry Clearance Officers employed on 1 November is as follows:

	Officers
Islamabad	21
Karachi	4
Colombo	3
New Delhi	10
Bombay	8
Madras	2 + 50 per cent. of the time of a third officer
Calcutta	75 per cent. of the time of one officer
Dhaka	11

Migration and Visa Correspondence Unit

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what resources he will make available to deal with the backlog of cases at the Migration and Visa Correspondence Unit. [16757]

Mr. Fatchett: We have taken a variety of measures to deal with the backlog of cases, including the deployment of additional temporary staff and seven day working. We are currently making arrangements to appoint five extra permanent members of staff to the Unit. Three have already been selected and are in post. We aim to fill the remaining posts within two months.

Treaty of Rome

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish as a command paper a consolidated version of the Treaty of Rome, as amended by all subsequent treaties including the Treaty of Amsterdam, with all the protocols from all of the treaties. [17300]

Mr. Doug Henderson: A consolidated version of the Treaty of Rome (the Treaty Establishing the European Community), as amended by subsequent treaties including the Treaty of Amsterdam (not yet in force), was published in a Command Paper on 29 October 1997 (Cm 3780). All the protocols to the Treaty of Rome which will be in force when the Amsterdam Treaty enters into force are listed in the same Command Paper. The text of the protocols annexed to the Treaty of Rome or added by the Treaty on European Union are printed in Cm 455 (1988) and Cm 2485 (1994); and those to be added by the Treaty of Amsterdam are printed in Cm 3780 (1997).

Asia-Europe Meeting

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will ensure that human rights are on the agenda at the forthcoming second Asia-Europe meeting. [16060]

Mr. Fatchett: The agenda for the second Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) is still under discussion. The Chairman's Statement after the first ASEM in Bangkok expressed commitment to strengthening political dialogue between Asia and Europe on the basis, among other things, of equality and the promotion of fundamental rights.

Dalai Lama

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement regarding the succession of the Dalai Lama. [17309]

Mr. Fatchett: The succession of the Dalai Lama is a matter for the Tibetan people.

Turkey

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will raise Turkey's activities in Iraq in the Security Council. [17576]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We have no current plans to do so. We have urged the Turks to withdraw their forces from northern Iraq as soon as possible.

Torture Equipment

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the value of torture equipment sold by United Kingdom companies since 1992; and if he will list those countries to which such equipment has been sold. [17323]

Mr. Fatchett: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Small Firms, Trade and Industry to my hon. Friend the Member for Cynon Valley (Mrs. Clwyd) on 29 October 1997, Official Report, column 825.

East Timor

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the arrangements to ensure that the proposed European Troika visit to East Timor is able to hold private meetings with persons (a) in Dili and (b) in rural areas. [15986]

Mr. Fatchett: We aim for the Troika Ambassadors to talk to a wide range of people to get as complete a picture as possible of the situation. Detailed arrangements will be worked out in conjunction with our EU partners.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Indonesian Government on the recommendation by the United Nations Human Rights Commission that the United Nations Rapporteur on Torture be invited to visit East Timor, in time for him to report to the meeting of the Commission in April 1998. [15987]

Mr. Fatchett: We continue to encourage the Indonesian Government to implement the resolution of the UN Commission on Human Rights 1997.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the United Kingdom will support efforts by the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to deploy an on-site human rights presence in East Timor. [16061]

Mr. Fatchett: There are no efforts by the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to deploy an on-site human rights presence in East Timor.

EU Defence Co-operation

Mr. Pound: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his European Union Counterparts about future European defence co-operation. [16164]

Mr. Fatchett: The European Union itself is not responsible for defence co-operation. At the Amsterdam European Council, the UK and European Union partners agreed that the European Union would avail itself of the Western European Union to elaborate and implement decisions and actions of the Union which have defence implications. Arrangements for enhanced co-operation between the European Union and Western European Union have been discussed by the General Affairs Council of the European Union have been discussed by the General Affairs Council of the European Union and by the Council of the Western European Union.

Burma

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on conditions in the relocation camps within Karenni state, Burma. [17602]

Mr. Fatchett: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has made no specific representations on this subject to the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights. But, with strong UK support, the President of the European Council wrote to Mrs. Robinson on 6 October about the deplorable human rights situation in Burma, urging further UN actions to improve the situation and drawing attention to the EU Common Position.

The UK played a full role in ensuring that the plight of ethnic minorities in Burma was included in the UN Committee on Human Rights resolution in April. We are playing an equally active role in negotiations on the UN General Assembly Third Committee resolution on Burma, to be adopted in plenary in December.

Algeria

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures he plans to take in respect of human rights in Algeria; and if he will make a statement. [16584]

Mr. Fatchett: In our regular contacts with the Algerian authorities, we express our serious concerns about reports of human rights abuses in Algeria. We plan to continue expressing these concerns and to encourage the Algerian Government to agree an early date for the visit they have already indicated they accept from the UN Special Rapporteur on Extrajudicial Killings.

Gibraltar

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he will take to ensure that Gibraltar is permitted to enjoy the rights concerning the free movement of goods, capital, services and people prescribed by membership of the European Union.[17811]

Mr. Doug Henderson: We take seriously our responsibilities for Gibraltar within the EU. We stand up firmly for Gibraltar's EU rights to exercise free movement of capital, services and people and shall continue to do so. Gibraltarians' right to free movement will not, for example, be affected by the Treaty of Amsterdam. Provisions on the free movement of goods do not apply in Gibraltar. Since Gibraltar is outside the Community Customs Territory and the Common Commercial policy, it is treated as a third country for imports into the Community.

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what restrictions are placed on civilian aircraft using Gibraltar airport in respect of their use of airspace, at take-off and on final approach to landing. [17808]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Spain prohibits civilian aircraft movements to the North and West of Gibraltar in a way which affects approaches to. and departures from, Gibraltar.

Military Training Assistance

Mr. St. Aubyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects his Department's review of military training assistance to be completed. [17654]

Mr. Fatchett: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is examining this Department's Military Training Assistance Scheme as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review. The Review is likely to be completed in the Spring of 1998.

Tunisia

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to Tunisia on human rights violations; and if he will make a statement. [16583]

Mr. Fatchett: We are in regular contact with the Tunisian authorities on human rights issues.

Hong Kong

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he plans to take to monitor human rights and electoral procedures in Hong Kong. [15992]

Mr. Fatchett: We are committed to monitoring all aspects of the implementation of the Sino-British Joint Declaration on Hong Kong, including those parts relating to human rights and the legislature.

Contingency and Operational Procurement Exhibition

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the military, security and police officials invited to the 1997 contingency and operational procurement exhibition. [14405]

Mr. Spellar: I have been asked to reply as this matter falls within my area of responsibility.

COPEX 97 was a privately run exhibition which the Ministry of Defence played no part in organising. I am therefore unable to list any of the invitees.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Paramilitary Beatings

Mr. Trimble: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many paramilitary beatings and shootings have occurred in 1997, indicating where possible the paramilitary organisation believed to be responsible. [16030]

Mr. Ingram: Between 1 January 1997 and 11 November 1997 the number of casualties as a result of paramilitary-style assaults and shootings was:

Casualties as a result of Paramilitary-style attacks 1 January to 11 November 1997

	Attributed to Loyalist	Attributed to Republican	Total
Casualties as a result of shootings	43	18	61
Casualties as a result of assaults	69	72	141
Total	112	90	202

Police Station, Coleraine

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the estimated cost of the new police station for Coleraine, County Londonderry. [17355]

Mr. Ingram: It is not possible to give an estimated cost of a new police station for Coleraine, County Londonderry as no decision has yet been taken on this project.

Requirements for police buildings are currently being assessed against policing needs and availability of funding.

Traffic Flows

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what is the peak traffic capacity of the Castledawson bypass; how many vehicles used it when it was first opened; what has been the number each year since opening on a daily basis; and what are the peak hourly flows this year; [17352]

(2) how many vehicles pass over each of the bridges over the Lower Bann each day; in each case what is the hourly peak flow; and what were the figures five years ago; [17353]

(3) if she will list the daily number of vehicles and the peak hourly traffic flow (a) currently and (b) five years ago over (i) Swanns Bridge, (ii) Roe Bridge Limavady and (iii) Dungiven Bridge over the River Roe; [17354]

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the daily and hourly peak traffic flows along (a) Linen Hall Street and (b) Connell Street Limavady (i) were in each of the last five years and (ii) are at present. [17358]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the Roads Service under its chief executive, Mr. W.S. McCoubrey. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from W. J. McCoubrey to Mr. William Ross, dated 24 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked me to respond to your recently tabled PQs about traffic volumes at various locations.

PQ 1213—TRAFFIC VOLUMES ON CASTLEDAWSON BY-PASS

The design capacity of the Castledawson By-pass, which opened in 1992, is 13,000 vehicles per day. Since then the average daily traffic volumes on the By-pass are as follows:

1992: 8,800

1993: 9,792

1994: 10,580

1995: 11,740

1996: 11,860

1997: 13,302

In 1997 the average peak hourly flows are: 1,040 (a.m), 1,169 (p.m).

PQs 1214, 1215, 1219

Whilst the precise information requested is not available, I have provided details in the attached tables.

I hope this information is helpful.

There are five road bridges over the Lower Bann river. The following table provides details, where available, on the average daily traffic volumes and average peak hourly flows (a.m and p.m) on each of the bridges as determined by:

(1) The most recent traffic survey carried out in each location; and

(2) 1992 traffic surveys (where carried out).

PQ 1214—Traffic Volumes on bridges across the Lower Bann River

Name of bridge	(1) Most recent surveys				(2) 1992 surveys
	Year	Average daily traffic volumes	Average peak hourly flows AM	PM	Average daily traffic volumes	Average peak hourly flows AM	PM
Toome Bridge	1997	17,667	1,652	1,737	12,990	960	1,350
Agivey Bridge	1996	3,130	220	300	2,910	n/a	n/a
Bann Bridge, Portglenone	1997	8,500	663	696	n/a	n/a	n/a
Sandleford Bridge	1995	20,720	n/a	n/a	15,150	n/a	n/a
Kilrea Bridge	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a

n/a = Not available.

The following table provides details, where available, on the average daily traffic volumes and average peak hourly flows (am and pm) on each of the bridges as determined by:

PQ 1215—Traffic flows—Swanns Bridge, Roe Bridge, and Dungiven Bridge

		(1) Most recent surveys			(2) 1992 surveys
Name of bridge	Year	Average daily traffic volumes	Average peak hourly flows AM	PM	Average daily traffic volumes	Average peak hourly flows AM	PM
Roe Bridge	1996	16,180	1200	1380	15,030	No figures available
Dungiven Bridge	1996	10,240	780	950	8,450	No figures available
Swanns Bridge		No figures available			No figures available

The most recent traffic data available in respect of Linenhall Street and Connell Street, Limavady are those of an 1991 traffic survey. Details, where available, are provided in the following table:

PQ 1219—Traffic flows—Linenhall Street, and Connell Street, Limavady

		Most recent survey
Location	Year	Average daily traffic volumes	Average hourly peak flows AM	PM
Linenhall Street	1991	[1]8,874	933	951
Connell Street	1991	No figures available	748	1,065

[1] Based on a 10 hour count 1989.

Farmers and Farm-workers

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what studies she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the age structure of (i) full-time farmers and farm-workers and (ii) part-time farmers in Northern Ireland; how many (A) males and (B) females there are in each such category; and what were the figures (1) five, (2) 10 and (3) 15 years ago. [17356]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Information on the age structure of full and part-time farmers and farm-workers is collected in periodic EU Structure Surveys, the latest of which was carried out in 1997.

The numbers requested in part (II) of the question are:

	Full-time farmers and farm-workers		Part-time farmers
Year	Male	Female	Male	Female
1997	20,835	1,487	12,693	1,886
1992	23,680	3,133	10,675	3,334
1987	26,774	3,632	9,517	3,029
1982	28,759	4,641	9,181	2,902

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Remploy

Miss Melanie Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on Remploy's performance against the targets set in its 1996–97 annual performance agreement. [17926]

Mr. Alan Howarth: Now that Remploy has published its Annual Report and Accounts for 1997 and audited figures are available, I am, on behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment, delighted to confirm that Remploy has exceeded its 1996–97 targets. The targets and achievements are listed in the following table. Copies of Remploy's 1997 Annual Report and Accounts are available in the Library.

	Target	Achievement
The average number of disabled people employed by Remploy:	At least 9,400	9,662
Average number of disabled people employed under the Interwork scheme:	At least 2,400	2,704
The number of disabled employees to move from Remploy factories to Interwork having been employed there for at least 1 year, or from Interwork or factories to open employment:	At least 175	182
Remploy will keep within a unit cost target (operating deficit per disabled worker) of:	£10,170	£9,967
The unit cost of Interwork to be no more than:	£4,540	£4,230
Remploy to keep within an operating deficit (including reorganisation costs) of:	£99 million	£98.9 million

EU Education Council

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what were the outcomes of the Council of EC Education Ministers held on 20 November. [17927]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Council of Education Ministers, at which my noble Friend the Minister of State, Department for Education and Employment and my hon. Friend the Minister for Education and Industry, Scottish Office represented the UK, made a declaration on respect for diversity and the fight against racism and xenophobia. The Council agreed in principle the texts of a resolution on the early learning of the languages of the European Union; of conclusions on the evaluation of the quality of school education; and, subject to a UK Parliamentary scrutiny reservation, of a common position on a draft recommendation on European co-operation in higher education quality assurance. The Council gave a second reading to a European Commission proposal to increase the budget of the SOCRATES education programme. In this it restated its view that the programme budget should be increased from 850 million ecu[1] to 875 million ecu[2] over five years.

The Council heard European Commission presentations on the communication "Towards a Europe of Knowledge" and the EURYDICE publication "Key Data on Education in the European Union 1997".

After the Council, European Union Education Ministers held a meeting with Education Ministers of the associated countries of Central and Eastern Europe to discuss matters of mutual interest.

The Council minutes will be placed in the Library as soon as they became available.

[1]£580 million at £1 = 0.6.825 ecu.

[2]£597 million at £1 = 0.6.825 ecu.

Higher and Further Education (Top-up Fees)

Ms Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will take steps to prohibit the charging of top-up fees by institutions of higher and further education. [17600]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend has made it clear that top-up fees play no part in the Government's plans for higher education and that no university or college should proceed on the basis of introducing such additional fees. We are considering whether or not it is necessary to seek legislation on this issue.

Education Authority Spending

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list for each local education authority in England for the three most recent years (a) actual expenditure on service strategy and regulation, (b) actual expenditure within the general schools budget on education, management and administration, (c) the outturn expenditure within the general schools budget, (d) the outturn expenditure within the potential schools budget, (e) the outturn expenditure within the aggregate schools budget and (f) the number of pupils in primary and secondary schools. [16058]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 17 November 1997]: Tables containing the information requested have been placed in the Library. These are derived from (a) the revenue outturn form RO1 return collected by the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions, for the financial years 1993–94, 1994–95 and 1995–96; (b) to (e) the outturn statements produced by local education authorities under section 42 of the Education Reform Act 1988, for the financial years 1993–94, 1994–95 and 1995–96; (f) returns made by schools to the Department in January 1995, 1996 and 1997 (Annual Schools Census–Form 7).

Employment Service

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what exception there are to his policy of compelling employees of the Employment Service to retire at 60 years of age; and if he will make a statement. [17164]

Mr. Alan Howarth: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its Chief Executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Leigh Lewis to Mr. David Kidney, dated 25 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what exceptions there are to the policy of retiring employees of the Employment Service at 60 years of age. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive.

Age retirement policy is common across the whole of the Department for Education and Employment, including the Employment Service. The background to the policy is that, following the merger of the former Departments for Employment and Education in 1995, there was a need to ensure a common retirement policy across the new Department.

There had, for a number of years, been a policy that staff working in the former Employment Department Group, including the Employment Service, were retained beyond their 60th birthday only where there was an operational need and the person concerned was fully fit and efficient. This same policy was adopted across the Department for Education and Employment and is a common policy across most Civil Service departments.

If, when an individual reaches age 60, there is no ongoing need for their service they will be retired. Where, however, there is an operational need for the individual to remain in employment they are invited to do so. The criteria for retaining individuals beyond their 60th birthday are that:

a clear operational need exists;

the individual is carrying out their duties effectively;

they have no known health problems;

their retention will not lead to serious promotion blockages;

there are no suitable surplus staff in the individual's grade/pay band or location who could be redeployed into that post.

In addition, where there are temporary employees filling posts which could instead be filled by retaining permanent staff beyond age 60, the contracts of temporary employees will be terminated in favour of retaining permanent members of staff.

These criteria are published in the "ES and You", the Employment Service's staff terms and conditions handbook. Since December 1996, the Employment Service has in fact retained more staff beyond age 60 than were retired at that age.

I hope this information clarifies the circumstances in which people are invited to remain in employment beyond their 60th birthday within the Employment Service.

New Deal

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what criteria were used for choosing West Lancashire as an area where the lead role in delivery of the New Deal would be offered to the private sector. [16864]

Mr. Andrew Smith: We have invited the private sector to lead the organisation and delivery of New Deal in a total of ten locations. The competition to identify private sector lead organisations in the two pathfinder areas of Hackney and City and South Humber is complete. The additional eight areas were selected on the basis of a judgment as to where a private sector led partnership would have most to contribute.

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) if he will list for each employment district in (a) Wales and (b) England in which he intends to contract out the management of the welfare to work programme those contracts which will be the subject of public tender or invitation to tender; and which companies have been invited to tender; [16951]

(2) if he will list those employment districts in (a) Wales and (b) England in which he proposes to contract out the management of the welfare to work programmes; and what is the estimated value of each contract. [16950]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The essence of New Deal delivery is partnership between a wide range of public and private sector organisations to provide opportunities to meet the needs of the local client group. Effective local partnerships have an invaluable contribution to make, whatever the lead responsibilities for delivery. Detailed delivery plans for each New Deal unit of delivery will be available in the public domain once approved. Plans for 12 pathfinder districts are in the process of being made available now, and those for the bulk of remaining districts will be available during December.

We have specifically invited the private sector to lead the organisation and delivery of New Deal in a total of 10 locations. The competition in the first two pathfinder areas (Hackney and City and South Humber) is now complete. Advertisements seeking expressions of interest have been published for the other eight, with a view to announcing the remaining lead organisations to work with the Employment Service by the end of February 1998. In Wales, the private sector will lead in Bridgend and Glamorgan Valleys. In England, the locations are West Lancashire, Leicestershire, Solihull, Colchester, Tyneside North and Exeter and East Devon.

We cannot say at this stage which specific organisations will compete for contracts or their potential value because these depend on responses to the various competitions, the delivery arrangements proposed and the number of young people who will participate within the New Deal.

Mr. Alasdair Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) for what reasons bidding for the contract to lead the organisation and delivery of New Deal to 18 to 24 year olds in Scotland, England and Wales is restricted to private sector organisations; [17349]

(2) if the bidding process will allow for the management of New Deal in Scotland to be carried out separately, and by a different organisation, from that in England and Wales. [17350]

Mr. Andrew Smith: New Deal will be organised through a wide variety of arrangements, designed to reflect the diversity of local circumstances and the expertise of those who can help in its delivery. This means different options for the management of New Deal are welcome.

The private sector has offered an impressive range of innovative proposals for helping young people back to work. The Government are keen to harness this creativity to provide quality opportunities through which young people can improve their employability. We have therefore invited bids from the private sector, under contract to the Employment Service (ES), to lead the delivery of New Deal in a total of 10 locations where it is judged that a private sector led partnership would have most to contribute. I would expect the private sector organisations selected to work closely with local public and private sector bodies to make a success of the New Deal.

The bidding process allows for the management arrangements to be separated, and for separate organisations to be involved, in each of the private sector lead locations, including in Scotland. It does not, however, require it as the bids for each area will be assessed on their merits.

In other areas, private sector or public sector consortia may also emerge as a result of discussions amongst prospective partners at a local level. In these cases, responsibility for the overall management of New Deal in that locality may rest with any member/members of the consortium under contract to the ES. A third option is that the ES directly manages New Deal Delivery.

In all cases, the ES remains accountable for the delivery of New Deal.

Secondary Schools (Selection Process)

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list the secondary schools which are partially selective, indicating those which band their intake; and if he will make a statement. [17762]

Ms Estelle Morris: The Department does not hold comprehensive information on partially selective schools or those which band their intake. Information is available only on those schools which since 1989 have had statutory proposals approved to introduce partial selection and those grant maintained schools which received approval to select up to 10 per cent. of their pupils on the basis of ability or aptitude in certain specified subjects between January 1989 and August 1996. This is provided in the following tables.

Proposals to Introduce Partial Selection Approved since 1989

LEA area	School name	Type of selection
Grant maintained
Barnet	Mill Hill County High School	30 per cent. by aptitude for technology
Bromley	Hayes GM Secondary School	25 per cent. selection by ability
Berkshire	Southlands School	One selective form of entry (18 per cent.)
Dorset	Budmouth GM School	10 per cent. selection by ability
Hammersmith and Fulham	London Oratory School	20 boys at age 7 on musical and general ability
Hertfordshire	Watford Grammar School for Girls	50 per cent. selection by ability
Hertfordshire	Watford Grammar School for Boys	50 per cent. selection by ability
Hertfordshire	Parmiters School	50 per cent. selection by ability
Hertfordshire	Rickmansworth School	50 per cent. selection by ability
Hertfordshire	Chancellors School	10 per cent. partial selection
Kent	Homewood School	20 per cent. selection by ability
Kingston	Holy Cross School	15 per cent. selection by ability
Lambeth	Archbishop Tenison's GM School	banding including 40 per cent. of above average ability
Lambeth	St. Martin in the Fields High School
Lambeth	Dunraven GM School

Proposals to Introduce Partial Selection Approved since 1989

LEA area	School name	Type of selection
Surrey	Roseberry GM Girls's School	30 per cent. selection on academic ability and 10 places on aptitude for music
Wandsworth	Graveney GM School	50 per cent. selection by ability
Wandsworth	Burntwood School	50 per cent. selection by ability
County
Wandsworth	Ernest Bevin School	Partial Selection
Wandsworth	Chestnut Grove School	Partial Selection
Wandsworth	Battersea Technology College	Partial Selection

Grant maintained schools introducing selection of up to 10 per cent. of their intake between July 1989 to August 1996

LEA	School	Nature of change
Havering	Abbs Cross School	10 per cent. Music
Bromley	Beaverwood Girls School	10 per cent. Performing Arts (Music and Dance)
Kingston Upon Thames	Beverley School	10 per cent. Art or Music
Hertfordshire	Bishop's Stortford School	10 per cent. Music, Sport or Drama
Kent	Canterbury High School	10 per cent. Music
Kensington and Chelsea	Cardinal Vaughan Memorial School	10 per cent. Music
Hertfordshire	Chancellors School	10 per cent. Music, Drama or Sport
Kent	Charles Dickens High School	10 per cent. Music
Kent	Chatham Grammar School for Girls	10 per cent. Music, Sport or Drama
Norfolk	Cliff Park High School	10 per cent. Music
Bromley	Cooper's School	10 per cent. Music, Drama, Dance or Sport
Hampshire	Crofton School	Five places Music
Hertfordshire	Dame Alice Owen School	10 per cent. Music or Sport
Kent	Dane Court Grammar School	10 per cent. Music, Sport, Drama or any unusual talent
Cambridgeshire	Deacons School	10 per cent. Technology
Lambeth	Dunraven School	10 per cent. Music
Enfield	Enfield Grammar School	10 per cent. Music or Sport
Hertfordshire	Goffs School	10 per cent. Music, Drama, Sport or Languages
Surrey	Heathside School	10 per cent. Music or Sport
Barnet	Hendon School	10 per cent. Music
Hertfordshire	Hertfordshire and Essex High School	10 per cent Music, Sport or Drama
Surrey	Hinchley Wood School	10 per cent. Music
Bromley	Kemnal Manor School	10 per cent. Technology
Essex	King Edward VI Grammar School	Three places for Choristers
Cambridgeshire	Kings' School	10 per cent. Music and Choristers
Lambeth	La Retraite School	10 per cent. Music
Camden	La Sainte Union Convent School	10 per cent. Music
Kent	Langley Park School for Boys	10 per cent. Music or Sport
Hertfordshire	Leventhorpe School	10 per cent. Music
Lincolnshire	Lincoln Christ's Hospital School	10 per cent. Music
Barnet	Mill Hill County School	10 per cent. Music
Hertfordshire	Queen's School	10 per cent. Music, Art or Sport
Kent	Rainham Mark Grammar School	10 per cent. Music, Sport, Drama or any unusual talent
Essex	Ramsford High School	10 per cent. Music or Drama
Kent	Robert Naipier School	10 per cent. Music, Sport, Drama or any unusual talent
Kent	St. George's CE School	10 per cent. Music
Surrey	Thamesmead School	10 per cent. Music
Essex	Ursuline Convent School	10 per cent. Music
Kent	Westland High School	10 per cent. Music
Surrey	Winston Churchill School	six per cent. Music
Norfolk	Wymondham College	10 per cent. Music

Grammar Schools (Admissions)

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) how many consultation letters on the future admission arrangements for grammar schools were sent out; how many responses were received; what assessment he has made of the consultation from these answers; and if he will make a statement; [17759]

(2) how many responses to the consultation letter on future admission arrangements for grammar schools were received from (a) grammar schools, (b) non-selective secondary schools, (c) primary schools, (d) local education authorities with grammar schools and (e) local education authorities without grammar schools; and if he will make a statement. [17760]

Mr. Byers: The Department issued the consultation letter initially to the 164 schools which we had identified as grammar schools and to the 37 local education authorities which currently have or will have grammar schools in their areas from next April. Many LEAs circulated the letter to schools in their area. Thereafter copies of the letter were made available on request. We estimate that around 200 additional copies of the letter were issued.

Some 1,100 responses were received. Of these:

176 were from the headteacher and/or chair of governors of a grammar school

30 were from other secondary schools

16 were from primary schools

25 were from LEAs (including shadow authorities) with grammar schools

3 were from LEAs without grammar schools

over 800 were from others

We are currently considering the responses as a basis for deciding the best way of taking forward the framework we have proposed.

School Tests (Costs)

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what was the cost of the National Testing System for seven year olds, (i) in total and (ii) broken down into costs for (a) printing, (b) postage of the test papers, (c) payments to external markers and (d) fees charged by the company which processes the results in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [17761]

Ms Estelle Morris: The estimated overall costs of implementing the 1997 tests for seven year olds in English and mathematics was some £22 million. This included: (a) printing costs of around £900,000; (b) distribution costs of around £300,000; and (c) external marking costs of around £3,000. There are no estimates for the cost of data collection; the Key Stage 1 results for maintained schools are collated by LEAs (or by an accredited agency for GM schools) for reporting to the Department.

The Government are committed to raising standards and the National Curriculum tests for seven year olds play an important part in this.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bosnia and Herzegovina

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list the aid currently being given by her Department to entities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. [17754]

Clare Short: In the current financial year my Department is providing £18.75 million to Bosnia and Herzegovina, made up of £17 million in reconstruction and humanitarian assistance, and £1.75 million through the Know How Fund. Spending benefits both entities in broadly equal proportions.

Land Mines

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance her Department is giving to demining operations in (i) Angola, (ii) Laos, (iii) Cambodia and (iv) the Falkland Islands. [17750]

Clare Short: Since 1991, some £9.6 million has been spent bilaterally in supporting demining activities in Angola, Cambodia and Laos.

My Department is currently supporting trials of an anti-personnel land mine detector in Angola. a composite programme of data gathering, clearance and community awareness of unexploded ordnance in Laos and several programmes in Cambodia, including support to develop national capacity in demining and projects on clearance, community awareness and assistance to mine victims. My Department has not allocated resources for demining in the Falkland Islands.

Our projects are co-ordinated with the substantial resources allocated by the European Community, which are partly attributed to my Department.

Technology Foresight

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development in what way the Department's research priorities have been modified in response to Technology Foresight. [17462]

Clare Short: The first phase of the Technology Foresight Programme did not address development issues to any significant extent. I have asked that the next phase be relevant to growing markets in the developing world. I hope that Foresight will broaden its agenda to accommodate the principles of the White Paper on International Development.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what Technology Foresight priorities are being taken into account in the forward planning of her Department's scientific research programme. [17469]

Clare Short: My Department is working closely with the Office of Science and Technology to ensure that the principles espoused in the Government's White Paper on International Development (Cm 3789) are accommodated in the Technology Foresight programme. My hon. Friend the Under Secretary of State for International Development will be a member of the recently announced Ministerial group which will co-ordinate the Foresight programme.

Sierra Leone

Mr. Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the timetable for the Government's release of funds for overseas aid projects through non-governmental agencies for projects within Sierra Leone. [17410]

Clare Short: The time scale for resumption of normal aid to Sierra Leone, provided through non-governmental agencies, will depend on progress in establishing peace and the return of the democratically elected government of President Kabbah.

Principles and guidelines for the provision of humanitarian aid have been established by the Office of the United Nations Humanitarian Co-ordinator for Sierra Leone. Funding is being provided through the European Community Humanitarian Office and my Department is also considering bilateral support through the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Official Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what is her estimate of the expenditure by (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on official hospitality for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997. [15262]

Clare Short [holding answer 12 November 1997]: Expenditure on hospitality made by the Department for International Development and its agency, the Natural Resources Institute (NRI), for the years requested is as follows:

	DFID	NRI	Total (£s)
1991–92	12,375	4,813	17,188
1992–93	12,203	4,914	17,117
1993–94	12,137	4,914	17,089
1994–95	21,246	2,566	23,812
1995–96	22,742	3,260	26,002
1996–97	24,122	—	24,122
1997 to 30 September 1998	8,827	—	—

NRI was transferred to private ownership in 1996–97.

Figures for years prior to 1991–92 cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs.

Former Yugoslavia

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what was the level of spending on small community-based projects organised by IFOR and SFOR troops in former Yugoslavia in each of the last two financial years; what is the projected spending on these programmes in the current and next financial year; and if she will make a statement. [16230]

Clare Short: In 1996–97, the first year of operating such projects, my Department spent £7 million. This financial year the budget is £2.5 million. We are currently considering the scope for a further programme next year, redesigned to focus more on support for refugee return and reconciliation.

Aid (Human Rights)

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list those countries to which development assistance has been (a) curtailed and (b) suspended on grounds of the human rights record of the government of that state. [17317]

Clare Short: Since May 1997, aid from my Department's budget to Sierra Leone has been suspended, although we continue to assist the elected government which is now in exile. Aid also remains suspended through the governments of countries such as Burma, Nigeria and Sudan. In these cases, the regimes' records on human rights were one of the factors taken into account in our decisions. I have announced the outcome of my review of aid to Indonesia. In Belarus, in accordance with EU policy, we will not work through state organisations in future and will provide only humanitarian or regional support or support which directly promotes the process of democratisation. In countries where aid through central official channels has been suspended, we retain our aim of helping to eliminate poverty and will pursue this by working through NGOs and local government. We thereby also show our solidarity with oppressed peoples.

Where we retain official aid, we may also wish to modify the pattern of aid, including possibly curtailing aid, in response to a number of short or longer term factors, including human rights. This is a continuous and general process and it is often difficult to draw out any one factor as critical to the outcome.

Indonesia

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment she has made of the implications of the US $23 billion IMF package for Indonesia for the human rights situation in that country. [16045]

Mrs. Liddell: I have been asked to reply.

Indonesia's tough programme of reform marks an important step in the process of restoring confidence in financial markets in South-East Asia. It commits the Suharto government to a tight financial framework, together with a number of measures to tackle structural economic weaknesses and open the economy. We fully support these measures, which will lead to improved quality of governance and transparency in policy implementation. This should allow Indonesia to maintain its high rate of economic growth, and contribute to the benefits of growth being widely shared in all sectors of the population.

The programme will be supported by loans of $18 billion–$10 billion from the IMF $4½ billion from the World Bank and $3½ billion from the Asian Development Bank. The remaining part of the projected $23 billion financing need will involve use of Indonesia's own external assets. We support this exceptional access to IMF resources, particularly in view of the prudent macroeconomic policies which Indonesia has pursued over a long period of time.

DEFENCE

Contingency and Operational Procurement Exhibition

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the MOD inspectors who investigated the recent COPEX were provided with an attendance list of military, security and police officials and delegations; which of these delegations were from countries whose military, security and police units have records of human rights violations; and if he will make this attendance list available. [14370]

Mr. Spellar: MOD inspectors were not provided with an attendance list.

Gulf War Syndrome

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the oral answer of 3 November 1997, Official Report, column 14, to the hon. Member for South Derbyshire (Mr. Todd), if he will place in the Library copies of (a) the minutes of the meeting with the joint inter-agencies on Gulf War syndrome and (b) all documents provided to his Department from the United States authorities on Gulf War syndrome. [14714]

Dr. Reid: The Government are committed to co-operating very closely with the US authorities on this issue and regularly exchange information with our US colleagues. We are equally committed to being open in the dealings with Gulf veterans, and have pledged to make all relevant information available. A wide range of documentation issued by the US authorities is already publicly available. However, information contained within documents received in confidence from a foreign Government is covered by exemption 1 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if, as part of his Department's investigation of Gulf War illness, he will examine the research conducted by Dr. Robert Davies at Taunton Hospital into the contribution made by exposure to organophosphate pesticide. [16848]

Dr. Reid: My Department will continue to take account of all research published in appropriately peer-reviewed medical and scientific journals which may be relevant in taking forward our work to address the health concerns of Gulf veterans. We have not yet seen the results of Dr. Davies' research and await its publication with interest.

Commander John Brookes

Mr. Alan Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about the MOD role of Commander John Brookes in Hull. [16689]

Dr. Reid: It is my Department's policy to prevent the disclosure of information about any person (including a deceased person) or any other disclosure which could constitute or could facilitate an unwarranted invasion of privacy. I am, accordingly, withholding the information requested under exemption 14 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Chatham Dockyard

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what were the numbers of (a) individuals, nationally and (b) ex-employees of Chatham Dockyard who (i) registered under the counselling scheme he announced on 4 June, (ii) required, initially, a copy of their past dose record, (iii) elected for counselling directly, (iv) having required a copy of their past dose record, have been advised that no dose records can be found and (v) having required a copy of their past dose record have subsequently elected for counselling. [17422]

Mr. Spellar: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Battledress

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what are the fire retardant standards of the standard issue battledress issued to serving troops in each of the services; [16222]

(2) what tests were undertaken of the fire retardant standards of materials used to make the current standard issue battledress issued to serving troops; [16223]

(3) what representations he has received as to the quality of items of the standard issue battledress issued to troops in each service; and if he will make a statement; [16224]

(4) what estimate he has made of the cost of issuing battledress with higher fire-retardant standards. [16225]

Dr. Reid: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Stabilisation Force

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what provision is made for troops serving with SFOR to phone the United Kingdom. [16219]

Dr. Reid: A Welfare Telephone Allowance, currently £22 per month, is paid to troops as a contribution towards the cost of their telephone calls. A very few troops in isolated locations where it is not commercially viable to install public telephones, do not receive an allowance, but use the Military MENTOR Satellite System to telephone home.

Those troops based at Gorni-Vakuf have access to the BT Satellite Ground Terminal which has a telephone facility incorporated. The remainder make use of the service provided by Terralink Europa under a supported PFI agreement.

The Croatian PTT is also available in Split, but it is more expensive than Terralink Europa.

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what allowance is paid to United Kingdom troops serving with SFOR for phone calls; and what data he has collated on allowances paid to troops from other nations for this purpose. [16220]

Dr. Reid: A Welfare Telephone Allowance, currently £22 per month, is paid to troops as a contribution towards the cost of their telephones calls. A very few troops in isolated locations where it is not commercially viable to install public telephone, do not receive an allowance, but instead have access to Military MENTOR Satellite System to telephone home.

Data have not been collated on allowances paid to troops of other nations for this purpose, but pay and general allowances have been researched in the past. Because of differing Terms of Service and different economic factors between nations, it would not be meaningful to compare individual elements of the allowances package such as the telephone allowance.

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the (a) average cost and (b) range of costs per minute of phone calls to the United Kingdom made by troops stationed in Multi-national Division (South West) of SFOR. [16221]

Dr. Reid: The average cost of a telephone call from MND SW to the United Kingdom is approximately 87p a minute.

The range of costs are as follows:

(a) Terralink Europa—60p a minute.

(b) British Telecom—90p per minute.

(c) PTT (Public Telephone)—95p per minute.

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average case load is of consultant-level surgeons and physicians serving with SFOR. [16226]

Dr. Reid: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the average number of nights out of bed experienced by troops serving with SFOR. [16228]

Dr. Reid: Every night that an individual does not spend at his or her unit's permanent station is classified as a night out of bed. Technically, therefore, personnel serving in former Yugoslavia spend nights out of bed for the duration of their deployment.

The average number of nights which troops currently serving in former Yugoslavia have spent away from their base in that country is 1.38 per week. Such absences occur for a variety of reasons, most notably the requirement to patrol.

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many chaplains are serving with United Kingdom troops in SFOR; if this represents a normal full complement; and if he will make a statement. [16391]

Dr. Reid: There are currently eight Army chaplains serving alongside United Kingdom troops in the NATO-led stabilisation force in Bosnia. This represents a normal complement in relation to the number of major units and soldiers deployed there. In addition, Royal Air Force (RAF) chaplains make regular visits to RAF personnel thereby providing them with full pastoral support; and Royal Navy chaplains accompany ships and Royal Marine units when they are deployed in theatre.

Fox Hunting

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times in each of the last five years the hunting of foxes with hounds has taken place in each named location forming part of his Department's estate. [17732]

Mr. Spellar: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The Salisbury Plain Training Area and the Otterburn Training Area are, however, the most frequently hunted parts of the Defence Estate.

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what means fox numbers on his Department's estate are reduced other than by hunting with hounds. [17731]

Mr. Spellar: In addition to hunting with hounds, fox numbers are reduced on the Defence Estate through licensed individuals and organisations, generally through shooting.

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those parts of his Department's estate by name where most foxes have been killed by hounds in each of the last five years, giving the number of foxes so killed in each case. [17734]

Mr. Spellar: Although this information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost, we believe that a large proportion of the foxes killed by hounds on the Defence Estate are taken on the Salisbury Plain Training Area and the Otterburn Training Area.

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the number of foxes killed (a) by hounds and (b) by other means on his Department's estate in each of the past five years. [17733]

Mr. Spellar: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. We estimate, however, that some 350-400 foxes are killed on the Defence Estate each year by hunting with hounds, and that approximately three times this number are accounted for by other means.

Strategic Defence Review

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the projected timetable for stages of the Strategic Defence Review. [16229]

Mr. George Robertson: In my speech to the House on 27 October 1997, Official Report, columns 609–20, I outlined the emerging conclusions of the first phase of the Review, which looked at the foreign and security policy framework. The Review now is looking at missions of our forces, military tasks, future force structures and capabilities, procurement, and a wide range of efficiency-related issues. Once all work on the Review has been considered by Ministers we will publish a White Paper setting out our overall conclusions. I envisage that this White Paper will be published in the first part of next year.

Porton Down

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons the number of animal experiments at the chemical and biological defence establishment, Porton Down, has increased since 1993. [14306]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Chemical and Biological Defence Sector at Porton Down. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 25 November 1997:

I have been asked to respond to your question on animal experiments as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency which has responsibility for the Chemical and Biological Defence Sector at Porton Down.

In the years up to 1993 there has been, in general, a downward trend in the number of animal experiments conducted at CBD. However, the number of experiments conducted each year depends o the requirements of the MOD programme, and since 1993 there has been an increase in the numbers of animals used.

This increase does not represent any change in the policy of CBD which is committed to reducing animal experimentation wherever possible. The increase has resulted from the identification during the Gulf conflict of a heightened biological and chemical threat to UK forces, and the need to develop new and improved medical countermeasures to strengthen UK defence capabilities.

The majority of the results arising from this work will be published in the open literature.

UK Hydrographic Office

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what key targets have been set for the United Kingdom Hydrographic Office defence agency for 1997–98. [17934]

Mr. Spellar: The key targets set for the UK Hydrographic Office in 1997–98 are as follows:

1. To process and promulgate priority safety information within stated time scales from receipt of data.
2. To achieve 100 per cent. of the endorsed and funded Defence Programme to cost, quality and timeliness targets as defined in Tasking Authorisation Forms (TAFs).
3. To meet short-notice Defence operational requirements within agreed time scales.
4. To meet market requirements for products by maintaining availability levels for charts at 98 per cent. for civil customers and 100 per cent. for defence customers.
5. To break even taking one year with another.
6. To achieve an average Return on Capital Employed (ROCE) during the Plan period of 7.5 per cent.
7. To achieve efficiency savings of 13.5 per cent. of controllable costs (based on controllable costs for FY 1995–96) by 31 March 2001.

SCOTLAND

European Union

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is his policy on the establishment of direct Scottish representation to the European Union institutions; and if he will make a statement. [16986]

Mr. Dewar: The Government's policy on the establishment of a Scottish Executive representative office in Brussels is set out in Chapter 5.10 of the White Paper, "Scotland's Parliament".

Road Accident Reports

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information he has collated on the number of outstanding road accident reports requiring to be considered by each local authority in Scotland under section 39(3)(a) of the Road Traffic Act 1988, as at 1 November. [16487]

Mr. Dewar: This information is not collected centrally.

Health Expenditure

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate the total real level of his Department's planned expenditure on health in 1995–96 prices in (a) 1997–98 and (b) 1998–99; and what such figures were for (i) 1997–98 and (ii) 1998–99, following the November 1996 Budget on the basis of the estimates of the GDP deflator contained in that Budget. [17564]

Mr. Galbraith: The figures requested for expenditure on health within the Control Total are as follows: (a) £4,160.9 million, (b) 4,222.5 million, (i) 4,184.4 million and (ii) 4,194.6 million.

Substance Abuse

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many convictions there have been in each of the past five years for the common law offence of supplying volatile substances in the knowledge that they would be abused. [17288]

Mr. McLeish [holding answer 24 November 1997]: Over the period concerned no one has been recorded as having a charge proved where the "reckless supply of solvents" was the main offence. The table below provides information on the number of persons with a charge proved where the main offence was "reckless conduct" and "culpable and reckless conduct", which are common law offences under which the supply of volatile substances in the knowledge that they would be abused may also be charged. It is not known how many, if any, of these figures involved solvents.

Number of persons with a charge proved in Scottish courts where the main charge is "reckless conduct" or "culpable and reckless conduct", 1991–1995

1991 : 72
1992 : 104
1993 : 104
1994 : 100
1995 : 124.

Manslaughter

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what has been the average custodial sentence applied for manslaughter in Scotland in each year since 1990; and if he will make a statement. [17085]

Mr. McLeish: There is no offence of manslaughter in Scotland. The corresponding offence in Scotland is the common law offence of culpable homicide. The available information is given in the table.

Average sentence length where the main offence was the common law offence of culpable homicide, Scotland, 1990 to 1995

Year	Number of persons given non custodial sentences	Number of persons sentenced to custody	Average sentence length for those given determinate custodial sentences (months)	Number of persons given life sentences
1990	13	30	60.0	—
1991	13	29	90.7	1
1992	9	41	80.6	3
1993	8	39	68.7	—
1994	7	33	85.8	—
1995	5	37	69.4	2

WALES

Farm Incomes

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans the Government has to compensate farmers for the effects of currency fluctuations. [17047]

Mr. Win Griffiths: Paying the compensation aid for currency fluctuations would have significant implications for UK public expenditure. We are currently keeping the case for payment under review, but on the evidence currently available, have concluded that the case for payment is, at present, not proven.

Cattle Prices

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what action he proposes to take to address the recent reductions in cull cow prices. [17046]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The majority of cull cows go through the Over Thirty Months Scheme (OTMS). The Government will spend more than £300 million this year on OTMS compensation and disposal.

Compensation rates, and the scheme in general, are kept under review in the light of new scientific advice, market movements and costs.

Health Expenditure

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will estimate the total real level of his Department's planned expenditure on health in 1995–96 prices in (a) 1997–98 and (b) 1998–99; and what such figures were for (i) 1997–98 and (ii) 1998–99, following the November 1996 Budget on the basis of the estimates of the GDP deflator contained in that Budget. [17565]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The figures requested on spending plans for the NHS are as follows.

Current planned spending on the NHS total at 1995–96 prices on the basis of the current Treasury deflator for 1997–98 and 1998–99 is (a) £2,227 million and (b) £2,262 million.

Planned spending at November 1996 at 1995–96 prices and the deflator in use then was (i) £2,240 million for 1997–98 and (ii) £2,245 million for 1998–99.

Further Education

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the number of whole time equivalent students in (a) higher and (b) further education in 2000. [17307]

Mr. Hain: Targets for the number of student places to be funded through the Welsh Funding councils in 2000–01 will be set in the light of future resource decisions taken by the Department and the Welsh Assembly. Further places will be funded by students themselves and through Government initiatives such as the New Deal.

European Union

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his Department's policy on the establishment of direct Welsh representation to European Union institutions; and if he will make a statement. [16960]

Mr. Ron Davies: The Government's policy on the extent to which the Welsh Assembly would be represented in European Union institutions is set out in paragraphs 3.51, 3.52 and 3.53 of the White Paper "A Voice for Wales".

Secondary Schools

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list for each secondary school in Conwy County Borough the indication admission number as calculated using the more open enrolment capacity formula. [16643]

Mr. Hain: The information requested is in the following table.

School	Number on roll	More open enrolment number	Standard (approved) admission number	Comment
Ysgol John Bright, Llandudno	1,019	1,008	180	—
Ysgol Aberconwy, Conwy.	849	817	153	—
Ysgol Duffryn Conwy, Llanwrst	706	733	200	bi-lingual school
Ysgol Y Creuddyn, Llandudno	623	678	120	Welsh medium
Eirias High School GM, Colwyn Bay	1,326	1,300 (1,450 on completion of building works)	200	Six classrooms presently closed because of extensive building work. Physical capacity of school temporarily reduced
Emrys Ap Iwan GM School, Abergele	1,520	1,367	220	—
Ysgol Bryn Elian GM Colwyn Bay	867	907	161	—

1. Both the LEA Standard Admission Number and the Approved Admission Number (the equivalent for grant-maintained schools) are intended to ensure that schools admit up to the physical capacity of the school. Admission authorities may decide to admit above the number in any particular year.
2. More Open Enrolment Numbers provide an indication only of the capacity of the school.

Welfare-to-work Programme

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what arrangements have been made to involve the voluntary sector in the welfare-to-work programme in (a) Clwyd, South, (b) North Wales, (c) South Wales, (d) West Wales and (e) Wales; and if he will make a statement. [16502]

Mr. Hain: Within the Government's welfare-to-work programme, activity in Wales has concentrated on:-

1. New Deal for 18-24 year olds;
2. New Deal for lone parents;
3. Employment Zones

1. New Deal for 18–24 year olds

The voluntary sector has played an active role in the design and planning of the New Deal for 18-24 year olds in Wales.

Wales

The Wales New Deal Task Force includes six representatives from the voluntary sector amongst its membership. It has also established a working group specifically on the Voluntary Sector Option of the New Deal for 18-24 year olds and this has enabled a broad range of voluntary sector interests to be engaged in advising on New Deal policy design and delivery.

Representatives from voluntary sector organisations are involved in the strategic partnerships which are developing plans for the implementation of the New Deal in all of the Employment Service Districts in Wales. And events specifically targeted at the voluntary sector have been organised throughout Wales.

Clwyd South

Representatives from the two County Voluntary Councils covering the Clwyd, South constituency, the Association of Voluntary Organisations, Wrexham

(AVOW) and the Denbighshire Voluntary Services Council, are members of the New Deal strategic partnerships.

North Wales

Six local New Deal events have been held, involving 58 voluntary sector organisations, in the Employment Service Districts of North West Wales, North Wales Coast and North East Wales.

South Wales

Eleven local New Deal events have been held, involving 60 voluntary sector organisations, in the Employment Service Districts of Newport, Monmouth and Torfaen, Cardiff and the Vale, Heads of the Valleys and Caerphilly, and Bridgend and the Glamorgan Valleys.

West Wales

Seven local New Deal events have been held, involving 41 voluntary sector organisations, in the Pathfinder area of South West Wales and in Ceredigion, which forms part of the Mid Wales Employment Service District.

2. New Deal for lone parents

This is being piloted in South Wales (in the Employment Service District of Cardiff and Vale). Seven voluntary sector organisations participated in the launch of the New Deal for lone parents. The Employment Service is maintaining contact with 20 voluntary sector organisations as the New Deal for lone parents is developed.

3. Employment Zones

There is a bid to run a proto-type Employment Zone in North West Wales (covering the Employment Service Districts of North West Wales and the North Wales Coast). 31 voluntary sector organisations were consulted in the production of the bid and 3 voluntary sector organisations are members of the Employment Zone Partnership.

Student Funding

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the yearly level of university funding per student in Wales relative to England, Scotland and Northern Ireland between the financial years 1994–95 and 1998–99. [16931]

Mr. Hain : The information requested is as follows:

Financial years	Wales[1]	England[1]	Northern Ireland £
1994–95	4,984	4,973	5,471
1995–96	4,825	4,976	5,178
1996–97	4,854	4,803	5,002
1997–98	4,699	4,858	4,899

[1]Including dual support transfer to the Office of Science and Technology.

We do not have detailed figures for Scotland. According to the Garrick Report, public expenditure on teaching per full-time and sandwich HE student per year in higher education institutions is approximately 10 per cent. higher in Scotland than in England.

For all countries concerned, the level of funding per student in 1998–99 will depend upon the allocation for higher education within the various Departments' expenditure plans for next year which will be announced in the coming months.

Welsh Assembly

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if the Welsh Assembly will have a cabinet or a committee structure; and if he will make a statement. [17522]

Mr. Ron Davies: Subject to the provisions of the Government of Wales Bill, the Assembly's internal organisation will be a matter for its standing orders. The White Paper made clear that the Assembly will have both subject committees and an executive committee, but the roles of the executive committee, the Assembly leader, subject committees, and subject committee leaders will be a matter for standing orders. I will be appointing Commissioners to prepare the Assembly's first standing orders but the Assembly will be free subsequently to amend these; in so doing, and subject to the requirements of the Government of Wales Bill, it will be free to adopt such forms of internal organisation as it considers appropriate.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many individuals or organisations, corporate or otherwise, he and his Ministers have met in their official capacities since 2 May who have or had donated £5,000 or more to the Labour Party in the last two years; and if he will list them. [17730]

Mr. Ron Davies: The Labour Party's policy on disclosure is to declare the identity of any individual or organisation which, in the course of any one calendar year, makes donations in the aggregate in excess of £5,000. Donations made during 1997 will be declared in 1998. Therefore, the following information refers to qualifying donors in 1995 and 1996.

I have had meetings with representatives of Unison, the GMB and the TGWU; the Under-Secretary, my hon. Friend the Member for Neath (Mr. Hain) has had meetings with representatives of Unison and the CWU and the Under-Secretary, my hon. Friend the Member for Bridgend (Mr. Griffiths) has had meetings with representatives of Unison.

My hon. Friends and I have met my hon. Friend the Paymaster General routinely in meetings of Cabinet Committees.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

EU Research Council

Mr. Timms: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the outcome of the European Union Research Council on 10 November 1997. [18056]

Mr. Battle: I represented the UK at the meeting of the EU Research Council on 10 November 1997.

The meeting made useful progress in resolving outstanding issues in the negotiations on the Fifth Framework Programme for Research and Technological Development. Agreement has now been reached on most issues of scientific and technological content.

The Council agreed conclusions on the management of FP5 which I warmly welcome. Besides outlining the role and functions of programme management committees through which Member States oversee the implementation fo the programme, the conclusions provide for the establishment of advisory groups users of research who will advise on the detailed content of the programme and monitor it strategically as it progresses. It has been a high UK priority to involve users in order to improve the targeting and responsiveness of the programme. The conclusions also welcome the Commission's intention to set time targets for the various steps in the management process, notably proposed evaluation, contract negotiations and payments, which should provide a valuable stimulus to more efficient and streamlined administration.

The Council discussed the question of programme structure. A large number of Member States favour five thematic programmes, on lines proposed by the UK, but consensus on this issue has yet to emerge.

The Council considered the five options for pursuing nuclear fusion research in FP5 put forward by the Netherlands Presidency at the Council's last meeting on 15 May. Broad support emerged for further consideration to be based on the third of these options, under which EU research effort retains the goal of eventual development of a fusion reactor, with a view to the Council reaching a decision on the Commission's proposals at its next meeting in February.

The Council gave final formal agreement to the proposal to increase funding for the Fourth Framework Programme by 115 mecu.

In responding to a presentation by the chair of Eureka (Portugal) on recent progress, I made clear the importance of coordination between European organisations involved in research and drew particular attention to the importance of links between the Community and the European Space Agency.

Foreshadowing the UK presidency, which will begin in January, I urged the Council to make the strongest efforts possible to reach a common position on the Framework decision at its next meeting on 12 February 1998 under my chairmanship. I made clear that the overriding task for the UK presidency in the research area is to make the maximum progress possible with the FP5 negotiations and keep the tight timetable for introducing it on track.

Renewable Energy

Ms Keeble: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the outline arrangements for the fifth round of bidding for electricity from renewable sources of energy. [18055]

Mr. Battle: Following consultation earlier this year with the renewable energy trade bodies, and, through the Renewables Working Group, the Office of Electricity Regulation (OFFER) and the Regional Electricity Companies (RECs), I can now announce my outline policy proposals for the fifth Non-Fossil Fuel Obligation for renewables in England and Wales, NFFO-5.

Government policy is to secure additional generating capacity from renewables in order to help them enter the commercial generating market. I am currently carrying out a review of what would be necessary and practicable to achieve 10 per cent. of the UK's electricity needs from renewables by the year 2010. NFFO-5 will therefore become the first step in our new and strong drive for renewables and I expect NFFO-5 will contribute substantially to reducing greenhouse gases and encouraging internationally competitive industries.

I have considered the representations made to my Department on the proposed fifth Order, NFFO-5. Renewable Energy Bulletin No. 7 summarises the submissions which have been made. In the light of these representations, I propose to make a fifth renewables Order (NFFO-5) in the late 1998 in respect of the 12 RECs in England and Wales in their capacity as Public Electricity Supply Licencees. I understand that the RECs expect to initiate the competitive tendering process for NFFO-5 shortly.

For the NFFO-5 Order, I am considering separate bands for new generating capacity from:

Landfill Gas from existing licensed sites where tipping was being carried out prior to 25 November 1997;

Municipal and Industrial Waste, including the use of non-gaseous sewage matter (up to 10 per cent. on a dry-weight basis);

Municipal and Industrial Waste using combined heat and power (CHP), including the use of non-gaseous sewage matter (up to 10 per cent. on a dry-weight basis);

Small Scale Hydro from stations with a total capacity of less than 5 MW DNC;

On-shore Wind Energy, which may be split into separate bands for:

(a) small-clusters/single-machines, with the split-point at 1.0 MW DNC or less, and,

(b) other windfarms not included above.

In setting the size of the Order I will take into account the cost and quality of the proposals received. This new competition is expected to stimulate further reductions in the electricity prices contracted under NFFO but I do not expect such a rapid rate of fall in prices as has happened to date. However, I may decide to omit a band if the cost or quality of proposals received does not justify its inclusion.

I expect projects to demonstrate high standards of environmental performance. This will require developers to consult widely on their project proposals so that their projects meet the concerns of the community likely to be affected.

For example, I expect energy from waste projects to encourage an integrated approach to waste management and so demonstrate that they provide environmental benefits beyond those available from alternative methods of waste management. Award of a NFFO contract does not confer any special privilege in the planning approval process which must be carried out in the normal way.

In order to promote diversity among developers of renewable energy projects, I reserve the right to limit the number of projects or the total capacity for which any particular developer can gain contracts in this round of bidding or limit the capacity of individual projects or adopt a combination of these measures.

My intention is that the Order should run for 15–20 years. This would enable the RECs to offer generators contracts for premium payments for up to 15 years. The difference between the NFFO contract price and the pool price is financed through the Fossil Fuel Levy paid by licensed electricity suppliers and reflected in electricity bills. I understand that the RECs expect to select projects through a competitive tendering process and that contracts will be offered to successful bidders at their bid price.

I have discussed prospective arrangements with the Director General of Electricity Supply and the RECs, to whom I am providing further guidance about my proposals in respect of the proposed NFFO-5 Order. The details of that further guidance will be published in 'Renewable Energy Bulletin No. 7' (REB-7).

Those project developers who have not already put their name on the mailing list for REB-7 should contact:

Renewable Energy Enquiries Bureau,
ETSU, Harwell,
Oxfordshire OX11 ORA
(tel: 01235 432450 or 433601, fax: 01235 433066).

In addition those project developers who have already done so should also register their interest in NFFO-5, by letter or fax, to:

Non-Fossil Purchasing Agency Ltd.
4th Floor, Block D, Portland House,
New Bridge Street,
Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 8AN
(fax: 0191 210 2888).

Generators with existing NFFO contracts need not register with the Non-Fossil Fuel Purchasing Agency (NFPA), as they will automatically be sent a copy of the Information Notes which explain the tender process.

OFFER has considered what site-specific evidence of the extent of the renewable energy resource it will require from developers when making their technical submissions for NFFO-5. It is understood that OFFER has decided that:

developers of landfill gas projects will be required to submit data from on-site pumping trials over a period of not less than 30 days of continual measurement;

developers of waste-fired projects will be required to submit data about the real and timely availability of waste, and where contracts for the fuel supply have not been agreed should provide information about the timing of any tender process, together with confirmation that the applicant will be eligible to take part in that tender process;

developers of waste-fired combined heat and power projects will be required, in addition to the foregoing, to submit data on conditional contracts to supply heat (such contracts to be conditional upon their projects being awarded NFFO contracts and going forward to commissioning);

developers of hydro projects will be required to submit data concerning site hydro capacity based on:

(i) the mean flow data for the water course covering a period of at least 15 years, available from the Institute of Hydrology; or

(ii) 15-years rainfall data from a given catchment area, making due allowance for absorption, runoff and evaporation rates, to calculate the river flow at the off-take point for the generating station; or

(iii) on-site data over a period of two years, normalised to the mean average rainfall over a period of at least ten years;

developers of wind energy projects will be required to submit data on site wind resource over a minimum period of 12 months, which must include at least 13 weeks continual measurement on site which shall include measurements made over a winter period.

The Government are currently reviewing their policy for new and renewable sources of energy. From work undertaken so far, it seems that the achievement of 10 per cent. of the UK's electricity from renewables by 2010 would almost certainly require bringing forward technologies in addition to those proposed to be supported under NFFO-5, including offshore wind energy and energy crops. Whilst I cannot anticipate the outcome of the renewables review, I expect to announce the outcome next year.

Coal Mining Museum

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress has been made on resolving the minewater problems that have threatened the National Coal Mining Museum for England. [18057]

Mr. Battle: My hon. Friend will be aware that there has been widespread concern about the future of the Museum. I have made clear that I share that concern, and that I wish to do all I could to resolve the Museum's problems. I am pleased to say that agreement has now been reached between all those concerned on a programme of work that should, if successful, secure the Museum's underground section from the risk of flooding, and allow it to reopen in the coming months.

Parliamentary Question

Mr. Prior: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when she expects to answer the question from the hon. Member for North Norfolk of 6 November relating to electricity production from coal. [17728]

Mr. Battle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 November 1997, Official Report, column 345.

Single Market

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade pursuant to the oral statement of 27 October 1997, Official Report, column 587, relating to completion of the Single European Market, what matters still require legislation; and what representations, and from whom, have been made in respect of each. [17436]

Mrs. Beckett: Legislation is required in particular on gas liberalisation, road and rail passenger transport, measuring instruments, and on certain aspects of electronic commerce. We also wish to see simplification of existing legislation. There are, of course, other non-legislative priorities for work in the area of the Single Market.

On all of these items, representations have been made by relevant trade and business associations.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Cotter: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many contracts have been awarded under the private finance initiative in her Department; and if she will list (a) the names of the successful bidders, (b) the time limits and cost of the contract and (c) the criteria used to award the contract. [16530]

Mrs. Beckett: One contact has been awarded under the Private Finance Initiative within my Department's area of responsibility. In January 1997, the Coal Authority awarded an £11 million eight year contact with Cap Gemini to design, build and operate a computer system for providing mining information. The successful bidder's tender was assessed as being economically the most advantageous taking into account technical ability, quality and technical assistance.

Export Credits

Mr. Flynn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the proportions of ECGD money spent on promoting and underwriting the sales of British (a) high tech products, (b) pharmaceuticals and (c) defence and defence-related products. [15979]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: Since the privatisation of its short-term operation in 1991, direct ECGD support for new export business has been confined to the capital goods and projects field. Such business is generally "high tech" in nature.

From information readily available, ECGD has no record of having supported exports of pharmaceuticals since the short-term privatisation.

The proportion of new ECGD business which related to defence or defence-related products in each of the last three years was 21 per cent. in 1994–95, 23 per cent. in 1995–96, and 16 per cent. in 1996–97.

Monitor Consultancy

Mr. MacShane: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will list (a) the nature and value of contracts her Department has entered into and (b) discussions ministers or officials have held with the Monitor Consultancy since 1990. [14953]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 7 November 1997]: No external consultancy contracts have been let centrally to Monitor Consultancy and, as far as the Department is aware, no discussions have been held.

Information on contracts and discussions not related to external consultancy could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The above information does not include contracts let by the Department's Executive Agencies, and I have asked the Chief Executives to reply separately to this question.

Letter from P. R. S. Hartnack to Mr. Denis MacShane, dated 25 November 1997:

I have been asked to reply on behalf of the Patent Office to your question to the President of the Board of Trade about the Monitor Consultancy. The Patent Office has let no contracts to this organisation since 1990 and to the best of my knowledge no member of the Patent staff has had official contact with it.

Letter from John Holden to Mr. Denis MacShane, dated 24 November 1997:

I have been asked to reply to your question to the President of the Board of Trade concerning the Monitor Consultancy and comment as follows:

(a) Companies House has not entered into any contracts with the Monitor Consultancy since 1990.

(b) No discussions have been held with the Monitor Consultancy since 1990.

Letter from Seton Bennett to Mr Denis MacShane, dated 24 November 1997:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply on behalf of the National Weights and Measures Laboratory to your question about the Monitor Consultancy. This Agency has had no contact with Monitor in the period since 1990.

Letter from Ian Jones to Mr. Denis MacShane, dated 7 November 1997:

You tabled a Parliamentary Question to the President of the Board of Trade, for named day reply on 7 November, about contacts between her Department and the Monitor Consultancy. I have been asked to reply in respect of the Employment Tribunals Service.

The Employment Tribunals Service became an executive agency of the DTI on 1 April 1997. It has not entered into any contracts or discussions with the Monitor Consultancy, nor am I aware of any contacts prior to our establishment as an agency.

Letter from Peter Joyce to Mr. Denis MacShane, dated 24 November 1997:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply to your question about contracts entered into or discussions held by The Insolvency Service with the Monitor Consultancy since 1990.

The Service has not entered into any contract with the Monitor Consultancy since it became an executive agency in March 1990 and has no record of any discussions held with that firm.

Letter from Jim Norton to Mr. Denis MacShane dated 24 November 1997:

You have put down a Parliamentary Question to the President of the Board of Trade asking for information on Monitor Consultancy. As this is a day-to-day matter, I am replying as the Chief Executive of the Radiocommunications Agency.

This Agency has had no contracts, dealings or discussions with Monitor Consultancy since we were set up in April 1990.

Export Licences

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the average time taken for dealing with export licence applications. [16356]

Mr. Prior: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how long, on average, it takes to obtain an export licence. [16526]

Mrs. Roche: The Department's Export Control Organisation (ECO) does not calculate the average length of time it takes for an export licence application to be processed. Licence applications are considered individually, there is no such thing as an average application.

The ECO has published targets for the processing of standard individual export licence applications. These are contained in the Code of Practice for enforcement available from the ECO. The targets apply where full information is provided with the application and are:

10 working days where the application is not circulated to other government departments for advice

20 working days where the application is circulated to other government departments for advice.

These targets do not apply to UN Sanctions cases or to applications involving Iran.

No targets are set for the processing of open individual export licence applications, which can involve complex combinations of goods and countries.

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are her Department's guidelines on the length of time export licences should take to process; and what proportion of export licences are currently dealt with within that time. [16352]

Mrs. Roche: The Department's Export Control Organisation (ECO) has published targets for the processing of standard individual export licence applications. These are contained in the Code of Practice for enforcement available from the ECO. The targets apply where full information is provided with the application and are:-

10 working days where the application is not circulated to other government departments for advice.

20 working days where the application is circulated to other government departments for advice.

These targets do not apply to UN Sanctions cases or to applications involving Iran.

No targets are set for the processing of open individual export licence applications, which can involve complex combinations of goods and countries.

For the last four week period on which statistics have been computed (22 September to 17 October 1997) these targets have been met in 71 per cent. of non-circulated cases and 48 per cent. of circulated cases.

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what advice her Department gives to exporters on the length of time taken to process export licences. [16353]

Mrs. Roche: The Department's Export Control Organisation (ECO) has published targets for the processing of standard individual export licence applications. These are available in the Code of Practice for enforcement available from the ECO. These targets apply where full information is provided with the application and are:-

10 working days where the application is not circulated to other government departments for advice.

20 working days where the application is circulated to other government departments for advice.

These targets do not apply to UN Sanctions cases or to applications involving Iran.

No targets are set for the processing of open individual export licence applications.

The ECO is in touch with Trade Associations and major exporters from time to time about current performance levels in respect of these targets. It also provides an exporters' Helpline.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when she expects the backlog of export licences to be cleared. [16351]

Mrs. Roche: The Export Control Organisation (ECO) wrote to Trade Associations in June 1997 warning them that delays in export licensing were possible while the Review of Criteria, announced by the Foreign Secretary in May 1997, was in progress. This Review was completed on 28 July 1997, since when the new criteria have been applied to export licence applications. I expect licence processing times to improve in future.

There will always be a certain amount of "work in progress" in the processing of export licences, but my Department fully understands the need for the prompt handling of licence applications for strategic goods and is committed to this, subject to the need for all applications to be considered fully and carefully.

Ministerial Interests

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will list those (a) companies and (b) industries which in order to avoid an actual or apparent conflict of interst, are not handled by each Minister in her Department. [17068]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 21 November 1997]: Ministers in this Government will continue to make public statements about their involvement in specific cases where it is valuable for the conduct of the case to do so; it is not always possible to predict where conflicts of interest will arise. This approach, which reflects that of the previous administration, seems to the Government to satisfy the public interest.

It has been announced that the Minister for Competition and Consumer Affairs has stood aside from consideration of the Monopolies and Mergers Commission's report on the travel trade and, because of his late father's shareholding, consideration of the MMC's report on P&O/Stena and from papers relating to the European Commission's investigation under the European Community Merger Regulation of the proposed acquisition by Dupont of certain ICI businesses. I did not handle DTI consideration of the recent Rolls-Royce launch aid case to avoid any conflict with my constituency interest.

Coal Industry

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate she has made of the number of pits which will close in the British coal industry over the next year. [17069]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 21 November 1997]: Any estimates of coal production and coal burn are resultant from the information submitted to the Department by the private mining companies and private energy generators. It is, of course, in the hands of private sector coal operators to take decisions on the future commercial operation of individual coal mines.

Inward Investment

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade where the responsibility for the final decision about the level of grants offered to a potential inward investor lies when sites in more than one part of the United Kingdom are being considered. [17063]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 21 November 1997]: Decisions on the level of Regional Selective Assistance (RSA) grant to be offered to a potential inward investor are taken once a single site in the UK has been chosen. Responsibility for final decisions rests with me, as the President of the Board of Trade, if the site is in England, with the Secretary of State for Scotland if the site is in Scotland, and with the Secretary of State for Wales if the site is in Wales. The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland is responsible for the final decision on the level of Selective Financial Assistance to be offered to a potential inward investor if the site is in Northern Ireland.

Rolls-Royce

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what factors underlay her decision to invest in Rolls-Royce's new range of Trent engines; what steps had been taken by the company to secure this investment from the private sector; and if she will make a statement. [17375]

Mr. Battle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the House on 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 626.

The President of the Board of Trade did not handle the case for the DTI in order to avoid any potential conflict with her constituency interest. The case was handled for the DTI by me.

Laser Pens

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will estimate the number of laser pens with beams greater than one milliwatt currently in circulation in the United Kingdom. [15921]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: We cannot estimate the number of laser pens with beams greater than one milliwatt in circulation. However, following my announcement on 28 October about dangerous laser pens, Trading Standards Departments have been tracing sources of supply of laser pens and have suspended the sale of considerable quantities of these products which were intended for supply to the general public. These inspections are continuing.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what research her Department has evaluated into the potential hazards of laser pens with beams of less than one milliwatt. [15919]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: My Department has considered the recent report by Heriott-Watt University on the optical safety of laser pointers and has had discussions with the National Radiological Protection Board regarding the safety of these devices in the hands of the general consumer. We are not aware of any evidence that laser pens up to one milliwatt are directly harmful to health.

EU Patent Directive

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the impact of the EU Patent Directive on developing countries' (a) attempts to conserve genetic resources and (b) farmers' rights; and if she will make a statement. [17806]

Mr. Battle: The Commission's proposal for a Directive on legal protection of biotechnological inventions seeks to harmonise certain aspects of the national patent laws of the Member States. It is an Internal Market measure and seeks to eliminate current uncertainties as to what can attract patent rights in the biotechnological field, which may be acting as a deterrent to investment in the industry in Europe. Since the proposal concerns only the EU Member States' laws, and patent rights are valid only on a national basis, there is no direct read across for countries outside the Community. Other countries, including those of the developing world, remain free to determine their own national patent regimes, and to deal with conservation of genetic resources and the position of farmers as they see fit.

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment she has made of the impact of the EU Patent Directive on competitiveness within the EU Single Market; and if she will make a statement. [17805]

Mr. Battle: The purpose of the proposed Directive is to establish a clear legal framework for the protection of biotechnological inventions through national patent law. Although the texts of Member States' patent laws are currently closely aligned with that of the European Patent Convention (an international governmental agreement dating from 1978), there have been differences in interpretation between Member states. Although no assessment has been made as to the direct effect this proposed Directive may have on enhancing competitiveness, the clarification arising from it will reduce current uncertainty in this area of law and its possible deterrent to investment in this industry.

HEALTH

Lariam

Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the Committee on Safety of Medicines to approve the recent recommendations of the Malaria Advisory Committee to restrict the use of Mefloquine (Lariam) by travellers. [15451]

Ms Jowell: The Committee on Safety of Medicines has no jurisdiction over the recommendations of the Malaria Advisory Committee but has reviewed these to determine whether they have any implications for the Marketing Authorisation and product information for Lariam.

In order to ensure that doctors are aware of the published guidelines, the product information advises doctors to refer to them.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, of 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 441, if he will list the e-mail addresses of

(a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which he is responsible. [15871]

Ms Jowell [holding answer 13 November 1997]: The Department of Health Internet web site contains e-mail addresses for contact and feedback on various subjects and projects, e.g. Open Government, and the Review of the Central Council for Education and Training in Social Work.

Apart from the National Health Service Pensions Agency, the agencies for which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is responsible, NHS Estates, Medical Devices Agency and Medicines Control Agency, all have Internet Web sites containing either contact e-mail addresses or telephone numbers.

Although none of the contact e-mail addresses currently reaches individual Ministers, senior officials or chief executives, the Department is giving active consideration to a central initiative on the handling of external electronic communications, including the electronic equivalent of paper correspondence to Ministers and named officials.

Varicose Veins

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the percentage of the adult population suffering from varicose veins; and if he will make a statement. 16336]

Mr. Boateng: Information on the prevalence of varicose veins in the population is not available. The information in the table shows the number of completed episodes in 1994–95, the latest year for which information is available, in which an operation was carried out on varicose vein of the leg. Many people with varicose veins are treated without the need for surgery or any other invasive procedure.

Ordinary admissions and day cases: completed episodes with an operation or procedure performed on varicose veins: NHS hospitals in England 1994–95

Operation	Age at start of episode
	18 and over	Not known	Under 18
L85.1 Litigation of long saphenous vein	36,857	6	70
L86.1 Injection of sclerosing substance into varicose vein of leg	2,435	1	5
L87.1 Stripping of long saphenous vein	15,211	1	24
L87.4 Avulsion of varicose vein of leg	46,233	7	119

Diet and Cancer

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what account was taken of the degree of consensus amongst members of the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy in respect of recommendations on levels of meat consumption in determining when to make his announcement on meat consumption; [16564]

(2) when the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy expert group agreed its recommendations relating to levels of meat consumption; [16562]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the version of the COMA report which he ordered to be pulped, together with a copy of the final report when published; [16566]

(4) if he will make public the areas of difference between the final report on cancer by the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy and its predecessor version; [16574]

(5) if he will make a statement on the circumstances which caused the report by the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy on the development of cancer to be printed and then pulped; what was the cost to public funds; for what reasons his Department made a press statement about meat consumption on 24 September; and when he expects the final report to be published; [16565]

(6) what reasons he announced his recommendations on meat consumption ahead of the publication of the findings of the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy's report on cancer. [16563]

Ms Jowell: In 1993 the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy (COMA) set up a Working Group on Diet and Cancer. The Working Group's report was submitted to COMA's main committee meeting on 29 April. It was accepted by COMA subsequent to the quantification of figures relating to the consumption of red meat and further clearance by COMA members.

On 19 September the Chief Medical Officer and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health were told that some members felt that they had not had adequate opportunity to discuss the final recommendation on the consumption of red and processed meat. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health therefore ordered that the report should not be published.

A COMA meeting was immediately convened by the Chief Medical Officer on 24 September. On 25 September, with the agreement of my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health issued a press release based on the advice on the recommended intake of red and processed meat which COMA had agreed at its meeting on 24 September.

Since then further amendments have been agreed by COMA and the Working Group. The Report now commands the support of all members of COMA and will be published shortly.

The detailed workings of COMA and its expert groups, including the development of the various drafts of the reports it produces, is a matter for the committee. As with all COMA reports, published copies are placed in the Library and we have no intention of departing from this procedure.

The cost of reprinting the report in its revised form is £10,000.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health's object throughout the whole of this incident has been to ensure that reports issued by COMA continue to command the full support of its members and the respect of the scientific community.

Medical Negligence Claims

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to ensure that his proposals for legal aid reform will not prevent patients pursuing medical negligence claims. [16633]

Mr. Milburn: When my noble Friend the Lord Chancellor announced the Government's proposals for the reform of the legal aid system in October, he made it clear that he intends to consult widely before any changes are implemented. The position of the patients pursuing claims for medical negligence will be considered as part of this consultation.

Health Care (Rural Areas)

Mr. Prior: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proposals he has to make health care more accessible in rural areas. [16531]

Mr. Milburn: The Government are committed to improving quality and fairness in National Health Service care, replacing the internal market and ensuring that a greater proportion of every pound spent goes on patient services not bureaucracy. This applies equally to rural areas as it does to other parts of the country.

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will exempt international yacht racing from the ban on tobacco advertising and sponsorship. [16930]

Ms Jowell: We have always said that the Government want to reduce the exposure of children and young people to tobacco advertising. That is why we gave a manifesto commitment to ban tobacco advertising as part of a fully developed tobacco control strategy. Our aim is to remove tobacco advertising from sports events without damaging the events themselves, and sports like international yacht racing will need time to find other sponsors.

Discussions are under way within Government on how best to achieve this and my hon. Friend the Minister for Sport is consulting the sports concerned. Plans include a transitional period.

Community Care (Direct Payments) Act 1996

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the implementation of the Community Care (Direct Payments) Act 1996 by local authorities. [17538]

Mr. Boateng: The Act came into force on 1 April 1997. We will be conducting a review after the first year of its operation.

Breast Screening

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will provide a breakdown by age of breast screening examinations undertaken over the past three years. [17370]

Mr. Milburn: The information requested is available for 1994–95 and 1995–96 only and is shown in the table.

Thousands

		Age groups
Year	Total number of women screened	45–49	50–54	55–59	60–64	65+
1994–95	1,040.7	32.3	351.4	332.8	292.1	32.1
1995–96	1,060.0	33.8	372.2	330.8	273.4	49.8

Source:
KC62. Statistics Division SD2B.

NHS Trusts (Age Discrimination)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice his Department gives to health authorities and National Health Service trusts on age discrimination; and if he will make a statement. [17371]

Mr. Boateng: Our commitment to promoting a fair and equitable health service is set out in 1998–99 Priorities and Planning Guidance for the National Health Service. Whatever the age of the patient, there are no exceptions to the fundamental principle that the NHS is there to provide service for everyone on the basis of clinical need.

NHS Trusts (Shropshire)

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he invites Shropshire County Council to submit names for membership of NHS trust boards. [17807]

Mr. Milburn: A letter was sent to Shropshire County Council on 26 June inviting nominations for trust board vacancies in 1997. The council subsequently submitted eight nominations on 3 July. A further letter was sent to the council on 18 November inviting nominations for trust and health authority boards in 1998. We are now awaiting a reply.

Stabilisation Force

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are made to deal with the NHS waiting lists of consultant-level surgeons and physicians in the United Kingdom while they are serving with SFOR. [16227]

Mr. Milburn: Consultant surgeons and physicians serving with the Stabilisation Force (SFOR) are called up from Service hospitals and from Ministry of Defence Hospital Units at National Health Service trusts. It is for the hospitals concerned to take appropriate action to manage the waiting times of any NHS patients affected by the deployment of consultants overseas.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what monitoring his Department undertakes of the waiting times for hospital operations for (a) under 65-year-old patients and (b) those over 65 years. [17372]

Mr. Milburn: Information on numbers of patients who have been admitted to hospital, analysed by age group, is contained in "Hospital Episode Statistics". This is published annually and copies are available in the Library. The source data can be further analysed to provide information about waiting times by age group.

Hepatitis A Immunisation

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to evaluate the risks from gamma globulin used in the preparation of Hepatitis A passive immunisation. [17232]

Ms Jowell: The marketing authorisation (the licensing) of all medicines throughout the European Union is governed by the Rules Governing Medicinal Products in the European Union, in particular, Council Directive 65/65/EEC.

All licensed normal intra-muscular immunoglobulin (used for passive immunisation for Hepatitis A) has been fully evaluated for quality, safety and efficacy. These products have not been associated with the transmission of any infection.

Winter Emergencies

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the total payments for winter emergencies to each local authority and each health district in London; and what (a) conditions and (b) monitoring requirements are attached to such payments. [17373]

Mr. Milburn: The allocation of additional resources to health authorities in London is set out in the table. The table also shows how much each of the London HAs will be transferring to its local authority social services departments.

London HAs	Additional resources allocated to each HA £000	Amount of HA allocation for social services initiatives £000
Barnet	1,057	367
Barking and Havering	1,092	808
Brent and Harrow	1,419	340
Camden and Islington	1,429	171
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow	2,919	1,080
East London and The City	3,563	1,603
Enfield and Haringey	1,431	286
Hillingdon	1,100	396
Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster	690	282
Redbridge and Waltham Forest	2,121	890
Bexley and Greenwich	1,097	347
Bromley	650	52
Croydon	969	324
Kingston and Richmond	988	195
Lambeth, Southwark and Lewisham[1]	3,980	828
Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth	2,332	528

Information correct as at 24 November 1997.
[1] Includes an extra £300,000 allocated to London Ambulance Services to be administered by the HA.

The allocations were made to health authorities and trusts to manage additional winter emergency service pressures and are directed towards specific schemes which should prove of lasting benefit. Considerable investment has been targeted at developments in primary and community health services, and social services, which help care for people at home or expedite their discharge from hospital when it is appropriate.

Both North and South Thames Regional Offices will monitor progress on all schemes via their regular contact with health authorities and trusts.

Blood

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if Professor Bellingham has begun work as interim lead clinician to the Mersey and North Wales Blood Centre. [15582]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Professor Bellingham began his work shortly after his appointment in September as Transition Director of the Liverpool Blood Centre.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Specialist Advisory Committees

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food on which occasions and for what reasons his Department has disagreed with scientific advice given by specialist advisory committees in the last five years. [17756]

Dr. John Cunningham: I have not disagreed with any of the scientific advice which I have received from my specialist advisory committees since this Government came into office on 1 May 1997.

Raw Cows' Milk

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will publish the full details of the data considered by the Advisory Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Food in coming to its conclusions that (a) the sale for drinking of raw cows' milk should be banned and (b) its continued use in the production of cheese should be permitted. [17755]

Dr. John Cunningham: The ACMSF considered the safety of raw cows' milk in its Report on Verocytotoxin-Producing Escherichia coli (VTEC) which was published in 1995.

More recently, the ACMSF saw data from the 1995–96 Government-funded Surveillance of the Microbiological Safety of Raw Cows' Milk on Retail Sale. A full report on this project is currently being prepared and will be published in the joint Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food/Department of Health Microbiological Food Safety Surveillance series.

The Committee also saw data from a Public Health Laboratory Service Study of the Microbiological Quality of Retail Raw (Greentop) Cows' Milk. Publication of these results is a matter for the PHLS.

The ACMSF has not recommended the continued use of raw cows' milk in the production of cheese. Rather, the Committee has recommended research and surveillance into the prevalence of O157 VTEC in a range of raw food products, including raw milk cheeses. This is under way.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what (a) meetings with individuals, organisations and delegations and (b) parliamentary business he has planned for 26 November. [17757]

Dr. John Cunningham: In addition to Parliamentary business, I will be attending a Cabinet Committee (PX) and will be undertaking a number of meetings with officials.

Food Standards

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the factors that would be involved in determining (a) national minimum standards of food composition and (b) maximum levels of sugar and fat. [17581]

Dr. John Cunningham: We have no plans to introduce new statutory national minimum standards of food composition or maximum levels for sugar and fat in foods and therefore have not considered the factors that might be involved in determining such measures.

EU Committees

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will publish a list of all EU committees which his officials attend on a regular basis. [16347]

Dr. John Cunningham: My officials regularly attend a range of management committees considering draft Commission legislation governing the management of the Common Agricultural and Fisheries Policies. Other regular meetings chaired by the Commission include:

Standard Committee on Animal Nutrition

Standing Committee on Foodstuffs

Standing Committee Organic Farming Legislation

Standing Veterinary Committees

Committee on Agricultural Structures and Rural Development (STAR)

Committee for Veterinary Medical Products

Spirit Drinks Implementation Committee

Aromatised Wine Implementation Committee

In addition, my officials attend the Special Committee on Agriculture and Council Working Groups examining proposed Council Legislation.

Cattle Passports

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his estimate of the number of cattle passports which will be issued by his Ministry once its cattle passport scheme is fully established. [16975]

Dr. John Cunningham: The cattle passport scheme is fully established. More than 3.6 million passports have been issued in Great Britain since the scheme was introduced in the Summer of 1996.

Animal Slaughter (Religious Methods)

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many animals are slaughtered each year in abattoirs exclusively devoted to Jewish and Muslim methods. [17809]

Mr. Rooker: Information is not held on those abattoirs adopting religious methods of slaughter and the number of animals killed by those methods.

Dairy Cattle

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his estimate of the number of Friesian and Holstein Friesian cows in dairy herds on United Kingdom farms. [17810]

Mr. Rooker: 2.2 million

Gene-manipulated Foods

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to implement controls on gene-manipulated foods. [17023]

Mr. Rooker: The EC novel foods and novel food ingredients regulation 258/97, which came into force on 15 May, established an EU wide pre-market approval system for novel foods and novel food ingredients, including those containing or produced from genetically modified organisms (GMOs). All applications for approval of novel foods under the regulation will be considered in the UK by the independent Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes and its advice published.

Food Labelling

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the obstacles to clear labelling of foods to enable customers to choose between foods that are genetically altered and those that are not. [17027]

Mr. Rooker: Since I issued a press release on 7 June calling for all foods which may contain genetically modified (GM) material to be labelled clearly, considerable progress has been made. On 25 July, the European Commission announced its intention to ensure coherent labelling of GM products throughout the food chain and a Commission regulation requiring the labelling of GM soya and maize came into effect on 1 November. Detailed rules on the implementation of this regulation are expected to be agreed shortly.

Cattle Consumption

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will lift the ban on the consumption of cattle aged over 30 months. [17048]

Mr. Rooker: No. This measure was introduced by the previous Government on the basis of SEAC advice that meat from animals over 30 months of age should be deboned under official supervision. There were practical difficulties in implementing this advice and a ban was introduced instead. Nothing we have learned about the links between BSE and CJD in the past year suggests that that action was in any way inappropriate.

Milk Quotas

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will review his Department's policy in respect of allowing dairy farmers to (a) lease and (b) sell their milk quotas. [17045]

Mr. Rooker: The Government have no plans at present to review their policy on the lease and sale of milk quotas by dairy farmers. The rules on transfers of milk quotas will, however, need to be reviewed in the light of the outcome of the reform of the dairy regime.

Crop Spraying

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the Government's policy on the spraying of crops with sulphuric acid; and how such spraying is monitored. [16866]

Mr. Rooker: All pesticides are subject to strict regulatory control and must be approved by Ministers before they may be marketed or used in the United Kingdom. Approval is given only after rigorous evaluation of detailed scientific data. Sulphuric acid is approved for certain uses and, providing it is used in accordance with its statutory conditions of approval, this use poses no unacceptable risk.

The statutory "Code of Practice for the Safe Use of Pesticides on Farms and Holdings", sets out precautions that farmers are required to take when spraying. These include measures to protect neighbours and workers and reduce risks to wildlife.

The Pesticides Usage Survey, the Wildlife Incidents Investigation Scheme and the Working Party on Pesticides Residues monitor the quantity of pesticides used, possible incidents involving wildlife and residues in food respectively. The Health and Safety Executive inspectors are responsible for enforcement of the rules on spraying.

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many complaints have been received by his Department about spraying with sulphuric acid in the past year. [16867]

Mr. Rooker: Complaints over alleged ill effects resulting from pesticide use should be reported to the Health and Safety Executive's Pesticides Incident Appraisal Panel. The Panel investigated seven complaints related to the spraying of sulphuric acid between April 1996 and March 1997.

In the past 12 months the Department has received 17 inquiries concerning the use of sulphuric acid as an agricultural pesticide.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if he will make a statement. [16295]

Mr. Morley: The Department will provide news releases to Opposition party spokesmen by fax on the day of release if requested to do so. The Department also issues news releases via the Internet at address http://www.maff.gov.uk/maffhome.htm. Hard copies are sent by messenger to Opposition spokesmen each day. There have been no changes since 1 May.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Means-tested Benefits

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate she has made of the number of individuals, including dependent children, who are in households receiving at least one means-tested benefit, broken down to show the combinations of benefits received. [12816]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is set out in the table:

Beneficiaries of means-tested benefits (May 1996)

	Number of beneficiaries
One or more means-tested benefit	15,110,000
Combinations of benefits including in the above:
Income support only	2,370,000
Family credit only	1,560,000
Disability working allowance only	8,000
Housing benefit and/or council tax benefit only	3,090,000
Housing benefit and/or council tax benefit with family credit	850,000
Housing benefit and/or council tax benefit with income support	7,220,000
Housing benefit and/or council tax benefit with disability working allowance	9,000

Notes

1. All figures have been rounded to the nearest ten thousand, except combined benefit figures showing disbility working allowance claimants which are rounded to the nearest thousand.
2. Numbers are based on benefit units which may be a single person or a couple.
3. Beneficiaries are defined as claimants, their partners and any dependants.
4. There will be a significant overlap between recipients of individual benefits.
5. The income support figures include a small number of cases whose entitlement to family credit or disability working allowance has not yet been lapsed. In reality these cases are dependant on income support.
6. Housing benefit/council tax benefit information excludes second adult rebate cases.
7. Data include estimates due to the date collection procedure.

Sources

1. Income Support Quarterly Statistical Enquiry, May 1996 (5 per cent. sample).
2. Family Credit 5 per cent. sample of all awards.
3. Disability Working Allowance 100 per cent. count of claims.
4. Housing Benefit Mangement Information System, annual 1 per cent. sample inquiries, with and without income support, taken at the end of May 1996.

Lone Parents (Employment)

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what percentage of lone parents who were previously unemployed have found work in each of the last 10 years. [13104]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the table, which shows numbers of new lone parent claims to Family Credit where the claimant was on income support immediately beforehand.

Estimated number of new awards of Family Credit made to lone parents previously on income support

Family Credit award starting:	Thousands
September 1992 to August 1993	53
September 1993 to August 1994	65
September 1994 to August 1995	73
August 1995 to September 1996	82

Notes:

1. The data used do not identify those lone parents who moved from income support to a job where they did not claim Family Credit, thus under-estimating the employment rate;

2. As estimates are based on a matched sample of 5 per cent. of Family Credit awards with a 5 per cent. sample of the quarterly stock of income support claimants, the methodology will miss claimants who had a short spell on income support before moving to Family Credit.

Sources:

1. Income support Quarterly Statistical Enquiries, August 1992 to May 1996.

2. Family Credit 5 per cent. sample, September 1992 to August 1996.

Habitual Residence Test

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many British citizens have been refused income support and related benefits due to failure of the habitual resident test (a) in the last year and (b) in each of the previous five years. [14008]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is set out in the table.

Numbers of adverse habitual residence tests by UK nationals

	April 1994 to March 1995	April 1995 to March 1996	April 1996 to March 1997
Income support	3,795	6,103	6,440
Jobseeker's allowance (income based)			2,608

Source:

Benefits Agency Management Information Statistics.

Notes:

1. The habitual residence test was introduced in income support on 1 August 1994. The test was carried forward to jobseeker's allowance (income based) on 7 October 1996.

2. Information regarding the numbers of UK Nationals failing the habitual residence test in respect of housing benefit and council tax benefit is not available.

Delegated Legislation

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list all (a) secondary, (b) other delegated legislation and (c) all deregulation orders her Department made during the summer adjournment. [14375]

Mr. Denham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 5 November 1997, Official Report, column 216.

Domestic Violence

Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security in what ways the issue of domestic violence victims is included in the training programmes of (a) Benefits Agency and (b) Child Support Agency staff. [14393]

Mr. Keith Bradley: On 6 October 1997 it was announced that, from April 1998, BA staff will be undertaking some CSA activity (the issue and completion of Maintenance Application Forms (MAF)) on their home visits to lone parents.

Child Support legislation has provisions, known as "good cause", which allow Parents with Care (PWCs) not to co-operate if the CSA finds that they have good cause not to co-operate. This may be because they believe there is a risk of harm or undue distress to the PWC or any children living with them which may arise from the CSA contacting the absent parent. It is therefore important that staff receive training to deal sensitively with such issues when they arise and are aware of when such problems may be an issue.

CSA staff receive awareness training on the "requirement to co-operate" provisions of child support legislation which includes the "good cause" provisions. All CSA staff who are required to interview PWCs about an absent parent receive further training on how to manage sensitive issues, such as domestic violence, and how to deal with such cases for child support purposes.

The BA has arranged for staff to receive the equivalent training given to CSA staff where they are dealing with similar situations at interviews. Although the completion of MAFs does not involve in-depth interviewing about good cause, BA staff need to be aware of possible sensitivities where a PWC does not wish to complete a MAF. All front-line BA staff i.e., receptionists, visiting officers, will receive the CSA MAF completion training customised for BA. BA staff who will carry out good cause interviews will receive further training similar to that given to CSA staff.

Training courses for BA staff have been piloted and, following further quality assurance, training will begin in January 1998.

Welfare Reform

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has for new benefits and levels of benefits differing from those in force in April 1997. [14672]

Mr. Denham: Our aims for welfare reform are to modernise the structure and delivery of Social Security to encourage financial independence, while simultaneously promoting social cohesion and well-being; to develop an active welfare system which supports work, savings and honesty; and to help tackle effectively unjustifiable social and economic inequalities. To that end we are reviewing all major components of the Social Security system.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Stunnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list (a) her Department's policies and initiatives designed to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and (b) the departmental policies and initiatives designed to reduce other greenhouse gases; if she will estimate for each the annual reduction in tonnage of greenhouse gas emissions achieved in the most recent year for which figures are available compared with those for 1990; and what estimate she has made of further reductions, or increases, predicted for 2000 and 2010, assuming continuation of current policies. [15542]

Mr. Denham: I refer my hon. Friend to the United Kingdom's (UK) Second Report under the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change which was published in February 1997. It reports the UK's progress in implementing its programme for reducing greenhouse gas emissions and gives a projection of what the programme is expected to deliver by 2000. The report projects forward what the current programme is expected to achieve to 2020.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Pond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will estimate the cost of extending contributory jobseeker's allowance to people with total earnings below the lower earnings limit for national insurance contributions with a continuous record of employment of at least 26 weeks. [15507]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available.

Invalid Care Allowance

Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claims for invalid care allowance were originally refused because of non-receipt of disability living allowance by the person being provided with care, which were successful following subsequent receipt within (i) three, (ii) four, (iii) five and (iv) six months of disability living allowance; and what was the total number of claims for invalid care allowance in the years (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1996–97. [15455]

Mr. Denham: The information is not available in the format requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Such information as is available is in the table.

Claims for invalid care allowance

	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Claims	132,369	152,082	165,092
Awards	94,066	107,238	102,658
Disallowances	32,463	49,208	44,781

Notes:
1. Disallowances can be for a number of reasons besides lack of qualifying benefit, e.g., age of carer, earnings over the limit, extent of caring.
2. Figures may not sum because claims made in one year may be decided in a later year.

Source:
Monthly statistics, Invalid Care Allowance Unit.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if sick and disabled people claiming incapacity benefit who make themselves available to work within the welfare-to-work scheme will be automatically switched from incapacity benefit to Jobseeker's allowance. [15742]

Mr. Denham: The Government believe that work is the best form of welfare for people of working age. For too long, disabled people have been defined by their disabilities rather than their abilities, their incapacity rather than their capacity. We therefore wish to develop ways to give sick and disabled people the advice, help and support they need to achieve their aspirations and to move towards financial independence, as part of an overall aim of social inclusion. Up to £195 million, set aside from the Windfall Tax, will be used to test a range of options to find out what are the most effective ways to help people with disabilities and long-term health problems to move into work, to encourage employers both to employ and retain disabled people and to avoid people becoming dependent on long-term incapacity benefits in the first place. In parallel with the welfare to work proposals for sick and disabled people, we are also considering what changes might be made to the benefit system to improve work incentives and reduce disincentives.

Industrial Disablement Benefit

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many new successful claims were made for industrial disablement benefit in each of the last three years. [16393]

Mr. Denham: The information is set out in the table.

New awards of industrial injuries disablement benefit in each of the last three years

Year	New awards made during in the year
April 1994 to March 1995	25,256
April 1995 to March 1996	24,329
April 1996 to March 1997	23,097

Source:
100 per cent. count of Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit award from DSS Central Data Unit.

Note:
Figures are provisional and subject to amendment.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which five prescribed industrial diseases resulted in the highest number of successful claims in respect of claims for industrial disablement benefit for prescribed industrial diseases in each of the last three years; and how many claims there were for each of these diseases. [16399]

Mr. Denham: The information is set out in the table.

Industrial injuries disablement benefit

Prescribed diseases with the highest number of initial assessments, with a disability assessment of 14 per cent. or higher, (1 per cent. for D1 and D3), in the last three years, and the claims received

Prescribed disease	Awards	Period	Claims received	Period
1996–1997
Pneumoconiosis (D1)	840	January to December 1996	3,020	April 1996 to March 1997
Diffuse Mesothelioma (D3)	642	January to December 1996	620	April 1996 to March 1997
Vibration White Finger (A11)	592	April 1996 to March 1997	12,370	April 1996 to March 1997
Occupational Deafness (A10)	377	April 1996 to March 1997	6,420	April 1996 to March 1997

Industrial injuries disablement benefit

Prescribed diseases with the highest number of initial assessments, with a disability assessment of 14 per cent. or higher, (1 per cent. for D1 and D3), in the last three years, and the claims received

Prescribed disease	Awards	Period	Claims received	Period
Occupational Asthma (D7)	365	January to December 1996	1,800	April 1996 to March 1997
1995–1996
Pneumoconiosis (D1)	860	January to December 1995	3,450	April 1995 to March 1996
Diffuse Mesothelioma (D3)	683	January to December 1995	570	April 1995 to March 1996
Occupational Deafness (A10)	557	April 1995 to March 1996	6,740	April 1995 to March 1996
Occupational Asthma (D7)	440	January to December 1995	1,690	April 1995 to March 1996
Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema (D12)	259	January to December 1995	2,430	April 1995 to March 1996
1994–1995
Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema (D12)	2,562	January to December 1994	8,418	April 1994 to March 1995
Pneumoconiosis (D1)	1,006	January to December 1994	n/a	—
Diffuse Mesothelioma (D3)	583	January to December 1994	n/a	—
Occupational Asthma (D7)	420	January to December 1994	1,789	April 1994 to March 1995
Occupational Deafness (A10)	402	April 1994 to March 1995	8,179	April 1994 to March 1995

n/a = Not available.

Notes:

1. Data for respiratory and non-respiratory awards are held for different periods (calendar years for respiratory awards and financial years for non-respiratory awards).

2. The number of awards made in any year, are not necessarily the results of the number of claims received in that year. There will be some awards made from claims made in the preceding year, and some claims received, that are not awarded until the following year. Claims figures include those made by people making more than one claim.

Sources:

1. Awards figures from a 100 per cent. count of assessments (DSS Analytical Services Division).

2. Claims figures from DSS Central Data Unit (100 per cent.), DSS BREM systems (100 per cent.) and from April 1995 rated up from a 10 per cent. sample of claims received.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security for each of the last three years, what was the total number of claimants of industrial disablement benefit; and how many of those received benefit (a) in respect of an industrial accident and (b) in respect of a prescribed industrial disease for each of the last three years. [16398]

Mr. Denham: The information is set out in the tables:

Total claims for industrial injuries disablement benefit received

Year	Claims received
April 1994 to March 1995	79,983
April 1995 to March 1996	83,847
April 1996 to March 1997	76,486

New awards of industrial injuries disablement benefit for industrial accidents

Year	Awards made
April 1994 to March 1995	19,611
April 1995 to March 1996	18,473
April 1996 to March 1997	17,101

New awards of industrial injuries disablement benefit for prescribed diseases

Year	Awards made
April 1994 to March 1995	5,645
April 1995 to March 1996	5,856
April 1996 to March 1997	5,996

Source:

100 per cent. counts of IIDB claims and awards from DSS Central Data Unit. Figures are provisional and subject to amendment.

Note:

The figures are separate counts. The number of awards made in any year are not necessarily the results of the number of claims received in that year. There will be some awards made from claims made in the preceding year, and some claims received, that are not awarded until the following year. Claims figures include those made by people making more than one claim.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claimants have received industrial disablement benefit at the maximum 100 per cent. disability rate in each of the last three years. [16397]

Mr. Denham: The information is set out in the table.

Industrial injuries disablement benefit assessments paid at 100 per cent. rate

Year	Initial assessments at 95–100 per cent. disabled in the year	All assessments at 95–100 per cent. at the end of the year
April 1993 to March 1994	790	3,782
April 1994 to March 1995	712	3,757
April 1995 to March 1996	813	4,095

Figures based on a 10 per cent. sample of all Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit (IIDB) assessments, and include a rating factor for late returns.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is her policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if she will make a statement. [16303]

Mr. Field: Press releases are delivered by hand to Opposition party spokesmen on the day of release, normally within one hour. None are faxed.

This practice has been in place since 1 May.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many cases have been dealt with by the Child Support Agency since its formation; and how many complaints regarding the CSA were received during the same period. [16167]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We expect the Child Support Agency to provide an efficient and effective service to all its clients throughout the child support assessment process. We are looking for substantial and sustained operational improvements from the Agency, in particular on getting more maintenance paid, reducing the backlog and improving customer service.

The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Faith Boardman to Mr. Denis Murphy, dated 24 November 1997:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question concerning the number of cases dealt with by the Child Support Agency, and complaints regarding the Agency.

From its inception in April 1993 to the end of October 1997, the Agency has taken on over 2.2 million cases.

During the same period, the number of written complaints received by Child Support Agency Centres (or, in a few instances, field offices) amounted to just over 109,000. This represents the vast majority of complaints sent to the Agency. Correspondence received by Ministers and the Chief Executive is not categorised, and it is not possible to say what proportion of that correspondence relates to complaints. Full figures are not available for the first year of operation, but since April 1994, all such correspondence has totalled over 37,000.

I am very conscious that there are still far too many justified complaints about the standards of basic customer contact and the service we provide. It is a key priority of the Agency to improve the way in which complaints are handled; we have revised our training for all staff who deal with complaints and introduced a new Complaints Guide. The Guide sets out our policy and procedures for swift, effective complaints handling.

Although the number of complaints reduced in 1996/97 (by around 20%), we are aware that as we tackle our backlog of cases, there is the potential for the volume of complaints to rise in the short term and we recognise that doing things right first time is the key to preventing complaints.

In addition, from April 1997 the Office of the Independent Case Examiner has provided an independent complaints investigation service for those customers who consider that the Agency's internal review process has not satisfactorily resolved their grievances. At the end of September 1997, the number of cases accepted for investigation by this service was 148.

Over the next few years, I am committed to bringing high quality levels of performance to every part of our operation as a matter of routine, thereby reducing the number of complaints received and enhancing the public perception of the Agency.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the planned date of publication of the report on the review of the Child Support Agency.[17650]

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when the current review of the Child Support Agency will be completed. [17148]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We aim to bring forward proposals in the first half of next year.

Child Benefit

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when the report on the methodology and findings of the Benefit Review on Child Benefit will be published. [17547]

Mr. Denham: Questions on Benefits Agency operational matters are the responsibility of the Chief Executive, Peter Mathison. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Archy Kirkwood, dated 24 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary question asking when the report on the methodology and findings of the Benefit Review on Child Benefit will be published.

The findings of the Child Benefit Review are currently being evaluated. When the results have been finalised they will be submitted to Ministers for consideration. The full report and details of methodology will then be published. It is expected that this will be in the new year.

Benefits Office (Grays, Essex)

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) if she plans to provide a period of consultation with (a) the local authorities, (b) the clients, (c) hon. Members and (d) other agencies, before implementing changes in the levels of staffing and services provided at the Grays, Essex Benefits Office; and if she will make a statement; [17336]

(2) when unions were consulted about details of plans to alter the levels of staffing and services provided at the Grays, Essex Benefits Office; and if she will make a statement; [17324]

(3) what plans there are to alter the levels of staffing and services provided at the Grays, Essex Benefits Office; and if she will make a statement. [17325]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The operational organisation of benefit offices is a matter for Peter Mathison, the Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Andrew Mackinlay, dated 24 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions concerning the levels of staffing and services provided by the Benefits Agency (BA) office at Grays, Essex.

The BA is undertaking a reappraisal of its services and the way they are provided in order to modernise service delivery and make savings for the taxpayer. Part of this reappraisal includes an analysis of the use the Agency makes of its present accommodation. The BA's Essex South West District, which includes the office at Grays, is looking at ways to rationalise its accommodation.

The manager of the BA's District wrote to local MPs and representatives of 28 local organisations to inform interested parties of the proposed changes. As there will be no change to the service provided to the public at the Grays office, a formal period of consultation is not considered necessary.

The proposals will have some impact on staff locally. Accordingly, the local Trade Unions were advised separately of the announcement and there will be extensive local discussions to ensure a successful implementation of the proposals.

Some processing work currently conducted at Grays will transfer to Basildon. However, a full caller facility will be retained at Grays along with some of the existing processing work. Customers will be able to call at the office as they do now. Indeed, the proposed changes will enhance the service for disabled people who will be provided with improved access to the building.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Welfare to Work

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the entitlement to benefits of those who agree to participate in Welfare to Work for long-term sick and disabled schemes. [17724]

Mr. Denham: I shall let the hon. Member have such information as is available as soon as possible.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the welfare to work for the long-term sick and disabled pilot schemes. [17648]

Mr. Denham: The Government believe that work is the best form of welfare for people of working age. We are committed to improving opportunities for sick and disabled people who want to work.

We will use the £195 million to fund innovative schemes which will explore how best to help sick and disabled people into work. We want to encourage an imaginative approach. We do not wish to constrain ideas at this stage but schemes could for example provide services along the following lines: improved advice; rehabilitation; work trials; skills training; adaption to the workplace; job-coaching and employer mentoring; improved employer and medical services sickness management; and assessment and placement schemes. We hope to launch a tendering exercise by the turn of the year and to select the first schemes in spring 1998.

Income Support

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on the planned date of publication of the report of her Department's research into income support. [17652]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Department of Social Security has a wide-ranging research programme, covering a number of areas including Income Support. It is our practice to publish the results of research commissioned.

Poverty Record

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will place in the Library a copy of the Government's response to recent litigation on Britain's poverty record in connection with the 1976 UN International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. [17229]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The UK submitted its third compliance report on the 1976 UN International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR) in February 1996. That report, which has been placed in the Library, has been considered by an ICESCR Committee who are now taking oral evidence from both Non-Governmental Organisations and the Government.

Cold Weather Payments

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what data her Department has collated on the effects of wind chill on the heating needs of those in receipt of cold weather payments. [17369]

Mr. Denham: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Streatham (Mr. Hill) on 30 October 1997, Official Report, columns 855-56.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment her Department has made of the costs of introducing a winter payment system for fuel instead of the cold weather payment; and if she will make a statement. [17366]

Mr. Denham: I shall let my hon. Friend have such information as is available as soon as possible.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate her Department has made of the cost of introducing a wind chill factor in calculating cold weather payments. [17367]

Mr. Denham: A number of options have been considered. Full details are contained in the Building Research Establishment's report, copies of which are available in the Library.

State Pensions

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will publish all the representations received as part of her review of state pensions. [17360]

Mr. Denham: I refer my hon. Friend to the replies I gave the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire (Mr. Kirkwood) on 17 November 1997, Official Report, columns 85–86.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when she plans to make a statement on the Government's strategy for the state pension from 1998–99 onwards. [17362]

Mr. Denham: The pensions review, announced by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, on 17 July 1997, Official Report, columns 239–41, is looking at the central areas of insecurity for elderly people, including all aspects of the basic pension and its value. A key objective of the review is to ensure that pensioners should have an adequate income in retirement; that they should share fairly in rising national prosperity, and that public finances should be both sustainable and affordable.

The first part of the review ended on 31 October and we are now carefully considering more than 1,800 responses we have received from pensioner providers, employers, employees, consumers, pensions experts and pensioners themselves. The Government intend to publish an initial framework for change in the first half of 1998. There will then be a period of further consultation before final, detailed proposals are developed.

All-work Test

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the planned date of publication of the report on the review of the all-work test. [17647]

Mr. Denham: As part of our Comprehensive Spending Review, we are looking at all aspects of current provision for sick and disabled people. Our objectives are to ensure that sick and disabled people who want to work are helped to do so and those who cannot are given appropriate support. This means that we are considering carefully the appropriateness of the All-work Test as we develop our proposals. The Comprehensive Spending Review was announced on 11 June and is expected to take around a year to complete.

Lone Parents

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many of those individuals in a family headed by a lone parent where household income after housing costs is below half the national average are (a) in benefit units receiving income support, (b) in benefit units not receiving income support but receiving one parent benefit, (c) in benefit units where the head works 16 hours per week or more or (d) in benefit units receiving family credit, housing benefit or council tax benefit. [17620]

Mr. Keith Bradley: In 1995–96, an estimated 2.4 million individuals in Great Britain were in a family headed by a lone parent where household income after housing costs was below half the national average. Of these individuals, it is estimated that:

(a) 87 per cent. (2.1 million) were in benefit units receiving income support;

(b) 7 per cent. (0.2 million) were in benefit units not receiving income support but receiving one parent benefit;

(c) 7 per cent. (0.2 million) were in benefit units where the head worked 16 hours per week or more;

(d) 91 per cent. (2.2 million) were in benefit units in receipt of at least one of the following: family credit, housing benefit or council tax benefit.

Source:

Households Below Average Income (HBAI).

Notes:

1. The data come from the Department's Households Below Average Income(HBAI) series, based on the Family Resources Survey (FRS and covering Great Britain. The FRS data was used to achieve a large enough sample size to provide the information. All results are subject to sampling error.

2. The income measure used is weekly net (disposable) equivalised household income. The definition of income used follows that in the published HBAI series for FRS based results.

Social Security Bill

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimates he has made of the saving which would arise to the Exchequer from Clause 70 of the Social Security Bill if there were no exceptions to its provisions. [17607]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The estimated savings without exceptions would be around £80 million in a full year.

Christmas Bonus

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if the Christmas bonus will be included in her Department's review of the central areas of insecurity for older people. [17727]

Mr. Denham: Our pensions review will look at all aspects of the basic state pension and its value including the Christmas Bonus. The review will report in the first half of next year.

Private Pension Funds

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on recent trends in the solvency of private pension funds. [17228]

Mr. Denham: There is no universally accepted benchmark for measuring the solvency of private pension funds. Actuaries use a number of valuation methods and assumptions when advising trustees about the funding level of their pension schemes.

Pensions Forums

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what actions are being taken by her Department to promote pensions forums in each local authority area. [17368]

Mr. Denham: This Department has no plans to set up pensions forums in each local authority area, but we want everyone with an interest in pensions to participate in the Pensions Review announced by my hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 17 July 1997, Official Report, columns 239–41. We particularly welcome contributions from today's pensioners. That is why we were extremely pleased that Jack Jones and the National Pensioners' Convention (NPC) agreed to take on a central and specific role within the Review so that pensioners' voices can be heard at the heart of the Review process. It is open to the NPC to make representations on the further involvement of pensioners in local and central Government. The NPC is an organisation with a large number of affiliated local pensioners' organisations and over 1.5 million members across the country. To date we have received and are considering over 1,800 replies to the public consultation exercise which ended on 31 October many of which are from local pensioners' organisations.

Statutory Services

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment her Department has made of the effects of the Gloucestershire judgment relating to the provision of statutory services; and if she will make a statement. [17363]

Mr. Keith Bradley: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has the lead responsibility for the implications of the Gloucestershire judgment. The judgment does not have any effect on DSS provisions.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement as to the planned date of publication of the report on the review of the disability living allowance. [17651]

Mr. Denham: I shall let the hon. Member have such information as is available as soon as possible.

Wisconsin Project

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which Ministers had meetings with officials from Wisconsin during the summer. [17726]

Mr. Keith Bradley: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State had one meeting with an official from Wisconsin.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what reports have been prepared by officials in her Department on the Wisconsin Project; and if she will make them publicly available. [17725]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Departmental Officials prepare regular background papers for Ministers on developments in welfare policy across the world. Several of these have included material on recent changes in Wisconsin.

It is for the authorities in Wisconsin to provide information about its welfare policy.

Pension Review

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list the submissions to the Government's pension review. [17649]

Mr. Denham: I refer the hon. Member to the replies I gave the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire (Mr. Kirkwood) on 17 November 1997, Official Report, columns 85–86.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if changes brought into effect following the Government reviews on pensions will affect only those starting new pension schemes. [17621]

Mr. Denham: A key objective of the review is to ensure that pensioners should have an adequate income in retirement; that they should share fairly in rising national prosperity; and that public finances should be both sustainable and affordable.

No decision on changes to the pension system have been made. The Government intend to publish an initial framework for change in the first half of 1998. There will then be a period of further consultation before final, detailed proposals are developed and laid before Parliament.

Benefit Claims (Backdating)

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the cost to the Exchequer of the exemptions to the proposed restrictions on backdating of benefit claims which were announced by the Under-Secretary on 20 November 1997, Official Report, Standing Committee B, columns 426–29. [17608]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The estimated cost of the exceptions is around £24 million in a full year.

Lone Mothers

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to her oral answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 7, if she will make it her policy not to introduce compulsion for lone parents in order to get them from welfare into work. [17653]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Compulsion is not the issue. The real issue is effective help to get lone parents back to work. We are making significant steps to help lone parents back to work in the New Deal for Lone Parents, and by developing a National Childcare Strategy. With these policies, we are offering:

personalised advice on jobsearch;

training;

help with childcare;

and in-work benefits advice.

We believe that with the measures in the New Deal for Lone Parents, coupled with improvements that the Government is making in childcare, lone parents will decide for themselves that work is better than life on benefit.

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 26 November 1997

HOME DEPARTMENT

Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for a further round of CCTV bids supported by Home Office funding in 1998–99. [17159]

Mr. Michael: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Normanton (Mr. O'Brien) on 24 November 1997, Official Report, columns 630–31.

Amsterdam Treaty

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Department contributed to the drafting. [17012]

Ms Quin [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The United Kingdom's position on the draft Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation between relevant Government Departments.

Youth Crime

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the youth organisations he has consulted over the causes of youth crime; and if he will make a statement. [17412]

Mr. Michael: The Government have set out their policy on tackling youth crime and its causes in three consultation documents published since September 25: "Tackling Youth Crime", "New National and Local Focus on Youth Crime" and "Tackling Delays in the Youth Justice System". We have sent out over 2,000 copies of each to interested parties, including youth organisations. As of 21 November, we had received a total of 955 responses. The consultation period is now over and we aim to provide a report to Parliament on the responses as soon as is practicable.

Schengen Agreement

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances the technical and operational documents relating to Schengen apply to United Kingdom nationals; and what further co-operation with Schengen countries will be (a) requested and (b) expected of United Kingdom authorities. [17078]

Ms Quin [holding answer 24 November 1997]: The United Kingdom is not a member of Schengen and under the Treaty of Amsterdam the Schengen acquis will apply as a matter of European law in all member states except the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland. The Treaty of Amsterdam provides for the United Kingdom to participate in provisions of the Schengen acquis; no decision has been taken about possible United Kingdom participation.

General Pinochet

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visits to the United Kingdom have been made by General Pinochet of Chile in each of the last three years; and what security protection is provided for him. [17827]

Mr. Straw: General Pinochet has visited the United Kingdom on three occasions in the past three years. On each occasion, he has been admitted to the United Kingdom as a visitor in accordance with the Immigration Rules. No security protection has been provided.

Extradition

Mrs. Ann Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his letter of 30 August 1997 to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain), when he expects the United Kingdom will be designated under the South African Extradition Amendment Act. [17625]

Mr. Michael: I understand that the necessary Memorandum of Understanding has been signed by President Mandela and that designation of the United Kingdom under the Extradition Amendment Act 1996 was approved by the South African parliament during its last session. The designation is to be published in the Government Gazette shortly and will come into effect on the date it is published.

Firearms Compensation Claims

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what proportion of compensation claims made under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997, excluding option C claims, had been settled in (a) the Surrey County Constabulary area, (b) the Metropolitan Police area, (c) the Northern Constabulary area, (d) Orkney and (e) Shetland by 1 November; [17658]

(2) what proportion of claims, excluding option C claims, for compensation for those who surrendered weapons and ancillary equipment under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 had been settled by 1 November: [17657]

(3) by what date he expects all compensation claims under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997, excluding option C claims, to have been settled; and if he will make a statement. [17659]

Mr. Michael: It has always been recognised that the pressure of claims received over the short hand-in period was bound to mean processing delays, and claimants were advised that they may have to wait several weeks before receiving any payment.

The target for the completion of claims submitted under Option A and B is the end of March 1988, and that for the completion of claims submitted under Option C, the end of December 1998, although the great majority of claims will have been settled well within these target times. Claims are dealt with in the order in which they are received. Information about the number of claims submitted by different force areas is not yet available.

As at 21 November 1997, 39,553 claims had been received, including those for small-calibre pistols submitted under the ex-gratia scheme. Of these, 18,673 payments had been made, to a value of £24 million.

A number of measures have been taken to increase the processing rate by minimising distractions to examining staff. Weekend overtime is being worked, staff have been temporarily promoted to boost examiner numbers, and efforts are being made to recruit additional staff. I would like to pay tribute to the hard work of everyone in the Home Office and in individual police forces who is working so hard to cope with the challenge. It is appreciated that any delay will irritate those who have handed in their weapons, especially those who were opposed to this legislation. However, we are honouring the commitments made by the previous Government during the passage of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 and doing as much as is reasonable to minimise delay, consistent with the need to control public expenditure, while fulfilling the clear will of Parliament.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Fazal-Ur-Rahman

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the case of Fazal-Ur-Rahman, formerly of 6 Edgecote Court, Leicester, who has applied for a visa in Islamabad (Foreign Office ref. E452510/97). [16847]

Mr. Fatchett: We have asked our high commissioner in Islamabad for a detailed account of the case and my noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs will write to my hon. Friend within one week of receiving that account.

Police Training

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the countries to which assistance in the training of police (a) is currently being given and (b) has been given since 1992. [17421]

Mr. Fatchett: This Department or the Department for International Development are funding police training for the following countries in the present financial year:

Anguilla, Belarus, Bosnia, Botswana, British Virgin Islands, Bulgaria, Cayman Islands, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Czech Republic, Cyprus, Estonia, Fiji, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Lithuania, Malawi, Mauritius, Mexico, Morocco, Mongolia, Montserrat, Nepal, Pakistan, Palestine Autonomous Territory, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Phillipines, Poland, Romania, Russia, Rwanda, Seychelles, Slovak Republic, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, St. Helena, St. Kitts and Nevis, Sri Lanka, Swaziland, Thailand, Trinidad and Tobago, Turks and Caicos Islands, Uganda, Uruguay, Vanuatu.

Individual serving police officers from foreign forces may currently be undertaking academic studies sponsored by this Department or the Department for International Development, or receiving training funded from other public or private sector sources, but it would involve disproportionate cost to try to establish a record of this additional training.

Police and security forces receiving sponsored training in previous years were listed in answers given on 28 February 1996, Official Report, columns 546–47, and 14 May 1996, Official Report, columns 385–87, by the then Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to my hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, Central (Mr. Jones); on 31 October 1996, Official Report, columns 218–19, in an answer given by the then Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, to my right hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Ladywood (Clare Short) and on 12 December 1996 in an answer by the then Minister of State for Defence, to my hon. Friend the Member for Cynon Valley (Ann Clwyd).

Imports (Verification of Labelling)

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with importers handling goods labelled "Made in Israel" on measures to verify their attribution. [17542]

Mr. Doug Henderson: In a notice to importers, published in the Official Journal of the European Communities on 8 November, the European Commission advised importers of serious doubts about the validity of all preferential certificates issued by Israel, for all products. HM Customs and Excise have given this notice wide publicity through trade associations and journals.

Within the framework of the EC-Israel Agreement, Customs are carrying out inquiries to establish the true origin of a wide range of products imported from Israel. The Subjects of these inquiries include fruit juice. Customs experts from all Member States will meet shortly to discuss what further measures can be taken to verify Israeli origin declarations. EC officials will meet Israel representatives soon, following consultations with Member States, to seek a solution to this problem.

DNA Tests (Immigration)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what are the procedures for the provision of free DNA tests in circumstances where the authenticity of a family relationship is contested, for immigration purposes. [17234]

Mr. Fatchett: DNA tests are provided for first-time applicants wishing to settle in the UK and for persons seeking to establish an entitlement to the Right of Abode in the UK. Applicants are advised that the service is free and that participation is voluntary. Blood samples are sent to the UK for DNA analysis for comparison with a DNA sample taken from a family member in the UK. Results are normally notified to Posts within 6 weeks.

Western Sahara

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings have been held with representatives of the Polisario movement of the Western Sahara in the past six months; and if he will make a statement. [17840]

Mr. Fatchett: The United Nations have held direct talks with the parties involved in the Western Sahara issue. We support the UN's role in securing a settlement to the dispute.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding HMG has provided towards UN operations in the Western Sahara for each of the last five years. [17829]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We have made the following contributions to the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) in each of the last five financial years:

1992–93: £815,057

1993–94: £310,496

1994–95: £22,527

1995–96: £3,676,702

1996–97: £641,173

The first three figures are the costs of a UK military contribution (15 military observers and the Chief of Staff) which was made from 1991–93. The last two figures show our UN-assessed contributions.

The UK pays 6.568 per cent. in assessed contributions of the total yearly cost of every UN peacekeeping operation. However, because the UK's contribution to MINURSO was over-assessed in 1991–92, no bills for assessed contributions were received in the following three financial years. Our estimated contribution for 1997–98 is £700,000.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans his Department has to ensure observers are present in the Western Sahara until the United Nations referendum on its future is held; and if he will make a statement. [17842]

Mr. Factchett: We support the UN mission in the Western Sahara. We have welcomed the Secretary-General's report dated 13 November 1997 to the Security Council, which contains recommendations on MINURSO's deployment. As a permanent member of the Security Council, we are playing a leading role in discussion on that deployment.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made by United Kingdom representatives at the United Nations concerning the holding of a referendum on the future of the Western Sahara; and if he will make a statement. [17839]

Mr. Fatchett: The United Nations is helping to prepare the ground for a referendum in Western Sahara. As a permanent member of the Security Council, the UK is playing an active role in discussions on the future deployment of MINURSO and on the UN mission.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have been held with the Government of Morocco concerning the future of the Western Sahara. [17841]

Mr. Fatchett: The United Nations has held direct talks with the parties involved in the Western Sahara issue. We support the UN's role in securing a settlement to the dispute.

Egypt

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information, and from what sources, his Department has evaluated on the security of visitors to Egypt; and what guidance his Department has issued to tour operators. [17826]

Mr. Fatchett: We gather information from a wide range of reliable sources. We are in close contact with our Embassy in Cairo who, in turn, are in contact with the Egyptian government.

Information from these sources has been distilled into the travel advice notice issued on 18 November as follows:

"In a major incident near Luxor on 17 November gunmen killed more than sixty tourists, including at least six British visitors. Since 1992 extremists have conducted a campaign of violence against the Egyptian Government, mainly in the provinces of Minya and Assiut (half way between Cairo and Luxor) but with sporadic attacks in other areas. Most of these incidents have been directed at the police, or were sectarian in nature.

Extremists have warned tourists not to visit Egypt. In April 1996 gunmen killed 18 Greek tourists in Cairo. On 18 September two men, acting alone, killed 10 people, mainly German tourists, also in Cairo.

The Luxor attack suggests that the threat to tourists visiting Upper Egypt has increased. British visitors are advised to exercise great caution when visiting Upper Egypt (defined as the area of the Nile valley south of and including Minya province). They are strongly advised to avoid the Luxor area until further notice.

Visitors to all other parts of Egypt, including Cairo, the Red Sea and Sinai, are advised to be vigilant and to respect any advice from the local security authorities.

Local driving conditions and poor vehicle maintenance make road travel outside the main cities hazardous, especially at night. In the event of an accident emergency medical facilities are limited.

Travel advice is widely available to the travel trade and tour operators. We would be prepared to offer further advice to tour operators if asked. None have approached us following the events in Egypt on 17 November.

Kurds

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what actions have been taken by his Department to promote dialogue between Kurdish movements in Iran, Iraq and Turkey; and if he will make a statement. [17838]

Mr. Fatchett: With the US, the UK has brokered a ceasefire between the two Iraqi-Kurdish parties, the PUK and KDP. This came into effect on 24 November. It is the first essential step towards peace in the region. We have taken no steps to promote dialogue between Kurdish movements in other countries.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the British presence in the Kurdish area of Northern Iraq. [17832]

Mr. Fatchett: The UK has no permanent official presence in the Kurdish area of northern Iraq. UK officials based in Ankara visit the area regularly. Several UK non-governmental organisations (NGOs) are also carrying out humanitarian work in northern Iraq.

Antarctic Treaty

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to be able to announce the establishment of the Antarctic Secretariat following ratification of the Antarctic Treaty. [17828]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Establishment of the Secretariat to the Antarctic Treaty will depend on the consensus of the Treaty Parties, which have yet to agree on its location.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made to the Government of Japan on its approval of the Antarctic Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [17835]

Mr. Fatchett: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 5 November 1997, Official Report, column 202.

EU (Immigration and Asylum)

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what ways Her Majesty's Government will be able to influence policy making in the European Union in respect of immigration and asylum matters. [16499]

Ms Quin: I have been asked to reply.

The United Kingdom participates fully in the intergovernmental co-operation on immigration and asylum policy provided for in the Treaty on the European Union. We shall use the opportunity of the United Kingdom's presidency of the European Union, in the first half of 1998, to carry forward that co-operation. Future co-operation on immigration and asylum policy will, as a result of the Amsterdam Treaty, be taken forward in the First Pillar; the Government have secured a Protocol which enables us to opt into such co-operation. We shall seek to do so where it is in our national interest.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy that individual consideration will be given to all asylum applications made by European Union nationals. [16491]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I have been asked to reply.

The 1951 United Nations Convention requires that we consider applications for asylum individually, irrespective of where they come from and we will comply with that obligation.

European Commission (Employees)

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what study has been conducted of the pension liabilities of the European Commission staff; and what proportion of employees hold private pensions. [17265]

Mrs. Liddell: I have been asked to reply.

In response to requests from the Council, the Commission prepared a paper on financing the Community pension scheme, which was discussed earlier this year. It included projections up to the year 2015 showing costs rising as the number of pensioners increase. The Commission is working on further studies, including an actuarial assessment of the scheme, on which we expect them to report in 1998. We do not have any information about the number of staff who may have private pensions.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Museum Funding

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of differences in the level of funding between the museums formerly funded by the metropolitan county councils and the GLC since 1986; and what account he will be taking of this in his current review of museum funding. [16125]

Mr. Fisher: Funding for most of the former metropolitan museums is a matter for the local authorities in each area. Amongst the 16 museums my Department directly sponsors, there are five that were once funded by the Metropolitan County Councils, and the Greater London Council (the National Museums and Galleries on Merseyside; the Museum of Science and Industry in Manchester; the Geffrye Museum; the Horniman Museum and the Museum of London). An annual allocation is made to these institutions following an assessment of their needs as expressed in their respective corporate plans. In addition the Museums and Galleries Commission currently awards an annual grant to the Tyne and Wear Museum Service, following their assessment of the relative needs of the various client bodies funded by them.

Allocations are made on grounds of affordability and need. Institutions and museum services are very different and are funded on different bases from different sources. Funding levels are therefore not directly comparable.

My Department is currently considering all of its public funding commitments as part of its contribution to the Government's comprehensive spending review.

EU Culture Council

Mr. Singh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Culture Council on 24 November. [18305]

Mr. Fisher: EU Ministers of Culture met on 24 November 1997 in Brussels. Ministers agreed Conclusions on music in Europe which are intended to inform the Commission's thinking as it develops proposals for the future of EU cultural action.

The European Commission presented its proposal for a European Parliament and Council Decision establishing a Community initiative for the "European City of Culture" programme.

Ministers held an exchange of views on the selection of a European City of Culture for 2001; the funding of EC cultural action in 1999 to cover the period between the expiry of the Ariane and Kaleidoscope programmes and the establishment of a successor programme.

The Council asked the Commission to carry out a study into the reduction of VAT on recordings.

Ministers discussed a proposal for a Council Decision establishing a European Guarantee Fund to promote cinema and television production, and follow-up to the Commission Green Paper on the protection of minors and human dignity in the audiovisual and information services.

The Council invited the ten associated countries of Central and Eastern Europe to participate in a structured dialogue on measures taken and to be taken to prepare new legislation and adapt existing national legislation, to bring it into line with EU audiovisual legislation and to address questions concerning the protection of minors and human dignity in audiovisual services.

Ministers also touched upon the future of digital television, European Cities of Culture for 1997 and 1998, the UNESCO Intergovernmental Conference in March 1998 on cultural policies for development, fixed book pricing, co-operation between the EC and the Council of Europe and follow-up action in the cultural field to the Euro-Mediterranean partnership.

TREASURY

European Central Bank

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the agendas and minutes of the (a) governing council and (b) governing board of the proposed European Central Bank will be made available to any statutory body of (i) participating, and (ii) non-participating member states. [15311]

Mrs. Liddell: Article 10.4 of Protocol No. 3 to the Maastricht Treaty (on the Statute of the European System of Central Banks and of the European Central Bank) states in relation to the Governing Council that:

"The proceedings of the meetings shall be confidential. The Governing Council may decide to make the outcome of its deliberations public".

Under Article 12.3 of the same protocol the Governing Council must adopt Rules of Procedure for the Executive Board.

ECOFIN

Mr. Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Council meeting of the Economic and Finance Ministers of the European Union held on 17 November. [17135]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I represented the UK at the Economic and Finance Council—ECOFIN—of the European Union in Brussels on 17 November. The Economic Secretary accompanied me.

The Council focused on the issue of economic co-ordination in State 3 of the EMU, in response to the remit from the Amsterdam European Council in June this year. There was a good deal of support for the principle that ECOFIN should continue to be the centre of economic co-ordination. The possibility of informal discussions was also considered. The Council will look again at these issues at its next meeting on 1 December.

The Council also discussed the date for the introduction of euro notes and coin, and the technical specifications for the coinage.

The Council was also presented with two documents by Commissioner Monti. These papers were a Communication on Financial Services: Enhancing Consumer Confidence, and a Green Paper on Supplementary Pensions in the Single Market.

The report of the SEM2000 (Sound and Efficient Management) group was presented to the Council. This group has been looking at ways to improve the management of Community budget expenditure. The Economic Secretary emphasised the importance we attach to this work.

Following the main ECOFIN meeting, a joint meeting with Social Affairs Ministers was held to discuss the preparations for the extraordinary European Council on Employment (the "Jobs Summit"), which took place in Luxembourg on 20–21 November. The Secretary of State for Education and Employment and I jointly represented the UK. The Council held further discussions about the proposals for Employment Guidelines.

Commemorative Coins

Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans Her Majesty's Government has to issue new commemorative coins. [18204]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Her Majesty The Queen has been graciously pleased to approve my recommendation that a fifty pence piece of special design should be issued in 1998 to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the National Health Service and that a two-pound coin should be issued in 1999 to celebrate the hosting of the Rugby World Cup. Both coins will be made available for general circulation and there will be collector versions in base and precious metal.

She has also been graciously pleased to approve my recommendation that a crown piece with a face value of five pounds should be issued to celebrate the millennium. These crown pieces will be struck in base and precious metal for collectors, and in addition will be available at face value from banks and post offices in 1999 and 2000.

Hauliers (Fuel Fraud)

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of measures in place to combat the fraudulent use of red diesel and similar fuels by some hauliers operating within and through Northern Ireland. [16190]

Dawn Primarolo: Enforcement measures must always strike a balance between the risk to the Exchequer, the impact on legitimate trade and the cost of those measures. In the case of fraudulent misuse of Red Diesel and similar fuels in Northern Ireland I am satisfied that Customs and Excise devotes sufficient resources to the problem.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Carry-over of Bills

Mr. Nigel Jones: To ask the President of the Council what plans she has for the carry-over of government, hybrid and private bills from one session to another; and when she expects to make a statement. [17247]

Mrs. Ann Taylor: The principle of the carry-over of government bills from one session to the next was set out in the First Report of the Select Committee on Modernisation of the House of Commons (HC 190) which was approved by the House on 13 November. The exact procedure for carry-over will now be developed in consultation with the House of Lords. The Government have not yet identified any bill to be subject to such a procedure this session. No recommendation about the procedure nor any statement about bills which might be carried over is imminent. I am not aware of any public bills being hybrid this session and I am not responsible for private bills.

Parliamentary Business

Mr. Skinner: To ask the President of the Council if she will list those types of business for which time for debate on the Floor of the House has ceased to be available since 1979. [17089]

Mrs. Ann Taylor: Supply days were replaced by Opposition and Estimates Days in 1982. At the same time Consolidated Fund Bills ceased to be debated, with the same time allocated instead for overnight private Members' adjournment debates. The separate debate on public expenditure plans was amalgamated with the Budget debate when the unified budget was introduced in 1993 and a debate on the summer economic forecast was introduced. Estimates days and three Wednesday mornings now provide up to 12 opportunities for debates on select committee reports which did not exist in 1979.

Money resolutions and ways and means resolutions, if taken on the same day as the second reading of the bill, are now put without debate, but are debatable for 45 minutes if taken at other times. The second reading of Law Commission Bills is now normally taken in a second reading committee but may still be taken on the floor of the House.

Similarly, the committee stage of consolidation bills may be dispensed with and the third reading taken without debate. Although more statutory instruments and EU documents are now taken in committee rather than on the floor of the House, they may be debated on the floor.

Since 1979 the only item of business which has ceased to exist is the Private members' motion. Until 1994 up to about 18 Members a year moved such motions, mainly on Fridays. These, together with the three overnight sittings on the Consolidated Fund Bill and the last day before recess debates, have been replaced under the Jopling reforms by private Members' adjournment debates on Wednesday mornings. A total of 128 hours was spent on such debates in the last normal-length session (1995–96) compared with 106 hours on the previous business in the session before the change. These have created some 160 separate opportunities each session for backbenchers to raise subjects of their choice.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Western Sahara

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid payments (a) through the EU, (b) through non-governmental organisations and (c) made directly have been made by her Department in each of the last five years to refugees from the Western Sahara; and if she will make a statement. [17830]

Clare Short: The only figures immediately available from the EU are that 7 million ECU were spent on refugees in the Western Sahara in 1996, the UK share being approximately £1.8 million. The EU are planning to spend a similar amount in 1997.

My Department has made a commitment of up to £60,000 in 1997–98, the first year that we have provided bilateral assistance to the Saharawi refugees, to fund War on Want to assist in the improvement of food storage facilities for refugees. So far £25,474 has been paid.

We have also provided emergency funds in 1997–98 amounting to £30,000 to help improve water supply and distribution for Saharawian refugees.

World Bank (Independent Inquiry Committees)

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations she has made to the World Bank about the establishment of independent inquiry committees. [17786]

Clare Short: The Government through our Executive Director has made a number of representations to the World Bank President, management and the World Bank Inspection Panel itself on the need for openness and transparency in the Panel's work, and for its independence to be protected.

Overseas Investment Insurance Scheme

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what has been the outcome of her review of the overseas investment insurance scheme of ECGD; and if she will make a statement. [17447]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 24 November 1997]: I have been asked to reply.

When ECGD relaunched its Overseas Investment Insurance Scheme in 1994 it was agreed that the Scheme would be reviewed every three years. The first of these reviews is about to commence. ECGD will work closely with the Department for International Development in this matter to see if the facilities can be made more readily available to poor countries.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Fair Trade (Coffee and Tea)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, pursuant to the oral statement by the Secretary of State for International Development, Official Report, 5 November 1997, column 332, if he will instruct officials to serve coffee and tea furnished by suppliers who adhere to fair trade standards in his Department. [15490]

Angela Eagle: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, on Thursday 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 617.

Widdecombe Rules

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to review the Widdecombe rules. [16911]

Mr. Raynsford: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, told the House on 8 July 1997, Official Report, columns 389–90, that we accepted the recommendation of the Committee on Standards in Public Life in its Third Report, that a new start should now be made on building an ethical framework for local government. In addition, my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government and Housing announced on 30 September that, while we are firmly committed to the tradition of political impartiality by senior officials employed in both central and local government, we are reviewing the detail of the current regulations on politically restricted posts in local government.

Motor Traders (Pre-sales Inspections)

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make it a statutory duty for motor traders to publish comprehensive pre-sales inspections of all sales vehicles. [17145]

Ms. Glenda Jackson: There are no plans to do so. It is already an offence for motor traders to sell an unroadworthy vehicle unless they make it perfectly clear to any prospective purchaser that it would be illegal to use the vehicle on the road in that condition. It would not be appropriate to make it a legal requirement for vendors to provide additional information about issues which are not concerned with vehicle safety and environmental performance. Those are matters for the prospective vehicle purchaser to determine.

Motor Cycles (Deaf Riders)

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to change the Driving Standards Agency regulations in respect of the application to deaf riders of the requirement on motor cycle riders to be in radio contact with an instructor. [17269]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We have recently announced our intention to put amending regulations before Parliament that will exclude, from January 1998, persons who are hearing impaired from the requirement for learner riders training on large motorcycles to be in radio contact with their instructor.

Also, when the radio link requirement is extended to all learner riders taking compulsory basic training, from April 1998, persons who are hearing impaired will be exempted.

Road Users (Disabled People)

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will ensure that orange badges for disabled people are produced in a form which will fit into a normal vehicle tax disc holder. [17268]

Ms Glenda Jackson: No. Orange badges should be displayed only when in use, and then on the dashboard or facia panel, not the windscreen.

Vehicle Identification Number Plates

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make it an offence for any person other than the original manufacturer to supply replacement vehicle identification plates. [17156]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We have no plans to do so. It is already an offence, under section 173 of the Road Traffic Act 1988, for anyone to forge or alter a vehicle identification number (VIN) plate with intent to deceive. The vendor of a vehicle with a defective VIN might also be committing an offence under the Trade Descriptions Act.

Enterprise Zones

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list (a) the number of areas which benefit from enterprise zone status, (b) the date enterprise zone status was awarded to each and (c) the number of jobs created in each individual area since the introduction of enterprise zone status. [17149]

Angela Eagle: The information available is:

Existing enterprise zone	Date of designation	Number of jobs created in enterprise zone (see note)
Inverclyde	March 1989	2,655
Lanarkshire	February 1993	[1]2,839
Tyne Riverside Nos. 1–11	February/August/October 1996	[1]830
Sunderland Nos. 1–3	April 1990	3,063
East Durham Nos. 1–6	November 1995	[1]59
Dearne Valley Nos. 1–6	November 1995	[1]92
East Midlands Nos. 1–7	September/November 1995	[1]201

[1] The figures for Inverclyde and Sunderland show the number of jobs created up to 31 March 1997. Figures for other Enterprise Zones show the number of jobs in the zone at 31 March 1997. Specific employment numbers for these before designation are not available but would have been very low because of the nature of the sites.

Environment Agency (Staffing)

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many posts have been lost in the Environment Agency in the current financial year; and what estimate he has made of further losses based on current planned expenditure in 1998–99. [17294]

Angela Eagle: The Environment Agency has not lost any posts overall in the current financial year. Resource allocations for 1998–99 have yet to be decided. The Agency's latest Corporate Plan shows a budgeted increase of 101 staff between 1996–97 and 1997–98, and a further planned increase of 37 in 1998–99.

Technology Foresight

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) in what way the Department's research priorities have been modified in response to Technology Foresight; [17466]

(2) what Technology Foresight priorities are being taken into account in the forward planning of the Department's scientific research programme. [17465]

Angela Eagle: My Department is represented on the Panels dealing with Natural Resources and Environment (NRE), Construction, Marine and Transport. The process by which the Department's research priorities are established takes place in parallel with the Panel's own priority-setting process. Foresight informs a broad range of priorities within the Department, including specific programmes. We consider all relevant Foresight priorities during the planning process, and modify research requirements accordingly.

For example, the Department has embedded many Foresight findings within the Construction Research and Innovation Business Plans. The Business Plans and their Key Priorities set the agenda for the Department's future involvement in construction research and innovation. This includes a new LINK Programme, "Meeting Clients' Needs Through Standardisation", funded by the Department and the Engineering and Physical Science Research Council (EPSRC). The Department is also helping the Panel to follow up its recommendations on the social and environmental impacts of construction by funding research into indicators of sustainable construction.

Similarly, the Department has responded to the Transport Panel's principal recommendations for three projects aimed at nurturing the developments necessary to improve transport in the key areas of efficiency and the environment. The Department is funding a programme co-ordinator for the Clear Zones programme and, with EPSRC, the Economic and Social Research Council and DTI we are sponsoring the Inland Surface Transport LINK programme, in large part designed to support research relevant to the Panel's recommendations related to mode-specific and generic technologies and transport systems. The Transport Panel is currently considering the technological aspects of integrated transport.

Eurostar

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he expects Eurostar services through the Channel Tunnel on to the West Coast Main Line to commence. [17593]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The provision of these services is a matter for Eurostar (UK) Ltd. (EUKL). I understand from EUKL that they intend to introduce these services as soon as possible, once the necessary testing and commissioning of the new rolling stock has been completed.

Household Growth Green Paper

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what guidance he (a) has issued and (b) plans to issue to local authorities regarding the development of more flexible parking standards in urban areas, as proposed in the Household Growth Green Paper (Cm 3471), paragraphs 5.30 and 5.33. [17715]

Mr. Raynsford: Existing Planning Policy Guidance on Transport (PPG13) encourages local authorities to be flexible in the requirements for off-street residential parking space and reduce them or waive them where necessary in order to provide good-quality and affordable high-density development in areas with good access to other means of travel.

We are considering parking issues for them in the current review of transport policy, the results of which will be published as a White Paper next spring.

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many responses to the Green Paper "Household Growth: Where Shall We Live" (Cm 3471) have supported the proposal to phase the release of land in paragraph 4.33; and if he plans to implement this proposal. [17718]

Mr. Raynsford: Nearly 100 responses out of the approximately 700 received supported the concept of phasing. We are considering all the issues raised by the Green Paper and will announce our decisions in due course.

Kyoto Conference

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to publish the results of, and to report on, the Kyoto Conference on Climate Change. [17374]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 25 November 1997]: We will be informing the House of the outcome of the Kyoto Conference on Climate Change in due course and will place in the Library a copy of relevant documents, including any Protocol and decisions adopted.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the British delegation to the Kyoto Conference on Climate Change; and if he will publish all the Government's position papers in advance of the Conference. [17359]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 25 November 1997]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the hon. member for Hazel Grove (Mr. Stunell) on 11 November, Official Report, column 464.

I am also placing in the Library a copy of the EU position papers and statements for the most recent negotiating meeting in Bonn in October.

Single Person Households

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what guidance he issues to planning authorities in respect of the design of dwellings for single person households. [17710]

Mr. Raynsford: Planning policy guidance on housing (PPG3) and several regional planning guidance documents advise local planning authorities to take account of demographic and social changes in the region, including the increasingly varied types of housing required, such as for single persons, small households and the elderly. The guidance, however, is concerned with the mix of types of housing, and does not give advice on the design of dwellings as such.

The issue of the special needs of small households was raised in the Green Paper on household growth and a large number of comments were received. These are still under consideration.

Dry Stone Walls

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to extend the legislation protecting hedgerows to dry stone walls. [17351]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 25 November 1997]: The Government have no plans to introduce legislation to control the removal of dry stone walls.

We consider that the most appropriate way of tackling the loss of dry stone walls is by encouraging their upkeep. Management grants are currently available in England under the Countryside Stewardship and Environmentally Sensitive Areas schemes operated by the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

Local Authority Rents

Mr. Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what guideline rents he proposes for local authority tenants in England for 1998–99. [18125]

Ms Armstrong: We are proposing that the average guideline rent for 1998–99 should increase from £35.38 to £36.35 a week. This is 97p per week more than the current year's guideline rent in cash terms. Guideline rent increases for individual authorities would range between 72p and £1.22.

To encourage authorities to keep their rent increases within the guideline increase, we propose to continue with the present rule that limits rent rebate subsidy. This gives authorities a strong incentive to keep rent increases down to reasonable levels, but does not affect tenants' entitlement to housing benefit.

Total provision within the subsidy system for expenditure by authorities on management and maintenance in 1997–98 will be more than £3.3 billion. This is about the same per dwelling as in the current financial year.

Our proposals are set out in the draft Housing Revenue Account Subsidy and Item 8 determinations for 1998–99, which we have sent to housing authorities today. Authorities have been invited to let my Department have their views by 17 December 1997.

So that they can make full use of the extra capital resources released under the Government's Capital Receipts Initiative, the draft determinations also provide for authorities to receive additional revenue support where there resources are used in respect of council housing.

Copies of the draft determinations have been placed in the House Library.

Valuation Tribunals

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what response was received to the consultation paper on the appointment of members of valuation tribunals in the light of local government reorganisation in parts of England in April 1998. [18126]

Ms Armstrong: The list of responses received has been placed in the Library of the House: copies of individual responses may be obtained through my Department's library. Regulations will be introduced shortly to give effect to the following measures:

(i) That, with effect from 1 April 1998, the appointing bodies for the Valuation Tribunals listed in column 1 below be those authorities listed in column 2 below, who will be entitled to appoint members in the proportion given in column 3—the membership, revised in some cases, being that shown in column 4.

column 1 Name	column 2 Appointing bodies	column 3 Proportion	column 4 Complement
Berkshire	Newbury (W Berkshire) DC	2	30
	Reading BC	2
	Slough BC	2
	Windsor and Maidenhead BC	2
	Bracknell Forest BC	1
	Wokingham DC	1
Cambridgeshire	Cambridgeshire CC	3	48
	Peterborough City Council	1
Cheshire	Cheshire CC	7	60
	Warrington BC	2
	Halton BC	1
Devon	Devon CC	5	42
	Plymouth City Council	1
	Torbay BC	1
Essex South	Essex CC	9	30
	Southend on Sea BC	4
	Thurrock BC	2
Herefordshire and Worcestershire	Worcestershire CC	3	32
	County of Herefordshire DC	1
Kent	Kent CC	8	45
	The Medway Town DC	1
Lancashire	Lancashire CC	15	100
	Blackpool BC	3
	Blackburn with Darwen BC	2
Nottinghamshire	Nottinghamshire CC	2	54
	Nottingham City Council	1
Shropshire	Shropshire CC	3	36
	The Wrekin DC	1

(ii) Existing members should continue to hold office until their term of office expires.

(iii) Vacancies should be filled as they arise (whether through retirement of members or an increase in complement) by the new appointing authorities, until their entitlement is reached. All subsequent vacancies would be filled by the authority who appointed the departing member.

Earlier regulations provide that, where the appointing body by which a member was appointed has ceased to exist, it will fall to the President of the Tribunal to give notice of termination of office if so directed by the Secretary of State.

DEFENCE

Overseas Travel

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list each of the overseas trips made by himself and other members of his ministerial team since 2 May, specifying in each case (a) the participating Minister or Ministers, (b) the destination of the trip, i(c) the purpose of the trip and (d) the cost of the trip; and if he will make a statement. [15268]

Dr. Reid [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Details of overseas visits by Ministers in my Department between 2 May and 11 November 1997 are as follows:

Ministry of Defence Ministers overseas visits

Date	Destination	Purpose	Type of travel civil/RAF	Cost (£)
Secretary of State for Defence
12–13 May	France	WEU Ministerial Paris	RAF Air	Not yet notified
19–20 May	Bosnia	Visit British Forces	RAF Air	5,843.00
2–3 June	USA	Visit UN/Bilateral	Civil Air	11,418.00
4 June	Germany	Bilateral	RAF Air	1,557.00
11–12 June	Belgium	NATO Ministerial Meeting Brussels	RAF Air	3,330.00
23 June	Germany	Visit British Forces	RAF Air	1,609.00
7–9 July	Madrid	NATO Summit	RAF Air	Not yet notified
15–17 September	Poland/Ukraine	Trilateral	RAF Air	19,200.00
20–23 September	Oman/Kuwait	Bilaterals	Civil Air	10,149.00
30 September–1 October	Netherlands	NATO Informal Ministerial Meeting	RAF Air	4,244.00
20–22 October	Bosnia/Italy	Visit British Forces/Bilateral	RAF Air	5,962.00
30 October	France	Bilateral	RAF Air	2,417.00
3–4 November	Russia	Bilateral	RAF Air	15,740.00
Minister of State for Defence Procurement
16–17 June	France	Visit to Paris Air Show	Rail/RAF Air	1,967.00
3–12 October	USA	Bilateral	Civil Air	10,774.00
24–27 October	Netherlands	Bilateral	Civil Air	876.00
Minister of State for the Armed Forces
23–24 May	Bosnia	Visit British Forces	RAF Air	10,895.00
12–13 June	Belgium	Attend Euro Atlantic Partnership Council, Brussels (for SofS)	RAF Air	2,350.00
13 July	Passendaele and Menin Gate, Belgium	80th Anniversary and Commemoration	RAF Air	1,706.00
7–10 October	Poland/Romania and Hungary	Bilaterals	RAF Air	9,683.00
14–21 October	USA	Bilateral	Civil Air	5,067.00
Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Defence
19–20 June	France	Visit to Paris Air Show	Civil Air	502.00
9–23 September	New Zealand/Australia	Bilaterals	Civil Air	15,916.00
16–17 October	Gibraltar	Handover of The Mount to Gibraltar Government	Civil Air	436.00

The overall costs shown (rounded to the nearest £) are those which can be separately identified as incurred by the offices of the Ministers concerned.

Cadet Forces

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what financial contribution his Department has made to the (a) Army, (b) Sea and (c) Air cadets for each of the last five financial years; what is the figure for the current year; what is the projected figure for the next financial year; and if he will make a statement. [16928]

Dr. Reid [pursuant to his answer, 24 November 1997, c. 391–92]: I regret the answer was incorrect. The correct answer is as follows:

The Government recognises the value given by the Cadet Forces to both the civilian community and to our Armed Forces. The Ministry of Defence's financial contribution in support of Army, Sea and Air cadets during each of the last five financial years and the forecast for the current financial year is shown in the table. Similar detail in respect of the Combined Cadet Force has been included. The Department has not yet finished its financial planning for 1998–99 and the forecast for that financial year will not be available until Class I Supply Estimates for 1998–99 are published in March.

£ million

	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97	1997–98[1]
Army Cadets (ACF)	n/a	20.9	22.2	23.4	28.0	25.7
Sea Cadets (SCC)	5.6	5.3	5.6	5.7	6.2	6.3
Air Cadets (ATC)	16.1	17.6	18.3	19.8	17.5	17.0
Combined Cadet Force (CCF)	n/a	6.1	6.6	6.2	5.8	6.4

[1] Forecast.

Land Mines

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many anti-personnel mines in the possession of United Kingdom armed forces have been destroyed since 1 May; [17051]

(2) what percentage of anti-personnel mines will be kept for training purposes; [17052]

(3) how many anti-personnel mines in the possession of United Kingdom armed forces are awaiting destruction. [17153]

Dr. Reid: I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Technology Foresight

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) in what way his Department's research priorities have been modified in responses to Technology Foresight; [17467]

(2) what Technology Foresight priorities are being taken into account in the forward planning of the Department's scientific research programme. [17468]

Mr. Spellar: The Ministry of Defence continues to be deeply involved in Foresight, mainly through its membership of the Defence and Aerospace Panel. Foresight has been welcomed by MOD as a means of improving its dialogue with industry and academia, both to add value for money to MOD's research activities and to support national wealth creation within defence priorities.

The initiative has been reflected in defence research programmes both directly and indirectly. The detailed work of the Defence and Aerospace Panel Technology Working Groups has been taken forward in the development of MOD's technology strategy. Collaboration in research between Defence Evaluation and Research Agency and industry/academia has been encouraged through the Beacon fund and the Pathfinder scheme, which provide mechanisms for the proposal of innovative solutions to meet MOD research requirements. An Innovative Engineering and Rapid Prototyping initiative has been started, which is also aligned with Foresight priorities.

In addition, some six Dual Use Technology Centres have been established with the purpose of facilitating exploitation of defence driven research for civil and commercial use, and Corporate Research Programme proposals are now routinely assessed for their civil as well as their defence potential.

Moreover, there is an increased emphasis on technology demonstration, including the realignment of a number of projects in the context of Foresight Action.

MODIX

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the MODIX System was installed and commissioned at the nuclear-propelled submarine refuel-refit yards at Devonport and Rosyth. [17428]

Mr. Spellar: The Mild Multi-Stage Oxide Decontamination with Ion Exchange system, MODIX, was installed and commissioned at Rosyth and Devonport in 1985–86.

HMS Dreadnought

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what year and month his Department decided to withdraw HMS Dreadnought from active service; on what date it determined that HMS Dreadnought was to be finally defuelled and prepared for decommissioning at Chatham dockyard; and what was the total collective radiation dose received by the civilian workforce from the final defuelling and decommissioning preparations whilst HMS Dreadnought was at Chatham dockyard. [17431]

Mr. Spellar: The decision to withdraw HMS Dreadnought from active service was taken in February 1982. HMS Dreadnought underwent final defuelling and preparations for decommissioning between March 1982 and March 1983. The total collective radiation dose received by the civilian workforce during defuelling and decommissioning preparations was approximately 1 Sievert.

The Mount, Gibraltar

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the residence in Gibraltar, known as The Mount, was last occupied; when it will be occupied again; what proposals he has for its future use; and if he will make a statement. [17308]

Mr. Spellar: The residence in Gibraltar known as The Mount was formerly owned by the Ministry of Defence and was last occupied in April 1997 by the Commander British Forces. The Ministry of Defence gifted The Mount to the Government of Gibraltar on 3 November 1997. The future use of The Mount is a matter for the Government of Gibraltar.

Royal Squadron

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what safeguards are in place to ensure that planes of the Royal Squadron are properly maintained. [17415]

Dr. Reid: The BAe 146s, BAe 125s and Wessex helicopters of No. 32 (The Royal) Squadron are required to be maintained to RAF standards, which are at least as robust as those applying to civil aircraft. The terms of the engineering support element of the multi-activity contract at RAF Northolt stipulate that contractor personnel should be capable of maintaining the aircraft to the same standards as would be required of RAF personnel. The Squadron also operates Twin Squirrel helicopters provided and maintained by a different contractor, which are required to meet CAA standards. We will, however, ensure that all the lessons from the recent incident involving a BAe 146 from No. 32 (The Royal) Squadron are identified and acted upon.

Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to revert to Royal Air Force servicing and maintenance of aircraft of No. 32 (The Royal Squadron) at Royal Air Force, Northolt. [17376]

Dr. Reid: There are no such plans. We will, however, ensure that all the lessons from the recent incident involving a BAe 146 from No. 32 (The Royal) Squadron are identified and acted upon.

Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish the findings of the inquiry into the technical causes of the airborne emergency of a BAe 146 aircraft of No. 32 (The Royal Squadron) on 6 November. [17377]

Dr. Reid: It would not be appropriate to publish the Station Inquiry as it will deal with named individuals. I will, however, write to the hon. Member once our investigation is complete, and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Air Space (Military Use)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of United Kingdom air space is reserved for exclusive military use. [17721]

Mr. Spellar: Less than 0.02 per cent. of United Kingdom airspace is permanently available for exclusive military use.

RAF (Civilian Servicing Contracts)

Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what disciplinary sanctions are available to the Commanding Officer of Royal Air Force, Northolt over civilian servicing and maintenance contractors on the station in the event of negligence in the servicing or maintenance of aircraft based there. [17378]

Mr. Spellar: The Station Commander at RAF Northolt has access to contractual sanction if he is dissatisfied with any aspect of performance of the contractor. He does not have direct disciplinary authority over individuals employed by the contractor.

Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will review the discipline and continued contracts of civilian servicing and maintenance personnel at RAF bases. [17379]

Mr. Spellar: Our contracting procedures are reviewed regularly and, in all cases, exacting quality standards are required from defence contractors. Firm action will be taken against any contractor who fails to meet the mandated standards.

Land Disposal (Gosport)

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the disposal of land at Priddy's Hard, Gosport, to Barratt Homes was on an unconditional basis. [17596]

Mr. Spellar: The offer for land at Priddy's Hard, Gosport by Barratt Homes was on an unconditional basis.

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the disposal of land at Priddy's Hard, Gosport, to Barratt Homes has been completed; and how much money has been received as a result. [17597]

Mr. Spellar: The sale to Barratt homes at Priddy's Hard, Gosport has not been completed, although we expect to exchange Contracts for Sale shortly. I am withholding information on the agreed sale for reasons of commercial confidentiality under Exception 7 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Military Personnel (Turkey)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what British military personnel are stationed in Turkey under (a) NATO and (b) bilateral contracts. [17834]

Dr. Reid: Eight British military personnel are stationed in Turkey under NATO auspices. These comprise: one Royal Navy Commander, one Colonel, two Lieutenant Colonels, one Major, two Squadron Leaders and one Flight Sergeant.

There are no British military personnel stationed in Turkey under bilateral contracts. However, as of 24 November 1997, there were 191 British military personnel stationed in Turkey as part of Operation Northern Watch. Operation Northern Watch is a trilateral coalition operation comprising the UK, the US and Turkey, which enforces the No-Fly-Zone over Northern Iraq.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Reduced Earnings Allowance

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people to date have lost their reduced earnings allowance in each of the benefit districts in Wales. [13771]

Mr. Denham: The administration of Reduced Earnings Allowance is a matter for Peter Mathison, the Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Llew Smith, dated 25 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people to date have lost their Reduced Earnings Allowance (REA) in each of the benefit districts in Wales.

I have assumed your question refers to Adjudication Officer's decisions to transfer over pension age REA recipients to Retirement Allowance (RA) following the introduction of the Social Security (Industrial Injuries and Diseases) (Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 1996 on 24 March 1996.

The information is shown in the attached table. Statistics on transfers were maintained up to 31 March 1997.

I hope this reply is helpful.

Number of reduced earnings allowance (REA) recipients over pension age cases transferred to retirement allowance (RA)

Benefits agency district[1]	Number of cases transferred where pension age attained before 24 March 1996	Number of cases transferred where pension age attained between 24 March 1996 and 31 March 1997	Total
Wrexham and North Wales	176	44	220
Cardiff and Vale	82	13	95
Gwyneddigion Maldwyn	102	26	128
Eastern Valleys	335	46	381
Swansea Bay	275	45	320
Gwent Borders	59	24	83
West Wales	242	45	287
Mid Glamorgan	695	92	787

Figures are provisional and subject to amendment.
[1] Benefits Agency districts as at 24 March 1996.

Benefits (Taxation)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will list those Social Security benefits which are (a) taxable and (b) not taxable and the reasons underlying the two categories. [14673]

Mr. Denham: The information is as follows:

Taxable benefits
Incapacity Benefit
Invalid Care Allowance
Jobseeker's Allowance
Retirement Pension
Widowed Mother's Allowance
Widow's Pension
Statutory Maternity Pay
Statutory Sick Pay
Industrial Death Benefit

All other Social Security Benefits are not taxable.

Whether or not particular benefits should be taxable is kept under review.

This Government is committed to examining the interaction of the tax and benefit systems so that they can be streamlined and modernised so as to fulfil the objectives of promoting work incentives, reducing poverty and welfare dependency and strengthening community and family life. Mr. Martin Taylor, Chief Executive of Barclays Bank plc, has been appointed to lead a Whitehall task force to take forward this remit.

War Disablement Pension

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment she has made of the current arrangements for examinations of applicants for the war disablement pension, and if she will make a statement. [15344]

Mr. Denham: One of our key aims is that delivery of service should be simpler and more efficient. Queries on operational matters concerning the War Pensions Agency are for its Acting Chief Executive Mr. Steve Johnson. I have asked him to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from K. C. Caldwell to Mr. Paul Keetch, dated 25 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the current arrangements for the medical examinations of persons claiming War Disablement Pension.

Most examinations, where considered necessary for the individual case, are conducted locally by War Pensions Examining Medical Practitioners, the majority of whom are General Practitioners.

The Benefits Agency Medical Services (BAMS) who organise examinations for Social Security benefits are responsible for recruiting and training doctors to undertake medical examinations and for arranging these examinations for the War Pensions Agency (WPA). Doctors undertaking medical examinations for War Pensions must be registered with the General Medical Council and be experienced in medical examinations for Benefit purposes. BAMS are responsible for ensuring the satisfactory completion of the training of the doctors who conduct examinations for the WPA. The training of these doctors is based on the Handbook for Examining Medical Practitioners (War Pensions) which has been written and recently revised by Medical Advisors employed by the WPA. The WPA Medical Advisors make, on the medical evidence, decisions as to whether a condition is attributable to or aggravated by service and the degree of any disablement.

The monitoring of completed examination reports is the responsibility of the WPA. All medical examination reports are reviewed by the WPA's Medical Advisors. Any reports which do not fulfil the WPA's requirements are returned to BAMS. In addition to these arrangements the WPA is currently developing a structured monitoring scheme to provide formal feedback to BAMS on the general quality of the examining doctors' medical reports.

In the specialist area of hearing loss claims, audiometric examinations are conducted for the WPA by British Medical International, part of General Healthcare Group PLC. The reports from these examinations are considered by the WPA Medical Advisors as part of the evidence in these cases. These arrangements are formally monitored, both internally by the WPA Medical Advisors and through a regular external professional scrutiny.

In addition to War Pension medical examinations, the WPA also requests specialist and Regional Consultant medical examinations. Specialist appointments are arranged through BAMS who in many cases nominate a local specialist with suitable expertise. In some cases the WPA's Medical Advisors nominate a specialist, normally the specialist who has been responsible for the clinical care of the claimant/pensioner.

Regional Consultants are recognised authorities in their speciality and are appointed by the DSS Chief Medical Adviser. Regional Consultant examinations are requested by the WPA to resolve conflict of medical opinion and also in exceptionally complex cases. A list of Regional Consultants is held in the WPA and the WPA Medical Advisor is responsible for nominating the Regional Consultant. BAMS are responsible for arranging appointments on behalf of the WPA.

All the specialist and Regional Consultant reports are reviewed by the WPA's Medical Advisors. Any unsatisfactory reports are returned directly to the specialist or Regional Consultant. BAMS would be advised of any specialist who consistently provided unsatisfactory reports and use of that specialist's services would cease. Any Regional Consultant who consistently provided unsatisfactory reports would be notified to the Chief Medical Advisor with a view to removal from the list.

I am satisfied that these arrangements work satisfactorily.

I hope you will find my reply helpful.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what percentage of claimants of incapacity benefit are currently undertaking limited paid work on the grounds that the work is (i) voluntary and (ii) therapeutic. [15843]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is as follows.

It is estimated that 1 per cent. of Incapacity Benefit recipients undertake paid work on the grounds that it is therapeutic.

Sources:

Lonsdale, S., Lessof C. and Ferris, G. (1993) "Invalidity Benefit; a survey of recipients, London: HMSO". This survey found that 2 per cent. of Invalidity Benefit recipients had ever done therapeutic work and fewer still were doing it at the time of the interview. The 1995–96 Family Resources Survey shows that 1 per cent. of Incapacity Benefit recipients had done any paid work in the week before the interview. Information is not collected directly on use of the permitted work provisions.

Welfare and Pensions Green Papers

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what are the planned dates of publication of the Green Papers on (a) welfare and (b) pension reform. [15828]

Mr. Field: It is our intention to publish a Green Paper on Welfare Reform at the turn of the year.

The first part of the Pensions Review ended on 31 October and we are now carefully considering the approximately 1,800 responses we have received from pensions providers, employers, employees, consumers, pensions experts and pensioners themselves. We intend to publish an initial framework for change in the first half of 1998. There will then be a period of further consultation before final, detailed proposals are developed.

Motability

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to increase the level of competition for the financing and administrative services provided by Motability Finance Limited. [15969]

Mr. Denham: Motability is an independent organisation and the administration of the Scheme is a matter for Motability's Governors.

We regard competition as a healthy measure in ensuring value for money and in line with the National Audit Office's recommendations, Motability's Governors are currently reviewing the scope for increasing the level of competition in the Scheme. This includes benchmarking for Motability's administrative services and a sub-committee of Governors are looking at funding of the Scheme. Competition must, however, bring long term benefit to Motability's disabled customers.

Former Miners

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many former miners have been diagnosed to be suffering from (a) chronic bronchitis and (b) emphysema; and how many were diagnosed after April. [16477]

Mr. Denham: The information is set out in the table.

Chronic bronchitis and emphysema diagnoses from September 1993

Percentage disabled assessment	September 1997 to March 1997	April 1993 to October 1997	September 1993 to October 1997
1–13	101	38	139
14–100	5,428	5,865	11,293
Total (1–100)	5,529	5,903	11,432

Source:

100 per cent. count from DSS BREM systems and DSS Central Data Unit. Figures are provisional and subject to amendment.

Note:

Chronic bronchitis and emphysema, prescribed disease D12, was introduced from 13 September 1993.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many former miners have been rejected for a disablement award because they have failed the FEV1 test since April. [16478]

Mr. Denham: Since April 1978, 768 people have failed the FEV1 test, at a medical examination made in connection with a claim to Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit, for chronic bronchitis and emphysema (prescribed disease D12). This is the latest figure available and covers the period up to 31 October 1997.

Source:

100 per cent. count from Department of Social Security BREM system. Figures are provisional and subject to amendment.

Industrial Disablement Benefit

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total amount paid in industrial disablement benefit to claimants in each of the last three years. [16395]

Mr. Denham: The information is in the table.

£ million

Year	Amount
1994–95	645
1995–96	670
1996–97	661

Source:

Social Security Departmental Report 1997.

Notes:

1. The figures include reduced earnings allowance.
2. The figures for 1994–95 and 1995–96 are actual spending, whilst that for 1996–97 is an estimate.

Maternity Allowance

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans she has to ensure that self-employed mothers are eligible for the same maternity allowance as employed mothers. [16358]

Mr. Denham: We aim to help women balance their careers and family responsibilities. Both employed and self-employed women are eligible for Maternity Allowance for up to 18 weeks if they have worked and paid 26 class 1 and/or class 2 National Insurance contributions in the 66 weeks before the week the baby is due. The self-employed, however, receive Maternity Allowance at a lower weekly rate.

We will consider any changes to the current maternity arrangements in the context of our modernisation and streamlining of benefit provision.

Pensions (Overseas Residents)

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate she has made of the cost of uprating the pensions paid to those British citizens living overseas, whose pensions are not presently uprated. [16671]

Mr. Denham: We estimate that it would cost some £250 million[1] a year fully to unfreeze UK pensions paid to people living abroad, that is to bring them up to the rate which would be paid if the pensioners were living in the United Kingdom.

Notes:

[1] Estimate rounded to the nearest £25 million. Based on the number of UK pensions paid abroad in July 1997 and on current pension rates.

1. The cost is calculated from the actual uprating cost of some 90 per cent. of all cases (£1,900 million) and an estimated uprating cost for the remainder, which date from 1978.

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security in which countries special arrangements are made to uprate the state retirement pension for British citizens living abroad. [16673]

Mr. Denham: UK state retirement and widows pensions are uprated in the Member States of the European Economic Area[1] and in the following countries with which the UK has a social security agreement which provides for uprating:

Barbados
Bermuda
Bosnia-Hercegovina[2]
Croatia[3]
Cyprus
Guernsey
Isle of Man
Israel
Jamaica
Jersey
Macedonia[3]
Malta
Mauritius
Philippines
Slovenia[3]
Switzerland
Turkey
USA
Yugoslavia

Notes:

[1] Comprises EC Member States plus Iceland, Norway and Liechtenstein.

[2] Formerly a constituent republic of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY). Annual pension increases payable by virtue of the 1958 reciprocal agreement with FRY.

[3] Formerly a constituent republic of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY). Annual pension increases payable by virtue of the 1958 reciprocal agreement with FRY.

Pensions are also uprated on Sark under the Social Security Benefit (Persons Abroad) Regulations 1975.

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate she has made of the number of British citizens living aborad who do not receive uprated state retirement pensions. [16672]

Mr. Denham: There are some 440,000 UK retirement and widow pensioners living in countries where pensions are not uprated. No record is held of the number who are British citizens.

Means-tested Benefits (Pensioners)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to her answer to the hon. Member for Northavon (Mr. Webb) of 5 November 1997, Official Report, columns 249–50, on pensioners on benefits, if she will list the number of pensioners identified in each category resident in the area of the Government Office North-East Region. [16644]

Mr. Denham: The information is not available on a regional basis.

Income Support

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what factors are taken into account in deciding changes of standard interest rate for mortgage interest in income support; what recent changes in the rate have been made and on what dates; what the levels were; and what plans he has to review the arrangements. [16626]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The standard interest rate is based on the weighted average of basic building society interest rates. Changes are triggered when the average rate moves by 0.25 per cent. or more. We have no current plans to change the existing arrangements.

Information about changes in the standard interest rate since its introduction are listed below:

Rate (per cent.)	Date
8.39	2 October 1995
8.00	28 January 1996
7.74	28 April 1996
7.48	30 June 1996
7.16	1 September 1996
6.89	22 December 1996
7.20	20 April 1997
7.57	28 September 1997
7.97	30 November 1997

Christmas Bonus

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what would be the value of the £10 Christmas bonus in 1998–99 if it had been uprated by (a) prices and (b) earnings since its introduction; and if he will estimate how much it would cost to increase it to these levels. [16573]

Mr. Denham: The information is in the table.

Christmas bonus in 1998–99	Value (£)	Additional cost (£)
Uprated by prices	70.80	830,000,000
Uprated by earnings	120.30	150,000,000

1. The table shows the value and estimated additional costs of the Christmas Bonus in 1998–99 if it had been uprated by each of prices and earnings since its introduction. All costs are rounded to the nearest £10 million.
2. The uprated levels of the Christmas Bonus have been calculated using the Retail Price Index (All items) and the Average Earnings Index (Whole Economy) as supplied by the Officer for National Statistics. The figure for September 1997 earnings is provisional. The value of the Bonus has been rounded to the nearest 5 pence at each uprating.
3. The extra costs of paying the uprated Christmas Bonus in respect of National Insurance Fund benefits were estimated by Government Actuary's Department and those in respect of non-National Insurance Fund benefits were estimated by the Department of Social Security.

State Pension

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what would be the value of the 25p age addition to the state pension in 1998–99 if it has been uprated in line with (a) prices and (b) earnings since its introduction; and if he will estimate how much it would cost to increase it to those levels. [16543]

Mr. Denham: The value of the 25p age addition to the State Pension in 1998–99 would be £1.75 if uprated in line with prices and £3.95 if uprated in line with earnings, since its introduction.

The table shows the estimated additional gross and net costs of paying the age addition at these levels for 1998–99. All costs are rounded to the nearest £10 million.

£ million

Age addition in 1998—99	Uprated by prices	Uprated by earnings
Gross cost	190	460
Net cost	110	270

1. The figures for the value of the age addition were calculated using the Retail Price Index (All items) and the Average Earnings Index (Whole Economy) as supplied by the Office for National Statistics. The figure for September 1997 earnings is provisional. The value of the age addition has been rounded to the nearest 5 pence at each uprating.
2. The gross costs were estimated by Government Actuary's Department. The net costs by the Department of Social Security.

Cold Weather Payments

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the administrative cost of the disbursement of cold weather payments as a proportion of their value. [17361]

Mr. Denham: The administration of cold weather payments is a matter for Mr. Peter Mathison, the Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Jeremy Corbyn, dated 25 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the administrative cost of the disbursement of cold weather payments as a proportion of their value.

During the cold weather season for 1996/97 4,964,966 cold weather payments were made at a total programme cost of £42,202,211 and an administrative cost of £7,512,414. The administrative cost per cold weather payment was £1.51 which equates to 17.8% of the actual value of each payment.

I hope this reply is helpful.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Computers (Century Date Change)

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate her Department has made of the proportion of British companies that will go bankrupt as a result of the year 2000 virus. [15205]

Mrs. Roche [holding answer 11 November 1997]: I have made no such estimate. Businesses which take appropriate action now are unlikely to become insolvent as a result of this problem, but the longer a business with a serious problem delays the greater the risk it runs. That is why the Government has recently launched the Action 2000 initiative under the chairmanship of Don Cruickshank.

Development Area Status

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will list (a) the number of areas which benefit from development area status, (b) the date development area status was awarded to each area and (c) the number of jobs created in each individual area since the introduction of development area status. [17146]

Mrs. Roche: (a) The number of areas benefiting from development area status is set out in Statutory instrument 1993 No. 1877 "Industrial Development: The Assisted Areas Order 1993", laid before parliament on 23 July 1993. A copy of which is a available in the Library of the House.

(b) Development area status was awarded to these areas on 1 August 1993, when the current Assisted Area map came into operation.

(c) Information available on the number of jobs created in development areas is limited to employment created under DTI's Regional Selective Assistance scheme The most recent figures are published in the Industrial Development Act 1982 Annual Report for the year ending 31 March 1997, Appendix 5—tables 2 and 3 refer, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

Nuclear Power Industry

Mr. Dafis: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is her estimate of (a) the total liabilities of the nuclear power industry and (b) the liabilities which are currently unfunded. [17297]

Mr. Battle: The total lifetime nuclear liabilities of the UK nuclear power industry at 31 March 1997 were £15.1 billion. This total arises from the contributions of three companies. The individual components are:

British Energy: £5.2 billion

BNFL: £1.481 billion

Magnox Electric: £8.4 billion

These figures are discounted at 3 per cent. for British Energy and Magnox and 2 per cent. for BNFL. In the case of British Energy the above figures take into account the new and revised BNFL contracts announced on 4 June 1997.

British Energy's nuclear liabilities comprise decommissioning and backend fuel costs, and the company has made provision in its accounts for £3.8 billion of those liabilities. A segregated fund has been set up to cover the costs of decommissioning. This was endowed, by British Energy, with £228 million and receives payments of £16 million per year. It is designed to cover 110 per cent. of decommissioning costs based on independent engineering assessments. Payments for backend fuel disposal will arise over many years. Funds for dealing with those payments will come from existing funds and amounts built up from future business operations.

BNFL has already made provisions in its accounts for £1.158 billion of its nuclear liabilities. A further £323 million will be provided, in accordance with company policy, from the income generated over the remaining lifetime of plant which is still operating. More than half of the amount provisioned is in a separate fund, the bulk of which is held in gilts.

Magnox Electric has significant assets to meet its nuclear liabilities, most of which will not fall due for payment for a considerable number of years. Furthermore, the proposed integration of Magnox and BNFL will bring additional benefits in the cost and management of these liabilities. At 31 March 1997 there was a gap of £682 million between the company's assets and liabilities. This is covered by a long-standing Letter of Comfort from the Government originally given to Nuclear Electric in 1990.

Telecommunications

Dr. Tonge: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has to authorise OFTEL to require providers to establish packages tailored for low-use businesses; and if she will make a statement. [17741]

Mr. Battle: Low-use businesses are increasingly offered a variety of packages by telecommunications providers in today's competitive multi-operator market. Low-use businesses are also protected from price increases by the regulator Oftel. Oftel has required BT to provide a safeguard tariff package for small businesses for which the call charges are the same as those paid by residential customers whose prices are covered by the RPI–4.5 per cent. price cap. The package also ensures that line rental does not increase by more than RPI each year. My Department therefore has no plans at present to authorise Oftel to require telecommunications providers to establish packages tailored for low-use businesses.

Biodiversity and Biomedicine Conventions

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the United Kingdom's progress in the implementation of (a) the Convention on Biodiversity and (b) the principles of the 1996 Convention on Human Rights and Biomedicine and their incorporation into United Kingdom legislation. [17803]

Mr. Battle: (a) The United Kingdom is undertaking a range of activities at home and abroad to work towards the three goals of the UN Convention on Biological Diversity: to conserve biodiversity, ensure its sustainable use, and achieve the equitable sharing of the resultant benefits. Domestically, a Government-led partnership is implementing our national biodiversity action plan, with individual action plans for a range of species and habitats, and for particular localities, building on existing domestic and European legislation. Internationally, we recently hosted a conference to help Central and Eastern European countries plan and implement their own biodiversity strategies, and through both our general aid programme and the Darwin Initiative, we continue to support developing countries' efforts to meet their Convention obligations. Our first national report under the Convention, due by the end of this year, will record these efforts in detail.

(b) The Convention on Human Rights and Biomedicine contains a wide range of provisions covering a number of complex ethical and legal issues. The Government is considering the implications of the provisions carefully. No decisions on a timescale for signature or ratification have been made.

BT (Special Share)

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade pursuant to her answer of 15 July 1997, Official Report, column 141, if the redemption of the Government's special share in British Telecommunications plc has now taken place; and if the Government holds any other shares in BT. [18058]

Mrs. Roche: The Government redeemed the Special Share, in exchange for a payment by BT of £1, on 10 September. This means that the Government no longer holds any share which has a direct influence on the terms of the company's Articles of Association. HM Treasury retains for the time being a residual holding of some 10.7 million BT Shares (around 0.2 per cent. of BT's overall share capital) remaining from earlier flotation offers. As has been the policy since privatisation, the Government will not vote with these shares.

Register of Quality Assessed Companies

Mr. Andy King: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the future of the United Kingdom Register of Quality Assessed Companies. [18268]

Mr. Battle: The Register was introduced in 1983 as a voluntary guide to ISO 9000 certification bodies and the companies they certify. The Register was compiled and published by Her Majesty's Stationery Office. My Department's role, as the accreditor of certification bodies, was to invite accredited certification bodies to contribute to the Register and to check the accuracy of those contributions before they were published. My Department also provided a complimentary copy of the Register to each contributing certification body.

In 1995 my Department established, as a company limited by guarantee, the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) as the sole national accreditation body for certification bodies, testing and calibration laboratories and inspection bodies. Accreditation consequently passed from the public to the private sector, although my Department retains firm links with UKAS through a memorandum of understanding and a licensing agreement. As a result of this shift in responsibility, UKAS was asked to consider taking over my Department's functions in relation to the Register.

In 1996, following the privatisation of Her Majesty's Stationery Office, compilation and publication of the Register passed to The Stationery Office Ltd.

I have now agreed with UKAS and The Stationery Office Ltd. that the functions previously undertaken by my Department will pass to UKAS. In recognition of this, and of the increasingly international nature of accreditation and certification, the title of the Register will be amended to the QA Register with effect from the 1998 edition. The Stationery Office Ltd. will continue to publish the Register. The precise content and style of the Register will be matters for UKAS and The Stationery Office to decide jointly.

My Department will continue to fund complimentary copies of the Register for each contributing certification body. This provision will be reviewed after two years.

Policy Guidelines

Dr. Moonie: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps she is taking to ensure that the Office of Science and Technology's guidelines on "The Use of Scientific Advice in Policy Making", are implemented effectively by each Government Department. [18267]

Mrs. Beckett: The Government has given a firm commitment to strengthen the role which science plays in its decision making. One important aspect of this is ensuring that the OST's guidelines are taken fully into account across Government and, following consultation with Ministerial colleagues, I am now introducing a number of measures to achieve this. A Minister is being designated within each Department with special responsibility for ensuring that the Department's general procedures for taking account of scientific advice are consistent with the guidelines. In addition, departmental Chief Scientists will be reporting regularly to Sir Robert May, the Government's Chief Scientific Adviser, on how the guidelines are being taken into account by departments and on any emerging scientific issues of which other departments should be aware.

Food Imports

Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the quantity by weight of the main primary food products imported to the UK for the last two years for which figures are available. [17723]

Mr. Rooker: I have been asked to reply.

Imports of food products in a raw form or which retain their recognisable raw form, as recorded in the Overseas Trade Statistics, for 1995 and 1996 are given in the following table:

UK imports of food products in a raw form or which retain their recognisable raw form

000 tonnes

Category	1995	1996
Bovine meat	153	133
Pig meat	399	440
Poultry meat	229	234
Sheep meat	143	145
Other meat	42	48
Total meat and meat preparations	966	1,000
Birds' eggs	28	30
Butter	114	113
Cheese	213	252
Milk and cream	216	158
Other milk products	23	19
Total dairy products and birds' eggs	594	572
Fish	495	534
Cereals	3,202	2,848
Fruit	3,300	3,408
Nuts	98	85
Vegetables	3,060	2,898
Total vegetables, fruit and nuts	6,457	6,392
Sugar	2,314	2,188
Coffee, tea, cocoa and spices	557	661
Oils and fats	9,279	10,027
Grand total	23,865	24,222

These figures are provisional and subject to amendment.

The majority of foods in the categories "Oils and Fats" and "Vegetables" are destined for human consumption, but include some products used for other purposes.

SCOTLAND

University Funding

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the amount of university funding per student in Scotland in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96, (c) 1996–97 and (d) 1997–98; and if he will make a statement. [17216]

Mr. Wilson: The funding allocated to Scottish Higher Education Institutions by the Scottish Higher Education Funding Council for teaching and research per full-time equivalent student since 1994–95 is set out in the following table:

Funding of Scottish Higher Education Institutions from the Funding Council

	Financial year 1994–95	Financial year 1995–96	Financial year 1996–97	Financial year 1997–98
Total funding available for allocation to institutions (£ million)	508.6	541.6	535.2	545.5
FTE students eligible for funding	114,452	116,361	117,409	118,700
Total funding expressed on a FTE student basis	4,444	4,654	4,558	4,596

Training

Mr. Alasdair Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has made to the Department of Education and Employment concerning the decision to invite bids for the management of New Deal solely from private sector bodies; and if he will make a statement. [17331]

Mr. Brian Wilson: The decision to introduce a greater private sector role into the planning and delivery of the New Deal in an area of Scotland was taken by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State after consultation with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment.

WALES

Further Education

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many whole time equivalent students there were in (a) further and (b) higher education in May 1997. [17306]

Mr. Hain: Information on the number of further and higher education student full-time equivalents (FTEs) for the latest available years may be found in the following table:

Student FTEs on Further and Higher Education Courses in Wales[1]

	1995–96	1996–97
Higher education courses[2]	69,969	n/a
Further education courses[3]	56,319	60,683

[1] The information provided comes from the following Publications; "STUDENTS in Higher Education Institutions 1995–96" produced by the Higher Education Statistical Agency, and the "Further Education Funding Council for Wales" bulletin on "Further Education Early Student Enrolments 1995–96 and 1996–97".

[2] Student FTEs at higher education institutions at 1 December 1995. Excludes students on higher education courses at further education institutions. Data not yet available for 1996–97.

[3] Student FTEs on all further education courses at 1 November each year. Includes students at all further education and higher education institutions.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on his Department's expenditure on further education. [17637]

Mr. Hain: Total expenditure made available through the Further Education Funding Council for Wales (FEFCW) in 1996–97 amounted to just over £180 million. The FEFCW's budget for 1997–98 is £177 million. Provision for 1998–99 will be announced shortly as part of the Department's expenditure plans for next year.

Flintshire LEA

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what share of additional resources he has given Flintshire local education authority for the restoration of the fabric of schools. [17643]

Mr. Hain: Flintshire local education authority was allocated £233,000 of the additional £5,025,000 made available in 1997–98 for capital works at schools in Wales.

North-East Wales Institute

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the funding of the North-East Wales Institute. [17642]

Mr. Hain: The funding of individual institutions is a matter for the Higher Education Funding Council for Wales, who will announce their allocations for 1998–99 in due course.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Peace Process

9. Mr. Savidge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment she has made of progress in the Northern Ireland peace talks. [16239]

19. Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the progress of the political talks. [16250]

20. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the peace process in Northern Ireland. [16251]

21. Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the current state of relationships between the parties involved in the Northern Ireland peace talks. [16252]

27. Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement about the development of the peace process. [16258]

Majorie Mowlam: Since substantive discussions began on 7 October, the talks have covered a great deal of ground: a large number of papers have been tabled and discussed, covering all the essential elements of a settlement.

It is taking time to bring all the participants to engage on the key issues, but I believe there are increasing signs that they are doing so. The Government will do all that they can to facilitate progress towards a settlement.

United States

10. Mr. Quinn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the contribution made by the United States towards the achievement of peace and stability in Northern Ireland. [16240]

11. Mr. McWalter: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment she has made of the United States contribution to efforts to achieve peace and stability in Northern Ireland. [16241]

17. Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the contribution of the United States towards the achievement of peace and stability in Northern Ireland. [16248]

Marjorie Mowlam: The United States Administration share our desire for an enduring peace and lasting political settlement in Northern Ireland. This was all the more evident during my recent visit to the United States. We greatly value their rejection of violence; their commitment to the talks process; their support for the principle of consent; and their continuing support for the International Fund for Ireland, which has contributed significantly to Northern Ireland's economy. The President himself takes a close personal interest in Northern Ireland affairs; the First Lady visited Northern Ireland last month and Senator George Mitchell and Donald Johnson are playing a vital independent role in the talks and on decommissioning respectively.

Employment

12. Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps she is taking to increase employment in Northern Ireland. [16242]

Mr. Ingram: As in the rest of the United Kingdom, we are pursuing a range of initiatives to improve employment prospects. From measures to improve the skill base through to Welfare to Work and New Deal we will be raising employability. Our targeted economic development programmes will help create jobs through promotion of investment, creation of growth and the raising of Northern Ireland's international competitiveness.

Deregulation

13. Siobhain McDonagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to repeal unnecessary regulations in Northern Ireland. [16243]

Mr. Ingram: Regulations are constantly under review to determine their continued need. A recent example of positive action is the Draft Deregulation (Northern Ireland) Order, considered in Standing Committee on 18 November 1997.

Convicted Terrorists

14. Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions she has had during the peace talks in Northern Ireland with representatives of Sinn Fein about the transfer to Ireland of persons convicted and imprisoned for terrorist crimes in Great Britain. [16244]

Marjorie Mowlam: My Ministerial colleagues and I have had a number of discussions with Sinn Fein since the IRA ceasefire, during some of which prisoner issues—including the issue of repatriation of prisoners to the Republic of Ireland—have been raised. Our approach in these meetings has been to listen to Sinn Fein's concerns and to explain the Government's policy which is that the British Government will continue to honour its obligations under the Convention on the transfer of sentenced persons.

Parades

15. Ms Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what action she has taken to prevent premature disclosure of security information relating to parades. [16246]

Marjorie Mowlam: On 8 July this year Sir John Chilcot, permanent under secretary of state at the Northern Ireland Office instigated an inquiry to investigate the leaking to the media of a confidential Northern Ireland Office document concerning the Government's position on the Drumcree parade. That inquiry has now been completed. The report made a number of recommendations that are intended to prevent the re-occurrence of such a leak. Each recommendation has been examined and most have already been implemented. However, it would not be appropriate to comment on such internal security matters in any detail.

18. Mr. McNulty: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has for legislation to encourage local agreements on parades in Northern Ireland. [16249]

Marjorie Mowlam: As my hon. Friend will know, the Public Processions etc. (Northern Ireland) Bill has completed its passage through Committee in another place on 13 November. Report Stage will take place on 1 December. The Bill is designed to tackle the difficulties that have surrounded the parades issue in recent years by encouraging local agreement, and by giving the Parades Commission the power to make determinations where appropriate.

Look-out Posts (County Armagh)

16. Mr. Mallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when she plans to close the look-out posts in County Armagh. [16247]

Mr. Ingram: The decision to relocate 250 troops to Great Britain and the closure of the army base at Kilkeel are the most recent examples of actions taken commensurate with the changing situation in Northern Ireland. These follow significant de-escalatory measures already taken since the Provisional IRA ceasefire on 20 July. There are no plans, at present, to close the observation towers in County Armagh.

Tourism

22. Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on current trends in tourism in Northern Ireland. [16253]

Mr. Ingram: During 1995, a record 1.56 million visitors came to Northern Ireland. In 1996, following the ceasefire breakdown, visitor numbers fell to 1.44 million, an 8 per cent. decline on 1995, encouragingly remaining above pre-ceasefire levels. Current estimates for 1997 suggest the possibility of a further 1 per cent. decline, falling to around 1.4 million visitors.

Emergency Provisions

23. Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement about the renewal of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991. [16254]

Mr. Ingram: A bill to amend and extend the life of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996 was introduced on 30 October 1997, Official Report, column 1050. The Bill received its Second Reading on 18 November 1997, Official Report, columns 168–218 and Committee stage took place on 25 November.

Guardsmen Fisher and Wright

24. Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to her oral answer of 29 October 1997, Official Report, column 887, what representations she has received on the case of Guardsmen Fisher and Wright from serving Scots Guards officers. [16255]

Majorie Mowlam: I have received no representations which have been identified as coming from a serving Scots Guards Officer.

Ceasefire

25. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment she has made of the commitment of (a) Sinn Fein and (b) the IPA to the current ceasefire. [16256]

Mr. Ingram: I am content that the current PIRA ceasefire remains stable and I am confident that Sinn Fein's commitment to the peace process remains firm.

Inward Investment

26. Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what representations she has received concerning increasing inward investment into Northern Ireland. [16257]

Mr. Ingram: I receive many representations from those interested in the matter of inward investment including Members of this House, local government interests, business and commercial organisations and potential investors.

Employment

28. Mr. Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals she has to take affirmative action on employment measures for areas of serious economic and social deprivation in Northern Ireland. [16259]

Mr. Ingram: The Department of Economic Development's Action Plans for targeting employment measures on disadvantaged areas over the period 1995–98 are currently being implemented by its economic development agencies. In addition further consideration is being given to these issues in light of the recent report on employment equality published by the Standing Advisory Commission on Human Rights. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State hopes to publish a full response early next year.

Castle Buildings Negotiations

Mr. Robert McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the designation is of Senator Mitchell and General De Chastelain in relation to strand two of the Castle Buildings negotiations; and if she will list the names of the chairmen of the committees. [13017]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The talks participants decided on 24 September that Senator Mitchell, Prime Minister Holkeri and General de Chastelain should act as Joint Chairmen of Strand Two of the negotiations.

On the same date, they agreed that the Liaison sub-committees on Decommissioning and Confidence-Building Measures should be chaired by Senator Mitchell, as Chairman of the Plenary. General de Chastelain is under the rules of procedure Chairman of the Business Committee. Prime Minister Holkeri is by virtue of the rules Alternate Chairman of all the committees.

Fair Trade (Coffee and Tea)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to the oral statement by the Secretary of State for International Development, Official Report, 5 November 1997, column 332, if she will instruct officials to serve coffee and tea furnished by suppliers who adhere to fair trade standards in her Department. [15495]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer to the answer which the Prime Minister gave on the 13 November 1997, Official Report, column 617. All procurement decisions in my Department are based on the Government's policy of value for money.

E-mail

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 10 November 1997 from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Official Report, column 441, if she will list the e-mail addresses of (a) Ministers, (b) senior officials and (c) chief executives of agencies for which she is responsible. [15867]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Internet e-mail address for the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland is MM@NICS.GOV.UK.

Apart from the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, no other Northern Ireland Minister currently has an Internet e-mail address.

As far as senior officials and Chief Executives are concerned, some e-mail addresses do exist, but the issue of putting these addresses into the public domain in the Northern Ireland context is still under consideration.

Press Releases

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is her policy in respect of the faxing of press releases on the day of release to Opposition party spokesmen; what changes have been introduced since 1 May; and if she will make a statement. [16291]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Press releases are sent by fax only to people who have requested this service to meet urgent needs. Opposition spokesmen have not sought this service. Releases are distributed widely by courier and by mail, including the House of Commons Library, and are posted on the Internet immediately upon issue. No changes have been sought or introduced since 1 May.

University Funding

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list the amount of university funding per student in Northern Ireland in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96, (c) 1996–97 and (d) 1997–98; and if she will make a statement. [16937]

Mr. Worthington: The information requested is as follows:

Financial year	Amount of funding per student[1]
1994–95	5,471
1995–96	5,178
1996–97	[2]5,002
1997–98	[2]4,899

[1] In cash terms.
[2] Estimated figure.

NHS

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what factors underlay the recent allocation of additional funding to the National Health Service in Northern Ireland; what estimate she has made of the proportionality of this additional funding in relation to (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales; and if she will make a statement. [16959]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The package announced on 14 October provided an additional £300 million of funding for health care across the UK. One Hundred and ninety [illegible] pounds of this money was apportioned in line with the Barnett formula which reflects population size, and Northern Ireland got its fair share. For England, the Department of Health's share was supplemented by internal reallocations and a long-standing claim on the Reserve.

Mr. Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when she expects to publish the consultation paper on the revised health service structure in Northern Ireland. [16934]

Mr. Worthington: I intend to publish a consultation paper on new arrangements for commissioning and delivering health and social services in Northern Ireland in January 1998.

Schools

Mr. Casale: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many integrated schools in Northern Ireland (a) exist at present, (b) existed in 1992 and (c) are at the planning stage. [16390]

Mr. Worthington: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend, the Member for Corby (Mr. Hope).

Sinn Fein

Mr. Cobyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what guidelines are issued to Government offices in Northern Ireland concerning dealings with representatives of Sinn Fein; and if she will make as statement. [17836]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Government offices in Northern Ireland adhere to current Government policy which is that Sinn Fein should be treated on the same basis as any other political party.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Vitamin B6 Supplements

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which organisations dealing with the treatment of pre-menstrual tension have made recent representations in support of the restrictions on the retail sale of higher dose vitamin B6 supplements. [17218]

Mr. Rooker: The only organisation dealing specifically with pre-menstrual tension which has made representations about dietary supplements containing vitamin B6 is PMS Help. It has expressed support for the controls that the Government intend to introduce.

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has recently received in connection with the restrictions on the retail sale of higher dose vitamin B6 supplements from (a) Dr. Shrimpton, (b) Dr. Gaby and (c) Dr. Munro. [17208]

Mr. Rooker: Dr. Shrimpton and Dr. Gaby were among those who attended a meeting that the Minister for Public Health and I had with representatives of industry and complementary medicine organisations on 23 July to discuss the Government's proposed controls on dietary supplements containing vitamin B6. They also met with officials from the Department earlier on the same day. We have subsequently received a number of letters from both Dr. Shrimpton and Dr. Gaby on the subject of the proposed controls.

Animal Identification Scheme

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if the United Kingdom is taking part in the Identification Electronique des Animaux trials. [17267]

Mr. Rooker: No, principally because our resources in the area of cattle identification are already at full stretch in creating a national database of cattle movements. We are, however, keeping in touch with the trials being conducted in other Member States and various trials of electronic identification are taking place on a smaller scale in the UK.

Multi-annual Guidance Programme

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 4 November 1997, Official Report, column 134, if the United Kingdom has been deemed to have complied with multi-annual guidance programme objectives; what tonnage cut-back requirements now exist before vessel construction or modernisation grants are made available; what sums of (a) upgrade grants and (b) decommissioning grants are involved; and if he will make a statement. [17276]

Mr. Morley: As the table showed in my previous answer, the United Kingdom had shortfalls against target in a number of its MAGP III segments as at the end of 1996 and does not currently qualify for EU funding in respect of vessel construction or modernisation grants, other than for safety-related improvements, which do not result in an increase in fishing effort.

Under the terms of MAGP IV, these shortfalls continue to have to be met in addition to our new objectives, which the Commission has still to confirm. The resulting percentage reductions will vary according to the segments and fisheries concerned and will in some cases be expressed in terms of fishing effort rather than tonnage. It is not possible to give definitive figures in advance of the Commission's formal Decision. As far as future expenditure is concerned, the Government are still considering the position in relation to decommissioning but have no plans to pay upgrade grants other than under the existing safety schemes.

Ritually Slaughtered Animals

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proposals he has to end the ritual slaughter of animals. [17253]

Mr. Morley: The Government do not propose to remove the right of the Jewish and Muslim communities to slaughter animals in accordance with the requirements of their religion. We do, however, believe that animals should be stunned before slaughter wherever possible. We will continue to discuss our concerns with representatives of the religious communities, with a view to encouraging, where possible, an increase in the incidence of stunning before slaughter.

Vitamins Ban

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of the UN Codex (Ban on Vitamins); and if he will make a statement. [17318]

Mr. Rooker: There is no Codex ban on vitamins. The Codex Committee on Nutrition and Foods for Special Dietary Uses is currently in the process of drawing up guidelines on supplements containing vitamin and minerals. These address a number of issues, including the setting of maximum vitamin and mineral content of supplements. The latest draft, which is due to be discussed again in September 1998, includes a number of possible options for this. One of these provides for the vitamin and mineral content of supplements to be limited to 100 per cent. of the recommended daily intake. Other options included establishing maximum limits on a case by case basis, and having no maximum at all.

Codex standards and guidelines are advisory and it is for individual Governments to decide what use, if any, they wish to make of them.

Hill Farmers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the average age of hill farmers in (a) 1977, (b) 1987 and (c) 1997. [17417]

Mr. Morley: Information is not available for the years requested; the closest years are 1975, 1985 and 1995. The following table provides estimates of the average age of holders of hill farms based on analysis of age band data from the Structure Survey.

Estimated average age of holders[1] of hill farms[2] in the United Kingdom

Year	Average age[3]
1975	54
1985	56
1995	57

[1] The holder of the farm is that (natural or legal) person in whose name the farm is operated.
[2] A hill farm is defined as a farm wholly or mainly in less favoured areas.
[3] A holder working on more than one holding will be represented more than once within the average.

Scientific Research and Development

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much money was spent or is budgeted to be spent on scientific research and development in each of the last 10 financial years; and how much is budgeted to be spent in 1997–98. [17423]

Mr. Rooker: The Department's total research and development expenditure for each of the last 10 financial years is set out as follows, together with the budgeted expenditure for 1997–98.

Year	£ million
1996–87	118.3
1987–88	113.8
1988–89	115.0
1989–90	112.2
1990–91	119.1
1991–92	121.5
1992–93	132.9
1993–94	135.0
1994–95	137.2
1995–96	139.7
1996–97	137.4
1997–98	146.3[1]

[1] Budgeted figure.

Research Institutes

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what were the redundancy costs caused by reductions or redeployments of his Department's research and development funding to (a) MAFF-sponsored research institutes, (b) AFRC/BBSRC-sponsored institutes and (c) other public sector research institutions, in each year from 1987–88 to 1997–98; and of these costs, how much in each year was borne by MAFF and how much by which other Departments. [17424]

Mr. Rooker: I regret that information on redundancy costs in these bodies is not held centrally. Much would be available only at disproportionate cost. Moreover, it would not be possible to link directly the changes in the Ministry's R and D funding at public sector research establishments to the particular decisions they reached on staff redundancies, and their costs, given the wide variety of other factors involved.

Organic Farming

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what support his Department gives to farmers wanting to change to organic farming practices. [17632]

Mr. Morley: Prospective organic farmers can obtain free technical advice under the Organic Conversion Information Service. Financial help for those converting to organic systems is available under the Organic Aid Scheme. In addition, there is a research and development programme for organic farming and we also fund the United Kingdom Register of Organic Food Standards.

Badgers

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he expects the Krebs Report on badgers and bovine tuberculosis to be published. [17631]

Mr. Rooker: I expect Professor Krebs' Report to be published before Christmas.

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 120 (1) what is the level of radioactivity associated with the miss-distance indicators disposed of in the Holyhead Deep in 1974; [17380]

(2) if he will place in the Library details of the advice he received on the implications for human health and the environment of the disposal of miss-distance indicators in the Holyhead Deep in 1974. [17381]

Mr. Rooker: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Workington (Mr. Campbell-Savours) on 24 November 1997, Official Report, columns 409–10, and to the report by the National Radiological Protection Board, which was placed in the Library of the House.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Child Care

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what incentives are being offered to child care providers to take on and train young people as child care assistants. [17273]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The New Deal for young unemployed people will create opportunities for young people to train as child care assistants on the Voluntary Sector, Employment, and Full Time Education and Training options. We have been talking to key child care organisations to facilitate their involvement. We will be providing financial assistance to help child care organisations employ and train young unemployed people, the amount of which will vary according to the type of placement on offer, and the needs of the participant.

Expenditure

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on his Department's expenditure plans for 1998–99. [18306]

Mr. Blunkett: The Department's control total for 1998–99 is £13,372 million. We are committed to working within the Department totals for 1998–99 which we inherited from the previous administration and therefore this sum is the same as that announced in November 1996 except in respect of agreed inter-Departmental transfers. I have reallocated this expenditure to align the Department's programmes with the Government's new objectives, policies and priorities.

The voted expenditure for 1998–99 will be supplemented by up to £856 million from outside the control total, financed by the windfall tax, for the welfare to work programme and the New Deal for Schools. In addition, the bulk of expenditure on schools is provided through the local authority finance settlement. The level of expenditure next year on the New Deal for people with disabilities or a long-standing illness, and the New Deal for lone parents, will be announced when plans are finalised.

SCHOOLS

Local authority finance

My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in the Budget an addition to local authority Education Standard Spending of £1,017 million, a year on year increase of 5.7 per cent., taking the total to £19,384 million including the transfer back into local government finance of the deduction made for the Nursery Voucher Scheme introduced by the previous administration. The details of the local authority finance settlement will be announced next week by my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister. It is for local authorities to decide how to allocate the available funding, but the Government expects that the funds will be passed on to schools and devoted to raising standards.

Under fives

We are returning to local education authorities the deduction of £527 million from standard spending assessments made by the previous administration. These funds will allow authorities to work in partnership with the private and voluntary sectors to develop their Early Years Development Plans, designed to provide a high quality nursery education on demand to all four-year-olds. Central government funds of £135 million will provide additional grant support to local authorities, to support expansion of the number of places available, and the development of Early Excellence Centres.

School standards and effectiveness

We have set up a new and expanded Standards Fund, replacing the Grants for Educational Support and Training programme. The total Standards Fund programme expenditure is to be £500 million.

Schools capital and the New Deal for Schools

£250 million will be made available from the windfall tax in 1998–99 for the New Deal for Schools, to start tackling the backlog of repairs to school buildings and to develop public private partnerships to maintain an repair schools. The total includes £15 million for school security, to be deployed as part of the Standards Fund. These sums are in addition to the existing schools capital programme of £648 million, including the Department's contribution to the Government's local authority capital challenge fund.

National Grid for Learning

£50 million of the New Deal for Schools funds in 1998–99 will support expenditure of £100 million on the capital and infrastructure requirements of setting up the National Grid for Learning, to give schools easier access to high quality materials to support the raising of standards. This will be delivered through the Standards Fund.

Specialist schools

The specialist schools programme will be increased by £6 million to £41 million to support public/private partnerships, allowing the expansion of the programme to 330 schools by September 1998. At the same time we shall broaden the reach of the programme, ensuring that it is open to as many children as possible—both those attending specialist schools, and those in neighbouring schools enjoying their facilities.

Teacher Training Agency

The total grant for the Teacher Training Agency will be £206 million in recognition of the central role they have to play in the Government's drive on standards through action to recruit sufficient high quality entrants to teaching; to ensure that new and existing teachers receive the support and training they need to raise pupil achievement, particularly in the priority areas of literacy, numeracy and ICT; and to underpin effective school leadership.

LIFELONG LEARNING, FURTHER AND HIGHER EDUCATION

Lifelong learning

The Government is committed to creating a learning society. This will involve both greater and wider participation, giving access and opportunity to those hitherto excluded so that equality of opportunity and lifelong learning become a reality. We have been able to redirect expenditure so as to make a start on the recommendations of the Kennedy report to widen participation in lifelong learning amongst disadvantaged groups with low or no qualifications.

Further Education

A total of £83 million, including £63 million of new public funding and an estimated £20 million increase in employers' contributions to course fees, will be available to the further education sector in 1998–99, taking the Further Education Funding Council's grant for 1998–99 to £3,114 million.

Higher Education

I have already announced a package of measures that will allow an extra £165 million to be spent on higher education in 1998–99. Universities and colleges will have an extra £125 million to maintain quality and improve standards and to make a start on the backlog of maintenance and equipment replacement. There will be a £36 million access package to benefit part-time students and those facing particular hardship, allowing the doubling of access funds. £4 million will be made available to increase HE participation through sub-degree programmes. The grant for the Higher Education Funding Council will be set at £3,504 million.

Training and Enterprise Councils

The Government is committed to the role of TECs in meeting local needs and contributing to local economic development. The Department's programmes to be delivered through TECs in 1998–99 amount to £1.3 billion. In addition, TECs will be playing an important strategic role as a key local partner in a wide range of other initiatives including New Deal, the Single Regeneration Budget, and European funding schemes.

Employment programmes

Welfare to work

The Government is committed to helping unemployed people, particularly the most disadvantaged, enhance their employability and get into work as quickly as possible. Following my right hon. Friend the Chancellor's announcement in the Budget, we will be spending up to an additional £606 million in 1998–99 for the introduction of the New Deal for unemployed 18–24 year olds and for those over 25 unemployed for two years or more. The New Deal for unemployed 18–24 year olds will be launched in January next year in pathfinder areas, with the national start in April. The New Deal for the long-term unemployed will start in June 1998.

In addition, the Secretary of State for Social Security and I are working closely together on plans for launching the New Deal for people with disabilities or a long-standing illness, using up to £195 million which the Budget made available, and on plans to launch the national roll out of the New Deal for lone parents with an additional £150 million, over the lifetime of the Parliament.

Employment Zones

We have reallocated expenditure within the Employment Service to allow £30 million to be deployed in 1998–99 to setting up the first prototype Employment Zones, which will offer new help for unemployed people, providing innovative pathways into sustainable work.

Other measures for helping the unemployed

In addition to the above, we have refocussed some £289 million provision within the Employment Service to enable it to help other unemployed people and those with disabilities back to work.

Oxford and Cambridge Universities

Mr. Wickes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what is the combined asset value of Oxford and Cambridge Universities, including constituent colleges; and what percentage this represents of the equivalent asset values of all other British universities. [16490]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Tamworth (Mr. Jenkins) on 10 November 1997, Official Report, column 448.

Mr. Wickes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what proportion of student entrants at (a) Oxford and (b) Cambridge University attended state secondary schools in each year since 1975. [16489]

Dr. Howells: The information requested is not held centrally. I understand that the Admissions Offices of both universities do produce annual statistics along these lines and my hon. Friend may care to speak to them directly.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency

Mr. Lock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned to study the relationship between clinical outcomes and the distance patients have to travel to accident and emergency departments at district hospitals; and if he will make a statement on its conclusions. [16956]

Mr. Boateng: In January 1996 the Department published a review of Accident and Emergency (A&E) departments as part of the Health Care Needs Assessment series. In addition in May 1995 the Department published the "Review of Literature on Accident and Emergency Departments and Clinical Outcomes". Copies are available in the Library.

Health authorities and National Health Service trusts should provide an accident and emergency service which meets the needs of local people. The distance people have to travel to accident and emergency departments will therefore vary according to local circumstances.

There is evidence that seriously ill and injured patients do better in larger departments where a high proportion of care is offered by consultant staff, with access to backup from a range of specialist departments.

Ritalin

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned into alternatives to the use of Ritalin in the treatment of children. [17053]

Ms Jowell: Ritalin can be used as a treatment for attention deficit disorder (ADD) in cases when medication is considered to be appropriate. Ritalin has been subjected to controlled trials and can be effective when given to the right children. Other types of medication can also be used as alternative or complementary treatment but Ritalin is the most comprehensively researched medication and is usually considered to be the drug of choice. It should be used under the supervision of a specialist in childhood behavioural disorders as part of a comprehensive treatment programme, which also includes psychological, educational and social measures, to stabilise children with a behavioural syndrome.

The Department of Health has not commissioned any research into alternatives to the use of Ritalin in the treatment of children. The main agency through which the Government supports medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council. The MRC supports a number of studies into the causes and treatment of ADD, but is not currently supporting any research into pharmacological interventions. However, the MRC always welcomes high quality applications for support into any aspect of attention deficit disorder and these are judged in open competition with other demands on funding. Awards are made according to their scientific quality and importance to human health.

Children in Care

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children were accommodated by local authorities other than under care orders in (a) Staffordshire, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England and Wales in 1996. [17162]

Mr. Boateng: As published in Table 3 of "Children Looked After by Local Authorities, year Ending 31 March 1996, England" the figures for children looked after at 31 March not under a care order were (a) 350 for Staffordshire, (b) 2,300 for West Midlands (excluding Solihull, for which no data are available), and (c) 22,300 for England.

These figures exclude children who were looked after under an agreed series of short-term placements.

Questions relating to Wales are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many care orders were made in (a) Staffordshire, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England and Wales in 1996. [17165]

Mr. Boateng: Figures for care orders made during the year ending 31 March 1996, the latest year for which information is available, were (a) 170 for Staffordshire, (b) 1,070 for West Midlands (excluding Solihull, for which no data are available), and (c) 10,100 for England.

Figures include both interim and full care orders, excluding renewals.

Questions relating to Wales are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children (a) in care under care orders and (b) otherwise accommodated by local authorities left the care of local authorities in (i) Staffordshire, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England and Wales in 1996; for what reasons; and where they went. [17163]

Mr. Boateng: The latest available figures for children at the point of leaving care are given in the table. Statistics are not collected centrally on the subsequent history of such children after they have left care, but a Department of Health funded research project published in 1995 looked at the experiences of a small sample of care leavers. About half moved first to some form of transitional accommodation (e.g. hostel, lodgings, or to stay with friends); 20 per cent. moved directly into independent tenancies in the public, voluntary or private sector; 12 per cent. returned to live with parents or relatives; and 15 per cent. made no move when they first ceased to be "looked after", choosing to remain with parents, relatives or foster carers.

As the research sample was very small (74 individuals), care must be taken in drawing any general conclusions from these figures.

Questions relating to Wales are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Children who ceased to be looked after during year ending 31 March 1996, by reason that the final episode of care ceased, England

	England	West Midlands	Staffordshire
All children	31,600	3,340	390
Reason ceased to be looked after:
Children under care orders
All children under care orders	5,350	570	90
Reached maximum age	1,800	180	20
Care order discharged or expired	1,900	220	50
Care order replaced by supervision order	170	20	—
Adopted	880	70	10
Other reason ceased to be looked after	600	70	10
Other legal status
All children who were looked after under other legal statuses	26,250	2,740	300
Reached maximum age	1,270	110	30
Adopted	830	90	20
Placement ceased in accordance with plan	14,020	1,280	120
Placement ceased at request of parents	4,700	610	50
Placement ceased at request of child	1,600	170	20
Police protection order expired	430	50	—
Accommodation on remand ceased	1,030	80	20
Other reason ceased to be looked after	2,400	340	50

Figures are rounded to the nearest 10; totals may not sum due to rounding. Figures for care orders include both Interim, full and deemed Care Orders, and relate to the latest recorded legal status when the child ceased to be looked after.
Figures exclude children who are accommodated under an agreed series of short-term placements.
Where a child already looked after moved into respite care, that child is regarded as having ceased to be looked after for the purposes of this statistical analysis.
These figures include estimates for missing data. The West Midlands figure covers the Government Office Region, excluding Solihull for which no data are available.

Kidderminster Hospital

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what medical services are provided at Kidderminster hospital. [17177]

Mr. Milburn: The following medical services are currently provided at Kidderminster General Hospital:

Accident and Emergency Services
General Surgery
Urology
Trauma and Orthopaedics
Ophthalmology
Oral Surgery
Anaesthetics/Pain Relief
Gynaecology
Orthodontics (Outpatients only)
ENT
General Medicine
Haematology
Dermatology
Rheumatology
Gastroenterology
Chest Medicine
Cardiology (Outpatients only)
Neurology (Outpatients only)
Geriatrics
Paediatrics (except in-patient medical)
Psychiatry
Psychology
Radiotherapy (Outpatients only)
Obstetrics (Midwifery led)
Radiology
Pathology
Audiology

Source:
Finance Department, Kidderminster General Hospital.

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact of the closure of the accident and emergency unit at Kidderminster upon the population of North Worcestershire and South Shropshire. [17180]

Mr. Milburn: The strategic review of services in Worcestershire is considering a number of options.

Decisions about the future of accident and emergency services will reflect carefully researched evidence on staffing issues and the effect they will have on clinical effectiveness and safety at each site. The evidence is currently being collated and tested and will be made available as part of the public consultation process which will commence in December.

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much capital has been expended on Kidderminster hospital in each of the past 10 years. [17179]

Mr. Milburn: The information requested is not collected centrally, but the Kidderminster General Hospital Finance department reports capital expended on Kidderminster hospital in the last 10 years; approximately £25 million has been spent in the last 10 years; £20 million on buildings and £5 million on equipment.

Major schemes include: (a) £14 million on Phase VI—new theatre suite, 120 beds and out-patient clinics (completed 1995); (b) £870,000 on Cancer Resource Centre (£350,000 donated)—completed October 1997; (c) £1.5 million on Pathology/Mortuary buildings; (d) £570,000 on X-ray equipment.

Source:
Kidderminster General Hospital.

Nurses

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of staff shortages in areas of care formerly undertaken by state enrolled nurses; and what plans he has to create a replacement position to that of state enrolled nurse. [17212]

(2) if he will make a statement on the impact on health services of ending the position of state enrolled nurse. [17211]

Mr. Milburn: The professional status of the second level (enrolled) nurse remains unchanged. There are currently 332,660 (whole time equivalent) nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff employed by the National Health Service Hospital and Community Services of which some 10 per cent. are second level

(enrolled) nurses. Second level (enrolled) nurses continue to make an important contribution to the NHS and their skills and experience have been fully recognised by the clinical grading structure, which rewards nurses for the jobs they do.

Ambulance Service

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what system is used by ambulance services in England and Wales to eliminate hoax and unnecessary calls for emergency assistance; what plans he has to review these mechanisms; in what circumstances ambulance services may decide not to attend calls considered to be hoax or unnecessary; and if he will make a statement. [17214]

Mr. Boateng: Measures are being taken to reduce the number of hoax calls in a joint initiative between emergency services and telephone operating companies. Ambulance services are also introducing priority dispatch systems which will help identify unnecessary calls. If hoax calls are a particular problem, ambulance services may develop local policies and protocols for not attending in such cases. These must be agreed with local clinicians.

Radiotherapy

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many women have been diagnosed as suffering injury or other adverse effects as a result of radiotherapy for breast cancer in each year since 1970; [17405]

(2) how many women have received radiotherapy treatment for breast cancer in each year since 1970; [17404]

(3) what information his Department collates centrally from regional radiotherapy centres. [17406]

Mr. Boateng: The most recent central information on numbers of radiotherapy exposures is for the financial year 1992–93 but this did not record the site of the cancer treated. Since then information has not been collected from radiotherapy departments. The number of women receiving radiotherapy for breast cancer includes women who receive it as part of the primary treatment to the breast and surrounding areas and those who receive it for treatment of recurrent breast cancer in the breast or other parts of the body, particularly the bones. In 1992 in England (latest year for which Office for National Statistic figures are available) 30,000 women were diagnosed with breast cancer and it is estimated that around half of these would have received radiotherapy as part of primary treatment. Statistics are not routinely collected on the adverse effects of treatments in any medical discipline although this is done in clinical trials.

Technology Foresight

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what Technology Foresight priorities are being taken into account in the forward planning of the Department's scientific research programme. [17463]

Ms Jowell: The scope of the Department's scientific research programmes is sufficiently broad to encompass many of the recommendations made by the Foresight Programme in general and by the Health and Life Sciences Panel in particular. Foresight principles have been incorporated into the forward planning processes used by the Clinical Horizons Scanning Group. A corporate knowledge base on health trends and related information has been developed and is available to provide support for the forward planning of the Department's scientific research programmes.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what way the Department's research priorities have been modified in response to Technology Foresight. [17464]

Ms Jowell: The Central Research and Development Committee has recently recommended that the structure of the centrally funded R and D programmes of the National Health Service should be reconfigured around three broad themes—Health Technology Assessment, Service Delivery and Organisation and New and Emerging Technologies. The latter theme is Foresight related; the full scope of the projects to be included in this new theme has yet to be agreed.

Child Care Task Force

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will list the programme of work of the Ministerial Task Force on Child Care and the dates on which it will report; [17537]

(2) what are the (a) terms of reference and (b) membership of the Ministerial Task Force on Child Care. [17539]

Mr. Boateng: We shall be announcing the terms of reference and membership of the Ministerial Task Force shortly.

Cannabis

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to implement the recommendations of the BMA's report on the therapeutic use of cannabis. [17416]

Mr. Boateng: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has no plans to do so at present.

Community Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to review the legal framework of community care to take account of the recent Gloucestershire judgment. [17555]

Mr. Boateng: The judgment given on appeal from the Court of Appeal in the House of Lords on 20 March in the case of R versus Gloucestershire County Council and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health, ex parte Barry (the "Gloucestershire Judgment"), confirmed the law as the Department of Health has always understood it and we have no plans to review the legal framework of community care in the light of that judgment.

Food Poisoning

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will provide a breakdown of the foods accounting for the notified bacterial food poisoning cases in 1996. [17534]

Ms Jowell: The information requested is not collected centrally. The great majority of food poising notifications are sporadic cases notified on the basis of clinical symptoms in which it is seldom possible to establish the vehicle of infection.

NHS Trusts (Membership)

Mr. Prior: To ask the Secretary of state for Health (1) if he will make a statement on his policy on the selection of (a) chairmen and (b) board members of NHS trusts; [17382]

(2) when he expects to announce (a) the next chairman of the Norfolk and Norwich Health Care NHS Trust and (b) the next chairman of the Norfolk Mental Health Care NHS Trust; [17383]

(3) if he will make a statement on the re-appointment of (a) the chairman and (b) other board members of the Norfolk and Norwich Health Care NHS Trust. [17384]

Mr. Milburn: All National Health Service appointments are made on merit, and in accordance with guidance from the Commissioner for Public Appointments and the Government's criteria on the qualities required for chairmen and non-executives. Outstanding appointments to the boards of the Norfolk and Norwich Health Care Trust and the Norfolk Mental Health Care Trust will be made as soon as possible.

Ministerial Meetings and Visits (London)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list, separately by Minister, and by date, each (a) meeting attended by and (b) visit undertaken by Ministers (i) in London and (ii) with people working for the National Health Service in London since 1 May, other than meetings with, or visits to, civil servants working for his Department centrally or for the South Thames or North Thames NHS regional offices. [17831]

Mr. Milburn: The table shows all Ministerial visits to National Health Service trusts, health authorities and primary care sites in London since 1 May 1997.

Ministerial visits in London since 1 May 1997

Date	Minister	Visits
30 May	Baroness Jay	London Ambulance Service NHS Trust
3 June	Mr. Boateng	Health and Care Centre at Wembley Hospital
23 June	Mr. Milburn	South Westminster Centre for Health (Riverside Community Healthcare NHS Trust)
24 June	Mr. Boateng	North West London Mental Health NHS Trust
25 June	Mr. Milburn	Central Middlesex Hospital NHS Trust
10 July	Mr. Milburn	Kingston Hospital NHS Trust
16 July	Baroness Jay	Guy's and St. Thomas' Hospital NHS Trust
17 July	Mr. Milburn	St. George's Healthcare NHS Trust Pathfinder Mental Health Services NHS Trust St. John's Therapy Centre, Wandsworth (Wandsworth Community NHS Trust)
21 July	Mr. Milburn	St. Mary's Hospital NHS Trust
24 July	Mr. Milburn	St. Andrew's Hospital (Newham Healthcare NHS Trust) Newham District General Hospital (Newham Healthcare NHS Trust) Globe Town Surgery, E2 Dr. Varma's Surgery, E1

Ministerial visits in London since 1 May 1997

Date	Minister	Visits
24 July	Mr. Boateng	Law Medical Centre, Wembley (Brent and Harrow HA)
12 August	Mr. Dobson	Hammersmith Hospitals NHS Trust
2 September	Mr. Boateng	Central Middlesex Hospital NHS Trust
9 September	Baroness Jay	Teddington Memorial Hospital NHS Trust
15 September	Mr. Milburn	London Ambulance Service NHS Trust Battersea Locality Group, Queens Town Road Medical Practice
16 September	Mr. Milburn	Kings Healthcare NHS Trust The Maudsley Hospital (The Bethlem and Maudsley NHS Trust) Optimum Healthcare NHS Trust
22 September	Baroness Jay	Dr. Shah's Surgery and Parkside Health Centre (Parkside Health NHS Trust)
6 October	Mr. Milburn	Guy's and St. Thomas' Hospital NHS Trust (included visits to Guy's and St. Thomas' Hospitals)
9 October	Mr. Milburn	The Royal Hospitals NHS Trust Homerton Hospital NHS Trust
14 October	Mr. Dobson	Central Middlesex Hospital NHS Trust
15 October	Mr. Milburn	Richmond Twickenham and Roehampton NHS Trust (Queen Mary's University Hospital)
16 October	Mr. Boateng	Central Middlesex Hospital NHS Trust
29 October	Mrs. Jowell	Practice Managers Forum (Lambeth Southwark and Lewisham HA)
30 October	Mr. Milburn	Havering Hospitals NHS Trust (included visits to Haroldwood and Oldchurch Hospitals)
12 November	Mr. Dobson	Kenton Bridge Medical Centre (Brent and Harrow HA)
12 November	Baroness Jay	Guy's and St. Thomas' Hospital NHS Trust
20 November	Mr. Dobson	Elizabeth Garrett Anderson Hospital (University College London Hospitals NHS Trust)

Influenza

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contingency plans his Department has evaluated for dealing with a flu epidemic this winter; and if he will make a statement. [17342]

Ms Jowell [holding answer 24 November 1997]: Outbreaks of influenza occur every winter and measures to ameliorate illness and cope with the increased demand on health care services are part of routine planning. The first priority for health authorities and National Health Service trusts is to make adequate provision for emergency care and there will be plans in place for responding to any increases in demand for treatment. There is currently no reason to believe that this year's flu season will be worse than those seen in recent years. The Department recommends that people with underlying diseases which put them at increased risk of serious illness should they develop flu should receive flu vaccine each year. Doctors were reminded of this policy in August 1997, and at the launch of flu awareness week in October. We know that those most 'at risk' for flu, the complications of flu and those most likely to be admitted to hospital for flu are patients with chronic risk conditions: studies have continued to show that those in 'at risk' groups benefit most from vaccination.

So far this year a record 6.9 million doses of flu vaccine have been distributed. General practitioners and practice nurses are encouraged to make sure they give flu vaccine to as many people at risk from the complications of flu as possible. Leaflets entitled 'Flu vaccination' and 'What should I do about flu?' have been made available to practices through the Department of Health. Copies are also available in the Library. Flu activity is reported on a weekly basis. We monitor the situation closely once the normal winter increase in flu activity begins and situation reports are used to keep health authorities advised of any unusual levels of activity.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 27 November 1997

DEFENCE

Military Personnel

Mr. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military personnel have left the Army since 1 May; how many have been recruited since that date; and how many vacancies existed at the end of October. [16926]

Dr. Reid: A total of around 5,000 personnel left the Army between 1 May and 1 October 1997. More than 6,000 personnel entered the Army from civilian life during the same period. At 1 October the Army was undermanned by around 4,500 trained personnel. The figures to 1 October are provisional, and include trained Gurkha personnel but exclude the Royal Irish (Home Service). The figures to the end of October 1997 are not yet available.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many research projects have been commissioned by his Department in each year from 1987 to date concerning the genetic modification of (a) organisms and (b) micro-organisms. [17736]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 25 November 1997]: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA). I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Paul Tyler, dated 27 November 1997:

I have been asked to reply to your question about research projects concerned with the genetic modification of organisms and micro-organisms as most work of this nature is carried out for the Ministry of Defence by the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA).

The genetic modification work undertaken at DERA's Chemical and Biological Defence Sector (CBD) at Porton Down is all concerned with micro-organisms. None of the work is concerned with the genetic modification of higher organisms.

Health and Safety legislation requires that all projects involving genetic manipulation in the UK must be approved by local Genetic Manipulation Safety Committees (GMSC). The GMSC at CBD has approved the following experiments per year since 1987.

Year	Number of projects
1987	8
1988	11
1989	19
1990	8
1991	12
1992	19
1993	15
1994	13
1995	8
1996	20
1997 (to 18 November 1997)	14

All these projects are part of an overall defensive research programme to provide safe and effective protection for the UK Armed Forces in the event of chemical or biological attack.

It would not be in the national interest for me to give details of these projects.

I am sorry I cannot be more helpful on this occasion.

Foxes (MOD Estate)

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate his Department has made of the number of foxes on his Department's estate in each of the past five years. [18033]

Mr. Spellar: No estimates have been made of the numbers of foxes on the Defence Estate.

Buildings and Installations (Servicing)

Mr. McWilliam: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will list each civilian company and subsidiary employed by his Department to service Ministry of Defence installations and buildings, indicating the functions they carry out; [17864]

(2) if he will list by company the cost to public funds to date in payments to each company contracted to service MOD buildings and installations. [17863]

Mr. Spellar: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

University Air Squadrons

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will ensure that (a) cadets learning to fly through the university air squadrons and (b) those taking air experience flights will be trained in British-built aircraft. [18059]

Dr. Reid: A final decision has still to be taken on the contract to provide the University Air Squadron and Air Cadet Air Experience Flight flying requirements. A UK-manufactured aircraft is one of the options being considered. All factors will be taken into account in reaching a decision on which options offers best operational performance and best overall value for money.

Fox Hunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 24 November 1997, Official Report, column 393, if he will discuss with the Masters of Foxhounds Association his Department's interpretation of the MFHA's press release of 8 August in respect of the practice of digging out foxes on the estate; and if he will make a statement. [17954]

Mr. Spellar: My Department's position on the practice of digging out is clear: it will be neither requested nor permitted on the defence Estate.

Remembrance Sunday (Union Flag)

Mr. McWilliam: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who was responsible for the Union Flag flown above Whitehall main building on Remembrance Sunday. [17865]

Mr. Spellar: Under the terms of their contract, day to day responsibility for ensuring that flags on MoD Main Building, Whitehall, are maintained in good condition, regularly washed and flown correctly at the appropriate times lies with Building and Property Defence Limited. Under new arrangements instituted since Remembrance Sunday, visual checks carried out by Departmental staff will ensure that correct procedures are followed.

PRIME MINISTER

President of the Board of Trade

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Prime Minister if he gave permission for the President of the Board of Trade not to attend oral questions on 20 November. [17556]

The Prime Minister: I gave my permission for my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade to be overseas on 20 November.

Ministerial Interests

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the issues and companies which each Minister is unable to handle in order to avoid a conflict of interst. [17557]

The Prime Minister: No. Ministers are required to ensure that there is no conflict of interest between their public duties and their private interests. There is no static list of issues or companies. Ministers are asked to remain alert to the possibility of conflicts of interests when dealing with Government business.

Mr. Rupert Murdoch

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the issues of public policy which he discussed with Mr. Rupert Murdoch during their meeting on 13 November. [17655]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 25 November 1997]: We discussed a range of issues.

Political Donations

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister when he became aware of the possible conflict of interest arising from a second donation on behalf of Mr. Bernie Ecclestone. [17943]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the oral answer I gave in the House on 12 November 1997, Official Report, columns 898–99.

Diabetics

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his oral answer of 19 November 1997, Official Report, column 325, what scientific advice the Government received recommending driving licence restrictions on insulin-dependent diabetics; and if he will publish that advice. [17610]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 26 November 1997]: As I told the hon. Gentleman in my earlier reply, the Government receives advice from the Honorary Advisory Panel on Driving and Diabetes, one of a number of such panels comprising experts in their field. At a recent meeting they confirmed that in their view there was no new evidence to support a change in the policy with regard to granting licences to drive the heavier vehicles to diabetes sufferers treated by insulin. Their advice draws on their experience and assessment of the scientific literature. There is therefore no scientific advice as such from the Panel which could be published.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Prime Minister if it is the policy of Her Majesty's Government that (a) all visits undertaken by Ministers in connection with their duties be notified, reasonably in advance, to the hon. Member of the area visited and (b) that hon. Member is permitted to participate in the visit. [17843]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 26 November 1997]: I set out guidance to my Ministerial colleagues on these matters in paragraph 79 of the Ministerial Code, a copy of which was placed in the Library of the House in July.

Government Information Service

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the Government Information Service. [18408]

The Prime Minister: I am today placing in the Library of the House the Report of a Working Group on the Government Information Service. The Report is about modernising the Government's communications with the media to make them more effective and authoritative—an integral part of a democratic Government's duty to govern with consent. Its main proposals are:

- to improve co-ordination with and from the centre, so as to get across consistently the Government's key policy themes and messages, through a new strategic communications unit serving the whole Government; a reformed Cab-E-Net system; and clearer rules on attribution;
- to improve co-ordination within each Government Department so that Ministers, their special advisers, their press offices and their policy civil servants all play their part in the coherent formulation and communication of policy;
- to bring the practice and procedures of all Government press offices up to the standards of the best, geared to quick response round the clock with help from a new central media monitoring unit;
- to retain a politically impartial service and to sustain the trusted values of the service embodied in its rules of guidance;
- on the basis that communication is an integral part of policy formulation, to develop closer and better working relations between policy civil servants and press offices;
- to offer high quality management and leadership, staffing and training and development tailored to meet the needs of the 24-hour media world.

I have accepted the recommendations of the Report. The costs of the two new Units will be contained within the Department's running costs. Together, these proposals will produce a service, renamed the Government Information Service and Communication Service, which is fit for its purpose and fit for the future.

European Council

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister at what time he left the European Council meeting at Amsterdam. [18035]

The Prime Minister: At its conclusion.

Iraq

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister for what reasons the request by Mr. Tariq Aziz to meet representatives of the British Government at the United Nations to enter into a dialogue on the situation in Iraq was declined. [17918]

The Prime Minister: Mr. Aziz wished to enter into dialogue on the subject of the UN Special Commission (UNSCOM). It is not for Iraq to attempt to lay down conditions on this subject. UNSCOM received its mandate under Security Council Resolution (SCR) 687. It is non-negotiable. Iraq must comply with all relevant SCRs.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Emergency Provisions

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Attorney-General, pursuant to the statement of the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland of 18 November 1997, Official Report, columns 215–16, what factors led him to conclude it would appear invidious for him to deny a person a jury trial in some scheduled offences; and for what reasons he assesses it not to be invidious for him to deny jury trials in other scheduled offences. [17570]

The Attorney-General: It is the legislation itself, the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996, which provides that the scheduled offences are tried by a judge without a jury. The Schedule permits the Attorney-General, in respect of certain offences, to certify that a particular offence is not to be treated as a scheduled offence. My certificate therefore operates to confer the right to be tried by jury in the normal way. The right to trial by jury is currently removed only by Parliament and it would be invidious for a Minister to have that power. The Attorney-General's function is purely to reduce the severity of the law in favour of individuals where appropriate.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Attorney-General what would be (a) the extra cost and (b) the necessary increase in personnel of the certifying in procedure for scheduled offences coming under the terms of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill. [17571]

The Attorney-General: Under the current legislation the Attorney-General may "certify out" certain scheduled offences with the effect that such an offence will not be treated as a scheduled offence. It is impossible to quantify the extra cost and the necessary increase in personnel which would be required were offences to be subject to a "certifying in" procedure, whereby they would be certified in to the Schedule by the Attorney-General, since the amount of work involved is entirely dependent on the number of offences committed. Under the provisions contained in the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill it is anticipated that there will be an increase in the work load of my office because of the proposal to increase the number of offences which are capable of being certified out.

Sexual Offences

Ms Beverley Hughes: To ask the Attorney-General (1) what percentage of cases of alleged sexual offences against children investigated by the Police in 1995–96 and 1996–97 and referred to the Crown Prosecution Service (a) were judged to have passed the evidential test, (b) proceeded to prosecution in court and (c) resulted in a conviction; [17660]

(2) what percentage of cases (a) proceeded to prosecution in court and (b) resulted in a conviction, in cases involving alleged sexual offences against children in 1995–96 and 1996–97 when the only evidence was the testimony of the child or children; [17662]

(3) what were the reasons for the decisions not to proceed to prosecution in respect of those alleged sexual offences against children investigated by the Police in 1995–96 and 1996–97, in which the Crown Prosecution Service decided not to prosecute. [17663]

The Attorney-General: The Crown Prosecution Service holds no central records on the outcome of proceedings in respect of particular offences. The information is held in Branch offices on individual case files and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Ms Beverley Hughes: To ask the Attorney-General what factors the Crown Prosecution Service takes into account in applying the evidential test in cases involving alleged sexual offences against children where the only evidence was the testimony of the child or children. [17661]

The Attorney-General: Each case is unique and must be considered on its own merit but, generally, a principle of fairness is applied to the evidence of children. This means that the evidence of a child is considered no less reliable than that of an adult simply because it comes from a child. As in all cases, prosecutors will consider whether the evidence can be used in court and whether it is reliable in deciding if there is a realistic prospect of conviction. Prosecutors are urged to use all the procedures available to assist child witnesses to give evidence.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Prisoners (Home Leave)

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at what stage in a sentence a prisoner becomes eligible for home leave. [16182]

Ms Quin: Following changes in the Prison Rules in April 1995, a new system of release on temporary licence was introduced to replace home leave and temporary release. The eligibility of prisoners to be considered for release on resettlement licence under the new system is set out in "Prison Service Instruction to Governors 36/1995," a copy of which is in the Library.

European Parliamentary Elections

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will place in the Library a draft of the ballot paper which would be issued to voters before the second reading of the European Parliamentary Elections Bill. [16957]

Mr. Straw: The final format of the ballot paper for elections to the European Parliament has not yet been determined. Parliament will be able to approve the final design. I have, however, placed a copy of an initial sketch in the Library.

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people will be eligible to vote in the European Parliament elections in (a) each of the English regions upon which the proposed new constituencies will be based, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland. [17060]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 21 November 1997]: The number of people eligible to vote in the next elections to the European Parliament in June 1999 will depend on the number of people on the relevant electoral registers on polling day. The number of people on the local government electoral registers in each of the proposed English electoral regions and in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland on 16 February 1997 was as follows:

	Number
East Midlands	3,167,433
Eastern	4,027,466
London	5,027,796
North East	1,984,212
North West	5,214,413
South East	5,988,686
South West	3,747,003
West Midlands	4,032,835
Yorkshire and The Humber	3,811,254
Scotland	3,995,923
Wales	2,226,923
Northern Ireland	1,190,977

The number of people entitled to vote in an election to the European Parliament would be slightly smaller since not all European Union citizens on the local government register chose to exercise their right to vote in European Parliamentary elections in the United Kingdom.

East European Students

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many students from eastern Europe who in the last six months have been given permits to work in agriculture have applied for political asylum. [17250]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I regret that the information requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many students from eastern Europe who have been given permits to work in the United Kingdom have been recruited by gangmasters to work in the food processing factories in Lincolnshire. [17248]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I regret that information on the number of eastern European students recruited by gangmasters to work in food processing factories in Lincolnshire is not held centrally.

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many permits he has granted to students from eastern Europe to work in agriculture in the United Kingdom during the last six months. [17249]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Eight thousand five hundred such students entered the United Kingdom in the six months from May to October.

Amsterdam Treaty (Asylum Seekers)

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the implications of the Amsterdam Treaty for future asylum seekers from within the European Union; and for what reason his Department did not seek an exemption from the Asylum Protocol similar to that acquired by Belgium. [17217]

Ms Quin: The Asylum Protocol to the Amsterdam Treaty will require that member states treat asylum applications from European Union nationals as either inadmissible or against a presumption that they are manifestly unfounded. Belgium has made a declaratory statement to the effect that it will apply the latter approach. This is not an exemption from the Protocol. There was no need for the United Kingdom to make a similar declaration. In accordance with United Kingdom asylum law, we will continue to give individual consideration to asylum applications from European Union nationals.

Tagging

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the savings which will arise as a result of the use of tagging to bring about the early release of prisoners from custodial sentences. [17742]

Ms Quin: I expect the costs of electronic monitoring to be considerably smaller than the expenditure on prisons which would otherwise be necessary. Fuller information will be given in the Financial Memorandum to the Crime and Disorder Bill.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish the criteria by which the Prison Service will carry out a risk assessment of offenders under consideration for early release through tagging. [17744]

Ms Quin: I shall publish more detailed information about the working of the home detention curfew scheme in due course. The risk assessment procedures will build on those applying at present to release on temporary licence, as set out in Instruction to Governors 36/95, a copy of which is in the Library. A copy of the Instruction to Governors on home detention curfew will also be placed in the Library.

Prison Sentences

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders convicted of offences involving (a) sex and (b) violence were sentenced to periods of imprisonment of between three months and four years in the last year for which figures are available. [17743]

Mr. Michael: For England and Wales in 1996 (latest available figures) of the 4,426 offenders convicted of indictable sexual offences, 1,763 were sentenced to periods of immediate custody of between three months and up to and including four years.

Similarly, for the indictable offence group of violence against the person, 30,011 offenders were convicted, of whom 7,366 were sentenced to periods of imprisonment of between three months and up to and including four years.

Integrated Transport System

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if his Department made submission to the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions consultation on an integrated transport system; and if he will make a statement. [17749]

Mr. Michael: No formal submission was made but our two Departments have been and continue to be in close contact at Ministerial and official level about issues of mutual interest arising from the development of an integrated transport policy.

Prisons (Food)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to improve the quality and service of prison food. [17719]

Ms Quin: The Prison Service has introduced a number of changes to improve catering procedures, including increased flexibility for caterers to provide food suited to the needs of prisoners, and greater choice and reduced waste, for example through the use of pre-select menus.

A recent National Audit Office report (published on 7 November 1997) acknowledged these improvements and confirmed that prison caterers do well in difficult conditions. The report also identified a number of areas where further improvement is desirable, and the Prison Service is currently considering its recommendations.

1982 ANC Offices Bombing

Mrs. Ann Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his letter of 30 August 1992 to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain), what progress there has been in the inquiry into the bombings, in 1982, of the African National Congress offices in London; and what representations his Department has received on this matter. [17624]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 26 November 1997]: The Metropolitan Police are continuing to monitor the situation in South Africa in relation to revelations made to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. It is their intention to interview more people in the course of their investigation into the bombing in due course. As for representations received in the Home Office, records relating to the period between 1982 and the end of 1991 are not kept centrally and I will therefore write to my hon. Friend as soon as it is possible to check the relevant papers.

Fire Safety

Mr. Heppell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress he has made in considering legislation on fire safety. [18334]

Mr. George Howarth: In my reply to the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed (Mr. Beith) on 23 June 1997, Official Report, column 360. I indicated that the Government strongly support the aims of the Fire Safety Bill which my hon. Friend the Member for Nottingham, East (Mr. Heppell) introduced in the last Parliament. Since then. I have received advice from the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council on the main principles incorporated in that Bill and officials have held discussions with a number of key stakeholders.

On 28 November, the Government intend to publish a consultation document entitled "Fire Safety Legislation for the Future" and copies will be placed in the Library. The consultation document sets out proposals for a new fire safety regime based on the main principles included in the Fire Safety Bill which in turn picked up many of the recommendations of the June 1994 Inter-Departmental Review of Fire Safety Legislation and Enforcement.

The proposed new regime should enable rationalisation and consolidation of existing legislation. It would be based on a new universal duty of fire safety care on the occupiers and owners of almost all premises (except single private dwellings) to provide and maintain fire precautions. There would be additional requirements for high risk premises and enforcement would generally be by fire authorities. To combat the deaths and casualties in people's homes, we are attracted to the possibility of a new statutory duty on fire authorities to undertake community fire safety.

The consultation document generally covers fire safety in England and Wales and in Scotland. But where there are differences in the situation or proposals for Scotland these have been stated in a separate chapter.

We intend that this consultation document should be a first step towards a legislative regime which will serve to meet the fire safety challenges of the future. The proposals also form one strand of the Home Office Comprehensive Spending Review and are interrelated to other aspects of that review on the funding and structure of the fire service and the potential for more flexible standards of fire cover.

The consultation period lasts until the end of February 1998. The proposals at this stage are cast in broad terms. We will consider carefully the responses to them and, if we then seek to proceed with new legislation, there will be further consultation on detailed and costed proposals.

Religious Discrimination

Ms Beverley Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will introduce legislation to make discrimination on religious grounds unlawful. [18559]

Mr. Straw: The Government are alive to concerns about religious discrimination. This issue raises many difficult, sensitive and complex questions, which need to be carefully considered before we reach conclusions. My current priority is the forthcoming legislation on racial harassment, violence and other racially motivated crimes. In the meantime, I am happy to receive views on whether legislation in due course would be desirable.

Telephone Tapping

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997,

Official Report, column 39, what factors underlay the interval between the signing of the Memorandum of Understanding, concerning international user requirements for the lawful use of interception by law enforcement agencies, and its being deposited in the Library. [17867]

Mr. Straw: The Memorandum of Understanding concerning international user requirements for the lawful use of interception by law enforcement agencies was placed in the Library on 3 March 1997 in response to a Question from Lord Lester of Herne Hill.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if MI5 is obliged to apply for a warrant of authorisation to tap a telephone in a public phone box. [17868]

Mr. Straw: Under the Interception of Communications Act 1985, a warrant authorised by a Secretary of State is required by the Security Service to intercept any communications in the course of their transmission by means of a public telecommunications system. The Interception of Communications Act applies irrespective of the type of telephone which is intercepted.

Unsupervised Children

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research undertaken by his Department has identified a problem of unsupervised under-10-years-olds being on the streets at night; if he will publish that research; and if he will make a statement. [17774]

Mr. Michael: There is considerable research within the Home Office and elsewhere which indicates those influences which are strongest on young people, particularly in relation to commencement of offending. One of the strongest of these is poor parental supervision. This was dealt with in some detail in the 1995 Home Office Research Paper 145 "Young people and crime". The need for more responsible parenting is supported in a survey which was carried out for the Audit Commission in 1996 for its report "Streetwise Effective Police Patrol". Similar surveys for that report also revealed that there was a public concern about the need to deal with issues of juvenile nuisance and anti-social behaviour.

The objectives of the Government's youth justice reform programme seek, amongst other things, to address these concerns. That is why one of the measures in the reform programme is the proposal to give local authorities the power, following consultation with the police and local community, to introduce local child curfews for unsupervised children under 10 who are out on the streets late at night. The aim of such curfews is two-fold. Not only will they address the need to protect young children from being drawn into anti-social or criminal behaviour, but they will protect communities from the misery and distress which can be so often caused by groups of unsupervised children acting in this way.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the recommendations of the National Anti-Vivisection Society's report "Accountability—Animal Experiments and Freedom of Information"; and what steps he plans in response; [17775]

(2) if he will set out the procedures for (a) appointing members to and (b) reviewing the membership of the Animal Procedures Committee; if the Public Appointments Unit list is consulted; and if he will make a statement. [17777]

Mr. George Howarth: We will be meeting with representatives of the National Anti-Vivisection Society next week and expect to discuss a number of issues with them, including their Accountability report.

Copies of the report have also been given to all members of the Animal Procedures Committee.

Much of the report is taken up with criticism of the membership of the Animal Procedures Committee, the way new members are appointed and the ways in which the Committee works.

The procedures for appointing members to the Committee have been reviewed in the light of the recommendations made by the Nolan Committee: We have recently written to a number of professional bodies, representative organisations and animal protection groups seeking nominations for new Committee members. The field of potential candidates will then be considered by an advisory panel.

In deciding whom to appoint, the requirements set down in section 19 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1996 must be met and we must maintain the necessary breadth of expertise needed by the Committee. All appointments are announced publicly.

We have no plans to review the current membership. The existing members do an excellent job and bring to the Committee a valued mix of skills and expertise. However, four members will complete their second (and final) term on the Committee at the end of the year and we will be making a number of new appointments shortly. We have already announced our intention to increase the number of animal welfare experts on the Committee.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many project licences, and for what projects, have been awarded which involve experimentation on monkeys at the Institute of Neurology in London since 1 January 1995. [17776]

Mr. George Howarth: Since 1 January 1995, no new licences under the terms of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 have been granted which authorise the use of primates at the Institute of Neurology.

Juvenile Justice

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what United Nations standards his Department recognises in relation to (a) the administration of juvenile justice and (b) the welfare of children; and if he will make a statement. [17773]

Mr. Michael: The United Kingdom signed the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child in December 1991. In doing so, the then Government gave a commitment to implement and disseminate the Convention's terms and principles, subject to certain reservations which it entered. The United Kingdom made its first report to the Committee on the Rights of the Child in January 1995. In formulating policy on juvenile justice and child welfare, the Government aim to take into account the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, and other similar instruments, guidelines and rules.

New Prisons

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the new prison building projects (a) he has authorised and (b) he has assessed prior to authorisation since 2 May. [18047]

Ms Quin: Since 2 May, authorisation has been given to proceed with the building of four new prisons:

800 place Category B prison on the site of the former Agecroft Power Station, Salford;

400 place Young Offender Institution on the site of the former remand centre at Pucklechurch near Bristol;

600 place Category B prison adjacent to the current prison establishment at Onley, Warwickshire;

600 place Category B prison at Marchington, Staffordshire.

All four are to be built under the Private Finance Initiative.

Planning approval has been obtained for a low security establishment to be built on land between Parkhurst and Albany prisons on the Isle of Wight, although no final decision has been taken to pursue this option. In addition, a planning application was made for a temporary prison at Middleton Tower, Heysham.

Since 2 May, agreement has also been given to the Prison Service pursuing to the formal planning application stage possible new prison sites at Ashworth (Maghull), Belmarsh (in Woolwich), Peterborough and Winwick (near Warrington).

World Cup

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the proposed membership of the committee established to liaise with the police in advance of next year's FIFA World Cup, separately identifying Scottish representation; what relationship this Committee will have with (a) the Scottish Office, (b) Scottish police and (c) the Scottish Football Association; what responsibility it will have for liaising with the World Cup authorities on behalf of Scottish football fans; and if he will make a statement. [17848]

Mr. Michael: The World Cup Co-ordination Group had its first meeting on 21 November 1997. Membership of the group includes officials from the Home Office, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (including representation from the British Embassy, Paris), the Scottish Office, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Football Licensing Authority. Representatives of the Football Association and the Scottish Football Association are members. There is police representation from the Association of Chief Police Officers of England, Wales and Northern Ireland, the Association of Chief Police Officers in Scotland, the National Criminal Intelligence Service and the British Transport Police. The group is chaired by the Home Office.

The aim of the group is to co-ordinate the interests and responsibilities of those on the group into a strategy for the World Cup finals in 1998. The strategy will help to: promote and foster an enjoyable, positive and safe World Cup for British supporters travelling to France; minimise the potential for trouble and football hooliganism; and ensure that the French authorities are made fully aware of intelligence and information which would assist them in dealing with Scotland and England supporters travelling to and attending matches.

The group will provide a co-ordinating function and a forum to discuss and seek solutions to potential difficulties. It is the responsibility of individual members of the group to liaise, in conjunction with other members of the group where appropriate, with the relevant French authorities in respect of their particular areas of interest.

A committee has been formed in Scotland to draw up a strategy for the safety and security of Scotland fans travelling to France. Membership consists of the Scottish Office, senior police officers and the Scottish Football Association.

Charities

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what restrictions are placed on registered charities controlling the use of their title, style or logo by their subsidiary trading companies or other associates in (a) promoting, (b) marketing and (c) selling goods or services unrelated to their declared charitable aims. [18048]

Mr. Michael: There are no such restrictions. It is for the trustees of a charity to determine how its title, style or logo could be used by its subsidiary. Charity trustees are obliged to act in the best interests of their charity. Consequently, they should ensure that any use of the logo by a trading subsidiary, or any other licensee, does not put the charity's funds at risk or being negative publicity to the charity.

Charities are permitted to the same legal protection for their intellectual property rights as any other person or body, and have the same powers as any other person or body to license others to exploit those rights, provided, of course, that the licensing arrangements are in the charity's interests (which includes economic interests).

The Charity Commission has certain powers to act to protect the property of a charity—including its intellectual property.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Euro (Dependent Territories)

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from dependent territories and what consultations he plans with them over the euro; and if he will make a statement. [17209]

Mr. Fatchett: The Gibraltar Government have raised with us the possibility of issuing commemorative coins denominated in Euros. No other dependent territory had made representations, and no consultations are planned.

Spain

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will ensure that United Kingdom acceptance of the integration of Spain within the NATO structure is conditional on the dropping by Spain of restrictions on United Kingdom civil and military flights over its territory. [17193]

Mr. Doug Henderson [holding answer 24 November 1997]: We are currently negotiating with Spain over arrangements for military air access to Gibraltar. We will be dealing separately with civil air access, which is not part of NATO negotiations.

Turkey

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made to the Government of Turkey concerning their military activity in Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [17833]

Mr. Doug Henderson [holding answer 26 November 1997]: I raised this issue with the Turkish Foreign Minister during my visit to Ankara on 14 October, and made further representations to him on 27 October. We have told the Turkish government that their involvement in the inter-factional Kurdish fighting in northern Iraq is not compatible with their role as a co-sponsor of the Ankara process of reconciliation.

General Pinochet

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings members of his Department have held with General Pinochet over the last three years. [17825]

Mr. Tony Lloyd [holding answer 26 November 1997]: There have been no meetings between members of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and General Pinochet over the last three years. British Embassy staff in Santiago have attended several official state and military functions in Chile at which General Pinochet was also present, in his capacity as Commander-in-Chief of the Chilean Army. No discussions took place between these staff and General Pinochet at these events.

EU General Affairs Council

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will report on the outcome of the General Affairs Council in Brussels on 24 and 25 November. [18542]

Mr. Doug Henderson: At the General Affairs Council in Brussels on 24–25 November, the nine A points in document 12483/97 were approved, and the European Parliament resolutions of 5–6 November in document 11487/97 were noted. The texts of both documents will be placed in the libraries of the House as soon as they become available.

Agenda 2000

Ministers held their first discussion of the report to the Luxembourg European Council in December on Agenda 2000. Ministers re-stated their positions on enlargement (with the majority still in favour of differentiation), future financing and policy reform. Discussion will continue, and we hope substantial progress will be made at the next meeting of the Council on 8 December.

Turkey

The Council discussed Turkey's participation in the European Conference and the Commission's proposals for strengthening relations with Turkey by building on the Customs Union. Most Member States expressed support in principle for both.

EC/Israel Trade Issues

The Council agreed that the EC/Israel Co-operation Committee with Israel on 28 November should address the issue of miscertification of goods from third countries under the EC/Israel Interim Association Agreement, notably orange juice.

Transatlantic relations

The Council took note of the preparations for the EU/US and EU/Canada Summits which will take place in Washington and Ottawa in December and agreed that the EU should agree a statement of general principles governing electronic commerce with the US. The Council also encouraged the Commission to continue its efforts to negotiate with the US an agreement to ban leg-hold traps.

Former Yugoslavia

The High Representative, Carlos Westendorp, briefed the Council on progress in peace implementation in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Council also discussed the situation in the FRY in light of forthcoming Presidential elections in Serbia, expressing its concern at the authorities' failure to respect fundamental democratic principles.

Switzerland

The Council reiterated its wish to conclude bilateral sectoral negotiations with Switzerland but highlighted the outstanding problems in certain areas, including transport. The Council instructed COREPER to reconsider proposals to resolve this issue and called on the Swiss to exercise some flexibility in pursuit of their common objective.

Mid term review of Overseas Countries and Territories Decision

The mid-term review of the Decision on the association of Overseas Countries and Territories with the EU was formally agreed.

MEPP

Following discussions at the Foreign Ministers' dinner in the margins of the Special European Council on Employment on 20 November, the Council discussed developments in the Middle East peace process following the visit to the region by the President of the Council and Vice President Marin of the European Commission from 11–14 November. The Council confirmed the importance of close co-ordination with the US Administration, and that the Middle East peace process would be discussed at the 5 December EU/US Summit. The Council also reviewed the importance of EU aid to the Palestinians, and took note of the Commission's forthcoming communication on the programme.

Russia: Preparation for first Co-operation Council

The Council emphasised the importance that the EU attaches to EU-Russia relations. In light of this, the Presidency asked Ministers to confirm whether they would be able to attend the inaugural Co-operation Council under the terms of the Partnership and Co-operation Agreement (PCA) on 15 December (Primakov being unable to attend on 8 December as originally planned). If this is not possible, the Co-operation Council will fall to the UK Presidency. Preparations in the meantime would continue in COREPER.

EU-Jordan

The Association Agreement between the EU and Jordan was signed on 24 November by EU Foreign Ministers, the Commission and Crown Prince Hassan.

Yemen

The EC/Yemen agreement was signed on 25 November by the Commission and the Yemeni Deputy Prime Minister.

Afghanistan

The Council exchanged views on the conflict in Afghanistan and took note of the Conference of donors which will take place in New York on 3 December. The Council confirmed that the UN has the principal role and expressed its support for the efforts of the UN Secretary General and his special envoy Lakhdar Brahimi.

European Economic Area Council

The 8th Council of the European Economic Area (EEA) was held on 25 November. Ministers welcomed the continued development of the EEA. Conclusions were agreed which took stock of developments and looked forward to future work (Commission Press Release EEE 1608/97 Presse 368).

European Council (Amsterdam)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs at what time he left the European Council at Amsterdam. [18034]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The Fourth Session of the European Council Meeting in Amsterdam broke up at 0340 hours, and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary left the closing Press Conference when it finished at about 0400 hours on Wednesday 18 June. He departed for the UK from Valkenburg Naval Air Base 1010 hours that same day.

Social Chapter

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in Directorate General V of the European Commission are engaged in work relating to future Social Chapter legislation. [17070]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 24 November 1997]: I have been asked to reply.

This is a matter for the Commission. We do not keep this information.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Publicity and Advertising

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is his estimate of the total expenditure on all forms of publicity and advertising by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for (i) 1993–94, (ii) 1994–95, (iii) 1995–96, (iv) 1996–97, (v) the 1997–98, year to date, (vi) 1997–98, full year estimate and (vii) the 1998–99 planned expenditure. [15233]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Advertising and publicity expenditure by my Department for the years requested is as follows:

£000s

	DoE	DoT	VI	HA	DVLA	DSA	VCA	MSA	CA	PI	QE2
1993–94	12,227	8,275	18	—	1,882	58	nil	—	nil	nil	209
1994–95	9,028	8,039	21	n/a	1,807	53	nil	104	241	nil	167
1995–96	7,670	8,356	40	546	2,171	67	8	63	297	16	167
1996–97	4,665	9,679	55	1,100	1,966	63	9	79	311	17	180

£000s

	DETR	VI	HA	DVLA	DSA	VCA	MSA	CA	PI	QE2
1997–98 to date	4,574	58	546	1,219	46	nil	65	214	17	52
1997–98 full year estimated outturn	13,725	111	1,300	3,584	111	5	100	280	17	196

DoE—Department of the Environment DoT—Department of Transport
DETR—Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions
VI—Vehicle Inspectorate
HA—Highways Agency
DVLA—Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency
DSA—Driving Standards Agency
VCA—Vehicle Certification Agency
MSA—Marine Safety Agency
CA—Coastguard Agency
PI—Planning Inspectorate
QE2—Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre

The Department of the Environment and the Department of Transport were amalgamated on 16 June 1997. Figures are shown separately for 1993–97 but aggregated for the current fiscal year.

Figures quoted include expenditure on statutory advertising (recruitment, official notices etc.) where applicable.

Expenditure figures for Executive Agencies have been compiled and supplied by the Agency concerned.

Information on publicity and advertising expenditure by non-departmental public bodies is not held centrally and could be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

Plans for 1998–99 have yet to be finalised.

Road Accidents

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many motorway and trunk road cross-over accidents have occurred in the past five years involving the rupture or crossing of safety barriers; and what form of construction was used for those road barriers. [17171]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The total number of accidents involving rupture or crossing of safety barriers on motorways and trunk roads is not known. However, the numbers of injury accidents which involved one or more vehicles striking or crossing the central safety barrier are as shown below. No information is available regarding the form of construction of the barriers involved in these accidents.

Injury accidents on motorways and trunk roads in Great Britain

	Year of Accident
	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996
One or more vehicles hit central safety barrier	1,388	1,490	1,594	1,621	1,736
One or more vehicles crossed central reservation	230	182	188	171	156
One or more vehicles hit central safety barrier and crossed the central reservation.	46	57	56	64	61

Mr. Plaskitt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many drivers have (a) been involved in and (b) suffered (i) serious injury and (ii) death from road traffic accidents within 12 months of passing their test in each of the last five years. [17635]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The information is not available in the form requested. However, it is estimated that:

(a) about one driver in five has an accident involving at least damage within 12 months of passing the driving test;

(b) about one in five casualties (to all road users) occur when at least one driver involved is within three years of passing the driving test;

(c) there are around 25,000 casualties per year (to all road users), of which around 3,500 are fatal or serious, in accidents involving a driver aged 17–25 and within 12 months of passing the driving test.

Telecommunications Masts

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 2 June 1997, Official Report, columns 48–49, on applications for telecommunications masts, if he will list the types of serious threat to amenity which might give sufficient grounds for rejecting an application. [17567]

Mr. Raynsford: An application for prior approval determination allows the local planning authority the opportunity to say whether they wish to approve, within 28 days, details of the siting and appearance of a telecommunications mast permitted under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995. It is for the local planning authority to determine whether the siting or appearance of the development would pose a serious threat to amenity on a case by case basis. Guidance on factors the authority may take into consideration when determining whether to give or refuse such approval is contained in Planning Policy Guidance note 8 and Appendix E to Circular 9/95. The answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister for the Regions, Regeneration and Planning on 4 November 1997, Official Report, columns 152–53, announced a further factor for consideration in these circumstances.

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many local authority planning refusals for telecommunications masts were overturned on appeal by planning inspectors in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96 and (c) 1996–97. [17530]

Mr. Raynsford: The number of appeals allowed against local authority refusals for telecommunications masts/towers information is as follows:

Year	Total number of mast appeals	Number of appeals allowed
1994–95	58	23
1995–96	55	37
1996–97	85	37

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many redundant telecommunications masts have been removed; and if he will list their locations: [17751]

(2) if he will make a statement on the procedures in place to monitor the removal of redundant telecommunications masts. [17752]

Mr. Raynsford: Development carried out by a telecommunications code system operator under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995 is subject to the condition that apparatus shall be removed as soon as reasonably practicable after it is no longer required for telecommunications purposes. Where telecommunications development requires a planning application to the local planning authority, it is open to the authority to impose a similar condition on any planning permission granted. It is for the local planning authority to take any necessary enforcement action where they consider that planning conditions have not been observed. In addition, the provisions of the Telecommunications Act 1984 allow occupiers of land to require the removal of redundant apparatus from their land where access for the purposes of installing that apparatus was originally granted to the operator under the Code Powers granted to them by that Act. Data on the number of redundant masts removed are not held centrally.

Mr. St. Aubyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many telecommunication posts (a) under 15 metres and (b) over 15 metres were erected in the United Kingdom in each of the years since 1993 to the latest available date. [17633]

Mr. Raynsford: This information is not collected centrally. We attach considerable importance to minimising the environmental impact of telecommunications mast development. It is for the that reason that my hon. Friend the Minister for the Regions, Regeneration and Planning recently stated our expectation that operators will provide evidence to local authorities that they have carefully considered the use of existing masts, buildings and other structures before seeking to erect any new mast.

Waste-derived Compost

Mr. Eric Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what measures he is taking to improve the markets for waste-derived compost. [18127]

Angela Eagle: I am today announcing the publication of two guides which are aimed at improving the markets for waste-derived compost. The first contains practical guidance for large-scale producers of waste-derived compost, such as local authorities and the waste industry, setting out how they can design and market their product effectively to a variety of end users, particularly those in the horticulture and landscaping industries. The second guide is aimed at potential users, such as landscape architects and contractors, and explains the benefits of using waste-derived compost in their operations.

One of our major environmental objectives is to promote sustainable waste management across the country. Every nine months we produce enough waste in the United Kingdom to fill lake Windermere. And of the estimated 26 million tonnes of municipal solid waste produced in 1995–96, around 85 per cent. was landfilled. It is therefore vital that, in future, we choose waste management options which preserve and enhance our environment and safeguard human health. We are therefore committed to increasing the quality and quantity of organic waste which is composted. This means a greater degree of centralised composting by local authorities and the waste management industry. But to make such schemes viable, we also need to expand the markets for waste-derived compost and thereby increase the demand for the product.

We hope that these guides will make a valuable contribution to this by providing practical advice to compost producers and specifiers. They will be widely distributed free of charge to local authorities in England, waste management companies, composting organisations, landscaping architectural practices and selected landscaping contractors.

Copies of the guides have been placed in the house Libraries.

Fire Safety

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what measures he is taking to improve fire safety in homes. [17554]

Mr. Raynsford: Part B of Schedule 1 to the Building Regulations 1991 makes requirements with regard to fire safety when building work is undertaken with regard to all buildings, including homes. Guidance on ways of meeting these requirements is given in Approved Document B. This Document is currently being revised and changes will be proposed that will improve fire safety in the home. The draft Approved Document will be issued for public consultation in the near future. Most relevant to homes there will be additional guidance on the siting and installation of smoke alarms, including in loft conversions to two storey houses, and on means of escape, in particular the provision of suitable windows in habitable rooms.

Unoccupied Homes

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what estimate he has made of the total number of unoccupied homes in England (i) in 1990 and (ii) at the latest date for which figures are available; and what proportion was owned by (a) local authorities, (b) central government departments, (c) the private sector, (d) housing associations and (e) others. [17711]

Mr. Raynsford: Estimates are given below of the numbers of vacant dwellings in England on 1 April in 1990 and, the latest date for which figures are available, in 1996.

	1990		1996
	Number	Proportion	Number	Proportion (per cent)
Local authority	99,400	14	79,600	10
Housing associations	19,700	3	23,600	3
Other public sector	17,000	2	20,000	3
Private sector	587,000	81	667,000	84
Total	723,000	100	790,000	100

Sources:
HIP1 returns from local authorities.
Housing Corporation HAR10/1 returns from housing associations
Government Departments and HIP1 returns from local authorities.

There are doubts about the quality of some authorities' estimates of the number of private sector vacants; independent survey data suggest that the HIP1 figures may over-estimate the total number of these vacants. Total vacants have been falling in recent years after increasing by around 20 per cent. between 1990 and 1993, and at any one time around half of the private sector vacants are empty as a function of the housing market.

Council Tax (Home Annexes)

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what financial incentives are available through the local authority council tax system which encourage elderly or young relatives to live in annexes adjoining the main family home. [17709]

Mr. Raynsford: An annex which is classed as a separate dwelling for council tax purposes is exempt from council tax if a resident is a dependent relative. A relative is regarded as dependent if they are aged 65 or over, if they have a severe mental impairment, or if they are substantially and permanently disabled. In addition, there are exemptions for dwellings occupied only by those under the age of 18 or only by students.

EU Environment Council

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what measures were agreed at the Luxembourg European Environment Council meeting of 16 October; and what are the projected compliance costs to the United Kingdom. [17081]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 24 November 1997]: I informed the House of the outcome of the Environment Council in Luxembourg in October in the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Stoke-on-Trent, North (Ms Walley) on 19 November 1997, Official Report, column 199.

One measure was agreed at the Environment Council in October: the proposal for a revised Drinking Water Directive. The current best estimate for the total capital or non-recurring costs of this for the UK is in the range £2,200 to £3,500 million at current prices with the majority of expenditure over 15 years from adoption of the Directive. This estimate was provided to the House in this Department's Compliance Cost Assessment under cover of Explanatory Memorandum 7208/95 in September 1996. The costs of measures will continue to be covered in the Department's explanatory memorandum to Parliament.

Local Authority Elections

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to bring forward proposals for annual elections for local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [17592]

Mr. Raynsford: A wide ranging consultation exercise on the agenda for modernising local democracy will begin in the coming few weeks. This will include options for the introduction of annual elections. The consultation process will feed into a comprehensive White Paper on Local Government in the late Spring or early Summer 1998.

Smoke Alarms

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will estimate the proportion by region of local authority owned dwellings fitted with smoke alarms. [17616]

Mr. Raynsford: In 1996 the proportion of local authority homes in each region estimated to be fitted with smoke alarms was as follows:

Region	Percentage with smoke detectors 1996
North-east	55
Yorkshire and the Humber	54
North-west	69
East Midlands	66
West Midlands	68
South-west	71
Eastern	56
South-east	80
London	41
Merseyside	55
England[a]	66

Local Authorities (Housing Strategy)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what action he plans to take to support local authorities wishing to convert derelict land, vacant offices and difficult-to-let shops, in town and city centre areas, into housing units. [17240]

Mr. Raynsford: Local authorities are responsible for drawing up housing strategies that set out how they intend to meet local housing needs. In drawing up these strategies, they have to assess the need for additional housing as well as other housing needs. They then have to consider how to use the resources available to them, both financial and other, to meet those needs. It is for the local authority to decide the best way of using available resources to the benefit of their residents and tenants while achieving the best value for money.

To assist local authorities meet housing needs we have recently made available additional resources through the Capital Receipts Initiative to assist with housing and housing related regeneration. Over £600 million will be available in England in 1998–99.

More specifically, as far as local authority assets are concerned, in April this year the capital finance system was relaxed so that if an authority disposes of certain assets, more of the capital receipt can be recycled into regeneration schemes in deprived areas rather than being set aside for debt redemption. Assets covered by the concession are unoccupied council dwellings (except those sold under right-to-buy or large scale voluntary transfer), occupied industrial estates, docks and harbours, leisure facilities, shops and offices and land for development. Receipts from the sale of these assets can be applied to regeneration schemes in listed wards and wards adjacent to listed wards.

In addition, planning policy guidance notes, both on housing (PPG3) and on town centres and retail developments (PPG6), advise local planning authorities, where appropriate, to reallocate land allocated for other uses to housing, and to encourage conversions of vacant offices and vacant accommodation over shops by taking a flexible approach to residential car parking and other standards.

Local Authority Duties

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he will publish his proposals to place on councils a new duty to promote the economic, social and environmental well-being of their area; and what plans he has to consult on the scope of the duty. [18121]

Mr. Raynsford: We will shortly be publishing a consultation paper on democracy and community leadership, which will include details of our proposals to place a duty on councils to promote the economic, social and environmental well-being of their area. It will be one of a series of consultation papers on local government matters including best value, the ethical framework and finance, that will feed into a comprehensive White Paper on local government next Spring. We will consult widely on our proposals, including with the Local Government Association, local authorities, business, the voluntary sector and other interested organisations.

Regional Airports

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on his policy towards the granting of transatlantic fifth freedom rights from regional airports in cases where the granting of such rights would contribute materially to the development of other long-haul services from that airport. [17782]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Department takes many factors into account in preparing its strategy for air services negotiations, including the granting of transatlantic fifth freedom rights from regional airports.

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment was undertaken of the wider benefits to the economy of north-west England of increased flights between Manchester and Pakistan with onward connections to the USA in connection with the recent negotiations between his Department and representatives of the Government of Pakistan; what criteria and methodology were used in the assessment of regional benefits; and if he will publish the study. [17772]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The CAA carried out an economic analysis on behalf of the Department before the recent negotiations with Pakistan. It was made available to all members of the UK delegation before the talks, including representatives of Manchester Airport, and taken into account when Ministers agreed the strategy for the negotiations. It is not our policy to publish such analyses, given their bearing on the UK negotiating position in air services negotiations.

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if his Department will carry out a comprehensive study of industrial and tourism development benefits to regional economies of improved access to global air services. [17783]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Government welcomes increased international services to regional airports. As the economic impact of a new air service is dependent on the characteristics of an individual route the Department considers it a more effective use of resources to ask the CAA to carry out a specific economic analysis before air services negotiations with bilateral partners.

Air Services (Malaysia)

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when his officials plan to meet representatives of the Malaysian government to discuss the project of commencing air services between Manchester and Kuala Lumpur before the 1998 Commonwealth Games. [17784]

Ms Glenda Jackson: My officials have no current plans to meet representatives of the Malaysian government for discussions on air services.

Fly Tipping

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what assessment he has made of the incidence of fly tipping since the introduction of the landfill levy. [18096]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Ceredigion (Mr. Dafis) on 19 November 1997, Official Report, column 198.

Lewes-Uckfield Railway Line

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on his assessment of the viability of the financial case and of the arguments advanced in the Mott Macdonald Report on the possible reopening of the Lewes-Uckfield railway line. [17780]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I understand that the financial case will be presented to the Franchising Director very shortly and it will be for him to consider using his Criteria for the Appraisal of Support for Passenger Rail Services, a copy of which my right hon. Friend the Minister of Transport placed in the Library on 6 November.

Building Regulations

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he will announce the results of his consultations on the extension of Part M of the building regulations; and if he will make a statement. [18120]

Mr. Raynsford: I expect to announce my conclusions on Part M next month.

Water Quality

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has for the use of economic instruments to improve water quality; and if he will make a statement. [18473]

Mr. Meacher: My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister made clear on World Environment Day our determination to find the best way to address environmental concerns and to make polluters pay for necessary remedial action. Regulation has achieved a good deal but it may not represent the most cost-effective means by which environmental objectives can be achieved, nor does it always make polluters pay for the cost of their activities.

We want to find a mix of instruments that will be environmentally effective and economically efficient. Many of these will be regulatory in nature. Others may be voluntary. But we believe that economic instruments have a role to play in improving the environment. So, as my right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced in the Budget, we are actively considering their role as part of our environmental policy and as a contribution to reform of the tax system.

Today, we are setting out ideas for the use of such instruments to protect and enhance the quality of our rivers and other waters. A copy of the consultation paper has been placed in the library. This is an important initiative. Water is of enormous environmental and economic importance and water pollution causes great concern to the public. We look forward to a period of active debate on these issues.

Drink Drive Casualties

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what new measures he proposes to introduce to achieve further reductions in drink drive casualties. [18517]

Dr. Strang: The Government will be publishing a consultation paper in the New Year setting out a range of proposals for discussion, including the reduction of the legal blood alcohol limit and measures to deal with serious or persistent drink drive offenders.

SCOTLAND

Official Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is his estimate of the expenditure by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on official hospitality for (i) 1980–81, (ii) 1987–88, (iii) 1990–91, (iv) 1991–92, (v) 1992–93, (vi) 1993–94, (vii) 1994–95, (viii) 1995–96, (ix) 1996–97 and (x) 1 May to 30 September 1997. [15246]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 11 November 1997]: Expenditure on official hospitality by The Scottish Office and its departmental agencies is shown in the table.

Year	The Scottish Office £	Scottish Office agencies £
1980–81	18,427	not applicable
1987–88	41,983	not applicable
1990–91	65,123	nil
1991–92	83,836	5,700
1992–93	[1]125,118	4,979
1993–94	76,088	24,145
1994–95	79,510	28,603
1995–96	[2]82,978	27,635
1996–97	86,167	20,200
1997–98 (May to September)	19,774	12,046

[1] This figure includes expenditure on hospitality during the EC Council Meeting in Edinburgh in December 1992.

[2] In addition, in 1995–96 The Scottish Office spent £34,680 on hospitality as part of the Government's contribution to the VE Day and VJ Day commemorations.

Information on hospitality spending by non-departmental public bodies is not held centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Nursery Education

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what arrangements he intends to put in place to increase the level of pre-school provision once the pre-school education voucher scheme is withdrawn in June 1998. [18474]

Mr. Wilson: We believe that every child should have the chance of good pre-school education. That means a major expansion of services. We have pledged, first, to make a good-quality, part-time education place available, without charge, to every child in the pre-school year; and we aim to achieve this by the winter of next year. After that, and as new resources are found, we will set staged targets for three-year-olds. This is an ambitious and exciting programme.

For too long in some areas, pre-school education was neglected and ignored. Then it was subjected to the experiment of vouchers. Pre-school education needs a fresh start. It needs clear national priorities and targets, a fair and stable funding system, strong support for quality, and a framework for consultation and planning that will strengthen co-operation amongst providers.

I am delighted today to announce the launching of a major consultation paper, Education in Early Childhood: The Pre-school Years. Through this paper, I am initiating a national debate about the future of pre-school education in Scotland. The paper sets out our policy priorities; it discusses how services should be planned and funded, how providers, parents and others can work together in mutually rewarding ways, and how high standards of service can be assured. It also asks questions about the educational needs of three-year-olds and the kind of provision that parents want for them; and how best we should plan to offer learning to these very young children. The consultation paper also lays the foundations for more integrated early years services linking education to daycare and other services for children.

Football

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what arrangements he is putting in place in respect of Scottish police liaison with (a) FIFA, (b) the French authorities and (c) the French police over the World Cup; and if he will make a statement. [17849]

Mr. McLeish: The police in Scotland are represented on the World Cup Co-ordinating Group, set up by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, to co-ordinate arrangements at UK level. In addition, a committee consisting of officials from The Scottish Office, senior police officers and representatives from the Scottish Football Association has been established to draw up a strategy for the safety and security of Scottish fans travelling to France. The committee will liaise with the French authorities after the draw on 4 December when venues for matches will be known. The Scottish Football Association will then deal directly with FIFA. The police plan to contact their counterparts in France where the Scotland team will play to exchange intelligence and invite representatives to attend matches in Scotland to gain first-hand experience of Scottish supporters who have a world wide reputation for good behaviour.

Attendance Allowance

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland in what circumstances local authorities, in assessing ability to pay for domiciliary services which do not include personal care, (a) should discount attendance allowance benefit and (b) have discretion to exclude from consideration attendance allowance benefit. [17917]

Mr. Galbraith: Local authorities in Scotland have similar powers to charge for domiciliary services to those which apply in England. I therefore refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Under-Secretary of State for Health on 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 63.

Dounreay Nuclear Plant

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action will be taken to prevent further contamination of land and sea adjacent to the Dounreay nuclear plant. [14302]

Mr. Battle: I have been asked to reply.

Contamination in and around the Dounreay site is an historic legacy and one that the UKAEA is urgently addressing, subject to strict independent regulation by the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate and the Scottish Environmental Protection Agency. Government continues to monitor the situation closely.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Royal Ulster Constabulary

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many RUC officers have been seconded to other jurisdictions inside and outside the United kingdom over the past year; and how many officers of other jurisdictions have been seconded to the RUC over the same period. [13073]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: During the past year seven RUC officers have been seconded to other jurisdictions and one officer is presently seconded to the Royal Ulster Constabulary from a GB force.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list the principal functions of E4A squads, special support units, headquarters, mobile support units and special military intelligence units within the RUC; the annual cost of each; the numbers of officers and administrative staff employed; and the composition of each based on gender and religious/community origin. [13075]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: The information sought is confidential to the Chief Constable.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what are the terms of reference of the joint RUC and Police Authority for Northern Ireland working group to address the under-representation of women, Catholics and minorities within the RUC; and when it is expected to report. [13069]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: The terms of reference of the joint Royal Ulster Constabulary, Police Authority for Northern Ireland and Civilian Working Group are:

- to review the representation of Catholics, women and ethnic minorities within the RUC;
- to assess the reasons for any under-representation and to make recommendations how suitable applicants from all communities can be encouraged to apply;
- to examine selection procedures and satisfy the group that they assure equality of opportunity.

The group is expected to report to the Chief Constable in early 1998.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what were the staffing levels of the RUC in September (a) 1995, (b) 1996 and (c) 1997 (1) in total and (2) broken down (i) into numbers and percentages of full-time, reserve full-time and part-time staff (ii) by gender and (iii) by perceived religious/community origin. [13071]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: The information sought is set out below:

Date	CB[1]	CB[2]	CB3[3]	Total	Percentage CB1	Percentage CB2	Male	Female	Total	Percentage female
Royal Ulster Constabulary
1 September 1995	7,536	672	256	8,464	89.04	7.94	7,589	875	8,464	10.3
2 September 1996	7,447	677	260	8,384	88.82	8.07	7,494	890	8,384	10.6
1 September 1997	7,522	701	273	8,496	88.54	8.25	7,576	920	8,496	10.8
Full-time reserve
1 September 1995	2,780	199	166	3,145	88.39	6.33	2,994	151	3,145	4.8
2 September 1996	2,653	196	162	3,011	88.11	6.51	2,859	152	3,011	5.0
1 September 1997	2,567	200	156	2,923	87.82	6.84	2,706	217	2,923	7.4
Part-time reserve
1 September 1995	1,447	77	21	1,545	93.66	4.98	1,009	536	1,545	34.7
2 September 1996	1,411	79	21	1,511	93.38	5.23	972	539	1,511	35.7
1 September 1997	1,297	68	17	1,382	93.85	4.92	899	483	1,382	34.9

Date	CB[1]	CB[2]	CB3[3]	Total	Percentage CB1	Percentage CB2	Male	Female	Total	Percentage female
Combined
1 September 1995	11,763	948	443	13,154	89.43	7.21	11,592	1,562	13,154	11.9
2 September 1996	11,511	952	443	12,906	89.19	7.38	11,325	1,581	12,906	12.3
1 September 1997	11,386	969	446	12,801	88.95	7.57	11,181	1,620	12,801	12.7

[1] Perceived to be from the Protestant community.
[2] Perceived to be from the Catholic community.
[3] Other.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will publish the rules relating to the display by a uniformed RUC officer of clear personal identification. [15898]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 November 1997]: RUC instructions require that Sergeants and Constables display numerals on the epaulettes of all outer garments. All other officers are required to display their badge of rank.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what her policy is on the RUC indicating adherence to the Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials adopted by the 8th UN Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders in September 1990; [15903]

(2) what her policy is on the RUC indicating adherence to the UN Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty, adopted by the General Assembly Resolution 45/113 of 14 December 1990; [15904]

(3) what her policy is on the RUC indicating adherence to the United Nations Principles on the Effective Prevention and Investigation of Extra-Legal, Arbitrary and Summary Executions recommended by the Economic and Social Council Resolution of 24 May 1989; [15905]

(4) what her policy is on the RUC indicating adherence to the United Nations Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under any form of Detention or Imprisonment adopted by the General Assembly Resolution of 9 December 1988; [15906]

(5) what her policy is on the RUC indicating adherence to the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners, approved by the Economic and Social Council of 13 May 1977. [15907]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The instruments to which my hon. Friend refers, which are not legally binding as their wording shows, are recommendatory in nature. None carries a requirement or mechanism for indications of adherence. However, the importance of the recommended standards has been acknowledged by the United Kingdom's support for their adoption.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications for employment in the RUC were made in each year since 1993; from which community they came; and how many from each community were recruited. [15897]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The number of applications for membership of the RUC for each year since 1993 is shown in the following tables together with the community background of the applicants and the numbers accepted from each community.

Royal Ulster Constabulary

Year	CB1[1]	CB2[2]	CB3[3]	Total	Percentage CB1	Percentage CB2	Percentage CB3
1993	518	86	129	733	70.67	11.73	17.60
Acceptances	58	3	4	65	89.23	4.62	6.15
CompA 1994	2,836	442	339	3,617	78.41	12.22	9.37
Acceptances	62	9	5	76	81.58	11.84	6.58
CompB 1994	1,704	512	165	2,381	71.57	21.50	6.93
Acceptances	86	17	8	111	77.48	15.32	7.21
CompC 1995	1,448	467	143	2,058	70.36	22.69	6.95
Acceptances	98	20	9	127	77.17	15.75	7.09
CompD 1995	1,774	438	188	2,400	73.92	18.25	7.83
Acceptances	128	28	14	170	75.29	16.47	8.24
CompE 1996	1,573	367	155	2,095	75.08	17.52	7.40
Acceptances	67	9	6	82	81.71	10.98	7.32
CompF 1996	2,058	403	268	2,729	75.41	14.77	9.82
Acceptances	126	12	5	143	88.11	8.39	3.50
CompG 1997	2,166	412	212	2,790	77.63	14.77	7.60
Acceptances	Not yet processed		—	—	—	—	—

CompF 1996 is still subject to withdrawals by applicants.
[1] Perceived to be from the Protestant community.
[2] Perceived to be from the Roman Catholic community.
[3] Other.

Full-time reserve

Year	CB1[1]	CB2[2]	CB3[3]	Total	Percentage CB1	Percentage CB2	Percentage CB3
1993	1,039	111	124	1,274	81.55	8.71	9.73
Acceptances	95	8	11	114	83.33	7.02	9.65
1994	No vacancies advised for FTR			—	—	—	—
CompB 1995	1,042	282	130	1,454	71.66	19.39	8.94
Acceptances	19	4	3	26	73.08	15.38	11.54
CompC 1996	1,075	255	101	1,431	75.12	17.82	7.06
Acceptances	129	24	8	161	80.12	14.91	4.97
CompD 1997	1,154	184	135	1,473	78.34	12.49	9.16
Acceptances	51	7	2	60	85.00	11.67	3.33
CompE 1997	613	105	55	773	79.30	13.58	7.12
Acceptances	Not yet processed			—	—	—	—

CompD 1997 not yet fully processed.
[1] Perceived to be from the Protestant community.
[2] Perceived to be from the Roman Catholic community.
[3] Other.

Part-time reserve

Year	CB1[1]	CB2[2]	CB3[3]	Total	Percentage CB1	Percentage CB2	Percentage CB3
1993	830	90	38	958	86.64	9.39	3.97
Acceptances	123	13	2	138	89.13	9.42	1.45
CompA 1994	451	45	15	511	88.26	8.81	2.94
Acceptances	59	6	3	68	86.76	8.82	4.41
CompB 1994	1,416	236	102	1,754	80.73	13.45	5.82
Acceptances	128	19	5	152	84.21	12.50	3.29

[1] Perceived to be from the Protestant community.
[2] Perceived to be from the Roman Catholic community.
[3] Other.

Police Authority

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the total work force of the Police Authority, including staff seconded from the Civil Service; and what is their gender and perceived religious/community origin. [13074]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: The Police Authority for Northern Ireland provides an annual monitoring return to the Fair Employment Commission in respect of the gender and perceived religious affiliation of its work force.

The review includes employees directly recruited by PANI and those staff on secondment from the NICS, Department of Finance and Personnel. The last review was completed on 1 Janaury 1997, when the breakdown was as follows:

	Number
Total number of employees	3,489
(a) Gender
Male	1,242
Female	2,247
(b) Perceived religious affiliation
Protestant	2,885
Roman Catholic	414
Not determined	190

Robert Hamill

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what inquiries are presently under way into the circumstances of the death of Robert Hamill in Portadown town centre on 27 April; and what assurances she has given the nationalist community that the RUC will protect the right to life of all citizens without prejudice. [13064]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 November 1997]: Inquiries into the death of Robert Hamill are on-going and papers have been submitted to the Director of Public Prosecutions.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary has given and will continue to give all the citizens the full protection of the law without prejudice.

Hoax Bomb Alert, Markethill

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the result of the police investigation into the hoax bomb alert in Markethill on 27 September; and what action the Director of Public Prosecutions intends to take. [15900]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 November 1997]: The Police have conducted a thorough enquiry into the events in Markethill on 27 September 1997.

The file is now with the Director of Public Prosecutions for consideration.

Southern Area Health and Social Services Board

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list the names of the members of the Southern Area Health and Social Services Board. [17022]

Mr. Worthington: The membership of the Southern Health and Social Services Board is:

Mr. W. F. Gillespie—Chairman

Non-Executive members

Mr. J. Brown

Mrs. M. K. P. Hagan

Mr. S. T. Hogan

Mrs. S. G. Ingram

Mrs. J. Power

Mr. D. J. Ryan

Executive members

Mr. B. Cunningham—Chief Executive

Dr. A. Telford—Director of Public Health

Mrs. S. Reid—Director of Commissioning and Planning

Mr. S. McKeever—Director of Finance

Mr. R. Blair—Director of Social Services

Telecommunications Masts

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the proposed Orange telephone mast at Portavogie has received planning permission; if the Ards Borough Council was consulted; what representations she received in connection with this mast; and if she will make a statement. [17433]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Planning Service under its Chief Executive, Mr. T. W. Stewart. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from T. W. Stewart to Mr. John D. Taylor, dated 26 November 1997:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the proposed Orange telephone mast at Portavogie.

The mast in question has planning permission as it is permitted development by virtue of Article 3 and Part 17 of Schedule 1 to the Planning (General Development) Order (Northern Ireland) 1993. Ards Borough Council was not consulted on the proposal, and no written representations have been received by Planning Service in connection with this mast.

I do hope this clarifies the position.

Royal Victoria and City Hospital

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will refer the rationalisation of the Royal Victoria and City Hospital to the National Audit Office to examine the reasons for proposed capital expenditure at a time when beds are vacant. [17768]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 25 November 1997]: No. The Eastern Health and Social Services Board with the Royal Group of Hospitals and Dental Hospitals Health and Social Services Trust and the Belfast City Hospital Health and Social Services Trust, as part of the on-going process of rationalisation, are currently considering a range of options for the utilisation of capacity being freed up at Belfast City Hospital.

Ambulances

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland at what (i) age and, (ii) mileage an ambulance is expected to have reached the end of its normal working life; how many and what percentage of ambulances are beyond that normal span (a) in Northern Ireland and (b) in each health and social services board area. [17357]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 25 November 1997]: DHSS Guidelines for the replacement of accident and emergency ambulances stipulate that those vehicles should be replaced after they have reached seven years of age or whenever they have covered 140,000 miles, whichever is the sooner. For non-emergency ambulances this is five years or 70,000 miles.

In Northern Ireland, 22 representing 17 per cent. of Accident and Emergency Ambulances are beyond the normal span of age and mileage. Seventy-four non-emergency ambulances representing 88 per cent. are beyond the normal span of age and mileage.

The position in each Board area is given in the following table.

Accident and Emergency Ambulances

Number in Board area	North	South	East	West	Total
Number in board area	37	30	39	27	133
Exceed on both	14	1	3	4	22
Age and mileage (per cent.)	38	3	8	15	17

Non-emergency Ambulances

	North	South	East	West	Total
Number in board area	16	14	38	16	84
Exceed on both	16	13	30	15	74
Age and mileage (per cent.)	100	92	79	93	88

Health Expenditure

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will estimate the total real level of her Department's planned expenditure on health in 1995–96 prices in (a) 1997–98 and (b) 1998–9; and what such figures were for (i) 1997–98 and (ii) 1998–99, following the November 1996 budget on the basis of the estimates of the GDP deflator contained in that Budget. [17566]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 25 November 1997]: The figures requested are as follows: (a) £1,565 million, (b) £1,544 million, (i) £1,576 million and (ii) £1,570 million. The figure for (b) reflects the spending plans of the previous Government as 1998–99 public expenditure reallocations for the individual Northern Ireland programmes will not be announced until early December.

Jubilee Maternity Hospital

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many job losses the proposed transfer of the Jubilee Maternity Hospital will entail. [17767]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 25 November 1997]: I have asked the Royal Group of Hospitals and Dental Hospitals HSS Trust and the Belfast City Hospital HSS Trust to work closely together to take forward the arrangements for the transfer of services from the Jubilee. There are no indications of job losses at this early stage of the process.

Regional Cancer Centres

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the proposed cancer centre at the Belfast City Hospital will be operational. [17764]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 25 November 1997]: The time scale for the establishment of a regional cancer centre will be considered when consultation on the future location of radiotherapy services has been completed and a detailed business case agreed for the capital investment required.

Belvoir Park Hospital

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the funding provided for updating Belvoir Park Hospital will result in increased funds for treatment of cancer patients. [17766]

Mr. Worthington [holding answer 25 November 1997]: No specific funding has been identified for updating Belvoir Park Hospital. Bids essential for the maintenance of a quality service at Belvoir will, however, be considered sympathetically.

Judicial Procedures

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to her answer of 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 174, if she will list the colleagues and those with responsibility for judicial matters whom she consulted on certifying procedures, indicating the positions they held; and which other bodies she consulted on this matter. [17572]

Mr. Ingram: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State consulted with the Attorney-General, the Lord Chief Justice for Northern Ireland and the Lord Chancellor on the matter of certifying procedures; these consultations were confidential. Before making final decisions on the matter, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State charged officials to confer with the Chief Constable's office and the office of the Director of Public Prosecutions (Northern Ireland); she then advised the Attorney-General, the Lord Chief Justice for Northern Ireland and the Lord Chancellor of her decision.

WALES

Nursery Education

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) how many four year olds were receiving 50 per cent. nursery education in May (i) 1997 and (ii) 1996 in (a) the public and (b) the private sector; [17304]

(2) what is his estimate of the number of four year olds who will be receiving 50 per cent. nursery education in 2000 in (a) the public sector and (b) the private sector. [17305]

Mr. Hain: The information is not available in the form requested. The January 1997 Schools census showed 35,313 pupils aged four were receiving at least half-time education in maintained nursery, primary and special schools, compared with 35,251 at January 1996. Nursery Voucher redemption statistics indicate that 2,407 four year olds were receiving at least half-time nursery education in private and voluntary sectors in the Summer term 1997.

The intention is that from September 1998 local authorities should fund at least half-time education places for all four year olds whose parents want them, either in maintained schools or through partnerships with the private and voluntary sectors. The number of 4 year olds who will receive nursery education in each sector in 2000 will depend on arrangements adopted in each local authority area.

Coal Industry

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on assistance for the coal industry in Wales. [17638]

Mr. Hain: I am holding a workshop with a wide range of organisations on 5 December to discuss development opportunities for the Welsh coal industry to which I attach great importance. The outcome of this will be carefully considered.

Anti-social Neighbours

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the number of complaints involving anti-social neighbours in each of the last two years; and what advice and assistance his Department gives to social housing landlords. [17640]

Mr. Win Griffiths: In 1996, 46 written complaints were received by the Welsh Office about anti-social behaviour by neighbours. To date, in 1997, 50 have been received. We have no information on the number of complaints received by social landlords.

We are determined to take and support measures which protect the majority of citizens who respect the law and the rights of others. The proposed Crime and Disorder Bill will contain a number of measures to reduce petty crime and neighbourhood disorder. These include such measures as community safety orders to restrain the behaviour of individuals; and a new responsibility on local authorities to develop statutory partnerships to help prevent crime and enhance community safety.

There are a number of legal measures, including eviction, which landlords can use against tenants guilty of anti-social behaviour. The Welsh Office has issued good practice guidance (entitled 'Getting the Best Out of the Court System in Possession Cases') to all local authorities in Wales to help them make more effective and speedier use of these measures. In addition, the Housing Act 1996 contains provisions to improve the legal processes and strengthen the powers available to landlords to deal with anti-social behaviour by tenants and their visitors.

Guidance on these provisions was issued to local authorities earlier this year in Welsh Office circulars 2/97 'Conduct of Tenants—Introductory Tenancies and Repossession for Secure Tenancies' and 38/97 'Conduct of Tenants—Injunctions Against Anti-Social Behaviour'. Guidance on anti-social behaviour for housing association landlords is contained in paragraph 8.4 of 'The Regulatory Requirements' issued by Tai Cymru.

Under the Environmental Protection Act 1990, the Noise and Statutory Nuisance Act 1993 and the Noise Act 1996, local authorities have responsibility for investigating incidents of noise nuisance in their area. Should a statutory nuisance be detected, local authorities have wide-ranging powers to prevent or abate noise from premises (including land) and vehicles. Guidance on the duties and powers of local authorities in implementing the Noise Act 1996 and the Noise and Statutory Nuisance Act 1993 is provided in Welsh Office Circulars 41/97 and 42/97.

Beef Industry

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on prospects for the beef industry in Wales. [17636]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The government has continued to support various initiatives to help restore and improve consumer confidence in beef. As a result we have seen significant increases in the level of beef consumption. Every effort is being made to have the export ban lifted and that should see a further improvement in prospects for the industry. Nevertheless, the beef sector remains in long term structural surplus and reform of the CAP beef regime is essential.

CELTEC

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on his Department's inquiring into CELTEC and its associated holding companies. [17929]

Mr. Hain: Copies of the letter which I sent to my hon. Friend the Member for Conwy (Mrs. Williams) on 29 October pursuant to her question of 11 July, Official Report column 629, have been placed in the Library of the House. The letter encloses a note by my officials on the investigations made into the various allegations received. Subject to checking of the final accounts of Hightown Holdings and its subsidiary companies for the financial year 1996–97, these investigations have found no evidence of loss or impropriety in the handling of public funds.

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what safeguards he has put in place to ensure the debts of CELTEC's associated companies do not become a charge upon public funds. [17930]

Mr. Hain: CELTEC has associated undertakings with "The Careers Company" and "Careers Plus", the Careers Service Companies for North West Wales and North East Wales respectively. CELTEC's liability is limited to £1 in each case.

CELTEC also has a trading relationship with the subsidiary companies of the Hightown Holdings Group—Alkemy and Business Advance. CELTEC is currently negotiating the integration of Alkemy and Business Advance Functions into the TEC by means of a Business Transfer Agreement. This will involve the acquisition by CELTEC of defined assets and liabilities of both companies. Welsh Office officials will not approve the transfer unless CELTEC acquires sufficient assets from those companies to cover any liabilities transferred. This should ensure that any liabilities do not become a charge upon public funds.

It is also intended that, following the planned transfer, the Hightown Holdings Group will then be wound up with any residual assets, after all liabilities have been met, being transferred to the TEC.

Regional Selective Assistance

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list each regional selective assistance offer made to former privatised utility companies in Wales. [17955]

Mr. Ron Davies: There have been none.

Cardiff Bay Development Corporation

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the urban development grants made by the Cardiff Bay Development Corporation since its inception by (a) year agreed and (b) amount agreed. [17956]

Mr. Ron Davies: This is an operational matter for the Corporation and I have asked the Chief Executive to provide the information my hon. Friend has requested; a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Food Safety

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what (a) research and (b) opinion surveys his Ministry has conducted to determine the current level of public confidence in safety of (i) British, (ii) European, (iii) non-European produced food and procedures for dealing with food safety issues. [17533]

Dr. John Cunningham: My department has a research programme into the management of risk which has examined public perceptions of food safety risk. We also take note of other relevant opinion surveys.

Safe Food

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his Ministry's definition of safe food. [17532]

Mr. John Cunningham: The Food Safety Act 1990 makes it an offence to sell food which is injurious to health; unfit for human consumption; or so contaminated that it would not be reasonable to expect it to be used for human consumption.

Milk Development Council

Mr. Paice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has made to the Department of Trade and Industry concerning the impact of proposed tax changes for non-profit making research organisations on the Milk Development Council. [18066]

Mr. Rooker: The Department has drawn to the attention of the President of the Board of Trade our assessment of the potential impact on the Milk Development Council of the proposed changes to the guidelines on granting exemption from corporation tax to scientific research association.

Aeron Valley Creameries

Mr. Paice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received on Milk Marque's acquisition of Aeron Valley Creameries; and if he will make a statement. [18065]

Mr. Rooker: The Department has received representations from the Dairy Industry Federation and from a major UK dairy company.

Dietary Supplements

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the consideration of dietary supplements by (a) the Codex Alimentarius Committee, (b) the European Commission, and (c) the Committee on Toxicity, indicating his Department's policy in respect of each body. [18124]

Mr. Rooker: The Codex Committee on Nutrition and Foods for Special Dietary Uses is in the process of drawing up guidelines on supplements containing vitamins and minerals. The current draft, which addresses a number of issues, including the setting of maximum vitamin and mineral content of supplements, is due to be discussed again in September 1998. Codex standards and guidelines are advisory and it is for individual Governments to decide what use, if any, they wish to make of them.

In June of this year, the EU Commission issued a discussion document on the possible harmonisation of national controls on vitamin and mineral supplements and foods with added vitamins and minerals. This reviewed the current situation and presented for consideration various issues relating to the control of these products, including the question of the need for establishing maximum limits on their vitamin and mineral content. It made no proposals for action on this or on any of the other issues covered. Nor did it commit the Commission to bringing forward proposals for legislation. A copy of the UK's response has been deposited in the Library.

The Committee on Toxicity of Chemical in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment (COT) have not considered dietary supplements as a class of products but have provided advice on the safety of supplements containing vitamin B6. After reviewing the data from scientific literature, the COT advised that the level of vitamin B6 in dietary supplements sold under food law should be limited to a maximum of 10 mg per daily dose. The Government has accepted this recommendation. A copy of the statement issued by the COT is already available in the Library.

In each case, the products being considered are those sold as foods: products classified as medicines are not affected.

The Government's main concern is to ensure the safety of dietary supplements sold under food law. In the case of the Codex guidelines and the EU discussion document, we have argued that any controls should be based on safety considerations. The proposed controls on supplements containing vitamin B6 are wholly consistent with this policy.

Unpasteurised Milk

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans his Department has to introduce a ban on the sale of unpasteurised milk; and if he will make a statement. [18039]

Mr. Rooker: We have initiated public consultations on a proposal to ban sales of raw cows' milk for drinking in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. Such milk is already banned in Scotland. These consultations have no effect on sales of unpasteurised cows' milk for further processing.

I cannot predict the outcome of public consultation. We shall take careful stock of the responses before proposing how we wish to proceed.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what procedures exist for the monitoring of unpasteurised milk. [18040]

Mr. Rooker: All production holdings and processing establishments are inspected regularly to check milk is produced hygienically and to monitor compliance with the Dairy Products (Hygiene) Regulations 1995, as amended.

Enforcement authorities monitor the microbiological status of unpasteurised milk at all stages of distribution and check the conditions under which the milk is handled and packaged. Samples of milk from all registered sellers of unpasteurised cows' milk are officially tested on average on two occasions each year.

Processors themselves are required to monitor and control critical points in the production and packaging of unpasteurised milk.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many farms are currently selling unpasteurised milk; and what is the volume sold each day. [18041]

Mr. Rooker: The majority of milk producers sell unpasteurised milk for further processing. Statistics are not collected and so the exact number of these is not known.

Production statistics for raw cows' drinking milk are not collected.

There are currently 578 registered producers of raw cows' drinking milk in England and Wales. Production, in some cases, is known to be linked to seasonal demand.

Production of raw cows' drinking milk is thought to be in the region of 1,000 litres per day.

Israeli Goods

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) what discussions he has had with food retailers marketing goods labelled "Made in Israel" on measures to verify their attribution; [17543]

(2) what response he has made to the representations from the government of Israel on alleged abuses of the preferential rate applied to fruit juice imports; [17544]

(3) what plans he has to stop abuses of the preferential rate applying to fruit juice imports from Israel. [17541]

Mr. Doug Henderson: I have been asked to reply.

I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to her on 26 November 1997, Official Report, column 544.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Tuition Fees

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what assistance will be given to students beginning courses in 1998 lasting longer than three years towards the cost of their tuition fees for the additional years. [17866]

Dr. Howells: Under our plans, students from lower-income families resident in England will have the whole of their tuition fees paid for them in the fourth as in the previous three years, whilst others from middle-income families will have part of their fees paid, depending on an assessment of their parents' spouses' or own income. Medical and dental students in their fifth and subsequent years will have their fees paid.

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment at what (a) net and (b) gross parental or household income level English students will be required to pay full university tuition fees. [17862]

Dr. Howells: The rates for student awards and loans, and the associated contribution scales, for academic year 1998–99 have not yet been determined.

It is therefore not possible at this stage to give precise figures about contributions to tuition fees in the 1998–99 academic year. However, had tuition fee contributions been in effect in academic year 1997–98, English students with a residual (ie net) parental income after allowable deductions of about £26,500 would have been assessed as due to pay the full £1,000.

It is not practicable to give precise individual figures for the equivalent gross income at which the full £1,000 fee will become payable in 1998–99, as this will depend on the circumstances of the family concerned. However, because it may not be immediately clear to prospective students and their parents what is meant by "residual income," we have illustrated the sort of gross family income above which the full £1,000 will be payable. In 1998–99 it will be about £35,000 a year.

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what estimate he has made of the cost of financing tuition fees for the fourth year of study for English domiciled students studying at Scottish universities. [17861]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 18 November 1997, Official Report, column 162.

Student Fees

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment pursuant to his answer of 24 November 1997, Official Report, column 362, if he will list the certificate, diploma or other academic awards comparable to a first degree which will be subject to the new arrangements for student support in autumn 1998. [17953]

Dr. Howells: A list of these courses is not maintained centrally.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Transnational Corporations (Code of Conduct)

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress her Department has made in establishing an international code of conduct for transnational corporations in developing countries. [17753]

Clare Short: We are working with the Department of Trade and Industry and other Departments on initiatives aimed to introduce codes of conduct for transnational corporations. We are considering whether the OECD guidelines for multinational enterprises, at present covering operations in OECD member countries only, should extend world wide when they are revised next year.

I have recently approved a grant for the Ethical Trading Initiative which will bring together a group of development NGOs, major private sector interests and non-profit organisations in the UK in a joint effort to produce a set of ethical guidelines for businesses.

Aid Programmes (Audit)

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what changes she proposes to make in the methods used to audit aid programmes. [17746]

Clare Short: Our audit of our aid delivery systems is continually under review but there are no current proposals for improving the methods used by my Department to audit aid programmes.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Laser Pens

Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans she has to ban or impose restrictions on the sale and use of laser pens. [13353]

Mr. Nigel Griffiths [holding answer 30 October 1997]: I met Trading Standards Officers on 23 October to discuss the safety of laser pens. Heriot-Watt University was asked to test these products. The results were available to me on 28 October. I immediately issued a press notice urging Trading Standards Officers to remove all dangerous laser pens from sale.

Laser pens in classes 3a, and 3b and 4 as classified in BS EN60825, part 1, 1994 would present an unacceptable risk when used by the general public and are unsafe under the General Product Safety Regulations 1994. Those supplying them to the general public could be prosecuted.

Export Credits

Mr. Flynn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what amount of money underwritten by the ECGD for defence equipment has been claimed by manufacturers, but not recovered from the Governments of (a) Venezuela, (b) Jordan, (c) Kenya, (d) Egypt and (e) Algeria. [15981]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 14 November 1997]: The amounts of money paid in claims but not yet recovered for guarantees to defence ministries are as follows:

	£ million
Venezuela	Fully Recovered
Jordon	214.4
Kenya	27.3
Egypt	52.5
Algeria	97.8

Export Licences

Mrs. May: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many export licence applications are outstanding; and how many have been outstanding for more than (a) one month, (b) three months and (c) more than three months. [16320]

Mrs. Roche: At 18 November, a decision had not yet been taken on 2,306 applications for new individual export licences received since 2 May 1997. These are broken down as follows:

	Applications received between 2 May 1997 and 17 August 1997	Applications received between 18 August 1997 and 17 October 1997	Applications received between 18 October 1997 and 18 November 1997
Standard individual export licences	447	835	869
Open individual export licences	75	54	26

However, this information should be considered in the light of my answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Don Valley (Caroline Flint) on 30 October 1997, Official Report, columns 256–58.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Mr. Paterson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on ministerial responsibilities in her Department. [16355]

Mrs. Beckett: Ministerial responsibilities in my Department are as follows:

MINISTER FOR TRADE AND COMPETITIVENESS IN EUROPE

Lord Simon of Highbury

Lord Simon is a Minister of State in both Treasury and the DTI.

Responsible for internal EU issues including business preparations for EMU the European single market, enlargement and plans for the UK Presidency of the EU; for the co-ordination of EU issues generally within the DTI; and for insurance.

Chairman of the inter-departmental taskforce on competitiveness in Europe. Attends the Internal Market Council. Responsible with Lord Clinton-Davis for DTI issues in the Lords.

Responsible jointly with Ian McCartney for corporate governance, corporate affairs and relations with the City of London. Lord Simon has specific responsibility for corporate governance.

MINISTER FOR COMPETITION AND CONSUMER AFFAIRS

Nigel Griffiths MP

Responsible for competition and consumer affairs and investigations. Supports John Battle on environment issues. Responsible with Mr. Battle for the Competition Bill.

Responsible for the Insolvency Service.

MINISTER FOR SMALL FIRMS, TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Barbara Roche MP

Responsible for small firms; Business Links; regional policy; Regional Selective Assistance; Structural Funds; communications and information industries and deregulation within the DTI. Attends the Industry and Telecommunications Council. Supports Ian McCartney on inward investment, and Lord Clinton-Davis on trade and export matters in the Commons.

Responsible for the Radiocommunications Agency.

PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE AND SECRETARY OF STATE FOR TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

The right hon. Margaret Beckett MP

Overall responsibility for the Department of Trade and Industry and the Export Credits Guarantee Department. Special responsibility for competitiveness and science and technology.

MINISTER FOR TRADE

Lord Clinton-Davis

Responsible for the export promotion of goods and services, including oil and gas projects, and for overseas investment and international trade policy; Projects Export Promotion; export control and non-proliferation issues; and the Export Credits Guarantee Department. Attends the GAC on trade policy matter.

Responsible jointly for DTI business in the Lords.

MINISTER FOR SCIENCE, ENERGY AND INDUSTRY

John Battle MP

Responsible for the Office of Science and Technology; the British National Space Centre; technology and standards; design and innovation. Attends the Research Council.

Responsible for the Competition Bill (with Mr. Griffiths); manufacturing and services, including engineering, automotive and metals, consumer goods and services, chemicals and biotechnology, and aerospace. Takes an over-arching view of Information Society issues. Also responsible for energy and energy policy including electricity, nuclear fuels, oil and gas, energy technology, renewables and industry sponsorship aspects of the Oil, Gas and Petrochemicals Supplies Office; and for environment issues. Attends the Energy Council.

MINISTER OF STATE

Ian McCartney MP

Responsible for the labour market; inward investment; and the Post Office. Attends the Social Affairs Council.

Responsible jointly with Lord Simon for corporate governance, corporate affairs and relations with the City of London. Mr. McCartney has specific responsibility for corporate affairs.

Responsible for the Employment Tribunals Service, Patent Office and Companies House.

Mr. Prior: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on the responsibilities of (a) the Minister for Trade and (b) the Minister for Small Firms, Trade and Industry. [16525]

Mrs. Beckett: The Minister for Trade's responsibilities are for the export promotion of goods and services, including oil and gas projects, and for overseas investment and international trade policy; Projects Export Promotion; export control and non-proliferation issues; and the Export Credits Guarantee Department. He attends the GAC on trade policy matter.

He is responsible jointly for DTI business in the Lords.

The Minister for Small Firms, Trade and Industry's responsibilities are for small firms; Business Links; regional policy; Regional Selective Assistance; Structural Funds; communications and information industries and deregulation within the DTI. She attends the Industry and Telecommunications Council. She supports the Minister of State, my hon. Friend the Member for Makerfield (Mr. McCartney), on inward investment, and Lord Clinton-Davis on trade and export matters in the Commons.

She is responsible for the Radiocommunications Agency.

Formula One Racing

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate she has made of the number of job losses which would result from the withdrawal of Formula One racing in the United Kingdom; and if she will provide a breakdown of her estimate. [16939]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 20 November 1997]: There are no official figures for employment in the motor sport industry. However, about 8,000 jobs are believed to depend on the supply of equipment and services related to Formula One. Many of these jobs would be at risk if Formula One were to withdraw from the United Kingdom. There would also be an unquantifiable adverse effect on the whole motor sport industry, which is estimated to provide around 50,000 full-time jobs.

Amsterdam Treaty

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade in respect of which sections of the Treaty of Amsterdam his Department contributed to the drafting. [17009]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 20 November 1997]: The United Kingdom position on the draft Treaty of Amsterdam was reached after consultation between relevant Departments.

Late Payments Green Paper

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if the Minister for Small Firms, Trade and Industry will place in the Library a copy of all responses to her Green Paper on Statutory Interest on Late Payment Debts. [17441]

Mrs. Roche [holding answer 24 November 1997]: In line with recent guidance from the Library of the House, we will place in the Library a schedule of all responses received except where the author has specifically requested that we do not publish their response.

HEALTH

Dental Amalgam

Mrs. Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has conducted into the toxic effect of mercury in dental amalgam. [16859]

Mr. Milburn: The Department is advised by an independent Committee on the Toxicity of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment (COT). In 1986 the COT conducted a review and concluded that the use of dental amalgam is free from the risk of systemic toxicity and only a few cases of hypersensitivity occur. Similar reviews by national and international expert bodies have reached the same conclusions. COT is currently preparing an updated opinion.

Sussex Ambulance Service

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the funding procedures for the pension scheme of the Sussex Ambulance Service; what contributions are provided by the (a) employees and (b) employers; what is the median age of retirement for ambulance men; and what assessment he has made of the structure of the fund relative to the retirement profile of the service. [17213]

Mr. Milburn: In common with all other National Health Service employees the Sussex Ambulance Service personnel are eligible to join the NHS Pension Scheme. The scheme is based on a notional fund assumed to be invested entirely in gilts.

The Government Actuary reviews the fund at quinquennial intervals. Factors such as the scheme's retirement profile form part of his valuation reports in which he recommends an appropriate rate of employer contribution. Currently this is 4 per cent. of pensionable earnings.

Employee contributions are levied at the rate of 5 per cent. for manual employees and 6 per cent. for non-manuals.

The median retirement age for ambulance men is not known because within the valuation data they are included with other employment groups. The scheme's normal retirement age is 60.

Kidderminster Hospital

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people are employed at Kidderminster hospital

(a) as doctors or consultants, (b) as nursing staff, (c) providing domestic services and (d) in other capacities. [17178]

Mr. Milburn: Information is not available in the form requested. Such information that is available is shown in the table.

National Health Service Hospital and Community Health Service staff directly employed by Kidderminster Healthcare NHS Trust as at 30 September 1996

whole-time equivalents

	Kidderminster Health Care NHS Trust
Medical staff	90
Nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff[1]	540
Support staff in the hotel and property area of work	80
Other staff	530
All directly employed staff	1,230

Notes:
[1] Excludes learners who are counted within "Others".
Figures are rounded to the nearest ten.
Source:
Department of Health Non-Medical Workforce Census.

Community Pharmacists

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 61, on community pharmacists, when he plans to publish the Department's evaluation of the pilot projects and his proposals for promoting best practice among community pharmacists. [17176]

Mr. Milburn: The Department is keen to make better use of community pharmacists' skills where this is cost effective.

The funding of these pilot projects is a part of that commitment. We will consult with representatives of the profession about any proposals for additional pharmaceutical services.

We have not made any decisions yet about whether or how the project results will be given wider dissemination.

Health Action Zones

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) by what methods Ministers intend to take account of differing rural and urban needs when reviewing applications for health action zones; [17252]

(2) if health action zones can apply in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [17251]

Mr. Milburn: Health Action Zones will include areas of pronounced deprivation and poor health and will, therefore, be targeted at those parts of the country where health inequalities are greatest. We will look to identify those bids, whether from urban or rural areas, that promise to have the greatest impact in delivering measurable and sustainable improvements in the health of the public and in the outcomes and quality of services.

Computers (Century Date Change)

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his estimate of the cost of reprogramming or replacing computer systems in the NHS which are not millennium compliant; and if he has issued guidance to health authorities on how the expenditure involved should be kept within existing budgets. [17434]

Mr. Milburn: The likely cost to the National Health Service of ensuring that systems are millennium compliant is difficult to forecast accurately. Guidance has recently been issued to Chief Executives in the NHS outlining the action they are expected to take to deal with the millennium problem. Much of the work required is likely to be funded from budgets already allocated to supporting NHS information management and technology needs.

Drug Addiction

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proposals he has for the co-ordination of services to deal with the problems of young people addicted to heroin and other similar drugs. [17238]

Ms Jowell: The current drugs strategy "Tackling Drugs Together" makes young people a priority. On 25 November three new documents about young people were launched by the Standing Conference on Drug Abuse following consultation with the Department and service providers. My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State was present and endorsed the documents. They outline the need for services which are appropriate for children and young people, which take a holistic approach, and which have staff with appropriate training for working with young people. They also provide detailed information about good practice, models of services and information about critical success factors. All three documents emphasise the necessity of inter-agency partnerships to deal with the problems of young people who misuse drugs.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what treatments are available from the National Health Service for heroin and other opiate addictions. [17239]

Ms Jowell: A wide range of treatment services is available through the National Health Service ranging from substitute prescribing to intensive residential rehabilitation. The Department of Heath does not have a central record of services provided. It is for health authorities to determine what services to commission from the NHS and voluntary agencies according to their assessment of local needs and priorities.

Mental Health Services

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were seen by (a) acute and (b) community mental health services in each health authority in each of the last five years. [17385]

Mr. Boateng: Information in the form requested is not available centrally. Between June and September 1997, approximately 640,000 people were receiving care from specialist mental health services but there is no breakdown centrally of the type of care provided to these patients. Data are available on specific services but these will involve an element of double counting since some patients will have received more than one service or, in the case of hospital in-patient episodes, have had more than one episode in hospital. The table shows figures for England for the last five years for numbers of in-patient finished consultant episodes, first attendances in the year at out-patient clinics, first contacts in the year with community psychiatric nurses and first attendances in the year at National Health Service day centres. These figures are published for hospital trusts in the following publications:

Ordinary and day cases admissions, England, Financial year 1996–97

Out-patient and ward attenders, England, Financial year 1996–97

NHS day care facilities, England, Financial year 1996–97

Patient care in the community, community psychiatric nursing, summary information for 1995–96, England.

Copies of all these publications are available in the Library.

Contacts with NHS services for mentally ill people: 1992–93 to 1996–97

England

Thousands

	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96	1996–97
Finished consultant episodes	233	236	237	240	239
First out-patient attendances	238	254	257	271	285
First contacts with community psychiatric nurses	406	475	493	530	566
First attendances at NHS day centres	92	105	97	100	99

Sources:
KP70, KH09, KC57, KH14.
Note:
[1] Provisional.

Winter Funding Initiative

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list for each health authority the amounts allocated to each social services department under the winter funding initiative. [18123]

Mr. Milburn: Details of individual agreements between health authorities and local authority social services departments are not held centrally. However, initial estimates indicate that, nationally, between £35 million and £40 million of the additional resources made available to meet winter pressures in 1997–98 will be transferred to social services departments.

Pig Organs

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the dangers posed by viruses in pig organs identified for possible use in pig-to-human transplants. [17778]

Mr. Boateng: "Animal Tissue into Humans", the Report of the Advisory Group on the Ethics of Xenotransplantation, published in January 1997, concluded that there was insufficient knowledge of the risks associated with the transmission of infectious diseases, including viruses, for clinical trials involving humans to be ethically acceptable. Research into these and other relevant issues is continuing.

The Government is advised by the United Kingdom Xenotransplantation Interim Regulatory Authority (UKXIRA) on these issues and on the acceptability of any application to undertake trials in xenotransplantation involving humans. Any application will be expected to include a full assessment of the microbiological risk of any proposed procedure. Within the United Kingdom we will allow clinical trials involving humans to take place only if and when we are satisfied that the risks associated with such procedures are acceptable. The UKXIRA will take the latest evidence available into account in its advice. The Advisory Committee on Dangerous Pathogens is also working with the UKXIRA on microbiological issues involved in xenotransplantation.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with Imutran concerning the transplantation of organs from pigs to humans; and if he will make a statement. [17779]

Mr. Boateng: The United Kingdom biotechnology industry is at the forefront of international research and development into xenotransplantation. The views of industry are important to the development of a regulatory structure and have been formally sought through consultation exercises. The United Kingdom Xenotransplantation Interim Regulatory Authority, established to advise on and oversee developments in xenotransplantation, is in contact with Imutran, and other companies in the field, and has visited some of Imutran's animal facilities. My noble Friend the Minister of State, Baroness Jay of Paddington, at Imutran's invitation, recently visited its facilities during which she was advised of the developments in its work.

NHS Vacancies

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts and health authority non-executive positions fell to be filled on 1 November; how many were filled on that date; and how many are currently vacant. [18051]

Mr. Milburn: Five hundred and seventy non-executive appointments to National Health Service trusts fell to be made by 1 November. Two hundred and eight had been made by that date. Eighty-five vacancies remained on 26 November.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vacant posts there are currently by region for (a) hospital doctors, (b) general practitioners and (c) nurses. [17391]

Mr. Milburn: The available information on vacant posts by region is as follows:

(a) National Health Service hospital and community health services: doctors vacancies in England at 30 September 1996:

England

	Number
Northern and Yorkshire	180
Trent	130
Anglia and Oxford	110
North Thames	350
South Thames	160

(a) National Health Service hospital and community health services: doctors vacancies in England at 30 September 1996: England

	Number
South and West	120
West Midlands	110
North West	260
Special hospitals	10
Total	1,410

Source:
The Medical and Dental Workforce Census 30 September 1996.
Notes:
1. All figures are whole-time equivalents rounded to the nearest ten.
2. Totals may not agree due to rounding.
3. Vacant posts are not collected for all grades—the figures above cover the following grades: Consultant, Staff Grade, Senior Registrar (including Specialist Registrar), Registrar and Senior House Officer.

(b) Information relating to general practitioner vacancies is collected by the Medical Practices Committee. However, this does not include regional data comparable to that above.

(c) Figures on vacancies for Hospital and Community Health services nurses and midwives are collected by the Office of Manpower and Economics and published in the annual reports of the Review Body for Nursing Staff, Midwives, Health Visitors and Professions Allied to Medicine. Copies of these documents are in the Library.

NHS Staff

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the names of those NHS trust and health authority members, in post on 30 October, who are no longer in post because they failed to comply with the terms of his Department's guidance to regional health authorities relating to (a) political allegiance and (b) personal allegiance to the NHS. [18050]

Mr. Milburn: The only guidance issued by the Department on political allegiance and personal allegiance to the National Health Service is that contained in the information pack sent to all applicants for posts on trust and health authority boards. The guidance makes clear that candidates must have a strong personal commitment to the NHS but a candidate's political activity will not be a factor in their appointment. New candidates and those applying for reappointment are considered against all the criteria set out in the information pack.

Psychiatric Beds

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many psychiatric beds have closed in each year since 1980–81. [17386]

Mr. Boateng: The Department does not collect information on bed closures.

Data are, however, collected centrally on the average daily number of available beds. These figures are shown in the table:

Average daily number of available beds in mental illness wards in National Health Service hospitals in England, 1980 to 1996–97

Year	Mental illness
1980	87,396
1981	85,436
1982	83,831
1983	81,786
1984	78,911
1985	75,866
1986	72,402
1987–88	67,127
1988–89	62,999
1989–90	59,290
1990–91	55,239
1991–92	50,278
1992–93	47,308
1993–94	43,532
1994–95	41,827
1995–96	39,477
1996–97	37,624

Source:
DH form SH3—1980 to 1986.
DH form KH03—1987–88 rds.
Note:
[1] The return was revised and included a count of NHS managed beds in residential care. Several trusts reclassified beds previously counted as mental illness beds in hospitals, and counted them as residential. These figures are not included in the table. The average daily number of mental illness bed days in residential care is 1,155.

Nurses

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his estimate of the shortfall in nurses in each specialty. [17387]

Mr. Milburn: In submitting evidence to the 1998 Review Body for Nursing Staff, Midwives, Health Visitors and Professions Allied to Medicine, the Department said there was growing evidence of work force pressures in mental health, nursing in the larger conurbations and specialist nursing posts in areas of high dependency care.

In addition to the comprehensive collection of work force information to support national workforce planning, the National Health Service Executive is running a quarterly survey seeking information about recruitment and retention difficulties and examples of good practice across a sample of trusts. This will provide more systematic information on work force pressures across England.

GP Fundholders

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what have been the payments made to GP fundholders in each region in each year since 1990–91 in (a) management allowances and (b) computer costs. [17388]

Mr. Milburn: Available data on general practitioner fundholders' management allowances (PFMA) since 1990–91 are set out in the tables, which distinguish PFMA (general) from PFMA (computing).

The PFMA (general) coverage was increased in 1995–96, to include an element for the running costs of fundholding computer systems, which had previously been paid separately.

PFMA (computing) was introduced as a separate component of PFMA in 1996–97 to cover the costs of purchase or lease of fundholding computer systems. Up until April 1996 GP fundholders received reimbursement for these computer costs via the Statement of Fees and Allowances. As a result, audited information is not held centrally which identifies GP fundholding costs. However, estimates of moneys allocated to support GP fundholding computing costs from 1991–92 to 1994–95 are also shown.

Practice Fund Management Allowance by RHA in England—1990–91 to 1995–96

£000

Regional health authorities	1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95	1995–96
Northern and Yorkshire	1,082	2,343	4,466	6,040	8,254	14,859
Trent	425	1,356	3,432	6,279	8,003	11,647
Anglia and Oxford	1,015	2,210	4,816	7,212	9,278	13,163
North Thames	287	944	2,115	3,364	5,558	12,511
South Thames	515	1,500	3,139	6,262	9,354	16,504
South West	724	1,708	3,377	5,315	6,921	11,537
West Midlands	334	1,412	3,288	6,466	9,233	15,067
North West	856	1,997	3,987	6,663	8,205	14,377
England	5,238	13,470	28,620	47,601	64,806	109,668

Practice Fund Management Allowance by NHS Executive RO in England—1996–97 and 1997–98

£000

Regional office	1996–97		1997–98
	General	Computing	General	Computing
Northern and Yorkshire	17,886	2,175	19,186	294
Trent	15,953	1,350	15,439	0
Anglia and Oxford	13,771	1,200	13,853	294
North Thames	21,193	1,850	22,130	420
South Thames	18,937	1,425	19,486	0
South West	15,389	2,800	16,258	0
West Midlands	18,070	650	18,034	63
North West	19,371	1,325	19,633	294
England	140,564	12,775	144,019	1,365

Source:
1990–91 to 1995–96: annual accounts of Family Health Services Authorities.
1996–97: FDL(96)35 and FDL(96)42, revised slightly.
1997–98: FDL(97)32.
Note:
Data for 1990–91 to 1994–95 presented on Regional Office boundaries.

Estimated spend on Information Technology to support GP Fundholding by Regional Health Authority in England— 1991–92 to 1994–95

£000

Regional health authorities	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95
Northern and Yorkshire	2,099	3,093	2,129	2,717
Trent	1,337	2,949	2,395	2,662
Anglia and Oxford	1,446	1,989	2,144	1,894
North Thames	836	1,809	1,665	1,819
South Thames	1,812	2,371	3,028	2,659
South West	2,117	1,747	2,088	1,906
West Midlands	1,152	2,371	2,413	3,129
North West	824	1,725	2,643	2,060
England	11,623	18,054	18,505	18,846

Source:
Estimates taken from FIS4 returns by FHSAs.

Bed Occupancy Rates

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the bed occupancy rates for (a) acute, (b) psychiatric and (c) care of the elderly wards for each of the last 10 years. [17389]

Mr. Boateng: Figures on bed occupancy were collected in 1996–97 for the first time since 1986. The information is based on broad ward type and is contained in "Bed Availability and Occupancy, England: 1996–97", copies of which are available in the Library.

Data for 1986 were collected on a different basis and are not directly comparable. The figures were 75 per cent. for the acute specialties, 85 per cent. for psychiatric and 89.2 per cent. for geriatric.

Cancelled Hospital Operations

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital operations were cancelled by (a) quarter and (b) region for the last 10 years; and how many of these were (i) hip replacements, (ii) cataract operations and (iii) heart bypasses. [17390]

Mr. Boateng: Information on the number of operations cancelled on the day they were due to take place, or after patients had arrived in hospital is available in the Library. This goes back to 1994–95, the first year that data were collected. Details of the type of operation are not recorded centrally.

Domiciliary Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of state for Health when he will publish his proposals for the independent inspection and regulation of domiciliary care. [18122]

Mr. Boateng: The Government intend to publish a White Paper in the spring of 1998 outlining proposals for the independent inspection and regulation of domiciliary care.

Paedophile Treatment Centres

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of paedophile treatment centres, with particular reference to the Faithfull Foundation's Wolvercote Clinic. [17536]

Ms Quin: I have been asked to reply.

The following two studies published by the Home Office include an assessment of treatment programmes for sex offenders who are in the community: "Community-based treatment for sex offenders: an evaluation of seven programmes" (1994) and "Does treating sex offenders reduce offending?" (1996). Both are in the Library. The effectiveness of the treatment programme now running at the Wolvercote Clinic, which receives Home Office financial support, is currently being evaluated for the Home Office by the researchers who wrote the 1994 study.

TREASURY

Public Expenditure

19. Mr. Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on future public expenditure planning. [16603]

Mr. Darling: The Government have set up a Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) to examine all areas of Government spending. New public expenditure plans will be announced after the conclusion of this review.

Financial Services (Regulation)

20. Mr. St. Aubyn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which (a) EU and (b) G8 countries have a single regulator responsible for every aspect of financial services. [16604]

Mr. Darling: Within the EU and G8 countries only Sweden presently has a single regulator for financial services.

The Government's proposed regulatory reforms based around a single regulator, the Financial Services Authority, will therefore make the United Kingdom a world leader in financial regulation amongst the major financial centres.

Economic and Monetary Union

22. Mr. Ainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to help business prepare for a single currency. [16606]

Kali Mountford: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the steps he is taking to prepare for economic and monetary union. [16599]

Mr. Gordon Brown: The Government are committed to ensuring that British business is well equipped to take advantage of the introduction of the euro in other member states from 1999. We have set up a new Standing Committee, the Members of which include the President of the CBI and the President of the British Chamber of Commerce, alongside the existing Business Advisory Group, to co-ordinate and press forward the preparations agenda. I will be publishing a summary of the Advisory Group's findings early in the New Year.

I have also arranged for the Treasury to publish a practical guide on EMU for business, and 55,000 copies have already been issued to a wide range of businesses.

27. Mr. Caplin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from business about preparations for the single European currency. [16611]

32. Mr. Hutton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to help business prepare for the use of the euro in the period before the United Kingdom joins economic and monetary union. [16616]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer given today to my hon. Friend the Member for Dudley, North (Mr. Cranston).

34. Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received concerning the introduction of economic and monetary union. [16618]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Loughborough (Mr. Reed).

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he is pursuing to ensure that the United Kingdom economic cycle is harmonised with other potential EMU countries; and when he estimates that this aspect of convergence will be achieved. [15765]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 13 November 1997]: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor's pre-Budget Report describes a range of measures designed to promote economic stability and achieve high levels of growth and employment. The policies set out there will contribute to the settled period of stability which is needed in order that Britain will be in a position to join the single currency, should we wish to, early in the next Parliament.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how will (a) exchange costs and (b) fluctuations in the rate of the pound against the euro be dealt with when the use of the euro in the United Kingdom is permitted in the period prior to the United Kingdom becoming a member of the single currency. [15925]

Mrs. Liddell: It is currently possible to use foreign currencies for an extensive range of activities in the United Kingdom. After 1 January 1999, this facility will also apply to the euro. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor has announced publicly that, as with the dollar today, firms will be able to file company accounts, issue shares, have bank accounts and pay taxes in euro.

However, the Government consider that use of the euro is likely to be more widespread than with other major foreign currencies. We are considering steps that the Government might take to ensure that British firms are able to use the euro as effortlessly as possible where it makes commercial sense and they choose to do so. This includes, for example, developing with the banking sector a "seal of approval" so that firms and individuals can recognise those banks which offer reliable information and allow customers to bank in euro without paying high charges.

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 4 November 1997, Official Report, column 98, what research his Department has undertaken into the ease with which the euro currency symbol will be distinguishable from that for sterling where physical display of coin or note is not involved. [17277]

Mrs. Liddell: The Treasury has not carried out research aimed specifically at the ease with which the euro currency symbol is distinguishable from the pound sterling symbol. However, through the work of the Business Advisory Group, we are involved with business and consumer groups to discuss how the changeover to the single currency could be made with minimum confusion, were the United Kingdom to join the single currency.

Interest Rates

23. Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the changes in interest rates since 1 May. [16607]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I increased interest rates by $\frac{1}{4}$ point in May. On 6 May I gave the operational responsibility for setting interest rates to the newly formed Monetary Policy Committee of the Bank of England. Since then, the Committee has raised rates by a further 1 percentage point in four equal stages.

26. Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of interest rate rises since 1 May on average personal disposable income. [16610]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Interest rates are set by the Bank of England in order to achieve the Government's inflation target, taking account of all relevant economic indicators.

29. Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on trends in interest rates since 1 May; and what is his policy on interest rate levels. [16613]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Since May, interest rates have been increased by $1\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. to $7\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. In the new framework for monetary policy, the Bank of England has the operational responsibility for setting interest rates to meet the Government's inflation target.

31. Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about his responsibility for interest rate levels. [16615]

Mr. Gordon Brown: In the new framework for monetary policy the responsibilities are absolutely clear. The Government's role is to set the economic objectives and, in particular, the inflation target. The Bank of England's role is to take the operational decisions to meet the inflation target. The Government are satisfied that the new monetary policy arrangements will deliver long-term price stability, and prevent a return to the cycle of boom and bust.

33. Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what forecasts he has evaluated on the prospects for long-term interest rates. [16617]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Long-term interest rates have fallen in recent months, partly reflecting the fall in inflation expectations that arose as a result of the introduction of the new monetary policy framework.

37. Ann Clwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on the effect of EMU going ahead in Europe on interest rates in the United Kingdom. [16621]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I have received many representations on economic and monetary union and my statement on 27 October 1997, Official Report, columns 583–604, has been widely welcomed in this country and in the rest of Europe. Official interest rates in the UK are set in order to achieve our inflation target.

Welfare to Work

24. Mr Barry Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received about his welfare to work strategy. [16608]

35. Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with industry about his welfare to work strategy. [16619]

Mr. Gordon Brown: The participation of employers is crucial to the success of the welfare to work initiative. Since I launched the New Deal for unemployed people at a business breakfast at No. 11, the Government have had extensive contacts with a wide range of employers—nationally and locally—in small firms and large—and in every sector of the economy and every region of the country.

The response and good will have been extremely encouraging. Sainsburys, Tesco, BT, Lloyds Bank, Ford, Rover, Marks and Spencer, Unipart, WH Smith—and many others—are coming up with ways that they can help the New Deal.

They realise that helping the unemployed people move from welfare to work is in the interest of business as well as the unemployed people themselves. It is only by helping to improve skills and employability, that we can address the long-standing weaknesses of our economy and allow businesses to thrive.

Financial Services Authority

25. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he made of financial regulation in other countries when drawing up his proposals for the new Financial Services Authority. [16609]

Mr. Darling: The Government are aware of the approaches to regulation taken in other countries but are working to develop the best solution for the United Kingdom. Our plan is for a modernised and harmonised system of financial regulation based around a single regulator, the Financial Services Authority. The reforms will make the United Kingdom a world leader in financial regulation.

Inflation

30. Dr. Harris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect of higher than planned inflation on the real value of public expenditure plans in (a) the current and (b) the next financial year. [16614]

Mr. Darling: Public expenditure planning is carried out on a cash basis. The plans announced in July for the Control Total will be adhered to. Departments need to keep a tight grip on their pay and other costs in order to provide the best possible services to the public.

39. Mr. Greenway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the operation of his inflation target regime. [16623]

Mr. Gordon Brown: I am satisfied that the new monetary policy arrangements will deliver long-term price stability, and prevent a return to the cycle of boom and bust.

Charities

36. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he proposes in respect of the tax treatment of charities. [16620]

Dawn Primarolo: A review of Charities' Taxation was announced in the Budget. A public consultation document is due to be published in spring 1998, and a consultation process will follow. It is too early to say what the outcome of the review will be.

Dividend Tax Credits

38. Mr. Syms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on those shareholders who have no liability for income tax of his decision to end their eligibility for dividend tax credits from April 1999. [16622]

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: All relevant factors were considered when deciding whether shareholders should continue to receive payment of tax credits on their dividend income, including the position of those individual shareholders who are not liable to tax. Given that pension providers and most UK companies are no longer entitled to payment of tax credits on dividends paid on or after 2 July, it would not have been sensible to leave part of the incentive for companies to distribute profits through a payable tax credit to other investors. Nevertheless, tax credits will continue to be paid to non-liable individual shareholders until 1999, when they will have the opportunity to switch into Individual Savings Accounts, which will provide a tax-favoured environment for savings.

Fiscal Policy

40. Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what new fiscal measures he is taking to assist business. [16624]

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: The Government are committed to a tax system that encourages employment opportunities and work incentives for all; promotes savings and investment; is fair and is seen to be fair. This is good for the UK and for UK business. The level of taxation on business in the UK is the lowest of any major EU economy and lower than the OECD average.

The Pre-Budget Report presented to Parliament on Tuesday launched a pre-Budget debate on the policies needed to deliver high and stable levels of growth and employment. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced further reform of corporation tax including another 1p cut in the main corporation tax rate and the abolition of advance corporation tax in 1999 together with a move to quarterly payments by larger companies. The spring Budget will include measures to reform capital gains tax to promote long-term investment.

International Trading (Internet)

28. Mr. Barnes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of potential losses of tax revenues due to international trading on the Internet. [16612]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government are examining the tax implications of international trading on the Internet in close consultation with other Governments, at OECD and in other forums, and with the business community. The Government's objective, shared with our trading partners, is to ensure that tax revenues are protected without inhibiting the growth of trading on the Internet.

Insurance Industry

Mr. Caplin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will assess the advantages of establishing a single professional body for the insurance industry under his review of financial services regulation. [17941]

Mrs. Liddell: Our planned reforms will create a single statutory regulator for the financial services industry. We have no plans to set up other bodies in this area.

Departmental Payments

Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he proposes to publish the league table of Departments' payment performance. [18471]

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: Departments' performances in paying invoices within the agreed credit terms, or 30 days where no such terms exist, for the period 1 June 1996 to 31 March 1997 are contained in the following table:

Government Departments' (including agencies) payment performance 1996–97

Departments	1995–96 Percentage	1996–97 Percentage
National Investment and Loans Office	100.0	100.0
Privy Council Office	0.0	100.0
Office of Electricity Regulation	99.6	99.9
Defence, Ministry of	99.9	99.4
Foreign and Commonwealth Office	93.3	99.0
Land Registry	0.0	99.0
Office of the National Lottery	89.0	98.0
Office of Fair Trading	96.0	98.0
Office of Water Services	—	98.0
Ordnance Survey	91.0	98.0
Trade and Industry, Department for	93.0	97.9
National Savings Department	99.2	97.6
Office of the Rail Regulator	98.7	97.4
Exports Credit Guarantee Department	0.0	97.3
Government Actuary's Department	0.0	97.0
Serious Fraud Office	92.0	96.9
Health and Safety Executive	93.8	96.8
Crown Prosecution Service	94.3	96.7
Welsh Office	95.0	96.7
Office of Telecommunications	94.0	96.0
Registry of Friendly Societies Commission	96.0	95.9
Public Record Office	0.0	95.8
HM Treasury	86.0	95.6
Office of Passenger Rail Franchising	97.4	95.4
Treasury Solicitors Department including Law Office Department	0.0	95.3
Inland Revenue	92.3	95.2
Northern Ireland Departments	96.6	95.2
Forestry Commission	86.0	95.0
Office of Gas Supply	99.8	95.0
Social Security, Department of	96.0	95.0
Office for Standards in Education	0.0	94.0
Royal Mint	0.0	93.0
Home Office	91.0	92.9
Health, Department of	95.2	92.6
International Development, Department for	90.0	92.4
Education and Employment, Department for	—	92.2
Education	75.2	—
Employment	97.8	—
Department of the Environment, Transport and Regions:
Environment	92.0	92.2
Transport	90.3	91.4
Agriculture, Fisheries and Food	83.0	91.8
Crown Office, Scotland (including Lord Advocates Department)	0.0	91.5
Culture, Media and Sport, Department for	91.0	91.1
Charity Commission	88.8	90.6
Lord Chancellor's Department including Public Trustee Office	93.9	90.6
National Statistics, Office for	88.0	88.7
Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce	0.0	88.6

Departments	1995–96 Percentage	1996–97 Percentage
Cabinet Office (including Office of Public Services)	84.0	88.4
Customs and Excise	94.0	86.0
Scottish Office	94.0	83.6

[1] Under Department of the Environment. The figures for 1995–96 and 1996–97 are not directly comparable due to differences in the method of calculation.

The figures for 1996–97 cover a 9 month period from 1 June 1996, from the introduction of the revised method of calculation.

The figures for 1996–97 overlap those in the interim table published on 17 December 1996. This table covers a 9 month period to allow closer comparison to future full year tables.

Questions on individual department's results should be addressed to the relevant department.

Tax Law Rewrite Project

Mr. Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the current progress on the Tax Law Rewrite Project. [18472]

Dawn Primarolo: The Tax Law Rewrite project aims to bring clarity to our direct tax legislation, making the tax system more accessible to taxpayers and their advisers. The project is continuing to make good progress, and the publication today of a Technical Discussion Document testing how well the rewrite techniques work on complex legislation is a further step towards a clearer and more user friendly tax system. Copies of the document have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

I am keen that anyone with an interest takes this opportunity to comment on the rewrite techniques being used. Consultation with all those involved in taxation is the key to successfully producing a clear and logical structure for tax legislation.

Cattle Slaughter Scheme

Mr. Paice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment the Inland Revenue has made of the impact on herd valuation of (a) the reduction in payment rates and (b) the introduction of a maximum weight limit for all cull cows through the over 30 months scheme. [18064]

Dawn Primarolo: None. The Inland Revenue has no business need to assess this and has not done so.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Cold Weather Payments

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate she has made of the additional costs which would arise from the use of wind-chill factor on cold weather payments if payments in respect of properties not affected by wind-chill remained the same. [14940]

Mr. Denham: This option was among a number which have been considered. Full details are contained in the Building Research Establishment's report, copies of which are available in the Library.

Lone Parents

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many of the lone parents who received initial letters as part of the New Deal pilots were in receipt of income support three months later. [14736]

Mr. Keith Bradley [holding answer 7 November 1997]: The New Deal for Lone Parents will fulfil the Government's commitment to help lone parents to get off benefit and into work. The programme is currently running in eight areas in England, Scotland and Wales. The New Deal for lone parents will be rolled out nationally from October next year.

The programme was launched on 21 July. In the period to the 10 August, 2,672 lone parents had been invited to participate in the programme. Of these, at the 10 November, 2,421 were in receipt of income support.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will set out, in respect of the calculation that lone parents are on average £50 per week better off in work than on benefit, (a) the sample size, (b) the proportion of lone parents in the sample with zero child care costs, (c) the proportion with positive receipt of child maintenance, (d) their average ages and (e) their average travel-to-work costs. [18053]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The average £50 a week "better off" figure refers to the additional income in work lone parents currently on Family Credit are likely to receive over and above the corresponding estimate of their out of work incomes.

The figure is based on the 1994 PSI survey of lone parents, updated to take into account recent benefit changes.

The sample size was 375, of which 79 per cent. were not paying for child care. 37.5 per cent. received child maintenance and their average age was 35. The average travel-to-work costs were £4.93 per week.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security for how many of the 433 lone parents who were helped to obtain jobs by the New Deal pilot scheme she currently has information on the amount by which they were better off in work; and what was the average gain for these people. [18097]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Up to the end of October, 542 lone parents had been helped into work in the first eight areas of the New Deal for Lone Parents. Lone parents can ask for in-work "better off" calculations obtained by New Deal Advisers from the Integrated Benefit Information System (IBIS). This system provides estimates of the likely entitlements to in-work benefits such as Family Credit, but we do not know the amount by which they are actually better off in work. The evaluation of the programme includes a quantitative survey of a sample of participants in all eight areas of the scheme which will collect systematic information from lone parents on how much better off they will actually be in work.

Research has shown that most lone parents want to work and the New Deal will provide the opportunities to do so. The advantages of work for lone parents are in terms of not only financial gain but improving self-esteem for the parent and providing a more positive role model for the children.

Industrial Disablement Benefit

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how much was recouped from accident victims' compensation in respect of industrial disablement benefit in each of the last three years. [16396]

Mr. Denham: Reform of the Compensation Recovery scheme took place on 6 October. The compensator is now liable for the repayment of benefits paid as a consequence of an accident, injury or disease. The reforms also mean that compensation for pain and suffering will be paid to the victim in full.

The administration of the Compensation Recovery Unit is a matter for Peter Mathison, Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Andrew Dismore, dated 26 November 1997:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how much was recouped from accident victims' compensation in respect of Industrial Disablement benefit in each of the last three years.

The information is not available in the format requested. The overall amount of Industrial Injuries Disablement benefit recouped from both accident and disease victims, in the last three financial years, is given in the table below:

Financial year	Amount recovered £ million
1994–95	12.5
1995–96	16.4
1996–97	28.9

Figures are provisional and subject to change.

In the first half of the current financial year £9.4. million has been recovered.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate she has made of the number of families who would receive mobility component disability living allowance if children under the age of five years were assessed and their mobility needs in the same way as DLA care component recipients. [17235]

Mr. Denham: The information is not available in the format requested.

If the current entitlement conditions for receipt of the mobility component were to be extended to children under the age of five an estimated 40,000 children might benefit.

Notes:

The figure is highly speculative.

Source:

Department of Social Security Analytical Services Division.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many persons who receive DLA mobility component are aged between 65 and 80 years. [17236]

Mr. Denham: As at 31 August 1997, there were 370,000 people aged between 65 and 80 receiving the mobility component of disability living allowance.

Disability living allowance is available for people who become disabled before the age of 65. Once awarded there are no upper age limits and benefit continues for as long as the disabled person continues to satisfy the conditions of entitlement.

Notes:

Ages go from 65 to 80 inclusive.

Source:

Department of Social Security Analytical Services Division—5 per cent. data.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security by what methods she monitors the efficiency of cross-agency working to combat social security and child maintenance fraud. [17237]

Mr. Denham: The efficiency and effectiveness of cross-Benefits Agency/Child Support Agency working are monitored in a variety of ways and at a number of levels. These include quarterly meetings of senior officials of both agencies, regular meetings of operational and headquarters staff, and the recording and analysis of management information.

Written Answers to Questions

Friday 28 November 1997

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Bermingham: To ask the Attorney-General if he will make a statement about his proposals to restructure the Crown Prosecution Service. [18857]

The Attorney-General: My written answer on 21 May 1997, Official Report, columns 73-74, to my hon. Friend the Member for Salford (Ms Blears) outlined the plans drawn up at my request by the Director of Public Prosecutions with a view to dividing England and Wales into 42 Areas, each having its own Chief Crown Prosecutor designated by 1 April 1998. These plans included establishing selection boards to advise the DPP in appointing CCPs. In order to facilitate speedy progress, this exercise was taken forward concurrently with the work of the independent Review of the Crown Prosecution Service which the Government had also decided to establish. The planning of the move to 42 Areas was to be informed by any views expressed by the Review Team led by Sir Iain Glidewell.

The selection boards have now been held but no appointments will be made as a result of this. This follows unanimous advice from the Review Team to me and the DPP to the effect that such appointments would be premature. They consider it essential that the eventual selection of Chief Crown Prosecutors should take full account of important recommendations they will wish to make about the character and responsibilities of those posts as well as the service as a whole. They have also made it clear that their eventual recommendations will maximise the opportunity to build on the move to 42 Areas and provide an improved infrastructure more suitable to a truly locally based service within a national framework. Consideration has been given to deferring appointments rather than abandoning the competition. This would have meant on any view a delay of at least five months. After consulting widely I concluded that such a period of uncertainty would be unacceptable.

This decision has inevitable consequences for the overall programme and the move to 42 operational Areas cannot now take effect until 1 December 1998 at the earliest. The precise time scale will be dependent on the full recommendations of the Review Team which I now expect to receive early next year and the Government response to them. No further steps towards appointments will be taken pending receipt of that report and its consideration. I regret the further period of uncertainty which this decision creates for the candidates concerned and all CPS staff. I am, however, convinced that it is in the best overall and long-term interests of the Service to proceed in this way.

CABINET OFFICE

Food Standards Agency

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Minister without Portfolio if he will list his responsibilities with respect to the Food Standards Agency. [17964]

Mr. Mandelson: I am a member of the Ministerial Committee on Food Safety, the Cabinet Sub-Committee in which collective discussion of issues arising from the establishment of a Food Standards Agency takes place.

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Minister without Portfolio if he will make a statement on his policy with respect to the dietary remit of the proposed Food Standards Agency. [17966]

Mr. Mandelson: As my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food said in the House on 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 22, the Government's White Paper on food standards will be published as soon as possible.

Food Industry

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Minister without Portfolio if he will list the meetings he has held with food industry representatives since 1 May. [17965]

Mr. Mandelson: I have held no such meetings, nor have I received any representations from the food industry.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16778]

Mr. Morley: My right hon. Friend has made 211 public appointments since 1 May. Of these:

(a) 46 (21 per cent.) receive remuneration (salary or fees);

(b) The information about ethnic origin cannot be provided since to do so would risk identifying individuals without their consent. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has provided information for all departments in an aggregated form.

Sea Defences (Waveney)

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which areas of coastline in the Waveney constituency the Environment Agency has assessed as most vulnerable to breaches of sea defence. [17598]

Mr. Morley: Environment Agency long-term plans indicate a potential need for improved capital defence works at Southwold, Easton Broad and Kessingland to Benacre within the Waveney constituency. Schemes will be promoted if it is technically sound, environmentally acceptable and economically viable to do so, and timing will depend on the Agency's assessment of priorities. In the meanwhile, the Agency will be responsible for maintaining existing defences.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16772]

Dr. David Clark: I have made 33 appointments since the 1 May to bodies listed in the Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies". One (3 per cent.) receives remuneration.

I have agreed to provide information about ethnic origin for all Departments in an aggregated form. For individual Departments to give the number of appointments they have made to people of ethnic origin would risk identifying individuals without their consent. The number of public appointments made since 1 May of people of (i) Afro-Caribbean origin is 18 and the number of public appointments made of people of (ii) Asian origin is 49.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Crime Control

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the estimated cost to local authorities of their enhanced role in tackling crime, as set out in the consultation paper "Getting to Grips with Crime". [17961]

Mr. Michael: We do not expect these proposals to have any significant net cost to local authorities. They are not about requiring local authorities or the police to deliver a new service; rather, they will simply require them to put crime prevention and community safety issues at the heart of delivery of existing services, where they have always belonged. Furthermore, effective and well-targeted crime-prevention strategies should generate significant savings for local authorities and the police, through reduced crime levels.

Prison Service

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the key changes made in the strategic aims for the Prison Service in the 1997–98 Business Plan of the Prison Service from those set out in the previous corporate plan, indicating the reasons for each change. [16537]

Ms Quin: The previous Corporate Plan set out six strategic aims for 1996–99. The present Business Plan continues those aims for this year, 1997–98, with only minor amendments to three aims. The text of these are as follows, with the changes underlined:

Strategic Aim 1

Previous Corporate Plan: "To achieve unit cost reductions of 10.2 per cent.; and to contain capital spending by encouraging greater private sector involvement; while maintaining the balance between security, control, purposeful regimes and support for staff".

Current Business Plan: "To achieve unit cost reductions of 5.3 per cent. in real terms over 1997–2000: and to contain capital spending by encouraging private sector involvement where appropriate: while maintaining the balance between security, control, purposeful regimes, and support for staff".

The reasons for these changes are first to reflect the new targets for unit cost reduction set by the 1996 Public Expenditure Settlement, and secondly to emphasise that private sector involvement should be sought not as an end in itself, but only where it is appropriate.

Strategic Aim 2

Previous Corporate Plan: "To sustain a balanced step improvement in performance on escapes, building on what we achieved in 1995–96; in particular, to complete the programme of work to enhance security for Category A and high profile Category B prisoners, and to achieve a significant reduction in escapes from escort".

Current Business Plan: "To sustain the reduction in the escape rate already achieved: and, in particular, to complete the programme of work to enhance security for Category A and high profile Category B prisoners, and to achieve a significant further reduction in escapes from escort".

The reason for the change is that it would be odd to continue to refer back to 1995–96, particularly where there had been further improvement in performance since then.

Strategic Aim 5

Previous Corporate Plan: "To meet basic health care needs of the population, and to target particularly the transfer of mentally ill prisoners to hospital".

Current Business Plan: "To maintain the primary (general practitioner level) health care needs of the population, referring prisoners to National Health Service specialists for treatment as appropriate and to target particularly the transfer of mentally ill prisoners to hospital".

As the Business Plan states, the reason for the change was to describe policy more accurately.

Strategic aims 3, 4 and 6 remain unchanged as follows:

Strategic Aim 3

To maintain control and a safe environment for staff and prisoners in the face of cost reductions and operational pressures; specifically, to carry through work on incentives, the drugs strategy and prevention of suicide.

Strategic Aim 4

To maintain balanced regimes which support control and include affordable, effective activities to reduce the risk of re-offending.

Strategic Aim 6

To strengthen effectiveness of staff at all levels and specifically to increase the effectiveness of financial controls and systems.

Copies of the Prison Service's Business Plan are in the Library.

New Prisons

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list all new prison projects currently being assessed by his Department indicating the progress to date in the development of each establishment; and if he will make a statement. [18095]

Ms Quin: At present, the Prison Service is actively considering four possible sites for the construction of new prisons. These are at: Ashworth (Maghull); Belmarsh (Woolwich); Winwick (near Warrington); and Peterborough. In the case of the latter, the Service's planning application was refused by Peterborough City Council on 19 November. Formal planning applications have yet to be prepared for the other three sites.

PRIME MINISTER

Industrialists (Meetings)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister how many industrialists have been invited to hold one-to-one meetings with the Prime Minister at No. 10 Downing Street since 2 May to discuss the situation of their business. [18136]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the reply I gave to the right hon. Member for North-West Cambridgeshire (Sir B. Mawhinney) on 25 November 1997, Official Report, column 459.

Child Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Prime Minister what steps Her Majesty's Government have taken since 1 May to develop a comprehensive child care strategy. [18274]

The Prime Minister: The Government made a manifesto commitment to produce a national child care strategy which will help parents, especially women, to balance family and working life. Since 1 May, important steps have been taken across a number of Departments to carry forward this commitment, including this week's major announcement by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer of a £300 million investment in out-of-school child care over the next five years.

This initiative is intended to deliver an out-of-school club in every community across the UK. We have already announced in the Budget that the disregard for child care costs in Family Credit, Disability Working Allowance, Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit will be increased from a maximum of £60 to £100 a week from June 1998, as well as a £4 billion new deal package, including provision of work experience and training for young unemployed people who wish to work in child care and help for lone parents wanting to go back to work.

My right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced this week that, to ensure that work pays for families with children, we will consider a working families tax credit, building on successful elements of family credit and involving better help through the tax system for child care costs.

We are currently working on a range of features of a national child care strategy and will be publishing proposals in the Spring.

British Film Industry

Mr. Maude: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his answer of 24 November 1997, Official Report, column 409, to the right hon. Member for Wells (Mr. Heathcoat Amory), if he will list the representatives of the British film industry with whom he has had discussions. [18331]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the reply I gave to the right hon. Member for Wells on 24 November 1997, Official Report, column 409.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Royal Family

Mr. Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will release for public scrutiny File F0372/7708 relating to the Duke of Edinburgh's visit to Argentina in 1962. [16991]

Mr. Hoon: One extract from this item was previously unavailable because it was closed for 100 years. It has now been opened, and is available in the Public Record Office.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will review those documents relating to the Royal Family which came up for review before the publication of the White Paper on Open Government of 1993 (Cm 2290) with a view to their release under the current criteria relating to such documents. [17000]

Mr. Hoon: The 1993 White Paper, "Open Government", (Cm 2290) stated that records relating to the Royal Family would be treated in the same way as all other records and only closed for longer than 30 years if they fell into one or more of the three criteria governing closure (para. 9.22). It also stated (para. 9.28) that all departments would, as resources could be made available, review all material currently withheld for longer than 30 years to see whether its sensitivity had passed and to release it, if possible. One such release, relating to the Royal Family, is referred to in a later Answer. Questions of access to closed records are a matter for the Ministers of the Departments concerned.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will review the papers held, relating to the abdication of Edward VIII, with a view to releasing them for public scrutiny. [16998]

Mr. Hoon: Papers on the Abdication of King Edward VIII are at present closed until the year 2037. They may, however, be reviewed under the provisions of the 1993 White Paper, "Open Government", (Cm 2290), before that time. Many will continue to be personally sensitive for some time to come, but it is not ruled out that it may be possible to release them before 2037.

Whaling

Mr. Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department for what reasons papers relating to International Whaling Agreement 1939 (FO 371/23661) are closed to the public; and if he will review their status. [16997]

Mr. Hoon: The previously retained extracts from this item have now been transferred, and are available in the Public Record Office.

British Council

Mr. Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will bring records held by the British Council under the terms of the Public Records Act 1967. [16999]

Mr. Hoon: No. The British Council, as a Body operating under a Charter, independently of government, is not appropriate to be brought under the Public Records

Act. However the Council has, since 1977, made arrangements for making available in the Public Record Office those of its records which can be made available after 30 years.

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many public appointments the Lord Chancellor has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16771]

Mr. Hoon: One hundred and thirty five non-judicial appointments have been made to the Lord Chancellor's non-departmental public bodies since 1 May. Of these, six (i.e 4.4 per cent.) receive remuneration for their work on the NDPB.

The information about ethnic origin cannot be provided since to do so would risk identifying individuals without their consent. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has provided information for all departments in an aggregated form.

Court Service Costs

Mr. Hill: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he expects to publish the study undertaken by the Court Service to analyse the economic cost of activities relating to existing charging points. [18171]

Mr. Hoon: The question concerns a matter which has been assigned to the Court Service under the terms of its framework document. I have therefore asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Keith Hill, dated 28 November 1997:

The Parliamentary Secretary has asked me to reply to your Question about the publication of a study of the economic cost of activities relating to existing charging points.

The Court Service has not yet made such a study. However, we will undertake an analysis of the economic costs of charging points as part of the revision of the fees structure for the civil courts, which will be necessary in the context of the implementation of the civil justice reforms in April 1999.

TREASURY

Duty Free Trade

Mr. Gale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proposals he has to seek a material damage derogation from the European Commission to permit the cross-channel duty-free trade to continue in perpetuity. [18061]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 27 November 1997]: None. The decision to allow intra-EU duty free sales to continue until 30 June 1999 was taken by the Council of Finance Ministers in 1991 so as to give all the economic sectors concerned time in which to adapt gradually to the new situation.

Amsterdam Treaty

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures to strengthen customs co-operation will be agreed to take account of the Treaty of Amsterdam. [17075]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 24 November 1997]: Article 116 of the Amsterdam Treaty is designed to provide a clear and specific legal basis for strengthened customs co-operation between member states on matters which already fall within Community competence, for example, in relation to administrative co-operation on customs duty issues. A variety of measures in this area have already been agreed under Article 100a of the Treaty of Rome. The new Article makes it clear that customs co-operation in relation to criminal matters, such as drug smuggling, remains a matter for the inter-governmental third pillar.

Museums (VAT)

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will calculate the rates of value added tax which would be payable for a museum which has (a) no admission charge, (b) a charge set at zero pence, (c) a one penny charge and (d) a £5 charge. [17580]

Dawn Primarolo: In the first two cases no VAT would be chargeable.

In the other two cases the VAT rate would be $17\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

EU Budget Council

Mr. Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Budget Council. [18812]

Mrs. Liddell: I attended a meeting of the Budget Council yesterday to consider the Council's second reading of the 1998 EC draft budget. As a result, the level of payments in the draft budget has been reduced by approximately 1,1000 million ecu from the European Parliament's first reading. This represents an increase of approximately 1.4 per cent. over the 1997 EC budget, compared with 2.7 per cent. following the Parliament's first reading. The draft budget as amended will now be transmitted to the European Parliament, which will adopt the final budget for 1998 at its second reading in December.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Sickness and Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the average duration per claimant of receipt of (a) statutory sick pay, (b) the lower rate of short-term incapacity benefit, (c) the higher rate of short-term incapacity benefit and (d) the long-term rate of incapacity benefit. [18281]

Mr. Denham: The Department does not routinely collect information on the duration of claims to Statutory Sick Pay. However, information produced by the Association of British Insurers suggests that the average duration of a claim to Statutory Sick Pay is around three weeks.

The other information requested is in the table.

	Average duration of claim
Incapacity Benefit short term lower rate	13 weeks
Incapacity Benefit short term higher rate	18 weeks
Incapacity Benefit long term rate	5.26 years

Source:
DSS 1 per cent. sample of recipients in Great Britain.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Gravesham on 29 July, Official Report, column 248, if she will publish those statistics on which the calculation of an approximate £120 million cost of extending statutory sick pay to employees earning below the lower earnings limit was made. [18293]

Mr. Denham: The Government Actuary Department's best estimates of current weekly Statutory Sick Pay (SSP) beneficiaries are 305,000. The 1996–97 Office of National Statistics Labour Force Survey estimated the total number of employees earning above the lower earnings limit to be 19.6 million, and the number below this limit to be 2.6 million.

A rate of sickness of 1.6 per cent. derived from the SSP caseload estimate is applied to the total employees below the lower earning limit and multiplied by the 1996–97 rate of SSP of £54.55, multiplied by 52 weeks to give an annual total of £120 million.

Note: Figures are approximate and are subject to some margin of error.

Disability Living Allowance

Mrs. Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will make a statement on her plans for the future benefit status of people awarded disability living allowance for life. [18223]

Mr. Denham: For those benefits where an award is made for life the individual is considered likely to continue to satisfy the relevant qualifying conditions. If evidence of change becomes available such an award will be reviewed in the normal way.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if she will estimate the annual number of new claims for jobseeker's allowance where the claimant had been in class one employment but contribution conditions were not satisfied, how many of these received (a) income-related jobseeker's allowance and (b) credits only; and how many of each group failed to meet contribution conditions because their earnings were below the lower earnings limit. [18282]

Mr. Bradley: The information is not available in the format requested, as the Benefits Agency Management Information Statistics can only provide information on the numbers of claims allowed and disallowed on an annual basis. However, the Jobseeker's Allowance Quarterly Statistical Inquiry shows a snap-shot of the stock of claims by benefit reason. Such information as is available is as follows.

In February 1997, 1,473,000 claimants were not in receipt of contribution-based Jobseeker's Allowance. Of these, 986,000 did not qualify because of a contribution deficiency, of whom 940,000 claimants were in receipt of income-based Jobseeker's Allowance and 46,000 claimants were receiving credits only.

It is not known how many of these claimants had been in Class 1 employment, or had earnings below the lower earning limit.

Notes:

1. Figures rounded to the nearest thousand.

2. Sample size 5 per cent.

Source:

Jobseeker's Allowance Quarterly Statistical Enquiry—February 1997.

SCOTLAND

Prisoner Transfers

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 76, if Jason Campbell's application for transfer made to the local management at Her Majesty's Prison Shotts on 10 September was notified to the Northern Ireland Office before it was sent to the Scottish Prison Service Headquarters on 25 September. [17459]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 24 November 1997]: As a result of inquiries made to SPS officials, the Northern Ireland Prison Service was aware that an application had been made to local management at HM Prison Shotts but had not been sent to SPS Headquarters for consideration.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to his answer of 17 November 1997, Official Report, column 76, (1) to what extent the priority accorded to the wider peace process in the transfer of Jason Campbell is consistent with the terms of the Home Office memorandum on inter-jurisdictional transfers dated 27 October; [17457]

(2) if the transfers of prisoners (a) from Scotland to Northern Ireland and (b) from England to Northern Ireland complied with the terms of paragraph 5 of the Home Office memorandum on inter-jurisdictional transfers dated 27 October. [17458]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 24 November 1997]: Jason Campbell's application for transfer was considered under section 27 of the Criminal Justice Act 1961, the legislation in force at the time. This was repealed by Schedule 6 of the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997, which came into force on 1 October. The policy statement to which the question refers relates to the procedures introduced by the Crime (Scotland) Act 1997. No prisoners have yet been transferred from Scotland to Northern Ireland under those procedures. Transfers from England to Northern Ireland are a matter for my right hon. Friends the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Swinney: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to compensate local authorities in Scotland in respect of the abolition of tax credits for pension funds dividends. [17233]

Mr. Chisholm [holding answer 25 November 1997]: My right hon. Friend will announce the 1997–98 Local Government Finance settlement in due course.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Post Office Facilities

Mr. Hancock: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if she will make a statement on Government policy concerning the provision of Post Office facilities within retail multiples, chains and franchises; and what changes there have been in this aspect of Government policy in the last 12 months. [17886]

Mr. Ian McCartney: Decisions on the location and nature of post office facility provision are the operational responsibility of the Post Office. The Government are committed to the maintenance of a nationwide network of post offices and, in response to widespread concern about the Post Office programme of converting Crown post offices to agency status, in May asked the Post Office Chairman to suspend this programme until the review of the Post Office is complete and we are in a position to make informed decisions.

Disability Discrimination Act

Mr. Dismore: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what training is given to chairmen and members of industrial tribunals and the Employment Appeals Tribunal on the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [18329]

Mr. Ian McCartney: Training on the Disability Discrimination Act is a regular feature on the national refresher course for chairmen of industrial tribunals, and has been delivered to all the experienced chairmen who will be dealing with these cases. Training on the Act is also a part of the national programme of training for members of industrial tribunals.

The President of the Employment Appeal Tribunal (EAT) is planning a seminar on the Act for February for all lay members of EAT.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps the Employment Tribunal Service has taken to ensure that regional Employment Tribunal offices comply with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [18328]

Mr. Ian McCartney: Since the introduction of the Disability Discrimination Act, the Employment Tribunals Service (ETS) has reviewed all its premises and taken steps to comply with the Act by making alterations where necessary.

All ETS leaflets are available in Braille, audio tape, disc and large print. The national Inquiry Line is equipped with a minicom textphone and is answered by RNID-trained staff. In addition, each office has a Customer Services Officer, trained by the RNID and the RNIB, who will inform the Chairman of a tribunal if a person with special needs is attending a hearing.

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Redwood: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate she has made of the impact on employment of the removal of tobacco sponsorship from (a) darts and (b) snooker. [16938]

Mrs. Beckett [holding answer 20 November 1997]: We have always made it clear that we are pursuing twin objectives of reducing smoking and of safeguarding sport from any effects arising from the loss of tobacco sponsorship. We are therefore looking very carefully at how best to achieve an end to the advertising and promotion of tobacco at sports events in a way which will minimise any damage to the sports concerned. Discussions are under way within Government on how best to achieve this. Plans for the removal of tobacco sponsorship include a transitional period to allow darts and snooker to find alternative sponsors. The Government will publish a White Paper next year setting out measures to tackle tobacco consumption.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentages of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16781]

Mr. Fatchett: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has made or approved six public appointments since 1 May: Director General of the British Council (paid), Director General of the Commonwealth Institute (paid), and four members of the Board of Governors of the Westminster Foundation for Democracy (unpaid).

The information about ethnic origin cannot be provided since to do so would risk identifying individuals without their consent. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has provided information for all Departments in an aggregated form.

NATO Expansion

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimates of the cost of NATO expansion he plans to provide to the House. [18030]

Mr. Fatchett: NATO is currently conducting an assessment of the military and financial implications of enlargement. This will be the most authoritative study of the issue to date. Once this has been completed and considered by NATO Ministers in December we will publish as much information as possible as soon as we can.

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of NATO's cost study on enlargement after it has been approved by NATO Foreign Ministers on 16 December. [18028]

Mr. Fatchett: The publication of NATO documents is a matter for NATO Member States collectively. The handling of NATO's assessments of the military and financial implications of enlargement is still under consideration at NATO.

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether NATO is keeping Russia informed of the financial implications of NATO enlargement. [18029]

Mr. Fatchett: No. The NATO/Russia Founding Act, which provides the basis for consultation between NATO and Russia on matters of European Security, does not provide for discussion on any aspect of NATO enlargement. Enlargement, including its financial implications, is a matter for members of the Alliance and those countries who have been invited to seek accession.

Kaliningrad Enclave

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is Her Majesty's Government's policy on relations between the European Union and the Kaliningrad enclave. [17907]

Mr. Doug Henderson: As an integral (albeit geographically separate) part of the Russian Federation, Kaliningrad enjoys no special relations with the European Union other than those established between the EU and the Russian Federation itself.

The EU's economic and commercial relations with Russia are governed by the provisions of the Partnership and Co-operation Agreement (PCA) which was signed on 24 June 1994 and comes into force on 1 December 1997. Since 1 February 1996, the trade aspects of the PCA have been applied provisionally under the Interim Agreement. The inaugural Co-operation Council under the terms of the PCA is likely to take place during the UK presidency.

EU Membership

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons he visited the Czech Republic, Hungary and Poland; and what assessment he has made of the time scale for the admission to EU membership of (a) the Czech Republic, (b) Hungary, (c) Poland, (d) Slovenia, (e) Cyprus and (f) Estonia. [18031]

Mr. Doug Henderson: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Central Europe as part of the UK's continuing close bilateral relationship with the countries of that region (it is our fastest growing export market). He also set out our strong support for EU and NATO enlargement. Looking ahead to our EU presidency, he made it clear that we want the Luxembourg European Council to take the decisions necessary to allow accession negotiations to begin as early as possible next year.

Negotiations will be conducted on an individual basis with each candidate. Progress will depend on each applicant's preparations for membership. So it would be misleading to set any firm deadlines for accession.

Gibraltar

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he or his officials have had recently with their Spanish counterparts concerning (a) the status of Gibraltar in the new NATO command structure and (b) United Kingdom military access to Gibraltar; and if he will make a statement. [18032]

Mr. Doug Henderson: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed this subject with the Spanish Foreign Minster most recently on 21 November in the margins of the Special Employment Summit in Luxembourg, and again on 24 November in the margins of the EU General Affairs Council. Further discussions between UK and Spanish officials took place on 27 November.

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the UK and EU enactments that would need amendment for Gibraltarians to be enfranchised for European Parliamentary elections. [18333]

Mr. Doug Henderson: An amendment would be required to the EC Act concerning the election of the representatives of the European Parliament by direct universal suffrage, which was annexed to a Council Decision of 20 September 1976. An amendment would also be needed to the UK European Parliamentary Elections Act 1978.

Export Licence (Range Rover)

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the approval of an export licence for the supply of an armoured Range Rover to the Office of the High Representative in Bosnia. [18540]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We recently approved the export of a light armour-plated Range Rover to the Office of the High representative (OHR) in Bosnia to help protect staff and visitors at the OHR who need to travel in the region as part of their normal duties. Given the important contribution made by the OHR to the international community's peacekeeping efforts in Bosnia, we were glad to be able to approve this export as an exception to our interpretation of the EU arms embargo on the former Yugoslavia. This decision does not affect our continued support of the EU common position on arms exports to the former Yugoslavia.

Small Arms Report

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make available a copy of the Report of the UN Panel of Governmental Experts on Small Arms. [18541]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: A copy of the report of the UN Panel of Experts on Small Arms has been placed in the Library of the House. We endorse the panel's recommendations and urge other States to do likewise. The ready availability of small arms in several regions across the world contributes to serious problems of instability. Illicit transfers are the most common sources of supply. We strongly support the EU Programme for Preventing and Combating Illicit Trafficking in Conventional Arms and intend to take it forward vigorously during the UK presidency of the EU in the first half of 1998. As an initial step, the Department for International Development will fund a seminar in Southern Africa to look at how we and others might assist affected countries in practical measures to combat the problems caused by illicit small arms trafficking.

Afghanistan

Ms Shipley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if it is his policy to maintain an arms embargo on Afghanistan in line with the EU's common position of 17 December 1996. [18275]

Mr. Fatchett: We remain committed to the EU arms embargo against Afghanistan which the UK interprets as covering all goods and technology entered on Part III to Schedule 1 to the Export of Goods Order 1994, as amended.

Following consultation with this Department and the Ministry of Defence, the Department of Trade and Industry recently approved a licence for the export of bomb disposal equipment for use by the Untied Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Assistance to Afghanistan in its demining operations. The grant of this licence is for humanitarian purposes, and is consistent with the purpose of the embargo.

Entry Clearance Applications

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when a decision will be made on the application for entry clearance by Sabreen Sarwar, in Islamabad (Ref. E4928). [18283]

Mr. Fatchett: We have asked our High Commission in Islamabad to provide a detailed account of the position. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs will write to my hon. Friend within one week of receiving that account.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when a decision will be made on the application for entry clearance by Nisar Khan, in Islamabad (Ref. E0960). [18284]

Mr. Fatchett: We have asked our High Commission in Islamabad to provide a detailed account of the position. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs will write to my hon. Friend within one week of receiving that account.

WALES

Public Appointments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many public appointments he has made since 1 May; and how many and what percentage of these (a) receive remuneration and (b) are of (i) Afro-Caribbean and (ii) Asian origin. [16773]

Mr. Ron Davies: I have made 56 appointments, singly or jointly, since 1 May. Of these appointments 19 (34 per cent.) are remunerated.

The information about ethnic origin cannot be provided since to do so would risk identifying individuals without their consent. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has provided information for all departments in an aggregated form.

Ritalin

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many children have been prescribed Ritalin in the community health area serving the Vale of Glamorgan. [17049]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The information requested is not held centrally.

Health Authorities (Retirements and Redundancies)

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in the family health and health authorities (a) took early retirement and (b) were made redundant as a result of the reorganisation of the authorities; and what have been the (i) redundancies costs, (ii) costs of enhanced pensions and (iii) transitional costs of the reorganisation. [17435]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The information that is readily available is held in a different form. In 1995–96, District Health Authorities and Family Health Services Authorities made provision of £3.3 million in respect of early retirement and redundancy costs. In 1996–97, the new health Authorities made a further provision of £1.9 million. These will have included (without distinction) costs of early retirements and dismissals on grounds of redundancy or in the interests of the efficiency of the service, but the bulk of these costs can probably be attributed to the reorganisation. Some further transitional costs may be incurred in 1997–98 and 1998–99, as health authorities were given 3 years from 1 April 1996 to reap the full savings. This was to avoid costs that too fast a transition to new staffing levels would have entailed.

Wages

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the average wage in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [17639]

Mr. Hain: At April 1997, based on the New Earnings Survey, average gross weekly earnings of full-time employees in Wales were £330.

The consultative document "An Economic Strategy for Wales" (October 1997, copy in the Library of the House) seeks views on the Government's ideas for developing a higher-skilled, higher-waged economy in Wales.

Powered Wheelchairs

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales on what date the multi-disciplinary team under the Aritficial Limb and Appliance Service in Wales commenced its work on establishing the eligibility criteria for the future provision of indoor-outdoor powered wheelchairs in Wales; on what date this work was completed; and when its proposals will be fully implemented. [17938]

Mr. Win Griffiths: The Artificial Limb and Appliance Service commenced work in January 1997 on the detailed eligibility criteria for electrically powered indoor/outdoor wheelchairs (EPIOCs). Following consultation and discussions with organisations for disabled people, wheelchair users and health service professionals, this was completed in September with the first EPIOCs issued to patients in November.

Revenue Support Grant

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he plans to inform local authorities of their revenue support grant for 1998–99; and if he will make a statement. [17948]

Mr. Ron Davies: I plan to make my provisional local government revenue settlement announcement on 2 December.

Welsh Assembly

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the basis for his calculation of the cost of (a) refurbishment and (b) adaptation of the Cardiff City Hall for the purposes of housing the Welsh Assembly; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the supporting documentation on which this calculation is based. [18522]

Mr. Ron Davies: The full cost of bringing City Hall, Cardiff into a suitable condition for the Assembly was estimated at just over £32 million on the basis of purchase at the District Valuer's market valuation of £3.5 million. The minimum cost of adapting and equipping City Hall for a modern Assembly building would have been £8.5 million taking account of the building's grade 2* listing. Further essential repairs, refurbishment and upgrading would cost £20 million which could be spread over a period of years.

These costings are based upon a schedule of accommodation requirements prepared by my officials covering both refurbishment and adaptation. A calculation was prepared on that basis by my professional property advisers. I have placed a copy of that schedule in the Library.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with Cardiff City Council concerning the possible use of Cardiff City Chambers for the proposed Welsh Assembly; and what estimate he has made of the costs of establishing the Assembly. [18179]

Mr. Ron Davies: None. Cardiff City Council was abolished on 31 March 1996.

HEALTH

Kent Social Services (Asylum Seekers)

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what special arrangements he will make to assist Kent county council social services department with the costs incurred in respect of its statutory duties as a result of the recent influx of asylum seekers at Dover. [14496]

Mr. Boateng: Kent, like other local authorities, will be able to claim for reimbursement of its costs in supporting asylum seekers through three Special grants for 1997–98, subject to Parliamentary approval being given for these grants.

For adult asylum seekers, local authorities will be able to claim their full costs up to a limit of £140 per week, averaged out over the year, for each asylum seeker supported. Local authorities will also be able to claim an additional £10 per week for each asylum seeker accommodated in specially commissioned or re-commissioned premises.

For asylum-seeking families Grant, local authorities will be able to recover 80 per cent. of the additional cost above the threshold set in Council tax Band D. This grant is provided in recognition of the additional burden which accommodating such families places on local authorities. The grant recognises that services for children and families have always formed a core part of social service functions, and so it would not be appropriate to meet costs in full.

Responsibilities for unaccompanied asylum seeking children and associated costs have fallen on a limited number of authorities. In recognition of these costs, a special grant of £3 million will be made available to local authorities. The grant is intended as a contribution towards helping local authorities meet their spending on unaccompanied asylum-seeking children and it was never intended that the Government would be responsible for meeting the full costs.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

Kali Mountford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the identification and treatment of myalgic encephalomyelitis. [15359]

Mr. Boateng: The main agency through which the Government support medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council. The Council currently provides support for one Small Project Grant in the area of Chronic Fatigue Syndrome (CFS) entitled "The role of noradrenaline in the neuropsychological pathogenesis of the chronic fatigue syndrome". The total amount awarded is £37,000. The Council is always willing to consider new ideas for research and will consider applications on their scientific merits.

The Department of Health has been funding one project at a cost of £60,000, which was recently completed, which considered whether a particular type of psychological treatment was effective in reducing disability in CFS patients. The Department is also funding another project, costing about £65,000, which is looking at whether general practitioners are best placed to manage CFS patients, the report of which is expected shortly.

Consultant Episodes

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the (a) elective and (b) non-elective activity that took place in the NHS by year for the last five years in the period between 1 October and 31 March. [15673]

Mr. Boateng: The number of general and acute elective and non-elective finished consultant episodes commissioned by health authorities is available for each year from 1992–93, and is given in the table. The information is from the quarterly monitoring of health authorities and has been converted to 1996–97 definitions to aid direct comparison.

The number of general and acute elective and non-elective finished consultant episodes commissioned by health authorities in England in the period between 1 October and 31 March each year since 1992–93, in millions, converted to 1996–97 definitions

Year	Elective FCEs	Non-Elective FCEs
1992–93	2.0	1.8
1993–94	2.2	2.0
1994–95	2.4	2.0
1995–96	2.5	2.1
1996–97	2.5	2.2

Tobacco Sponsorship

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which sports representatives Ministers met; on how many occasions and on what dates to discuss the implications of a ban on tobacco sponsorship of their sports; and what criteria were used when deciding to meet representatives from sporting organisations affected by the proposed ban on tobacco sponsorship. [16733]

Ms Jowell: On 24 June, my hon. Friend the Minister for Sport met Maurice Lindsay of the Rugby Football League, Richard Little of the England and Wales Cricket Board, Jonathan Ashman of the RAC Motorsports Association and Martyn Blake of the World Professional Billiards and Snooker Association. The Central Council of Physical Recreation, as the national association of governing bodies of sport, was invited to put together the delegation.

In addition, my hon. Friend the Minister for Sport was present when I met Max Mosley of the Federation Internationale de l'Automobile on 23 September. This meeting was held at the request of Max Mosley.

Representatives from the Sports Council of Great Britain, the World Professional Billiards and Snooker Association, the Institute of Sports Sponsorship, the English Sports Council, the British Darts Organisation, the Central Council of Physical Recreation and the RAC Motorsports Association were also present at the Government's anti-smoking summit, held on 14 July 1997.

Representatives from the Football Association, the FA Premier League, the England and Wales Cricket Board, the Amateur Athletics Association and the United Kingdom and Scottish Sports Councils were invited to the summit, but did not attend.

Osteoporosis

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of recent research concerning consumption of milk in childhood reducing the risk of osteoporosis in later life; and whether he has discussed with Ministers in the Department for Education and Employment the availability of milk for children in schools. [17160]

Ms Jowell: An expert group of the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food and Nutrition Policy (COMA) is currently considering the recent research on the nutritional aspects of bone health and COMA is expected to publish a report next year.

The Departments of Health and for Education and Employment, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food and the Intervention Board Executive Agency have jointly considered the provision of school milk. Ministers from these Departments have met twice to discuss the issues and we intend to meet again soon.

The Department continues to advise that milk is an important source of calcium and should be included as part of a healthy and balanced diet for children. Physical activity has been shown to be important in preventing osteoporosis in later life and the Department is currently funding the "Active for Life" physical activity campaign.

Nutrition

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of Britain's adult population suffer from nutritionally based diseases. [17582]

Ms Jowell: Diseases which are entirely nutritionally based, that is protein or micro-nutrient vitamin and mineral deficiencies, are rare in the adult population.

However, diet and poor nutrition are the primary causes of obesity; 15.3 per cent. of men and 17.5 per cent. of women were obese in 1995. Obesity itself is a risk factor for cardiovascular disease and diabetes and a number of other diseases. In 1994, 24 per cent. of men and 26 per cent. of women reported having had a cardiovascular disorder. In the same year, 2.9 per cent. of men and 1.9 per cent. of women had diabetes.

Diet and nutritional factors are also thought to account for around one third of all cancers.

Almost one in three women of child-bearing age have low or absent iron stores. This is at least partly due to diet.

Lead Pollution

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent of the damage to children's health caused by lead pollution. [17298]

Ms Jowell: Clinical lead poisoning in children is now very rare, and is expected to decrease as old leaded paint becomes less common. Controls on exposure to lead from many sources have resulted in a very substantial fall in blood lead levels in children generally. Recent surveys indicate that about 5 per cent. of children have blood lead levels in the range where there is persuasive evidence of subclinical harm to neuropsychological development. In nearly all such children, the estimated effect is a deficit of one to three IQ points. Exposure to lead will continue to decrease as a consequence of current and proposed measures.

Long-term Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will publish his proposals for a Long-Term Care Charter. [17802]

Mr. Boateng: We hope to make an announcement in the new year.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish a summary of the representations he has received concerning the terms of reference of the proposed Royal Commission on Long-Term Care. [17799]

Mr. Boateng: The Department has received views, from both individuals and organisations, in a variety of contexts, concerning the remit of the proposed Royal Commission on Long-Term Care. These representations have been given careful consideration as part of the planning process being undertaken by the Department. There are no plans to publish a summary of representations.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will publish the terms of reference and membership of the proposed Royal Commission on Long-Term Care. [17800]

Mr. Boateng: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Health gave the hon. Member for Macclesfield (Mr. Winterton) on 11 November 1997, Official Report column 702.

Correspondence

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to respond to the letters from the hon. Member for Bradford, North of 17 October and 7 November regarding female genital mutilation. [18285]

Ms Jowell: A reply was sent to my hon. Friend on Wednesday 26 November.

Food Standards Agency

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the (a) food manufacturers and (b) other companies he has met with regard to the proposed Food Standards Agency. [18069]

Ms Jowell: Over the past six months, Health Ministers have met representatives from many organisations interested in the proposed Food Standards Agency. These have included academic and consumer groups, as well as those representing the food industry.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions he has met the Minister without Portfolio with regard to the Food Standards Agency. [18054]

Ms Jowell: My hon. Friend the Minister without Portfolio and I are members of the Cabinet Committee MISC 1 which is overseeing the Food Standards Agency project. The Committee has met on five occasions, the last being on 21 October.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Housing

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what estimates he has made of the amount of unused or undeveloped space above shops; how much such space, involving how many residential units, has been developed for use in the last five years; and what proposals he has to encourage further residential use of this space. [17712]

Mr. Raynsford: The 1991 English House Condition Survey estimated that there were 26,000 vacant dwellings above shops. Results from the 1996 Survey are still being analysed. My Department does not hold estimates of the potential number of dwellings that could be converted from unused commercial space.

One thousand eight hundred and seventy two flats above shops were brought into use through schemes funded by the Department of the Environment and the Housing Corporation between 1991 and 1995. We do not hold information on schemes developed using other public and private sources of funding.

We support and will encourage activity which makes the most effective us of spare space above shops through our planning and regeneration policies. Research for my Department, published in August 1997, found that flats above shops schemes are most effective as part of co-ordinated regeneration strategies which local authorities have a key role in developing and implementing.

The conversion of space above and the reuse of other upper floor space in town centres is encouraged in our Planning Policy Guidance, especially PPG3 and PPG6.

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions to what extent the latest housing projections for England take account of estimates of the numbers of individuals who were not included in the 1991 census. [17714]

Mr. Raynsford: A detailed account of the methodology and main statistical assumptions underlying the latest household projections is set out in the annexes of "Projections of Households in England to 2016", published by The Stationery Office in March 1995. In particular, a description of how the number of individuals who were not included in the 1991 census was taken into account in compiling the household projections is given as an appendix to Annexe B. A copy of this publication is in the Library.

Mr. Tom King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions to what extent the housing projections for England take account of the increase in (a) home-sharing, (b) cohabiting and (c) rent-a-room arrangements since 1981. [17713]

Mr. Raynsford: A detailed account of the methodology and main statistical assumptions underlying the latest household projections is set out in the annexes of "Projections of Households in England to 2016", published by The Stationery Office in March 1995. A copy of this publication is in the Library.

A household was defined in the household projections, as in the 1981 and 1991 Censuses and official surveys, as one person living alone, or a group of people who share common housekeeping or a living room. People who rent a room or share a house will be regarded as part of the larger household or as a separate household depending on such housekeeping arrangements. Information on the numbers of separate households is obtained from the Censuses and (at national level) the Labour Force Survey. Additionally, estimates are made of concealed couples and concealed lone parents—those couples and lone parents who are part of another household—but these estimates do not form part of the total number of households. The incidence of cohabitation is taken into account in the compilation of the household projection by its separate categorisation in the underlying marital status projections, provided by the Government Actuary's Department. A detailed description of the treatment of the marital status projections and cohabitation is provided in Annexes D and G of the publication referred to above.

Rail Signalling

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to ensure improved standards of signalling on the rail network; and if he will make a statement. [17870]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The maintenance, renewal and modernisation of signalling equipment are the responsibility of Railtrack. Details of the company's signalling strategy are in its current Network Management Statement. A recent modification to Railtrack's network licence means that future statements will contain more details of investment plans, including signalling improvements.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the estimated effect on aggregate local authority costs, in a full year, of (a) a rise in interest rates from 6 per cent. to 7.25 per cent. and (b) a rise in inflation from 2 per cent. to 2.75 per cent. [17968]

Mr. Raynsford: I estimate that English local authorities currently hold about £5 billion in variable rate debt, on which additional interest payments of about £62 million would arise if interest rates rose by 1.25 per cent. generally.

Further, if authorities undertake new borrowing of £2 billion a year, broadly in line with the issue of new credit approvals, then a 1.25 per cent. rise in interest rates would increase interest payments on this new borrowing by £25 million.

Local authorities currently hold around £10 billion in bank deposits and other short term investments and might therefore earn additional interest of up to £125 million, if rates rose by 1.25 per cent.

The additional costs or income arising from the increase in interest rates will tend to be offset over time by compensating changes in Housing Revenue Account subsidy and Revenue Support Grant paid to local authorities by central government.

As far as the effect on local authority costs of a rise in inflation is concerned, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 24 November 1997, Official Report, columns 367–68.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what would be the average effect on band D council tax of a national increase in local authority costs of £300 million, assuming (a) that this cost is spent equally between authorities according to the number of dwellings chargeable for council tax, (b) that there is no increase in central Government grant and (c) that the average gearing ratio applies in council spending; [17958]

(2) what would be the effect on band D council tax for each local authority in England of a national increase in local authority costs of £300 million in 1997–98, assuming (a) that this cost is spread equally between authorities according to the number of dwellings chargeable for council tax and (b) that there is no increase in central government grants. [17959]

Mr. Raynsford: An increase of £300 million in the amount required from council taxes for England is equivalent to an increase in the average band D council tax of £18.37. I have today placed in the Library estimates of the effect on band D council taxes for each local authority area of an increase of £300 million in the amount required nationally from council taxes, assuming that this amount is spread equally between billing authorities according to the estimated number of chargeable dwellings in each area.

Development Plans

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the (a) amendments and (b) observations made by the Government on (i) county, (ii) district and (iii) unitary development plans since 1 May. [17970]

Mr. Raynsford: When development plans are being prepared, altered or replaced the Secretary of State has powers to direct local authorities to modify their plans and may call all or part of a plan in for his own determination. A direction will indicate the nature of the change required to be made to the plan, but does not otherwise specify the amendment to be made. The Secretary of State can amend a plan he has called in for his own determination; but no plans have been called in since 1 May 1997. Government Offices, acting on behalf of the Secretary of State, are in regular contact with local authorities commenting on draft and deposited plans and proposed modifications. Information on all observations made in that context could be made available only at disproportionate cost.

J. Sainsbury (Planning Appeal)

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he has met in an official capacity the objectors to the planning appeal No. APP/X5990/A/96/274698 lodged by J. Sainsbury and Network Housing Association Ltd. which was called in for his determination on 28 May. [18292]

Mr. Prescott: I have not met any of the objectors to discuss this case.

The two week inquiry into the appeals closed last week and we await the Inspector's report.

This case was automatically recovered for decision by Ministers rather than by the Inspector. The criteria for recovery of cases for Ministerial decision are precisely the same as those applied by this Department in which the hon. Member was a Minister before his resignation.

Airports

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list for each United Kingdom airport (a) its current terminal capacity and (b) its current runway capacity, together with the dates when the airport is expected to reach those capacity figures. [18176]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The assessment of the capacity of both terminals and runways is a complex matter, depending on factors such as the type and mix of traffic, the extent to which traffic is concentrated in peak times and the quality of service standards applied by each airport. It is for individual airport operators, in consultation with airport users, to monitor both the existing and expected future position, and in the light of that to bring forward investment proposals and take such other steps as may be necessary and desirable.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 24 November 1997, Official Report, column 369, if he will publish the minutes of his meeting with Lord Sainsbury on 20 October. [18200]

Mr. Prescott: In accordance with normal and longstanding practice observed by previous Governments as well as this, I do not intend to publish detailed records of my meetings. However, in my previous answer of 24 November 1997, Official Report, column 369, I gave a summary of the issues discussed at my meeting with Lord Sainsbury on 20 October.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he last met Lord MacLaurin in an official capacity; and what subjects were discussed. [18202]

Mr. Prescott: I have not met Lord MacLaurin in my official capacity. However my hon. Friend the Minister for the Regions, Regeneration and Planning met Terry Leahy of Tesco on 31 July. He has also met several other leading retailers who have requested a meeting—in line with the practice of the previous Government.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he last met the Chairman of Safeway plc in an official capacity; and what subjects were discussed. [18201]

Mr. Prescott: I have received no request from the Chairman of Safeway plc for a meeting and I have not therefore met him in my official capacity. Nor have I met him personally with any other major retailers, including the Chairman of Asda, the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells (Mr. Norman).

Bus Services

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what percentages of bus passenger miles are provided by municipal bus companies in the public sector; and if he will list the relevant companies. [18181]

Ms. Glenda Jackson: The most recent data available for bus miles operated and passenger journeys made on services provided by municipal bus companies in the public sector are for 1996–97. Approximately 5 per cent. of bus miles and 7 per cent. of passenger journeys were attributed to the services of municipal bus companies in Great Britain. The companies are listed below:

Blackburn Borough Transport Ltd.
Blackpool Transport Services Ltd.
Bournemouth Transport Ltd.
Cardiff City Transport Services Ltd.
Chester City Transport Ltd.
Eastbourne Buses Ltd.
Halton Borough Transport Ltd.
Ipswich Buses Ltd.
Islwyn Borough Transport Ltd.
Lothian Regional Transport plc.
Newport Transport Ltd.
Nottingham City Transport Ltd.
Plymouth City Bus Ltd.
Reading Transport Ltd.
Rossendale Transport Ltd.
Thamesdown Transport Ltd.
Warrington Borough Transport Ltd.

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the public subsidy to local bus services (a) for London, (b) English metropolitan areas, (c) English shire counties and (d) England separately identifying the (i) concessionary fare subsidy and (ii) fuel duty rebate. [18182]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The figures requested, for the most recent year, 1996–97, are shown in the table below. These comprise public transport support, concessionary fare reimbursement and fuel duty rebate. Data on fuel duty rebate are recorded for London and England but a more detailed geographic breakdown by English metropolitan areas and English shire counties is not available.

Local bus services: public subsidy by area

(£ million)

1996–97	London[1]	English metropolitan areas	English shire counties	England
Public transport support	25	102	88	215
Concessionary fare reimbursement	106	177	102	385
Fuel duty rebate	29	—	—	161
All support	160	—	—	761

[1] Support in London was internally funded by London Transport with no direct revenue support from central government.

Bus Passenger Journeys

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will estimate the number of local bus passenger journeys in (a) 1994–95 and (b) 1995–96 in (i) London, (ii) English metropolitan areas, (iii) English shire counties and (iv) England. [18180]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The figures requested, plus those for the most recent year, 1996–97, are shown in the table. These and other interesting statistics on the bus industry were published by my department on 30 October 1997 in "Bus and Coach Statistics Great Britain 1996–97".

Local bus services: passenger journeys by area

(millions)

	London	English metropolitan areas	English shire counties	England
1994–95	1,167	1,331	1,277	3,775
1995–96	1,205	1,292	1,265	3,762
1996–97	1,242	1,247	1,269	3,758

Transport Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the regulatory bodies within the United Kingdom which have a responsibility for transport safety. [18174]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Other than the Department, the list of agencies and other non-departmental bodies which regulate for transport safety, and which could therefore be defined as regulatory bodies, are as follows:

The Marine Safety Agency
The Vehicle Inspectorate Executive Agency
The Vehicle Certification Agency
The Driving Standards Agency
The Driver Vehicle Licensing Agency
The Traffic Commissioners
The Civil Aviation Authority
The Health and Safety Commission and Executive
Local Authorities.

Sea Empress Incident

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when the International Oil Pollution Compensation Fund 1971 increased compensation payments for claims arising from the Sea Empress incident to 100 per cent. of eligible losses. [18548]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Executive Committee of the International Oil Pollution Compensation Fund 1971 agreed on Tuesday 21 October that full compensation payments should be made to Sea Empress claimants for substantiated losses. The Government have worked hard for this decision. In particular, we have agreed that our own claim for the cost of clean-up operations arising from the Sea Empress incident should stand at the back of the queue for compensation from the Fund.

Insulin-dependent Diabetics

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what data his Department has collated on motor vehicle accident rates involving insulin-dependent diabetics; [17611]

(2) what studies his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated of the driving behaviour of insulin-dependent diabetics. [17612]

Ms Glenda Jackson [holding answer 26 November 1997]: Collection of information at the time of accidents is the responsibility of the Police. The information which they obtain, and which therefore is available to the Department, does not cover medical cause because it is not possible routinely to establish any medical condition and its link to the accident. The Department has not felt it necessary to commission or to evaluate studies of the driving behaviour of insulin-dependent diabetics. There have been a number of studies by experts in the field on the consequences of insulin treatment. These have shown that insulin treatment leads to a significant risk of hypoglycaemia, which can lead to loss of consciousness, as well as other effects such as diminished judgment. It is well established that hypoglycaemia can occur without warning. The provisions on insulin-dependent diabetic drivers included in the Second EC Driver Licensing Directive, adopted by the Council of Ministers in 1991 (and coming into force in the United Kingdom in this respect on 1 January 1998), are based on these considerations. The view that the driving of the heavier vehicles by such drivers presents an unacceptable risk to other road users has been endorsed by the Secretary of State's Honorary Advisory Panel on Diabetes and Driving.

DEFENCE

Eurofighter

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the numbers of Eurofighters and the timing of their delivery will be included for consideration in his Department's Fundamental Expenditure Review. [16978]

Mr. Spellar: The Strategic Defence Review will be the Ministry of Defence's contribution to the Government's Comprehensive Spending Review. It is our intention to order Eurofighter according to the conditions and numbers previously announced; the first aircraft is scheduled for delivery in December 2001. We are already committed to the purchase of 232 Eurofighter. Eurofighter might be a cost-effective replacement for the Harrier GR7, although no decision needs to be taken yet. Decisions taken during the Defence Review could affect this.

Chatham Dockyard

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a complete list of unplanned incidents and accidents involving individuals of the civilian work force at Chatham dockyard which resulted, or may have resulted, in radiation exposure to one or more individuals. [17429]

Mr. Spellar: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for the Armed Forces on 24 June 1997, Official Report, column 424. I am seeking information from my officials as to the practicality of providing such a list and hope to be able to write to my hon. Friend before the end of December. A copy of my letter will be placed in the Library.

Defence Transport and Movements Executive

Ms Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the key targets for the Chief Executive of the Defence Transport and Movements Executive. [18786]

Dr. Reid: The Chief Executive of the Defence Transport and Movements Executive has been set the following Key Targets for Financial Year 1997–98.

Key Target 1—To provide the integrated surface transport and movements element of the logistic support capability in peace, crisis and war.

Key Target 2—To achieve greater value for money through the development of business management systems to support the drive for increased efficiency, economy and effectiveness.

Key Target 3—To promote flexible personnel management to ensure that DTMX's work force is properly managed, motivated and trained to optimize effectiveness, productivity and job satisfaction.

Key Target 4—To improve financial management systems to support the development of resource accounting and budgeting.

These Key Targets take forward the work of the previous year's Key Targets in the context of the Agency's continuing provision of transport and movements services not just to the Armed forces but to other Government Departments as well. By specifically investing in both its people and its infrastructure, the Agency will be able to continue to provide the detailed technical expertise and physical force projection capabilities required to support operations such as the peacekeeping mission in Bosnia and the successful withdrawal from Hong Kong. Given all the pressures on the Agency, not least continual downward financial pressure, I believe these to be challenging but achievable.

Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency

Mr. Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the Key Targets for the Chief Executive of the Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency for 1997–98. [18813]

Dr. Reid: The Chief Executive of the Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency has been set the following Key Targets for Financial Year 1997–1998.

Key Target 1—To deliver the required level of storage and to process receipts and returns as defined in agreements with the Agency's Customers.

Key Target 2—To meet the Standard Priority System 96 Supply Chain Processing Times for Material authorised for issue.

Key Target 3—To deliver special to task and on the job training for Land Units Employed in the Base.

Key Target 4—To implement the recommendations of the Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency Information Systems strategy.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

New Deal

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what support New Deal participants will receive after their six months placement has finished. [18290]

Mr. Alan Howarth: New Deal options are designed to help young people to find work and be better able to sustain employment. Young people who need support to find work after their option will receive intensive help through the New Deal follow-through strategy. The strategy is detailed in "Design of the New Deal for 18–24 year olds", published on 9 October, which is available in the Library.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what measures have been taken to make the Environment Task Force and voluntary sector options attractive to applicants for the New Deal. [18291]

Mr. Alan Howarth: We have consulted widely on the Environment Taskforce and Voluntary Sector options to ensure that they will provide New Deal participants with high-quality work experience placements. Young people on these options will undertake real work, improving their local communities and the environment, and will receive training towards approved qualifications and jobsearch help. They will also receive either a wage, or a grant of up to £400 over the six months in addition to their benefits.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what measures have been taken to ensure that employers taking on subsidised applicants through the New Deal are creating additional jobs. [18289]

Mr. Alan Howarth: Employers will be asked to give an undertaking that they have not made an existing employee redundant to make way for a New Deal participant. If there is evidence to suggest that this has happened, it will be investigated.

It is not the principal purpose of the subsidy to create additional jobs. The main aim is to encourage employers to consider, when recruiting, people they would normally reject because of the time they have spent in unemployment. By doing this, the New Deal will help to create the conditions under which the economy can continue to grow and produce new jobs.

In addition, some employers may be motivated to increase their workforce, in answer to real business needs, by the availability of a subsidy which offsets initial costs of recruitment and training.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what estimate he has made of the number of people aged over 25 years and unemployed for two or more years who will benefit from the New Deal. [18288]

Mr. Alan Howarth: No such estimate has been made. The design of the New Deal for people aged 25 years or over and unemployed for two years or more is being considered.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what estimate he has made of the number of applicants who will enter (a) the subsidised employment option, (b) the full-time education or training option, (c) the voluntary sector option and (d) the Environmental Task Force option of the New Deal. [18287]

Mr. Alan Howarth: No such estimates have been made. We will however want as many young people as possible to be able to take a place in the Employment Option, and our planning assumption is that over 40 per cent. of those entering options will do so. It is a key principle of the design of the New Deal for 18–24 year olds that young people should be helped to choose the option most appropriate for them. Each of the options is to provide high-quality opportunities for work, education and training.

Education Action Zones

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has for the development of education action zones. [18708]

Mr. Byers: Education Action Zones are a radical and important element in our plans to raise standards in schools, especially those in challenging circumstances. They will provide new exciting ways for schools and LEAs, and parents, business and community organisations, to work together to raise standards.

Action Zones will be in urban and rural areas where schools are in need of additional focused support and will exist for at least three years, and often longer. Each will be run with the help of a Forum which will set challenging targets and put forward ambitious, innovative plans for meeting them. Local partnerships will need to bid to be in the programme. We expect to create at least 25 zones during this parliament. We shall very shortly be publishing the School Standards and Framework Bill which will provide the statutory basis for Education Action Zones.

Education Expenditure

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what is the estimated cost to local authorities of the enhanced role of local education authorities set out in the White Paper "Excellence in Schools". [17960]

Mr. Byers: The main requirement on local education authorities flowing from the White Paper is to refocus their existing resources towards the delivery of higher standards of pupil achievement. The extent of the net costs or net savings will vary between authorities according to the extent that a given authority has already adjusted the balance of its support for schools in this direction in recent years. In accordance with the White Paper principle of intervention in inverse proportion to success, LEAs' plans should include a review of all existing activity to ensure that its work in support of raising standards is well targeted. The Government will ensure through the regular process of approving LEAs' Education Development Plans that the resources an LEA plans to commit are appropriate for the task.

Wooden Classrooms

Mr. Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will ascertain the number of classrooms of wooden construction currently in use in Leicestershire, indicating their location, the number of pupils currently educated in them and the date their safety was last checked. [18203]

Mr. Byers: It is for LEAs to determine how they provide the school places for pupils in their own area. I recognise that many LEAs do currently have to rely on classrooms of wooden construction which are at the end of, or beyond, their design life. The New Deal for Schools (NDS) will help LEAs to redress such problems. It provides for bids covering a variety of school building needs. Over 2,000 schools will benefit from the £115 million which the Prime Minster announced would be spent in the current financial year. By the end of this Parliament we expect an additional £2 billion to be spent as a result of the NDS.

INDEX TO THE

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

OFFICIAL REPORT

SIXTH SERIES VOLUME 301

SESSION 1997–98

17th November—28th November 1997

SCOPE OF THE INDEX, ARRANGEMENT AND ABBREVIATIONS

This index is derived from the House of Commons Library's Parliamentary On-Line Information System (POLIS), and the subject terms used are based on those used in POLIS. There are often changes in column numbering, etc., between the daily part or weekly Hansard (which simply collects together the daily parts without revision) and the bound volume. The index for the bound volume is revised to take account of these changes and cannot therefore, be used in connection with the daily part or weekly Hansard. For these versions use the Fortnightly Index.

Scope and arrangement of the Index

Oral and Written Parliamentary Questions are indexed under subject headings and the names of Members asking and Ministers replying to them. Questions are not listed under the names of Departments replying. Departmental listings can be arrived at indirectly by looking under the names of the Minister(s) of that Department. There are, however, the headings 'Northern Ireland', 'Scotland', and 'Wales' under which one can find not only most Questions answered by the Northern Ireland Office, Scottish Office, Welsh Office but also Questions about these areas of the United Kingdom which are answered by other Departments. Ministerial statements are indexed under subject headings, under 'Ministerial statements' and the names of Ministers making them and Members speaking on them. General debates are indexed under broad subject headings and under the names of all Members and Ministers taking part. Debates on legislation (Bills, Orders, Regulations etc.) are indexed under the name of the Bill, Statutory Instruments etc, under subject headings and under the names of those taking part.

Rulings and Statements by Speaker and deputies are brought together under the heading 'Speaker's rulings and statements'.

Other contributions by Speaker and deputies appear under the heading Speaker.

Opposition Day Debates and Estimates Day Debates and Standing Order No. 10 applications are listed under those respective headings and under subject headings too.

The date of each item except Parliamentary Questions is inserted immediately before the reference.

Members' names are given in the form by which they prefer to be known and are printed in bold italics. Under their names, entries are arranged under one of the two headings Debates, etc. (to include interventions on statements, points of order and so on) or Questions.

Abbreviations

Bills 1R = first reading, 2R = second reading, Money res = money resolution, Comm = Committee stage, Rep = Report stage, 3R = third reading, amendt/amendts = amendment/amendments, * = matter taken formally, without debate.

Column numbers followed by the letter W refer to Written Questions. These appear at the end of each daily part or volume with their own sequence of column numbers printed in italics.

A1
Road construction 142

A46
966–7

A65
Private finance initiative 460–1w

Abbott, Ms Diane
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 639–40
Questions
Cold weather payments, Expenditure 663w
Minimum wage 1083–4
Refugees, Montserrat 290–1w
Young offender institutions 630

Abdication
Public records 672w

Abortion
470–1w
Costs 423w

Abuse of Children Living away from Home Review
see Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review

Access Business Group
323–4w

Access business initiative
239w

Accident and emergency departments
Kidderminster Hospital 594w
Research 591w

"Accountability Animal Experiments and Freedom of Information"
611–2w

Acid rain
Trees 370w

Action 2000
50–1w, 190–1w, 346w

Acton
London Underground 128w

Actors
National insurance contributions 294w

Adams, Gerry
959

Admission charges
Museums and galleries 674w

Advance corporation tax
Pension funds 111w

Advertising
12w

Advertising agencies
Millennium Exhibition 473–4w

Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes
Maize 21w

Advisory Group on Quarantine
see Quarantine Advisory Group

Advisory Panel on Driving and Diabetes see Driving and Diabetes Advisory Panel

Advisory services
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 522w
Small businesses 282w
Social security benefits 11–3

Aerials
620–1w
Planning permission 2–3w, 196w, 620w, 635w
Portavogie 635w

Aerials—continued
Publicity 195–6w

Aeron Valley Creameries
Milk Marque 641w

Aerospace industry
283w
EC presidency 283–4w

Afghanistan
Arms embargoes 681w
Women 177–8w

African National Congress
Bombings 609w

Age addition
Retirement pensions 571w

Age discrimination
Employment protection 363–5w
NHS 520w

Agenda 21
463w

Agricultural development programme
Tax allowances 281w

Agricultural land
Environment protection 229–30w
Land ownership and tenure 251w

Agricultural policy
EC presidency 21w, 356w

Agricultural production
Disclosure of information 116w
Greenhouse effect 117w

Agricultural research
Bovine tuberculosis 275w

Agricultural subsidies
356w
Dairy farming 275w

Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995
Questions
118w

Agricultural workers
Overseas students 607–8w

Agriculture
Young people 230w

Aid financed trade
448w

AIDS
Prisoners 40w

Ainger, Mr Nick
Questions
Economic and monetary union, Business 657w
MV Sea Empress, Oil pollution 693w

Air accidents
Harrier aircraft 70w
RAF Wittering 70w

Air bags
Research 196–7w

Air force bases
Armed forces civilians 564w

Air pollution
Information services 298–300w
Trees 6–7w
Urban areas 201w

Air pollution control
299w
Carbon dioxide 134, 134w, 135, 295w, 755

Air routes
Malaysia 626w
Regional airports 625w

Air safety
Chinook helicopters 152–3w
Military aircraft 563w

Air traffic
Gibraltar airport 482w
Greater London 296–7w
Spain 615w

Air transport
(25.11.97) 878
Economic situation 625w
North West region 625w
Transport of radioactive materials 148w

Aircraft engines
Chinook helicopters 151–2w

Airport tax
Charities 257w

Airports
691w
Transport infrastructure 126w

Airspace
563w

Alcoholic drinks
Parliamentary buildings 474w
Young people 246–7w, 435w

Alcoholic drinks duties
EC action 762–3

Algeria
Human rights 221w, 481w

Allan, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 34
Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL), Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1034
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1101
Questions
Railway transport, Regulatory systems 146–7
World Bank 446–7w

Allen, Mr Graham, Lord Commissioner of Her Majestys Treasury
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 987
Hunting, Public petitions (27.11.97) 1190

Ambulance services
310w
Hoaxes and false alarms 595w
Medals 310w
Northern Ireland 635–6w

Amess, Mr David
Debates etc.
Local government reform, Southend (28.11.97) 1274–8
Reform of Quarantine Regulations Bill, 1R (25.11.97) 800–2
Questions
Industry 671w
Official engagements 222w
Official hospitality, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 10w
Public service 240w
Social security reform 528w
Taxable benefits 565–6w

Amsterdam Summit
605w

Ancram, Rt Hon Michael
Questions
Campbell, Jason, Prisoners' transfers 75–6w, 273w, 676w
Labour Party, Finance 506w

Animal breeding
Dogs 439w
Huntingdon Life Sciences 439w

Animal experiments
93–4w
Cosmetics 217w
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency 228–9w
Disclosure of information 94w, 248w
Institute of Neurology 249w, 612w
Licensing 248–9w
Porton Down 500w

Animal feed
Composition labelling 21w, 120w

Animal Health (Amendment) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R* (28.11.97) 1273

Animal Procedures Committee
611–2w
Open government 310

Animal quarantine
22–3w, (25.11.97) 800–2, (28.11.97) 1273

Animal welfare
Export of live animals 116–7w
Pets 214w
Pigs (26.11.97) 976–8
Slaughterhouses 119w

Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986
Questions
248–9w

Annuities
Pensioners 111w

Antarctic Treaty
547w

Appendicitis
314w

Arable area payments scheme
278–9w

Argyll and Bute
Educational finance 261–2w

Armagh
Internal security operations 580w

Armagh and Dungannon Health and Social Services Trust
Flags 272w

Armed conflict
Kurds 615w

Armed forces
Bosnia-Herzegovina 66w
Equal opportunities 69w
Radiation hazards 227w
Telephones 498w

Armed forces cadets
Crime prevention 455w
Defence expenditure 391–2w, 561w

Armed forces civilians
Air force bases 564w
RAF Northolt 563–4w

Armed forces deployment
Iraq 406w
Turkey 564w

Armed forces education allowances
70w, 149–51w

Armed forces medical services
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 498w

Armed forces officers
Education 392w

Armed forces pensions
Widows 71w

Armed forces training
Land use 394w
Military aid 482w
University Air Squadron 602w

Armed forces uniforms
Fire resistant materials 497w

Armed forces women
393w

Arms embargoes
Afghanistan 681w

Arms exports
Export licensing 763
Welsh Development Agency 23w

Arms trade
680–1w
Indonesia 103w

Armstrong, Hilary, Minister of State for Local Government and Housing, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions*
Questions
Council house rents 557w
Flood control, Standard spending assessments 121–2w
Local Government Commission for England 9w
Local government finance 137–8, 464w
Local government pensions 138
Local government services, Best value 123–4w
Local government services, Contracts for services 336–8w
Revenue support grant 124w
Rough sleepers initiative, Finance 121w
Standard spending assessments, Coal mining 138–9
Valuation tribunals 557–8w

Army
Engineers 244–5w

Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency
Performance standards 695w

Army bases
Colchester 67w

Army in Northern Ireland
321–2w
Death 966
Prisoners 581w

Army strength
601w

Arson
Northern Ireland 378–9w

Art education
30w

Artificial Limb and Appliance Service Wales
Wheelchairs 682–3w

Asbestos
Industrial health and safety 324–5

Asbestosis
Death 231–4w

Ashdown, Rt Hon Paddy
Questions
Class sizes 967–8
Tax rates and bands 321–2

Ashton, Mr Joe
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 912, 914, 918
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 331

Asia-Europe Summit
Human rights 479w

Assaults on police
Lasers 215w

Assisted areas
285w

Asylum
see Political refugees

Atherton, Ms Candy
Debates etc.
NHS, Cornwall (26.11.97) 935–6
Public service (17.11.97) 33

Atkins, Charlotte
Questions
Organic farming 587w
Tuberculosis in Cattle and Badgers Review 587w

Atkinson, Mr David
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1111
Questions
Dietary supplements 641–2w
Millennium compliance 329w
NHS, Millennium compliance 649–50w
Vitamins, Nutrition and health 585w

Atkinson, Mr Peter
Questions
EC grants and loans, Northern region 372w

Atomic Weapons Establishment
Publications 66w

Attorney General
Open government 249w
Press releases 249–50w

Australia
Ethnic groups 476w

Auxiliary oiler replenishment vessels
65–6w

Availability for work
536–7w

Average earnings
Wales 682w

Bain Commission
see Low Pay Commission

Baker, Norman
Debates etc.
Mergers, Points of order (17.11.97) 19
Plant Varieties Bill, Lords amendments (26.11.97) 1045–6, 1048–9, 1052, 1054–5
Public service (17.11.97) 36
Questions
Air pollution control 299w
Animal experiments, Cosmetics 217w
Animal experiments, Disclosure of information 248w
Animal experiments, Licensing 248–9w
Animal Procedures Committee 611–2w
Biotechnology, Patents 62w
British Council, Public records 672–3w
Civil Contingencies Unit 16–7w
Cold weather payments 79w
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, Animal experiments 228–9w
Electronic surveillance 99w
Environmental Information Regulations 1992 5–6w
Genetically modified organisms 7–8w
House of Commons Commission, Equal opportunities 327w
Institute of Neurology, Animal experiments 249w, 612w

Baker, Norman—continued*
Interception of Communications Act 1985 100w
Lewes-Uckfield railway line 626w
Members, Electronic surveillance 17–8w
MI5 101w
MI5, Contracts 101w
MI5, Manpower 101w
MI5, Personal records 218w
MI5, Subversion 101w
MI6 103–4w
Millennium Exhibition, Income 77–8w
Ministerial statements 418–9w
Ministry of Defence, Nottingham 72w
Non-departmental public bodies 316
Nuclear weapons tests, Christmas Island 65w
Official cars, Expenditure 251w
Open government, Expenditure 78w
Organic farming 22w
P and O, Sealink 288w, 419w
Patents, Royalties 106w
Postal services, Surveillance 100w
Prisoners, Telephone tapping 100w
Public records, Abdication 672w
Public records, Royal family 672w
Public records, Whales 672w
Radioactive waste disposal 202–3w
RAF Menwith Hill, Intelligence services 71w
RAF Menwith Hill, US bases 392–3w
Railway travel 145
Security vetting 40–1w
Surveillance 101w
Surveillance, Equipment 288w
Sustainable development 6w
Telephone systems 38–9w
Telephone systems, Emergency services 46–7w
Telephone tapping 38–9w, 99–100w, 218–9w
Telephone tapping, EC action 39–40w
Telephone tapping, Intelligence services 39w
Telephone tapping, International law 610–1w
Telephone tapping, Public telephones 611w
Trees, Air pollution 6–7w
Waste disposal 5w
Water and sewerage companies, Planning permission 303w
Water supply 336w
Xenotransplantation, Departmental responsibilities 270–1w
Xenotransplantation, Pigs 651–2w

Baldry, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 536, 569–72
Coal mining (26.11.97) 914–8
Questions
Citizens' advice bureaux 11–2
Egypt, Terrorism 153
Foreign investment in UK, Departmental coordination 281w
Rehabilitation of offenders 433w

Ballard, Jackie
Debates etc.
Hunting, Public petitions (28.11.97) 1198
Public service (17.11.97) 57
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1204, 1222, 1258–60
Questions
Aerials, Planning permission 620w
Bankruptcy, Millennium compliance 572w
Cattle, Data banks 584w
Driving instruction, Deaf 553w
Health hazards, Mercury 648w

Ballard, Jackie—continued*
Local exchange and trading schemes, Earnings rules 140w
Non-departmental public bodies, Women 312–3
Orange badge scheme 553–4w
Pets, Animal welfare 214w
Self-employed, Maternity benefits 569w

Ballot papers
European Parliament elections 606–7w

Bank notes
Forgery 332–3w

Bankruptcy
Millennium compliance 572w

Banks, Mr Tony, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept for Culture Media and Sport*
Questions
Church buildings, Listed buildings 259w
Heritage Lottery Fund, Expenditure 386–7w
Lake Windermere, Water sports 381–2w
National Lottery, Public opinion 91w
National Lottery, Wansbeck 383–6w
UK Sports Institute 91–2w

Banner Committee
see Animal Procedures Committee

Barents Sea
Telecommunications cables 227–8w

Barnes, Mr Harry
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 644
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 871
Regional aid, EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 289
Questions
Arson, Northern Ireland 378–9w
Cold weather payments 79w
Egypt, Terrorism 152
Electoral register 616–7
Northern Ireland government 578w
Open government, Fees and charges 316
Parliamentary buildings, Alcoholic drinks 474w
Planning permission, Opencast mining 139–40
Police, Manpower 452–3w
Post offices 438
Republic of Ireland, Foreign policy 761
Tax yields, Internet 661w

Barrages
China 10w

Barron, Mr Kevin
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 918–20, 924

Battle, Mr John, Minister of State, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 915, 924–5, 928–31
Questions
Aerospace industry 283w
Aerospace industry, EC presidency 283–4w
Agricultural development programme, Tax allowances 281w
Biotechnology, Patents 286–7w, 412–3w, 515–6w
British Aerospace, Government assistance 346w
Coal 47–9w
Coal mine closures 447–8
Coal mine closures, Privatisation 446–7

Battle, Mr John—continued*
Coal mining 447
Coal mining, Museums and galleries 510w
Coal mining, Privatisation 447
Coal mining, Production 419–20w
Coal mining, Property transfer 48w
Competition 284w
Dounreay, Radiation hazards 325w, 629w
EC Research Council 506–7w
Electricity generation, Coal 345w, 510w
Energy conservation 52w
EURATOM 347w
Fossil fuel levy 417w
Industrial research 283w
Isaac Newton Group of Telescopes 51w
Manufacturing industries 53w, 288–9w
Manufacturing industries, EC action 445–6
Motor industry 437–8
Motor industry, Takeovers 445
Non-fossil fuel obligation 507–10w
Nuclear power 573w
Public telecommunications systems, Business 573–4w
Public telecommunications systems, Deaf 52w
Public telephones 285–6w
"Register of Quality Assessed Companies" 574–5w
Research associations, Tax reform 347–8w
Rolls Royce, Government assistance 515w
Science and technology research 281w
Space technology 287–8w
Surveillance, Equipment 288w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 437–8
UN Convention on Biological Diversity 574w

Bayley, Mr Hugh
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 644
Hunting, Public petitions (28.11.97) 1197
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1214
Questions
Arms trade 680–1w
Bosnia-Herzegovina, Military vehicles 680w
Climate Change Convention 754–5
EC Foreign Affairs Council 615–7w
Sports 455–6w
Students, Finance 159–60w
Young offenders 970–1

BBC
259w

Beaches
EC law 131w, 462w

Beaufort Dyke
Radioactive waste disposal 409–10w

Beckett, Rt Hon Margaret, President of the Board of Trade*
Debates etc.
National Minimum Wage Bill, 1R (26.11.97) 975
Questions
Capital, Companies 54w
Coal mine closures 514w
Coal mining 54w
Company taxation 54w
Competition Bill (HL) 1997/98 416w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Ministerial duties 645–7w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Parliamentary questions 420w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Private finance initiative 511w
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail prices 418w

Beckett, Rt Hon Margaret—continued
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail trade 417–8w
EC internal trade, Harmonisation of legislation 510w
EC Social Charter, EC staff 618w
Economic and monetary union 189w
Euro 54w
Export credit guarantees 552w
Export credit guarantees, Defence equipment 645w
Export credit guarantees, Expenditure 511w
Export licensing 416w
Foreign investment in UK 49–50w
Fossil fuel levy 417w
Gas fired power stations, Departmental responsibilities 420w
Industries, Performance standards 53–4w
Low Pay Commission 420w
Ministerial statements 418–9w
Ministers, Conflict of interests 514w
Ministers, Telephones 420w
Ministers' visits abroad, Dept of Trade and Industry 104–5w
Monopolies and Mergers Commission, Travel agents 52w
P and O, Sealink 288w, 419w
Plutonium, Nuclear safeguards 419w
Publicity, Dept of Trade and Industry 413–5w
Regional selective assistance 514–5w
Scientific advisers 575w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 54w, 647w, 678w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Dept of Trade and Industry 647w

Beef
Imports 273–5w
Quality control 229w
Wales 639w

Beef premiums
Costs 278w

Beggs, Mr Roy
Questions
Exhaust emission controls 136–7
Foreign investment in UK 106–7w
Integrated schools, Northern Ireland 955
Road haulage industry, Northern Ireland 550w
Social security abuse 963

Beith, Rt Hon A J
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 459
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 638–9
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 805, 812, 815, 819–20, 823, 832–5, 866
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1213–5
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1097
Questions
Castington Young Offender Institution 216–7w
Children's rights 612–3w
Crime prevention, Expenditure 246w
Detection rates 92–3w, 97w
Electronic tagging 440w
European Police Office, Immunity from prosecution 453w
Home Office, Reviews 438–40w
Police, Finance 94–8w
Prison Enterprise Services 247w
Prison Service 618–9
Prison staff, Pensions 219w
Prisoners, Drug abuse 217w
Prisons, Construction 670w

Beith, Rt Hon A J—continued
Prisons, Performance standards 669–70w
Prisons, Private finance initiative 453–4w
Regime Services 219w
Young offenders, Research 611w

Belfast City Hospital
Cancer 637w

Belvoir Park Hospital
637w

Benefit Fraud Inspectorate
Publications 328w

Benefits Agency
see Social Security Benefits Agency

Benefits Agency district offices
Health action zones 445w

Benn, Rt Hon Tony
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 789–90
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 92–5, 99
Questions
Biotechnology, Patents 412–3w

Bennett, Mr Andrew F
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1212–3
Questions
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 134w
Forestry Commission, Land acquisition 273w
Scottish Parliament, Open government 309

Benton, Mr Joe
Debates etc.
Rescue services (26.11.97) 902

Bercow, Mr John
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 471, (27.11.97) 1125
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1157, 1161–2, 1168–70, 1175, 1183–8
Intervention during questions after statement (25.11.97) 787
Prime Minister's questions, Points of order (19.11.97) 340
Public service (17.11.97) 23, 26, 35, 41, 54–5, 62–5, 69–71
Tobacco advertising, Points of order (17.11.97) 19
Questions
Competition 449–50
Interest rates, Economic and monetary union 1074–5
Labour Party, Finance 323
Right of silence 431w

Beresford, Sir Paul
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 351, 364, 368–70, 375, 377, 381, 396, (24.11.97) 723, 735, 737

Bermingham, Mr Gerald
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1188
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 836, 838–9, 842, 845–7, 872
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1100
Questions
Crown Prosecution Service 667w
Sentencing 618

Best, Mr Harold
Debates etc.
Wharfedale Hospital (27.11.97) 1192–3

Best value
Local government services 123–4w

Bicycles
Members' allowances 409w

Billing
Government departments 662–3w

Biocidal products
EC law 366–7w

Biological weapons
Iraq 768–9

Biotechnology
Patents 62w, 286–7w, 412–3w, 515–6w

Birmingham Relief Road
143

Blair, Rt Hon Tony, Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury and Minister for the Civil Service
Debates etc.
European Council, Ministerial statements (24.11.97) 633–45
Questions
A46 966–7
Amsterdam Summit 605w
Army in Northern Ireland, Death 966
Asbestos, Industrial health and safety 324–5
Cabinet committees 269w
Chequers 270w
Children in care, Task forces 407w
Civil Contingencies Unit 16–7w
Civil service recruitment 15w
Class sizes 967–8
Council of Europe, UK delegations 408w
Day care of children 671w, 967
Day care of children, Vetting 971–2
Dept of Trade and Industry, Oral questions 603w
Diabetes, Driving licences 603–4w
Diabetes, EC law 325
D'Oyly Carte, Finance 324
Economic and monetary union, Business 459w
Educational finance 968
Environment Agency 17w
Film industry 409w, 671w
Government information services 604w
Handicap benefits 964–6
Hospital waiting lists 326
Incapacity benefit 968
Industry 671w
International conferences, Canary Wharf 270w, 408w
Iraq 605w
Iraq, Armed forces deployment 406w
Iraq, Foreign policy 323
Labour Party, Finance 17w, 318–23, 405w, 969
Manchester United Football Club, Carrington Moss 407–8w
Members, Electronic surveillance 17–8w
Ministerial policy advisors, Conflict of interests 408w
Ministers, Conflict of interests 269–70w, 603w
Ministers, Electronic mail 267w
Ministers' domestic visits 604w
Ministers' visits abroad, Prime Minister 267w
Murdoch, Rupert 603w
National Assembly of Wales 968–9
Official engagements 222w
Pensions 964

Blair, Rt Hon Tony—continued
Political parties, Finance 269w, 318–9, 405w, 969–70
Politics and government 971–2
Prime Minister 408w
Prime Minister, Diaries 271w
Princess of Wales, Funerals 407w
Public opinion 968
Public transport, Rural areas 222w
Race relations 970
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review 323
Sainsbury, Lord 406w
Social problems 321
Social security abuse 963
Solar power 325
Supermarkets, Planning permission 405–6w
Tax rates and bands 321–2
Teachers 969
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 15–6w, 268–9w, 324, 405w, 603w
Treasury, Reviews 406–7w
Unemployment, EC action 322
Xenotransplantation, Departmental responsibilities 270–1w
Yemen 17w
Young offenders 970–1

Blears, Ms Hazel
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 585–8
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 461
Questions
Local government services, Best value 123w

Blind
Concessionary television licences 180w

Blizzard, Mr Bob
Debates etc.
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents (25.11.97) 881–2
Public service (17.11.97) 25–6, 42–3
Questions
Assisted areas 285w
Coastal protection, Waveney 668w
Driving licences, Medical examinations 466w
Environment Agency 17w
Firearms, Compensation 41w
Neighbourhood nuisance 434w
Ports, Roads 143
Public footpaths 133w
Social security appeals 15–6
Teachers 969

Blood
170–1w
Exports 311w
Fees and charges 169w

Blood donors
Surveys 170w

"Blood Donors and Exports"
170w

Blood tests
Malaria 169w

Blood transfusion services
171w

Bloomfield Commission
see Northern Ireland Victims of Violence Commission

Blunkett, Rt Hon David, Secretary of State for Education and Employment*
Questions
Dept for Education and Employment, Public expenditure 588–90w

Blunt, Mr Crispin
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1172–4, 1182–3
Questions
C130 aircraft 64w
C130 aircraft, Employment opportunities 64w
Egypt, Terrorism 154
Future large aircraft, Defence procurement 64w
Kashmir, Foreign policy 474w

Boateng, Mr Paul, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of Health*
Questions
Accident and emergency departments, Research 591w
Ambulance services 310w
Ambulance services, Hoaxes and false alarms 595w
Ambulance services, Medals 310w
Appendicitis 314w
Blood 170–1w
Blood, Exports 311w
Blood, Fees and charges 169w
Blood donors, Surveys 170w
Blood tests, Malaria 169w
Blood transfusion services 171w
Breast cancer, Radiotherapy 595w
Cannabis, Medical treatments 596w
Children in care 174–5w
Children in care, Court orders 592w
Children in care, Staffordshire 591–3w
Children in care, Task forces 596w
Chronic fatigue syndrome, Medical research 684w
Community care, Judgments 596w
Community Care (Direct Payments) Act 1996 519w
Community hospitals, Norfolk 174w, 316–7w
East Lancashire Health Authority, Kidney patients 309w
Hearing aids 172w
Home care services 63w, 656w
Home care services, Regulatory systems 58w
Hospital admissions, Weather 319–20w
Hospital beds 655–6w
Hospital discharges 430w
Hospital patients 184w
Hospitals, Performance standards 426w
Incontinence 172–3w
Long-Term Care Charter 686–7w
Long-Term Care Royal Commission 687w
Mental health services 428w
Mental health services, Hospital beds 653–4w
Mental illness 428w
Mental illness, Costs 428w
Mental illness, Departmental coordination 428w
Mental patients 650–1w
Merseyside and North Wales Blood Service, Public appointments 522w
National Blood Authority 169w
National Blood Authority, Finance 171–2w
National Blood Authority, Public appointments 309w
National Blood Transfusion Service, Finance 170w, 172w
National Blood Transfusion Service, Performance standards 171w
National Blood Transfusion Service, Redundancy 171w
NHS, Age discrimination 520w
Political refugees, Government grants to local authorities 173–4w

Boateng, Mr Paul—continued
Political refugees, Kent 683–4w
Political refugees, Local government expenditure 173–4w
Residential care, Drugs 60w
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review 314w, 344w
Surgery 684–5w
Surgery, Hospital admissions 656w
Trauma centres 425w
Varicose veins 517w
Xenotransplantation, Pigs 651–2w

Boats
River Thames (24.11.97) 746–52

Body, Sir Richard
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1254–6
Questions
Euro 658w
Hormones, Health hazards 134w
Multiannual guidance programme, Fishing vessels 584–5w
Overseas students, Eastern Europe 607–8w
Pension rights, EC staff 547–8w
Princess of Wales, Funerals 407w
Telecommunications technology, Privacy 399w

Bomb disposal
Mines 493w

Bombings
African National Congress 609w
Dublin 109–10w
Lockerbie 766–7
Monaghan 109–10w

Bombs
Northern Ireland 634w

Borders region
Students 141w

Borrow, Mr David
Questions
Aerospace industry, EC presidency 283–4w
Army, Engineers 244–5w
Drug prevention initiative 248w

Bosnia-Herzegovina
Armed forces 66w
Military vehicles 680w
Overseas aid 493w

Boswell, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 157–8
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 515–8
Questions
Pay 1078–9
Pension funds 537–8w
Poverty 535w
Roads, Reviews 126w

Bottomley, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 67
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 105–7
Questions
Civil service recruitment 15w
Crime 454w
Labour Party, Finance 17w
Race relations 970
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 15–6w
VAT, Museums and galleries 674w

Bottomley, Rt Hon Virginia
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 798
Public service (17.11.97) 47–53, 61
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 334–5
Questions
Car boot sales 50w
Chechnya, Kidnapping 11w
Citizen's Charter 238w
Creative Industries Task Force 13w
Dept of Health, Ministerial policy advisors 311w
Foreign investment in UK 758–9
Low Pay Commission 441–2
Minimum wage 442
NHS trusts, Public appointments 58w
Young offenders, Prison population 629–30

Bovine spongiform encephalopathy
229w, 279w
Disease control 524–5w, 663w, (26.11.97) 1058–68
USA 276w
Wales 502w

Bovine tuberculosis
Agricultural research 275w

Bradley, Mr Keith, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of Social Security*
Questions
Benefits Agency district offices, Health action zones 445w
Child Support Agency 14, 289–90w, 532–3w
Child Support Agency, Administrative delays 86–7w
Child Support Agency, Manpower 87–8w
Earnings top-up 140w
Employment Service local offices, Grays 534w
Family credit 140–1w
Family credit, Taxpayers 445w
Habitual residence test 527w
Housing benefits 224–5w, 445–6w
Housing benefits, Children 224w
Housing benefits, Greater London 222–4w
Housing benefits, Young people 5–6
Incapacity benefit, Employment 567w
Income support 535w
Income support, Handicapped 225–6w
Income support, Mortgages 329w, 570w
Income support, Student loans 225w
Jobseeker's allowance 82w, 225w, 329w, 529w
Jobseeker's allowance, Social security appeals 82w
Jobseeker's allowance, Social security recipients 675–6w
Lone parent families, Social security recipients 537w
Lone parents 80–1w
Lone parents, Day care of children 81w
Lone parents, Social security recipients 81–2w
Lone parents, Take-up of employment 526–7w
Maintenance, Children 14, 17–8, 442w
Means tested benefits, Social security recipients 526w
Ministers' visits abroad, Germany 291w
Mortgages, Income support 140w
New deal for lone parents 445w, 540w, 664w
New deal for lone parents, Income support 664w
Poverty 535w

Bradley, Mr Keith—continued*
Refugees, Montserrat 290–1w
Social security, Domestic violence 528w
Social security appeals 15–6
Social security benefits, Civil servants 328w
Social security benefits, Political refugees 139w
Social security benefits, Telephone services 82–3w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Social security recipients 86w
Social security benefits backdating, Costs 540w
Social Security Bill 1997/98 537w
Social security payments 83w
Social security recipients, Taxpayers 444w
Social security reform, Wisconsin 538–9w
Social services 538w
Supported housing 138–9w
Unemployed, Poverty 83w

Bradley, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1226, 1250
Questions
Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency, Performance standards 695w
China, Prisoners 11w
India, Immigration applications 761

Bradshaw, Mr Ben
Questions
Economic and monetary union 284w

Brady, Mr Graham
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 470, (27.11.97) 1124
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 542, 544, 583–5, 590
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 460
Parliamentary questions, Points of order (26.11.97) 974
Questions
Class sizes, Primary education 155w
Employment, Northern Ireland 579w
Manchester United Football Club, Carrington Moss 336w, 376w, 407–8w
New deal for young unemployed 33w
Trade competitiveness 280–1w
Youth unemployment 765

Brake, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1017–8
Questions
Airport tax, Charities 257w
Bus lanes 368w
Bus lanes, Prosecutions 368w
Bus lanes, Road traffic offences 437–8w
Climate Change Convention, Carbon dioxide 369w
English Partnerships, Investment 370–1w
Housing construction, Urban areas 461w
Land pollution 301–2w
Landfill tax, Tax yields 467w
London Underground, Finance 137w
Members' allowances, Bicycles 409w
Railway network 461–2w
Rolling stock, Repairs and maintenance 460w
Sewers 335w
VAT, Building alterations 469w

Brand, Dr Peter
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 42, 47

Brazier, Mr Julian
Debates etc.
British Board of Film Classification, Standing Order No 24 applications (24.11.97) 646
Questions
Biocidal products, EC law 366–7w
EC institutions, Economic regions 297w
EC regional policy, Local authorities 303w
Economic and monetary union 357–8w
Gibraltar airport, Landing rights 397w
Housing benefits, Young people 6
Ministers' visits abroad, Germany 291w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Capital punishment 247w
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC labour policy 255w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Ministry of Defence 393w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Religion 247w

Brazil
Ethnic groups 261w

Breast cancer
Radiotherapy 595w
Screening 519–20w

Breed, Mr Colin
Questions
Family practitioner services, Counselling 341w
NHS pensions, Early retirement 307–8w
NHS Pensions Agency, Doctors 308–9w
Retail trade, EC countries 450

Brewing industry
Progressive taxation 257w

Bridges
Road works 1–2w

Brinton, Mrs Helen
Questions
Central Europe, Export promotion 477w
Environment protection, Business 135–6
"Household Growth Consultation Paper" 200w
Pensions 84w
Social rented housing, Housing construction 5w
Solar power 325
Water supply 133w, 198w
Water supply, Development plans 198w

Bristol
Cold weather payments 139–40w

British Aerospace
Government assistance 346w, 359w, 381w, 435–6

British Board of Film Classification
Standing Order No 24 applications (24.11.97) 646

British Broadcasting Corporation
see BBC

British Council
Public records 672–3w

British dependent territories
259w
Euro 614w

British embassies
India 102w

British Indian Ocean Territory
Mineral resources 10w

British Rail
Planning obligations 129w

British residents abroad
Retirement pensions 569–70w

British Telecom
Shares 574w

Broadcast journalism
Sports 180w

Broadcasting Act 1990
Questions
457w

Broadcasting Act 1996
Questions
455–7w

Broadcasting engineering
Scotland 457w

Bronchitis
Coal mining 568w

Brooke, Rt Hon Peter
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 668–9, 679, 697–8, 706–7
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1025–6
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 175
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 160
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 787
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1229–32

Brookes, John
Disclosure of information 497–8w

Brown, Rt Hon Gordon, Chancellor of the Exchequer
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement, Ministerial statements (25.11.97) 773–98
Questions
Commemorative coins 550w
Corporation tax 1070–1
Dorneywood 115w, 236w
EC Finance Council 549–50w
Economic and monetary union 18w
Economic and monetary union, Business 657w, 1087–8
Economic and monetary union, Costs 1077
Economic and monetary union, Interest rates 659w, 1076
Economic policy 1082
Inflation 660w
Interest rates 658–9w
Interest rates, Disposable income 659w
Lone parents 1076–7
Standing Committee on Preparations for EMU, Small businesses 1076
Tax and Benefits Task Force 358w
UK membership of EC 1070
Welfare to work 659–60w

Brown, Mr Russell
Questions
Local government services, Contracts for services 336–8w

Browne, Mr Desmond
Questions
Supported housing 138–9w

Browning, Mrs Angela
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 640
Public service (17.11.97) 36–44, 68
University finance (19.11.97) 279–81
Questions
Disability living allowance 675w
EC Social Charter 766

Bruce, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1112–3
Oral question time intervention (18.11.97) 144, (27.11.97) 1073
Rescue services (26.11.97) 889, 894, 898, 900–2, 908
Rescue services, Points of order (17.11.97) 79
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1209
Questions
Fiscal policy 1078
Higher education 30–1w
HM Coastguard, Manpower 335–6w
Ministerial policy advisors, Conflict of interests 408w
Nigeria, Democracy 474w
Prime Minister 408w
Student loans 362w
Teachers, Pay 32–3w
Tourism, Northern Ireland 580–1w

Bruce, Mr Malcolm
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1108–9
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 784
Public service (17.11.97) 72
Questions
Civil servants' visits abroad, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 12–3w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Dept for International Development 446w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Dept of Social Security 443–4w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 395w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Treasury 113–4w
Contingency Reserve 111w
Disposable income 256w
Inflation 1077–8
Millennium compliance, Treasury 110w
Ministerial policy advisors 472–3w
Ministers' visits abroad, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 78w, 242w
Ministers' visits abroad, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 382w
Ministers' visits abroad, Dept for Education and Employment 158w
Ministers' visits abroad, Dept of Trade and Industry 104–5w
Ministers' visits abroad, Ministry of Defence 559–60w
Ministers' visits abroad, Northern Ireland Office 379w
Ministers' visits abroad, Prime Minister 267w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 636w
NHS finance, Scotland 501w
NHS finance, Wales 503w
Official hospitality, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 13–4w
Official hospitality, Dept for International Development 494w
Official hospitality, Dept of Health 320w
Official hospitality, Dept of Social Security 442–4w
Official hospitality, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 2w
Official hospitality, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 394–5w
Official hospitality, Scottish Office 627w
Official hospitality, Treasury 112–4w
Public expenditure 18w
Publicity, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 14w

Bruce, Mr Malcolm—continued
Publicity, Dept of Health 175–6w
Publicity, Dept of Social Security 443w
Publicity, Dept of Trade and Industry 413–5w
Publicity, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 395–6w, 618–9w
Publicity, Treasury 113–4w
Taxation 255–6w

Bruton dam
411w

Buck, Ms Karen
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 996–1000, 1003, 1009
Questions
EC Education Council 486–7w
Education action zones 697w
Housing benefits 224–5w
Housing benefits, Children 224w
Housing benefits, Greater London 222–4w

Budget
Environmental audit 469w

Building alterations
VAT 469w

Building regulations
626w

Buildings
Ministry of Defence 602w

Burden, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 817–8, 824–32, 865, 867
Questions
Smoke alarms, Council housing 623–4w

Burglary
Sentencing 618, 624–5

Burgon, Mr Colin
Questions
Police, Northern Ireland 380w

Burma
Human rights 481w
Prisoners of war 243w

Burnett, Mr John
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 538, 566, 575–8
Public service (17.11.97) 37
University finance (19.11.97) 268
Questions
Housing benefits 445–6w
NHS finance 430w
Small claims 377w

Burns, Mr Simon
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 220–4, 233–4, 236
Questions
Availability for work 536–7w
Child Support Agency 533w
Disability living allowance 538w
Income support 535w
Indonesia, Foreign policy 474w
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust, Hospital waiting lists 429w
New deal for lone parents 10–1
Official engagements 139w
Pensions review 539w
Pensions review, Christmas bonus 537w
Public service 242w
Road traffic 128w
Social security reform, Wisconsin 538–9w
Welfare to work, Chronically sick 535w
Welfare to work, Handicapped 535w

Burstow, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 472
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 652–3, 691–2, 694–5, 697
Public service (17.11.97) 25, 55–9
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 331–2
Questions
British Rail, Planning obligations 129w
Building regulations 626w
Children in care, Task forces 407w, 596w
Community care, Judgments 596w
Community Care (Direct Payments) Act 1996 519w
Computers in National Health Service 60w
Concessionary television licences, Blind 180w
Criminal proceedings, Mentally disadvantaged 628
Day care of children 671w
Disability Discrimination Act 1995 164w
Disabled workers, USA 160–1w
General practitioners, Nursing homes 425w
General practitioners, Pay 60w
Greater London Authority, Referendums 465w
Health authorities, Contracts 343w
Health authorities, Finance 651w
Home care services 656w
Incapacity benefit, Employment 567w
Incontinence 172–3w
Industrial injuries 1w
Local government finance 137–8, 464w
Local government functions 624–5w
Long-Term Care Charter 686–7w
Long-Term Care Royal Commission 687w
NHS finance 343w
NHS finance, Weather 343–4w
Paedophilia, Rehabilitation of offenders 656w
Pensioners, Income support 85w
Pharmacists, Community health services 649w
Political refugees, Government grants to local authorities 173–4w
Political refugees, Local government expenditure 173–4w
Prescriptions, Elderly 61w
Public telecommunications systems, Deaf 52w
Residential care, Drugs 60w
Residential care, Sedatives and hypnotics 59–60w
Social security 139w
Treasury, Reviews 406–7w
Wheelchair Working Group 200w

Bus lanes
368w
Prosecutions 368w
Road traffic offences 437–8w

Bus services
691–3w

Bus services subsidies
692w

Buses
Parking 369–70w

Business
EC action 52–3w
Economic and monetary union 459w, 657w, 1087–8
Economic policy 661w
Environment protection 135–6, 760–1
Higher education 33–4w
Public telecommunications systems 573–4w

Business motions
Scottish Grand Committee (21.11.97) 606

Business statements
(20.11.97) 464–73, (27.11.97) 1117–28

Byers, Mr Stephen, Minister for School Standards, Dept for Education and Employment
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 70–3
Questions
Class sizes, Primary education 155w
Education action zones 697w
Educational finance 487w, 697–8w
"Excellence in Schools White Paper" 29–30w
Grammar schools, School admission 492w
Playing fields, Land acquisition 161–2w
School buildings 365–6w
School buildings, Leicestershire 698w
Teachers, Pay 32–3w
Teachers, Vacancies 339w

C130 aircraft
64w
Employment opportunities 64w

Cabinet committees
269w

Cabinet Office
Treaty of Amsterdam 250w

Cable, Mr Vincent
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 688–9, 726–7
Port of London Authority, Moorings (24.11.97) 747–50
Questions
Science and technology research 281w

Caborn,Mr Richard, Minister for the Regions Regeneration and Planning, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions
Questions
EC institutions, Economic regions 297w
EC regional policy, Local authorities 303w
"Household Growth Consultation Paper" 200w
Housing construction, Land pollution 121w
Planning permission 121w
Regional development agencies 124w, 132–3
Regional government 123w
Regional government, North West region 133
Shopping centres, Planning permission 335w
Supermarkets, Planning permission 461w
Urban areas, Greenwich 334w

Cambridge University
Cost per student 338w
Higher education admission 363–4w, 590w
University finance 33w

Cameras
Speed limits 129w

Campbell, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 508–10
Questions
Museums and galleries, Government grants 322–4w

Campbell, Mrs Anne
Debates etc.
Plant Varieties Bill, Lords amendments (26.11.97) 1051–2, 1054

Campbell, Mrs Anne—continued
University finance (19.11.97) 265, 267–71, 276
Questions
Agricultural production, Disclosure of information 116w
Commuters 136
Land pollution 116w

Campbell, Jason
Prisoners' transfers 75–6w, 273w, 676w

Campbell, Mr Menzies
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1137
Public service (17.11.97) 40–1
Questions
Japan, Economic situation 758
Middle East, Terrorism 150–1
Mines 561w
Mines, Treaties 398–9w

Campbell, Mr Ronnie
Debates etc
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1102
Questions
Housing construction, Urban areas 306w

Campbell-Savours, Mr Dale
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 809
Oral question time intervention (27.11.97) 1074
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 797
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 92, 109, 113–7
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1243
Questions
Beaufort Dyke, Radioactive waste disposal 409–10w
Interest rates 659w
Jobseeker's allowance 82w
Special constables 622–3
Terrorism 151–2

Canada
Greenhouse effect 195w
Ministers' visits abroad 767–8

Canary Wharf
International conferences 270w, 408w

Canavan, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1123
Questions
Civil service, Industrial relations 236w
Departmental responsibilities, Scotland 283w
Northern Ireland government 578w

Cancer
see (also) Breast cancer, Lung cancer

Cancer
425–6w
Belfast City Hospital 637w
Meat 517–9w
Medical treatments 637w

Cannabis
Medical treatments 596w

Capital
Companies 54w

Capital punishment
Treaty of Amsterdam 247w

Caplin, Mr Ivor
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 159

Caplin, Mr Ivor—continued
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1249
Questions
Animal Procedures Committee, Open government 310
Economic and monetary union, Business 657w
Financial services, Regulatory systems 333w
Insurance, Regulatory systems 661–2w
Israel 475w

Car boot sales
50w

Carbon dioxide
Air pollution control 134, 134w, 135, 295w, 755
Climate Change Convention 369w

Cardiff Bay Development Corporation
Urban development grants 640w

Carriage by Air Acts (Application of Provisions) (Fourth Amendment) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(25.11.97) 878

Carrington Moss
Manchester United Football Club 336w, 376w, 407–8w

Cars
144

Casale, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1134, 1146, 1165
Questions
Integrated schools, Northern Ireland 583w

Cash, Mr William
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 916
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1138, 1141–2, 1144–9, 1155, 1188
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 806–7

Castington Young Offender Institution
216–7w

Catering
Prisons 609w

Caton, Mr Martin
Questions
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review 323

Cattle
524w
Data banks 584w
Transport of animals 277w, 279w, 523–4w

Causeway Hospital
962–3

Cawsey, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 461
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 855–9
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1220
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1103

Cellular phones
Electronic surveillance 441w
Road safety 305–6w

CELTEC
639w
Subsidiary companies 639–40w

Central Africa
EC external relations 399w
Refugees 399w

Central Europe
EC enlargement 679w
Export promotion 436–7, 477w

Chairman of Committee of the Whole House
Debates etc.
Amendments and new clauses (19.11.97) 346, 387, 423–4, (24.11.97) 647, 695, 703, 716, (27.11.97) 1129
Conduct of proceedings (19.11.97) 346, 358, 362, 372, 376–7, 389–90, 392, 395, 414, (24.11.97) 706, 734, (27.11.97) 1144, 1167

Challenger tanks
72w

Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster
Electronic mail 389–90w
Ministers' visits abroad 78w, 242w
Press releases 250–1w
Public appointments 669w

Chancellor of the Exchequer
see Treasury

Channel tunnel
Railway network 126w
West coast railway line 555w

Chapman, Mr Ben
Questions
Local broadcasting, Television reception 457w
Radio frequencies 443

Chapman, Sir Sydney,
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 678
Questions
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 134–5
EC common foreign and security policy, UK contributions to EC budget 476w
Electoral register 617
Interest rates 659w
Metropolitan Police, Manpower 432w
Social security benefits, Telephone services 82–3w
Teachers, Vacancies 339w

Charities
1080
Airport tax 257w
Intellectual property 614w
Shops 1079
Taxation 230w, 660w, 1079–80

Chartermark scheme
NHS trusts 237w

Chatham Dockyard
Radiation hazards 497w, 562w, 694w

Chechnya
Kidnapping 11w

Chemical weapons
72w
Health hazards 147–8w, 310w

Chequers
270w

Chidgey, Mr David
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1128
Questions
Charities, Intellectual property 614w
Chartermark scheme, NHS trusts 237w
Funerals, Consumer protection 191–2w

Chidgey, Mr David—continued
Mortuary, Contracts for services 192w, 344w

Child benefit
533–4w

Child care
361w
Training 587w

Child health
Lead pollution 686w

Child Support Agency
14, 289–90w, 532–3w
Administrative delays 86–7w
Appeals 442w
Manpower 87–8w

Children
Disability living allowance 665–6w
Evidence 606w
Housing benefits 224w
Maintenance 14, 17–8, 80w, 442w, 532–3w
Personal injury 326w
Road accidents 195w
Road safety 137–8w, 372w
Sexual offences 606w
Smoking 264w
Trading standards 282w

Children in care
174–5w
Court orders 592w
Scotland 184w
Staffordshire 591–3w
Task forces 407w, 596w
West Midlands 591–3w

Children's rights
612–3w

China
Barrages 10w
Foreign relations 477w
Police 177w
Prisoners 11w

Chinook helicopters
Air safety 152–3w
Aircraft engines 151–2w
Computers 69w

Chiropodists
26–7w
Northern Ireland 28w

Chiropody
26–8w
Scotland 73–5w

Chisholm, Mr Malcolm, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Scottish Office
Questions
Educational finance, Argyll and Bute 262w
Forestry Commission, Land acquisition 142–5w
Local Government Act 1988 (Competition) (Scotland) Regulations 1997 145w
Local government finance, Scotland 677w
Montserrat, Refugees 262w
Roads, Scotland 145w
Scottish Environment Protection Agency, Finance 147w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Scottish Office 263w
Uniform business rate, Scotland 75w

Chlorofluorocarbons
Medical equipment 316w, 345w

Chope, Mr Christopher
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1115

Chope, Mr Christopher*—*continued
Questions
Employment opportunities, Lone parents 6–7
Incapacity benefit 968
New deal for lone parents 6–7
Road construction 142

Christianity
Millennium Exhibition 388w

Christmas bonus
571w
Pensions review 5, 537w

Christmas Island
Nuclear weapons tests 64–5w

Chronic fatigue syndrome
141w
Medical research 684w
Northern Ireland 271–2w

Chronically sick
Welfare to work 535w

Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons (Amendment) Bill (HL) 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Church buildings
Listed buildings 259w

Citizens' advice bureaux
11–2

Citizen's Charter
238w, 313–4
Expenditure 471–2w

Civil Aviation Authority
128w

Civil Contingencies Unit
16–7w

Civil Evidence (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(27.11.97) 1189

Civil proceedings
(21.11.97) 531–606
Legal costs 254w
Northern Ireland (27.11.97) 1189

Civil servants
Political impartiality 236–7w, 553w
Social security benefits 328w

Civil servants' visits abroad
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 12–3w
Dept for International Development 446w
Dept of Social Security 443–4w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 395w
Treasury 113–4w

Civil service
Handicapped 236w
Industrial relations 236w
Public expenditure 240w

Civil service manpower
Scotland 240–1w
VAT registration 467–8w

Civil service recruitment
15w

Clapham, Mr Michael
Questions
Asbestos, Industrial health and safety 324–5
Asbestosis, Death 231–4w
Bronchitis, Coal mining 568w
Mesothelioma, Death 203–10w

Clappison, Mr James
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 864–8
Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL), Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1033–4
Questions
Closed circuit television, Finance 541w
Cold weather payments 79w
Drug crimes, Prisoners' release 620
Electronic tagging, Prisoners' release 440w, 608w
Sexual offences, Sentencing 608–9w

Clark, Rt Hon Alan
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 359–60
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 202–5
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1200, 1225–7

Clark, Rt Hon Dr David, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster
Debates etc.
Millennium compliance, Ministerial statements (27.11.97) 1104–16
Questions
Animal Procedures Committee, Open government 310
Civil servants, Political impartiality 236–7w
Civil service, Public expenditure 240w
Civil service manpower, Scotland 240–1w
Compliance cost assessments 90w
Electronic government 239–40w
Electronic mail, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 389–90w
Food Standards Agency 239w
Government 311–2
Government departments, Internet 390w
Lords Lieutenant, Ethnic minorities 323w
Ministerial policy advisors 237w, 317, 472–3w
Ministers, Electronic mail 312
Ministers' visits abroad, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 78w, 242w
Non-departmental public bodies 238w, 316
Non-departmental public bodies, Disclosure of information 238–9w, 315–6
Non-departmental public bodies, Local government 314–5
Non-departmental public bodies, Open government 314
Non-departmental public bodies, Public appointments 314
Open government 239w, 309, 315, 317
Open government, Contracts for services 309–10
Open government, Expenditure 78w
Open government, Fees and charges 316
Open government, Ministers' visits abroad 310
Press releases, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 250–1w
Press releases, Internet 241w
Public appointments, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 669w
Public service 240w, 242w
Public service, Local government 238w
Referendums 315
Scottish Parliament, Open government 309
Sex discrimination, Judgments 186–7w

Clark, Dr Michael
Questions
Air traffic, Greater London 296–7w
Social security, EC countries 13

Clark, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 251–4
Maiden speech (19.11.97) 251–4

Clarke, Mr Charles
Questions
Japan, Foreign policy 757–8
Public appointments, Non-departmental public bodies 115w

Clarke, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 921–2
Questions
Compost 621w
Drugs and crime 619

Clarke, Rt Hon Kenneth
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 785–6

Clarke, Rt Hon Tom, Minister for Film and Tourism, Dept for Culture Media and Sport
Questions
Electronic mail, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 383w
Film distribution 11–2w
Film industry 11w, 90–1w
Foreign tourists 387–8w
Foreign tourists, Economic and monetary union 387w
Hotels 91w
Tourist industry 385w
Tourist industry, East Midlands 258w

Class sizes
967–8
Primary education 155w

Clergy
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 498–9w

Clifton-Brown, Mr Geoffrey
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 738, 740–1, 744
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1247
Questions
Armed forces education allowances 149–51w
Industrial research 283w
Legislation, Dept of Social Security 527w
London Underground, Fares 140
Non-departmental public bodies, Public appointments 314

Climate Change Convention
122w, (19.11.97) 239–59, 294w, 464w, 556w, 754–5
Carbon dioxide 369w

Clinical audit
342w

Closed circuit television
630–1
Finance 541w, 631

Clothing
Lord Chancellor's Dept 226w

Clwyd, Ann
Debates etc.
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 335
Questions
BBC 259w
Central Europe, EC enlargement 679w
Church buildings, Listed buildings 259w

Clwyd, Ann—continued
Defence equipment, Exhibitions 482w, 496w
Defence Export Services Organisation 69w
Defence land, Exhibitions 68w
Economic and monetary union, Interest rates 659w
Electronic surveillance, Cellular phones 441w
Export licensing, Statistics 345–6w
NATO 678–9w
NATO, Gibraltar 679–80w
NATO, Russia 679w
War crimes 769
Welsh Development Agency, Arms exports 23w

Clydach Hospital
Injuries 263w

Coaker Mr Vernon
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 45–6
Questions
Council house rents 557w
Government 312
Local government services, Best value 123–4w
Pensions review 8

Coal
47–9w
Electricity generation 345w, 510w

Coal Authority
48w

Coal consumption
419–20w

Coal mine closures
447–8, 514w
Privatisation 446–7

Coal mining
54w, 134, 447, (26.11.97) 910–31
Bronchitis 568w
Emphysema 568w
Museums and galleries 510w
Privatisation 447
Production 419–20w
Property transfer 48w
Standard spending assessments 138–9
Wales 638w

Coastal protection
Waveney 668w

Cohen, Mr Harry
Questions
Bosnia-Herzegovina, Armed forces 66w
Chemical weapons 72w
Defence industries, Diversification 147w
Health services, Greater London 3w
RAF Wittering, Air accidents 70

Coinage
Forgery 332–3w

Colchester
Army bases 67w

Cold weather payments
79w, 535–6w
Administrative costs 571–2w
Bristol 139–40w
Expenditure 663w

Coleraine
Police stations 483w

Collins, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Tobacco advertising, Points of order (17.11.97) 20
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1228

Collins, Mr Tim—continued
Questions
British Indian Ocean Territory, Mineral resources 10w
Lake Windermere, Water sports 381–2w
Myelography, Medical records 307w
Pension Provision Group 8

Colman, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1021
Questions
Northern Ireland government 957

Colvin, Mr Michael
Questions
Retirement pensions, British residents abroad 569–70w

Com(97)564
(27.11.97) 1189

Commemorative coins
550w

Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy
Publications 517–9w

Committee on Standards in Public Life
34–5w

Common agricultural policy
770
UK contributions to EC budget 115w

Common fisheries policy
279w

Commonwealth
Republic of Ireland 761

Commonwealth Development Corporation
448w
External financing limits 280w

Community care
Gloucestershire 596w
Judgments 596w

Community Care (Direct Payments) Act 1996
Questions
519w

Community Care (Residential Accommodation) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R* (28.11.97) 1272

Community health services
Pharmacists 649w

Community hospitals
Norfolk 174w, 316–7w

Commuters
136

Companies
Capital 54w
Home Office exports initiative 42–3w
Know-how Fund 55w

Companies (Millennium Computer Compliance) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Company liquidations
Tax collection 256w

Company taxation
54w

Competition
284w, 449–50
Pay television 181w
Small businesses 450

Competition Bill (HL) 1997/98
Questions
107w, 416w, 449–50

Complaints against police
98w
Metropolitan Police 215w

Compliance cost assessments
90w
EC Environment Council 623w

Composition labelling
Animal feed 21w, 120w

Compost
621w

Computer storage
156w

Computers
Chinook helicopters 69w

Computers in National Health Service
60w

Concessionary fares
146
London Underground 146

Concessionary television licences
Blind 180w

Conditional fee agreements
55–6w, 226w

Confectionery
VAT 234w

Conflict of interests
Ministerial policy advisors 408w
Ministers 269–70w, 429–30w, 444–5, 514w, 603w

Connarty, Mr Michael
Questions
Australia, Ethnic groups 476w
Employment, Northern Ireland 581–2w
Regional development agencies 132

Construction
Greenbelt 460w
Prisons 35–6w, 613w, 670w

Consumer protection
Funerals 191–2w

Contingency Reserve
111w

Contracts
Health authorities 343w
MI5 101w

Contracts for services
Counselling 344w
Local government services 123–4w, 336–8w
Mortuary 192w, 344w
Open government 309–10
Scotland 145w

Contracts of employment
Higher education teachers 185–6w
Ministerial policy advisors 237w

Convention on Human Rights and Biomedicine
574w

Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species
Elephants 372w

Convictions
Scotland 502w

Conwy
School admission 504w
Secondary education 504w

Cook, Rt Hon Robin, Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs*
Questions
Alcoholic drinks duties, EC action 762–3
Arms exports, Export licensing 763
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 755
Climate Change Convention 754–5
EC grants and loans, Small businesses 765
EC labour policy 764–6
Export promotion 762–3
Gibraltar, Foreign policy 763–4
Gibraltar, Free movement of people 764
Intelligence services, Drug crimes 400w
Iraq, Foreign policy 768–9
Israel, Foreign policy 759
Israel, Peace negotiations 759–60
Lockerbie, Bombings 766–7
MI6 103–4w
Middle East, Peace negotiations 760
Telecommunications technology, Privacy 399w
Treaty of Amsterdam 754
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC immigration 753
Treaty of Amsterdam, Gibraltar 753–4
UN Special Commission on Iraq 769
War crimes 769
Youth unemployment 765

Cooper, Ms Yvette
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 926–7
Questions
Empty housing, Government departments 304–6w

Coordinated Universal Time Bill (HL) 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1272

Corbett, Mr Robin
Debates etc.
Members' conduct, Points of order (26.11.97) 973–4
Questions
Defence land, Fox hunting 499w
Defence land, Foxes 499w, 602w
Kashmir, Foreign policy 768

Corbyn, Mr Jeremy
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 539, 544–5, 547, 564
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 247
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 361–2
Questions
Antarctic Treaty 547w
Armed forces deployment, Turkey 564w
Breast cancer, Screening 519–20w
Climate Change Convention 556w
Cold weather payments 535–6w
Cold weather payments, Administrative costs 571–2w
Egypt, Tourists 546w
Emergency services, Greater London 521–2w
Hospital waiting lists, Elderly 520–1w
Iraq 546w
Jobseeker's allowance 82w
Jobseeker's allowance, Social security appeals 82w
Kurds 546w
Kurds, Armed conflict 615w
NHS, Age discrimination 520w
Pensioners, Heating 536w
Pensions 538w
Pensions review 536w
Pinochet, Augusto 615w

Corbyn, Mr Jeremy—continued*
Pinochet, Augusto, Official visits 542w
Sinn Fein 584w
Social services 538w
Treaty on European Union 547w
Western Sahara 544–5w
Western Sahara, Refugees 551–2w

Cormack, Sir Patrick
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1118–9
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 117–8

Cornwall
EC grants and loans 448–9
Health services 62–3w
NHS (26.11.97) 932–40

Corporation tax
1070–1, 1086

Corruption
Members 433w

Corston, Jean
Questions
Income support, Handicapped 225–6w
Invalid care allowances, Social security claims 529w
Malaria, Drug side effects 311w
Malaria, Drugs 516w

Cosmetics
Animal experiments 217w

Cost per student
Cambridge University 338w
Oxford University 338w

"Cost-effectiveness of the Regional Trauma System in the North-West Midlands"
425w

Cotter, Mr Brian
Questions
Dept of Trade and Industry, Private finance initiative 511w
Economic and monetary union 47w

Council for Catholic Maintained Schools
27–8w

Council house rents
557w

Council house sales
House renovation grants 137w

Council house waiting lists
298w

Council housing
Smoke alarms 623–4w

Council of Europe
UK delegations 408w

Council of Ministers
Voting methods 260w, 397w

Council tax
689–90w

Council Tax Benefit (General) Amendment Regulations 1997
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 467

Council tax exemptions
Families 622–3w

Counselling
Contracts for services 344w
Family practitioner services 341w

Countryside
Housing construction 132

Court orders
Children in care 592w

Court rules and procedures
EC law 56–7w

Courts
Costs 253–4w, 673w
Dorset 254w

Courts martial
67w
Appeals 68w, 149w

Cousins, Mr Jim
Questions
Income support, Mortgages 570w
Lone parents 80–1w
Museums and galleries, Tyne and Wear 258w
Open government 239w
Pensioners, Means tested benefits 570w
Population, Newcastle upon Tyne 297w

Cox, Mr Tom
Questions
Indian subcontinent, Entry clearances 478–9w
Pakistan, Entry clearances 478w
Trade union membership 194w

Cranston, Mr Ross
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 458
Questions
Official secrets, Hong Kong 250w

Crash helmets
Cycling 135w

Creative Industries Task Force
13w

Crime
454w
Rural areas 245–6w, 334–5w

Crime and Disorder Bill (HL) 1997/98
Questions
431–2w, 434–5w

Crime and Punishment (Scotland) Act 1997
Questions
676w

Crime prevention
Armed forces cadets 455w
Expenditure 246w
Local government functions 669w

Crime (Sentences) Act 1997
Questions
451w, 676w

Crime victims
432w, 623–4
Domestic violence 624

Crimes of violence
214–5w
Sentencing 608–9w
Terrorism 483w

Criminal injuries compensation scheme
432–3w, 625

Criminal investigation
Fletcher, Yvonne 441w

Criminal Justice Act 1961
Questions
676w

Criminal proceedings
Administrative delays 432w
Mentally disadvantaged 628

Crop spraying
Complaints 525w
Sulphuric acid 525w

Crown Prosecution Service
617–8, 667w

Cryer, Mrs Ann
Questions
Bombings, African National Congress 609w
Extradition, South Africa 542w

Cunliffe, Mr Lawrence
Questions
Child Support Agency 14
European Communities 757
Regional government, North West region 133

Cunningham, Mr Jim
Questions
Citizen's Charter 238w
Day care of children 967
Manufacturing industries 53w
Regional government 123w
Sexual offences 36–7w

Cunningham, Rt Hon Dr John, Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food
Questions
Agricultural policy, EC presidency 21w, 356w
Agricultural subsidies 356w
Animal quarantine 22–3w
Beef, Quality control 229w
Beef premiums, Costs 278w
Cattle, Transport of animals 277w, 523–4w
Dairy farming, Agricultural subsidies 275w
EC Agriculture Council 276–7w
Fishing catches 348–54w
Fishing catches, EC action 22w
Food composition 523w
Food standards 640w
Food standards, Public opinion 640w
Food Standards Agency 22w
Hill livestock allowances, Compensation 22w
Milk, Pasteurisation 21–2w, 355–6w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 523w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Advisory services 522w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, EC action 523w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Relocation of employees 22w
Sheep premiums 356w
Untreated milk 522–3w

Cunningham, Ms Roseanna
Questions
Broadcasting engineering, Scotland 457w
Convictions, Scotland 502w
National Transcommunications 457w
Police, World Cup 628w
Scottish Environment Protection Agency, Finance 147w
Scottish Land Reform Policy Group, Public appointments 146–7w
World Cup Coordination Group 613–4w

Currency movements
358–9w

Curriculum
European Communities 31w

Curry, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 837–42, 869
Questions
A65, Private finance initiative 460–1w
European Parliament elections, Ballot papers 606–7w
European Parliament elections, Electorate 607w

Curtis-Thomas, Ms Claire
Questions
Prisoners' home leave 606w
Young offender institutions 216w
Young offenders, Prison population 216w

Customs
Information technology 112w
Treaty of Amsterdam 674w

Cycleways
Wales 189w

Cycling
Crash helmets 135w

Dafis, Mr Cynog
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 246
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 795
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1209, 1263
Questions
Air pollution, Urban areas 201w
Budget, Environmental audit 469w
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 295w
Child health, Lead pollution 686w
Climate Change Convention 122w
Environment protection, Local government functions 463w
Greenhouse effect, Canada 195w
Millennium Exhibition, Christianity 388w
Nuclear power 573w
Tipping of waste 198w
Training, EC grants and loans 163–4w

Dairy farming
Agricultural subsidies 275w

Dairy Products (Hygiene) Regulations 1995
Questions
642w

Dalai Lama
480w

Dale, Philip
458w

Dalyell, Mr Tam
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1124
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1114–5
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 639
Iraq, Points of order (19.11.97) 341
Questions
Army in Northern Ireland, Prisoners 581w
Departmental responsibilities, Scotland 138w
Drug abuse, Scotland 101–2w
Fletcher, Yvonne, Criminal investigation 441w
Genetic engineering, Medical ethics 119–20w
Iraq 605w
Iraq, Armed forces deployment 406w
Iraq, Foreign policy 323
Iraq, Radio programmes 219–20w
Locate in Scotland 105w
Lockerbie, Bombings 766–7
Public expenditure, Scotland 1080
Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists 141–2w

Dance
456w
Student grants 92w, 156w

Darling, Mr Alistair, Chief Secretary to the Treasury
Questions
British Aerospace, Government assistance 359w
Contingency Reserve 111w
Economic policy 1072
Financial services, Regulatory systems 657w, 660w
Fiscal policy 1078
Inflation 1077–8
Minimum wage 1083–4
National Asset Register 359–60w
Occupational pensions 1073–4
Pay 1078–9
Public expenditure 18w, 1081
Public expenditure, Devolution 1080–1
Public expenditure, Inflation 660w
Public expenditure, Reviews 656–7w
Public expenditure, Scotland 1080
Revenue support grant 1080

Data banks
Cattle 584w

Davey, Mr Edward
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 406–8, (24.11.97) 704–5, 708–10
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 159
Questions
Ministerial policy advisors 472w
"New Leadership for London" 374w

Davey, Mrs Valerie
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 51–2

Davidson, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 161
Questions
Auxiliary oiler replenishment vessels 65–6w

Davies, Rt Hon Denzil
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1133, 1149–54

Davies, Mr Geraint
Questions
Loan guarantee scheme 48w

Davies, Mr Quentin
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 84, 104–5, 114–5, 117
Questions
Economic and monetary union, Interest rates 1076

Davies, Rt Hon Ron, Secretary of State for Wales
Debates etc.
Government of Wales Bill, 1R (26.11.97) 975
Questions
British Aerospace, Government assistance 381w
Bureaucracy, Wales 263–4w
Cardiff Bay Development Corporation, Urban development grants 640w
EC institutions, Wales 504w
Electronic mail, Welsh Office 108w
Labour Party, Finance 506w
National Assembly of Wales 187w, 506w
National Assembly of Wales, Parliamentary buildings 683w
Open government, Welsh Office 264w
Press releases, Welsh Office 189w

Davies, Rt Hon Ron—continued*
Public appointments, Welsh Office 681–2w
Public utilities, Regional selective assistance 640w
Revenue support grant, Wales 683w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Welsh Office 265w

Davis, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 474–82
Questions
Local government pensions 85w

Davis, Mr Terry
Questions
Council of Europe, UK delegations 408w

Dawson, Mr Hilton
Debates etc.
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 333–4
Questions
Children in care 174–5w
Further education, Educational finance 366w
Public transport, Rural areas 222w
Road safety, Children 137–8w
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review 344w
Working hours, EC law 53w

Day care of children
163w, 671w, 967
Lone parents 10, 81w
New deal for lone parents 81w
Vetting 971–2

Deaf
Driving instruction 553w
Public telecommunications systems 52w

Death
Army in Northern Ireland 966
Asbestosis 231–4w
Hospital waiting lists 427w
Lung cancer 203–10w
Mesothelioma 203–10w
Portadown 633–4w

Debts
648w
Iraq 346–7w

Decommissioning International Commission
see Independent International Commission on Decommissioning

Defence equipment
Exhibitions 227w, 482w, 496w
Export credit guarantees 645w

Defence Evaluation and Research Agency
Animal experiments 228–9w
Defence review 153w, 390–1w
Science parks 390w

Defence expenditure
70w
Armed forces cadets 391–2w, 561w

Defence Export Services Organisation
69w

Defence industries
Diversification 147w

Defence land
Exhibitions 68w
Fox hunting 153–4w, 393w, 499w, 602w
Foxes 499w, 602w
Hunting 67w

Defence procurement
Future large aircraft 64w

Defence research
Genetically modified organisms 601–2w
Genetics 243–4w

Defence review
70–1w, 499–500w, 694w, 769–70
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency 153w, 390–1w

Defence Transport and Movements Executive
Performance standards 694–5w

Degrees
34w

Democracy
Nigeria 474w

Democratic Republic of the Congo
UN resolutions 398w

Demonstrations
Northern Ireland 580w

Denham, Mr John, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of Social Security*
Questions
Availability for work 536–7w
Benefit Fraud Inspectorate, Publications 328w
Bronchitis, Coal mining 568w
Child benefit 533–4w
Christmas bonus 571w
Cold weather payments 79w, 535–6w
Cold weather payments, Administrative costs 571–2w
Cold weather payments, Bristol 139–40w
Cold weather payments, Expenditure 663w
Disability living allowance 141w, 538w, 675w
Disability living allowance, Children 665–6w
Disability living allowance, Elderly 666w
Elderly, Heating 84–5w
Greenhouse effect, Dept of Social Security 528–9w
Handicapped, Loans 291–2w
Incapacity benefit, Welfare to work 529–30w
Industrial injuries disablement benefit 530–2w, 568w, 665w
Invalid care allowances, Social security claims 529w
Legislation, Dept of Social Security 527w
Local exchange and trading schemes, Earnings rules 140w
Local government pensions 85w
Members' correspondence 292w
Motability 567–8w
National insurance contributions, Actors 294w
Official engagements 139w
Pension funds 537–8w
Pension funds, Scotland 9
Pension Provision Group 8
Pension rights 8–9
Pension rights, Women 9–10
Pensioners, Heating 536w
Pensioners, Income support 5, 85w
Pensioners, Means tested benefits 570w
Pensioners, Social security claims 9
Pensions 4–5, 84w, 538–9w
Pensions, Divorce settlements 17, 83w, 86w
Pensions, Information services 84w
Pensions review 8, 85–6w, 536w, 539w
Pensions review, Christmas bonus 5, 537w
Reduced earnings allowance, Wales 564–5w
Retirement pensions 4, 15
Retirement pensions, Age addition 571w

Denham, Mr John—continued*
Retirement pensions, British residents abroad 569–70w
Self-employed, Maternity benefits 569w
Sickness benefits 674–5w
Social security abuse 79–80w
Social security abuse, Departmental coordination 666w
Social security reform 528w
Statutory sick pay, Earnings limits 675w
Taxable benefits 565–6w
War pensions, Medical examinations 566–7w
Welfare to work, Chronically sick 535w
Welfare to work, Handicapped 535w

Dental services
423w
Mercury 648w

Dentures
Young people 341–2w

Departmental coordination
Foreign investment in UK 281w
Mental illness 428w
Social security abuse 666w

Departmental correspondence
General practitioners 425w

Departmental responsibilities
Food Standards Agency 668w
Gas fired power stations 420w
Scotland 138w, 283w
World Bank 177w
Xenotransplantation 270–1w

Deportation
214w

Dept for Culture Media and Sport
Civil servants' visits abroad 12–3w
Electronic mail 383w
Ministers' visits abroad 382w
Official hospitality 13–4w
Open government 458w
Press releases 383w
Publicity 14w

Dept for Education and Employment
Developing countries trade 158w
Greenhouse effect 155w
Ministers' visits abroad 158w
Public expenditure 588–90w

Dept for International Development
Civil servants' visits abroad 446w
Greenhouse effect 279–80w
Official hospitality 494w
Technology foresight programme 493–4w

Dept for the Environment Transport and the Regions
see Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions

Dept of Health
Electronic mail 516–7w
Greenhouse effect 310w
Ministerial policy advisors 311w
Official engagements 317w
Official hospitality 320w
Open government 313w
Press releases 314w
Publicity 175–6w
Technology foresight programme 595–6w

Dept of Social Security
Civil servants' visits abroad 443–4w
Greenhouse effect 528–9w
Legislation 527w
Official hospitality 442–4w
Press releases 532w
Publicity 443w
Reviews 406–7w

Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions
Developing countries trade 552w
Electronic mail 130–1w
Official hospitality 2w, 10w
Open government 334w
Press releases 200–1w
Public appointments 460w
Technology foresight programme 554–5w

Dept of Trade and Industry
Ministerial duties 645–7w
Ministers' visits abroad 104–5w
Oral questions 603w
Parliamentary questions 420w
Press releases 107w
Private finance initiative 511w
Publicity 413–5w
Treaty of Amsterdam 647w

Deregulation initiative
Northern Ireland (19.11.97) 426, 579w

Deregulation (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(19.11.97) 426

Detection rates
92–3w, 97w

DETR
see Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions

Developing countries trade
Dept for Education and Employment 158w
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 552w
Home Office 46w
Ministry of Defence 227w
Northern Ireland Office 582w
President of the Council 108–9w

Development aid
Human rights 495w

Development areas
572w

Development plans
690w
Water supply 198w

Devolution
Public expenditure 1080–1
Scotland 325w

Devon and Cornwall Constabulary
437w

Devonport Dockyard
Radiation hazards 562w

Dewar, Rt Hon Donald, Secretary of State for Scotland*
Questions
Campbell, Jason, Prisoners' transfers 75–6w, 676w
Children in care, Scotland 184w
EC institutions, Scotland 501w
Non-departmental public bodies, Manpower 422–4w
Official hospitality, Scottish Office 627w
Open government, Scottish Office 420–1w
Press releases, Scottish Office 421w
Road accidents, Scotland 501w
Scottish Land Reform Policy Group, Public appointments 146–7w
Water pollution, Scotland 183–4w

Diabetes
Driving 325
Driving licences 603–4w
EC law 325
Insulin (20.11.97) 524–30
Medical research 312w

Diaries
Prime Minister 271w

Dietary supplements
641–2w

Digital broadcasting
Regulatory systems 14–5w

Digital television
Gaelic language 263w

Diplomatic service
Private education 10w

Dir64/433/EEC
273–5w

Dir75/268/EEC
275w

Dir77/388/EEC
234w

Dir90/220/EEC
8w

Dir92/43/EEC
459w

Dir93/104/EC
53w

Directors
Housing Corporation 376–8w

Disability Discrimination Act 1995
Questions
164w, 677–8w

Disability living allowance
141w, 538w, 675w
Children 665–6w
Elderly 666w

Disabled workers
USA 160–1w

Disaster relief
Somalia 178–9w, 450w
Vietnam 179w

Discrimination
Northern Ireland 963
Treaty of Amsterdam 220–1w

Disease control
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 524–5w, 663w, (26.11.97) 1058–68

Dismore, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 595–8
Questions
Criminal injuries compensation scheme 432–3w, 625
Disability Discrimination Act 1995 677–8w
Industrial injuries disablement benefit 530–2w, 568w, 665w
Israel, Foreign policy 759
Smoking related diseases, Costs 309w

Disposable income
256w
Interest rates 659w

Divorce
Information services 251–3w
Welsh language 252w

Divorce settlements
Pensions 17, 83w, 86w

Dobson, Rt Hon Frank, Secretary of State for Health*
Debates etc.
House of Commons procedure, Points of order (19.11.97) 339–40
Prime Minister's questions, Points of order (19.11.97) 340–1
Public service (17.11.97) 29–36, 43, 51–2

Dobson, Rt Hon Frank—continued*
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review, Ministerial statements (19.11.97) 327–38
Questions
Jowell, Tessa 429–30w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 344w, 424w

Doctors
NHS Pensions Agency 308–9w

Dogs
Animal breeding 439w

Domestic electrical appliances
Retail prices 418w, 450–1
Retail trade 285w, 417–8w

Domestic energy conservation
136–7w

Domestic gas appliances
Gas safety 189–90w

Domestic violence
Crime victims 624
Judges 83–4w
Social security 528w

Dorneywood
115w, 236w

Dorset
Courts 254w

Double Taxation Relief (Taxes on Income) (Falkland Islands) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(27.11.97) 1069

Double Taxation Relief (Taxes on Income) (Lesotho) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(27.11.97) 1069

Double Taxation Relief (Taxes on Income) (Malaysia) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(27.11.97) 1069

Double Taxation Relief (Taxes on Income) (Singapore) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(27.11.97) 1069

Dounreay
Food contamination (18.11.97) 218
Radiation hazards 325w, 629w

Downe Hospital
961

D'Oyly Carte
Finance 324

Drama education
456w
Student grants 92w, 156w

Drew, Mr David
Debates etc.
Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, Disease control (26.11.97) 1059
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 835–7, 850, 859
Smallholdings, Local government land (26.11.97) 941–5

Drinking and driving
440w, 627w

Driving
Diabetes 325

Driving and Diabetes Advisory Panel
Public appointments 373–4w

Driving instruction
Deaf 553w

Driving licences
Diabetes 603–4w
Medical examinations 466w
Northern Ireland 213w
Pensioners 294–5w

Driving offences
Punishment 245w

Driving tests
EC action 127–8w

Droughts
Nature conservation 459w

Drown, Ms Julia
Debates etc.
Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, Disease control (26.11.97) 1060
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1203
Questions
Export Forum Working Group 756

Drug abuse
(19.11.97) 427–34
Medical treatments 650w
Prisoners 217w
Scotland 101–2w
Young people 650w

Drug crimes
Intelligence services 400w
Prisoners' release 620

Drug prevention initiative
248w

Drug side effects
Malaria 311w

Drugs
Malaria 516w
Residential care 60w

Drugs and crime
435–6w, 619–20
Young people 620

Dry stone walls
557w

Dubai
Prisoners 475w

Dublin
Bombings 109–10w

Duncan, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 922–5

Duncan Smith, Mr Iain
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 420
Questions
Incapacity benefit, Welfare to work 529–30w
New deal for lone parents 7–8, 540w
Pensions 539w
Retirement pensions 15
Social security reform 567w

Dunwoody, Mrs Gwyneth
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1121
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 804, 811, 822
Rescue services (26.11.97) 894–6
Questions
Access business initiative 239w
Airports 691w
Locomotives 144–5
Manufacturing industries, EC action 445–6
Motor vehicles, Inspections 454w, 553w
Political refugees, Ferries 615–6
Road accidents 462w

Dunwoody, Mrs Gwyneth—continued*
Social security benefits, Advisory services 12
Transport, Regulatory systems 693w
Vehicle number plates 554w

Duty free allowances
EC action 673w
Scotch Whisky Association 282w

Eagle, Angela, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions*
Questions
Air pollution, Urban areas 201w
Air pollution control 299w
Beaches, EC law 131w, 462w
Biocidal products, EC law 366–7w
Chlorofluorocarbons, Medical equipment 345w
Climate Change Convention 122w, 294w, 556w
Compost 621w
Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, Elephants 372w
Developing countries trade, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 552w
Domestic energy conservation 136–7w
Dry stone walls 557w
EC Committee of the Regions, Public appointments 374w
EC grants and loans, Northern region 372w
Electronic mail, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 130–1w
Energy Saving Trust 199–200w
English Partnerships, Investment 370–1w
Enterprise zones 554w
Environment Agency, Termination of employment 554w
Environment protection, Local government functions 463w
Environment protection, Public participation 334w
Environment protection, South Downs 373w
Environmental Information Regulations 1992 5–6w
Genetically modified organisms 7–8w, 373w, 465–6w
Genetically modified organisms, EC law 8w
Greenhouse effect, Canada 195w
Hedgerows Regulations 1997 338w
Hormones, Health hazards 134w
Industrial injuries 1w
Land pollution 301–2w
Mesothelioma, Death 203–10w
National parks 123w
Nature conservation, Droughts 459w
Nature conservation, Water supply industry 459w
Official hospitality, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 2w, 10w
Offshore safety 294w
Open government, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 334w
Press releases, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 200–1w
Public appointments, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 460w
Public footpaths 133w
Publicity, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 618–9w
Radioactive waste disposal 202–3w
Rural areas, Crime 334–5w
Rural areas, Statistics 366w

Eagle, Angela—continued*
Sea pollution 462w
Sewage, Sea pollution 131w
Sewage, Water treatment 133w
Sewers 335w
Single regeneration budget, West Midlands 299–302w
Sites of special scientific interest 2w
Sustainable development 6w
Technology foresight programme, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 554–5w
Tipping of waste 198w, 626w
Trees, Acid rain 370w
Trees, Air pollution 6–7w
Waste disposal 5w
Water and sewerage companies 4–5w
Water and sewerage companies, Planning permission 303w
Water pollution, Garages and petrol stations 125–6w
Water supply 133w, 198w, 336w
Water supply, Development plans 198w
Wood, Health hazards 3–4w, 131–2w

Eagle, Maria
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 505–8
Rescue services (26.11.97) 902
Questions
Electronic government 239–40w
Public opinion 968

Early retirement
NHS pensions 307–8w

Earnings limits
Statutory sick pay 675w

Earnings rules
Local exchange and trading schemes 140w

Earnings top-up
140w

East Lancashire Health Authority
Kidney patients 309w

East Midlands
Tourist industry 258w

East Timor
EC aid 178w
EC external relations 480w
Human rights 480w
Indonesia 178w
Overseas aid 178w

Eastern Europe
Export promotion 477w
Overseas students 607–8w

EC accession
Turkey 221–2w

EC action
Alcoholic drinks duties 762–3
Business 52–3w
Driving tests 127–8w
Duty free allowances 673w
Fishing catches 22w
Food standards (27.11.97) 1189
Frontiers 43–4w, 260w, 396–7w
Manufacturing industries 445–6
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 523w
Tax harmonisation (27.11.97) 1189
Taxation 234–5w
Telephone tapping 39–40w
Tipping of waste (25.11.97) 878
Transmissible encephalopathies (25.11.97) 878
Unemployment 322

EC Agriculture Council
276–7w

EC aid
East Timor 178w
Organisation of African Unity 397–8w

EC budget
674w, (25.11.97) 878

EC Budget Council
674w

EC Committee of the Regions
Public appointments 374w

EC common foreign and security policy
402–3w
UK contributions to EC budget 476w

EC Cons Doc 8150/97
(27.11.97) 1189

EC Cons Doc 8386/97
(27.11.97) 1189

EC Cons Doc 10153/97
(25.11.97) 878

EC Cons Doc 10427/97
(27.11.97) 1189

EC countries
Retail trade 450
Social security 13

EC Culture Council
548–9w

EC defence policy
481w

EC Draft 6692/97
(25.11.97) 878

EC Draft 10040/97
(25.11.97) 878

EC Draft 10510/97
(26.11.97) 1031

EC Education Council
486–7w

EC enlargement
260w, 477w
Central Europe 679w
Economic and monetary union 400w
Western European Union 401w

EC Environment Council
199w
Compliance cost assessments 623w

EC external relations
Central Africa 399w
East Timor 480w
Human rights 476w
Iraq 402w
Kaliningrad 679w
Mediterranean region 402w

EC external trade
Protectionism 436

EC Finance Council
549–50w
Economic and monetary union 357–8w

EC Foreign Affairs Council
615–7w

EC grants and loans
220w, 960–1
Cornwall 448–9
Industrial investment 449
Northern Ireland 959–60
Northern region 372w
Regional aid (19.11.97) 284–91
Small businesses 765
Training 163–4w

EC immigration
547w
Treaty of Amsterdam 753

EC institutions
Economic regions 297w
Scotland 501w
Wales 504w

EC integration
Treaty on European Union 476–7w

EC internal relations
770–2

EC internal trade
Harmonisation of legislation 510w

EC labour policy
(24.11.97) 633–45, 764–6
Treaties 404w
Treaty of Amsterdam 255w, 284w

EC law
321w
Beaches 131w, 462w
Biocidal products 366–7w
Court rules and procedures 56–7w
Diabetes 325
Genetically modified organisms 8w
Nature conservation 459w
Working hours 53w, 439–40

EC presidency
Aerospace industry 283–4w
Agricultural policy 21w, 356w

EC regional policy
Local authorities 303w

EC Research Council
506–7w

EC Social Charter
324–5w, 766
EC staff 618w
Treaty of Amsterdam 403–4w

EC staff
EC Social Charter 618w
Pension rights 547–8w

EC Youth Council
186w

ECOFIN
see EC Finance Council

Economic and monetary union
18w, 47w, 189w, 284w, 329–30w, 357–8w, 658w, 1085
Business 459w, 657w, 1087–8
Costs 1077
EC enlargement 400w
EC Finance Council 357–8w
European Central Bank 357w
Exchange rate mechanism 330w
Exchange rates 330w, 658w
Foreign tourists 387w
Information 757
Interest rates 659w, 1074–6
Legislation 357w

Economic cooperation
European Communities 400–1w

Economic policy
1072, 1074, 1082
Business 661w
Ministerial statements (25.11.97) 773–98

Economic regions
EC institutions 297w

Economic situation
Air transport 625w
Japan 758
South East Asia 1083

Education
Armed forces officers 392w

Education action zones
697w

Educational assessment
Costs 492w

Educational finance
160w, 487w, 697–8w, 968
Argyll and Bute 261–2w
Further education 264w, 366w, 421–2w, 578w
Wales 24–6w

Educational institutions
Smoking 162w

Edwards, Mr Huw
Questions
Freight transport, Wales 127w
Government 311
Young offenders, Parents 434w

Efford, Mr Clive
Questions
Neighbourhood nuisance 431w

Egypt
Terrorism 149–54
Tourists 546w

El Salvador
Foreign policy 398w
Overseas aid 447w

Elderly
Disability living allowance 666w
Heating 84–5w
Hospital waiting lists 520–1w
Norfolk 256–7w
Prescriptions 61w
Right to buy 8–9w

Election administration
Hong Kong 482w
Northern Ireland 956

Election observers
Kenya 90w

Election offences
Northern Ireland 956

Electoral register
616–7

Electoral systems
European Parliament elections 433w

Electorate
European Parliament elections 607w

Electricity generation
Coal 345w, 510w

Electricity meters
Post offices 53w, 284w

Electronic government
239–40w

Electronic mail
Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 389–90w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 383w
Dept of Health 516–7w
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 130–1w
Home Office 37w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 56w
Ministers 267w, 312
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 273w
Ministry of Defence 229w
Northern Ireland Office 582w
Treasury 331w
Welsh Office 108w

Electronic surveillance
99w
Cellular phones 441w
Members 17–8w

Electronic tagging
440w, 630
Norfolk 35w
Prisoners' release 440w, 608w

Elephants
Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species 372w

Ellman, Mrs Louise
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1174–7
Public service (17.11.97) 56–7, 67
Questions
Famine, Northern Ireland 957
World Bank, Departmental responsibilities 177w

Emergency services
Greater London 521–2w
Telephone systems 46–7w

Emery, Rt Hon Sir Peter
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 790
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1264
Questions
Housing construction 132

Emphysema
Coal mining 568w

Employment
Incapacity benefit 567w
Northern Ireland 579w, 581–2w
Rural areas 185w

Employment discrimination
Industrial tribunals 107w

Employment opportunities
C130 aircraft 64w
Foreign investment in UK 192–4w
Lone parents 6–7

Employment protection
Age discrimination 363–5w

Employment Service
Performance standards 164–70w
Retirement age 487–8w

Employment Service local offices
Grays 534w

Empty housing
622w, 624w
Government departments 304–6w
Shops 687–8w

Empty property
Offices 374–5w

Energy conservation
52w
NHS 342–3w

Energy Saving Trust
199–200w

Engineers
Army 244–5w

English Partnerships
Investment 370–1w

Ennis, Mr Jeff
Debates etc.
Regional aid, EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 284–7
Questions
Maintenance, Children 442w

Enterprise zones
554w

Entry clearances
Indian subcontinent 478–9w
Pakistan 478w, 681w

Environment
Disclosure of information 5–6w

Environment Agency
17w
Termination of employment 554w

Environment protection
Agricultural land 229–30w
Business 135–6, 760–1
Foreign policy 760
Local government functions 463w
Oil companies 135–6
Public participation 334w
South Downs 373w
Taxation 136

Environment Transport and Regional Affairs Select Committee
(17.11.97) 121

Environmental audit
Budget 469w

Environmental Audit Select Committee
(17.11.97) 121

Environmental Information Regulations 1992
Questions
5–6w

Equal opportunities
Armed forces 69w
House of Commons Commission 327w

Essex
Health services (18.11.97) 220–38

Etherington, Bill
Questions
Hedgerows Regulations 1997 338w
Museums and galleries, Tyne and Wear 258w
NHS complaints 59w

Ethnic groups
Australia 476w
Brazil 261w

Ethnic minorities
Lords Lieutenant 323w

Ethnic monitoring
Planning authorities 197–8w

EURATOM
347w

Euro
54w, 332w, 658w
British dependent territories 614w

European Central Bank
549w
Economic and monetary union 357w
Public appointments 331w, 469w

European Communities
see (also) EC headings

European Communities
757
Curriculum 31w
Economic cooperation 400–1w
Information 756–7
Treaties 479w

European Communities (Amendment) Act 1993
Questions
357w

European Communities (Amendment) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
Com (27.11.97) 1129–89

European Convention on Human Rights
435w, 626–8
Prisoners' rights 627

European Council
618w
Ministerial statements (24.11.97) 633–45

European Court of Justice
44–5w
Judgments 32w

European fighter aircraft
243w, 694w

European Parliament elections
Ballot papers 606–7w
Electoral systems 433w
Electorate 607w
Gibraltar 680w, 763–4

European Parliamentary Elections Act 1978
Questions
680w

European Parliamentary Elections Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R and Money res* (25.11.97) 803–77
Questions
433w

European Police Office
Immunity from prosecution 453w

European works councils
325w

EUROPOL
see European Police Office

Evans, Mr Nigel
Debates etc.
Welsh Assembly, Points of order (25.11.97) 799
Questions
Elderly, Heating 84–5w
Foreign investment in UK 282w
Foreign investment in UK, Northern Ireland 581w
Higher education, Wales 503–4w
Planning permission 121w
Pre-school education, Wales 637–8w
Secondary education, Conwy 504w
Students, Wales 577w

Evidence
Children 606w

Ewing, Mrs Margaret
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1123–4
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 641
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 815–7, 841, 843–5
Questions
Public expenditure 1081
Scotch Whisky Association, Duty free allowances 282w
Uniform business rate, Scotland 75w

"Excellence in Schools White Paper"
29–30w

Exchange rate mechanism
Economic and monetary union 330w

Exchange rates
Economic and monetary union 330w, 658w
Export promotion 436

Exhaust emission controls
136–7

Exhibitions
Defence equipment 227w, 482w, 496w
Defence land 68w

Export Control Organisation
Administrative delays 513–4w

Export Control Organisation—continued*
Performance standards 513w

Export credit guarantees
552w
Defence equipment 645w
Expenditure 511w

Export Forum Working Group
756

Export licensing
416w, 512–3w, 645w
Arms exports 763
Statistics 345–6w

Export of live animals
Animal welfare 116–7w
Pigs 117w

Export promotion
102w, 452, 762–3
Central Europe 436–7, 477w
Eastern Europe 477w
Exchange rates 436
Small businesses 435

Exports
Blood 311w
Torture 480w

External financing limits
Commonwealth Development Corporation 280w

External Frontiers Convention
43–4w

Extradition
South Africa 542w

Eyre Working Group
see Royal Opera House and English National Opera Working Group

Faber, Mr David
Questions
Treaty of Amsterdam 754

Fabricant, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 470–1
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1199
Questions
Canada, Ministers' visits abroad 767–8
Citizen's Charter, Expenditure 471–2w
Israel, Peace negotiations 759–60
Minimum wage 440

Faithfull Foundation
656w

Fallon, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 925–8, 930
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 645
Intervention during questions after statement (27.11.97) 1107
Questions
Egypt, Terrorism 151
Fossil fuel levy 417w
Minimum wage 441
Political refugees, Kent 616
Social security payments 83w

Families
Council tax exemptions 622–3w

Family credit
140–1w
Taxpayers 445w

Family Law Act 1996
Questions
251–3w

Family planning
313w

Family practitioner services
Counselling 341w

Famine
Northern Ireland 957

Fares
London Underground 140
VAT 468w

Farm incomes
Hill farming 115–6w

"Farm Incomes in the United Kingdom 1996/97"
115–6w

Farmers
Hunting 118w
Northern Ireland 485w
Surveys 118–9w
Wales 501w

Fatchett, Mr Derek, Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office*
Questions
Afghanistan, Arms embargoes 681w
Algeria, Human rights 221w, 481w
Armed forces training, Military aid 482w
Asia-Europe Summit, Human rights 479w
Australia, Ethnic groups 476w
Burma, Human rights 481w
Business, Environment protection 760–1
Canada, Ministers' visits abroad 767–8
China, Barrages 10w
China, Foreign relations 477w
China, Prisoners 11w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 395w
Dalai Lama 480w
Dubai, Prisoners 475w
East Timor, EC external relations 480w
East Timor, Human rights 480w
EC defence policy 481w
Egypt, Tourists 546w
Euro, British dependent territories 614w
Export Forum Working Group 756
Export promotion 102w
Fazal-Ur-Rahman, Visas 543w
Foreign investment in UK 758–9
Foreign policy, Environment protection 760
Hong Kong, Human rights 482w
Human rights 476w
Human rights, EC external relations 476w
Immigration applications, Genetics 544w
India, British embassies 102w
India, Human rights 11w
India, Immigration applications 761
India, Temporary immigrants 102w
Indian subcontinent, Entry clearances 478–9w
Indonesia, Arms trade 103w
Indonesia, Foreign policy 474w
Iraq 546w
Iraq, Radio programmes 219–20w
Israel 475w
Japan, Economic situation 758
Japan, Foreign policy 757–8
Kashmir, Foreign policy 474w, 768
Kurds 546w
Migration and Visa Correspondence Unit, Administrative delays 479w
Millennium compliance 401w
NATO 678–9w
NATO, Russia 679w
Nigeria, Democracy 474w
Nuclear weapons 760
Official hospitality, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 394–5w
Open government, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 220w
Overseas aid, Police training 543–4w

Fatchett, Mr Derek—continued*
Pakistan, Entry clearances 478w, 681w
Press releases, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 220w
Public appointments, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 678w
Publicity, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 395–6w
Sri Lanka, Foreign policy 768
Torture, Exports 480w
Treaty on European Union 547w
Tunisia, Human rights 482w
United Nations, Iraq 475w
Visas 477–8w
Western Sahara 544–5w

Fazal-Ur-Rahman
Visas 543w

Fearn, Mr Ronnie
Questions
Beaches, EC law 462w
Buses, Parking 369–70w
Foreign tourists 387–8w
Foreign tourists, Economic and monetary union 387w
Greenbelt, Construction 460w
Road accidents 619w
Sea pollution 462w
Trees, Acid rain 370w

Female circumcision
Members' correspondence 687w

Ferries
Political refugees 615–6
Strangford Lough 210–1w

Fertility
316w

Field, Rt Hon Frank, Minister of State, Dept of Social Security*
Questions
Civil servants' visits abroad, Dept of Social Security 443–4w
Green papers, Disclosure of information 86w
Lone parents, Day care of children 10
Lone parents, Social security benefits reductions 10
Maintenance, Children 80w
Means tested benefits 16
New deal for lone parents 10–1
Official hospitality, Dept of Social Security 442–4w
Press releases, Dept of Social Security 532w
Publicity, Dept of Social Security 443w
Social security 80w, 139w
Social security, EC countries 13
Social security reform 567w

Film distribution
11–2w

Film industry
11w, 90–1w, 409w, 671w

Financial services
Regulatory systems 333w, 657w, 660w

Financial Services Act 1986 (Extension of Scope of Act) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(18.11.97) 218

Financial Services Authority
466w
Costs 467w
Scotland 467w

Fire prevention
622w
Legislation 609–10w

Fire resistant materials
Armed forces uniforms 497w

Firearms
Compensation 41w, 542–3w
Police 41–2w

Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997
Questions
542–3w

Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
Royal Assent (27.11.97) 1088
Questions
41w

Fires
Wales 265–8w

Fireworks
Safety 47–8w, 190w

Fireworks Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R* (28.11.97) 1272

Fiscal policy
1078

Fisher, Mr Mark, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept for Culture Media and Sport*
Questions
Advertising 12w
Broadcasting engineering, Scotland 457w
Concessionary television licences, Blind 180w
Digital broadcasting, Regulatory systems 14–5w
Digital television, Gaelic language 263w
Drama education 456w
EC Culture Council 548–9w
Local broadcasting, Television reception 457w
Museums and galleries, Government grants 322–4w
Museums and galleries, Metropolitan counties 548w
Museums and galleries, Tyne and Wear 258w
National Transcommunications 457w
Pay television, Competition 181w
Royal Opera House and English National Opera Working Group 179–80w
Rugby, Television programmes 258w
Sports, Broadcast journalism 180w
Sports, Radio 180w

Fishing catches
348–54w
EC action 22w

Fishing quotas
259–60w, 396w

Fishing vessels
Multiannual guidance programme 584–5w
Shipping safety 127w, 371–2w

Fishing Vessels (Decommissioning) Scheme 1997
Questions
276w

Fitzpatrick, Jim
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 995, 1012–3, 1022
Questions
Civil servants, Political impartiality 553w
El Salvador, Foreign policy 398w
El Salvador, Overseas aid 447w
General Certificate of Secondary Education 162w
Northern Ireland government 578–9w
River Thames, Water transport 375–6w

Fitzpatrick, Jim—continued*
Student Loans Company, Annual reports 164w
Teachers, Performance appraisal 363w
Welfare to work 659–60w

Flags
Armagh and Dungannon Health and Social Services Trust 272w
Ministry of Defence 603w

Fletcher, Yvonne
766–7
Criminal investigation 441w

Flight, Mr Howard
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1160, 1176
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 362, 376–7
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 796
University finance (19.11.97) 272, 275–6
Questions
Ambulance services, Hoaxes and false alarms 595w
Child Support Agency 289–90w
Kaliningrad, EC external relations 679w
Nurses, Professional qualifications 594–5w
Pension funds, Advance corporation tax 111w
Pensioners, Annuities 111w
Sussex Ambulance Service, Pension funds 648w

Flint, Caroline
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 929
Hunting, Public petitions (28.11.97) 1197–8
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 796
Questions
Coal 47–9w
Export promotion 102w
Sites of special scientific interest 2w

Flintshire
Quarrying 187–9w
Schools 578w

Flood control
Somerset 411w
Standard spending assessments 121–2w

Fluoridation
Research 423–4w

Flynn, Paul
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1227–9
Questions
Animal feed, Composition labelling 120w
Chequers 270w
Debts, Iraq 346–7w
Dorneywood 115w, 236w
Export credit guarantees, Defence equipment 645w
Export credit guarantees, Expenditure 511w
Innovation, Wales 108w
Ostriches, Slaughterhouses 120–1w
Rough sleepers initiative, Government buildings 136w
Royal yacht 154w

Follett, Barbara
Questions
Trade competitiveness 280w

Food
Pesticide residues 20w

Food composition
523w

Food contamination
Dounreay (18.11.97) 218

Food imports
576w

Food industry
668w

Food labelling
Genetically modified organisms 20w, 524w

Food poisoning
596w

Food Protection (Emergency Prohibitions) (Dounreay Nuclear Establishment) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(18.11.97) 218

Food standards
640w
EC action (27.11.97) 1189
Public opinion 640w

Food Standards Agency
22w, 239w, 668w, 687w
Departmental responsibilities 668w

Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Civil servants' visits abroad 395w
Official hospitality 394–5w
Open government 220w
Press releases 220w
Public appointments 678w
Public relations 260w
Publicity 395–6w, 618–9w

Foreign investment in UK
49–50w, 106–7w, 282w, 758–9
Departmental coordination 281w
Employment opportunities 192–4w
Northern Ireland 581w

Foreign policy
El Salvador 398w
Environment protection 760
Gibraltar 763–4
Indonesia 474w
Iraq 323, 768–9
Israel 759
Japan 757–8
Kashmir 474w, 768
Republic of Ireland 761
Sri Lanka 768

Foreign relations
China 477w

Foreign tourists
387–8w
Economic and monetary union 387w

Forestry Commission
Land acquisition 142–5w, 273w

Forgery
Bank notes 332–3w
Coinage 332–3w

Forsythe, Mr Clifford
Questions
Election administration, Northern Ireland 956

Forth, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 468
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 642
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 347–8, 356–9, 383, 388–9, 391, 393, 408–12, (24.11.97) 706, 709–10, 712–3, 734–7
Point of order intervention (19.11.97) 342
Questions
Degrees 34w

Forth, Mr Eric—continued*
London Underground, Acton 128w
Minimum wage 1084

Fossil fuel levy
417w

Foster, Rt Hon Derek
Questions
EC labour policy 765–6

Foster, Mr Don
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 38, 65–70
Questions
Educational assessment, Costs 492w
"Excellence in Schools White Paper" 29–30w
General Certificate of Secondary Education 162w
Grammar schools, School admission 492w
Higher education administration, Scotland 73w
Selective schools 490–1w

Foster, Mr Michael, (Hastings and Rye)*
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 592–5
Maiden speech (21.11.97) 592–5

Foster, Mr Michael John, (Worcester)*
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1199–210

Foulkes, Mr George, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development*
Questions
Brazil, Ethnic groups 261w
El Salvador, Overseas aid 447w
Greenhouse effect, Dept for International Development 279–80w
Iraq, Mines 447–8w
Kenya, Election observers 90w
Kenya, Overseas aid 89w
Know-how Fund, Companies 55w
Know-how Fund, Finance 55w
World Bank, Departmental responsibilities 177w

Fowler, Rt Hon Sir Norman
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 394–8, 416–9, (24.11.97) 659–61, 670, 678–9, 681, 721–3
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 981–2, 985–90, 994, 1023
Questions
Local government pensions 138
Railway transport, Finance 141

Fox, Dr Liam
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 469, (27.11.97) 1123
Rescue services (26.11.97) 898, 903, 906, 908–9
Questions
Currency movements 358–9w

Fox hunting
Defence land 153–4w, 393w, 499w, 602w

Foxes
Defence land 499w, 602w

France
388w
Interest rates 332w
Lorry drivers 129w

Fraud
Training 156w

Free movement of people
Gibraltar 764

Freight transport
Wales 127w

Frontiers
EC action 43–4w, 260w, 396–7w

Fruit juices
Israel 643w

Funerals
Consumer protection 191–2w
Princess of Wales, 407w

Further education
161w
Educational finance 264w, 366w, 421–2w, 578w
Wales 264w, 503–4w

Further education colleges
(21.11.97) 607–14

Future large aircraft
64w
Defence procurement 64w

Fyfe, Maria
Questions
Burma, Human rights 481w
Genetically modified organisms, Food labelling 524w
Genetically modified organisms, Novel foods 524w
Know-how Fund, Companies 55w
Know-how Fund, Finance 55w
Pre-school education, Scotland 628w

Gaelic language
Digital television 263w

Galbraith, Mr Sam, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Scottish Office*
Questions
Chiropody, Scotland 73–5w
Drug abuse, Scotland 101–2w
Home care services, Scotland 629w
Hospital consultants, Vacancies 181–3w
Milk, Scotland 77w
NHS finance, Scotland 501w
Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists 141–2w

Gale, Mr Roger
Questions
Armed forces training, University Air Squadron 602w
Duty free allowances, EC action 673w

Gapes, Mr Mike
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1130, 1135, 1159–64, 1184
Questions
Egypt, Terrorism 153
Pensions 964
Refugees, Montserrat 159w

Garages and petrol stations
Water pollution 125–6w

Gardiner, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
Merchant ships (17.11.97) 125
Questions
Competition, Small businesses 450

Garnier, Mr Edward
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 537, 542–4, 547–62

Garnier, Mr Edward—continued*
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1202, 1204, 1267
Questions
Conditional fee agreements 55–6w
Legal aid scheme 254w
Political parties, Finance 405w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 268w
Travelling people, Police powers 626

Gas fired power stations
Departmental responsibilities 420w

Gas safety
Domestic gas appliances 189–90w

Gas supply industry
Northern Ireland 213w

Gaul
see Mr Gaul

General Certificate of Secondary Education
162w

General Lighthouse Authorities (Beacons Maritime Differential Correction Systems) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(18.11.97) 218

General practitioners
see (also) GP fundholders

General practitioners
340w
Departmental correspondence 425w
Nursing homes 425w
Pay 60w

Genetic engineering
Medical ethics 119–20w

Genetically modified organisms
7–8w, 373w, 465–6w
Defence research 601–2w
EC law 8w
Food labelling 20w, 524w
Novel foods 524w
Soya beans 20w

Genetically Modified Organisms (Deliberate Release) Regulations 1992
Questions
7–8w

Genetics
Defence research 243–4w
Immigration applications 544w
Patents 105–6w

George, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
National Health Service (Equity of Funding) Bill, 1R (18.11.97) 165–7
Public service (17.11.97) 33
Rescue services, Points or order (19.11.97) 342
Questions
EC grants and loans, Cornwall 448–9

George, Mr Bruce
Questions
Armed forces, Telephones 498w
Armed forces uniforms, Fire resistant materials 497w
Defence review 499–500w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 498w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Armed forces medical services 498w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Clergy 498–9w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Hospital consultants 520w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Telephones 497–8w

George, Mr Bruce*—*continued
Yugoslavia, Overseas aid 494–5w

Germany
Interest rates 332w
Ministers' visits abroad 291w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 321w

Gerrard, Mr Neil
Questions
Non-departmental public bodies, Disclosure of information 315–6
Social security abuse 79–80w

"Getting To Grips With Crime"
669w

Gibb, Mr Nick
Debates etc.
Intervention during questions after statement (24.11.97) 638
Questions
European Communities, Information 756–7
Family credit, Taxpayers 445w
Income tax, Marginal tax rates 468w
Jobseeker's allowance 225w
Tax and Benefits Task Force 358w
Tax credits, USA 111w
Taxation, EC action 234–5w

Gibraltar
481–2w
European Parliament elections 680w, 763–4
Foreign policy 763–4
Free movement of people 764
NATO 679–80w
Official residences 562–3w
Treaty of Amsterdam 753–4
Western European Union 397w

Gibraltar airport
Air traffic 482w
Landing rights 397w

Gibson, Dr Ian
Debates etc.
University finance (19.11.97) 273
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1244–6
Questions
Biotechnology, Patents 412w
Electronic tagging, Norfolk 35w
Iraq, Foreign policy 768–9
Members, Corruption 433w
Road safety, Cellular phones 305–6w

Gill, Mr Christopher
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1142, 1157–8, 1164–7, 1171
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 808, 810, 813, 849–50
Questions
Animal welfare, Slaughterhouses 119w
Cattle 524w
Economic and monetary union, EC enlargement 400w
Euro, British dependent territories 614w
Gibraltar 481–2w
Gibraltar airport, Air traffic 482w
Kidderminster Hospital 593–4w
Kidderminster Hospital, Accident and emergency departments 594w
Kidderminster Hospital, Capital investment 594w
Kidderminster Hospital, Health service staff 648–9w
NATO, Spain 221w
NHS trusts, Shropshire 520w
Referendums 315
Ritual slaughter 524w

Gill, Mr Christopher*—*continued
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 324

Gillan, Mrs Cheryl
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1105–7
Questions
Access Business Group 323–4w
Armed forces women 393w
Child care 361w
Debts 648w
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail prices 450–1
European Court of Justice, Judgments 32w
Home Office exports initiative, Companies 42–3w
Insurance premium tax 235w
Minister for Women 292–4w
Monopolies and Mergers Commission, Travel agents 52w
Pay television, Competition 181w
Pension rights, Women 9–10
Sex discrimination, Judgments 186–7w
Space technology 287–8w
Telephone services 107–8w
Training, Child care 587w

Glass
Public houses 247w

Gloucestershire
Community care 596w

Godman, Dr Norman A
Debates etc.
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents (25.11.97) 884
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 170, 176, 191–2, 214
Questions
Cold weather payments 79w
Fishing vessels, Shipping safety 127w, 371–2w
NHS, Northern Ireland 962
Nuclear disarmament 398w

Goggins, Mr Paul
Questions
Fireworks, Safety 47–8w
Small businesses, Export promotion 435

Golding, Mrs Llin
Debates etc.
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 332–3
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1208–9, 1219–21
Questions
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review 314w

Goodlad, Rt Hon Sir Alastair
Questions
Aid financed trade 448w
Bosnia-Herzegovina, Overseas aid 493w
Commonwealth Development Corporation 448w
Export credit guarantees 552w
Mines, Bomb disposal 493w
Mixed credits 448w
Multinational companies, Codes of practice 644w
Overseas aid, Audit 644w
Somalia, Disaster relief 450w
World Bank 552w
Zambia, Human rights 450w
Zambia, Overseas aid 449w
Zimbabwe, Land acquisition 449w
Zimbabwe, Public order 448w

Gorman, Mrs Teresa
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 243–7
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 367–8, 373, 375–6, 392
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 100
Questions
EC Finance Council, Economic and monetary union 357–8w
EC institutions, Scotland 501w
EC institutions, Wales 504w
Euro 332w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office, Public relations 260w
Residential care of children 313
Schengen Agreement 396w

Gorrie, Mr Donald
Questions
Social security benefits, Advisory services 12–3
Tuition fees, Scotland 422w

Gosport
Property transfer 564w

Government
311–2

Government bills
550–1w

Government buildings
Homelessness 136w
Rough sleepers initiative 136w

Government departments
Billing 662–3w
Empty housing 304–6w
Internet 390w

Government grants to local authorities
Political refugees 173–4w
Transport 128w

Government information services
237w, 310–1, 604w

Government of Wales Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
1R (26.11.97) 975
Business questions (27.11.97) 1120, 1125, 1127

Government research establishments
Redundancy 586–7w

Government securities
(18.11.97) 218

GP fundholders
Finance 428–9w, 654–5w
NHS internal market 428w

Grammar schools
School admission 492w

Gray, Mr James
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1201, 1206, 1233, 1235, 1246, 1256, 1262–3
Questions
Agricultural development programme, Tax allowances 281w
Armed forces training, Land use 394w
Closed circuit television, Finance 631
Defence land, Fox hunting 153–4w, 393w, 602w
Defence review 769–70
Ministerial policy advisors 237w
Radio frequencies 443

Grays
Employment Service local offices 534w

Greater London
Air traffic 296–7w
Emergency services 521–2w
Health services 174w, 343w
Housing benefits 222–4w
Local government 4w
Ministers' domestic visits 597–8w
Teachers 339w

Greater London Authority
Referendums 465w

Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
Com (19.11.97) 346–426, (24.11.97) 647–746
3R (26.11.97) 979–1031

Green, Mr Damian
Questions
Algeria, Human rights 221w
Judges 627

Green papers
Disclosure of information 86w

Greenbelt
124w
Construction 460w

Greenhouse effect
Agricultural production 117w
Canada 195w
Dept for Education and Employment 155w
Dept for International Development 279–80w
Dept of Health 310w
Dept of Social Security 528–9w
Health hazards 59w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 117–8w
Ministry of Defence 69–70w
Northern Ireland Office 26w
Treasury 111–2w

Greenway, Mr John
Questions
Farmers, Surveys 118–9w
Inflation 660w
Police, Finance 623

Greenwich
Urban areas 334w

Grieve, Mr Dominic
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 537, 543–4, 553, 567
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 396
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1265

Griffiths, Jane
Questions
River Thames, River crossings 127w

Griffiths, Mr Nigel, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Debates etc.
Regional aid, EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 287–91
Questions
Car boot sales 50w
Competition 449–50
Competition, Small businesses 450
Competition Bill (HL) 1997/98 107w
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail prices 450–1
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail trade 285w
Domestic gas appliances, Gas safety 189–90w

Griffiths, Mr Nigel—continued*
Export promotion 452
Fireworks, Safety 47–8w, 190w
Funerals, Consumer protection 191–2w
Lasers 515w
Lasers, Product safety 644–5w
Monitor Consultancy 511–2w
Mortuary, Contracts for services 192w
P and O, Sealink 450
Press releases, Dept of Trade and Industry 107w
Retail trade, EC countries 450
Small businesses, Advisory services 282w
Trade competitiveness 280w
Trading standards, Children 282w

Griffiths, Mr Win, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Welsh Office*
Debates etc.
Petrol, Pollution (19.11.97) 295–8
Questions
Artificial Limb and Appliance Service Wales, Wheelchairs 682–3w
Beef, Wales 639w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Wales 502w
Clydach Hospital, Injuries 263w
Farmers, Wales 501w
Health service staff, Wales 682w
Hill livestock allowances, Wales 25w
Joint replacements, Wales 380w
Neighbourhood nuisance, Wales 638–9w
NHS finance, Wales 24w, 503w
NHS trusts, Wales 24w
Quarrying, Flintshire 187–9w
Quarrying, Wales 189w
Ritalin, Vale of Glamorgan 682w
Smoking, Children 264w

Grocott, Mr Bruce
Questions
Railway network 147–8

Grogan, Mr John
Questions
Coal mining, Production 419–20w

Gulf War
see Iraq–Kuwait conflict

Gulf War syndrome
227w
Disclosure of information 496w
Medical research 496w

Gummer, Rt Hon John
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1217–9
Questions
Political parties, Finance 269w, 289w

Gunnell, Mr John
Questions
UK membership of EC 1070

Habitual residence test
527w

Hague, Rt Hon William,
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 635–7
Questions
Handicap benefits 964–6
Labour Party, Finance 319–21

Hain, Mr Peter, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Welsh Office*
Questions
Average earnings, Wales 682w
CELTEC 639w
CELTEC, Subsidiary companies 639–40w
Coal mining, Wales 638w

Hain, Mr Peter—continued*
Cycleways, Wales 189w
Educational finance, Wales 24–6w
Further education, Educational finance 264w, 578w
Higher education, Wales 503–4w
Innovation, Wales 108w
North East Wales Institute of Higher Education 578w
Pre-school education, Wales 637–8w
Schools, Flintshire 578w
Secondary education, Conwy 504w
Students, Wales 577w
Training and enterprise councils, Finance 188w
University finance, Wales 381w, 505–6w
Welfare to work, Wales 503–5w
Welsh Development Agency, Arms exports 23w

Hairdressers Registration (Amendment) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1272

Hall, Mr Mike
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 499–505

Hall, Mr Patrick
Questions
Concessionary fares 146

Hamilton, Rt Hon Sir Archie
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 116

Hammond, Mr Philip
Questions
Labour Party, Finance 322–3
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC immigration 753

Hancock, Mr Mike
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 29
Questions
Huntingdon Life Sciences, Animal breeding 439w
International conferences, Canary Wharf 270w
Post Office 677w

Handicap benefits
2–3, 964–6

Handicapped
1–2
Civil service 236w
Income support 225–6w
Loans 291–2w
Prisoners 452w
Reduced earnings allowance 2–3
Right to buy 8–9w
Welfare to work 535w

Hanson, Mr David
Questions
Competition 449
Pensions, Information services 84w
United Nations, Iraq 475w

Hare Coursing Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Harman, Rt Hon Harriet, Secretary of State for Social Security*
Questions
Citizens' advice bureaux 11–2
Employment opportunities, Lone parents 6–7
Handicap benefits 2–3
Handicapped 1–2

Harman, Rt Hon Harriet—continued
New deal for lone parents 6–8
Reduced earnings allowance, Handicapped 2–3
Social security 79w
Social security benefits, Advisory services 11–3
Social security reform 3–4
Stakeholder pensions 138w

Harmonisation of legislation
EC internal trade 510w

Harold Wood Hospital
Public petitions (24.11.97) 746

Harrier aircraft
Air accidents 70w

Harris, Dr Evan
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 31–2
University finance (19.11.97) 260–7, 277
Questions
Blood 170–1w
Blood, Exports 311w
Blood, Fees and charges 169w
Blood donors, Surveys 170w
Blood tests, Malaria 169w
Blood transfusion services 171w
Habitual residence test 527w
Hospital waiting lists 326
Merseyside and North Wales Blood Service, Public appointments 522w
National Blood Authority 169w
National Blood Authority, Finance 171–2w
National Blood Authority, Public appointments 309w
National Blood Transfusion Service, Finance 170w, 172w
National Blood Transfusion Service, Performance standards 171w
National Blood Transfusion Service, Redundancy 171w
NHS finance 58w
Public expenditure, Inflation 660w
Speech therapists 57w

Hawkins, Mr Nick
Debates etc.
House of Commons questions, Points of order (20.11.97) 473
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1209
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1099–100
Questions
Interest rates 659w
Police patrolling 621–2

Hayes, Mr John
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1115–6, 1163, 1181, 1184
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 380
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1232
Questions
Amsterdam Summit 605w
European Council 618w

Heald, Mr Oliver
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1004

Healey, Mr John
Questions
Minimum wage 347w
Security industry, Regulatory systems 441w

Health action zones
Benefits Agency district offices 445w
Rural areas 649w

Health authorities
Contracts 343w
Finance 651w
Public appointments 175w

Health hazards
Chemical weapons 147–8w, 310w
Greenhouse effect 59w
Hormones 134w
Mercury 648w
Wood 3–4w, 131–2w

Health insurance
105w, 316w

Health service staff
Kidderminster Hospital 648–9w
Political impartiality 653w
Redundancy 682w
Vacancies 652–3w
Wales 682w

Health services
318–9w
Cornwall 62–3w
Essex (18.11.97) 220–38
Expenditure 62–3w
Greater London 174w, 343w
Rural areas 519w

Hearing aids
172w

Heart diseases
312–3w

Heath, Mr David
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 862–4
Public service (17.11.97) 41, 60
Regional aid, EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 290
University finance (19.11.97) 265–6
Questions
Bruton dam 411w
Business, Environment protection 760–1
EC Committee of the Regions, Public appointments 374w
Flood control, Somerset 411w
Housing construction, Somerset 131–2
Lone parents, Social security benefits reductions 10
Police patrolling 622
Postal services, Rural areas 438–9
Railway stations, Rural areas 127w

Heathcoat-Amory, Rt Hon David,
Questions
Economic and monetary union, Costs 1077
Euro 332w
Film industry 409w
Tax evasion, Jersey 357w
Tax harmonisation 234w

Heating
Elderly 84–5w
Pensioners 536w

Hedgerows Regulations 1997
Questions
338w

Henderson, Mr Doug, Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1145
Questions
Antarctic Treaty 547w
Central Europe, EC enlargement 679w

Henderson, Mr Doug—continued
Central Europe, Export promotion 477w
Common agricultural policy 770
Council of Ministers, Voting methods 260w, 397w
Defence review 769–70
EC common foreign and security policy 402–3w
EC common foreign and security policy, UK contributions to EC budget 476w
EC enlargement 260w, 477w
EC Foreign Affairs Council 615–7w
EC grants and loans 220w
EC internal relations 770–2
EC labour policy, Treaties 404w
EC Social Charter 324–5w, 766
Economic and monetary union, EC enlargement 400w
Economic and monetary union, Information 757
Egypt, Terrorism 149–54
European Communities 757
European Communities, Economic cooperation 400–1w
European Communities, Information 756–7
European Council 618w
European works councils 325w
Fishing quotas 259–60w, 396w
Frontiers, EC action 260w, 396–7w
Gibraltar 481–2w
Gibraltar, European Parliament elections 680w
Gibraltar airport, Air traffic 482w
Gibraltar airport, Landing rights 397w
Intergovernmental Conference 1996 400w
Israel, Fruit juices 643w
Israel, Import controls 544w
Kaliningrad, EC external relations 679w
Kurds, Armed conflict 615w
Mediterranean region, EC external relations 402w
Middle East, Peace negotiations 152–3
Middle East, Terrorism 150–1
NATO, Gibraltar 679–80w
NATO, Spain 221w
Organisation of African Unity, EC aid 397–8w
Republic of Ireland, Foreign policy 761
Schengen Agreement 396–7w
Spain, Air traffic 615w
Terrorism 151–2
Treaty of Amsterdam 261w, 399w, 401w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Discrimination 220–1w
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC Social Charter 403–4w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Human rights 475w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Religious freedom 221w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Subsidiarity 324w
Treaty of Rome 479w
Treaty on European Union, EC integration 476–7w
Turkey 480w
Turkey, EC accession 221–2w
UK contributions to EC budget 403w
UN resolutions 103w

Henderson, Mr Ivan
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 227–8
Maiden speech (17.11.97) 122–4
Merchant ships (17.11.97) 122–4

Hepatitis
Vaccination 521w

Heppell, Mr John
Questions
Civil service, Handicapped 236w
Fire prevention, Legislation 609–10w

Heppell, Mr John—continued*
Progressive taxation, Brewing industry 257w

Hereford bypass
459w

Heritage Lottery Fund
Expenditure 386–7w

Heseltine, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1210–2

Hesford, Mr Stephen
Questions
Sierra Leone, Overseas aid 494w

Hewitt, Ms Patricia
Questions
Pension rights 8–9

Higher education
30–1w, 161w
Business 33–4w
Northern Ireland 109w
Tuition fees 362w, 644w
Wales 503–4w

Higher education administration
Scotland 73w

Higher education admission
Cambridge University 363–4w, 590w
Oxford University 363–4w, 590w

Higher education teachers
Contracts of employment 185–6w

Hill, Mr Keith
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 401, (24.11.97) 666
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 989, 1021
Questions
Courts, Costs 673w

Hill farming
586w
Farm incomes 115–6w

Hill livestock allowances
Compensation 22w
Wales 25w

Hinchliffe, Mr David
Debates etc.
Intervention during questions after statement (19.11.97) 331
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 336
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1266–7
Questions
Art education 30w
Benefits Agency district offices, Health action zones 445w
Coal mining, Museums and galleries 510w
Curriculum, European Communities 31w
Disability living allowance, Children 665–6w
Disability living allowance, Elderly 666w
Drug abuse, Medical treatments 650w
Drug abuse, Young people 650w
Empty housing 624w
Hepatitis, Vaccination 521w
Immigration applications, Genetics 544w
Junior hospital doctors, Working hours 317–8w
Social security abuse, Departmental coordination 666w
Social security benefits, Civil servants 328w

Hinchliffe, Mr David—continued*
Social Security Benefits Agency, Social security recipients 86w
Speed limits 138w
Young offenders, Prison population 431w

HIV infection
Prisoners 40w

HM Coastguard
9–10w, 133–4w, 367w, 463–4w, (26.11.97) 887–909
Closures 303–4w, 463w
Manpower 335–6w

HM Prison Service
see Prison Service

Hoaxes and false alarms
Ambulance services 595w

Hoey, Miss Kate
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1206, 1237–9
Questions
Chinook helicopters, Computers 69w

Hogg, Rt Hon Douglas
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 805, 811–2, 814, 822, 827–8, 841,848–50, 869
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 204
Select committees, Points of order (27.11.97) 1190
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 85, 87, 100, 110
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1246–7
Questions
Government information services 311
Middle East, Peace negotiations 152–3
Regional development agencies 133

Holiday leave
439–40

Holyhead
Radioactive wastes 120w, 587w

Home care services
63w, 656w
Regulatory systems 58w
Scotland 629w

Home detention curfews
Ministerial statements (20.11.97) 453–63

Home Office
Developing countries trade 46w
Electronic mail 37w
Ministers' visits abroad 440w
Open government 454w
Press releases 216w
Reviews 438–40w
Treaty of Amsterdam 541w

Home Office exports initiative
Companies 42–3w

Home Robertson, Mr John
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1210
Questions
A1, Road construction 142
Northern Ireland government 579w
Post offices, Electricity meters 53w, 284w
Roads, Scotland 145w

Homeless Persons (Priority Need) (Scotland) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(18.11.97) 218

Homelessness
Government buildings 136w
Scotland (18.11.97) 218

Homicide
Scotland 502w
Sentencing 451w, 458w, 502w

Homicide Act 1957
Questions
451w

Hong Kong
Election administration 482w
Human rights 482w
Official secrets 250w

Hoon, Mr Geoffrey, Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Dept
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 531–47, 549, 577, 589–90, 603–6
Questions
British Council, Public records 672–3w
Civil proceedings, Legal costs 254w
Conditional fee agreements 55–6w, 226w
Court rules and procedures, EC law 56–7w
Courts, Costs 253–4w, 673w
Courts, Dorset 254w
Divorce, Information services 251–3w
Divorce, Welsh language 252w
Electronic mail, Lord Chancellor's Dept 56w
Immigration appeals, Administrative delays 326–7w
Judges, Domestic violence 83–4w
Land ownership and tenure, Agricultural land 251w
Legal aid scheme 254w, 325w
Lord Chancellor's Dept, Clothing 226w
Magistrates 226w
Open government, Lord Chancellor's Dept 326w
Personal injury, Children 326w
Press releases, Lord Chancellor's Dept 327w
Public appointments, Lord Chancellor's Dept 326w, 673w
Public records, Abdication 672w
Public records, Royal family 672w
Public records, Whales 672w
Small claims 377w

Hope, Mr Phil
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 471
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 510–1
Questions
Integrated schools, Northern Ireland 955
Pensions, Divorce settlements 17
Rough sleepers initiative, Finance 121w

Hopkins, Mr Kelvin
Debates etc.
Maiden speech (28.11.97) 1251–4
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1251–4

Horam, Mr John
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 371–4

Hormones
Health hazards 134w

Hospital admissions
Surgery 656w
Weather 319–20w

Hospital beds
655–6w
Mental health services 653–4w

Hospital closures
Jubilee Maternity Hospital Belfast 636w

Hospital consultants
Scotland 181–3w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 520w
Vacancies 181–3w

Hospital discharges
430w
Wales 380w

Hospital patients
184w

Hospital waiting lists
318w, 326, 426w, 520w
Death 427w
Elderly 520–1w
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust 429w
NHS and private practice 426–7w
Northern Ireland 961
Patient's Charter 313–4
Sports competitors 172w

Hospitals
Performance standards 426w

Hotels
91w

House of Commons
Postal services 327w

House of Commons Commission
Equal opportunities 327w

House of Commons procedure
Speaker's rulings and statements (19.11.97) 339

House renovation grants
Council house sales 137w

"Household Growth Consultation Paper"
200w, 555–6w

Housing
688–9w

Housing Act 1985
Questions
8–9w

Housing benefits
224–5w, 445–6w
Children 224w
Greater London 222–4w
Young people 5–6

Housing construction
123w, 132, 556w
Countryside 132
Land pollution 121w
Single people 556–7w
Social rented housing 5w, 368w
Somerset 131–2
Staffordshire 297w
Urban areas 306w, 461w
West Midlands 297–8w

Housing Corporation
Directors 376–8w

Housing subsidies
201–2w

Howard, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1129–39
Questions
Arms exports, Export licensing 763
Business, EC action 52–3w
Egypt, Terrorism 149–54
UN Special Commission on Iraq 769

Howarth, Mr Alan, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept for Education and Employment*
Questions
Child care 361w
Disability Discrimination Act 1995 164w
Disabled workers, USA 160–1w
Employment Service, Retirement age 487–8w
New deal for young unemployed 695–7w
Refugees, Montserrat 159w
Remploy, Performance standards 485–6w

Howarth, Mr George, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Home Office*
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 820–1, 839, 844, 851, 868–73
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1260–6
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 246–7w, 435w
Animal experiments 93–4w
Animal experiments, Cosmetics 217w
Animal experiments, Disclosure of information 94w, 248w
Animal experiments, Licensing 248–9w
Animal Procedures Committee 611–2w
Drug crimes, Prisoners' release 620
Drug prevention initiative 248w
Drugs and crime 435–6w, 619–20
Drugs and crime, Young people 620
Electoral register 616–7
European Parliament elections, Electoral systems 433w
Fire prevention, Legislation 609–10w
Fires, Wales 265–8w
Huntingdon Life Sciences, Animal breeding 439w
Institute of Neurology, Animal experiments 249w, 612w
Pets, Animal welfare 214w
Poaching, Punishment 245w
Political parties, Finance 289w
Public houses, Glass 247w
Telephone systems 38–9w
Telephone systems, Emergency services 46–7w
Travelling people 625–6
Travelling people, Police powers 626
Travelling people, Trespass 625

Howarth, Mr Gerald
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 357–8, 360–1
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 84, 86–7, 101, 107–13, 121
Questions
Housing construction, Land pollution 121w
Railway transport, Investment 128w

Howells, Dr Kim, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept for Education and Employment*
Debates etc.
University finance (19.11.97) 280–3
Questions
Cambridge University, Higher education admission 590w
Committee on Standards in Public Life 34–5w
Computer storage 156w
Dance, Student grants 92w, 156w
Degrees 34w
Developing countries trade, Dept for Education and Employment 158w
EC Youth Council 186w
Educational finance 160w

Howells, Dr Kim—continued*
Further education, Educational finance 366w
General Certificate of Secondary Education 162w
Greenhouse effect, Dept for Education and Employment 155w
Higher education 30–1w, 161w
Higher education, Business 33–4w
Higher education, Tuition fees 644w
Higher education teachers, Contracts of employment 185–6w
Ministers' visits abroad, Dept for Education and Employment 158w
Oxford University, Cost per student 338w
Oxford University, Higher education admission 363–4w
Oxford University, University finance 33w
Road Transport Industry Training Board 339w
Student grants 364w
Student loans 362w
Student Loans Company, Annual reports 164w
Students, Complaints 185w
Students, Finance 159–60w
Training, Fraud 156w
Training and enterprise councils, Internet 157–8w
Tuition fees 487w
Tuition fees, Higher education 362w
Tuition fees, Low incomes 643w
Tuition fees, Scotland 643–4w
University finance 155–6w, 363w, 590w
University finance, Scotland 162–3w
University for Industry 156w

Hoyle, Mr Lindsay
Questions
Gibraltar, Foreign policy 763–4

Hughes, Ms Beverley
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 462–3
Questions
Religious discrimination 610w
Sexual offences, Children 606w

Hughes, Mr Simon
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 346–50, 357, 378, 381–3, 387–94, 401, 409, 411, 417–8, 420, (24.11.97) 661–7, 669–70, 675–8, 680, 682, 693–5, 707, 711–21, 725, 737–8, 742, 744–5
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Points of order (24.11.97) 647
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 980, 984, 990–6, 1006, 1026
Members' conduct, Points of order (26.11.97) 974
Public service (17.11.97) 21–9, 31, 39, 53, 63, 68
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1261–2
Questions
Cancer 425–6w
Citizen's Charter 313–4
Dental services 423w
Food Standards Agency 687w
GP fundholders, Finance 428–9w, 654–5w
GP fundholders, NHS internal market 428w
Health service staff, Vacancies 652–3w
Health services 318–9w
Health services, Greater London 174w
Hospital admissions, Weather 319–20w
Hospital beds 655–6w
Hospital discharges 430w

Hughes, Mr Simon—continued
Hospital patients 184w
Hospital waiting lists 318w, 426w
Hospital waiting lists, Death 427w
Hospital waiting lists, NHS and private practice 426–7w
Hospitals, Performance standards 426w
Influenza 598–600w
Local government, Greater London 4w
London Underground, Privatisation 140
Medical malpractice, Legal aid 519w
Mental health services, Hospital beds 653–4w
Mental patients 650–1w
Ministers' domestic visits 604w
NHS, Ministers' domestic visits 597–8w
NHS administration 427w
NHS finance 319w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 962
NHS trusts, Finance 430–1w
NHS trusts, Public appointments 175w
Nurses, Skill shortages 654w
Surgery 684–5w
Surgery, Hospital admissions 656w

Human rights
476w
Algeria 221w, 481w
Asia-Europe Summit 479w
Burma 481w
Development aid 495w
East Timor 480w
EC external relations 476w
Hong Kong 482w
India 11w
Kenya (19.11.97) 299–308
Treaty of Amsterdam 475w
Tunisia 482w
Zambia 450w

Human Rights Bill (HL) 1997/98
Questions
435w

Humble, Mrs Joan
Debates etc.
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 338

Hume, Mr John
Questions
Army in Northern Ireland, Death 966

Hunter, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 205–7
Questions
Breast cancer, Radiotherapy 595w
Deportation 214w
General practitioners 340w

Hunting
(28.11.97) 1199–271
Defence land 67w
Farmers 118w
Public petitions (27.11.97) 1190, (28.11.97) 1197–8

Huntingdon Life Sciences
Animal breeding 439w

Hurst, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 224–7

Hutton, Mr John
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 642
Questions
Economic and monetary union, Business 657w

Hutton, Mr John—continued
Pensions, Divorce settlements 83w

Hydrographic Office
Performance standards 500w

Hyperactivity
Ritalin 591w

Iddon, Dr Brian
Debates etc.
Drug abuse (19.11.97) 430–1
University finance (19.11.97) 264, 276–9
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1099
Questions
Housing subsidies 201–2w

Illegal immigrants
Costs 439w
Leicester 439w

Illsley, Mr Eric
Questions
Unemployment, EC action 322

Immigration adjudicators
Public appointments 326–7w

Immigration appeals
Administrative delays 326–7w

Immigration applications
Genetics 544w
India 761

Immigration controls
Treaty of Amsterdam 36w

Immunity from prosecution
European Police Office 453w

Import controls
Israel 544w

Import duties
Spacecraft 231w

Imports
Beef 273–5w

"Improving the Payment Culture"
648w

Incapacity benefit
968
Employment 567w
Welfare to work 529–30w

Income support
535w
Handicapped 225–6w
Mortgages 140w, 329w, 570w
New deal for lone parents 664w
Pensioners 5, 85w
Student loans 225w

Income tax
Marginal tax rates 468w

Incontinence
172–3w

Independent Advisory Panel Review of Health Care in London
see Review of Health Care in London Independent Advisory Panel

Independent International Commission on Decommissioning
110w

India
British embassies 102w
Human rights 11w
Immigration applications 761
Ministers' visits abroad 767–8
Temporary immigrants 102w

Indian subcontinent
Entry clearances 478–9w

Indonesia
Arms trade 103w

Indonesia—continued
East Timor 178w
Foreign policy 474w
International Monetary Fund 469w, 495–6w

Industrial accidents
Millennium Exhibition 92w

Industrial health and safety
Asbestos 324–5

Industrial injuries
1w

Industrial injuries disablement benefit
530–2w, 568w, 665w

Industrial investment
EC grants and loans 449

Industrial Pollution Control (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(25.11.97) 878

Industrial relations
Civil service 236w

Industrial research
283w

Industrial tribunals
Employment discrimination 107w

Industries
Performance standards 53–4w

Industry
671w

Inflation
660w, 1077–8
Public expenditure 660w

Influenza
598–600w

Information
Economic and monetary union 757
European Communities 756–7

Information services
Air pollution 298–300w
Divorce 251–3w
Pensions 84w

Information technology
Customs 112w
Small businesses 285w

Ingram, Mr Adam, Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office*
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 168–77, 182
Questions
Army in Northern Ireland 321–2w
Arson, Northern Ireland 378–9w
Bombings, Dublin 109–10w
Bombs, Northern Ireland 634w
Campbell, Jason, Prisoners' transfers 273w
Death, Portadown 633–4w
Deregulation initiative, Northern Ireland 579w
Discrimination, Northern Ireland 963
Employment, Northern Ireland 579w, 581–2w
Foreign investment in UK, Northern Ireland 581w
Gas supply industry, Northern Ireland 213w
Independent International Commission on Decommissioning 110w
Internal security operations, Armagh 580w
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991 581w
Police, Northern Ireland 630w

Ingram, Mr Adam—continued
Police Authority for Northern Ireland, Manpower 633w
Police stations, Coleraine 483w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 629–32w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Germany 321w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Proof of identity 631w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Recruitment 632–4w
Sinn Fein 581w
Terrorism, Crimes of violence 483w
Tourism, Northern Ireland 580–1w
Trials, Northern Ireland 109w, 637w

Injuries
Clydach Hospital 263w

Innovation
Wales 108w

Institute of Neurology
Animal experiments 249w, 612w

Insulin
Diabetes (20.11.97) 524–30
Road accidents 693–4w

Insurance
Regulatory systems 661–2w

Insurance premium tax
235w

Integrated schools
Northern Ireland 583w, 955

Intellectual property
Charities 614w

Intelligence services
Drug crimes 400w
RAF Menwith Hill 71w
Telephone tapping 39w

Interception of Communications Act 1985
Questions
100w

Interest rates
658–9w
Disposable income 659w
Economic and monetary union 659w, 1074–6
France 332w
Germany 332w
Local government finance 369w, 689w

Intergovernmental Conference 1996
400w

Internal security operations
Armagh 580w

International Bank for Reconstruction and Development
see World Bank

International conferences
Canary Wharf 270w, 408w

International Criminal Court
War crimes 400w

International Decommissioning Commission
see Independent International Commission on Decommissioning

International law
Telephone tapping 610–1w

International Monetary Fund
Indonesia 469w, 495–6w

Internet
Government departments 390w
Press releases 241w
Tax yields 661w
Training and enterprise councils 157–8w

Invalid care allowances
Social security claims 529w

Investment income
USA 111w

Investors compensation scheme
18w

IRA
581w

Iraq
480w, 546w, 605w
Armed forces deployment 406w
Biological weapons 768–9
Debts 346–7w
EC external relations 402w
Foreign policy 323, 768–9
Mines 447–8w
Radio programmes 219–20w
United Nations 475w

Iraq-Kuwait conflict
71w

Irish
Languages education 27–9w

Irish Sea
Rescue services 367w

Isaac Newton Group of Telescopes
51w

Israel
475w
Foreign policy 759
Fruit juices 643w
Import controls 544w
Peace negotiations 759–60

J Sainsbury
Planning appeals 690w

Jack, Rt Hon Michael
Questions
Agricultural policy, EC presidency 21w, 356w
Agricultural subsidies 356w
Animal quarantine 22–3w
Beef premiums, Costs 278w
British Aerospace, Government assistance 346w, 359w
Cattle, Transport of animals 277w, 523–4w
Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy, Publications 517–9w
Common agricultural policy, UK contributions to EC budget 115w
Dairy farming, Agricultural subsidies 275w
European fighter aircraft 243w, 694w
Fishing catches 348–54w
Fishing catches, EC action 22w
Food composition 523w
Food poisoning 596w
Food standards 640w
Food standards, Public opinion 640w
Food Standards Agency 22w
Hill livestock allowances, Compensation 22w
Hill livestock allowances, Wales 25w
Irish Sea, Rescue services 367w
Milk, Pasteurisation 21–2w, 355–6w
Milk, Scotland 77w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 523w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Advisory services 522w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, EC action 523w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Relocation of employees 22w
Nutrition and health 686w
Research associations, Tax reform 347–8w, 469w
Sheep premiums 356w

Jack, Rt Hon Michael—continued
UK contributions to EC budget 466w
Untreated milk 522–3w

Jackson, Ms Glenda, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions*
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 412, (24.11.97) 692–5, 698–700, 707–11, 723–8, 741–3, 745–6
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 994, 1000, 1022–7
Merchant ships (17.11.97) 125–30
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents (25.11.97) 883–6
Port of London Authority, Moorings (24.11.97) 750–2
Rescue services (26.11.97) 905–9
Rescue services, Points of order (17.11.97) 80
Questions
A65, Private finance initiative 460–1w
Air bags, Research 196–7w
Air routes, Malaysia 626w
Air traffic, Greater London 296–7w
Air transport, Economic situation 625w
Air transport, North West region 625w
Airports 691w
Bridges, Road works 1–2w
British Rail, Planning obligations 129w
Bus lanes 368w
Bus lanes, Prosecutions 368w
Bus services 691–3w
Bus services subsidies 692w
Buses, Parking 369–70w
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 134w, 295w
Civil Aviation Authority 128w
Concessionary fares 146
Cycling, Crash helmets 135w
Driving and Diabetes Advisory Panel, Public appointments 373–4w
Driving instruction, Deaf 553w
Driving licences, Medical examinations 466w
Driving licences, Pensioners 294–5w
Fishing vessels, Shipping safety 127w, 371–2w
Freight transport, Wales 127w
Hereford bypass 459w
HM Coastguard 9–10w, 133–4w, 463–4w
HM Coastguard, Closures 303–4w, 463w
HM Coastguard, Manpower 335–6w
Irish Sea, Rescue services 367w
Lewes-Uckfield railway line 626w
Locomotives 144–5
London Underground 141
London Underground, Acton 128w
London Underground, Concessionary fares 146
London Underground, Fares 140
London Underground, Finance 137w
London Underground, Privatisation 140
M6 2w
Motor vehicles, Inspections 553w
Motor vehicles, Petrol alternatives 135w
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents 295–6w
MV Sea Empress, Oil pollution 693w
Orange badge scheme 553–4w
Pedestrian crossings 133w
Ports, Merseyside 137w
Railway freight transport, Locomotives 145
Railway network 461–2w
Railway signals 689w
Railway stations, Rural areas 127w
Railway transport, Finance 141
Railway travel 145

Jackson, Ms Glenda—continued*
Regional airports, Air routes 625w
River Thames, River crossings 127w
Road accidents 462w, 619w
Road accidents, Children 195w
Road accidents, Insulin 693–4w
Road finance 194–5w
Road safety, Cellular phones 305–6w
Road safety, Children 137–8w, 372w
Road safety education 134–5w
Rolling stock, Repairs and maintenance 460w
Severn bridge, Road tolls 197w
Speed limits, Cameras 129w
Speed limits, Rural areas 129–30w
Speed limits, Telematics 130w
Speed limits, Urban areas 130w
Transport, Regulatory systems 693w
Vehicle number plates 554w
West coast railway line, Channel tunnel 555w
Wheelchair Working Group 200w

Jackson, Helen
Questions
Crime victims 432w
Domestic violence, Crime victims 624
Forestry Commission, Land acquisition 142–5w
National parks 123w
Non-departmental public bodies, Disclosure of information 238–9w
Social security, Domestic violence 528w
Water and sewerage companies 4–5w

Jackson, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
University finance (19.11.97) 260, 264–5, 273, 282

Jamieson, Mr David, An Assistant Whip
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 712
Public service (17.11.97) 64

Japan
Economic situation 758
Foreign policy 757–8
Prisoners of war 757–8

Jenkin, Mr Bernard
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1125
Community Care (Residential Accountability) Bill, Point of order (28.11.97) 1272
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1133, 1148, 1154–60, 1165, 1167, 1169–70
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 222, 227–30, 234
Questions
Economic and monetary union 658w
Economic policy 1072
Electronic mail, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 389–90w
Electronic mail, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 383w
Electronic mail, Dept of Health 516–7w
Electronic mail, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 130–1w
Electronic mail, Home Office 37w
Electronic mail, Lord Chancellor's Dept 56w
Electronic mail, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 273w
Electronic mail, Ministry of Defence 229w
Electronic mail, Northern Ireland Office 582w
Electronic mail, Treasury 331w

Jenkin, Mr Bernard—continued*
Electronic mail, Welsh Office 108w
Government departments, Internet 390w
Higher education, Northern Ireland 109w
Ministers, Electronic mail 267w, 312
National Assembly of Wales, Parliamentary buildings 683w
Police, Finance 433w
Police patrolling 624
Tuition fees, Scotland 145–6w
University finance, Scotland 162–3w
Untreated milk 642w

Jenkins, Mr Brian
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 470
Questions
Committee on Standards in Public Life 34–5w
Council house waiting lists 298w
Government information services 604w
Handicapped, Loans 291–2w
Higher education, Business 33–4w
Housing construction, Staffordshire 297w
Housing construction, West Midlands 297–8w
Oxford University, University finance 33w
Single regeneration budget, West Midlands 299–302w
Wood, Health hazards 3–4w, 131–2w

Jersey
Tax evasion 357w

Jobseeker's allowance
82w, 225w, 329w, 529w
Social security appeals 82w
Social security recipients 675–6w

Johnson, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents (25.11.97) 879–82
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1201
Questions
Barents Sea, Telecommunications cables 227–8w
Brookes, John, Disclosure of information 497–8w
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents 295–6w

Johnson, Miss Melanie
Debates etc.
Lead in Paint (Health and Safety) Bill, 1R (19.11.97) 343–5
Public service (17.11.97) 58–9, 65
Questions
Competition 284w
Remploy, Performance standards 485–6w

Joint replacements
Wales 380w

Jones, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 643
Questions
Average earnings, Wales 682w
Beef, Wales 639w
British Aerospace, Government assistance 346w, 381w, 435–6
Bureaucracy, Wales 263–4w
Coal mining, Wales 638w
Crimes of violence 214–5w
Further education, Educational finance 578w
Joint replacements, Wales 380w
Neighbourhood nuisance, Wales 638–9w
NHS finance, Wales 24w
NHS trusts, Wales 24w

Jones, Mr Barry—continued*
North East Wales Institute of Higher Education 578w
Quarrying, Flintshire 187–9w
Quarrying, Wales 189w
Revenue support grant, Wales 683w
Schools, Flintshire 578w
Smoking, Children 264w
Social problems 321
Social security 79w
Welfare to work 659–60w

Jones, Ms Fiona
Questions
Benefit Fraud Inspectorate, Publications 328w
Young offenders 436w

Jones, Helen M
Questions
Discrimination, Northern Ireland 963
Higher education teachers, Contracts of employment 185–6w
Lone parents, Day care of children 10
Prison medical services 37w
Prisoners, AIDS 40w
Prisoners, Handicapped 452w
Prisoners, HIV infection 40w
Prisoners, Medical research 451–2w
Prisons, Pharmacists 41w
Social security abuse 80w
Students, Complaints 185w
Trading standards, Children 282w

Jones, Mr Ieuan Wyn
Questions
National Assembly of Wales 968–9
Radioactive wastes, Holyhead 120w, 587w

Jones, Ms Jenny
Questions
European Convention on Human Rights 626–7
Housing Corporation, Directors 376–8w
India, British embassies 102w
India, Human rights 11w
India, Temporary immigrants 102w

Jones, Dr Lynne
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 790–1
Questions
Biotechnology, Patents 287w
China, Police 177w
Defence equipment, Exhibitions 227w
Domestic energy conservation 136–7w
Fire prevention 622w

Jones, Mr Martyn David
Questions
Agricultural land, Environment protection 229–30w
Agriculture, Young people 230w
Appendicitis 314w
Bovine tuberculosis, Agricultural research 275w
Diabetes, Medical research 312w
Family planning 313w
Fertility 316w
Fluoridation, Research 423–4w
Heart diseases 312–3w
Motor vehicles, Petrol alternatives 135w
NHS, Energy conservation 342–3w
Obesity 315w
Organic farming 119w
Prescription charges exemptions 343w
Transport infrastructure 609w
Varicose veins 517w
Welfare to work, Wales 503–5w

Jones, Mr Nigel
Questions
Government bills 550–1w

Jowell, Tessa
317w, 429–30w

Jowell, Ms Tessa, Minister for Public Health, Dept of Health*
Debates etc.
Drug abuse (19.11.97) 431–4
Questions
Abortion, Costs 423w
Biotechnology, Patents 62w
Cancer 425–6w
Child health, Lead pollution 686w
Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy, Publications 517–9w
Dept of Health, Ministerial policy advisors 311w
Dept of Health, Official engagements 317w
Diabetes, Medical research 312w
Drug abuse, Medical treatments 650w
Drug abuse, Young people 650w
Electronic mail, Dept of Health 516–7w
Family planning 313w
Female circumcision, Members' correspondence 687w
Fertility 316w
Fluoridation, Research 423–4w
Food poisoning 596w
Food Standards Agency 687w
Greenhouse effect, Dept of Health 310w
Greenhouse effect, Health hazards 59w
Health hazards, Chemical weapons 310w
Heart diseases 312–3w
Hepatitis, Vaccination 521w
Hyperactivity, Ritalin 591w
Influenza 598–600w
Jowell, Tessa 317w
Malaria, Drug side effects 311w
Malaria, Drugs 516w
Myelography, Medical records 307w
Nutrition and health 686w
Obesity 315w
Official hospitality, Dept of Health 320w
Open government, Dept of Health 313w
Osteoporosis 685–6w
Press releases, Dept of Health 314w
Publicity, Dept of Health 175–6w
Skin piercing 108w
Smoking related diseases, Costs 309w
Technology foresight programme, Dept of Health 595–6w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 424–5w, 519w, 685w

Jubilee Maternity Hospital Belfast
Hospital closures 636w

Judges
627
Domestic violence 83–4w

Judgments
Community care 596w
European Court of Justice 32w
Sex discrimination 186–7w

Junior hospital doctors
Working hours 317–8w

Kaliningrad
EC external relations 679w

Kashmir
Foreign policy 474w, 768

Keeble, Ms Sally
Questions
Drugs and crime, Young people 620
Export promotion 452
Non-fossil fuel obligation 507–10w

Keetch, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, Disease control (26.11.97) 1058–61, 1065

Keetch, Mr Paul—continued*
Questions
Ambulance services 310w
Ambulance services, Medals 310w
Hereford bypass 459w
Hotels 91w
Motability 567–8w
New deal for young unemployed 695–7w
Severn bridge, Road tolls 197w
Speed limits, Rural areas 129–30w
War pensions, Medical examinations 566–7w

Kelly, Ms Ruth
Questions
Criminal proceedings, Administrative delays 432w
Economic and monetary union, Legislation 357w

Kemp, Mr Fraser
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1116

Kennedy, Mr Charles
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 93, 99–102
Questions
Beef, Quality control 229w
Student numbers, Scotland 72–3w

Kent
Political refugees 616, 683–4w

Kenya
Election observers 90w
Human rights (19.11.97) 299–308
Overseas aid 89w

Key, Mr Robert
Questions
Armed forces education allowances 151w
Chinook helicopters, Air safety 152–3w
Chinook helicopters, Aircraft engines 151–2w
Iraq-Kuwait conflict 71w
Ludgershall, Members' correspondence 243w
Quarantine Advisory Group 410–1w
Quarantine Advisory Group, Public appointments 410w

Kidderminster Hospital
593–4w
Accident and emergency departments 594w
Capital investment 594w
Health service staff 648–9w

Kidnapping
Chechnya 11w

Kidney, Mr David
Debates etc.
Plant Varieties Bill, Lords amendments (26.11.97) 1044–5
Questions
Air pollution, Information services 298–300w
Children in care, Court orders 592w
Children in care, Staffordshire 591–3w
Employment Service, Retirement age 487–8w
Hydrographic Office, Performance standards 500w
Interest rates, France 332w
Local government elections 623w
Maintenance, Children 17–8
Osteoporosis 685–6w
Water pollution 626–7w
West coast railway line, Channel tunnel 555w

Kidney patients
East Lancashire Health Authority 309w

Kilfoyle, Mr Peter, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Office of Public Service*
Questions
Access Business Group 323–4w
Access business initiative 239w
Chartermark scheme, NHS trusts 237w
Citizen's Charter 238w, 313–4
Citizen's Charter, Expenditure 471–2w
Civil service, Handicapped 236w
Civil service, Industrial relations 236w
Government information services 237w, 310–1
Ministerial policy advisors, Contracts of employment 237w
Non-departmental public bodies, Women 312–3
Official cars, Expenditure 251w
Residential care of children 313

King, Mr Andy
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 25, 33–4, 38, 48–50
Questions
Lone parents, Day care of children 81w
"Register of Quality Assessed Companies" 574–5w

King, Rt Hon Tom
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 95–9
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1221–4
Questions
Empty housing 622w
Empty housing, Shops 687–8w
Empty property, Offices 374–5w
Families, Council tax exemptions 622–3w
Housing 688–9w
Housing construction 556w
Housing construction, Single people 556–7w
Parking, Urban areas 555–6w

Kingham, Ms Tess
Questions
Small businesses, Advisory services 282w

Kirkbride, Miss Julie
Questions
Civil Aviation Authority 128w
Greenbelt 124w

Kirkwood, Mr Archy
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 160
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 796–7
Questions
Child benefit 533–4w
Green papers, Disclosure of information 86w
Handicap benefits 2–3
House of Commons Commission, Equal opportunities 327w
Lorry drivers, France 129w
Pensions, Divorce settlements 86w
Pensions review 85–6w
Students, Borders region 141w
Unemployed, Poverty 83w

Know-how Fund
Companies 55w
Finance 55w

Krebs Committee
see Tuberculosis in Cattle and Badgers Review

Kurds
546w
Armed conflict 615w

Labour Party
Finance 16–7w, 318–23, 344w, 405w, 438, 506w, 603w, 969

Ladyman, Dr Stephen
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1109–10

Laing, Mrs Eleanor
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 588–92
Questions
Railway transport 148

Lait, Mrs Jacqui,
Debates etc.
Members' oath and affirmation, Lait, Jacqui (26.11.97) 975

Lake Windermere
Water sports 381–2w

Lancashire
Welfare to work 340w, 488w

Land acquisition
Forestry Commission 142–5w, 273w
Playing fields 161–2w
Zimbabwe 449w

Land ownership and tenure
Agricultural land 251w

Land pollution
116w, 301–2w
Housing construction 121w
Northern Ireland (25.11.97) 878

Land use
Armed forces training 394w

Landfill tax
Tax yields 467w

Landing rights
Gibraltar airport 397w

Languages education
Irish 27–9w

Lansley, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1127
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 366–71, 378, (24.11.97) 653–4, 670, 736, 738–9
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 982–3, 1008–12
Plant Varieties Bill, Lords amendments (26.11.97) 1045
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 337
University finance (19.11.97) 271–4
Questions
Interest rates, Disposable income 659w
Open government 239w, 309
Revenue support grant 124w

Lasers
515w
Assaults on police 215w
Product safety 644–5w
Prosecutions 454w

Law Officers' Dept
see Attorney General

Law reform
Taxation 663w

Lawrence, Ms Jackie
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1201–2
Questions
Billing, Government departments 662–3w
Commemorative coins 550w
Somerset House Trust 469–70w

Lead
Paint (19.11.97) 343–5

Lead in Paint (Health and Safety) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
1R (19.11.97) 343–5

Lead pollution
Child health 686w

Legal aid
(21.11.97) 531–606
Medical malpractice 519w

Legal aid scheme
254w, 325w

Legal costs
Civil proceedings 254w

Leicester
Illegal immigrants 439w

Leicestershire
School buildings 698w

Leigh, Mr Edward
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 872–3
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 388, 393, 402, 415–6
Public service (17.11.97) 35
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 83, 112
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1202
Questions
A46 966–7
Treaty of Amsterdam 399w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Political refugees 608w

Lepper, Mr David
Questions
Environment protection, South Downs 373w

Leslie, Mr Christopher
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 486–8
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 110
Questions
Pensions 4–5
Roads 143–4

Letwin, Mr Oliver
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 471–2, (27.11.97) 1126–7
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1156–7, 1161, 1168–9, 1175–81, 1184, 1187
Questions
Armed forces pensions, Widows 71w
Beef, Imports 273–5w
Civil proceedings, Legal costs 254w
Clinical audit 342w
Courts, Costs 253–4w
Courts, Dorset 254w
Driving licences, Pensioners 294–5w
EC grants and loans, Small businesses 765

Letwin, Mr Oliver—continued
Hospital waiting lists, Sports competitors 172w
Investors compensation scheme 18w
Playing fields, Land acquisition 161–2w
Smuggling, Tobacco 230–1w

Levitt, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 92, 102–5

Lewes-Uckfield railway line
626w

Lewis, Mr Ivan
Questions
Educational finance 968
Israel 475w

Lewis, Mr Terry
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 90, 100

Liddell, Mrs Helen, Economic Secretary to the Treasury*
Debates etc.
Personal pensions, Ministerial statements (18.11.97) 155–63
Questions
Abortion 470–1w
Asbestosis, Death 231–4w
Bank notes, Forgery 332–3w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Treasury 113–4w
Coinage, Forgery 333w
Common agricultural policy, UK contributions to EC budget 115w
Currency movements 358–9w
EC Budget Council 674w
EC Finance Council, Economic and monetary union 357–8w
Economic and monetary union 329–30w, 357–8w, 658w
Economic and monetary union, Exchange rate mechanism 330w
Economic and monetary union, Exchange rates 330w, 658w
Economic and monetary union, Legislation 357w
Elderly, Norfolk 256–7w
Electronic mail, Treasury 331w
Euro 332w, 658w
European Central Bank 549w
European Central Bank, Economic and monetary union 357w
European Central Bank, Public appointments 331w, 469w
Financial services, Regulatory systems 333w
Financial Services Authority 466w
Financial Services Authority, Costs 467w
Financial Services Authority, Scotland 467w
Insurance, Regulatory systems 661–2w
Interest rates, France 332w
International Monetary Fund, Indonesia 469w, 495–6w
Investors compensation scheme 18w
Millennium compliance 329w
Millennium compliance, Treasury 110w
Official hospitality, Treasury 112–4w
Open government, Treasury 331w
Pay 18–20w
Pension rights, EC staff 547–8w
Press releases, Treasury 331–2w
Public appointments, Treasury 358w
Public sector debt 330–1w
Publicity, Treasury 113–4w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Treasury 333–4w
UK contributions to EC budget 466w

Liddell, Mrs Helen*—*continued
Young people, Unemployment 235w

Lilley, Rt Hon Peter
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 780–2
Questions
Corporation tax 1070–1
Social security recipients, Taxpayers 444w

Linton, Mr Martin
Questions
Young offenders, Reparation by offenders 628–9

Listed buildings
Church buildings 259w

Livingstone, Mr Ken
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 349, 363–4, 392, 398–403
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 795
Questions
Armed forces, Radiation hazards 227w
Biotechnology, Patents 287w, 412w
Chemical weapons, Health hazards 147–8w, 310w
Porton Down, Animal experiments 500w

Lloyd, Rt Hon Sir Peter
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 87

Lloyd, Mr Tony, Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Debates etc.
Kenya, Human rights (19.11.97) 303–8
Questions
Arms trade 680–1w
Bosnia-Herzegovina, Military vehicles 680w
British dependent territories 259w
British Indian Ocean Territory, Mineral resources 10w
Central Africa, EC external relations 399w
Central Africa, Refugees 399w
Chechnya, Kidnapping 11w
Democratic Republic of the Congo, UN resolutions 398w
Diplomatic service, Private education 10w
El Salvador, Foreign policy 398w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office, Public relations 260w
International Criminal Court, War crimes 400w
Iraq, EC external relations 402w
Mines, Treaties 398–9w
Nuclear disarmament 398w
Pinochet, Augusto 615w
Western European Union, EC enlargement 401w
Western European Union, Gibraltar 397w
Western Sahara 545w

Llwyd, Mr Elfyn
Debates etc.
Petrol, Pollution (19.11.97) 292–6, 298
Questions
Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 118w
Clydach Hospital, Injuries 263w
Conditional fee agreements 226w
Divorce, Information services 251–3w
Divorce, Welsh language 252w
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail trade 285w
Food Standards Agency 239w
Magistrates 226w
National Assembly of Wales 187w
Personal injury, Children 326w
Prisons, Construction 35–6w

Llwyd, Mr Elfyn*—*continued
Probation officers, Wales 35w
Social security reform 3–4
Water pollution, Garages and petrol stations 125–6w

Loan guarantee scheme
48w

Loans
Handicapped 291–2w

Local authorities
EC regional policy 303w

Local broadcasting
Television reception 457w

Local exchange and trading schemes
Earnings rules 140w

Local government
126w
Greater London 4w
Non-departmental public bodies 314–5
Public service 238w

Local Government Act 1988 (Competition) (Scotland) Regulations 1997
Questions
145w

Local government associations
South East region 366w

Local Government Commission for England
9w

Local Government (Contracts) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
Royal Assent (27.11.97) 1088

Local government elections
623w

Local government expenditure
367–8w
Political refugees 173–4w

Local government finance
137–8, 464w
Interest rates 369w, 689w
Scotland 677w

Local government functions
624–5w
Crime prevention 669w
Environment protection 463w

Local government land
Smallholdings (26.11.97) 941–8

Local government pensions
85w, 138, 1085

Local government reform
Southend (28.11.97) 1274–80

Local government services
Best value 123–4w
Contracts for services 123–4w, 336–8w

Locate in Scotland
105w

Lock, Mr David
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 544, 549, 590, 601–3
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 840, 851–2
Questions
Accident and emergency departments, Research 591w
Trauma centres 425w
Working hours, EC law 439–40

Lockerbie
Bombings 766–7

Locomotives
144–5
Railway freight transport 145

London Underground
141
Acton 128w
Concessionary fares 146
Fares 140
Finance 137w
Privatisation 140

Lone parent families
Social security recipients 537w

Lone parents
80–1w, 1076–7
Day care of children 10, 81w
Employment opportunities 6–7
Social security benefits reductions 10
Social security recipients 81–2w
Take-up of employment 526–7w

Long-Term Care Charter
686–7w

Long-Term Care Royal Commission
687w

Lord Chancellor's Dept
Clothing 226w
Electronic mail 56w
Open government 326w
Press releases 327w
Public appointments 326w, 673w

Lords Lieutenant
Ethnic minorities 323w

Lorry drivers
France 129w

Loughton, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 856, 858–9
Questions
Prisoners' release, Sexual offences 435w
Public expenditure, Reviews 656–7w

Love, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 511–4

Low incomes
Tuition fees 643w

Low pay
442

Low Pay Commission
281w, 420w, 441–2

Ludgershall
Members' correspondence 243w

Luff, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1201
Questions
Dance, Student grants 92w, 156w
Drama education 456w
National Lottery, Public opinion 91w
Royal Opera House and English National Opera Working Group 179–80w

Lung cancer
Death 203–10w

Lyell, Rt Hon Sir Nicholas
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1235–7
Questions
Hearing aids 172w
VAT, Confectionery 234w

M6
2w

McAleese, Mary
957

McAllion, Mr John
Debates etc.
Hunting, Public petitions (28.11.97) 1198
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 792
Questions
Civil service manpower, Scotland 240–1w
Climate Change Convention 755
Defence review 70–1w

McCabe, Mr Stephen
Questions
Political refugees, Reception centres 440–1w

McCafferty, Ms Chris
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 572–5
Maiden speech (21.11.97) 572–5
Questions
Egypt, Terrorism 151

McCartney, Mr Ian, Minister of State, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Questions
Departmental responsibilities, Scotland 283w
Disability Discrimination Act 1995 677–8w
Foreign investment in UK 106–7w, 282w
Foreign investment in UK, Departmental coordination 281w
Foreign investment in UK, Employment opportunities 192–4w
Health insurance 105w
Industrial tribunals, Employment discrimination 107w
Locate in Scotland 105w
Low pay 442
Low Pay Commission 281w, 441–2
Minimum wage 347w, 440–3
Ministers, Conflict of interests 444–5
Patents, Genetics 105–6w
Patents, Royalties 106w
Post Office 677w
Post offices 438
Post offices, Electricity meters 53w, 284w
Postal services 106w
Postal services, Private investment 439
Postal services, Rural areas 438–9
Trade union membership 194w
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC labour policy 284w
Working hours, EC law 53w, 439–40

McCartney, Mr Robert
Questions
Driving licences, Northern Ireland 213w
Magill, Ian, Paedophilia 322w
Northern Ireland government 582w, 958–9

McDonagh, Ms Siobhain
Questions
Deregulation initiative, Northern Ireland 579w

McDonnell, Mr John
Debates etc.
Kenya, Human rights (19.11.97) 299–302, 306
Questions
Biotechnology, Patents 286–7w, 413w
Industrial tribunals, Employment discrimination 107w
Kenya, Election observers 90w
Kenya, Overseas aid 89w
Planning authorities, Ethnic monitoring 197–8w

McDonnell, Mr John—continued*
Reel, Lakhinder 621

McGrady, Mr Eddie
Questions
Dounreay, Radiation hazards 325w, 629w
Downe Hospital 961
Gas supply industry, Northern Ireland 213w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 25–6w
Road construction, Northern Ireland 211–2w
Road works, Northern Ireland 212–4w
Strangford Lough, Ferries 210–1w

McIntosh, Miss Anne
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 246–7w
Crime, Rural areas 245–6w
Drinking and driving 440w
Economic situation, South East Asia 1083
Financial services, Regulatory systems 660w
International conferences, Canary Wharf 270w
Lockerbie, Bombings 767
Maintenance, Children 14
North Yorkshire Police, Police equipment 246w
Northern Ireland government 578w
Poaching, Punishment 245w
Public houses, Glass 247w
Rural areas, Crime 334–5w

McIsaac, Shona
Debates etc.
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 111

MacKay, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 171, 177–84
Questions
Adams, Gerry 959

Mackinlay, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
University finance (19.11.97) 283
Questions
Airports, Transport infrastructure 126w
Employment Service local offices, Grays 534w
European Parliament elections, Electoral systems 433w
Export promotion 763
Export promotion, Central Europe 436–7
Northern Ireland Forum 956

MacLaurin, Lord
691w

McLeish, Mr Henry, Minister for Home Affairs and Devolution, Scottish Office*
Debates etc.
Penninghame Prison (26.11.97) 952–4
Questions
Convictions, Scotland 502w
Devolution, Scotland 325w
Homicide, Sentencing 502w
Police, World Cup 628w
Road accidents, Scotland 261w

Maclennan, Rt Hon Robert
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 482–6, 522
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 91
Questions
Home care services 63w
Home care services, Scotland 629w

Maclennan, Rt Hon Robert—continued*
Open government, Contracts for services 309–10

McLoughlin, Mr Patrick
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 809

McNamara, Mr Kevin
Debates etc.
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents (25.11.97) 882–3
Northern Ireland, Points of order (18.11.97) 219
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 173–4, 178, 184–7, 189, 198, 215–6
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1204, 1215–8, 1266
Questions
Army in Northern Ireland 321–2w
Bombings, Dublin 109–10w
Bombs, Northern Ireland 634w
Death, Portadown 633–4w
Independent International Commission on Decommissioning 110w
Northern Ireland government 380w
Northern Ireland Victims of Violence Commission 110w
Police, Northern Ireland 630w
Police Authority for Northern Ireland, Manpower 633w
Prisoners, Republic of Ireland 46w
Prisoners' transfers, Republic of Ireland 46w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 629–32w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Germany 321w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Proof of identity 631w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Recruitment 632–4w
Scheduled offences, Costs 605–6w
Trials, Northern Ireland 109w, 605w, 637w
UN resolutions 103w

McNulty, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 462
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 663
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1004–7, 1010, 1018–9
Questions
Air bags, Research 196–7w
Demonstrations, Northern Ireland 580w
Higher education 161w
HM Coastguard 9–10w
Local Government Commission for England 9w
Racial attacks 632

MacShane, Mr Denis
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1172, 1178, 1184
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1211
Questions
Challenger tanks 72w
Developing countries trade, Dept for Education and Employment 158w
Developing countries trade, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 552w
Developing countries trade, Home Office 46w
Developing countries trade, Ministry of Defence 227w
Developing countries trade, Northern Ireland Office 582w

MacShane, Mr Denis—continued
Developing countries trade, President of the Council 108–9w
Manufacturing industries 288–9w
Monitor Consultancy 511–2w
Social security benefits, Advisory services 11

Mactaggart, Fiona
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1112

McWalter, Mr Tony
Questions
Northern Ireland government 579w

McWilliam, Mr John
Questions
Ministry of Defence, Buildings 602w
Ministry of Defence, Flags 603w

Madel, Sir David
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 469, (27.11.97) 1122

Magill, Ian
Paedophilia 322w

Maginnis, Mr Ken
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland, Points of order (18.11.97) 218
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 169–70, 187–91, 193
Questions
University of Ulster, Springvale initiative 109w

Magistrates
226w

Mahon, Mrs Alice
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 24, 34
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1101

Maiden speeches
Clark, Paul (19.11.97) 251–4
Foster, Michael (21.11.97) 592–5
Henderson, Ivan (17.11.97) 122–4
Hopkins, Kelvin (28.11.97) 1251–4
McCafferty, Chris (21.11.97) 572–5
Norris, Dan (28.11.97) 1224–5
Singh, Marsha (20.11.97) 491–4

Maintenance
Children 14, 17–8, 80w, 442w, 532–3w

Maize
Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes 21w

Malaria
Blood tests 169w
Drug side effects 311w
Drugs 516w

Malaysia
Air routes 626w

Malins, Mr Humfrey
Debates etc.
Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL), Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1035–7
Questions
Drugs and crime 619–20
Judges, Domestic violence 83–4w
Politics and government 971
Prison Officers' Association 432w
Railway travel 145

Mallon, Mr Seamus
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 174, 183, 188–9, 192–6
Questions
Internal security operations, Armagh 580w
Northern Ireland government 958
VAT registration, Civil service manpower 467–8w

Manchester United Football Club
Carrington Moss 336w, 376w, 407–8w

Mandelson, Mr Peter, Minister Without Portfolio
Questions
Food industry 668w
Food Standards Agency 668w
Food Standards Agency, Departmental responsibilities 668w
France 388w
Millennium 236w
Millennium Exhibition 77w
Millennium Exhibition, Advertising agencies 473–4w
Millennium Exhibition, Christianity 388w
Millennium Exhibition, Income 77–8w
Millennium Exhibition, Industrial accidents 92w
Millennium Exhibition, Smoking 388w
New Millennium Experience 77w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Cabinet Office 250w

Manpower
Child Support Agency 87–8w
HM Coastguard 335–6w
Metropolitan Police 432w
MI5 101w
Non-departmental public bodies 422–4w
Police 437w, 452–3w
Police Authority for Northern Ireland 633w
Rescue services 335–6w

Manufacturing industries
53w, 288–9w
EC action 445–6

Maples, Mr John
Debates etc.
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 329–30
Questions
Dept of Health, Official engagements 317w
General practitioners, Departmental correspondence 425w
Jowell, Tessa 317w, 429–30w
Ministers, Conflict of interests 269–70w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 268–9w, 344w, 405w, 424–5w, 603w, 685w

Marek, Dr John
Questions
CELTEC 639w
CELTEC, Subsidiary companies 639–40w
Gibraltar, European Parliament elections 680w
Jobseeker's allowance 329w
Spain, Air traffic 615w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Gibraltar 753–4

Marginal tax rates
Income tax 468w

Marsden, Mr Gordon
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 641

Marsden, Mr Gordon—continued
Questions
Government information services 311
Lasers, Product safety 644–5w
Parole 431–2w

Marsden, Mr Paul
Questions
China, Foreign relations 477w

Marshall, Mr Jim
Questions
Compliance cost assessments 90w
Motor industry 437–8

Marshall-Andrews, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 541, 562–9, 604
Questions
Millennium Exhibition, Advertising agencies 473–4w
Millennium Exhibition, Disclosure of information 179w
Millennium Exhibition, Expenditure 179w

Maternity benefits
Self-employed 569w

Maternity services
Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust 961–2

Maude, Rt Hon Francis
Questions
Film industry 671w
New Opportunities Fund 456–7w

Mawhinney, Rt Hon Sir Brian
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 455–7
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 803, 814, 817–26, 871
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1239–44
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1093–5
Questions
Burglary, Sentencing 624–5
Economic and monetary union, Business 459w
Electronic tagging 630
European Convention on Human Rights 627–8
Health service staff, Political impartiality 653w
Health service staff, Vacancies 652w
Labour Party, Finance 405w
Murdoch, Rupert 603w
Prisons, Construction 613w

May, Mrs Theresa
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 794
Questions
Action 2000 50–1w, 190–1w, 346w
Export Control Organisation, Performance standards 513w
Export licensing 512–3w, 645w
Export promotion, Exchange rates 436

Meacher, Rt Hon Michael, Minister for the Environment, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 257–9
Questions
Air pollution, Information services 298–300w
Climate Change Convention 464w
Climate Change Convention, Carbon dioxide 369w
Commuters 136
EC Environment Council 199w

Meacher, Rt Hon Michael*—*continued
EC Environment Council, Compliance cost assessments 623w
Environment protection, Business 135–6
Environment protection, Taxation 136
Exhaust emission controls 136–7
Rural areas, Crime 334w
Water pollution 626–7w

Means tested benefits
16
Pensioners 570w
Social security recipients 526w

Meat
Cancer 517–9w

Medals
Ambulance services 310w

Medical equipment
Chlorofluorocarbons 316w, 345w

Medical ethics
Genetic engineering 119–20w

Medical examinations
Driving licences 466w
War pensions 566–7w

Medical malpractice
Legal aid 519w

Medical records
Myelography 307w

Medical research
Chronic fatigue syndrome 684w
Diabetes 312w
Gulf War syndrome 496w
Prisoners 451–2w

Medical treatments
Cancer 637w
Cannabis 596w
Drug abuse 650w

Mediterranean region
EC external relations 402w

Members
Corruption 433w
Electronic surveillance 17–8w

Members' allowances
Bicycles 409w

Members' conduct
Speaker's rulings and statements (26.11.97) 974

Members' correspondence
292w
Female circumcision 687w
Ludgershall 243w

Members' oath and affirmation
Lait, Jacqui (26.11.97) 975
Oaten, Mark (25.11.97) 798

Mental health services
428w
Hospital beds 653–4w

Mental illness
428w
Costs 428w
Departmental coordination 428w

Mental patients
650–1w

Mentally disadvantaged
Criminal proceedings 628

Merchant ships
(17.11.97) 122–30

Mercury
Dental services 648w
Health hazards 648w

Merron, Ms Gillian
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 793
Questions
Drugs and crime 435–6w
Home care services, Regulatory systems 58w

Merseyside
Ports 137w

Merseyside and North Wales Blood Service
Public appointments 522w

Mesothelioma
Death 203–10w

Metropolitan counties
Museums and galleries 548w

Metropolitan Police
Complaints against police 215w
Manpower 432w

MI5
101w
Contracts 101w
Manpower 101w
Personal records 218w
Subversion 101w

MI6
103–4w

Michael, Mr Alun*, *Minister of State, Home Office
Questions
Bus lanes, Road traffic offences 437–8w
Charities, Intellectual property 614w
Children's rights 612–3w
Closed circuit television 630–1
Closed circuit television, Finance 541w, 631
Complaints against police 98w
Crime 454w
Crime, Rural areas 245–6w
Crime prevention, Armed forces cadets 455w
Crime prevention, Expenditure 246w
Crime prevention, Local government functions 669w
Crimes of violence 214–5w
Criminal injuries compensation scheme 432–3w
Criminal proceedings, Administrative delays 432w
Detection rates 92–3w, 97w
Drinking and driving 440w
Driving offences, Punishment 245w
EC law 321w
European Police Office, Immunity from prosecution 453w
Extradition, South Africa 542w
Firearms, Compensation 41w, 542–3w
Firearms, Police 41–2w
Home Office exports initiative, Companies 42–3w
Homicide, Sentencing 451w
Lasers, Assaults on police 215w
Lasers, Prosecutions 454w
Members, Corruption 433w
Metropolitan Police, Complaints against police 215w
Metropolitan Police, Manpower 432w
Motor vehicles, Inspections 454w
Neighbourhood nuisance 431w, 434w
North Yorkshire Police, Police equipment 246w
Perjury, Costs 216w
Police, Finance 94–8w, 433w, 623
Police, Manpower 437w, 452–3w
Police, Restraint techniques 434w
Police patrolling 621–2

Michael, Mr Alun*—*continued
Prisoners' release, Sexual offences 435w
Reel, Lakhinder 621
Rehabilitation of offenders 433w
Right of silence 441w
Security industry, Regulatory systems 441w
Sexual offences, Sentencing 608–9w
Special constables 622–3
Telephone tapping 38w
Transport infrastructure 609w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Capital punishment 247w
World Cup Coordination Group 613–4w
Young offenders 436w
Young offenders, Parents 434w
Young offenders, Research 611w
Young offenders, Youth organisations 541w

Michie, Mr Bill
Questions
Day care of children, Vetting 971–2

Michie, Mrs Ray
Debates etc.
Rescue services (26.11.97) 892–3
Questions
Digital television, Gaelic language 263w
Educational finance, Argyll and Bute 261–2w
Road accidents, Scotland 261w

Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust
Hospital waiting lists 429w

Middle East
Peace negotiations 152–3, 759–60
Terrorism 150–1

Migration and Visa Correspondence Unit
Administrative delays 479w

Milburn, Mr Alan*, *Minister of State, Dept of Health
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 232–8
NHS, Cornwall (26.11.97) 937–40
Public service (17.11.97) 27
Wharfedale Hospital (27.11.97) 1193–6
Questions
Breast cancer, Screening 519–20w
Clinical audit 342w
Computers in National Health Service 60w
Dental services 423w
Dentures, Young people 341–2w
Emergency services, Greater London 521–2w
Family practitioner services, Counselling 341w
General practitioners 340w
General practitioners, Departmental correspondence 425w
General practitioners, Nursing homes 425w
General practitioners, Pay 60w
GP fundholders, Finance 428–9w, 654–5w
GP fundholders, NHS internal market 428w
Health action zones, Rural areas 649w
Health authorities, Contracts 343w
Health authorities, Finance 651w
Health hazards, Mercury 648w
Health insurance 316w
Health service staff, Political impartiality 653w
Health service staff, Vacancies 652–3w
Health services 318–9w
Health services, Expenditure 62–3w
Health services, Greater London 174w, 343w
Health services, Rural areas 519w
Hospital consultants, Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 520w

Milburn, Mr Alan*—*continued
Hospital waiting lists 318w, 426w
Hospital waiting lists, Death 427w
Hospital waiting lists, Elderly 520–1w
Hospital waiting lists, NHS and private practice 426–7w
Hospital waiting lists, Sports competitors 172w
Junior hospital doctors, Working hours 317–8w
Kidderminster Hospital 593–4w
Kidderminster Hospital, Accident and emergency departments 594w
Kidderminster Hospital, Capital investment 594w
Kidderminster Hospital, Health service staff 648–9w
Medical equipment, Chlorofluorocarbons 316w
Medical malpractice, Legal aid 519w
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust, Hospital waiting lists 429w
Mortuary, Contracts for services 344w
NHS, Energy conservation 342–3w
NHS, Millennium compliance 649–50w
NHS, Ministers' domestic visits 597–8w
NHS, Per capita costs 57w
NHS administration 427w
NHS complaints 59w
NHS finance 58w, 319w, 343w, 430w
NHS finance, Weather 343–4w
NHS pensions, Early retirement 307–8w
NHS Pensions Agency, Doctors 308–9w
NHS trusts, Finance 430–1w
NHS trusts, Northern and Yorkshire region 314–5w
NHS trusts, Public appointments 58w, 175w, 340–1w, 597w
NHS trusts, Shropshire 520w
Nurses, Professional qualifications 594–5w
Nurses, Skill shortages 654w
Pharmacists, Community health services 649w
Prescription charges exemptions 343w
Prescriptions, Elderly 61w
Residential care, Sedatives and hypnotics 59–60w
Speech therapists 57w
Sussex Ambulance Service, Pension funds 648w

Military aid
Armed forces training 482w

Military aircraft
Air safety 563w
Repairs and maintenance 563w

Military vehicles
Bosnia-Herzegovina 680w

Milk
Pasteurisation 21–2w, 77w, 355–6w
Production quotas 525w
Scotland 77w

Milk Development Council
Taxation 640–1w

Milk Marque
Aeron Valley Creameries 641w

Millennium
236w

Millennium compliance
190–1w, 329w, 401w
Bankruptcy 572w
Ministerial statements (27.11.97) 1104–16
NHS 649–50w
Treasury 110w

Millennium Exhibition
77w
Advertising agencies 473–4w

Millennium Exhibition*—*continued
Christianity 388w
Disclosure of information 179w
Expenditure 179w
Income 77–8w
Industrial accidents 92w
Smoking 388w

Miller, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1113

Millisle
Street lighting 272w

Mineral resources
British Indian Ocean Territory 10w

Mines
561w
Bomb disposal 493w
Iraq 447–8w
Treaties 398–9w

Minimum wage
347w, 440–3, (26.11.97) 975, 1083–4

Minister for Women
292–4w

"Ministerial Code"
269–70w

Ministerial duties
Dept of Trade and Industry 645–7w

Ministerial policy advisors
237w, 317, 472–3w
Conflict of interests 408w
Contracts of employment 237w
Dept of Health 311w

Ministerial statements
418–9w
Economic policy (25.11.97) 773–98
European Council (24.11.97) 633–45
Home detention curfews (20.11.97) 453–63
Millennium compliance (27.11.97) 1104–16
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 155–63
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 327–38
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1089–103

Ministers
Conflict of interests 269–70w, 429–30w, 444–5, 514w, 603w
Electronic mail 267w, 312
Telephones 420w
Welsh Office 506w

Ministers' domestic visits
604w
Greater London 597–8w
NHS 597–8w

Ministers' visits abroad
Canada 767–8
Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 78w, 242w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 382w
Dept for Education and Employment 158w
Dept of Trade and Industry 104–5w
Germany 291w
Home Office 440w
India 767–8
Ministry of Defence 559–60w
Northern Ireland Office 379w
Open government 310
Prime Minister 267w

Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food
523w
Advisory services 522w
EC action 523w

Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food*—*continued
Electronic mail 273w
Greenhouse effect 117–8w
Open government 230w
Press releases 525–6w
Public appointments 668w
Regional panels 412w
Relocation of employees 22w

Ministry of Defence
Buildings 602w
Developing countries trade 227w
Electronic mail 229w
Flags 603w
Greenhouse effect 69–70w
Ministers' visits abroad 559–60w
Nottingham 72w
Open government 390w
Press releases 148–9w
Public appointments 391w
Technology foresight programme 561–2w
Treaty of Amsterdam 393w

Mitchell, Mr Austin
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 534, 542, 552, 556, 569, 579–83
Questions
Advertising 12w
Bridges, Road works 1–2w
Court rules and procedures, EC law 56–7w
Customs, Information technology 112w
EC internal trade, Harmonisation of legislation 510w
Economic and monetary union 18w, 330w
Economic and monetary union, Exchange rates 330w, 658w
Educational institutions, Smoking 162w
EURATOM 347w
European Central Bank 549w
European Central Bank, Economic and monetary union 357w
European Central Bank, Public appointments 331w, 469w
European Court of Justice 44–5w
External Frontiers Convention 43–4w
Flood control, Standard spending assessments 121–2w
Hong Kong, Human rights 482w
Millennium Exhibition, Smoking 388w
Public sector debt 330–1w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 519w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Immigration controls 36w
Treaty of Rome 479w
VAT, Tax harmonisation 234w

Mixed credits
448w

Monaghan
Bombings 109–10w

Monitor Consultancy
511–2w

Monopolies and Mergers Commission
Travel agents 52w

Montserrat
Refugees 159w, 262w, 290–1w

Monuments
Prisoners of war 243w

Moonie, Dr Lewis
Questions
Scientific advisers 575w

Moore, Mr Michael
Questions
Hospital consultants, Vacancies 181–3w

Moorings
Port of London Authority (24.11.97) 746–52

Moran, Ms Margaret
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 196–7
Questions
Demonstrations, Northern Ireland 580w
New deal for lone parents 7
New deal for young unemployed 338w

Morgan, Mr Alasdair
Debates etc.
Penninghame Prison (26.11.97) 949–52
Questions
Alcoholic drinks duties, EC action 762–3
Welfare to work, Scotland 489–90w, 577w

Morgan, Ms Julie
Questions
Day care of children 163w
Mental health services 428w
Mental illness 428w
Mental illness, Costs 428w
Mental illness, Departmental coordination 428w
Open government 309

Morgan, Mr Rhodri
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1108
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 638
Questions
Cardiff Bay Development Corporation, Urban development grants 640w
Economic and monetary union, Business 657w
Heritage Lottery Fund, Expenditure 386–7w
National Assembly of Wales 506w
National Assembly of Wales, Parliamentary buildings 683w
Public expenditure, Devolution 1080–1
Public utilities, Regional selective assistance 640w

Morley, Mr Elliot, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food*
Debates etc.
Smallholdings, Local government land (26.11.97) 945–8
Questions
Agricultural land, Environment protection 229–30w
Agricultural production, Disclosure of information 116w
Agricultural production, Greenhouse effect 117w
Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 118w
Agriculture, Young people 230w
Animal welfare, Slaughterhouses 119w
Arable area payments scheme 278–9w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 279w
Bruton dam 411w
Coastal protection, Waveney 668w
Common fisheries policy 279w
Electronic mail, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 273w
Export of live animals, Animal welfare 116–7w
Farmers, Hunting 118w
Farmers, Surveys 118–9w
Fishing Vessels (Decommissioning) Scheme 1997 276w
Flood control, Somerset 411w
Forestry Commission, Land acquisition 273w

Morley, Mr Elliot—continued*
Genetic engineering, Medical ethics 119–20w
Greenhouse effect, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 117–8w
Hill farming 586w
Hill farming, Farm incomes 115–6w
Land pollution 116w
Multiannual guidance programme, Fishing vessels 584–5w
Open government, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 230w
Organic farming 119w, 587w
Press releases, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 525–6w
Public appointments, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 668w
Ritual slaughter 585w

Morris, Bill
970

Morris, Ms Estelle, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept for Education and Employment*
Questions
Art education 30w
Curriculum, European Communities 31w
Educational assessment, Costs 492w
Educational institutions, Smoking 162w
Music education 31w
Selective schools 490–1w
Teachers, Performance appraisal 363w

Morris, Rt Hon John, Attorney-General*
Questions
Crown Prosecution Service 667w
Dale, Philip 458w
Homicide, Sentencing 458w
Official secrets, Hong Kong 250w
Open government, Attorney General 249w
Press releases, Attorney General 249–50w
Scheduled offences, Costs 605–6w
Sexual offences, Children 606w
Trials, Northern Ireland 605w

Mortgages
Income support 140w, 329w, 570w

Mortuary
Contracts for services 192w, 344w

Moss, Mr Malcolm
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 211–3
Oral question time intervention (26.11.97) 967
Questions
Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust, Maternity services 961–2

Motability
567–8w

Motor industry
437–8
Takeovers 445

Motor vehicles
Inspections 454w, 553w
Petrol alternatives 135w

Mountford, Kali
Questions
Chronic fatigue syndrome, Medical research 684w
Disability living allowance 141w
EC labour policy 764–5
Economic and monetary union, Business 657w
Non-departmental public bodies, Open government 314

Mowlam, Rt Hon Marjorie, Secretary of State for Northern Ireland*
Questions
Adams, Gerry 959
Army in Northern Ireland, Prisoners 581w
Demonstrations, Northern Ireland 580w
Famine, Northern Ireland 957
Northern Ireland government 578–9w, 957–9
Official visits, Northern Ireland 958
Police, Northern Ireland 380w
Prisoners' transfers, Northern Ireland 579–80w

Mullin, Mr Chris
Debates etc.
Welfare of Pigs Bill, 1R (26.11.97) 976–8
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1096
Questions
Complaints against police 98w
Metropolitan Police, Complaints against police 215w
Museums and galleries, Metropolitan counties 548w
Offshore safety 294w
Open government 315
Police patrolling 622
Somalia, Disaster relief 178–9w
Transport of radioactive materials, Air transport 148w
Vietnam, Disaster relief 179w

Multiannual guidance programme
Fishing vessels 584–5w

Multinational companies
Codes of practice 644w

Murdoch, Rupert
603w

Murphy, Mr Denis
Questions
Child Support Agency 532–3w
Development areas 572w
Enterprise zones 554w
Foreign investment in UK, Employment opportunities 192–4w
National Lottery, Wansbeck 383–6w
NHS trusts, Northern and Yorkshire region 314–5w

Murphy, Mr Jim
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 160

Murphy, Mr Paul, Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office*
Questions
Aerials, Planning permission 635w
Developing countries trade, Northern Ireland Office 582w
Driving licences, Northern Ireland 213w
EC grants and loans 960–1
EC grants and loans, Northern Ireland 959–60
Election administration, Northern Ireland 956
Electronic mail, Northern Ireland Office 582w
Farmers, Northern Ireland 485w
Greenhouse effect, Northern Ireland Office 26w
Ministers' visits abroad, Northern Ireland Office 379w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 583w
Northern Ireland Forum 956
Northern Ireland government 380w, 582w
Northern Ireland Victims of Violence Commission 110w
Press releases, Northern Ireland Office 582–3w
Public expenditure, Northern Ireland 960

Murphy, Mr Paul—continued
Road construction, Northern Ireland 211–2w
Road traffic, Northern Ireland 483–6w
Road works, Northern Ireland 212–4w
Sinn Fein 584w
Strangford Lough, Ferries 210–1w
Street lighting, Millisle 272w

Museums and galleries
Admission charges 674w
Coal mining 510w
Government grants 322–4w
Metropolitan counties 548w
Museums and Galleries Commission 548w
Northern region 322–4w
Tyne and Wear 258w
VAT 674w

Museums and Galleries Commission
Museums and galleries 548w

Music education
31w

MV Gaul
Shipping accidents 295–6w, (25.11.97) 879–86

MV Sea Empress
Oil pollution 693w

Myelography
Medical records 307w

National Assembly of Wales
187w, 506w, 968–9, (26.11.97) 975
Open government 309
Parliamentary buildings 683w

National Asset Register
359–60w

National Blood Authority
169w
Finance 171–2w
Public appointments 309w

National Blood Transfusion Service
Finance 170w, 172w
Performance standards 171w
Redundancy 171w

National Health Service (Equity of Funding) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
1R (18.11.97) 165–7

National insurance contributions
Actors 294w

National Lottery
Public opinion 91w
Wansbeck 383–6w

National Minimum Wage Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
1R (26.11.97) 975

National parks
123w

National Sports Institute
see UK Sports Institute

National Transcommunications
457w

NATO
678–9w
Gibraltar 679–80w
Russia 679w
Spain 221w

Nature conservation
Droughts 459w
EC law 459w
Water supply industry 459w

Navigational aids
(18.11.97) 218

Naysmith, Dr Douglas
Questions
University finance 155–6w

Neighbourhood nuisance
431w, 434w
Wales 638–9w

Neill Committee
see Committee on Standards in Public Life

New deal for lone parents
6–8, 10–1, 445w, 540w, 664w
Day care of children 81w
Income support 664w

New deal for schools
365–6w

New deal for young unemployed
33w, 338w, 695–7w

"New Leadership for London"
4w, 374w

New Millennium Experience
77w

New Opportunities Fund
456–7w

Newcastle upon Tyne
Population 297w

Newry
VAT registration 467–8w

Newspaper press
Retail prices 418w

NHS
Age discrimination 520w
Cornwall (26.11.97) 932–40
Energy conservation 342–3w
Millennium compliance 649–50w
Ministers' domestic visits 597–8w
Northern Ireland 583w, 962
Per capita costs 57w
Waste disposal 342–3w

NHS administration
427w

NHS and private practice
Hospital waiting lists 426–7w

NHS complaints
59w

NHS finance
58w, 319w, 343w, 430w, 968
Northern Ireland 25–6w, 583w, 636w, 962
Scotland 501w
Wales 24w, 503w
Weather 343–4w

NHS internal market
GP fundholders 428w

NHS pensions
Early retirement 307–8w

NHS Pensions Agency
Doctors 308–9w

NHS trusts
Chartermark scheme 237w
Finance 430–1w
Northern and Yorkshire region 314–5w
Public appointments 58w, 175w, 340–1w, 597w
Shropshire 520w
Wales 24w

Nicholls, Mr Patrick
Debates etc.
NHS, Cornwall (26.11.97) 936
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1205, 1217, 1262

Nigeria
Democracy 474w

"No More Excuses White Paper"
(27.11.97) 1089–103

Nolan Committee
see Committee on Standards in Public Life

Non-departmental public bodies
238w, 316
Disclosure of information 238–9w, 315–6
Local government 314–5
Manpower 422–4w
Open government 314
Public appointments 115w, 314
Scotland 240–1w
Women 312–3

Non-fossil fuel obligation
507–10w

Norfolk
Community hospitals 174w, 316–7w
Elderly 256–7w
Electronic tagging 35w

Norman, Mr Archie
Questions
Road finance 194–5w

Norris, Dan
Debates etc.
Maiden speech (28.11.97) 1224–5
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1224–5

North Atlantic Treaty Organisation
see NATO

North East region
Pensioners 570w

North East Wales Institute of Higher Education
578w

North Essex Health Authority
(18.11.97) 220–38

North West region
Air transport 625w
Regional government 133

North Yorkshire Police
Police equipment 246w

Northern and Yorkshire region
NHS trusts 314–5w

Northern Ireland
Ambulance services 635–6w
Arson 378–9w
Bombs 634w
Chiropodists 28w
Chronic fatigue syndrome 271–2w
Civil proceedings (27.11.97) 1189
Demonstrations 580w
Deregulation initiative (19.11.97) 426, 579w
Discrimination 963
Driving licences 213w
EC grants and loans 959–60
Election administration 956
Election offences 956
Employment 579w, 581–2w
Famine 957
Farmers 485w
Foreign investment in UK 581w
Gas supply industry 213w
Higher education 109w
Hospital waiting lists 961
Integrated schools 583w, 955
Land pollution (25.11.97) 878
NHS 583w, 962
NHS finance 25–6w, 583w, 636w, 962
Official visits 958
Police 380w, 630w
Pollution control (25.11.97) 878
Prisoners' transfers 579–80w
Public expenditure 960

Northern Ireland—continued*
Road construction 211–2w
Road haulage industry 550w
Road traffic 483–6w
Road works 212–4w
Sunday trading (19.11.97) 426
Terrorism (18.11.97) 168–217
Tourism 580–1w
Trials 109w, 605w, 637w
University finance 583w

Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991
Questions
581w

Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996
Questions
109w, 605w

Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R and Money res* (18.11.97) 168–217
Business questions (27.11.97) 1125–6
Questions
605–6w

Northern Ireland Forum
956

Northern Ireland government
380w, 578–9w, 582w, 957–9

Northern Ireland Grand Committee
(26.11.97) 975, 1057

Northern Ireland Office
Developing countries trade 582w
Electronic mail 582w
Greenhouse effect 26w
Ministers' visits abroad 379w
Press releases 582–3w

Northern Ireland Police Authority
see Police Authority for Northern Ireland

Northern Ireland Victims of Violence Commission
110w

Northern region
EC grants and loans 372w
Museums and galleries 322–4w

Nottingham
Ministry of Defence 72w

Novel foods
Genetically modified organisms 524w

Nuclear disarmament
398w

Nuclear power
573w

Nuclear safeguards
Plutonium 419w

Nuclear weapons
760

Nuclear weapons policy
71w

Nuclear weapons tests
Christmas Island 64–5w

Nurses
Professional qualifications 594–5w
Skill shortages 654w

Nursing homes
General practitioners 425w

Nutrition and health
686w
Vitamins 585w

Oaten, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Members' oath and affirmation, Oaten, Mark (25.11.97) 798

Obesity
315w

O'Brien, Mr Mike, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Home Office*
Debates etc.
Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL), Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1032–3, 1038–41
Questions
Deportation 214w
EC immigration 547w
European Convention on Human Rights 435w
Illegal immigrants, Costs 439w
Overseas students, Eastern Europe 607–8w
Political refugees 36w, 97–8w, 615
Political refugees, Ferries 615–6
Political refugees, Kent 616
Political refugees, Reception centres 440–1w
Racial attacks 632

O'Brien, Mr William
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 928
Questions
Closed circuit television 630–1
EC grants and loans 960–1
Local government finance 137
School buildings 365–6w

Occupational pensions
1073–4

Offences against the Person Act 1861
Questions
451w

Offensive Weapons Act 1996
Questions
454w

Officer Training Corps
394w

Offices
Empty property 374–5w

Official cars
Expenditure 251w

Official engagements
139w, 222w
Dept of Health 317w

Official hospitality
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 13–4w
Dept for International Development 494w
Dept of Health 320w
Dept of Social Security 442–4w
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 2w, 10w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 394–5w
Scottish Office 627w
Treasury 112–4w

Official residences
270w
Gibraltar 562–3w

Official secrets
Hong Kong 250w

Official Secrets Act 1989
Questions
250w

Official visits
Northern Ireland 958
Pinochet, Augusto 542w

Offshore safety
294w

O'Hara, Mr Edward
Questions
Christmas bonus 571w
Railway signals 689w
Retirement pensions, Age addition 571w

Oil companies
Environment protection 135–6

Oil pollution
MV Sea Empress 693w

Olner, Mr Bill
Questions
Criminal proceedings, Mentally disadvantaged 628

O'Neill, Mr Martin
Questions
Import duties, Spacecraft 231w
Industrial investment, EC grants and loans 449

Open government
239w, 309, 315, 317
Animal Procedures Committee 310
Attorney General 249w
Contracts for services 309–10
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 458w
Dept of Health 313w
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 334w
Expenditure 78w
Fees and charges 316
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 220w
Home Office 454w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 326w
Ministers' visits abroad 310
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 230w
Ministry of Defence 390w
National Assembly of Wales 309
Non-departmental public bodies 314
President of the Council 361w
Scottish Office 420–1w
Scottish Parliament 309
Treasury 331w
Welsh Office 264w

"Open Government White Paper"
672w

Open prisons
Scotland (26.11.97) 949–54

Opencast mining
Planning permission 139–40

"Opening up Quangos Consultation Paper"
115w, 238–9w

Opik, Mr Lembit
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 178, 197–200
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1208
Questions
NHS, Northern Ireland 583w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 583w
Northern Ireland government 959
University finance 363w
University finance, Northern Ireland 583w
University finance, Scotland 576–7w
University finance, Wales 381w, 505–6w

Opposition days
Public service (17.11.97) 21–80

Oral questions
Dept of Trade and Industry 603w

Orange badge scheme
553–4w

Organic farming
22w, 119w, 587w

Organisation of African Unity
EC aid 397–8w

Osteoporosis
685–6w

Ostriches
Slaughterhouses 120–1w

Ottaway, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 350–6, 379, 390, 424–6, (24.11.97) 647–50, 655–6, 665, 686–7, 690–1, 695–7, 700, 703–4, 708, 711–5
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1005, 1012, 1018–22
Questions
Cars 144
Pedestrian crossings 133w

Overseas aid
Audit 644w
Bosnia-Herzegovina 493w
East Timor 178w
El Salvador 447w
Kenya 89w
Police training 543–4w
Sierra Leone 494w
Yugoslavia 494–5w
Zambia 449w
Zimbabwe 449w

Overseas students
Agricultural workers 607–8w
Eastern Europe 607–8w

Oxford University
Cost per student 338w
Higher education admission 363–4w, 590w
University finance 33w

P and O
Sealink 288w, 419w, 450

Paedophilia
Magill, Ian 322w
Rehabilitation of offenders 656w

Page, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 925
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 489–91
Questions
Animal experiments 93–4w
Animal experiments, Disclosure of information 94w

Paice, Mr James
Debates etc.
Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, Disease control (26.11.97) 1064–6
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 639
Plant Varieties Bill, Lords amendments (26.11.97) 1042–4, 1047–8, 1051, 1053–5
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Disease control 663w
Milk Development Council, Taxation 640–1w
Milk Marque, Aeron Valley Creameries 641w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Regional panels 412w
Tipping of waste 626w

Paint
Lead (19.11.97) 343–5

Paisley, Rev Ian
Questions
Official visits, Northern Ireland 958

Pakistan
Entry clearances 478w, 681w

Palmer, Dr Nick
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1132, 1147, 1161, 1181–4
Questions
Export of live animals, Animal welfare 116–7w
Export of live animals, Pigs 117w

Parenting orders
434w

Parents
Young offenders 434w

Parking
Buses 369–70w
Urban areas 555–6w

Parliamentary buildings
Alcoholic drinks 474w
National Assembly of Wales 683w

Parliamentary procedure
551w

Parliamentary questions
Dept of Trade and Industry 420w

Parole
431–2w

Pasteurisation
Milk 21–2w, 77w, 355–6w

Patents
Biotechnology 62w, 286–7w, 412–3w, 515–6w
Genetics 105–6w
Royalties 106w

Paterson, Mr Owen
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 472
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 462
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1168, 1176
Questions
Coal mining 447
Competition Bill (HL) 1997/98 107w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Ministerial duties 645–7w
Export Control Organisation, Administrative delays 513–4w

Patient's Charter
Hospital waiting lists 313–4

Pay television
Competition 181w

Peace negotiations
Israel 759–60
Middle East 152–3, 759–60

Pedestrian crossings
133w

Pedestrians
Road accidents 195w

Pendry, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 664
Questions
NHS trusts, Public appointments 340–1w

Penninghame Prison
(26.11.97) 949–54

Pension funds
537–8w
Advance corporation tax 111w
Scotland 9
Sussex Ambulance Service 648w

Pension Provision Group
8

Pension rights
8–9
EC staff 547–8w
Women 9–10

Pensioners
Annuities 111w
Driving licences 294–5w
Heating 536w
Income support 5, 85w
Means tested benefits 570w
North East region 570w
Social security claims 9

Pensions
4–5, 84w, 538–9w, 964
Divorce settlements 17, 83w, 86w
Information services 84w
Prison staff 219w
Women 17

Pensions review
8, 85–6w, 536w, 539w
Christmas bonus 5, 537w

Performance appraisal
Teachers 363w

Perham, Ms Linda
Questions
London Underground 141

Perjury
Costs 216w

Personal injury
Children 326w

Personal pensions
Ministerial statements (18.11.97) 155–63

Personal records
MI5 218w

Pesticide residues
Food 20w

Pesticides Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R* (28.11.97) 1272

Petrol
Pollution (19.11.97) 292–8

Petrol alternatives
Motor vehicles 135w

Pets
Animal welfare 214w

Pharmacists
Community health services 649w
Prisons 41w

Pickles, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 348–9, 358, 360–3, 367, 370, 374, 379–80, 396, 404–6, 418, (24.11.97) 705–6, 708, 710, 716, 735, 739–41
Harold Wood Hospital, Public petitions (24.11.97) 746
Questions
Environment protection, Taxation 136

Pickthall, Mr Colin
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1203, 1232–5

Pickthall, Mr Colin*—*continued
Questions
Crop spraying, Sulphuric acid 525w
EC labour policy 764
Non-departmental public bodies 238w
Small businesses, Advisory services 282w
Welfare to work, Lancashire 340w, 488w

Pigs
Animal welfare (26.11.97) 976–8
Export of live animals 117w
Xenotransplantation 651–2w

Pike, Mr Peter L
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1124–5
Questions
EC enlargement 477w
Minimum wage 441, 1084
Pensions review, Christmas bonus 5
Probation, Prisons 434w
Road works 142

Pinochet, Augusto
615w
Official visits 542w

Planning appeals
J Sainsbury 690w

Planning authorities
Ethnic monitoring 197–8w

Planning obligations
British Rail 129w

Planning permission
121w, 197w
Aerials 2–3w, 196w, 620w, 635w
Opencast mining 139–40
Shopping centres 335w
Supermarkets 405–6w, 461w
Water and sewerage companies 303w

Plant genetics
106w

Plant Varieties Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
Lords amendts (26.11.97) 1042–56
Royal Assent (27.11.97) 1088

Plaskitt, Mr James
Questions
Road accidents 619w

Playing fields
Land acquisition 161–2w

Plutonium
Nuclear safeguards 419w

Poaching
Punishment 245w

Police
China 177w
Finance 94–8w, 433w, 623
Firearms 41–2w
Manpower 437w, 452–3w
Northern Ireland 380w, 630w
Restraint techniques 434w
Scotland 628w
World Cup 628w

Police and Magistrates Courts Act 1994
Questions
452–3w

Police Authority for Northern Ireland
Manpower 633w

Police equipment
North Yorkshire Police 246w

Police patrolling
621–2, 624

Police powers
Travelling people 626

Police stations
Coleraine 483w

Police training
Overseas aid 543–4w

Political impartiality
Civil servants 236–7w, 553w
Health service staff 653w

Political parties
Finance 269w, 289w, 318–9, 405w, 969–70

Political refugees
36w, 97–8w, 615
Ferries 615–6
Government grants to local authorities 173–4w
Kent 616, 683–4w
Local government expenditure 173–4w
Reception centres 440–1w
Social security benefits 139w
Treaty of Amsterdam 608w

Politics and government
971–2

Pollution
Petrol (19.11.97) 292–8
Wales (19.11.97) 292–8

Pollution control
Northern Ireland (25.11.97) 878

Pond, Mr Chris
Questions
Earnings top-up 140w
Family credit 140–1w
Jobseeker's allowance 529w
Low Pay Commission 281w
Pay 18–20w
Stakeholder pensions 138w

Pope, Mr Greg, An Assistant Whip
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 223

Population
Newcastle upon Tyne 297w

Port of London Authority
Moorings (24.11.97) 746–52

Portadown
Death 633–4w

Portavogie
Aerials 635w

Porton Down
Animal experiments 500w

Ports
Merseyside 137w
Roads 143

Post Office
677w

Post offices
438
Electricity meters 53w, 284w

Postal services
106w
House of Commons 327w
Private investment 439
Rural areas 438–9
Surveillance 100w

Pound, Mr Stephen
Questions
EC defence policy 481w
Isaac Newton Group of Telescopes 51w

Poverty
535w
Unemployed 83w

Premenstrual syndrome
Vitamin B6 584w

Prentice, Mr Gordon
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 466–7
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1114
MV Gaul, Shipping accidents (25.11.97) 881
Public service (17.11.97) 23–4
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 92
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1211, 1218
Questions
Aerospace industry 283w
Airspace 563w
Bank notes, Forgery 332–3w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, USA 276w
Brazil, Ethnic groups 261w
British dependent territories 259w
Cabinet committees 269w
Cannabis, Medical treatments 596w
China, Barrages 10w
Coinage, Forgery 333w
Defence land, Hunting 67w
Dentures, Young people 341–2w
Domestic gas appliances, Gas safety 189–90w
East Lancashire Health Authority, Kidney patients 309w
European Convention on Human Rights, Prisoners' rights 627
Farmers, Hunting 118w
Health insurance 105w
Hill farming 586w
Hill farming, Farm incomes 115–6w
Land ownership and tenure, Agricultural land 251w
Lasers, Prosecutions 454w
Lord Chancellor's Dept, Clothing 226w
Lords Lieutenant, Ethnic minorities 323w
Millennium 236w
Millennium Exhibition, Industrial accidents 92w
Perjury, Costs 216w
Press releases, Internet 241w
Prisons, Catering 609w
Road Transport Industry Training Board 339w
Skin piercing 108w
32 Squadron 563w
Training, Fraud 156w
Training and enterprise councils, Internet 157–8w
Turkey, EC accession 221–2w
University for Industry 156w

Preparations for EMU Standing Committee
see Standing Committee on Preparations for EMU

Pre-school education
Scotland 628w
Wales 637–8w

Prescott, Rt Hon John, Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for the Environment Transport and the Regions
Questions
Birmingham Relief Road 143
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 134, 134w, 135
Cars 144
Climate Change Convention 122w
Coal mining 134
Departmental responsibilities, Scotland 138w
Housing construction 132

Prescott, Rt Hon John—continued*
Housing construction, Countryside 132
Housing construction, Somerset 131–2
Housing construction, Urban areas 306w
J Sainsbury, Planning appeals 690w
MacLaurin, Lord 691w
Ports, Roads 143
River Thames, Water transport 375–6w
Roads 143–4
Safeway 691w
Sainsbury, Lord 369w, 691w
Transport infrastructure 143

Prescription charges exemptions
343w

Prescriptions
Elderly 61w

President of the Council
Developing countries trade 108–9w
Open government 361w
Press releases 361w

Press releases
Attorney General 249–50w
Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 250–1w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 383w
Dept of Health 314w
Dept of Social Security 532w
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 200–1w
Dept of Trade and Industry 107w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 220w
Home Office 216w
Internet 241w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 327w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 525–6w
Ministry of Defence 148–9w
Northern Ireland Office 582–3w
President of the Council 361w
Scottish Office 421w
Treasury 331–2w
Welsh Office 189w

Prevention of Crime Act 1953
Questions
454w

Prevention of Delay in Trials Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Primarolo, Ms Dawn, Financial Secretary to the Treasury*
Questions
Airport tax, Charities 257w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Disease control 663w
Budget, Environmental audit 469w
Charities, Taxation 230w
Customs, Information technology 112w
Disposable income 256w
Duty free allowances, EC action 673w
Economic and monetary union 1085
Economic situation, South East Asia 1083
Greenhouse effect, Treasury 111–2w
Import duties, Spacecraft 231w
Income tax, Marginal tax rates 468w
Insurance premium tax 235w
Landfill tax, Tax yields 467w
Progressive taxation, Brewing industry 257w
Research associations, Tax reform 469w
Road haulage industry, Northern Ireland 550w
Smuggling, Tobacco 230–1w
Somerset House Trust 469–70w
Tax collection, Company liquidations 256w
Tax evasion, Jersey 357w
Tax harmonisation 234w

Primarolo, Ms Dawn—continued*
Tax yields, Internet 661w
Taxation 255–6w
Taxation, Charities 660w
Taxation, EC action 234–5w
Taxation, Law reform 663w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Customs 674w
VAT, Building alterations 469w
VAT, Confectionery 234w
VAT, Fares 468w
VAT, Museums and galleries 674w
VAT, Tax harmonisation 234w
VAT registration, Civil service manpower 467–8w
Wealth tax 358w

Primary education
Class sizes 155w

Prime Minister
408w
Diaries 271w
Ministers' visits abroad 267w

Princess of Wales
Funerals 407w

Prior, Mr David
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 645
Questions
Community hospitals, Norfolk 174w, 316–7w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Ministerial duties 647w
Elderly, Norfolk 256–7w
Electricity generation, Coal 345w, 510w
Export licensing 512–3w
Health insurance 316w
Health services, Rural areas 519w
NHS trusts, Public appointments 597w
Postal services, Private investment 439

Prison Enterprise Services
247w

Prison medical services
37w

Prison Officers' Association
432w

Prison population
Young offenders 216w, 431w, 629–30

Prison Service
618–9
Private sector 436w

Prison staff
Pensions 219w

Prisoners
AIDS 40w
Army in Northern Ireland 581w
China 11w
Drug abuse 217w
Dubai 475w
Handicapped 452w
HIV infection 40w
Medical research 451–2w
Republic of Ireland 46w
Telephone tapping 100w

Prisoners' home leave
606w

Prisoners of war
Burma 243w
Japan 757–8
Monuments 243w

Prisoners' release
Drug crimes 620
Electronic tagging 440w, 608w
Sexual offences 435w

Prisoners' rights
European Convention on Human Rights 627

Prisoners' transfers
Campbell, Jason 75–6w, 273w, 676w
Northern Ireland 579–80w
Republic of Ireland 46w

Prisons
Catering 609w
Construction 35–6w, 613w, 670w
Performance standards 669–70w
Pharmacists 41w
Private finance initiative 453–4w
Probation 434w

Privacy
Telecommunications technology 399w

Private education
Diplomatic service 10w

Private finance initiative
A65 460–1w
Dept of Trade and Industry 511w
Prisons 453–4w

Private investment
Postal services 439

Private sector
Prison Service 436w
Welfare to work 488–90w

Privatisation
Coal mine closures 446–7
Coal mining 447
London Underground 140
Railway maintenance 128w

Probation
Prisons 434w

Probation and Prison Services Joint Working Review Group
434w

Probation officers
Wales 35w

Product safety
Lasers 644–5w

Production
Coal mining 419–20w

Production quotas
Milk 525w

Professional qualifications
Nurses 594–5w

Progressive taxation
Brewing industry 257w

Proof of identity
Royal Ulster Constabulary 631w

Property transfer
Coal mining 48w
Gosport 564w

Prosecutions
Bus lanes 368w
Lasers 454w

Prosser, Mr Gwyn
Questions
P and O, Sealink 450

Protectionism
EC external trade 436

Public access
Somerset House 469–70w

Public Accounts Committee
(20.11.97) 474–523

Public appointments
Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 669w

Public appointments—continued*
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 460w
Driving and Diabetes Advisory Panel 373–4w
EC Committee of the Regions 374w
European Central Bank 331w, 469w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 678w
Health authorities 175w
Immigration adjudicators 326–7w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 326w, 673w
Merseyside and North Wales Blood Service 522w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 668w
Ministry of Defence 391w
National Blood Authority 309w
NHS trusts 58w, 175w, 340–1w, 597w
Non-departmental public bodies 115w, 314
Quarantine Advisory Group 410w
Scottish Land Reform Policy Group 146–7w
Treasury 358w
Welsh Office 681–2w

Public expenditure
18w, 1081
Civil service 240w
Dept for Education and Employment 588–90w
Devolution 1080–1
Inflation 660w
Northern Ireland 960
Reviews 656–7w
Scotland 1080

Public footpaths
133w

Public Health Act 1936
Questions
4–5w

Public House (Names) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1272

Public houses
Glass 247w

Public opinion
968
Food standards 640w
National Lottery 91w

Public order
Zimbabwe 448w

Public participation
Environment protection 334w

Public petitions
Harold Wood Hospital (24.11.97) 746
Hunting (27.11.97) 1190, (28.11.97) 1197–8

Public Processions (Northern Ireland) Bill (HL) 1997/98
Questions
580w

Public records
Abdication 672w
British Council 672–3w
Royal family 672w
Whales 672w

Public Records Act 1967
Questions
672–3w

Public relations
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 260w

Public sector debt
330–1w

Public service
240w, 242w
Local government 238w
Opposition days (17.11.97) 21–80

Public telecommunications systems
Business 573–4w
Deaf 52w

Public telephones
285–6w
Telephone tapping 611w

Public transport
146
Rural areas 222w

Public utilities
Regional selective assistance 640w

Publications
Atomic Weapons Establishment 66w
Benefit Fraud Inspectorate 328w
Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy 517–9w

Publicity
Aerials 195–6w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 14w
Dept of Health 175–6w
Dept of Social Security 443w
Dept of Trade and Industry 413–5w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 395–6w, 618–9w
Treasury 113–4w

Punishment
Driving offences 245w
Poaching 245w

Quality control
Beef 229w

Quarantine Advisory Group
410–1w
Public appointments 410w

Quarrying
Flintshire 187–9w
Wales 189w

Quin, Ms Joyce, Minister of State, Home Office*
Questions
Burglary, Sentencing 624–5
Castington Young Offender Institution 216–7w
Crime victims 623–4
Criminal injuries compensation scheme 625
Criminal proceedings, Mentally disadvantaged 628
Domestic violence, Crime victims 624
EC immigration 547w
Electronic tagging, Norfolk 35w
Electronic tagging, Prisoners' release 440w, 608w
European Court of Justice 44–5w
External Frontiers Convention 43–4w
Paedophilia, Rehabilitation of offenders 656w
Parole 431–2w
Police patrolling 624
Prison Enterprise Services 247w
Prison medical services 37w
Prison Officers' Association 432w
Prison Service, Private sector 436w
Prison staff, Pensions 219w
Prisoners, AIDS 40w
Prisoners, Drug abuse 217w
Prisoners, Handicapped 452w
Prisoners, HIV infection 40w
Prisoners, Medical research 451–2w
Prisoners, Republic of Ireland 46w
Prisoners, Telephone tapping 100w
Prisoners' home leave 606w

Quin, Ms Joyce—continued*
Prisoners' transfers, Republic of Ireland 46w
Prisons, Catering 609w
Prisons, Construction 35–6w, 613w, 670w
Prisons, Performance standards 669–70w
Prisons, Pharmacists 41w
Prisons, Private finance initiative 453–4w
Probation, Prisons 434w
Probation officers, Wales 35w
Regime Services 219w
Schengen Agreement 541–2w
Sexual offences 36–7w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Home Office 541w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Immigration controls 36w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Political refugees 608w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Religion 247w
Young offender institutions 216w
Young offenders, Prison population 216w, 431w

Quin Review Group
see Probation and Prison Services Joint Working Review Group

Quinn, Mr Lawrie
Questions
Northern Ireland government 579w

Race relations
970

Racial attacks
632

Radiation hazards
Armed forces 227w
Chatham Dockyard 497w, 562w, 694w
Devonport Dockyard 562w
Dounreay 325w, 629w
Rosyth Dockyard 562w

Radice, Mr Giles
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 785

Radio
Sports 180w

Radio frequencies
443

Radio programmes
Iraq 219–20w

Radioactive Substances Act 1993
Questions
202–3w

Radioactive waste disposal
202–3w
Beaufort Dyke 409–10w

Radioactive wastes
Holyhead 120w, 587w

Radiotherapy
Breast cancer 595w

RAF Menwith Hill
Intelligence services 71w
US bases 392–3w

RAF Northolt
Armed forces civilians 563–4w

RAF Wittering
Air accidents 70w

Railway freight transport
Locomotives 145

Railway maintenance
Privatisation 128w

Railway network
147–8, 461–2w
Channel tunnel 126w

Railway signals
689w

Railway stations
Rural areas 127w

Railway transport
148
Finance 141
Investment 128w
Regulatory systems 146–7

Railway travel
145

Rammell, Mr Bill
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1167–72
Questions
Transport, Government grants to local authorities 128w

Randall, Mr John
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 698–9
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1017

Rapson, Mr Syd
Debates etc.
Rescue services (26.11.97) 899–900

Raynsford, Mr Nick, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions*
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 352–4, 374, 377–81, 383, 395, 407, 415–9, (24.11.97) 648, 650, 654–6, 661, 665–6, 669–72, 679–82, 689–90, 697, 711, 714–6, 743–5
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 979–89, 991, 994, 1011, 1018, 1020–1
Local government reform, Southend (28.11.97) 1278–80
Questions
Aerials 620–1w
Aerials, Planning permission 2–3w, 196w, 620w
Aerials, Publicity 195–6w
Building regulations 626w
Civil servants, Political impartiality 553w
Council house sales, House renovation grants 137w
Council house waiting lists 298w
Council tax 689–90w
Development plans 690w
Empty housing 622w, 624w
Empty housing, Government departments 304–6w
Empty housing, Shops 687–8w
Empty property, Offices 374–5w
Families, Council tax exemptions 622–3w
Fire prevention 622w
Greater London Authority, Referendums 465w
Greenbelt 124w
Greenbelt, Construction 460w
Housing 688–9w
Housing construction 123w, 556w
Housing construction, Single people 556–7w
Housing construction, Staffordshire 297w
Housing construction, Urban areas 461w
Housing construction, West Midlands 297–8w
Housing Corporation, Directors 376–8w
Housing subsidies 201–2w
Local government 126w
Local government, Greater London 4w

Raynsford, Mr Nick—continued*
Local government associations, South East region 366w
Local government elections 623w
Local government expenditure 367–8w
Local government finance, Interest rates 369w, 689w
Local government functions 624–5w
Manchester United Football Club, Carrington Moss 336w, 376w
"New Leadership for London" 374w
Parking, Urban areas 555–6w
Planning authorities, Ethnic monitoring 197–8w
Planning permission 197w
Planning permission, Aerials 196w
Planning permission, Opencast mining 139–40
Population, Newcastle upon Tyne 297w
Right to buy, Elderly 8–9w
Rough sleepers initiative, Government buildings 136w
Smoke alarms, Council housing 623–4w
Social rented housing, Housing construction 5w, 368w
Structure plans 125w
Uniform business rate 125w

Reception centres
Political refugees 440–1w

Recruitment
Royal Ulster Constabulary 632–4w

Reduced earnings allowance
Handicapped 2–3
Wales 564–5w

Redundancy
Government research establishments 586–7w
Health service staff 682w
National Blood Transfusion Service 171w

Redwood, Rt Hon John
Questions
Capital, Companies 54w
Coal mine closures 447–8, 514w
Coal mining 54w
Company taxation 54w
Competition Bill (HL) 1997/98 416w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Oral questions 603w
Dept of Trade and Industry, Parliamentary questions 420w
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail prices 418w
Domestic electrical appliances, Retail trade 417–8w
Economic and monetary union 189w
Euro 54w
Export licensing 416w
Foreign investment in UK 49–50w
Fossil fuel levy 417w
Gas fired power stations, Departmental responsibilities 420w
Industries, Performance standards 53–4w
Low Pay Commission 420w
Ministers, Conflict of interests 444–5, 514w, 603w
Ministers, Telephones 420w
P and O, Sealink 419w
Regional selective assistance 514–5w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 54w, 647w, 678w

Reed, Mr Andrew
Questions
Drinking and driving 627w
Medical equipment, Chlorofluorocarbons 316w, 345w
Postal services 106w
Rugby, Television programmes 258w

Reed, Mr Andrew—continued*
Tourist industry 385w
Tourist industry, East Midlands 258w
UK Sports Institute 91–2w

Reel, Lakhinder
621

Referendums
315
Greater London Authority 465w

Reform of Quarantine Regulations Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
1R (25.11.97) 800–2

Refugees
Central Africa 399w
Montserrat 159w, 262w, 290–1w
Western Sahara 551–2w

Reg(EC)258/97
524w

Regime Services
219w

Regional aid
EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 284–91

Regional airports
Air routes 625w

Regional development agencies
124w, 132–3

Regional government
123w, 133
North West region 133

Regional panels
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 412w

Regional selective assistance
49–50w, 514–5w
Public utilities 640w
Wales 640w

"Register of Quality Assessed Companies"
574–5w

Regulatory systems
Digital broadcasting 14–5w
Financial services 333w, 657w, 660w
Home care services 58w
Insurance 661–2w
Railway transport 146–7
Security industry 441w
Transport 693w

Rehabilitation of offenders
433w
Paedophilia 656w

Reid, Dr John, Minister for the Armed Forces*
Questions
Armed forces, Equal opportunities 69w
Armed forces, Telephones 498w
Armed forces cadets, Defence expenditure 391–2w, 561w
Armed forces deployment, Turkey 564w
Armed forces education allowances 70w, 149–51w
Armed forces officers, Education 392w
Armed forces training, University Air Squadron 602w
Armed forces uniforms, Fire resistant materials 497w
Armed forces women 393w
Army, Engineers 244–5w
Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency, Performance standards 695w
Army bases, Colchester 67w
Army strength 601w

Reid, Dr John—continued*
Barents Sea, Telecommunications cables 227–8w
Bosnia-Herzegovina, Armed forces 66w
Brookes, John, Disclosure of information 497–8w
Courts martial 67w
Courts martial, Appeals 68w, 149w
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, Defence review 153w, 390–1w
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, Science parks 390w
Defence expenditure 70w
Defence Transport and Movements Executive, Performance standards 694–5w
Gulf War syndrome 227w
Gulf War syndrome, Disclosure of information 496w
Gulf War syndrome, Medical research 496w
Iraq-Kuwait conflict 71w
Ludgershall, Members' correspondence 243w
Mines 561w
Ministers' visits abroad, Ministry of Defence 559–60w
Officer Training Corps 394w
Press releases, Ministry of Defence 148–9w
RAF Menwith Hill, Intelligence services 71w
RAF Menwith Hill, US bases 392–3w
RAF Wittering, Air accidents 70w
Royal yacht 154w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 498w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Armed forces medical services 498w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Clergy 498–9w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia, Telephones 497–8w
32 Squadron 563w
Transport of radioactive materials, Air transport 148w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Ministry of Defence 393w
Trident submarines 70w

Religion
Treaty of Amsterdam 247w

Religious discrimination
610w

Religious freedom
Treaty of Amsterdam 221w

Relocation of employees
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 22w

Remploy
Performance standards 485–6w

Rendel, Mr David
Questions
Pensioners, Income support 5

Reparation by offenders
Young offenders 628–9

Reporting of Injuries Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995
Questions
1w

Republic of Ireland
Commonwealth 761
Foreign policy 761
Prisoners 46w
Prisoners' transfers 46w

Rescue services
9–10w, 133–4w, 463–4w, (26.11.97) 887–909

Rescue services—continued*
Closures 303–4w, 463w
Irish Sea 367w
Manpower 335–6w

Research associations
Tax reform 347–8w, 469w

Research finance
Science and technology research 586w

Residential care
Drugs 60w
Sedatives and hypnotics 59–60w

Residential care of children
313

Restraint techniques
Police 434w

Retail prices
Domestic electrical appliances 418w, 450–1
Newspaper press 418w

Retail trade
Domestic electrical appliances 285w, 417–8w
EC countries 450

Retirement age
Employment Service 487–8w

Retirement pensions
4, 15
Age addition 571w
British residents abroad 569–70w

Revenue support grant
124w, 1080
Wales 683w

Review of Health Care in London Independent Advisory Panel
174w, 343w

Reviews
Dept of Social Security 406–7w
Home Office 438–40w
Public expenditure 656–7w
Roads 126w
Treasury 406–7w

Right of silence
441w

Right to buy
Elderly 8–9w
Handicapped 8–9w

Ritalin
Hyperactivity 591w
Vale of Glamorgan 682w

Ritual slaughter
524w, 585w

River crossings
River Thames 127w

River Thames
Boats (24.11.97) 746–52
River crossings 127w
Water transport 375–6w

Road accidents
462w, 619w
Children 195w
Insulin 693–4w
Pedestrians 195w
Scotland 261w, 501w

Road construction
142
A1 142
Northern Ireland 211–2w

Road finance
194–5w

Road haulage industry
Northern Ireland 550w

Road safety
Cellular phones 305–6w
Children 137–8w, 372w

Road safety education
134–5w

Road tolls
Severn bridge 197w

Road traffic
128w
Northern Ireland 483–6w

Road traffic offences
Bus lanes 437–8w

Road Transport Industry Training Board
339w

Road works
142
Bridges 1–2w
Northern Ireland 212–4w

Roads
143–4
Capital investment 142
Ports 143
Reviews 126w
Scotland 145w

Robathan, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 470
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 549–50
Members' interests, Points of order (18.11.97) 164
University finance (19.11.97) 279, 282
Questions
Government information services 237w
Maintenance, Children 18, 80w
Sinn Fein 581w
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC labour policy 284w

Robertson, Rt Hon George, Secretary of State for Defence*
Questions
Defence review 70–1w, 499–500w
Nuclear weapons policy 71w

Robertson, Mr Laurence
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1127
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 374–5
Questions
Dry stone walls 557w
Educational finance 487w
Educational finance, Wales 24–6w
Indonesia, Arms trade 103w
Regional government 123w
Rolls Royce, Government assistance 515w
Travelling people, Trespass 625

Robinson, Mr Geoffrey, Paymaster General*
Questions
Billing, Government departments 662–3w
Charities 1080
Charities, Shops 1079
Charities, Taxation 1079–80
Corporation tax 1086
Economic policy 1074
Economic policy, Business 661w
Interest rates, Economic and monetary union 1074–5
Local government pensions 1085
Pension funds, Advance corporation tax 111w
Pensioners, Annuities 111w
Shareholders, Tax credits 661w
Tax credits, USA 111w

Robinson, Mr Peter D
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 207–11

Roche, Mrs Barbara, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Questions
Action 2000 50–1w, 190–1w, 346w
Assisted areas 285w
Bankruptcy, Millennium compliance 572w
British Aerospace, Government assistance 435–6
British Telecom, Shares 574w
Business, EC action 52–3w
Debts 648w
Debts, Iraq 346–7w
Development areas 572w
EC external trade, Protectionism 436
EC grants and loans, Cornwall 448–9
Economic and monetary union 47w, 284w
Export Control Organisation, Administrative delays 513–4w
Export Control Organisation, Performance standards 513w
Export licensing 512–3w, 645w
Export licensing, Statistics 345–6w
Export promotion, Central Europe 436–7
Export promotion, Exchange rates 436
Industrial investment, EC grants and loans 449
Loan guarantee scheme 48w
Radio frequencies 443
Scotch Whisky Association, Duty free allowances 282w
Small businesses 286w
Small businesses, Export promotion 435
Small businesses, Government assistance 417w
Small businesses, Information technology 285w
Telephone services 107–8w
Trade competitiveness 280–1w

Roe, Mrs Marion
Questions
House of Commons, Postal services 327w

Rolling stock
Repairs and maintenance 460w

Rolls Royce
Government assistance 515w

Rooker, Mr Jeff, Minister of State, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food*
Debates etc.
Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, Disease control (26.11.97) 1061–8
Plant Varieties Bill, Lords amendments (26.11.97) 1042–56
Questions
Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes, Maize 21w
Animal feed, Composition labelling 21w, 120w
Beaufort Dyke, Radioactive waste disposal 409–10w
Beef, Imports 273–5w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Disease control 524–5w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, USA 276w
Bovine tuberculosis, Agricultural research 275w
Cattle 524w
Cattle, Data banks 584w
Crop spraying, Sulphuric acid 525w
Dietary supplements 641–2w
Export of live animals, Pigs 117w

Rooker, Mr Jeff—continued*
Food, Pesticide residues 20w
Food imports 576w
Genetically modified organisms, Food labelling 20w, 524w
Genetically modified organisms, Novel foods 524w
Genetically modified organisms, Soya beans 20w
Government research establishments, Redundancy 586–7w
Milk, Production quotas 525w
Milk Development Council, Taxation 640–1w
Milk Marque, Aeron Valley Creameries 641w
Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Regional panels 412w
Organic farming 22w
Ostriches, Slaughterhouses 120–1w
Quarantine Advisory Group 410–1w
Quarantine Advisory Group, Public appointments 410w
Radioactive wastes, Holyhead 120w, 587w
Ritual slaughter 524w
Science and technology research, Research finance 586w
Soya beans, Research 20w
Tuberculosis in Cattle and Badgers Review 587w
Untreated milk 642w
Vitamin B6, Premenstrual syndrome 584w
Vitamins, Nutrition and health 585w

Rooney, Mr Terry
Questions
Employment Service, Performance standards 164–70w
European Convention on Human Rights 435w
Female circumcision, Members' correspondence 687w
Jobseeker's allowance, Social security recipients 675–6w
Pakistan, Entry clearances 681w
Sickness benefits 674–5w
Statutory sick pay, Earnings limits 675w

Ross, Mr Ernie
Questions
Children in care, Scotland 184w
Civil service manpower, Scotland 241w
Middle East, Peace negotiations 760
Montserrat, Refugees 262w
Non-departmental public bodies, Manpower 422–4w
Water pollution, Scotland 183–4w

Ross, Mr William
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 791
Questions
Ambulance services, Northern Ireland 635–6w
Causeway Hospital 962–3
Farmers, Northern Ireland 485w
Non-departmental public bodies, Local government 314–5
Police stations, Coleraine 483w
Road traffic, Northern Ireland 483–6w

Rosyth Dockyard
Radiation hazards 562w

Rough sleepers initiative
Finance 121w
Government buildings 136w

Rowe, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1098
Questions
Charities, Taxation 1079–80

Rowe, Mr Andrew—continued*
Regional development agencies 124w

Rowlands, Mr Ted
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1120
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1139–44
Regional aid, EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 285–6, 290
Questions
Development aid, Human rights 495w
Health service staff, Wales 682w
Higher education, Tuition fees 644w
Human rights 476w
Human rights, EC external relations 476w
Overseas aid, Police training 543–4w
Torture, Exports 480w
Tuition fees, Higher education 362w
Welfare to work, Private sector 488–9w

Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists
141–2w

Royal Commission on Long-term Care
see Long-Term Care Royal Commission

Royal family
Public records 672w

Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust
Maternity services 961–2

Royal Opera House and English National Opera Working Group
179–80w

Royal Ulster Constabulary
629–32w
Germany 321w
Proof of identity 631w
Recruitment 632–4w

Royal Victoria Hospital Belfast
635w

Royal yacht
154w

Royalties
Patents 106w

Ruane, Mr Chris
Questions
Civil service, Public expenditure 240w
Cycleways, Wales 189w
Defence expenditure 70w
Fires, Wales 265–8w
Further education, Educational finance 264w, 421–2w

Ruddock, Ms Joan, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Dept of Social Security*
Questions
Minister for Women 292–4w

Ruffley, Mr David
Questions
Ministerial policy advisors, Contracts of employment 237w
Sentencing, Burglary 618
Treaty on European Union, EC integration 476–7w
Working hours, EC law 440

Rugby
Television programmes 258w

Rural areas
Crime 245–6w, 334–5w
Employment 185w
Health action zones 649w
Health services 519w
Postal services 438–9
Public transport 222w
Railway stations 127w

Rural areas—continued*
Speed limits 129–30w
Statistics 366w

"Rural England White Paper"
366w

Russell, Bob
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 229
Public service (17.11.97) 37
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1102
Questions
Armed forces cadets, Defence expenditure 391–2w, 561w
Armed forces officers, Education 392w
Army bases, Colchester 67w
Army strength 601w
Crime prevention, Armed forces cadets 455w
Housing benefits, Young people 5–6
Prisoners of war, Burma 243w
Ritual slaughter 585w
Welfare to work 159w
Young offenders, Youth organisations 541w

Russia
NATO 679w

Ryan, Ms Joan
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 1015–7

Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review
314w, 323, 344w
Ministerial statements (19.11.97) 327–38

Safeway
691w

Sainsbury, Lord
369w, 406w, 691w

Sainsburys
see J Sainsbury

St Aubyn, Mr Nick
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 161
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1245
Questions
Aerials 621w
Armed forces training, Military aid 482w
Financial services, Regulatory systems 657w
Occupational pensions 1073–4

Salmond, Mr Alex
Debates etc.
Rescue services (26.11.97) 893, 907
Select committees, Points of order (26.11.97) 973

Salter, Mr Martin
Questions
Crime victims 623–4
EC grants and loans, Northern Ireland 959–60

Sanders, Mr Adrian
Debates etc.
Diabetes, Insulin (20.11.97) 524–6
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 714
Public service (17.11.97) 40
Questions
Diabetes, Driving licences 603–4w
Diabetes, EC law 325
Driving and Diabetes Advisory Panel, Public appointments 373–4w
Road accidents, Insulin 693–4w

Savidge, Mr Malcolm
Questions
Northern Ireland government 578w

Sayeed, Mr Jonathan
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 555
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 644

Scheduled offences
Costs 605–6w

Schengen Agreement
396–7w, 541–2w

School admission
Conwy 504w
Grammar schools 492w

School buildings
365–6w
Leicestershire 698w

Schools
Flintshire 578w

Science and technology research
281w
Research finance 586w

Science parks
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency 390w

Scientific advisers
575w

Scotch Whisky Association
Duty free allowances 282w

Scotland
Broadcasting engineering 457w
Children in care 184w
Chiropody 73–5w
Civil service manpower 240–1w
Contracts for services 145w
Convictions 502w
Departmental responsibilities 138w, 283w
Devolution 325w
Drug abuse 101–2w
EC institutions 501w
Financial Services Authority 467w
Higher education administration 73w
Home care services 629w
Homelessness (18.11.97) 218
Homicide 502w
Hospital consultants 181–3w
Local government finance 677w
Milk 77w
NHS finance 501w
Non-departmental public bodies 240–1w
Open prisons (26.11.97) 949–54
Pension funds 9
Police 628w
Pre-school education 628w
Public expenditure 1080
Road accidents 261w, 501w
Roads 145w
Solvent abuse 502w
Student numbers 72–3w
Tuition fees 145–6w, 422w, 643–4w
Uniform business rate 75w
Universities 109w
University finance 162–3w, 576–7w
Water pollution 183–4w
Welfare to work 489–90w, 577w

Scottish Environment Protection Agency
Finance 147w

Scottish Grand Committee
Business motions (21.11.97) 606

Scottish Land Reform Policy Group
Public appointments 146–7w

Scottish Office
Official hospitality 627w
Open government 420–1w
Press releases 421w
Treaty of Amsterdam 263w

Scottish Parliament
Open government 309

Screening
Breast cancer 519–20w

Sea Empress
see MV Sea Empress

Sea pollution
462w
Sewage 131w

Sealink
P and O 288w, 419w, 450

Secondary education
Conwy 504w

Secret Intelligence Service
see MI6

Security industry
Regulatory systems 441w

Security Service
see MI5

Security vetting
40–1w

Sedatives and hypnotics
Residential care 59–60w

Select committees
Speaker's rulings and statements (26.11.97) 973

Selective schools
490–1w

Self-employed
Maternity benefits 569w

Sentencing
617–8
Burglary 618, 624–5
Crimes of violence 608–9w
Homicide 451w, 458w, 502w
Sexual offences 608–9w

Severn bridge
Road tolls 197w

Sewage
Sea pollution 131w
Water treatment 133w

Sewers
335w

Sex discrimination
Judgments 186–7w

Sex Offenders Act 1997
Questions
435w

Sexual offences
36–7w
Children 606w
Prisoners' release 435w
Sentencing 608–9w

Shareholders
Tax credits 661w

Shares
British Telecom 574w

Shaw, Mr Jonathan
Debates etc.
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 337–8

Shaw, Mr Jonathan—continued
Questions
Chatham Dockyard, Radiation hazards 497w, 562w, 694w
Dept for Education and Employment, Public expenditure 588–90w
Road safety, Children 372w
Rosyth Dockyard, Radiation hazards 562w

Sheep premiums
356w

Sheerman, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
University finance (19.11.97) 262, 274–5
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1256–8
Questions
Film distribution 11–2w
Film industry 11w, 90–1w
Lasers 515w
Lasers, Assaults on police 215w
Oxford University, Higher education admission 363–4w
Student grants 364w

Sheldon, Rt Hon Robert
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 787
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 81–9

Shephard, Rt Hon Gillian
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 465–6
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 89–92
Questions
Open government, Ministers' visits abroad 310

Shepherd, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1147
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 808, 815, 823, 827, 831, 852–5
Questions
Devolution, Scotland 325w

Shipley, Ms Debra
Questions
Afghanistan, Arms embargoes 681w
Export promotion 762
Sentencing 617–8

Shipping accidents
MV Gaul 295–6w, (25.11.97) 879–86

Shipping safety
Fishing vessels 127w, 371–2w

Shopping centres
Planning permission 335w

Shops
Charities 1079
Empty housing 687–8w

Shops (Sunday Trading Etc) (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(19.11.97) 426

Short, Rt Hon Clare, Secretary of State for International Development*
Questions
Afghanistan, Women 177–8w
Aid financed trade 448w
Bosnia-Herzegovina, Overseas aid 493w
China, Police 177w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Dept for International Development 446w
Commonwealth Development Corporation 448w

Short, Rt Hon Clare—continued
Commonwealth Development Corporation, External financing limits 280w
Development aid, Human rights 495w
East Timor, EC aid 178w
East Timor, Indonesia 178w
East Timor, Overseas aid 178w
Mines, Bomb disposal 493w
Mixed credits 448w
Multinational companies, Codes of practice 644w
Official hospitality, Dept for International Development 494w
Overseas aid, Audit 644w
Sierra Leone, Overseas aid 494w
Somalia, Disaster relief 178–9w, 450w
Technology foresight programme, Dept for International Development 493–4w
Vietnam, Disaster relief 179w
Western Sahara, Refugees 551–2w
World Bank 446–7w, 552w
Yugoslavia, Overseas aid 494–5w
Zambia, Human rights 450w
Zambia, Overseas aid 449w
Zimbabwe, Land acquisition 449w
Zimbabwe, Public order 448w

Shropshire
NHS trusts 520w

Sickness benefits
674–5w

Sierra Leone
Overseas aid 494w

Simpson, Mr Alan
Questions
Biotechnology, Patents 286w
Food imports 576w

Simpson, Mr Keith
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1114
Public service (17.11.97) 28
Questions
Armed forces, Equal opportunities 69w
Driving tests, EC action 127–8w
Nuclear weapons policy 71w
Regional development agencies 124w
Trident submarines 70w

Singh, Mr Marsha
Debates etc.
Maiden speech (20.11.97) 491–4
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 491–4
Questions
EC Culture Council 548–9w

Single people
Housing construction 556–7w

Single regeneration budget
West Midlands 299–302w

Sinn Fein
581w, 584w

Sites of special scientific interest
2w

Skill shortages
Nurses 654w

Skin piercing
108w

Skinner, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 473
Electronic tagging (20.11.97) 460
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 640–1
Oral question time intervention (18.11.97) 145, (24.11.97) 626

Skinner, Mr Dennis—continued
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 158–9
Prime Minister's questions, Points of order (19.11.97) 340
Public service (17.11.97) 26–7
Questions
Coal mine closures, Privatisation 446–7
EC internal relations 770–2
Local government finance 138
Lone parents 1076–7
Parliamentary procedure 551w
Reduced earnings allowance, Handicapped 3

Slaughterhouses
Animal welfare 119w
Ostriches 120–1w

Small businesses
286w
Advisory services 282w
Competition 450
EC grants and loans 765
Export promotion 435
Government assistance 417w
Information technology 285w
Standing Committee on Preparations for EMU 1076

Small claims
377w

Smallholdings
Local government land (26.11.97) 941–8

Smith, Rt Hon Andrew, Minister for Employment and Disability Rights, Dept for Education and Employment*
Questions
Age discrimination, Employment protection 363–5w
Day care of children 163w
EC Education Council 486–7w
Employment, Rural areas 185w
Employment Service, Performance standards 164–70w
European Court of Justice, Judgments 32w
New deal for young unemployed 33w, 338w
Training, Child care 587w
Training, EC grants and loans 163–4w
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC labour policy 255w
Welfare to work 159w
Welfare to work, Lancashire 340w, 488w
Welfare to work, Private sector 488–9w
Welfare to work, Scotland 489–90w

Smith, Angela
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1220, 1247–9
Questions
Chiropodists 26–7w
Chiropodists, Northern Ireland 28w
Chiropody 26–8w
Chiropody, Scotland 73–5w

Smith, Rt Hon Chris, Secretary of State for Culture Media and Sport*
Questions
BBC 259w
Civil servants' visits abroad, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 12–3w
Creative Industries Task Force 13w
Millennium Exhibition, Disclosure of information 179w
Millennium Exhibition, Expenditure 179w
Ministers' visits abroad, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 382w
New Opportunities Fund 456–7w
Official hospitality, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 13–4w

Smith, Rt Hon Chris—continued
Open government, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 458w
Press releases, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 383w
Publicity, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 14w
Sports 455–6w

Smith, Jacqui
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 160

Smith, Mr John
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 162
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Disease control 524–5w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Wales 502w
Farmers, Wales 501w
Hyperactivity, Ritalin 591w
Milk, Production quotas 525w
Ritalin, Vale of Glamorgan 682w

Smith, Mr Llew
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1141, 1153
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 806, 813
Questions
Climate Change Convention 122w
Gulf War syndrome 227w
Gulf War syndrome, Disclosure of information 496w
Gulf War syndrome, Medical research 496w
Music education 31w
Nuclear weapons 760
Nuclear weapons tests, Christmas Island 64–5w
Plutonium, Nuclear safeguards 419w
Reduced earnings allowance, Handicapped 2
Reduced earnings allowance, Wales 564–5w

Smith, Sir Robert
Debates etc.
Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, Disease control (26.11.97) 1058–9, 1063
Rescue services (26.11.97) 906
Questions
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 134
Standing Committee on Preparations for EMU, Small businesses 1076

Smoke alarms
Council housing 623–4w

Smoking
Children 264w
Educational institutions 162w
Millennium Exhibition 388w
Wales 264w

Smoking related diseases
Costs 309w

Smuggling
Tobacco 230–1w

Smyth, Rev Martin
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1125–6
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 245
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1113–4
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 173

Smyth, Rev Martin—continued
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 335–6
Questions
Belvoir Park Hospital 637w
Cancer, Medical treatments 637w
Charities 1080
Hospital waiting lists, Northern Ireland 961
Jubilee Maternity Hospital Belfast, Hospital closures 636w
Minimum wage 442–3
Ports, Merseyside 137w
Royal Victoria Hospital Belfast 635w
Vitamin B6, Premenstrual syndrome 584w

Snape, Mr Peter
Questions
Railway freight transport, Locomotives 145

Soames, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 469, (27.11.97) 1126
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1116
Intervention during questions after statement (27.11.97) 1102
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1261
Questions
Economic and monetary union, Business 1087–8
Middle East, Peace negotiations 152
Open government 317
Political refugees 36w, 97–8w

Social problems
321

Social rented housing
Housing construction 5w, 368w

Social security
79–80w, 139w
Domestic violence 528w
EC countries 13

Social security abuse
79–80w, 963
Departmental coordination 666w

Social security appeals
15–6
Jobseeker's allowance 82w

Social security benefits
Advisory services 11–3
Civil servants 328w
Political refugees 139w
Telephone services 82–3w

Social Security Benefits Agency
Social security recipients 86w

Social security benefits backdating
Costs 540w

Social security benefits reductions
Lone parents 10

Social Security Bill 1997/98
Questions
15–6, 537w

Social security claims
Invalid care allowances 529w
Pensioners 9

Social security payments
83w

Social security recipients
Jobseeker's allowance 675–6w
Lone parent families 537w
Lone parents 81–2w

Social security recipients—continued
Means tested benefits 526w
Social Security Benefits Agency 86w
Taxpayers 444w

Social security reform
3–4, 528w, 567w
Wisconsin 538–9w

Social Security Select Committee
(27.11.97) 1190, (28.11.97) 1273

Social services
538w

Solar power
325

Soley, Mr Clive
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 178, 183
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 789

Solvent abuse
Scotland 502w

Somalia
Disaster relief 178–9w, 450w

Somerset
Flood control 411w
Housing construction 131–2

Somerset House
Public access 469–70w

Somerset House Trust
469–70w

South Africa
Extradition 542w

South Downs
Environment protection 373w

South East Asia
Economic situation 1083

South East region
Local government associations 366w

Southend
Local government reform (28.11.97) 1274–80

Southern Health and Social Services Board
634–5w

Southworth, Ms Helen
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 468
Questions
Climate Change Convention 464w

Soya beans
Genetically modified organisms 20w
Research 20w

Space technology
287–8w

Spacecraft
Import duties 231w

Spain
Air traffic 615w
NATO 221w

Speaker and deputies. For rulings and statements see separate heading Speaker's rulings and statements
Debates etc.
Amendments and new clauses (17.11.97) 21, 81, (26.11.97) 979, 1047, 1049, 1055–6
Conduct of proceedings (17.11.97) 5, 32–4, 36, 39, 49–50, 59, 107, 122, (18.11.97) 170, 189, 204, 229, (19.11.97) 250, 259, 266, 319–20, 334, 338, 345, 430, (20.11.97) 438, (21.11.97) 569, 578–9,

Speaker and deputies—continued
(24.11.97) 616, 645, 749, (25.11.97) 798, 859, 872, 882, (26.11.97) 892, 896, 908, 910, 916, 924, 940, 978, 998, 1004, 1011, 1013, 1019, 1053, 1060, (27.11.97) 1113, 1116, (28.11.97) 1200, 1211, 1235, 1249, 1251, 1263, 1265–6, 1272
EC documents motions (27.11.97) 1189
European Standing Committee motions (25.11.97) 878
Orders and regulations motions (18.11.97) 218, (19.11.97) 426, (25.11.97) 878
Points of order (17.11.97) 19–20, 67, 79–80, 90, 117, (18.11.97) 164, 218–9, (19.11.97) 340–2, (20.11.97) 473, (24.11.97) 647, (25.11.97) 767, 799, (26.11.97) 907, 909, 925, 973–5, (27.11.97) 1190, (28.11.97) 1200–1, 1218, 1267, 1272
Private Members' bill orders (28.11.97) 1272–3
Royal Assent (27.11.97) 1088
Standing Order No 24 applications (24.11.97) 646

Speaker's rulings and statements
House of Commons procedure (19.11.97) 339
Members' conduct (26.11.97) 974
Select committees (26.11.97) 973
Ten minutes rule (28.11.97) 1199
Written questions (17.11.97) 21

Special constables
622–3

Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL) 1997/98
Debates etc.
Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1032–41

Speech therapists
57w

Speed limits
138w
Cameras 129w
Rural areas 129–30w
Telematics 130w
Urban areas 130w

Spellar, Mr John, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Defence*
Questions
Air force bases, Armed forces civilians 564w
Airspace 563w
Armed forces, Radiation hazards 227w
Armed forces pensions, Widows 71w
Armed forces training, Land use 394w
Atomic Weapons Establishment, Publications 66w
Auxiliary oiler replenishment vessels 65–6w
C130 aircraft 64w
C130 aircraft, Employment opportunities 64w
Challenger tanks 72w
Chatham Dockyard, Radiation hazards 497w, 562w, 694w
Chemical weapons 72w
Chemical weapons, Health hazards 147–8w
Chinook helicopters, Air safety 152–3w
Chinook helicopters, Aircraft engines 151–2w
Chinook helicopters, Computers 69w
Defence equipment, Exhibitions 227w, 482w, 496w
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, Animal experiments 228–9w
Defence Export Services Organisation 69w

Spellar, Mr John—continued
Defence industries, Diversification 147w
Defence land, Exhibitions 68w
Defence land, Fox hunting 153–4w, 393w, 499w, 602w
Defence land, Foxes 499w, 602w
Defence land, Hunting 67w
Defence research, Genetically modified organisms 601–2w
Defence research, Genetics 243–4w
Developing countries trade, Ministry of Defence 227w
Electronic mail, Ministry of Defence 229w
European fighter aircraft 243w, 694w
Future large aircraft, Defence procurement 64w
Gibraltar, Official residences 562–3w
Gosport, Property transfer 564w
Greenhouse effect, Ministry of Defence 69–70w
Hydrographic Office, Performance standards 500w
Ministry of Defence, Buildings 602w
Ministry of Defence, Flags 603w
Ministry of Defence, Nottingham 72w
Nuclear weapons tests, Christmas Island 64–5w
Open government, Ministry of Defence 390w
Porton Down, Animal experiments 500w
Prisoners of war, Burma 243w
Public appointments, Ministry of Defence 391w
RAF Northolt, Armed forces civilians 563–4w
Rosyth Dockyard, Radiation hazards 562w
Technology foresight programme, Ministry of Defence 561–2w

Spicer, Sir Michael
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 792
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1200
Questions
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, Defence review 153w, 390–1w
Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, Science parks 390w
NHS, Per capita costs 57w

Sports
455–6w
Broadcast journalism 180w
Radio 180w

Sports competitors
Hospital waiting lists 172w

Sports sponsorship
Tobacco advertising 15–6w, 54w, 268–9w, 324, 344w, 405w, 424–5w, 437–8, 519w, 603w, 647w, 678w, 685w

Spring, Mr Richard
Questions
Handicapped 1–2
Interest rates 658–9w
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991 581w

Springvale initiative
University of Ulster 109w

Squire, Ms Rachel
Questions
Defence Transport and Movements Executive, Performance standards 694–5w
Foreign investment in UK 758

Sri Lanka
Foreign policy 768

Stabilisation Force in Bosnia
498w
Armed forces medical services 498w
Clergy 498–9w
Hospital consultants 520w
Telephones 497–8w

Staffordshire
Children in care 591–3w
Housing construction 297w

Stakeholder pensions
138w

Standard spending assessments
Coal mining 138–9
Flood control 121–2w
Research 124w

Standards and Privileges Select Committee
(17.11.97) 81–121, (27.11.97) 1189

Standards of Conduct in Public Office Standing Committee
see Committee on Standards in Public Life

Standing Committee on Preparations for EMU
Small businesses 1076

Standing Order No 24 applications
British Board of Film Classification (24.11.97) 646

Starkey, Dr Phyllis
Questions
Commonwealth Development Corporation, External financing limits 280w
Government research establishments, Redundancy 586–7w
Israel 475w
Israel, Fruit juices 643w
Israel, Import controls 544w
Science and technology research, Research finance 586w
Technology foresight programme, Dept for International Development 493–4w
Technology foresight programme, Dept of Health 595–6w
Technology foresight programme, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 554–5w
Technology foresight programme, Ministry of Defence 561–2w

Statistics
Export licensing 345–6w
Rural areas 366w

Statutory sick pay
Earnings limits 675w

Steen, Mr Anthony
Questions
D'Oyly Carte, Finance 324
Structure plans 125w

Stena Sealink
see Sealink

Stinchcombe, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 598–9
Kenya, Human rights (19.11.97) 302–3
Questions
EC immigration 547w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Discrimination 220–1w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Religious freedom 221w

Stoate, Dr Howard
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 645

Stoate, Dr Howard—continued*
Questions
Sri Lanka, Foreign policy 768

Stott, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 175, 200–2

Strang, Rt Hon Dr Gavin, Minister of State for Transport, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions*
Questions
A1, Road construction 142
Airports, Transport infrastructure 126w
Channel tunnel, Railway network 126w
Drinking and driving 627w
Driving tests, EC action 127–8w
Lorry drivers, France 129w
Railway network 147–8
Railway transport 148
Railway transport, Investment 128w
Railway transport, Regulatory systems 146–7
Road construction 142
Road traffic 128w
Road works 142
Roads, Capital investment 142
Roads, Reviews 126w
Speed limits 138w
Transport, Government grants to local authorities 128w

Strangford Lough
Ferries 210–1w

Straw, Rt Hon Jack, Secretary of State for the Home Dept*
Debates etc.
Electronic tagging, Ministerial statements (20.11.97) 453–63
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 803–19, 823–4
Young offenders, Ministerial statements (27.11.97) 1089–103
Questions
Bombings, African National Congress 609w
Crime victims 432w
Developing countries trade, Home Office 46w
Electronic mail, Home Office 37w
Electronic surveillance 99w
Electronic surveillance, Cellular phones 441w
Electronic tagging 440w, 630
European Convention on Human Rights 626–8
European Convention on Human Rights, Prisoners' rights 627
European Parliament elections, Ballot papers 606–7w
European Parliament elections, Electorate 607w
Fletcher, Yvonne, Criminal investigation 441w
Home Office, Open government 454w
Home Office, Reviews 438–40w
Interception of Communications Act 1985 100w
Judges 627
MI5 101w
MI5, Contracts 101w
MI5, Manpower 101w
MI5, Personal records 218w
MI5, Subversion 101w
Pinochet, Augusto, Official visits 542w
Postal services, Surveillance 100w
Press releases, Home Office 216w
Prison Service 618–9
Religious discrimination 610w
Security vetting 40–1w

Straw, Rt Hon Jack—continued*
Sentencing 617–8
Sentencing, Burglary 618
Surveillance 101w
Telephone tapping 38–9w, 99–100w, 218–9w
Telephone tapping, EC action 39–40w
Telephone tapping, Intelligence services 39w
Telephone tapping, International law 610–1w
Telephone tapping, Public telephones 611w
Young offender institutions 630
Young offenders, Prison population 629–30
Young offenders, Reparation by offenders 628–9

Street lighting
Millisle 272w

Streeter, Mr Gary
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 279w
Common fisheries policy 279w
Council of Ministers, Voting methods 260w, 397w
EC common foreign and security policy 402–3w
EC enlargement 260w
EC Environment Council, Compliance cost assessments 623w
EC labour policy, Treaties 404w
EC Social Charter 324–5w
EC Social Charter, EC staff 618w
Economic and monetary union, Exchange rate mechanism 330w
Economic and monetary union, Information 757
European Communities, Economic cooperation 400–1w
European works councils 325w
Fishing quotas 259–60w, 396w
Frontiers, EC action 260w, 396–7w
Intelligence services, Drug crimes 400w
Intergovernmental Conference 1996 400w
Iraq, EC external relations 402w
Mediterranean region, EC external relations 402w
Millennium compliance 401w
Schengen Agreement 397w, 541–2w
Treaty of Amsterdam 261w, 401w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Customs 674w
Treaty of Amsterdam, EC Social Charter 403–4w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Subsidiarity 324w
UK contributions to EC budget 403w
Western European Union, EC enlargement 401w
Western European Union, Gibraltar 397w

Stringer, Mr Graham
Questions
Air routes, Malaysia 626w
Air transport, Economic situation 625w
Air transport, North West region 625w
Bus services 691–3w
Bus services subsidies 692w
Economic policy 1074
Public service, Local government 238w
Regional airports, Air routes 625w
Uniform business rate 125w

Structure plans
125w

Stuart, Ms Gisela
Debates etc.
Drug abuse (19.11.97) 427–30
Questions
Fireworks, Safety 190w
Tuition fees 487w

Student grants
364w
Dance 92w, 156w
Drama education 92w, 156w

Student loans
362w
Income support 225w

Student Loans Company
Annual reports 164w

Student numbers
Scotland 72–3w

Students
30–1w
Borders region 141w
Complaints 185w
Finance 159–60w
Wales 577w

Stunell, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 247–50
Coal mining (26.11.97) 920–1
Public service (17.11.97) 48
Questions
Agricultural production, Greenhouse effect 117w
Computer storage 156w
Greenhouse effect, Dept for Education and Employment 155w
Greenhouse effect, Dept for International Development 279–80w
Greenhouse effect, Dept of Health 310w
Greenhouse effect, Dept of Social Security 528–9w
Greenhouse effect, Health hazards 59w
Greenhouse effect, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 117–8w
Greenhouse effect, Ministry of Defence 69–70w
Greenhouse effect, Northern Ireland Office 26w
Greenhouse effect, Treasury 111–2w

Subsidiarity
Treaty of Amsterdam 324w

Subsidiary companies
CELTEC 639–40w

Subversion
MI5 101w

Sulphuric acid
Crop spraying 525w

Summer Time Order 1997
Debates etc.
(18.11.97) 218, (27.11.97) 1069

Sunday trading
Northern Ireland (19.11.97) 426

Supermarkets
Planning permission 405–6w, 461w

Supported housing
138–9w

Surgery
684–5w
Hospital admissions 656w

Surveillance
101w
Equipment 288w
Postal services 100w

Sussex Ambulance Service
Pension funds 648w

Sustainable development
6w

Sutcliffe, Mr Gerry
Questions
Courts martial 67w
Courts martial, Appeals 68w, 149w

Sutherland Commission
see Long-Term Care Royal Commission

Swayne, Mr Desmond
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 472
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1136, 1174, 1179, 1188
Questions
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 755
Dubai, Prisoners 475w
EC external trade, Protectionism 436
Taxation, Charities 660w

Swinney, Mr John
Debates etc.
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 162
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 793
Questions
Dale, Philip 458w
Financial Services Authority 466w
Financial Services Authority, Costs 467w
Financial Services Authority, Scotland 467w
Homicide, Sentencing 451w, 458w, 502w
Local government finance, Scotland 677w
Pension funds, Scotland 9

Syms, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 830, 859–62, 868
Questions
Shareholders, Tax credits 661w

"Tackling Drugs Together"
650w

Takeovers
Motor industry 445

Take-up of employment
Lone parents 526–7w

Tapsell, Sir Peter
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 643
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 804–5
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 788
Questions
Economic policy 1082
Official engagements 222w

Task forces
Children in care 407w, 596w

Tax allowances
Agricultural development programme 281w

Tax and Benefits Task Force
358w

Tax collection
Company liquidations 256w

Tax credits
Shareholders 661w
USA 111w

Tax evasion
Jersey 357w

Tax harmonisation
234w
EC action (27.11.97) 1189
VAT 234w

Tax rates and bands
321–2

Tax reform
Research associations 347–8w, 469w

Tax yields
Internet 661w
Landfill tax 467w

Taxable benefits
565–6w

Taxation
255–6w
Charities 230w, 660w, 1079–80
EC action 234–5w
Environment protection 136
Law reform 663w
Milk Development Council 640–1w

Taxpayers
Family credit 445w
Social security recipients 444w

Taylor, Rt Hon Mrs Ann, President of the Council and Leader of the House of Commons
Debates etc.
Business statements (20.11.97) 464–73, (27.11.97) 1117–28
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 118–20
Questions
Developing countries trade, President of the Council 108–9w
Government bills 550–1w
Members' allowances, Bicycles 409w
Open government, President of the Council 361w
Parliamentary procedure 551w
Press releases, President of the Council 361w
Public appointments, Non-departmental public bodies 115w

Taylor, Ms Dari
Questions
British Telecom, Shares 574w

Taylor, Mr David
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 917, 923
Questions
Income support, Student loans 225w

Taylor, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1110–1, 1145

Taylor, Rt Hon John D
Questions
Aerials, Planning permission 635w
Armagh and Dungannon Health and Social Services Trust, Flags 272w
Chronic fatigue syndrome, Northern Ireland 271–2w
Gibraltar, Official residences 562–3w
Languages education, Irish 27–9w
Public expenditure, Northern Ireland 960
Republic of Ireland, Foreign policy 761
Southern Health and Social Services Board 634–5w
Street lighting, Millisle 272w

Taylor, Mr John M
Questions
Birmingham Relief Road 143
Fireworks, Safety 190w
Housing construction 123w
Ministers, Conflict of interests 444

Taylor, Mr Matthew
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 246–7, 249–50
NHS, Cornwall (26.11.97) 932–7

Taylor, Mr Matthew—continued
Questions
Atomic Weapons Establishment, Publications 66w
Biotechnology, Patents 62w
Health action zones, Rural areas 649w
Home Office, Open government 454w
Nature conservation, Droughts 459w
Nature conservation, Water supply industry 459w
Open government, Attorney General 249w
Open government, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 458w
Open government, Dept of Health 313w
Open government, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 334w
Open government, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 220w
Open government, Lord Chancellor's Dept 326w
Open government, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 230w
Open government, Ministry of Defence 390w
Open government, President of the Council 361w
Open government, Scottish Office 420–1w
Open government, Treasury 331w
Open government, Welsh Office 264w
Patents, Genetics 105–6w
Police, Manpower 437w
Press releases, Attorney General 249–50w
Press releases, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 250–1w
Press releases, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 383w
Press releases, Dept of Health 314w
Press releases, Dept of Social Security 532w
Press releases, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 200–1w
Press releases, Dept of Trade and Industry 107w
Press releases, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 220w
Press releases, Home Office 216w
Press releases, Lord Chancellor's Dept 327w
Press releases, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 525–6w
Press releases, Ministry of Defence 148–9w
Press releases, Northern Ireland Office 582–3w
Press releases, President of the Council 361w
Press releases, Scottish Office 421w
Press releases, Treasury 331–2w
Press releases, Welsh Office 189w
Transport infrastructure 143

Taylor, Sir Teddy
Questions
EC law 321w
France 388w
Iraq, Mines 447–8w
Organisation of African Unity, EC aid 397–8w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Cabinet Office 250w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Dept of Trade and Industry 647w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Home Office 541w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Scottish Office 263w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Treasury 333–4w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Welsh Office 265w
VAT, Fares 468w

Taylor Task Force
see Tax and Benefits Task Force

Teachers
969
Greater London 339w
Pay 32–3w
Performance appraisal 363w
Vacancies 339w

Technology foresight programme
Dept for International Development 493–4w
Dept of Health 595–6w
Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 554–5w
Ministry of Defence 561–2w

Telecommunications Act 1984
Questions
457w

Telecommunications cables
Barents Sea 227–8w

Telecommunications technology
Privacy 399w

Telematics
Speed limits 130w

Telephone services
107–8w
Social security benefits 82–3w

Telephone systems
38–9w
Emergency services 46–7w

Telephone tapping
38–9w, 99–100w, 218–9w
EC action 39–40w
Intelligence services 39w
International law 610–1w
Prisoners 100w
Public telephones 611w

Telephones
Armed forces 498w
Ministers 420w
Stabilisation Force in Bosnia 497–8w

Television Licence Payments (Age Exemption) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Television programmes
Rugby 258w

Television reception
Local broadcasting 457w

Temporary immigrants
India 102w

Ten minutes rule
Speaker's rulings and statements (28.11.97) 1199

Termination of employment
Environment Agency 554w

Terrorism
151–2
Crimes of violence 483w
Egypt 149–54
Middle East 150–1
Northern Ireland (18.11.97) 168–217

32 Squadron
563w

Thomas, Mr Gareth
Debates etc.
Civil proceedings (21.11.97) 561–2, 599–600
Public service (17.11.97) 51, 59–62
Questions
Economic policy, Business 661w

Timms, Mr Stephen
Questions
Channel tunnel, Railway network 126w
EC Budget Council 674w
EC Finance Council 549–50w
EC Research Council 506–7w
National Asset Register 359–60w
Police, Restraint techniques 434w
Taxation, Law reform 663w
Treaty of Amsterdam, Human rights 475w

Tipping, Mr Paddy
Debates etc.
Coal mining (26.11.97) 910–4, 923
Personal pensions (18.11.97) 162
Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL), Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1036
Questions
Arable area payments scheme 278–9w
Coal mining 134
Coal mining, Privatisation 447

Tipping of waste
198w, 626w
EC action (25.11.97) 878

Tobacco
Smuggling 230–1w

Tobacco advertising
Sports sponsorship 15–6w, 54w, 268–9w, 324, 344w, 405w, 424–5w, 437–8, 519w, 603w, 647w, 678w, 685w

Todd, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 514–5
Questions
Animal feed, Composition labelling 21w
Armed forces education allowances 70w
Digital broadcasting, Regulatory systems 14–5w
Diplomatic service, Private education 10w
Economic and monetary union 329w
Environment Agency, Termination of employment 554w
Genetically modified organisms, Food labelling 20w
Social rented housing, Housing construction 368w

Tonge, Dr Jenny
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 408, 410
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 338
Questions
Abortion 470–1w
Afghanistan, Women 177–8w
Algeria, Human rights 481w
Asia-Europe Summit, Human rights 479w
Central Africa, EC external relations 399w
Central Africa, Refugees 399w
Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, Elephants 372w
Council house sales, House renovation grants 137w
Dalai Lama 480w
Democratic Republic of the Congo, UN resolutions 398w
East Timor, EC aid 178w
East Timor, EC external relations 480w
East Timor, Human rights 480w
East Timor, Indonesia 178w
East Timor, Overseas aid 178w
International Criminal Court, War crimes 400w
International Monetary Fund, Indonesia 469w, 495–6w

Tonge, Dr Jenny—continued*
Public telecommunications systems, Business 573–4w
Tunisia, Human rights 482w
Turkey 480w

Torture
Exports 480w

Touhig, Mr Don
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 435w

Tourism
Northern Ireland 580–1w

Tourist industry
385w
East Midlands 258w

Tourists
Egypt 546w

Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995
Questions
195–6w

Townend, Mr John
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 789
Questions
Gibraltar, Free movement of people 764
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 438

Trade competitiveness
280–1w

Trade Descriptions Act 1968
Questions
454w

Trade union membership
194w

Trading standards
Children 282w

Training
Child care 587w
EC grants and loans 163–4w
Fraud 156w

Training and enterprise councils
Finance 188w
Internet 157–8w
Wales 188w

Transmissible encephalopathies
EC action (25.11.97) 878

Transport
Government grants to local authorities 128w
Regulatory systems 693w

Transport infrastructure
143, 609w
Airports 126w

Transport of animals
Cattle 277w, 279w, 523–4w

Transport of radioactive materials
Air transport 148w

Trauma centres
425w

Travel agents
Monopolies and Mergers Commission 52w

Travelling people
625–6
Police powers 626
Trespass 625

Treasury
Civil servants' visits abroad 113–4w
Electronic mail 331w
Greenhouse effect 111–2w

Treasury—continued
Millennium compliance 110w
Official hospitality 112–4w
Open government 331w
Press releases 331–2w
Public appointments 358w
Publicity 113–4w
Reviews 406–7w
Treaty of Amsterdam 333–4w

Treaties
EC labour policy 404w
European Communities 479w
Mines 398–9w

Treaty of Amsterdam
261w, 399w, 401w, 754, (27.11.97) 1129–89
Cabinet Office 250w
Capital punishment 247w
Customs 674w
Dept of Trade and Industry 647w
Discrimination 220–1w
EC immigration 753
EC labour policy 255w, 284w
EC Social Charter 403–4w
Gibraltar 753–4
Home Office 541w
Human rights 475w
Immigration controls 36w
Ministry of Defence 393w
Political refugees 608w
Religion 247w
Religious freedom 221w
Scottish Office 263w
Subsidiarity 324w
Treasury 333–4w
Welsh Office 265w

Treaty of Rome
479w

Treaty on European Union
547w
EC integration 476–7w

Tredinnick, Mr David
Questions
Egypt, Terrorism 153–4
Local Government Act 1988 (Competition) (Scotland) Regulations 1997 145w
School buildings, Leicestershire 698w

Trees
Acid rain 370w
Air pollution 6–7w

Trespass
Travelling people 625

Trials
Northern Ireland 109w, 605w, 637w

Trickett, Mr Jon
Questions
EC Youth Council 186w

Trident submarines
70w

Trimble, Mr David
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 168–9
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1266
Questions
Northern Ireland government 957–8
Terrorism, Crimes of violence 483w

Truswell, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Wharfedale Hospital (27.11.97) 1191–2
Questions
Local government 126w

Tuberculosis in Cattle and Badgers Review
587w

Tuition fees
487w
Higher education 362w, 644w
Low incomes 643w
Scotland 145–6w, 422w, 643–4w

Tunisia
Human rights 482w

Turkey
480w
Armed forces deployment 564w
EC accession 221–2w

Turnberg Review
see Review of Health Care in London Independent Advisory Panel

Turner, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1223
Questions
Parliamentary buildings, Alcoholic drinks 474w

Turner, Dr Desmond
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1125
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1240
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1103
Questions
Small businesses, Information technology 285w

Turner, Dr George
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1115
Questions
EC Agriculture Council 276–7w
Political parties, Finance 969–70

Twigg, Mr Derek
Questions
Economic and monetary union 1085

Twigg, Mr Stephen
Questions
Drugs and crime 435–6w

Tyler, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 467, (27.11.97) 1120–1
House of Commons procedure, Points of order (19.11.97) 339
NHS, Cornwall (26.11.97) 934, 938
Questions
Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes, Maize 21w
Defence research, Genetics 243–4w
Food, Pesticide residues 20w
Food industry 668w
Food Standards Agency 668w
Food Standards Agency, Departmental responsibilities 668w
Genetically modified organisms 7w, 373w, 465–6w
Genetically modified organisms, Defence research 601–2w
Genetically modified organisms, EC law 8w
Genetically modified organisms, Soya beans 20w
Health services, Expenditure 62–3w
Soya beans, Research 20w

Tyne and Wear
Museums and galleries 258w

Tyrie, Mr Andrew
Questions
Gibraltar, Foreign policy 763–4
International conferences, Canary Wharf 408w
Prime Minister, Diaries 271w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 269w

UK contributions to EC budget
403w, 466w
Common agricultural policy 115w
EC common foreign and security policy 476w

UK delegations
Council of Europe 408w
Western European Union 408w

UK membership of EC
1070

UK Sports Institute
91–2w

UK World Cup Coordinating Group
see World Cup Coordination Group

UN
see United Nations

UN Convention on Biological Diversity
574w

UN resolutions
103w
Democratic Republic of the Congo 398w

UN Special Commission on Iraq
769

Unemployed
Poverty 83w

Unemployment
EC action 322
Young people 235w

Uniform business rate
125w
Scotland 75w

United Kingdom Sports Institute
see UK Sports Institute

United Nations
Iraq 475w

Universities
Scotland 109w

University Air Squadron
Armed forces training 602w

University finance
155–6w, (19.11.97) 260–83, 363w, 590w
Cambridge University 33w
Northern Ireland 583w
Oxford University 33w
Scotland 162–3w, 576–7w
Wales 381w, 505–6w

University for Industry
156w

University of Ulster
Springvale initiative 109w

UNSCOM
see UN Special Commission on Iraq

Untreated milk
522–3w, 642w

Urban areas
Air pollution 201w
Greenwich 334w
Housing construction 306w, 461w
Parking 555–6w
Speed limits 130w

Urban development grants
Cardiff Bay Development Corporation 640w

Urban Regeneration Agency
see English Partnerships

US bases
RAF Menwith Hill 392–3w

USA
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 276w
Disabled workers 160–1w
Investment income 111w
Tax credits 111w

Utting Review
see Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review

Vacancies
Health service staff 652–3w
Hospital consultants 181–3w
Teachers 339w

Vaccination
Hepatitis 521w

Vale of Glamorgan
Ritalin 682w

Valuation tribunals
557–8w

Value Added Tax (Payments on Account) Appeals) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(18.11.97) 218

Varicose veins
517w

VAT
Building alterations 469w
Confectionery 234w
Fares 468w
Museums and galleries 674w
Tax harmonisation 234w

VAT registration
Civil service manpower 467–8w
Newry 467–8w

Vaz, Mr Keith
Questions
Child Support Agency, Administrative delays 86–7w
Child Support Agency, Manpower 87–8w
Fazal-Ur-Rahman, Visas 543w
Illegal immigrants, Costs 439w
Immigration appeals, Administrative delays 326–7w
Legal aid scheme 325w
Migration and Visa Correspondence Unit, Administrative delays 479w
Millennium Exhibition 77w
Music education 31w
Planning permission 197w
Public appointments, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 669w
Public appointments, Dept of the Environment Transport and the Regions 460w
Public appointments, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 678w
Public appointments, Lord Chancellor's Dept 326w, 673w
Public appointments, Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food 668w
Public appointments, Ministry of Defence 391w
Public appointments, Treasury 358w
Public appointments, Welsh Office 681–2w
Urban areas, Greenwich 334w
Visas 477–8w
Yemen 17w

Vehicle number plates
554w

Vetting
Day care of children 971–2

Vietnam
Disaster relief 179w

Viggers, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Rescue services (26.11.97) 887–92
Rescue services, Points of order (17.11.97) 20
Questions
Gosport, Property transfer 564w
HM Coastguard 463–4w
HM Coastguard, Closures 463w
Local government finance 137
Lone parents, Take-up of employment 526–7w
Means tested benefits 16

Vis, Dr Rudi
Questions
Abortion, Costs 423w
Age discrimination, Employment protection 363–5w
Wealth tax 358w

Visas
477–8w
Fazal-Ur-Rahman, 543w

Vitamin B6
Premenstrual syndrome 584w

Vitamins
Nutrition and health 585w

Voluntary organisations
Welfare to work 503–5w

Voting methods
Council of Ministers 260w, 397w

Wales
Average earnings 682w
Beef 639w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 502w
Bureaucracy 263–4w
Coal mining 638w
Cycleways 189w
EC institutions 504w
Educational finance 24–6w
Farmers 501w
Fires 265–8w
Freight transport 127w
Further education 264w, 503–4w
Health service staff 682w
Higher education 503–4w
Hill livestock allowances 25w
Hospital discharges 380w
Innovation 108w
Joint replacements 380w
Neighbourhood nuisance 638–9w
NHS finance 24w, 503w
NHS trusts 24w
Pollution (19.11.97) 292–8
Pre-school education 637–8w
Probation officers 35w
Quarrying 189w
Reduced earnings allowance 564–5w
Regional selective assistance 640w
Revenue support grant 683w
Smoking 264w
Students 577w
Training and enterprise councils 188w
University finance 381w, 505–6w
Welfare to work 503–5w

Wallace, Mr James
Debates etc.
Rescue services (26.11.97) 896–9, 903, 907

Wallace, Mr James*—*continued
Rescue services, Points of order (17.11.97) 79–80
Questions
Firearms, Compensation 542–3w
HM Coastguard, Closures 303–4w
Revenue support grant 1080
Road accidents, Scotland 501w

Walley, Ms Joan
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 239–43
Young offenders (27.11.97) 1098
Questions
Aerials 620–1w
Aerials, Planning permission 2–3w, 196w
Aerials, Publicity 195–6w
Biotechnology, Patents 515–6w
Carbon dioxide, Air pollution control 134w
Coal mining, Property transfer 48w
Cycling, Crash helmets 135w
Driving offences, Punishment 245w
EC Environment Council 199w
Energy conservation 52w
Energy Saving Trust 199–200w
Environment protection, Public participation 334w
HM Coastguard 9–10w, 133–4w
M6 2w
Planning permission, Aerials 196w
Public telephones 285–6w
Road accidents, Children 195w
Road safety education 134–5w
Speed limits, Cameras 129w
Speed limits, Telematics 130w
Speed limits, Urban areas 130w
Sports, Broadcast journalism 180w
Sports, Radio 180w
UN Convention on Biological Diversity 574w

Wansbeck
National Lottery 383–6w

War crimes
769
International Criminal Court 400w

War pensions
Medical examinations 566–7w

War Widows and Pensioners (Equal Treatment) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Ward, Ms Claire
Questions
Charities, Shops 1079

Wardle, Mr Charles,
Debates etc.
Public Accounts Committee (20.11.97) 494–9

Waste and Contaminated Land (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
Debates etc.
(25.11.97) 878

Waste disposal
5w
NHS 342–3w

Water and sewerage companies
4–5w
Planning permission 303w

Water Industry Act 1991
Questions
4–5w, 198w

Water pollution
626–7w

Water pollution—continued*
Garages and petrol stations 125–6w
Scotland 183–4w

Water sports
Lake Windermere 381–2w

Water supply
133w, 198w, 336w
Development plans 198w

Water supply industry
Nature conservation 459w

Water transport
River Thames 375–6w

Water treatment
Sewage 133w

Waterson, Mr Nigel
Questions
Charities, Taxation 230w
Employment, Rural areas 185w
Fishing Vessels (Decommissioning) Scheme 1997 276w
Local government associations, South East region 366w
New Millennium Experience 77w
Rural areas, Statistics 366w
Small businesses 286w
Small businesses, Government assistance 417w
Social security benefits, Political refugees 139w

Watts, Mr Dave
Debates etc.
Business questions (20.11.97) 468
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 855
Regional aid, EC grants and loans (19.11.97) 285, 290
Questions
EC grants and loans 220w
Standard spending assessments, Coal mining 138–9
Valuation tribunals 557–8w

Waveney
Coastal protection 668w

Wealth tax
358w

Weather
Hospital admissions 319–20w
NHS finance 343–4w

Webb, Mr Steve
Questions
Cold weather payments, Bristol 139–40w
Income support, Mortgages 329w
Lone parent families, Social security recipients 537w
Lone parents, Social security recipients 81–2w
Means tested benefits, Social security recipients 526w
Members' correspondence 292w
Mortgages, Income support 140w
National insurance contributions, Actors 294w
New deal for lone parents 445w, 664w
New deal for lone parents, Income support 664w
Pensioners, Social security claims 9
Right to buy, Elderly 8–9w
Social security benefits backdating, Costs 540w
Social Security Bill 1997/98 537w

Welfare of Pigs Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
1R (26.11.97) 976–8

Welfare to work
159w, 659–60w
Chronically sick 535w
Handicapped 535w
Incapacity benefit 529–30w
Lancashire 340w, 488w
Private sector 488–90w
Scotland 489–90w, 577w
Voluntary organisations 503–5w
Wales 503–5w

Wells, Mr Bowen
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1143–4

Welsh, Mr Andrew
Questions
Educational finance 160w
Tuition fees, Low incomes 643w
Tuition fees, Scotland 643–4w

Welsh Assembly
see National Assembly of Wales

Welsh Development Agency
Arms exports 23w

Welsh language
Divorce 252w

Welsh Office
Electronic mail 108w
Ministers 506w
Open government 264w
Press releases 189w
Public appointments 681–2w
Treaty of Amsterdam 265w

West coast railway line
Channel tunnel 555w

West Midlands
Children in care 591–3w
Housing construction 297–8w
Single regeneration budget 299–302w

Western European Union
EC enlargement 401w
Gibraltar 397w
UK delegations 408w

Western Sahara
544–5w
Refugees 551–2w

Whales
Public records 672w

Wharfedale Hospital
(27.11.97) 1191–6

Wheelchair Working Group
200w

Wheelchairs
Artificial Limb and Appliance Service Wales 682–3w

White, Mr Brian
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1111

Whitehead, Dr Alan
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 53–5
Questions
Beaches, EC law 131w
Sewage, Sea pollution 131w
Sewage, Water treatment 133w
Uniform business rate 125w

Whitney, Sir Ray
Debates etc.
European Communities (Amendment) Bill, Com (27.11.97) 1144

Whittingdale, Mr John
Debates etc.
Health services, Essex (18.11.97) 230–2, 236

Wicks, Mr Malcolm
Questions
Cambridge University, Higher education admission 590w
Oxford University, Cost per student 338w
University finance 590w

Widdecombe, Rt Hon Ann
Debates etc.
House of Commons questions, Points of order (26.11.97) 973
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 86, 111
Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill, 2R (28.11.97) 1236, 1249–51, 1264–5
Questions
Government information services 310
Labour Party, Finance 318, 969
Political refugees, Kent 683–4w
Tax collection, Company liquidations 256w

Widening of the M25 Motorway Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
2R order read (28.11.97) 1273

Widows
Armed forces pensions 71w

Wigley, Rt Hon Dafydd
Questions
Artificial Limb and Appliance Service Wales, Wheelchairs 682–3w

Wild Mammals (Hunting with Dogs) Bill 1997/98
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1122
2R (28.11.97) 1199–271

Wilkinson, Mr John
Debates etc.
European Council, Employment (24.11.97) 643
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 352, 364–6, 369–70, 379, 389–90, 410, 412–5, (24.11.97) 650–2, 654–6, 667–8
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, 3R (26.11.97) 983, 987, 1014–5, 1026
Questions
Air force bases, Armed forces civilians 564w
London Underground, Concessionary fares 146
Motor industry 437
Political refugees 615
Prisoners' transfers, Northern Ireland 579–80w
RAF Northolt, Armed forces civilians 563–4w
Retirement pensions 4
32 Squadron 563w
Tobacco advertising, Sports sponsorship 437

Willetts, Mr David,
Questions
Local government pensions 1085
Young people, Unemployment 235w

Williams, Rt Hon Alan
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 246, 249
University finance (19.11.97) 272

Williams, Rt Hon Alan*—*continued
Questions
Training and enterprise councils, Finance 188w

Williams, Mr Alan W
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 794
Questions
Common agricultural policy 770
Minimum wage 440–1

Willis, Mr Phil
Debates etc.
Public service (17.11.97) 23, 44, 54, 71
University finance (19.11.97) 264, 269–70

Wilshire, Mr David
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (24.11.97) 687–8, 690

Wilson, Mr Brian, Minister for Education and Industry, Scottish Office
Questions
Educational finance, Argyll and Bute 261–2w
Further education, Educational finance 421–2w
Higher education administration, Scotland 73w
Pre-school education, Scotland 628w
Student numbers, Scotland 72–3w
Students, Borders region 141w
Tuition fees, Scotland 145–6w, 422w
University finance, Scotland 576–7w
Welfare to work, Scotland 577w

Winnick, Mr David
Debates etc.
Business questions (27.11.97) 1122
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 794–5
Special Immigration Appeals Commission Bill (HL), Rep and 3R (26.11.97) 1037–8, 1040–1
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 119
Questions
House of Commons, Postal services 327w
Low pay 442
Political parties, Finance 318–9

Winterton, Mrs Ann
Questions
Civil servants, Political impartiality 236–7w
Firearms, Compensation 41w
Firearms, Police 41–2w
Roads, Capital investment 142

Winterton, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Greater London Authority (Referendum) Bill, Com (19.11.97) 414
Oral question time intervention (19.11.97) 318, (27.11.97) 1071
Safeguards Against Abuse of Children Living Away From Home Review (19.11.97) 333
Standards and Privileges Select Committee (17.11.97) 85, 101–2
Questions
Corporation tax 1070
Ministerial policy advisors 317
Motor industry, Takeovers 445
Politics and government 972

Wireless Telegraphy Act 1949
Questions
457w

Wireless Telegraphy Bill (HL) 1997/98
Questions
443

Wisconsin
Social security reform 538–9w

Wise, Audrey
Debates etc.
Pre-Budget statement (25.11.97) 788

Women
Afghanistan 177–8w
Non-departmental public bodies 312–3
Pension rights 9–10
Pensions 17

Wood
Health hazards 3–4w, 131–2w

Woodward, Mr Shaun
Questions
Social security 80w

Working hours
EC law 53w, 439–40
Junior hospital doctors 317–8w

World Bank
446–7w, 552w
Departmental responsibilities 177w

World Cup
Police 628w

World Cup Coordination Group
613–4w

Worthington, Mr Tony, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Northern Ireland Office
Debates etc.
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 2R (18.11.97) 213–7
Questions
Ambulance services, Northern Ireland 635–6w
Armagh and Dungannon Health and Social Services Trust, Flags 272w
Belvoir Park Hospital 637w
Cancer, Medical treatments 637w
Causeway Hospital 962–3
Chiropodists 26–7w
Chiropodists, Northern Ireland 28w
Chiropody 26–8w
Chronic fatigue syndrome, Northern Ireland 271–2w
Downe Hospital 961
Higher education, Northern Ireland 109w
Hospital waiting lists, Northern Ireland 961
Integrated schools, Northern Ireland 583w, 955
Jubilee Maternity Hospital Belfast, Hospital closures 636w
Languages education, Irish 27–9w
Magill, Ian, Paedophilia 322w
NHS, Northern Ireland 583w, 962
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 25–6w, 636w, 962
Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust, Maternity services 961–2
Royal Victoria Hospital Belfast 635w
Southern Health and Social Services Board 634–5w
University finance, Northern Ireland 583w
University of Ulster, Springvale initiative 109w

Wright, Dr Tony
Debates etc.
European Parliamentary Elections Bill, 2R (25.11.97) 807, 821
Questions
Officer Training Corps 394w
Travelling people 625–6

Written questions
Speaker's rulings and statements (17.11.97) 21

Xenotransplantation
Departmental responsibilities 270–1w
Pigs 651–2w

Yemen
17w

Yeo, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Climate Change Convention (19.11.97) 254–6
Rescue services (26.11.97) 903–5
Questions
Climate Change Convention 294w
Corporation tax 1086
Council tax 689–90w
Crime prevention, Local government functions 669w
Development plans 690w
Educational finance 697–8w
Foreign policy, Environment protection 760
Housing construction, Countryside 132
J Sainsbury, Planning appeals 690w
Local government expenditure 367–8w
Local government finance, Interest rates 369w, 689w
MacLaurin, Lord 691w
Prison Service, Private sector 436w
Safeway 691w
Sainsbury, Lord 369w, 406w, 691w
Shopping centres, Planning permission 335w
Supermarkets, Planning permission 405–6w, 461w

Young offender institutions
216w, 630

Young offenders
436w, 970–1
Ministerial statements (27.11.97) 1089–103
Parents 434w
Prison population 216w, 431w, 629–30
Reparation by offenders 628–9
Research 611w
Youth organisations 541w

Young people
Agriculture 230w
Alcoholic drinks 246–7w, 435w
Dentures 341–2w
Drug abuse 650w
Drugs and crime 620
Housing benefits 5–6
Unemployment 235w

"Young Teenagers and Alcohol in 1996"
435w

Youth organisations
Young offenders 541w

Youth unemployment
765

Yugoslavia
Overseas aid 494–5w

Zambia
Human rights 450w
Overseas aid 449w

Zimbabwe
Land acquisition 449w
Overseas aid 449w
Public order 448w